

Opportunity Has Knocked, and We Have Opened The Door!

*We are soon to have the New Press installed!
But that does not finish the job!
Nevertheless, let us thank God for answered prayer*

THE BRETHREN EVANGELIST

Published weekly, except the last week in August and
the last week in December.

THE BRETHREN PUBLISHING COMPANY

Ashland, Ohio

PRUDENTIAL COMMITTEE

J. E. Stookey, President N. G. Kimmel, Vice-President
J. G. Dodds, Secretary-Treasurer

EDITOR OF PUBLICATIONS—F. C. Vanator

BUSINESS MANAGER—G. S. Baer

EDITOR MISSIONARY NUMBER—E. M. Riddle

CONTRIBUTING EDITORS

Dr. Charles A. Bame

Rev. Dyoll Belote

DEPARTMENTAL EDITORS

Dr. C. F. Yoder, Brethren Doctrine

Rev. N. V. Leatherman, Practical Church Problems

Rev. J. G. Dodds, National Goals

Dr. R. F. Porte, Brethren Church History

PLEASE REMEMBER: All material for publication in the Evangelist must be in the hands of the editor at least three weeks before the desired date of publication, to assure same to appear in desired issue. This refers to announcements particularly.

TERMS OF SUBSCRIPTION: $1.50 per year in advance.
CHANGE OF ADDRESS: In ordering change of address always
give both old and new addresses.

REMITTANCES: Send all money, business communications, and contributed articles to:

THE BRETHREN PUBLISHING COMPANY
ASHLAND, OHIO

Entered as second class matter at Ashland, Ohio. Accepted for mailing
at special rate, section 1103, act of October 3, 1917. Authorized
September 3, 1928.

INTERESTING ITEMS

Cambria, Indiana. We note from a report by Brother Wayne Swihart, Pastor of the Burlington Church, who formerly served the Cambria Church in connection with his Burlington charge, that Brother Bright Hanna, a member of the Burlington church, has been serving the Cambria Brethren Church as lay pastor for the past several months.

Cerro Gordo, Illinois. We note that Brother Clarence Stogsdill, a pre-seminary student of Ashland College, and a member of the Cerro Gordo Church, delivered the Christmas message in the Cerro Gordo Church on Sunday morning, December 21.

Milledgeville, Illinois. We learn from Brother D. C. White's bulletin of December 14 that Mrs. E. V. McGrath, who was instrumental in the placing of the bell and who started the organ fund for the church, is also giving chimes to the church, a thing which adds greatly to the value of the organ. It was hoped that these chimes could be installed for the holiday season.

Nappanee, Indiana. We note that that truck load of merchandise which was being gathered by the members of the Nappanee Church was sent to Kentucky, the truck leaving for our mission on Saturday, December 13.

Brother J. M. Bowman, Nappanee pastor, has this to say in his bulletin of December 7: "On December 14 we shall have our first service in the New Church. Just two years, ten months, and one day after the burning of the old church we are moving into the basement of the new one. It will not be fully completed, and the Sunday school classes will have to be doubled up." We understand they had a great day.

Hagerstown, Maryland. The Hagerstown W. M. S. held their Annual Silver Tea on Wednesday evening, December 17. Stress was laid on the filling of "Packetbooks" for foreign relief. Even the men were asked to give up their pocketbooks for the cause.

Akron (Firestone Park), Ohio. Brother Dodds informs us that Brother and Sister Washburn are donating the "Corner Stone" for the new Akron Church and that it is in the process of being cut and lettered. It will be of granite.

We also learn that the "weather did not permit" the getting of the footings poured for the new church as per schedule. But they will just not be stopped by such a thing as a little weather, you may be sure.

Canton, Ohio. We note from Brother Beekley's bulletin that a recent Laymen's meeting was well attended and that all enjoyed the program and the motion pictures. Mrs. Edgar Heist was elected President, and Mr. Orie Bair, Vice-President. The next meeting of the organization is scheduled for January 9.

Waterloo, Iowa. A Christmas Party, sponsored by the Sunday School, was held on Tuesday evening, December 23. A pot-luck dinner was held at the 6:30 hour. It was a "Family affair."

Goshen, Indiana. We note from Brother Rowsey's final Goshen bulletin that pins were awarded to eleven members of the Junior Choir for faithful attendance for the first three months of perfect attendance.

Washington, D. C. Brother C. S. Fairbanks tells of the first of what they hope will be a series of interesting Sunday evening programs was presented by Mr. Carroll Pennington, of the Christian Endeavor.

Cumberland, Maryland. Brother Paul M. Naff reports that the church debt has now been reduced to a little over $500.00.

A special meeting of the men was called recently for the purpose of organizing a Laymen's Organization.

Masontown, Pennsylvania. We learn from Arthur Petit, of the office of Public Relations of Ashland College, has arranged for a concert of the Ashland College A Cappella Choir at the Masontown Church.

We also note that Brother S. M. Whetstone has been chosen as the evangelist for the coming spring Evangelistic meetings, the tentative date of which has been set as of April 6 to 18.

The Editor Thinks Aloud

Fred C. Vanator

GOD MADE MAN—HE . . . ?

NAME across the following which bore the caption to "Think It Over," and, since that has been one of my pet expressions in this editorial column, it sort of irked me to think that some one else was seemingly usurping my expression. Of course, not having any copyright on the words or the phrase, I proceeded to look it over to see what this individual wanted me to "think over." This is what I found:

God made the sun—it gives;
 God made the moon—it gives;
 God made the stars—they give;
 God made the clouds—they give;
 God made the earth—it gives;
 God made the sea—it gives;
 God made the trees—they give;
 God made the grass—it gives;
 God made the flowers—they give;
 God made the bees—they give;
 God made the fowls—they give;
 God made the fish—they give;
 God made the beasts—they give;
 God made the plan—He gives;
 God made man—he . . . ?

It was this last phrase that set me to thinking.

In the midst of our preparation for the receiving of the Publication Day Offering and the Pledges for the Press Fund, this question seems quite apropos. Particularly the blank space that follows after "he." Of course the implication is that men are not doing all they can do in the matter of giving. And how very true it is, for very few of us have touched even the fringes of our ability to give to the Lord's work. It is not necessarily because we do not have the desire, but largely because of thoughtlessness, and a failure to realize what we really "owe" to God.

We just cannot make up our minds to do what we know we really should do. Then when the time has passed we look back upon that which we have failed to do and find a deep sorrow in our hearts that is there because we failed to do that which we should have done.

Go back into the little "think it over" above and note how all God's creations have responded unselfishly to that for which they were created—yes all, except perhaps, man. And it is he, beyond all others, that should be willing to give, because so much has been given to him. Just take a little time, and—

Think it over!

Deep spirituality in the pulpit will have much to do with the depth of spirituality in the pews. And if spirituality prevails in the pews there will be little danger of modernism and liberalism making inroads into the church. Modernism has no place with spirituality.

Business Manager's Corner

George S. Baer

Additional Gifts for the Press Fund

THE THIRD Brethren Church of Johnstown, Pa., ever loyal to every Conference appeal, recently sent their second offering for the Press Fund, and the names of the givers listed as follows:

Mr. and Mrs. Floyd Benshoff	$ 5.00
Mr. and Mrs. James Barkhymer	5.00
Mr. and Mrs. Elmer Baker	5.00
R. B. Stutzman	5.00
Clarence Howard	5.00
Mrs. Pearl Link	2.00
Mrs. Clara Smith	1.00
Catherine Benshoff	10.00
Onward Circle Class	10.00
D. F. Benshoff	10.00
Men's Lookout Class	10.00
Mrs. Norman Grumbling	15.00
Jonathan Kels	30.00
(Total cash and pledges from this church $128.00)
A. R. Umbell, Uniontown, Pa.	25.00
S. Jennie Harriaan, Waterloo, Iowa	5.00
Carl E. Boone, Wabash, Indiana	8.50
E. O. Donaldson, Peru, Indiana	100.00

(For total of cash and pledges to this Fund see block on page 16).

Room for Many More

In our last report we wrote about New Lebanon continuing on the 100% Evangelist list, but did not know at the time how many subscribers they were to have. We now have the list and find 169 names. That puts them among the leaders in that line. Thank you again, good New Lebanon friends. There will doubtless be others to renew their Honor Roll status soon. We shall appreciate them coming in large numbers. There is room for many more.

Our Christmas Trade Was Good

In the Book and Supply department, especially in the local constituency. We were unable to supply all the demands of the local trade, but next year we hope merchandise will be more plentiful. However, we still have a good stock of Bibles and books. This is the time to order your supply of Sunday School Lesson commentaries for the year. We just received an order for 18 Higley commentaries for one school. It's a good plan for schools to supply their teachers with such helps. We have the following commentaries on hand, but they are going fast. Order yours now. Higley's, $1.50; Peloubet's, $2.50; Tarbell's $2.50; Moore's Points of Emphasis (Pocket size edition), 50c.

Price Raise on Commission Goods

Some of the Publishing Houses from which we buy Sun-

(Continued from page 10)

(Given recently at an Ashland College "Chapel" to the student body. Prof. Weidenhamer is a teacher of mathematics and physics in the College, and is also the Superintendent of the Ashland First Brethren Sunday School.)

SOME TIME ago I ran across an article in a newspaper wherein the columnist attempted to tell something about mountain-climbing. There wasn't much to the article, but it set me wondering: "Why do people climb mountains?"

Do they climb for the view? Nowadays there are usually good motor roads to the top of all mountains that afford exceptional views. At the top the road is widened, parking space is provided, everything is made convenient for the public to enjoy the view without expending any physical energy climbing.

Do they climb for the exercise? Very few people do anything "for the exercise." Human nature isn't made that way. Besides, there are countless other ways of exercising which are less strenuous or perhaps even more beneficial than mountain-climbing.

Do they derive any sense of accomplishment? Perhaps, a little; but certainly accomplishment may be achieved in easier and decidedly more spectacular ways.

For the glory? Very little publicity is given the professional mountain-climber, to say nothing of the ordinary folk who climb mountains whenever a mountain presents itself.

For the thrill? Certainly mountain-climbing cannot be considered a safe pastime. There is constant danger of injury or loss of life. But you can obtain a thrill, if that's what you're looking for, in fast driving, or by many other means.

Why, then, do people climb mountains? The columnist had only one answer: "Because they haven't any will power. They are afraid to say 'No' when someone wants to go climb a mountain; or, they haven't the will power to resist any urge of their own to go climbing—resist it to the point where they are sensible enough to pick up a good book instead, and relax in a day of comfortable reading."

Personally, I think it depends upon whether you have to climb the mountain or not. If you have to climb it, that is reason enough in itself. There are some mountains everyone has to climb.

The mountain of Preparation for Life. Many do only a half-hearted job of climbing this one; in fact, they never put forth enough effort to reach the summit while they can. They wander around on the side, perhaps half-way up if they had a good start, but when they get around to realizing the value of crossing the summit in order to go on, they no longer have the energy to climb the rest of the way. If you're carried up this mountain in comfort by a golden slave, you never fully appreciate how high it can be to someone who has to dig a toehold for every move he makes to reach the top. Nor could you appreciate what a difficult time someone physically handicapped has in climbing that mountain.

There is the Mountain of Decision. If you are one who likens life to a continual journey from the sunrise to the sunset, there are many of these mountains which must be crossed somehow in the course of the day. If you climb straight up—directly—it's crossed; if you try to find an easy way around, so often you end up in briars or quicksand. Mountains are obstacles to be overcome; if you overcome them you are the stronger for having done so. And you don't overcome mountains by taking by-paths that look easier because they don't climb so steeply; which lead off invitingly but never go near the top of the mountain.

Why

Do

People

Climb

Mountains?

H. E. Weidenhamer

There is the Mountain of Duty. This is another one you can climb straight up and have it crossed, or you can flounder around on the mountainside looking for an easier way—a tunnel leading through it, perhaps—and waste a large part of your day thus. Again, you are stronger for having climbed it and passed it. The experience you gain in crossing the mountains of Decision and Duty helps you in climbing the next ones; make them a little easier.

But what of the mountains we aren't compelled to climb? Why do we climb them? Not, I say, as the columnist would have us believe, because we have not the will power to say "No," but simply because of a little something we call "Inspiration."

At the summit of a mountain you did not have to climb, there suddenly seems to appear a new-found strength which we term "Inspiration." It might have been that work you donated to some public service or the time you went out of your way to do something for someone who you knew could never repay the favor. It might have been that decision to enter the ministry. It might have been any of hundreds of mountains you weren't compelled to climb, but which you did climb. And at the top you experienced Inspiration.

You have heard mentioned the term "mountain-top experience." They all happen at the summits you didn't have to cross.

What do you see when you climb a mountain? Your horizon is widened. The sordid and ugly parts of the country you passed through and of that which lies ahead, become less ugly, because they are seen from a distance. The trivial and the unimportant are down below. Surely, you'll return to them again; but up there you gather strength, and some of the beauty you can take along down with you, as an artist his paints, to sort of put a splash of color over the drab and dreary parts. Noah saw a rainbow from a mountain top. There is beauty up there. The sunrise and the sunset are infinitely more beautiful from the top of a mountain.

You get a wider perspective of life up there. The narrow trails and valleys don't seem so important when you can look out over the miles that stretch on either side. Observatories are located, if at all possible, on mountain tops. There is a good reason for this: sight is clearer there; the earth's atmosphere does not interfere so much with observations as in the land below.

Why do people climb mountains? In I Kings we find that Elijah went for sanctuary to Horeb, the mountain of God. He was in danger of losing his life and he sought sanctuary. He found it: a cave for shelter; food and water. Sanctuary!

In Matthew, Jesus sent the multitude away and went up into a mountain apart to pray. THEN, He went down therefrom and walked on the waves of the sea when the storm threatened the ship carrying the disciples.

Have any great things happened on mountains? On a mountain-top the Law was given to Moses for the people of Israel. On a mountain-top a covenant was given to Noah. On the top of Moriah, Abraham was spared his only son's life, and received a special blessing from the Lord. On the mountain called Calvary, Christ was crucified. Never, in the hours between your sunrise and sunset, will you find a mountain quite so hard to climb as Calvary was. But on a mountain-top, then, too, came the Transfiguration.

Now here is perhaps the happiest note of all to anyone who has to climb mountains—and that means all of us. There is no one who will not admit the advantage of taking a guide to explore country, as yet unknown to him. I don't mean a companion. Companions help a lot; it's nice to have company on your day's trip. But I mean an honest-to-goodness guide. When you're only half-way up a mountain and strength is beginning to fail, it's the guide who provides the food to replenish your strength. And farther along, with the sun beating down on you until you're ready to drop, the Guide says, "Why didn't you mention being thirsty? Here off the path a few steps is a spring of cool, clear water. Drink and restore your strength."

Surely, He leadeth beside the still waters in the valley. But He guides over the mountains, too.

—Ashland College.

The world is a difficult world indeed,
And the people are hard to suit,
And the man who plays on the violin
Is a bore to the man with a flute.
And I myself have often thought,
How very much better 'twould be
If every one of the folks that I know
Would only agree with me.
But since they will not, the very best way
To make the world look bright,
Is never to mind what others say,
But do what you think is right.—Anonymous.

Prof. Glenn Clayton Elected Ashland College President

Arthur Petit, Public Relations Director

Of unusual interest to the readers of the Evangelist is the selection of Glenn L. Clayton to serve as President of Ashland College beginning in September, 1948. At the special meeting of the Board of Trustees of Ashland College, held for the purpose of selecting a president, Mr. Clayton was elected to succeed Dr. R. W. Bixler who is now serving his third year as head of the institution. Beginning in September, Dr. Bixler will take a long overdue and richly deserved leave of absence for one semester and then will return as Professor of History, the position he held prior to his appointment as Dean of the College in 1943.

Mr. Clayton is certainly not unknown to the Brethren Church. For many years he has been a member of the New Lebanon Brethren Church, serving in many official capacities. He was superintendent of the Sunday School for some time there. He is president of the National Laymen's Organization, the men's group corresponding to the Women's Missionary Society. He is now serving his second year in that office. He has spoken before National Conference a number of times and has visited many laymen's meetings and other functions both in his official capacity and again as a visitor. For several years, he has been a familiar figure at both state and national meetings of the denomination.

Mr. Clayton is well qualified to fill the position as President of Ashland College. A graduate of Miami University, he has earned his Master of Arts Degree at Ohio State University. He has absolved all of the requirements for the degree of Doctor of Philosophy and is scheduled to receive that award in March of this year. The president-elect has served as a high school teacher and later Superintendent of Schools at New Lebanon, Ohio. At present, he is a member of the teaching staff at Ohio State University. He is in the department of history.

In making a letter to the faculty, the Board of Trustees made it clear that the efficiency and capability of Dr. Bixler had never been questioned and that the only reason for making the change was to place a member of the Brethren Church at the head of the institution. They expressed their appreciation to Dr. Bixler for serving when no one from the denomination was available and also their happiness that Dr. Bixler has consented to remain on the teaching staff.

Mr. Clayton is the eighth president since the reopening of the college 49 years ago and the youngest to serve since that time.

Sunday School News

PENNSYLVANIA SUNDAY SCHOOL MEET AT THE VALLEY CHURCH

THE Pennsylvania Brethren Sunday School Board put on a program at the Valley Brethren Church, Jones Mills, Pennsylvania, on October 26th. There was a very nice response from these good Brethren at Jones Mills and many folks also came over from the Mount Pleasant Church for both afternoon and evening services.

It was the privilege of my sister, my wife and myself to be with these people for the Bible School hour and also the preaching in the morning. We were happy to witness for our Lord in teaching the Young People's Class in the Sunday School. We spent the noon hour, with a very fine meal, in the home of the Sunday School Superintendent, Mr. Harry Stahl. We enjoyed the Christian fellowship with Mr. and Mrs. Stahl and their two daughters.

Our program for the afternoon was attended by about fifty people interested in Sunday School work. Mrs. Wertz presented a flannelgraph story of "Daniel in the Lion's Den." Miss Geneva Altfather from Berlin gave an object lesson concerning church members. The discussion, "The Preparation—How To Teach," was handled by the writer and was followed by a general question and discussion period. We had fine group singing of choruses in which the folks showed much enthusiasm.

We were entertained in the home of Mrs. Judd Calp for the evening meal.

Our evening program was well attended. Mrs. Wertz presented another flannelgraph story, "The Two Ways." Rev. Harold Garland, pastor of the church, assisted in the showing of two film strips—"The Preparation of Jesus Christ," and "Gethsemane." At the close of the last picture, with the church in darkness, Miss Ida Kimmel and Miss Lois Jean Wertz sang a beautiful duet, "Alone."

This institute was sponsored by the Brethren Sunday School Board of Pennsylvania. Any Sunday Schools or churches desiring such a program will please contact the undersigned.

The picture above was taken after the afternoon session in front of the Valley Church.

Walter C. Wertz,
310 Fourth Street, Conemaugh, Pa.

NEWS

Send all C. E. News Items
To Rev. W. St. Clair Benshoff
Rt. 1, Box 152, Conemaugh, Pa.

ST. JAMES, MARYLAND, C. E.

After the usual summer let-up, our C. E. Program is now getting under full swing again. We opened the season with a moonlight hike to which all the young people from twelve to sixteen were invited. Between twenty-five and thirty accepted the invitation and joined us for the evening's fellowship and fun.

At one of our first meetings an election was held with the following young people being elected:

PresidentJanet Barkdoll
Vice-PresidentGeorge Baker
SecretaryKathryn Barkdoll
TreasurerJohn Mills

During the next week these officers met with our advisors, Mr. Norris and Rev. Bates, and appointed a Look-out committee, a Devotional committee, and a Social committee. At the present time plans are being made for a Scavenger Hunt for the end of October.

A schedule of programs has been arranged for the remainder of this year. This includes monthly consecration meetings, a game of Bible baseball, round table discussions, dedication service, musical talent night, Fanny

Crosby night, and Ashland College night at which time our young people from the college will be our guests.

We hope to be able to announce our project for the year very shortly but are not able to do so right now.

SMITHVILLE C. E.'s REPORT

IT HAS been quite some time since you have had news from our Smithville C. E. The Junior and Intermediate Society continues in the Lord's work as usual. Our Fall meetings began on September first.

In September we had a roast at the Edwin Steiner home. The evening was ideal and the Steiners certainly made the party a success in a big way. Mr. Steiner might give you a tip on roasting hot dogs in a large quantity, the best you ever ate!

The County C. E. Rally was held on November 9 at Rittman, Ohio. A fine program was planned for all ages. Awards were given for highest attendance and the largest percentage of members present. Our society won in both, having thirty-four present.

On November 23 the society met for the regular devotional meeting and also a Thanksgiving party. Instead of the usual party activity, the group brought gifts and wrapped them to pack a Christmas box for our Kentucky mission. There were thirty-eight boys and girls present and seventy-six gifts were wrapped.

We are hoping and praying that more Brethren Churches will organize and give special attention to the Junior age group in your churches. If you have an active Junior Christian Endeavor today your young people's society of tomorrow will be a reality.

Mrs. Dwight Miller, sponsor.

ASHLAND, OHIO, SENIOR C. E. NEWS

THE Senior Christian Endeavor Society of Ashland, Ohio, is made up almost entirely of college students from various parts of the country. Since most of us are not here in the summer, our society is limited to a nine months program.

Our project for this year, that we are now working on, is to send aid to a family or to individuals in Germany who are in need. As yet we are not sure who we will help, but we are working on this project.

We elected our officers last month and they are as follows:

PresidentDorman Ronk
Vice-PresidentRobert Hoffman
SecretaryLois Coleman
TreasurerJoseph Schultz
ChoristerJoan Riddle
PianistJohn Lindower

We are looking forward to a successful year in the Lord's work.

Lois Coleman, Secretary.

Instead of deploring that roses have thorns, I am glad the thorny stem is capped with roses and that the tree bears bloom.—Joubert.

Putting The Magnifying Glass

"A Look Behind the Scenes" -- A Symposium

Fred C. Vanator, Editor of Publications

EVER SINCE we have been seated in the Editor's chair we have sought to be very frank in our statements concerning the work of the Brethren Publishing Company in its endeavors to keep the readers informed concerning the various interests of the Brethren Church as related to their various activities. We have always felt that one of the main reasons, if not the main reason, for the publication of a denominational paper is to keep the church well informed relative to its forward-looking plans and the progress related thereto.

Of course, at this particular time we are solely interested in the forward-looking plans of the Publication Board—for this is JANUARY, the month that is set apart by General Conference for the Publication Day Offering. This particular offering is scheduled to be received throughout the Brotherhood on Sunday, January 25, or as near that date as possible. As usual we are expecting the churches to do their part in making this offering as large as last year, if not larger. This we are taking for granted.

"BUT"—and here is where we go behind the scenes. You know, when you see a fine pageant or a good play presented, that far more goes on behind the scenes than is apparent to the eyes and ears of the audience. But in the preparation for that production there are multiplied problems that confront the producer. There are "props" to be gathered together; the costumes are to be either purchased or rented; the lines of the actors must be learned and spoken over and over again as the cast is rehearsed; the little "quirks" must be understood and ironed out; and, above all, everything must "click" to bring the results desired.

No doubt you are already asking yourself (if you have read this far) "What has all this to do with the Publishing House?" Just this! There is a very definite analogy between the situation "behind the scenes" at the play or pageant, and that which is found in the "back shop" of our Printing Establishment. There are "props" that are essential; material must be gathered; type must be set and then distributed again and again; impression after impression is to be made on reams and reams of paper; corrections on errors are to be made; forms are to be locked up in proper order: in fact it takes a lot of machinery and understanding of processes to present the finished product that comes to your home each week.

Now in printing, "time" is a valuable asset. The faster and more efficiently a job can be done the more profit accrues. That's the "WHY" of our plan for the modernization of the plant. Gradually this is being accomplished. The latest addition, of course, is the automatic cylinder press, which we hope to have installed THE LATTER PART OF THIS MONTH. This will necessitate the dismantling of our present press, moving it and reassembling it, and then the placing of the modern press. With this placing of the NEW PRESS will come an almost complete rearrangement of our entire working space. This will take time (possibly two weeks) and we are now asking your indulgence in any delays in our publications that may occur.

And now this leads us to the real purpose of this article. Of course Brother Baer will go into more detail about this in his part of this little symposium—but we are both deeply concerned about the "Press Fund." We are concerned because we have a fear that you may confuse our plea for the "Press Fund" with the regular Publication Day Offering plea. THE TWO ARE NOT ONE. It is not a matter of combining them—it is a matter of adding them, like the old arithmetic problem of one plus one equals two. It is one organization, but two projects. In order to completely clarify it, let us go into a little more detail.

1. The Publication Day Offering is that offering, taken in January of each year, the sum of which is used, first, to underwrite the deficit which is annually incurred in the printing of our own Brethren Evangelist and our Sunday School literature—for these do not and never will pay for themselves. This offering also helps to retire the debt on our building and to care for the other incidentals not cared for by the shop income.

This is and has been for years, an Annual Offering authorized by General Conference. For this

Our Publishing House Interests

By The Editor and The Business Manager

ffering we want your CASH OFFERING. Please keep this in mind.

2. The "Press Fund" or more properly, it might be called the "Equipment Fund for Modernization of our Printing Plant." This is that three-year project which was authorized by the 1946 General Conference and urged to rapid completion by the 1947 General Conference, for the modern automatic press and such other equipment as is indeed to make our shop more up-to-date in its work. In this case (and we want you to clearly note the difference) we are not asking you to lay down immediate cash, but to simply tell us what you will pledge toward it and when you will pay. Remember, this pledge can be made and you can pay it any time in 1948, preferably, of course, by the 1948 Conference, in order that we may have saved all the interest that can be saved.

It isn't much to ask—just a little out of your pocket. Of course it won't be hard those who tithe the Lord's goodness to make a pledge and pay it. Why not try tithing this month for both the Press Fund and the Publication Offering? See how good you will feel! And when you come to General Conference next August you can come into the plant and see the results of your sacrifice giving, and the Lord's goodness to His people.

That Prayer had a great deal to do with our present ability to get the press, we have not the slightest of doubt. Therefore we want to especially thank God for His hearing of prayer and the placing of this opportunity in our hands.

George S. Baer, Business Manager

WHEN WE use the expression, "behind the scenes," with regard to our Publishing House we refer to the equipment, personnel, material and conditions back of the literature which the printing plant was established to produce. Few people are able to realize what goes on behind the scenes or to visualize the work of a church publishing house. The great place of such an institution in the work of the Lord and the things that are necessary to enable it to function efficiently are hard to understand, more so than with regard to any other department of the church's work. The work and appeal of Missions, the requirements for the education of our young people, the institutions for the care of the aged and the support of the superannuated ministers—the call for cooperation in meeting these Christian responsibilities comes into our homes in a more realistic manner than do the requirements of the church paper and the Sunday school quarters.

Growth of a Better Understanding

But out of long experience we have discovered that our people are fundamentally loyal to the whole task of the church and will give proper response to the calls of any part of that work when the needs are set forth in a sincere and understandable way. For that reason we have been very frank about the condition of equipment, the handicaps, the needs, the prospects, the plans for improvement, and the outlook for greater service. This complete frankness, together with the stressing of two fundamental facts—that every member shares in the ownership and responsibility, and that the publication work is in very truth a work of the Lord—has brought about a better understanding of this vital institution.

Prayer and God's Answer

This increased understanding and growing interest have enlisted widespread prayer for God's blessing upon the publishing interests of our church. God has answered those prayers in a wonderful way and we find ourselves farther on the way to the achievement of our goals than we anticipated. Yes, because many prayed, God has moved forward faster than we had faith to believe was possible. Because of prayer and divine leading, we are soon to find ourselves in possession of a modern magazine press, the kind we are so much in need of.

What It Means

That does not mean that our equipment fund is ended. It means that the Lord has opened the way for the saving of $7,000 in the purchase of this press and that the amount we started out to raise will complete the equipment project, in spite of the abnormal raise in prices. It means that we are ahead of schedule, and that as we enter upon the second year effort of money-raising in this campaign, we have almost half the amount required—most of it in cash. It means that during the remainder of this year and the next, we will be paying for what we already possess and will be making use of. It means that at the close of the three-year campaign period, with your continued cooperation and persistent prayers, we will have our plant fairly well modernized and equipped and out of debt, so far as equipment costs are concerned. Furthermore, through the wise arrangement of the Board of Trustees to apply all rental receipts to the building debt, the mortgage on the building will be written off the record within six years. That means, then, that within six years we will have a Publishing House with a new building and modern equipment, all free of debt. Thanks be to God for His leading and to His people for their response to His leadership!

Two Separate Objectives for This Campaign

Two things are before us in this campaign—two separate and distinct objectives.

First, is the securing of pledges for this year's payment to the Equipment Fund, pledges to be paid any time during the calendar year of 1948, but preferably by the 1948 General Conference. We don't ask for cash for the Equipment Fund during January, only pledges from individuals and churches. We have already made provision through a loan from the National W. M. S. for the additional amount required for the purchase of the modern, automatic press.

Second, is the raising of at least $5,000 as the regular Publication Day Offering. That is the amount we have been asking for each year, and you have been going over the goal. We need that amount and will be disappointed if you should give to the Press Fund and neglect the regular Publication Day Offering. The last Sunday in January is the time for the lifting of that offering, and we are asking all churches and individuals to cooperate in your usual fine way in making this regular offering a success. Last year you were faithful to this offering, in spite of the splendid giving to the Press Fund. Where there are those who are able to give generously to both the regular Publication Day Offering and to the Press Fund, we will be glad to receive their gifts to both projects, but most of our people will not be able to do that, so we are only asking cash for the Publication Day Offering and pledges for the Press Fund. At any time convenient, a time not conflicting with any other authorized special offering, let all churches and individuals send in an offering for the Press Fund. But now, for the regular $5,000 offering.

And Remember the "Why"

The Regular Offering is taken to make up for the loss sustained in the publishing of our own church literature. In many churches much larger in numbers than our own, Sunday school quarterlies and church papers are published at a loss, and for two reasons. The selling field of the small denominations is limited, and there is practically no desire or opportunity to profit by advertisements. But no church can fulfil its mission or continue its existence without its own distinctive church literature. Most especially is that true of our church. We have a special mission under God to perform, a unique message to deliver, a distinctive witness to give to the world. Without our own Publishing House and our whole-gospel publications, we cannot accomplish our divinely appointed mission. So, the life of our church depends in a large measure upon our church literature. Your annual Publication Day Offerings help to maintain it. Give as unto the Lord; it is the Lord's work.

Business Manager's Corner

(Continued from page 3)

day School supplies for our schools have raised prices. The last notice received of increased prices come from the Standard Publishing Company. Previously the David C. Cook Publishing House had raised prices on some items and caused some confusion among our customers, because we had not received notice in time to pass it on before billing.

ATTENTION—OHIO PASTORS

The Ohio Pastor's Conference will convene at Columbus January 26 to 29. On Monday, January 26 will occur the meeting of the Brethren and Church of the Brethren ministers at a noon luncheon at Dorst Hall, Y. M. C. A. building, 40 West Long Street. The hour is from 12:30 to 3:00 P. M. The speaker will be Raymond R. Peters.

When you look at the world in a narrow way, how narrow it seems! When you look at it selfishly, how selfish it is! But when you look at it in a broad, generous, friendly spirit, what wonderful people you find in it.—Horace Rutledge.

CHRISTIAN ENDEAVOR TOPIC

W. St. Clair Benshoff, Topic Editor

"Topics copyrighted by the International Society of Christian Endeavor. Used by permission."

Topic for January 11, 1948

WHAT WE KNOW ABOUT GOD

Scripture: 1 Peter 2:5, 9, 10; Rev. 1:6; 22:19

For The Leader

A GIRL was once asked to give her opinion and idea of God. She thought for awhile and came through with the answer that she thought God was an old man with a white beard sitting in a corner far away, smoking a big cigar. How foolish! A group of college students were questioned on the same subject. Varied opinions resulted, mostly indicating that God was a vague, impersonal, unreachable being, if a God existed at all. It is amazing the amount of ignorance there is on this subject. God has revealed Himself to man in many different ways, and there is no reason for anyone to be uninformed as to Who He is, Where He is, etc. As we approach this profound subject let us pray that God's Holy Spirit might guide and direct our thoughts, that we might know more about Him.

DISCUSSION

1. SO YOU WANT TO KNOW MORE ABOUT GOD? Man has been seeking to find the answer to the operation of the universe. He has been seeking the origin of life, the power back of sustenance, and the future of life. He has searched through the skies, the seas and the earth. He has searched his mind, and has come up with little to show for his efforts. But the fact that man has been searching for the answer to these problems indicates that there is an answer. Of course there is. God, the Creator, the Master mind, the Eternal of the heavens, is the answer. Find God, and you find the answer to life, to all matter, and to the future of all life. Simple, isn't it? Do you want to know more about God? In the ways that He has revealed Himself to man, we can find out. Of course, we shall never find out all we want to know about God in this life, but some day, in the future life, we shall know.

2. HE REVEALS HIMSELF TO US. There are seven main methods which God has used to reveal Himself to us. First, in the early days of man's life on earth, God showed Himself to man through Nature. Later He used man's conscience. When Moses came down from Sinai, he brought with him the revelation of God on tablets of stone. Then the whole Bible was compiled to reveal God to us. Christ is called the Illustrated revelation of God. And truly He is, for we see God through Him, His life, and His love. The last two methods are those of being written on the heart, and in the lives of Christians. So there is no excuse for anyone to be in doubt as to the truly personality and life of God.

3. WHAT GOD IS. This is a hard statement to expound in so few allotted words. As was spoken of the Son of God, that if all the oceans were ink, the sky a scroll, and every man a scribe by trade, we could never write all about Him even in draining the oceans dry, etc. But we can, at least be brief in telling a few things about Him. God is a Spirit, He is Eternal, He had no beginning, He has no end. He is all powerful, He is everywhere, and ever present. He hears all, sees all, and knows all. He sees and knows our thoughts, intents and acts. For instance, an act of sin of ours, may seem all right to our fellowmen and we may keep it a secret from them, but if the intent of it on our part was evil, God knows it to be sin. God is a God of love, for He sent His Son to die on the cross. He is a just God, for He shall punish people for their sins.

4. HE DWELLS AROUND US. God is a Person, but He is ever present. We cannot escape His presence. The story is told of a man who had committed a great sin. His conscience hurt him, so he decided he would get away from God. So He went away to a far country and tried to hide himself in the busy throngs of a great city. God was there. He dug a great cavern into the bowels of the earth, to hide. God was there. He journeyed to the top of a great, frigid mountain peak. God was there. He went out on the great expanse of the mighty ocean in a boat. God was there. He settled down on a small deserted island, far away from other human beings. God was there. In the darkest hour of night, in the brightest hour of day, God is present. No, we cannot escape from the just eye of God. Our only hope is to come to Him, seeking mercy and forgiveness for the awful sins of life. Then we are surrounded by His love and mercy, which shall surround us everywhere we go.

5. HE IS ALL POWERFUL. Do you want power and strength to do your work? Ask God to help you. For He is the strength of the universe. He is the strength of the Christian. Each day's work should be done with the thought that God is supplying the power. Paul says, "I can do all things through Christ, which strengtheneth me." If this method be used, then our work will be well done.

6. FINDING OUT MORE ABOUT GOD. We know much about God, and because we know these things, we love Him more, and serve Him better, in the sure and certain hope that He will reward us some day when we see God face to face. But even today we want to know more about Him, His love, and His personality. Each day we can know more about Him. It is easy. As we think back over the men of God since the first man walked on the earth we discover one thing. That is, that men who knew God spent much time in personal communion with Him. Sad to say, personal communion with God seems to be a lost art among the Christians of this generation. And it hasn't done us any good. The verse, "Be still, and know that I am God," is an excellent one for us to remember. Why? Simply because we need that period of communion each day, that we might grow more like Him in life, in word and deed. In doing this, we shall know more about Him, for He reveals Himself to those who take time to listen.

PROGRAM HINTS

Have each member present quote a verse using the word "God." (This will give an idea, through variety of the different aspects of God). Each verse must be different. Encourage your members to read the topics in advance, and give them in their own words instead of reading them word for word.

Prayer Meeting Topic

Contributed by Rev. C. Y. Gilmer

Ten Reasons For a Family Altar

It will sweeten home life and enrich home relationships as nothing else can do.

It will dissolve all misunderstanding and relieve all friction that may enter the home.

It will hold our boys and girls to the Christian ideal and determine their lasting welfare.

It will send us forth to our work for the day, in school, home, office, store and factory, true to our best and determined in what we do to glorify God.

It will give strength to meet bravely any disappointments and adversities as they come.

It will make us conscious through the day of the attending presence of a divine Friend and Helper.

It will hallow our friendship with our guests in the home.

It will reinforce the influence and work of the church school, and agencies helping to establish the Christian idea throughout the world.

It will encourage other homes to make a place for Christ and the Church.

It will honor our Father above and express our gratitude for His mercy and blessing.—Christian Digest.

Scripture: Deut. 6:1-12

Hymn Singing

Leader's Petition

Thought Provokers:

JOSHUA said, "But as for me and my house, we will serve the Lord. Read 1 Cor. 16:19; Col. 4:15; Philemon 2. Here the apostle speaks of "the church in thy house." The word church—"Kuriakon"—means "that which is the Lord's." How about your house? Have you in it that which is the Lord's? When Jacob went back to Bethel he took his household with him (Gen. 35:2, 3). At Bethel it was a matter of family worship. The test of Christianity is in the home. Home worship can be more effective than public worship (Matt. 18:19, 20).

Fathers have a grave responsibility to their children (Eph. 6:4) in Christian training. They can best be taught to pray, live holy lives of faith and trust by regular worship in the home. Bible reading, teaching and hymn singing should be under regular supervision of the parents every day.

There are many examples of family worship in the Bible. Noah preached for 120 years and succeeded in saving nobody but his own family of eight souls (Heb. 11:7; Gen. 7:1; 8:20). Jacob and his family worshipped together (Gen. 35:1-3). There are family worship scenes in the New Testament (Acts 16:33, 34; Acts 18:7). Worship in a home is normal Christianity. A man is certainly accountable to God for his family.

Thanksgiving before each meal is good, but not enough. Bedtime prayers are precious, but not enough. There should be a time each day when the whole family worships together. All in the family should take part. All can have part in the praying and singing, and those who are able can read the Scripture. And as for text book to read, nothing can equal a consecutive reading of the Scriptures.

Remember that Satan will make a special attempt to break down the family altar and stop the daily season of worship in the home. "Where there is a will, there is a way." The head of the home should lead out in family worship. God expects a father to lead his family. Family worship is more important than anything else, and nothing should be allowed to interfere with it. If you expect to serve God you must put Him first. The family altar should be scheduled early in the day's activities. We need God at the beginning of the day in order to start the day aright.

General discussion of family worship plans.

General prayers

COMMENTS

On The Sunday School Lesson

by The Editor

Lesson for January 11, 1948

BELIEF IN GOD TODAY

Lesson: Isaiah 40:28-31; John 14:8-14

SO MANY times we meet the statement, "It does not matter what one believes, so long as it keeps him going in the right direction." That is a false statement, for it does matter very much what a man believes when it is related to God.

The very opening sentence of our lesson sets forth the central thought before us in no uncertain terms. Note the words carefully: "Hast thou not known? hast thou not heard, that the everlasting God, the Lord, the Creator of the ends of the earth, fainteth not, neither is weary? there is no searching of his understanding." Belief in God must center in a knowledge of God. Paul expresses it in the words he wrote to the Romans, 10:14, "How shall they call upon him in whom they have not believed? and how shall they believe in him of whom they have not heard?" Before we can accept as Savior, the One who is the everlasting Son of God, we must surely have a settled belief in God, the Creator, who is eternal in His existence. Our faith rises or falls on this foundation.

Now belief carries with it the embodiment of faith. The writer of Hebrews says in our Golden Text (11:6) "For he that cometh to God must believe that he is, and that he is a rewarder of them that diligently seek him." Isaiah reminds us that God is not only "all powerful" but that He is "all wise." He says, "there is no searching of His understanding." The very fact that our God knows and sees all should be a great incentive to a more perfect belief in Him.

When we turn to the New Testament part of our lesson we find that we have exemplified in Jesus Christ the essence of the Father God. Our belief in God is strengthened by our acceptance of Jesus as God's Son. Jesus' words to Philip are worth looking into—"He that hath seen me hath seen the Father."

When we recall that one of the purposes of Jesus' coming to earth was to reveal the Father to the world, it simplifies our study and gives us additional grounds for belief. Remember that in no place in the Bible will you find an argument for the existence of God. The matter is simply stated. For example, turn to Genesis 1:1—"In the beginning God." Now turn to John 1:1—"In the beginning was the Word." It is only ours to believe in Him and accept His plan for our lives.

News From Our Churches

CENTER CHAPEL, INDIANA

Another year of work for our church has been finished. We are glad that Rev. Austin Gable, who so competently and faithfully worked with us as our minister, is to be with us another year.

Rev. Gable, Mrs. Conrad Snavely and Miss Kathryn Fisher conducted a Vacation Bible School in the summer, which was well attended by the neighborhood children.

On September 21 we met for our Annual Homecoming. There was a good attendance for Sunday School, and at the noon hour Rev. Ora Lemert came to enjoy the basket dinner with us and to bring the afternoon message. Everyone present wrote his or her name in a note book. In five years this roll is to be called at the homecoming.

Our revival meeting was held in October. The Rev. W. B. Brant, pastor of the Warsaw Church, came to be our evangelist, and Rev. Gable led the song service. The meeting lasted for a period of two weeks and a great many were faithful in attendance. The sermons, songs and fellowship were a benefit to all. There were three conversions and one reconsecration.

The young people have a fellowship club organized and meet each week. Each Sunday the Juniors hold their Sunday School in the basement. Our young people are interested in the Shiphewana Camp and look forward to the camp season.

Mrs. Olive Neff, Cor. Sec.

LOREE—MEXICO, INDIANA, CIRCUIT

Our Homecoming Day at Loree was held on October 26. There were 151 at Sunday School, with quite a larger number for the morning and afternoon services. Rev. Bert Hodge, pastor of our North Manchester Church, was the afternoon speaker, and brought a timely message on "Truth." The day was filled with special music, special worship, and special fellowship for all.

At a called business meeting on November 4, Mr. and Mrs. Andrew York and Mr. and Mrs. Paul LeMaster were elected to the offices of Deacon and Deaconess of the Loree Church. An appropriate ordination service is being planned in the near future. An outdoor lighted bulletin board has been ordered by our Primary Department, and we are hoping that it will arrive soon. Many other projects are being planned, which speaks well for this splendid rural congregation.

Our revival at Mexico was held during the week of November 10 to 16. The meetings were well attended, and the Lord rightly blessed our efforts, as four young folks made their first confession of faith in Christ Jesus. Mrs. Elmer R. Carrithers was in charge of our song service each evening, and did a grand job. Our baptismal service is being planned for Sunday evening, November 30. We are praying that there will be more who will come.

As we go from the Thanksgiving Season to the Christmas Holiday we are praying that men will not only Thank God for His Son Christ Jesus, but will accept Him as God's Gift to them, that they might have salvation.

We are looking forward to a mighty revival at Loree during the Christmas Holiday season.

Robert K. Higgins, pastor.

SMITHVILLE, OHIO

On Sunday, December 14, the Smithville Brethren Church held a dedication service for the completely remodeled chancel of the church. Not only has the chancel been completely remodeled, but there has been added thereto, new memorial chancel furniture, new velvet curtains, a new Wurlitzer organ and the entire church redecorated.

The pastor, Rev. Vernon D. Grisso, brought a message on "New Ways," and the choir rendered a special number, "Bless the Lord, O My Soul." A responsive dedicatory service and dedication prayer closed the service.

A noon basket dinner was held in the church dining rooms and at the three o'clock hour an organ recital was rendered by Doris B. Fetzer, guest organist. Her recital consisted of a number of sacred tone poems.

AN EXAMPLE OF GOOD PLANNING AT DAYTON

On November 20-23, the author had the privilege of participating in a short series of worship services with the Dayton, Ohio, Brethren.

Although this church is without a regular pastor (now being supplied by the very capable Dr. Glen Clayton), the services were well attended. The publicity for the meeting was executed by Myron Kem. His contribution was well timed. Also, Mr. and Mrs. Kem opened their fine home to the visiting pastor and wife. They entertained in the typical Brethren way.

At each service Brother Fred Eccard was always on hand to help with the details. The meeting closed with Holy Communion on Sunday night. Under the leadership of Mr. and Mrs. Everett Keplinger, this service was a fitting climax. The service was well organized, and the beauty, inspiration and symbolism of the occasion will be long remembered.

Others who contributed to the comfort and entertainment of the writer were Mr. and Mrs. Carl Denlinger and son, Mr. and Mrs. Ray Yount, Mr. and Mrs. Harold Teeter, and Mrs. George Kem.

The entire congregation is to be complimented in having leadership who are willing to plan for the church, and in supporting the leadership in such an excellent way.

May God continue to bless the Brethren at Dayton.

Wayne E. Swihart, Burlington, Indiana.

BURLINGTON, INDIANA

The work at Burlington has been steadily progressing through the years. The pastor and family are now in the fifth year of service with the church, and during this time the church has changed to a worship service each Sunday morning. This has strengthened the church.

The Cambria Church is now being served by Mr. Bright Hanna, a lay pastor. He is a young man with a wife and two children and they live near Burlington. His parents, Mr. and Mrs. Glen Hanna, are Brethren people, and Bright has been a member of the Burlington Church since childhood. He has felt the call to do greater service, and has been serving the Cambria Church for several months.

A number of improvements have been completed recently at the church. An oil furnace has been installed and the auditorium is newly redecorated. New pulpit furniture was given to the church in memory of Willis Polk. This gift was presented by the Polk family. Pulpit draperies were given by a Sunday School Class, and another class is planning to install new lighting in the basement.

The climax came in October when Dr. Lindower came for a week-end series of lectures. He did an excellent piece of work which was appreciated very much. This series closed on Sunday with our Homecoming and Rally Day.

Wayne E. Swihart, pastor.

ARDMORE HEIGHTS, SOUTH BEND, INDIANA TO WEST ALEXANDRIA, OHIO

On September 28 we closed a six year pastorate in the Ardmore Heights church of South Bend, Indiana. These six years proved to be very happy and fruitful years for pastor and people. Many friendships both within and without the church were made and after so long a time it was not an easy thing to "pull stakes." We felt however, that our best work had been accomplished, so were made happy to leave the work in such capable hands as the hands of Dr. R. F. Porte and his good wife. The Portes have been close friends through the years and I am confident that they will be able to do a great work for the Ardmore Heights group. May the Lord richly bless.

During our six years of service with this congregation some 108 persons were taken into the membership of the church. Many improvements to the church properties were made, the last of which was the installing of a new Hammond Electric organ. This beautiful instrument was dedicated on the last day of our work, September 28. May the Lord greatly bless these fine folks at Ardmore heights as they continue their work with the Portes. May He make them a blessing in the great field at the north-west corner of the thriving city of South Bend.

On Sunday, October 5 we took up the work here at West Alexandria, in the south-west corner of the great state of Ohio. We have found a fine group of brethren here, and are busying ourselves in getting acquainted and finding the membership by the time this is read a goodly part of this work will have been done. We already have begun building on foundations that many able men have set up. The group here numbering about 140 seem anxious and willing to grow and it is our wish that we might be used to promote that growth. We have noted already that these people seem willing to shoulder any responsibility that will advance the kingdom.

There is a splendid W. M. S. group here. Alert, active, and alive. The Laymen too are organized and are already showing signs of better and more efficient work in the future. They are beginning the building of a garage on the parsonage grounds which will be a very fine addition to the already fine place for the preacher. We hope to get this accomplished yet this winter and also the indebtedness off the parsonage then we will turn our efforts to the decorating of the church, which is badly needed. So you see the men with their families have a great work ahead.

The boys of the church have recently organized into a Brotherhood with 7 or 8 members and beginning with January they hope to begin their regular meetings.

Our Wednesday evening Bible study and prayer service is attended by 18 to 25 folks who are anxious to know more about the Word and what the Lord's will is for them. It is a pleasant task to lead such ardent seekers.

Since coming on the field 9 have been added to the church membership—7 by letter and 2 by confession of faith and baptism. We ask your prayers for the work here that we might be found faithful in service until the Lord comes.

A. E. Whitted.

Wedding Announcement

CALHOON-SMITH. Miss Mary L. Smith, daughter of the late Mrs. Myrtle Smith of Ashland, Ohio, was married to Mr. Dale Calhoon of Butler, Ohio, Saturday morning, July 12, 1947. The double ring ceremony was read by the undersigned, pastor of the bride, at the home of the bride's great uncle and aunt, Mr. and Mrs. Jesse Dupler, West Liberty Street, Ashland, Ohio.

The bride is a graduate of the Ashland High School and of the Mansfield, Ohio, General School of Nursing. Mr. Calhoon is a graduate of Butler High School and a veteran of 3½ years in the Navy. He is a member of the M. E. Church of Butler.

After a trip through southern Ohio, following the ceremony, they are making their home at 65½ East Third Street, Ashland. They have the best wishes of their many friends.

W. C. Benshoff.

JACOBS-PETROSKY. On Sunday afternoon, September 21st, at the Republic, Penna., Christian Church, occurred the marriage of Miss Elizabeth Ruth Jacobs and Mr. Francis F. Petrosky. The ceremony was witnessed by the families of the contracting parties and a few other friends. The single ring ceremony was used, and assistance in the ceremony was rendered by Rev. J. H. Keppel, Jr., pastor of the church in which the wedding was solemnized. The bride has been employed as a domestic, while the groom is employed at a local coke plant. They will go to housekeeping in a tenant house on the property of the groom's father. A reception was held at the church following the marriage and many useful and beautiful presents were received by the happy young couple. The sincere good wishes of their many friends go with the newly-weds as they start on life's journey together. Ceremony by the undersigned, the groom's pastor.

Dyoll Belote.

DONAHOO-IDDINGS. At the Highland Brethren Church, on August 16th, occurred the marriage of Miss Dorothy Donahoo, of the Highland congregation, and Mr. William E. Iddings, of Marianna, Penna. The ceremony was witnessed by the parents of the contracting parties and Miss Betty M. Iddings, sister of the groom, as bridesmaid, and Mr. John A. Rice as groomsman. The double ring ceremony was used. The groom is employed at the Industrial Colliers Corporation mines, at Marianna, Penna., and the bride is secretary at the Marianna People's State Bank. Because of the housing shortage the young couple will reside with the bride's parents until suitable living quarters can be found. The ceremony was performed by the undersigned, the bride's pastor.

Dyoll Belote.

Laid to Rest

MICHAEL. Edward H. Michael, one of East Rockingham County's best known residents, was found dead in bed on Friday, October 31. Although he had been in failing health for some years he had not seemed worse upon retiring. On Wednesday he had dined at the home of his daughter, Mrs. Walter Ettinger, with his pastor and the visiting evangelist. He was the son of the late Harrison and Eliza Michael. Born 64 years ago, he had lived his entire life in the region of Port Republic, Virginia. Here he engaged extensively in truck farming raising vegetables and watermelons. He was a large holder of real estate. He served as overseer of the poor for many years and as game warden.

On February 21, 1906 he married Miss Lethia Trobaugh. To this union were born two daughters and a son who survive, with their mother. They are E. H. Michael, Jr., Mrs. Alfert Pittman, and Mrs. Walter Ettinger. All are members of the Mt. Olive Brethren Church.

Mr. Michael numbered his friends by the hundreds and ever gave them a warm welcome to his home. The local Daily Newspaper, recalled the fact that during the hunting season he often entertained many noted persons among which on one occasion were U. S. Senators Byrd and Robertson of Virginia and Col. Charles A. Lindbergh.

Brother Michael was a great lover of his home and family. His three grandchildren Lethia Ann Pittman, Edward Ettinger and Janie Belle Ettinger lived within sight of his home and he visited his children and grandchildren almost daily. He united with the church during the early years of my pastorate while Rev. E. L. Miller was holding a meeting for us. He was always a very warm friend of the former Pastor, Rev. G. W. Chambers.

The last rites were conducted for him in the Mt. Olive Brethren Church Sunday, November 2, at 3 P. M. Those assisting in the services were Rev. Freeman Ankrum, Rev. G. W. Chambers and myself. Interment was in the adjoining cemetery. A great host of friends came to pay their last respects. The sympathy of the whole community seemed to be given to the sorrowing family.

John F. Locke.

EATON. "Uncle Billy," as he was known by a wide circle of friends, was born July 8, 1847 and died October 24, 1947 being 100 years, 3 months and 16 days in age. He was the last Confederate veteran of Rockingham county, Virginia. Now "the thin grey line" is no more.

After spending many months in the Rockingham Memorial Hospital at Harrisonburg, Virginia, he spent his last years in the Newman Nursing Home, Grottoes, Virginia. In both of these places his cheerful spirit and witty remarks proved a real help to the other patients and endeared him to those who cared for him. He was not bed-fast during his last years and did not experience more than ten minutes of pain in his passing. Brother Eaton attended Bethlehem Church, but later was a member of the Mt. Olive Church while he resided in the vicinity of the church.

The last rites were conducted for him at the Mt. Pleasant Church of the Brethren and his body was laid to rest in the church cemetery there. The funeral sermon was preached by his friend, Rev. Charles E. Long, who had known him for seventy years. He preached a great sermon, using the words from Job 5:26, "Thou shalt come to thy grave in a full age, like as a shock of corn cometh in in his season." The men's quartet sang several fitting selections. One of these was sung as the procession came to the graveside just before I read the Committal service. A large company of friends and relatives filled the church to the overflowing point to pay their last respects to this good, friendly man who had lived cheerfully among us a little over a century.

John F. Locke.

STAHL. Mrs. Emma (Ferguson) Stahl was born November 18, 1862 near Jones Mills, Pennsylvania, a daughter of the late Robert and Eliza Burkholder Ferguson. She resided all her life in that vicinity. She was called to her eternal home on November 13, 1947.

She was a member of the Valley Brethren Church of Jones Mills for the past sixty-three years, and it is believed that she was a charter member of the Valley congregation. She was also active in the work of the church until recent years when her health was impaired.

She is survived by the following children: Robert, Ora and Harry Stahl and Mrs. Charles Keslar of Jones Mills;

Mrs. Lucetta Neiderhiser and Mrs. Maud Dormott of Lagonier, Pennsylvania; Mrs. George Kimmel of Scottdale, Pennsylvania; Roy Stahl of Mt. Pleasant, Pennsylvania; Mrs. J. G. Harcom of Somerset, Pennsylvania; Marcus Stahl of Stoyestown, Pennsylvania; Mrs. Lloyd Geary of Champion, Pennsylvania; and Reuben Stahl of Dundalk, Maryland. She also leaves 69 grandchildren, 112 great grandchildren, 8 great-great-grandchildren, and one sister, Mrs. Amanda Shumaker of Pittsburgh, Pennsylvania.

The funeral was held in the Valley Brethren Church with the writer officiating and burial was made in Walnut Hill Cemetery.

Sister Stahl left many friends, but we know that some day we shall see her again.

H. R. Garland, pastor.

STREBIN. George Strebin, seventy years of age, a retired farmer, living at Miami, Indiana, died at his home recently. He had been ill since July 4 of heart trouble.

He was born in Harrison Township, Indiana on November 19, 1876, the son of Alfred and Nancy (Vody) Strebin. He was married on March 2, 1942 in Bunker Hill, Indiana, to Roxanna Russel. He was a member of the Loree Brethren Church.

Surviving are his widow; one son, Emerson of Bunker Hill; and the following brothers and sisters: Elmer, Maude, Lulu, Laura, Mrs. Opal Harts, and Mrs. Treet Morton, all of McGrawsville, Indiana; and Daniel of Hastings, Michigan. One daughter, Gladys, and a brother and a sister preceded him in death. Services by the writer.

Robert K. Higgins.

BOONE. Miss Edna Boone, aged sixty-eight, formerly of Loree, Indiana, died at the Brethren's Home where she had become a resident member a year ago.

She was born in Clay Township, Indiana, on February 20, 1879, the daughter of John and Sarah (Eagle) Boone. She was a member of the Loree Brethren Church.

Surviving are three brothers, Glenn, John, and Albert; and a half-sister, Mrs. Stella Baker. Three sisters and one brother preceded her in death.

Funeral services were conducted from the Brethren Home at Flora, Indiana, by the undersigned.

Robert K. Higgins.

WOLFE. Mr. Clyde Wolfe departed this life on July 28, 1947 after only a few days illness. For a number of years he had been a member of the South Bend Brethren Church. Funeral services were conducted from the Orvis Funeral Home and burial was made at Walkerton, Indiana.

* * *

CLARK. Mrs. J. W. Clark was called to her heavenly home on September 19, 1947. She had been a constant sufferer for a number of years, but bore her suffering with amazing fortitude and grace. Her husband, the Rev. J. W. Clark, was called to his heavenly home fourteen years ago, after a grievous and lingering illness, she patiently caring for him. They served a number of churches in this part of Indiana and were highly esteemed. Four sons, all married, are left to carry on the faith and service of these good people.

* * *

JACKSON. Mrs. C. S. Jackson departed this life to be with her Lord on September 27, 1947. She was in her eighty-fifth year and not physically strong, but able to be around in the home and her mind was as alert as in youth. Her husband preceded her about seven years. They were charter members of the South Bend Church and very faithful and efficient workers as deacon and deaconess they were to tower of strength in the church. She was the last charter member of this church. She was a sister of Mrs. G. W. Rench. She leaves one son and his family to carry on the faith and rich heritage bequeathend by godly parents.

We sorrow not as they who have no hope.

Claud Studebaker.

VINCENT. Mrs. Earl W. (Susie) Vincent was born in North Liberty, Indiana September 15, 1886; and died in Saint Joseph Hospital, South Bend, on October 25, 1947. She had been very ill for many months and her passing meant a relief and rest from physical suffering. She married Earl W. Vincent in the year 1912 and immediately their home was established in South Bend, Indiana, where they lived until her illness and death.

She leaves her husband, one daughter, Mrs. Thomas Wilhelm and a grandson, also two sisters and three brothers who join with the family in mourning her death.

She was a member of the First Brethren Church of South Bend where the funeral services were conducted on Tuesday afternoon, October 28, 1947. Burial was made at the North Liberty cemetery.

R. F. Porte.

The New Press Fund

"The Gospel must first be published among all nations."

Mark 13:10.

Authorized by The 1946 General Conference

GOAL	Not less than $15,000.00
Cash and pledges	$8,003.44
Yet to be raised, not less than	$6,996.56

Why I Am A Tither

BEING a business man, I am accustomed to considering any proposition from the standpoint of its propriety and its returns. If a proposition presents itself as the thing that should be done and if it promises worthwhile returns, two vital questions have been satisfactorily answered.

If there is the added fact that others have tried this proposition with great success, the conviction is further strengthened that it is worthwhile.

Tithing was brought to my attention largely by the preaching of my pastor. He insisted that it was in the scriptures because it was right before it was commanded. His testimony as to his own experience in tithing, and the testimony of others led me seriously to consider it. Add to this the promises of God's word that the Lord would pour out blessings beyond our capacity to use them if we would bring the whole tithe into the storehouse. These led me to commit myself to try tithing. For some years, now, I have been keeping books with the Lord and trying to fulfill the obligation I feel as a Christian steward.

I am glad to say that I am more than happy as a tither. I feel that instead of having less for myself, the Lord has given me much more than I have given Him. This is true materially but it is also true in the health and happiness of all of my family. I have seen my church grow, and its fellowship has greatly increased because I, with many others, have come to tithe.

I have no hesitation in recommending and urging that every Christian honor the Lord by bringing the "whole tithe into the storehouse."—Selected.

THE BRETHREN EVANGELIST

Published weekly, except the last week in August and
the last week in December.

THE BRETHREN PUBLISHING COMPANY

Ashland, Ohio

PRUDENTIAL COMMITTEE

J. E. Stookey, President N. G. Kimmel, Vice-President
J. G. Dodds, Secretary-Treasurer

EDITOR OF PUBLICATIONS—F. C. Vanator

BUSINESS MANAGER—G. S. Baer

EDITOR MISSIONARY NUMBER—E. M. Riddle

CONTRIBUTING EDITORS

Dr. Charles A. Bame

Rev. Dyoll Belote

DEPARTMENTAL EDITORS

Dr. C. F. Yoder, Brethren Doctrine

Rev. N. V. Leatherman, Practical Church Problems

Rev. J. G. Dodds, National Goals

Dr. R. F. Porte, Brethren Church History

PLEASE REMEMBER: All material for publication in the Evangelist must be in the hands of the editor at least three weeks before the desired date of publication, to assure same to appear in desired issue. This refers to announcements particularly.

TERMS OF SUBSCRIPTION: $1.50 per year in advance.
CHANGE OF ADDRESS: In ordering change of address always
give both old and new addresses.

REMITTANCES: Send all money, business communications, and contributed articles to.

THE BRETHREN PUBLISHING COMPANY
ASHLAND, OHIO

Entered as second class matter at Ashland, Ohio. Accepted for mailing
at special rate, section 1103, act of October 3, 1917. Authorized
September 3, 1928.

INTERESTING ITEMS

Mexico-Loree, Indiana, Circuit. Brother Robert Higgins reports that Brother L. E. Lindower, Educational Director of the National Sunday School Association, was a recent speaker at the Loree Church. Special numbers were rendered by the Loree Quartet, and the service was in charge of Paul LeMaster.

Brother Wayne Swihart, Chairman of the Indiana District Sunday School Committee, was the speaker at the Mexico Church on Sunday evening, December 14. He spoke on Sunday School work. He also spoke at the 6:30 hour, demonstrating new methods and materials for Sunday School projects.

Brother Higgins spoke recently at the Denver, Indiana, Lyons Club, the Chili schools and the Washington Township Farm Bureau meetings during the week of December 7.

Elkhart, Indiana. Brother L. V. King announces the issuing of the new year book for the Elkhart church, which is available to all members of the Elkhart church.

Berlin, Pennsylvania. We note from Brother Whetstone's bulletin that the Senior Choir staged a party in the church parlors on Wednesday evening, December 3.

Goshen, Indiana. We learn from the Goshen bulletin that Brother Harold L. Hummel was elected president of the Northern Indiana Laymen's Organization.

Flora, Indiana. Brother J. Edgar Berkshire, who recently assumed the pastorate of the Flora Church, reports that fine reception was given for himself and family at the church on Monday, December 8. Several visiting ministers were present and Brother Berkshire reports a "rousing welcome."

We also note that new cupboards were added to the parsonage, new hot water facilities, gas installed and much new paint spread. All this goes to make the life of the pastor more comfortable.

St. James, Maryland. The services on Sunday evening, December 28, were conducted by the college students who had returned home during the holidays. Brother Ralph Mills, student at Ashland College and Seminary was the speaker of the evening.

Canton, Ohio. A fine cantata, "Silent Night" and a play, "To Them that Sit in Darkness," were given at the Canton Church on Sunday night, December 21.

The Family Circle Class of the Canton Sunday School sponsored a Christmas party on Friday night, December 26, with a pot-luck dinner at 6:00 o'clock. This is the class of which the editor used to be a member when he pastored the Canton congregation. It is taught by Brother F. E. Clapper.

Brother E. J. Beekley, pastor of the Canton Church, found a fine place to use his tuberculosis seals this year. He placed them on the top of page 2 of his Sunday bulletin of December 21.

Warsaw, Indiana. Brother W. B. Brant, pastor of the Warsaw church, announced a Watch Night Service on Wednesday evening, December 31, the program beginning at 8:00 o'clock. The program talent was obtained from the local High School and the local church.

Hagerstown, Maryland. We note from Brother Leatherman's bulletin that Brother and Sister M. B. Ridenour gave a nice "Christmas banquet for the two classes which they teach in the Sunday School." A program was also rendered. Prof. Hicks brought an interesting and instructive lecture on the first homestead of Hagerstown.

The Antietam Street public school, the school on the same street as our church in Hagerstown, were the guests of the church on Thursday afternoon, December 18. It took two sessions to accommodate the entire school. Organ music was rendered, carols were sung, and the Christmas story was told.

It was a pleasant surprise that came to the members of the Hagerstown church when informed of the bequest that came to them from the will of Anna M. Wolty Fahrney, deceased. In the will were found these words: "I hereby give and bequeath the sum of Five Thousand ($5,000.00) Dollars, cash, to the First Brethren Church,

(Continued on Page 10)

The Editor Thinks Aloud

Fred C. Vanator

Notice The Relationship

$8,770,000,000—1946, U. S. expenditure for legal liquor

$7,770,000,000—1945, U. S. expenditure for legal liquor
1,000,000,000 increase

*$2,639,000,000—Annual expenditure for public schools
1946-1947

Number of persons under 21 years of age arrested during 1st half of 1947 62,904

Number of persons under 21 years of age arrested during 1st half of 1946 54,564

Increase of juveniles arrested during 1st half of 1947 over 1st half of 1946 8,340

*Board of Education

Uniform Crime Report

On analysis of the above figures from the "Uniform Crime Reports," one can see that the total crime picture, including all ages, has shown a large increase; because while 54,564 arrests represent 17.6% of the total arrests in the first half of 1946, the 62,904 arrests in the first half of 1947 represent only 16.9% of the total arrests. The number has increased but the per cent has not increased. This shows that there must have been a large increase in the total number of arrests.

What is being done about the situation? So far, only $500,000 per year is spent for treatment, education, and research on alcoholism. (Aug., 1946, "Survey") The liquor industries are doing everything they can to make alcoholic beverages more sociably accepted, with emphasis stressed on youth. It seems that the nation spends more each year on liquor, BUT IT DOES NOT INCREASE EXPENDITURE FOR EDUCATION AND CRIME PREVENTION.

What can be done about the situation?

1. Fight liquor advertising by demanding the passage of the Capper Bill in its original form. (It is important that you insist on its being passed in its original form.)
2. Support your schools, churches; and all other constructive organizations in your community.
3. Support, wholeheartedly, your county and state temperance movements.
4. Start panel discussions, within your local groups, on the physical, moral, and social aspects of alcoholism giving particular emphasis on its contribution to juvenile, as well as adult, delinquency.—The "Spotlight."

"Perhaps this juvenile delinquency problem is growing in such proportions simply because we have failed to do the very thing we needed to do—enlist parents, boys and girls in systematic Bible study and active church membership. Christ is the great need of every life. We all need his saving power. Complete commitment to Christ is the need of the hour."—Mrs. W. O. Benson in "The Sunday School Builder."

Business Manager's Corner

George S. Baer

January, Publication Month

OUR PUBLICATION Interests have the right-of-way during the month of January; this is by act of General Conference. We are hoping that every church in the brotherhood will cooperate in the Publication program that has been outlined. With every one helping we will be able to achieve the goals without hardship on any one.

Our Two-Fold Program

Two things we are asking the churches and individuals of the brotherhood to do. First, to sign pledges to the Press Fund, the money to be paid in at your convenience later in the year, if possible by General Conference time. A pledge from every church and every member is our goal. Pledge cards have been sent out and we thought it wise to ask that these pledges be signed the first or second Sunday in January and have them out of the way by the time of the regular Publication Day offering and thus avoid confusion.

Second, A Banner Publication Day Offering to be lifted the last Sunday in January. Offering envelopes and information material will be in your hands soon; they have already been sent to the churches for distribution. We suggest to all individual members that they send their offerings through the church of their membership, where not too inconvenient. If more convenient to send offering direct to the Publishing House, address it to The Brethren Publishing Co., 524 College Avenue, Ashland, Ohio. Such offerings will be credited to your church, if you name it.

Press Fund Gifts Recently Received

Braden V. Racey, Elkton, Va.	$ 2.00
Mrs. W. H. Gloss, Canton, Ohio50
Mrs. C. E. Kimbrough, Rio Grande City, Texas ..	20.00
Ever-Ready S. S. Class, Bryan, Ohio	22.00
Mrs. Arthur T. Wirick, St. Petersburg, Fla.	15.00
F. S. Beeghly, Ventura, California	100.00
Loy Imboden, Logan, Ohio	30.00

Payments on pledges are not included in this report, as the total amount pledged has already been reported. However acknowledgment of each payment is sent to the donor.

(For total of Cash and Pledges, see block on page 16)

Speed-O-Print Equipment

If your church does not have a duplicator, we can supply you with a "Speed-O-Print," which is used by more preachers and churches than any other make, because it is both good and inexpensive. Like everything else the price has recently gone up to $59.50, plus counter. Our special offer to ministers and churches is a discount of 10%, plus freight cost. The present price on Speed-O-Scopes (Economy type) $29.50, but we have several on

(Continued on Page 10)

The Voice of Our Leaders -- Past and Present

The Divinity of The Lord Jesus

Dr. J. Allen Miller

(From the Brethren Evangelist of May 28, 1902)
 "Thou art the Christ, the Son of the living God."
 Matthew 16:16.

THE DOCTRINE of the Person and Work of the Redeemer occupies the chief place in all Scripture. All other doctrines are subordinate to and receive their significance from this. In the revelation of this doctrine we shall see the enfoldment of God's plan; in the adorable Person and Gracious Work of our blessed Redeemer we shall behold the marvels of God's wisdom and the infinite sweep of His unspeakable love. Oh, that men would praise Him for the riches of grace revealed in Christ Jesus!

In this brief paper I am to consider the doctrine of the Person of our Lord Jesus. And this is an important theme because vital to all true Christianity. Just in the measure that we are faithful to the Biblical conception of the Person of Jesus are we blessed with success. The Epistles of the New Testament gives abundant evidence of the jealous care with which Jesus' rightful place was guarded. How we have misunderstood, dishonored, and all but dethroned our Savior by our thoughtless, ignorant, and inexcusable preachments about Him—our divine Lord!

I. The Pre-incarnate Logos or Word

The Logos (or Word) is God. John 1:1. He was in the beginning, John 1:2; before all creation, John 17:5; for the Word is Creator, John 1:3, and Hebrews 1:2. He is the only begotten from the Father, the Son of God. The pre-existence of the Son is positively declared or implied in many passages. See Hebrews 1:4-12; Phil. 2:6-11. What St. John 1:1-8 teaches may be thus summarized: (1) Jesus Christ, the Son, is called the Logos; (2) He is eternal; (3) He existed in intimate union with God; (4) He was God; (5) He was Creator; (6) He is self-existent; and this teaching of John finds abundant corroboration in both the Old and New Testaments.

II. The Incarnation and the Incarnate Word

The meaning of the Word, "incarnation" in scriptural language is John 1:14, "And the Word became flesh and dwelt among us." The Word, the Son, the second Person of the blessed Trinity became flesh, being made in the likeness of man. Phil. 2:7; Heb. 2:17.

1. Jesus Christ is truly God. The incarnation does not mean that the divine was changed into the human, becoming what it was not before; nor that it became commingled with the human becoming what it was not before. "It was a change of state in the life of a pre-existent being." The incarnation, therefore, did not affect the essential nature of the Deity of the Word. The incarnate Word is no less divine than the pre-incarnate Word. In becoming flesh He did not cease to be the Eternal Word. His divine nature was in no sense laid aside. His personality continued the same. In divine Essence unchangeably one with God He did not become a new being; on the contrary the form (not to be identified with essence) of God He laid aside and entered upon a new mode of being. Read carefully Philippians 2:5-11. But that the Lord Jesus Christ is truly God may be seen from the Scriptures.

(a) His own personal claims suggest the idea of His higher nature. He claims divine authority as a teacher, Matt. 5:21, 22. He claims to be the judge of men in the final assize, Matt. 7:23. He asserts the divine prerogative in the forgiveness of sins, Matt. 9:2-6. He demands first place in man's life, Matt. 10:37; Luke 14:26. He declares His superiority to the law, Matt. 12:8. He assumes Messianic titles, e. g., "the Son of Man," Matt. 16:13. These references out of very many must suffice. They show that the claims of Jesus were higher than those any man whatsoever would dare make.

(b) He claims to be the Messiah. He assumes the titles "Son of Man" and "Son of God," Matt. 16:16; 26:63. He constantly speaks of God as His Father and that in an extraordinary sense. He exercises sovereignty over souls, Luke 10:16. "The Son of God" is a recognized title of the Messiah. This Sonship is most unique as showing relation to God, John 1:18; 1 John 4:9; Rom. 8:3, 32. In its fullest meaning the "Sonship" of Jesus implies Deity. For the Son is in the bosom of the Father, John 1:18; John 10:36-38; and alone Lord, 1 Cor. 8:6; and from heaven, 1 Cor. 15:47. See also Gal. 4:4; 1 John 5:6, 20; 2 Cor. 3:17; 8:9.

(c) The writers of the New Testament clearly reveal the fact that the apostolic belief assigned to Jesus Christ the nature of Deity tabernacling in the flesh. In the manifestation of His power and His work, in His gracious words and in His life, in His resurrection and ascension, the apostles and others of their day saw His claims demonstrated. John 20:28; Rom. 1:4; Matt. 28:18.

(d) These New Testament writers claim that Jesus is the Messiah of prophecy. This claim invests Him with a divine character. Acts 2:32, 36; 3:15; 5:31.

(e) The scriptural assertion of the Lordship of Jesus Christ involves the ascription of Deity to Him. Rom. 9:5; 10:9; 1 Cor. 12:3; 16:23; 2 Cor. 5:10; Eph. 1:10; Col. 1:16-18. He is constantly spoken of as Lord throughout the New Testament in the same sense in which Jehovah is so called in the Old Testament. He is not only thus called Lord, but is declared to be the "Lord of lords," the "Lord of Glory," the "Lord of all."

2. Jesus is truly Man. I shall only state this doctrine briefly as it relates to the divinity of our Lord Jesus. Jesus Christ was a Perfect Man. His Humanity was real and complete. His human nature was the same as that of other men. The study of Scriptures shows that He was subject to human limitations, affections and emotions; that He was made like unto his brethren; that He submitted to a life of hardship and made His own will conformable to the will of God.

3. Jesus Christ is truly God and man. He is the God-Man. He is divine. He is Human. The union between God and man in the Person of Jesus Christ is a perfect and absolute union. He is a Divine-Human Personality. "The divine nature is truly and unchangeably divine. The human nature is just as truly and unchangeably human . . . The two natures are distinct and different, but one—interdependent and inseparable . . . In the personal history of Jesus, the Son of God is living His divine life in organic union with true human nature, and the Son of Man is living His true human life in organic union with true Divine nature."

(a) In many passages of scripture both natures are referred to in speaking of Jesus Christ. John 1:14; Rom. 1:3, 4; 8:3; 9:5; Gal. 4:4; 1 John 4:2, 3.

(b) In certain passages human attributes are affirmed of Jesus Christ while the divine title is used, and vice versa. Matt. 1:23; Luke 1:31, 32; Acts 20:28; 1 Cor. 2:8; Col. 1:13, 17. Such references may be multiplied. Jesus Christ is thus made the subject of two classes of names and two classes of attributes. Of Him a two-fold relationship is affirmed in these titles and attributes. These relations are so distinct and complete, each in its own sphere, that they may not be interchanged.

No other explanation of the personal life and character of Jesus Christ as set forth in the scriptures is so satisfactory as that which unites in Him the Deity of God and the humanity of man by the incarnation.

Conclusion

The Brethren Church holds unqualifiedly to the doctrine of the divinity of our Lord. The faithful preaching and teaching of the words at the head of this paper will assure rich and marvelous development in the personal life, as well as in the whole church. We preach Christ crucified, aye more, Christ risen, Christ enthroned, Christ our God. "Glory be to the Father, and to the Son, and to the Holy Spirit, world without end. Amen."

NOTE: Many more interesting writings, such as the above, can be found in Dr. Miller's Book, "Christian Doctrine—Lectures and Sermons" which was compiled by a committee from the National Ministerial Association of the Brethren Church, from the vast store of material which Dr. Miller had written. If you have not this book in your possession you would do well to order a copy from the Brethren Publishing Company. The price is still $2.50 postpaid.

DO YOU REMEMBER?

Do you remember when the Wets were fighting for repeal of prohibition, that "the saloon would not return?" Has it?

Do you remember that they promised that "temperance would be systematically promoted?" Who is promoting temperance except the same old Drys?

They promised that drunkenness would decline. Why, then, has it more than doubled?

They promised that there would be less drunken driving, but we have a larger increase.

They promised that taxes would be reduced, but aside from any increase in taxes due to the War, the tax burden is greater than ever before in our history.

They said that the young people would not drink so much, but drinking by young people is the most menacing liquor problem in this country. Remember?

The National Sunday School Association

Rev. N. V. Leatherman, General Secretary,
104 S. Mulberry St., Hagerstown, Md.

You Are a Theologian

SOMETIMES a public speaker, with a viewpoint of bridging the gap so often made by the listeners between themselves and the speaker, will try to do so by declaring or intimating he is no theologian. We question whether this ever bridges such a gap. We have a notion it tends to break the bridge. Doubtless many have accustomed themselves to loose thinking in Christian things to the extent we expect most any expression to be received. We believe this word theology is too good a word to be thus handled loosely. Have you ever been curious enough about it to inquire what it means?

We refer here only to the primary meaning of the word. The word is made up of two simple yet meaningful Greek words. They are (Theos) God, and (Logos) word, or speech. This word (Logos) is the same word John used in the prologue of his Gospel. It means the word or speech concerning a person, proposition or thing. Thus theology is the speech or word concerning God. In John's prologue it meant Christ is the Word or speech Himself, concerning God. Theology is man's viewpoint of God in his heart and mind, or written in words on paper, or written in a book. A man's theology may be right or it may be wrong. When a man says he is no theologian, he is saying he has no consistent view of God. How peculiarly strange then that many times he proceeds to proclaim his view of God and the things related to God. That there are those who have not the right view of God, or right theology, certainly does not argue in favor of having no view of God, or having no theology at all.

Is it not possible that here we find much of the weakness of Protestantism, as well as of our church and Sunday school program? Our denominations were made by a struggle between groups to put over doctrinal and theological views peculiar to themselves. Unity of these groups was determined in proportion to the pressure for these views. Today there is effort to unify all Protestantism on the basis of discounting, through the avenue of tolerance and subjugation, many of those theological views held peculiar by groups or denominations. Consequently we have a growing indifference toward any person, literature or church that continues to insist upon a peculiar theology.

Of course we should have a growing corrective theology. Perhaps this term corrective theology should be further explained and magnified. The essence of our theology is the sum of our convictions and beliefs. A person is positive or negative according to his convictions or lack of convictions. Whenever our professed beliefs fail to register in our character then we do not truly believe. Our character is determined by what we truly believe. Therefore the Hindu will starve before eating the sacred cow. The martyr will die before renouncing Jesus Christ. Yet who of us can say that in all things we have exactly the same theology we had when we were in the teens, in the twenties, the thirties, the forties, or later years? Can we not understand that if our theology is not better today than it was in the yesterdays, we have not really grown? Nevertheless our growth has not been in making a new God for every decade; but in understanding, appreciating and worshiping the One Triune God better today than in all the yesterdays. 2 Peter 3:18, "But grow in grace, and in the knowledge of our Lord and Saviour Jesus Christ."

Surely every Sunday School teacher must be a theologian. For the teacher is continually teaching the pupil to think in terms of God. The only kind of God many of our Sunday School pupils have is the kind their teachers give them. If the teacher's God is all cluttered up with human pessimism it will be difficult for the pupil to catch the spirit of faith in a good God. If the teacher's God is ignorantly presented through a false optimism, and then the pupil is brought up with a jerk of reality, he is apt to join Elijah under the juniper tree. The gospel before and immediately after World War I was interpreted very largely through the false optimism: "Every day in every way we are getting better and better." World War II brought us up with a jerk to see that false optimism, and many have had to reinterpret both their God and their gospel. The true and faithful teacher of God and the gospel must become a spiritual realist. Jesus was. He taught self-denial. Before His cross for atonement, He taught His disciples to take up their cross, not for atonement, but for Christ-like conformity. He taught the possibility of peace and happiness, while the soul with both mind and body agonized with pain and suffering. He taught how to make human adjustments as well as heavenly. He taught how to be dependent as well as independent. All these and thousands more become the make-up of a devout and conscientious Sunday School teacher's theology. Like begets like in the spiritual realm as well as in the apple orchard. If our theology is scrubby so will the fruit be in our own lives. And if there is no better contact through others, and the Word of God itself, the lives of our pupils will also be scrubby.

When Jesus asked the Pharisees, "What think ye of Christ? whose son is he?" He was appealing to their theology. Their theology was so poor they missed their only Saviour. Paul was taken prisoner because of his theological views. The difference between Saul of Tarsus and Paul of Mars Hill was a theological difference. Paul's theology was changed on the Damascus road. Protestantism was made by a rediscovery of the theological reality, "The just shall live by faith." Modern missions were born in a new appreciation of the Great Commission. Let us build our church unity today on the basis of a common great theology. Let us build our pupils in a common faith by giving better attention to the source of all correct theology, the Word of God. This demands humility to forget our false notions and courage to accept all the new ideas the Holy Spirit gives us as we study this Word of Truth and Reality.

You are a theologian whether good, bad or indifferent. The responsibility is upon us, whether we accept it or not, to improve our theology as individuals, and upon that basis harmonize our fellowship and friendship in the church. Pessimism says it cannot be done. Optimism says, WE are going to do it. Faith says, let us submit ourselves to God and He will do it. But that submission prays, "Thy kingdom Come. Thy will be done in earth, as it is in heaven." Amen! So be it! It will be done, in God's own time or eternity. If this is your prayer you are a good theologian, if not a perfect one.

—N. V. L.

Spiritual Meditations

Rev. Dyoll Belote

LUMINOUS SAINTS

"But ye were sometime darkness, but now are ye light in the world: Walk as children of light." Ephesians 5:8.

THE CHANGE from darkness to light, brought about in human souls by the religion of Jesus Christ is one of the marvels of the creation. How God can take an unlearned, dull, indifferent human creature and create within him a desire for learning, alert the sluggish mind and make him keen to do and be and become what God would have him to attain to, is beyond human explanation. The exemplified fact is nevertheless undisputable. And the simple expedient in it all is the entrance of the light of the Christian religion.

If you will take an old log in the forest and lift it quickly from its recumbent position you will see a multitude of bugs and insects go scampering in all directions seeking new habitats of darkness. Vermin and bugs and germs breed and multiply in the dark. To kill such one needs but let in the light.

A hundred years ago there were many wild animals hidden in the jungles of Africa—lions, snakes, tigers, and along the rivers man-eating crocodiles. But worse than these were the slave-traders, plying their ungodly traffic in human lives. But David Livingstone, the pioneer missionary to that dark continent, turned on the light of Christianity amid the darkness and the institution of slavery fled, as well as the heathen darkness and sin of the native inhabitants. And through the centuries Christianity has been letting in the Light—bringing Him to the world who said, "I am the light of the world"—and that Light still shines for the enlightenment of the world.

This same "Light-bearer" said of His followers, "Ye are the light of the world"; and that is each one of us who call Him "Lord." A little girl, who had seen the great cathedral windows in English churches, described a saint as "a person who lets the light shine through." Are we luminous?

"Through such souls alone
God stooping shows sufficeint by his light
For us in the dark to rise by."

Uniontown, Pa.

• • • • Our Poet's Corner • • • •

PLEASE, MR. PREACHER

If I could write a poem
If I could write one something like this—Please, Mr. Preacher! don't preach
About my sins—but
Preach about my neighbor's.

His sins are so gross
They block my path to righteousness.
When his sins are wiped out
I shall see my way about.
Don't preach at me—preach at him.

All will be well with me
I can go around, don't you see
And spread the news about him.
What a sinful man is he,
Please! don't preach about me!

Every time I got to church
You have to up and preach at me.
I know it is just a habit of yours,
So I am pleading with you—
Please! preach at him, not me.

—W. H. Coffey.

There's a big difference between good sound ideas and ideas that just sound good.—Howard W. Newton.

Fight* INFANTILE PARALYSIS
JANUARY 15-30

Join the
MARCH
OF DIMES

THE NATIONAL FOUNDATION FOR INFANTILE PARALYSIS

Speaking for The Publishing Offering

General Conference has Spoken Therefore I'm For It!

Rev. L. V. King

FOR A GREAT many years, in fact as long as my memory goes back, the Brethren Church has asked for at least five main offerings during the year. The time of the Offerings alone has changed. But the need of these five causes within the denomination has always been considered important. Each year at Conference time the delegates give their approval to the continuation of these appeals.

For this reason, IF there were no others, I have always given my people an opportunity to share in the special offerings each year, regardless of the financial condition of the Church. I do this because I believe it is right. I believe in the voice of the Conference as it carries on its business through the delegates selected by each church. So, regardless of whether I approve of all that the Boards do, when the Conference speaks through representative delegates, I feel I am obligated to join with them and do my part, however small it may be.

The Publication Board of the Church is made up of representative members of our denomination and come from various churches throughout the Brotherhood, both laymen and ministers. They are selected by the Conference. We may think that they make some mistakes, or that they do not carry on the work of Publications as we would do them, nevertheless we have selected them to represent us, and if they make mistakes it is because they are much like the folks that have selected them. I believe they are doing the best they can, under the handicaps that we place upon them. Therefore it is our Christian duty to get back of them with our prayers and funds.

So the yearly offering, which is to be lifted this year on January 25, is an offering we are all duty-bound, as members of the denomination, to support. We do want the Board members to make the Publication Company as helpful as possible to the denomination. They can only do this as we support them in their needs. Therefore, let us give cheerfully and liberally on January 25 for the regular work of the Publication Interests.

The General Conference has also approved the plan to modernize the present plant to make it produce for us at its best. Therefore, as members of the Conference, we are duty-bound also to support the Press Fund.

Whatever our objections to this special appeal in the past, all of us should now be able to see God's hand in the project in providing, ahead of time, a Press that will save us thousands of dollars and enable the Publishing Company to secure the same much sooner than they had anticipated. The Brethren Church could very nicely care for this project within the year 1948, IF every member of the church did something about it.

I have found this in every church I have served, that the burden of the special offerings comes from a small minority of the members. But I have always said that none of us would need to give such large amounts IF every one gave. As Treasurer of the Benevolent Board I have discovered also that there are some churches that fail to even send in an offering. This means that they were not even given the privilege of giving. This is often the fault of the pastor. So let every church give every member an opportunity to at least share in this splendid Publication project.

PUBLICATION OFFERING DATE

SUNDAY, JANUARY 25

SEND ALONG YOUR "PRESS FUND" PLEDGES

Rebuilding The Wall

Rev. Delbert B. Flora

WHEN the wall of Jerusalem was rebuilt under the leadership of Nehemiah, each of the various groups did its own part of the work, as recounted in Nehemiah 3. In chapter four we read that "all the wall was joined together." That was possible only because each group did its own work in its own place.

In our post-war era each Protestant denomination is rebuilding its own part of the wall of worldwide Christian advance, with varying degrees of enthusiasm, integrity and success, to be sure. Our own Brethren Church is engaged in rebuilding its part of the wall. Just as those people in Jerusalem were faced with urgency and perforce applied themselves to their own work on their own section of the wall, so has the Brethren Church her place and her work.

The Brethren Publishing Company contributes a great deal toward the success of the Brethren Church in her wall building. Brethren publications supply Brethren people with Brethren news. This inculcates a sense of Brethren identity and cultivates a feeling of "belonging." Also, only Brethren publications further Brethren indoctrination and Brethren propagation.

Our publishing house has a right to expect our most generous support for its great work in strengthening the hands and hearts of Brethren workmen in these days of war-weariness and world-fear. Let us give with love and prayer on the day of our Publication Offering so that the wall may be joined together. Let us demonstrate that we "have a mind to work," and never grow timid when someone says, "Even that which they build, if a fox go up, he shall even break down their stone wall" (Neh. 4:3).

—Ashland Theological Seminary.

PUBLICATION OFFERING DATE

SUNDAY, JANUARY 25

SEND ALONG YOUR "PRESS FUND" PLEDGES

Keep Step With The Forward Movement

Rev. T. C. Lyon

IT HAS long been conceded that "the pen is mightier than the sword"—but it would take a long time to reach many people with pen and ink! That's why we have printing presses.

The early advances of the Brethren Church in America owe much to the printing of Christopher Sauer. Today, not only does our publishing house print the church paper: the W. M. S. Laymen's Organization, Sunday School, and other interests and activities of the church would be crippled without it. If our church is to continue to advance now, we MUST have suitable, modern printing equipment.

By authority of the Conference, one big forward step has been taken in arranging for the purchase of the new press. It will soon be installed and paying dividends. A number have already contributed, but more is needed.

The cause is less spectacular than some, but it is an important part of the Lord's work and program. This January let us not only give liberally to our Publication Day Offering, but let us also make a pledge toward the new press, to be paid later in the year. Both are needed, and we can not afford to have no part in this work.

Therefore, as ye abound in . . . faith and utterance, and knowledge, and in all diligence . . . see that ye abound in this grace, also."

—Silver Springs, Maryland.

Things Every Bible Reader Should Know

A cab was three pints.

An omer was three quarts.

A firkin was about eight and seven-eighths gallons.

An ephah, or bath, contained eight gallons and five pints.

A farthing was one and one-half cents.

A gerah was worth about three cents.

A shekel of gold was eight dollars.

A shekel of silver was about fifty cents.

A mite was less than a quarter of a cent.

A piece of silver, or a penny, was thirteen cents.

A talent of gold was thirteen thousand eight hundred nine dollars.

A talent of silver was five hundred thirty-eight dollars and thirty cents.

Ezekiel's reed was nearly eleven feet.

A cubit was about eighteen inches.

A finger's breadth was equal to about one inch.

A hand's breadth was equal to three and five-eighths inches.

A Sabbath day's journey was about seven-eighths of a mile.

A day's journey was about twenty-three and one-fifth miles.—Selected.

It is a belief in the Bible, the fruit of deep meditation, which has served me as the guide of my moral and literary life. I have found it a capital safety invested, and richly productive of interest.—Goethe.

Interesting Items

(Continued from Page 2)

corner Antietam and Mulberry streets, in Hagerstown, Maryland, to be their's forever, to be used as the governing body of the Church might deem best." That, indeed, would be pleasant news to any church.

Vinco, Pennsylvania. Brother St. Clair Benshoff, pastor of the Vinco Church, announces that there were eleven received into the Vinco church, seven of which were received by confession and baptism.

A cantata-Pageant, "Pilgrims To Bethlehem" was presented at the Vinco church by the Sunday School and the Choir on Sunday evening, December 21. The Pageant was directed by Mrs. George Leidy; the music by Mrs. W. S. Benshoff, with Miss Wilma Leidy at the piano.

Pittsburgh, Pennsylvania. Brother W. S. Crock reports that during a recent confinement from "flu," Deacon Ralph R. Rau very graciously substituted for him by bringing the messages of the Sunday services. It's fine when a pastor has a deacon who can step in thus and help out in time of need.

Brother Crick says that the "Measuring Social" which was referred to recently in these "Items" was a success and netted the sum of $40.00. It takes lots of inches at one cent per inch to net that sum.

Nappanee, Indiana. We quote from Brother Bowman's Nappanee bulletin of December 21: "The plasterers say they will have the plastering for the entire church finished in three weeks. It should not take them so long then to finish the entire church. Then we can have our dedication service. Let us hope we can have our Pre-Easter revival in the main sanctuary."

Milledgeville, Illinois. Brother D. C. White says, "A recording was made of the cantata, 'Gloria in Excelsis' which was given on Sunday evening, December 14 by the combined choirs of the town, and was heard over the amplifying system at 7:00 o'clock on Sunday evening, December 28." This amplifying system has just recently been installed in the Milledgeville church tower. A record attendance of 487 heard the original cantata.

A New Year's Watch Party was held New Year's Eve at the Milledgeville church, following a "sled or straw ride" which left the church at 8:00 o'clock.

Waterloo, Iowa. Brother Virgil Meyer reports the arrival of the new choir robes. He says, "Don't you think they look nice?"

The Sunday School sponsored a Christmas party at the church on Tuesday evening, December 23. A pot-luck supper was followed by a program. It was family night.

Washington, D. C. Brother C. S. Fairbanks, pastor of the Washington church announces through his bulletin of December 21 that at a special business meeting held on Wednesday evening, December 17, that it was voted to award the contract for the first unit of their new church to Mr. A. C. Minnix. As soon as details can be arranged, the building will begin.

He also reports that forty-five students and teachers of the Sunday School enjoyed the Christmas party for young people on Saturday afternoon, December 20. Games and refreshments were enjoyed.

Business Manager's Corner

(Continued from page 3)

hand at $20.00 net, plus carriage costs. Send to us for your mimeograph supplies of all kinds.

Some Books We Recommend

The Westminster Historical Atlas of the Bible, $4.00, Postpaid.

Bible Story Readers, Nos. 1, 2, 3, 4 and 5 at $1.25 each Postpaid.

Hurlbut's Story of the Bible, $2.95, Postpaid.

Egermeier's Bible Story Book, DeLuxe Edition, $4.95; Popular Edition, $2.95.

Christian Doctrine—Lectures and Sermons, by the late Dr. J. Allen Miller, a book that ought to be in every Brethren home, $2.50, Postpaid.

TENTATIVE PROGRAM FOR THE INDIANA DISTRICT CONFERENCE

June 7 to 11, 1948

(Combined District Conference, Bible Conference, Missions, Evangelism and Youth. The Conference Begins Monday evening and closes Friday evening.)

MORNINGS

8:00 to 9:00 Simultaneous Sessions
9:00 to 10:00 Bible Lectures by Brethren Men
10:00 to 11:00 Bible Lectures by Rev. Roland Hudson
11:00 to 11:45 Panel Discussion and Bible Queries or Question Box

(Personnel will be given soon)

AFTERNOONS

1:30 to 1:45 Devotions
1:45 to 2:45 Conference Business
2:45 to 3:45 .. District and Denominational Interests
Tuesday District Missions
Wednesday Conference Trustees
Thursday Ashland College
Friday Sunday School Board

EVENINGS

7:30 to 8:30 Devotional Study and Music
8:00 to 9:00 Evangelism and Missions
Monday: "Sunday School Evangelism—Teaching"

Rev. Wayne Swihart

Tuesday: "Personal Evangelism—Witnessing"

Dr. Claud Studebaker

Wednesday: "Mass Evangelism—Preaching"

Dr. Charles A. Bame

Thursday: Publishing Interests

Missionary Rally Dr. Roland Hudson

Friday: Youth Rally In charge of Youth

Northern Indiana Music

Southern Indiana Devotions

PLACE OF MEETING

SHIPSHEWANA LAKE

L. V. King, Sec.

NEWS

Send all C. E. News Items
To Rev. W. St. Clair Benshoff
Rt. 1, Box 152, Conemaugh, Pa.

CAMBRIA COUNTY BRETHREN C. E. UNION HOLDS RALLY AT VINCO

AT A Rally held on November 4, Walter C. Wertz was elected to the presidency of the Cambria County Brethren Christian Endeavor Union for the thirteenth consecutive year. The Rally was held in the Vinco Brethren Church at the evening hour. Other officers elected were:

Vice-President—Floyd S. Benshoff, Third Church, Johnstown

Second V-President—George Leidy, Vinco

Secretary—Esther Grumbling, Third Church, Johnstown

Asst. Sec.—Clara Jane Arehart, Third Church, Johnstown

Treasurer—Charlotte Apple, Third Church, Johnstown.

Various committees were selected, together with superintendents of the various departments.

Perfect attendance awards for the quarter completed were given to Esther Grumbling, Elverda Grumbling, Robert Blough, Charlotte Apple, James Mackall, Edward Smith and Jimmy Mackall.

The Banner and Chorus book awards were presented to the Third Johnstown Intermediate Society for having the largest attendance during the quarter and at the rally.

The new officers were installed by Rev. W. C. Berkshire of New Lebanon, Ohio, who was holding an evangelistic meeting at the Vinco Church.

Special music was offered by Floyd Benshoff, trombonist who was accompanied by Clyde Orner, and by Blodwyn Leidy, vocalist, who was accompanied by Mrs. Lester Leidy.

Approximately one hundred were in attendance and a missionary offering was taken which amounted to $50.00.

PUBLICATION OFFERING DATE

SUNDAY, JANUARY 25

SEND ALONG YOUR "PRESS FUND" PLEDGES

THE MAN WITH THE CONSECRATED CAR

He couldn't speak before a crowd, He couldn't teach a class,

But when he came to Sunday School, he brought the folks "en masse."

He couldn't sing to save his life, in public, couldn't pray, But always his 'jalopy' was just crammed on each Lord's Day.

And though he could not sing, nor teach, nor lead in prayer He listened well, he had a smile, and he was always there—

With all the others whom he brought, who lived near and far—

And God's work prospered for he had a consecrated car.

News From Our Churches

MILFORD, INDIANA

Rev. W. I. Duker, our pastor, and one of his parishioners, William E. Cox, long time member of the Milford First Brethren Church, were greeted by more than one hundred members and friends of the church in a joint birthday party on Sunday evening, November 30. Both men were born on December 3.

In connection with the gathering, a surprise "pound party" was given Rev. and Mrs. Duker. Besides a generous collection of food, other gifts included a beautiful table lamp and two birthday cakes.

The Comrades Class, of which Rev. Duker is the teacher, sponsored the party. The class was assisted by the adult Ladies' Class, "The Willing Workers," of which Mrs. Duker is a member.

A program suitable for the occasion had been arranged by a committee of the Comrades Class, consisting of piano and vocal numbers.

During the social hour refreshments—ice cream, cake and coffee—were served.

Rev. Duker began his pastorate here on January 1, 1933 and he and Mrs. Duker are really "one among us," having taken up their residence on South Main Street, in Milford, last June.

Mr. Cox has the distinction of helping to hang the bell in the belfry of the church which was dedicated on October 25, 1886. The Milford Church is known as the "Mother" church of the Brethren Organization.

Mrs. Wilbur D. Groves, Cor. Sec.

FALLS CITY, NEBRASKA

Revival

On Wednesday, September 23, Brother J. G. Dodds arrived in Falls City, in his new Nash, to be with us in a nearly two weeks of Revival and Evangelistic effort. Because of a busy summer in Camp work and followed by attendance at General Conference plus a few days' rest we had not had time to make much preparation for the meeting other than through announcements and prayer. In spite of this the meeting started off with good attendance and continued so throughout.

Brother Dodds brought along his stereopticon and a series of prophetic slides which he showed with his prophetic lecture each evening before the regular sermon. His sermons were clear, scriptural and strictly Brethren without apology. (Why should a Brethren preacher apologize for his message anyway?) Brother Dodds is widely known here and many of his old friends, pupils and acquaintances came out to hear him. However, as in many

(Continued on page 14)

CHRISTIAN ENDEAVOR TOPIC

W. St. Clair Benshoff, Topic Editor

"Topics copyrighted by the International Society of Christian Endeavor.
Used by permission."

Topic for January 18, 1948

LIVING BY THE GRACE OF GOD

Scripture: Eph. 2:4-10; II Cor. 12:9; II Peter 3:18

For The Leader

RIGHT about now we should be thinking again of the resolutions we made on the first of January. When we started this new year we undoubtedly reviewed our past life, seeing our successes, and our failures and mistakes. Without doubt, we resolved to live a better life for Christ. But along about now we discover that the resolve to do better hasn't been so easy to keep in effect. We discover, sometimes to our sorrow, that we still have the same old temptations, desires and weaknesses. What then does it take for us to live a better life for Christ and for God? By now we should be started on what can easily be the best year of our lives. A year that will see more real work done for our Church and our God. Right now we can have to our credit several weeks of a cleaner, and purer life for God. How is this accomplished? Simply by putting our trust in Him more completely. When we consider how lucky we are because of the mercies of God, we will be more careful how we live. At any rate, we are deeply indebted to God that through His Son we have the hope of life eternal. Thus we are living by the Grace of God. To be grateful, we must live that what we do shall continually praise His name.

DISCUSSION

1. FROM DEATH UNTO LIFE. We note in the scripture in Ephesians that we have been "quicken together with Christ." Meaning that as Christ was brought from death unto life in the resurrection, we too, through faith in Him, have passed into a new life. It is not because of any personal merit, or good standing with God, because we certainly didn't have any. It says in the scriptures that "by grace are ye saved." Maybe you don't like this, but before God, all sinners are equal. None of us had any more standing before God than any other person. We are not saved because God thought more of us than He did of anyone else. We are saved because we have thrown ourselves completely on His mercy. But when we have put ourselves at His mercy, His grace operates and we are redeemed. New hope and life, new vision and service. A new destiny. All these result from the operation of God's grace in life. We are made partakers of that heavenly nature and, granted to us is the right to sit in heavenly places in Christ Jesus. Does that mean anything to you, or do you take salvation for granted? We should never for a moment underestimate the value of our salvation. When you consider the vileness of man's sin, we're really lucky to be saved. But that's how much God loves us!

2. STRENGTH FOR ALL TRIALS. Christian people will suffer. So do unchristian people. The advantage, though, of being a Christian is that you have strength for your trials. Christ is a Companion that helps us in times of suffering. He is ever present to comfort us in the dark hours of the night, or the lonely hours of the day. A very poor woman was visited by her pastor. She lived in a shack in the poorer section of town. But even though she was poor, her husband dead, and the children of the home seeming to have one sickness after another, she wore a smile of peace upon her face. Truly if anyone was entitled to be soured on life, she was eligible. But not this lady. So, her pastor asked her the secret of her peace. She told him that when she got tired she rested in her easy chair. Now in this home, any furniture was at a premium. So the amazed pastor asked her as to her easy chair. She pointed to the other room in her humble home and said, "Come and watch." She entered ahead of her pastor, proceeded to her humble cot and knelt on the hard boards of the floor and started to pour out her anguished soul to God in prayer. When she arose, she said, "There, prayer is my easy chair." And she was really refreshed. Because God has been merciful to us, we can have this strength for all of our trials. Christ has said, "My grace is sufficient for thee."

3. GROW IN GRACE. Did you ever meet a person who felt within themselves that they had reached the peak of perfection in their Christian life? They are so sure that they are better than other people. No one else even rates as far as they are concerned. Christ has them to deal with in His day. When people get to the place that they think they are perfect in Christian living, then they have forgotten this very important verse in II Peter 2:18, "But grow in grace, and in the knowledge of our Lord and Savior Jesus Christ." We are to continually grow in grace. Do you know what that means? It means that no matter how long we live, nor how well informed we are in the scriptures, that there will always be room to grow. There is never such a thing as perfection in this life. We are to grow, but not only to grow, but to grow in grace. That is to become more like Christ every day. It is not hard to pick out the people who actually are growing in grace. They are loving, kind, considerate, truthful, trustworthy. Even though put against the greatest temptations of sin, they remain the true examples for Christ. Nothing to hide in their lives. They are living for Jesus every day. We need more and more of them every day in our churches. Let us strive to grow, to remember our resolves of the new year. Then this year will be the greatest and the best for Him.

QUESTIONS

1. Is it possible to really break habits of wrong living? Sometimes people say they know they shouldn't do some things, but still they don't stop. What is the trouble? How can the power of sin be broken?

2. What do you think causes people to come to the place where they think they have reached perfection in Christian living? Explain how you can deal with such a person to help them.

3 Explain some of the advantages of living by the grace of God.

PROGRAM SUGGESTIONS

Spend the first 15 minutes in gospel chorus singing. Have a good leader, and sing without piano. They really sound nice that way. This would be a good night to close your meeting with a friendship circle. Close with sentence prayers, and an invitation to come back next Sunday.

Prayer Meeting Topic

Contributed by Rev. C. Y. Gilmer

PARENTAL DELINQUENCY

By Mrs. Ray Merrill

Prompted by an illustration given by Dr. Walter Meier on the Lutheran Hour.

They walked through the wheatfield, the mother and dad,
And with them came trudging their own little lad.

Their progress was slow for the grain had grown tall
And the night was so dark they could scarce see at all.

When the mother was tempted to stop in despair
The daddy would whisper, "We soon will be there."
Then tighter he clasped her dear hand in his own
And they pressed their way on, as though they were alone.

At length Mother questioned, "How's Sonny? Is he Having trouble? It's so dark I can't see."
Dad's heart shrank within him and fear gripped him, too,
"Why Mother, I thought he was walking with you!"

"No, I do not have him! I don't understand—
I thought he was there holding your other hand."
Then frantic and anxious they turned their way back,
But they were unable to follow their track.

They wandered till morning in the tall waving grain,
To find the dear lad, but their search was in vain.
At daylight the neighbors were roused from their bed,
And so he was found—too late—he was dead.

Oh, Mother and Dad, in this great field of life,
As you press your way forward as husband and wife,
When children have come to bless your family band,
They need both to guide them—so each take a hand!

PARENTAL DELINQUENCY

Scripture: Genesis 19:12-16

Hymn Singing

Leader's Petition

Thought Provokers:

MR. AND MRS. Lot had no time for a family altar. Instead, they were ambitious for their daughters to have the so-called advantages of city life. They pitched their tent toward Sodom, and finally moved into Sodom. When many families make a move to a new location they never think to put the church first. The church should be the first consideration in a move. It is very foolish not to put first things first. It is a losing act every time one loses sight of the primary thing in life.

Today this country is in deadly peril. The arrests of teen-age boys and girls throughout the nation is staggering. The papers are full of danger signals as juvenile crime records glare in head-lines. But parents take no warning. We have a criminal army of 1,000,000 teen-age boys and girls in our nation. They are crime-laden, sex-maddened, movie-minded, tobacco fiends—a regular fifth column to menace our nation. It's an ugly situation.

Laxity in the rearing of children is certain far from being good to them. Unlike father Lot, parents should be more firm (2 Peter 2:8). Parents do not seem to realize what their children have them for (Prov. 22:6; Matt. 19:14; Eph. 6:4). Modern parents think nothing of leaving their children an open prey to the vultures of filthy movies and vicious literature which they themselves approve. 17 million children in the United States have never yet been to Sunday School because of delinquent parents. It is the sheep that are leading the lambs astray (2 Kings 4:26). The only salvation for the American Home and Nation is Acts 16:31.

Pray that a mighty conviction of sin may halt the wayward parents of our land, and that the church may quit compromising with sin (Jas. 4:4; 1 John 2:15-17).

COMMENTS

On The Sunday School Lesson

by The Editor

Lesson for January 18, 1948

MAN'S NEED OF GOD

Lesson: Romans 8:12-17, 31-39

AS A CHILD needs its parents, so does man need the Father God. The relationship which we bear to our Father is even a closer relationship than exists between us, as children, and our earthly parents.

We need remember that God is a "personal" God; that He is interested in whatever takes place in our lives. He knows all about us. As the Psalmist says, "O Lord, thou hast searched me, and known me. Thou knowest my down-sitting and mine uprising, thou understandest my thought afar off . . . thou art acquainted with all my ways. For there is not a word in my tongue, but, lo, Lord, thou knowest it altogether." (Psalm 139:1-4.) And Matthew tells us in Matthew 10:30, that "the very hairs of our heads are numbered." We are constantly in God's thought and presence. The Omnipresence of God can only mean that He is always near. So near is He that the Psalmist says once more in the above Psalm, "Whither shall I go from thy spirit? or whither shall I flee from thy presence? If I ascend into heaven, thou art there; if I make my bed in hell, behold, thou art there." Verily there is no escape from God.

And why should one desire to be away from one who stands ready to help at all times? The writer of the Hebrews letter says, "For he hath said, I will never leave thee, nor forsake thee. So that we may boldly say, The Lord is my helper, and I will not fear what man shall do unto me." (Hebrews 13:5-6.)

Therefore we stand in need of that help that God alone can and is willing to give us.

We must lay much stress on the words of Romans 8:31-32, which is a part of our printed text. The "free gift of all things" shows us how God is filling man's every need. That "every need" includes both the material and the spiritual. But note: It does not say God will give us everything we "want." He does promise, however, to supply ALL our "needs."

Truly man stands in great need of God, for God does not say He will redeem His promise to those who do not love and serve Him. The same God that "justifieth" is the One that "condemneth." As He stands ready and willing to supply our needs, so He also is true to Himself in withholding His goodness from those who do not love and serve Him.

Yes, we need God. And in next Sunday's lesson we will also see that He needs us.

NEWS FROM OUR CHURCHES

(Continued from page 11)

cases today, the great problem in evangelism is to get the unsaved to come out and hear the gospel. There were two, a mother and daughter, who made the good confession of faith in Christ as Saviour. These were baptized and received into the Church following the meeting. Only time and eternity will tell of the good that was accomplished by this faithful preaching of the Word.

During the meeting we held our Annual Homecoming and Brother Dodds was the speaker. Our District Conference followed close on the meeting and I had the pleasure of riding down to McLouth in that new Nash. We drove around to Piper, Kansas, and here I had another pleasure, that of showing Brother Dodds our new Camp grounds, Camp Wyandotte. He said, "I like it." Well, so do we.

On over to Conference where Brother Dodds was our principal speaker and gave valuable assistance by way of suggestion and advice in the District work. He also represented the Publishing Company and the Goals Committee on the Conference program.

Brother Dodds is very enthusiastic in telling of the new mission Church at Akron, Ohio, where he is the pastor and we pray and trust that they will soon have a new church building in which to worship and that the Lord will bless them abundantly in the spiritual growth and development of this new body of Brethren people.

We pray also that more of our good pastors might launch out and begin in a like manner the establishing of mission Churches in other of our larger cities throughout the brotherhood. The field is great and the harvest is ripe but faith is small.

Cecil H. Johnson.

EVANGELISTIC MEETING AT MULVANE, KANSAS

Some months ago Brother Wilbur Thomas told me that he and the church at Mulvane would like to have me hold a meeting for them in the fall and I answered that I would be glad to do so if it could be arranged. We kept in touch with each other regarding the matter and on Monday, November 17 I boarded the bus for Wichita at four in the morning and arrived on time at twelve forty-five. Brother Thomas met me there and took me over to Mulvane.

We began the meeting that evening and preached every night through November 30, which was Sunday night, and we closed the meeting with a Lovefeast and Communion service on Monday night with thirty-eight communicants present and several visitors who came to observe the service. Rev. Hodgden, pastor of the Church of the Brethren at Conway Springs, Kansas, with his family and some of his parishioners and also a young lady, whose name I have forgotten and who is a nurse in the Wesleyan Hospital, Wichita and a member of the River Brethren were present and communed with us. This was a fitting climax for the meeting and I have never observed a finer spirit and manifestation of Christian love than that present at this Lovefeast.

These people were very faithful in their attendance, many of them attending every night for the entire two weeks. I have never preached to a most interested and attentive group than these Brethren at Mulvane. It was a real pleasure too, to work with them and their good pastor, Brother Thomas in the winning of souls to Christ. We enjoyed their wonderful hospitality and sumptuous meals in many of their homes.

I was privileged to stay with Brother Thomas and his lovely family. They are comfortably situated in a dwelling about two blocks from the church and just across the street from the grade school. Brother Thomas is untiring in his efforts to win souls and to strengthen the church and I predict that it will not be too long until they will have to enlarge their church building to meet the needs of this growing work. They now have a Sunday School of seventy and are continuing to reach new families. This is one of our Home Mission Churches and is deserving of our prayers and support.

I shall leave to the pastor the matter of reporting the results of the meeting. I received many invitations to come back again and I cherish the hope that I shall find it possible to do so. Their many kindnesses and generous offering was greatly appreciated.

I left Mulvane early Tuesday morning for Fort Scott and preached for them that night to a fine group of loyal Brethren that are still waiting and praying for a pastor. This visit was part of my work as District Evangelist. Their church is in nice repair and they report their Sunday School growing. Our dear Sister Wood was present at the service and is quite well. I left Fort Scott for home Wednesday morning and arrived at five that evening, tired but happy that the Lord had greatly blessed. Blessed be the Name of the Lord.

Cecil H. Johnson, Falls City, Nebraska.

MAURERTOWN, VIRGINIA

We have been rather quiescent for some months, but only so far as reports to The Evangelist are concerned. Otherwise we have been on the move constantly. Our last report was some time before Easter. So we commence with the Easter time. We had scheduled the usual week of meetings twixt Palm Sunday and Easter. But early the morning of April second the ninety-year-old mother of the pastor was called away from this world and its cares. We laid her body to rest in the family cemetery in Tremont, Penna., on Good Friday afternoon. This made Easter mean all the more for us. We had a fine attendance on Easter Day and a nice offering for Missions. The following week the writer spent some days at Ashland attending the Pastors' Institute and the annual meeting of the College Board of Trustees. This time was a change of work and all and helped in many ways.

Our next special event was the District conference at Hagerstown. As usual we had a full delegation from the Maurertown church and we "sweated" it through with the others attending. It was one of the hottest times we ever spent at conference. And it was only a few days after a cyclone had hit that burg and scared the folks badly. It tore things up in the southern section of the city. The conference was enjoyed by all our group and was a forward-looking meeting.

On June 23rd we commenced our D. V. B. S., the first for this church. In other years we united with other nearby schools. The three young ladies from the Brethren Youth Movement, the Misses Margery Long, Audrey DeWalt and Doris Hart gave us splendid service and the closing service on the evening of the Fourth of July showed how well they had done their work. They made their home at the parsonage and seemed quite at home with the pastor and Mrs. Miller.

August is the month of vacation and we spent it as usual, preaching and teaching and at General Conference. This conference was also enjoyed by the group from this place. General Conference is always looked forward to with anticipation of good things and the meeting and fellowship with friends of long standing.

Rally Day found us at work and this time we lifted an Ashland College offering asked for over the brotherhood. October was really a banner month for this church and Sunday School. The Sunday School attendance for the month reached an average of exactly one hundred thirty per Sunday for the four Sundays. That isn't bad for a rural outfit. On the third Sunday we held our usual fall communion service and it was very well attended. Then came our revival meeting with Dr. Claud Studebaker leading. This meeting has already been reported. One young man came forward to unite with us and to come in the church where his wife had already been a member for some years. After this meeting the pastor and wife did some extra work and the results were gratifying. Ten others were led to confess their Lord and Savior and unite with us here. This was a fine class of folks. There was the young man mentioned, a young lady and her husband then came along, the lady to be baptized and the man to come by relation from a distant Church of the Brethren, then a man and wife and their two sons, the man and wife by relation from a Brethren church; next were a man and wife who had just purchased property in our village and they were baptized along with a young man who made his confession on his twentieth birthday anniversary, and his sister, a student in high school. That meant eight by baptism and three by relation. We were happy, of course.

That brings us up to Thanksgiving time. We had the usual services on Thanksgiving evening and had a nice attendance. The following Sunday we lifted the annual offering for home missions. This is not quite up to the standard of previous years. But with all the calls for relief and such and drives for charities of all kinds, the folks have been giving as much or more than in former years, but not so much to the one place. But withal their hearts are in the right place and we feel they will respond as usual once things settle down to a more even keel.

At present we are in preparation for the Christmas program and the White Gift Offering. The program will be delivered on the Sunday evening after Christmas and the offering will be received at the same time. So you see we are moving.

We must say a word for our fine W. M. S. and the good work they are doing. Besides the work with the national society they do a lot of things that help folks of the local region. Their charities are many and fine. And a word of like nature can be said regarding the Mary and Martha group. They are following in the footsteps of their mothers and have fine meetings and reach out in aid to the lesser fortunate.

Our Sunday School is doing very nicely under the leadership of superintendent, Fred Enswiller and his corps of workers and teachers. Superintendent Enswiller is an agreeable, affable and sociable young man who has done much to make our school a place where folks like to be.

Now we hope that all our readers and all our churches will have a most excellent time during the year nineteen hundred and forty-eight. The Lord is able to do great things for us and through us if we will give Him the right of way. More and more let us make Him the Leader in all things.

"Bro. Ed".
E. L. Miller.

Wedding Announcement

RONK-MANVILLE. Helen Louise Ronk and John DeWitt Manville were united in Holy Matrimony by a double ring ceremony which was performed by the Reverend Andrew H. Kurth and the bride's father, Reverend Willis E. Ronk, in the Westminster Presbyterian Church of Cedar Rapids, Iowa, at 10:00 A. M., November 26, 1947.

Following the ceremony a reception was given in the church parlors, then breakfast was served to the wedding party and close relatives at the Roosevelt Hotel.

The bride is a teacher in an elementary school in Cedar Rapids and the groom is a student in Coe College of that city.

They will reside at 1726 A Avenue, N. E., Cedar Rapids.

CRIDELBAUGH-OLIVER. On Sunday afternoon, September 28, 1947, at the Brethren Church in Udell, Iowa, occurred the wedding of Miss May Criddlebaugh and Lawrence E. Oliver. She was a member of the Baptist Church and he of the Christian Church. Both young people are well liked by many who knew them. They will make their home near Centerville, Iowa on a farm. The ceremony was by the writer.

W. R. Deeter.

THE JANUARY PROGRAM FOR PUBLISHING INTERESTS

The New Press Fund

"The Gospel must first be published among all nations."
Mark 13:10.

Authorized by The 1946
General Conference

GOAL Not less than $15,000.00
Cash and pledges $8,192.56
Yet to be raised, not less than $6,807.06

CASH

For The PUBLICATION
OFFERING

January 25th

PLEDGES

For The PRESS FUND

These Payable in 1948

This Is The Entrance to the Brethren Publishing Plant!

This Is The Entrance To The Pocket Books of Brethren People!

The Two Must Meet In Dollars January 25

Pledges for "Press Fund"

Cash for Publishing Offering

THE BRETHREN EVANGELIST

Published weekly, except the last week in August and
the last week in December.

THE BRETHREN PUBLISHING COMPANY

Ashland, Ohio

PRUDENTIAL COMMITTEE

J. E. Stookey, President N. G. Kimmel, Vice-President
J. G. Dodds, Secretary-Treasurer

EDITOR OF PUBLICATIONS—F. C. Vanator

BUSINESS MANAGER—G. S. Baer

EDITOR MISSIONARY NUMBER—E. M. Riddle

CONTRIBUTING EDITORS

Dr. Charles A. Bame Rev. Dyoll Belote

DEPARTMENTAL EDITORS

Dr. C. F. Yoder, Brethren Doctrine
Rev. N. V. Leatherman, Practical Church Problems
Rev. J. G. Dodds, National Goals
Dr. R. F. Porte, Brethren Church History

PLEASE REMEMBER: All material for publication in the Evangelist must be in the hands of the editor at least three weeks before the desired date of publication, to assure same to appear in desired issue. This refers to announcements particularly.

TERMS OF SUBSCRIPTION: $1.50 per year in advance.
CHANGE OF ADDRESS: In ordering change of address always
give both old and new addresses.

REMITTANCES: Send all money, business communications, and contributed articles to:

THE BRETHREN PUBLISHING COMPANY
ASHLAND, OHIO

Entered as second class matter at Ashland, Ohio. Accepted for mailing
at special rate, section 1103, act of October 3, 1917. Authorized
September 3, 1928.

INTERESTING ITEMS

St. James, Maryland. We find that the new officers of the St. James Laymen's Organization are as follows:

President James Norris
Vice-President Donald Lowery
Secretary Donald Bowers
Assistant Secretary Ike Litton
Treasurer Carson Metz

The St. James Organization had been doing fine work both in the home church and in the surrounding churches, and we wish these new officers much success during the new year. Their public service was conducted on January 14. We hope to receive information concerning this in the near future.

Williamstown-Gretna Circuit, Ohio. We note from Brother Charles Munson's bulletin that the New Chimes of the Williamstown church were dedicated recently, with a program in charge of the Sisterhood. The service consisted of a number of musical numbers and a service of dedication.

Brother Munson says, of the Gretna church, that the Sunday School and church attendance has been increasing, due, no doubt, to the increased emphasis upon attendance by the Sunday School.

Bryan, Ohio. We learn from Brother C. Y. Gilmer's bulletin that at the annual January Business meeting it was decided to purchase an electric organ. A committee composed of Ronald Scott, Chairman, Charles Hineman, Mrs. Denver Lockhart, Gladys Hineman and Mrs. Frederick Rusk, together with the three trustees, Ellsworth Dietrich, David Erlsten and Walter Diehl, are to obtain detailed information which is to be given to the congregation at a called meeting, which is to be held in the near future.

Masontown, Pennsylvania. Brother Ankrum reports continued progress on the finishing of the new parsonage. It won't be long now.

Waterloo, Iowa. Brother Virgil Meyer reports the baptism and reception into the church of two new members on Tuesday, December 30. Brother Meyer says, "This brings to 27 the number who were received into the church by baptism during 1947."

Nappanee, Indiana. Just as we were writing the words Nappanee, Indiana, Brother Milton Bowman, pastor of the Nappanee Church came into the office with two fine big pictures of the new church (architect's drawings), one of the outside of the church, in black and white, the other a drawing of the interior of the auditorium and chancel which was beautifully tinted. Both of these drawings show the beauty and simplicity of the new church, which will soon be occupied in its entirety by the congregation. The basement is now in use. We congratulate the membership on their fine new place of worship.

We note from the Nappanee bulletin that a fine New Year's program was observed on New Year's Eve with special musical numbers and pictures from 9 to 10; refreshments and fellowship from 10 to 11; and a lovely devotional service from 11 to 12.

We also see that a slogan has been adopted by the Sunday School which reads, "268 in '48." This number is approximately 10% above the average attendance for the past three years. With a new church they ought easily to make it.

We note that the quarterly cash day offering, coming right after Christmas amounted to $2,553.18.

Elkhart, Indiana. The Woman's Missionary Society observed "Family Night" on Tuesday evening, January 6. The Boys' and Men's Brotherhood were their special guests at a picnic supper.

A city-wide leadership training school is being conducted in Elkhart January 19 to 23, in which our church is participating.

Udell, Iowa. Brother W. R. Deeter, pastor of the Udell church, reports that the Sunday attendance picked up nearly 50% during the month of December. They would like to have someone to hold them a revival soon.

Vinco, Pennsylvania. The Vinco Laymen's Organization

(Continued on Page 10)

The Editor Thinks Aloud

Fred C. Vanator

KNOCKING THE "N" OUT OF CAN'T

THERE USED to be a cartoon that was much used wherein was pictured a man knocking the "N" out of the word "can't" in the sentence "It can't be done," thus reversing the meaning and giving the whole picture a much brighter aspect. I saw that cartoon again the other day as I leafed through a catalog of stock cuts that came to my desk. Of course

It set me to thinking!

Just how many things are there in this world that "can't be done?" Just where does the thought that it can't be done stem from anyway? Usually the failure is first of all in the minds of the individuals associated with the task to be done, and more often the real urge behind the whole matter is found in the feeling that "I won't do it" than in the spoken sentence, "I can't do it."

Let's see if we cannot knock at least one "N" out of one of these "can'ts."

We might begin with that old story concerning a man who was standing for the first time before one of the giant engines that pull the mighty trains, bearing tons and tons of freight and human cargoes over the miles of track between our great cities. As he stood there, looking down the long train, he solemnly turned to a man beside him and said with great positiveness, "They'll never start it!" But the engineer climbed aboard the panting monster, seated himself and gently pulled the throttle open, and the train glided smoothly away, picking up momentum every second. The man, seemingly very much disturbed by this evident overruling of his statement, cried out, just as positively, "They'll never stop it!"

It's the "N" that we want to knock out of the word "Never." There is a vast difference between the never and the "Ever" which is left after knocking off the "N." One is negative; the other positive. One is the expression of a "pessimist"; the other that of an "optimist." If we are a pessimist we will constantly be saying "can't." If we are inclined to optimism, we will say "Can."

There were those who said at the beginning of our Press Fund Campaign—"Well, it just can't be done." But we are doing it! We have knocked the "N" out of can't and taken the letter to begin a more important word—"NOW." Since there is no time like the present, NOW is a much better word.

But it takes more than a mere "tap" to knock out this "N"; it takes a real "punch." That's why we have been insisting, and still insist, that we all get behind the Press Fund and the Publication Day Offering and really put the "punch" into it that will drive the "N" out of can't clear over into the "N" in the NOW.

Think it over! Then help with the punch!

You can not find a right way to do a wrong thing.

Business Manager's Corner

George S. Baer

Unite in Prayer on Publication Day

NOTHING is more important than prayer for the success of the Lord's work. If the Lord's people throughout the brotherhood will unite in earnest prayer, those prayers will be heard at the throne of Grace and the power of God will be released. He is always ready to work in and through His people when they are surrendered to His will. Shall we not approach this last Sunday in January with the prayer in our hearts that the Lord may have His way with us? We can ask nothing more. It is not what I want, nor what you want, but what He wills that should concern us. After all that has been said or done about this matter—and we have all sought to be very sincere and earnest—yet we are willing to step back and say, "Lord, not my will but thine be done." We are very human, but He is all-wise, almighty, and perfectly good. If we allow Him to direct His work and to direct each of us, we shall have cause for rejoicing. So may we all be united in earnest prayer that God may bless our Publishing Interests and all who are in positions of responsibility, and that we all seek to do His will as we face Publication Day.

And Remember Two Things

First, the program calls for a Banner Cash Offering for the support of our Publications. We have already told you about the need, a need made very urgent by sharp increases in cost of material and labor. All we want to say now is that you remember that the primary aim and first need of Publication Day is for an offering adequate for the support of our publications.

Second, send your pledges for the Press and Equipment Fund along with your cash offering for publications. If you can give a generous offering to both at this time, well and good. But most of us are not able to do that, so let us please make our pledges—churches and individuals—for the Press Fund, these pledges to be paid at a convenient time later in the year. If a church indicates its willingness to take a special free-will offering later in the year, it will be accounted as a pledge.

A Typical Response

One good brother writes, in response to the letter and pledge card he recently received: "You will find that I was one who gave to the Press Fund before or shortly after it was authorized by Conference. However, I'm anxious for its completion and pledge here to help more and more if necessary." This was accompanied by a pledge of $50.00 for the year 1948. May the Lord thus move upon all our hearts.

Waterloo Remains a 100% Church

We are in receipt of 105 subscriptions from the Waterloo, Iowa, Brethren church and a check to cover the number. That keeps this church on the 100% list. Loyalty in this regard means intelligent loyalty to every interest of the

(Continued on Page 10)

Mary - - The Highly Favored Woman

Dr. Charles A. Bame

FOR MANY years I have believed that the Protestant World of Christians has neglected proper evaluation of the "world's highly favored" woman; and that if the Roman Catholic part of the church gave her too much credit, the other part gave too little. For none can seriously study the records of the birth, and the Angelic visitations of the time, without being convinced of Mary's high place in the mind of the heavenly visitors and the Temple attendants.

"Luke the beloved physician"

It is from a Gentile who gave much attention to the story and the legends that early sprang up and needed careful investigation and sifting, that we have much of that which, if we were robbed of it, would make Christmas far less happy and cheerful. For if Matthew dealt much with the dreams of Joseph and the dangers of Jesus' early babyhood, Luke got the songs and happy messages for record that we may know "the certainty of those things" in which we have been instructed. Luke 1:4.

As to the validity of the record, none is better authenticated. All of the four Uncials give the story and none can deny their veracity. Thank God for that!

The Apocryphal Gospel of the birth of Jesus and even of Mary and the amusing, incredulous stories of the miracles of the boy Jesus are so foreign to all our concepts of His life of realism and even soberness, are rejected by this writer who "traced all things accurately from the first." Had they been believed by those "which from the beginning were eye-witnesses, and ministers of the word" (Chapter 1:21), Luke would have included them. What a debt we owe him!

Also, it was a doctor only who could use the words that were needed to get the facts. Doubtless he had more than one conversation with the Virgin Mother concerning the almost unbelievable happenings and angelic visits and intimately and decorously, he could get the facts as only a doctor can. The pre-marriage conception with all its embarrassments and chances of gossip; the dilemma in which Joseph found himself and his espoused bride, calling for most severe penalties under their law—all were perplexing and confusing and called for the most careful scrutiny and careful investigation. His studies as a doctor demanding all the care and caution of which good minds are capable, made him the unique narrator and dependable recorder of "the events that are received with full assurance." Chapter 1:1.

Maybe it was for a time like this, when science was to dig so deep into the laws of nature and when that knowledge was to lead to such assurance among men, that nothing but that which was yielded by the test tube or passed the searchings of the scientist is accepted that this doctor was "inspired by the Holy Ghost" to do just this for the present era of astounding atomic discoveries announced, but held in abeyance by the Creator for all the time since Democritus (B. C. 5). God knows how and when to reveal His ways.

The Word of God had to be confirmed and established. To the House of David He had said more than 700 years before, "The Lord himself shall give you a sign: Behold a virgin shall conceive and bear a son, and shall call his name Immanuel." (Isaiah 1:14). "He was to be called out of Egypt." (Matthew 2:19), and millions have wondered why. He was to be born in Bethlehem (Matthew 2:10) and millions more must have asked, "Why not in Jerusalem?" His mother was to be "highly favored among women" and the world needed to know and believe it. For "he that believeth not is condemned already because he believeth not on the only begotten son of God." John 3:18.

There had to be a virgin to conceive out of wedlock, and to bear a son to be "God with us" or Immanuel. That woman had to be humble and trustful and yielded to achieve the purpose of God in the salvation of the world. To thus be "highly favored" she must have the elements of greatness, and she did. How she "found favor with God" is found also in this account, and, without Luke's account, we would not have it. It is to be found in her reply to the angel Gabriel. Her astonishment is told when she asked, "How can this be, seeing I am unmarried?" Chapter 1:34-35. Her resignation is in her response, "Behold the hand-maiden of the Lord: Be it unto me according to thy word" (1:38). Even wicked women do not wish to conceive out of wedlock; but Mary could, if the Lord so willed, and He did. By yielding, she became "highly favored among women." Here any Brethren preacher would like to stop and preach a sermon, but space forbids.

Of course it was a biological miracle; but so also was the birth of Isaac and John the Baptist and the resurrection of the dead body of Jesus and Lazarus. Let not that bother: if biological miracles are taboo, so all miracles must be, and thus we would have no God and no revelation. The dilemma is easy to accept compared with those of the explanation of Jesus otherwise. Conceived of the Holy Spirit, born of the Virgin Mary, is God's easy explanation of Mary's Divine Son.

Great mothers sometimes produce great offspring; it is not expected of the mediocre: but none was so great as normally to produce a Son of God, or a Jesus, if you like that better.

Conclusions

Mary was a "favored" human and has therefore no power to act as a mediator between humans and Jesus or God. She never did so and it was not claimed in the time of Luke. He sifted that out and discarded it. We do not need such a mediator by any argument or revelation. Only Jesus is a mediator. 1 Timothy 2:5.

Mary needed a savior herself. She said so. Luke 1:47.

Mary used a sin-offering according to the Law. Luke 2:22-24.

Mary needed a home and care. John 19:26-27).

Mary needed prayer as in the Upper Room. Acts 1:14. She was one of the "all."

Mary needed to receive the Holy Spirit. Acts 2:1 and 4. She was one of the "all" here also.

We need more Marys as good, yielded, submissive mothers: 1. To say to the Lord, "so be it according to thy word." 2. To teach "whatsoever he saith unto you, do it" (John 2:5), both to their children and their neighbors and friends.

—Wabash, Indiana, Route 2.

The Family Altar

Find time, reserve time, for family prayer, Bible reading and hymn singing! Help your children feel the Saviour's presence! Teach them Christ-centered prayers which they will never forget! John Quincy Adams, the sixth president of the United States, declared, "There are two prayers that I love to say. The first is the Lord's prayer, because the Lord taught it. And the other is what seems to be a child's prayer, 'Now I lay me down to sleep.' But I have added a few more words to the prayer ('This I ask for Jesus' sake') so as to express my trust in Christ, and also to acknowledge that what I ask for, I ask as a favor and not because I deserve it."

As you contrast that President's addition of the Saviour's name with the wilful removal of even phrases like, "This we ask in Jesus' name," from prayers spoken in America's high circles today, resolve that you will be definite, outspoken, emphatic, in bringing Christ to your children and your children to Christ.

Boys and girls should be consecrated to God through their love and their reading of His Word. This, too, should start in the home. We are told that Bible printing must be rationed and Bible distribution restricted because of paper shortage. It would be far better to give the publication of the Bible an unrestricted sway by putting out of existence scores of lurid publications which poison the minds of our nation's youth. I am thinking of a filthy, though high priced magazine which is so sensual and salacious that even Washington postal authorities asked its owners to show cause why it should not be barred from the mails. Its officials claimed that they had letters from overseas chaplains, unnamed, of course, who said that this foul monthly is a "morale builder" for the soldiers. May God have mercy on the United States if its military morale has been built by suggestive pictures and lust-filled stories! Keep every questionable book out of the hands of your sons and daughters! Show them why they should love and study God's revealed truth!—Walter A. Maier in the "Baptist Messenger."

The National Sunday School Association

Rev. N. V. Leatherman, General Secretary,
104 S. Mulberry St., Hagerstown, Md.

LET'S BE SELFISH

Rev. E. L. Miller

ORDINARILY speaking that way would not be according to the commonly accepted Christian principles. But what are we doing internationally? For our own welfare we are using selfishness as a basis for our actions and treatment of other nations. We are helping them and giving them untold millions so that we might be better off as a result. That may not be the highest motive, but it is the impelling motive at present. With a kind of selfishness we are really doing great work.

Let's be selfish. What? Is that contrary to your religious convictions? Maybe. Wrongly interpreted it might be so. But if we would be selfish in the biggest and broadest way, what a difference it would make! It would mean that the picayunish things of narrow selfishness would not appeal. We would want the really greatest, lasting, worth-while good for ourselves and that would give us a real job of work. And it would be according to Saint Paul's injunction to seek the best gifts.

It would also mean that happiness would prevail in all hearts and lives. Other lives all touch ours, and in order to be thoroughly happy (and that is a divine desire for self) we would have to help make all others happy too. Thinking we are or can be happy when we have gathered to ourselves material wealth or riches in great quantity, is a long exploded theory. Those narrowly selfish in such ways are often of the world's most miserable and unhappy folks. But to enjoy life to the full one must extend or expand his selfishness to include the welfare of others, and then how our souls do glow! A king of the long ago once said, "I count that day lost in which I have not done at least one good thing." He was selfish enough in the right way so as to get for himself great blessing and satisfaction, and it was done by spreading good all around.

So if we are to think of ourselves and for ourselves so as to bring the greatest amount of blessings to ourselves, and that is a sort of selfishness, we must do it by thinking and working for the welfare of our fellows.

We know that we feel best, enjoy life most, and are the happiest when the multitudes are enjoying themselves most. So for our own selfish interests we must have an altruistic attitude toward our fellowman. So, folks, let us be selfish in the Christian manner so that we and our loved ones may have the sweetest blessings of God in the fullest measure. In order to have such blessings in such degree, the other fellow must have them too. The true follower of the Lord could be happy enjoying full and plenty while seeing his lesser fortunate fellows in want and dire distress. The common type of selfishness is not good for self. It produces the Scrooges and all such miserable souls. Let's be Christianly selfish so as to get the benedictions promised of the Lord, and they are to be above and beyond our highest desire or expectation.

Are our Sunday School workers selfish enough to want the joy and happiness for themselves that comes to the soul winner and teacher of righteousness? Well then, just go to work and you will get for yourself blessings that you will not be able to contain. God has declared that the winner of souls is wise and that he or she shall shine like the stars in the firmament. Yes, let's be selfish enough to desire these things, and as God would have us to be selfish.

—Maurertown, Virginia.

» » » » Our Poet's Corner « « « «

YOUTH AND THEIR PATH

H. A. Gossard

The path of Youth is carpeted with dreams;
And Nature, smiling, Heaven bending low,
Strew gems and stardust full of silver gleams
Along their way; or crystal it like snow . . .
No nights nor days hold ill omens for them:
Waning and waxing moons, and brilliant sun,
Clouds wild with storm,—these do but diadem
The castles Youth in childhood had begun.

Mixed with the earth—by a creative hand—
As part of it, "They season it" He said;
And as they conquer, it becomes a land
Of fruit and beauty,—when to Nature wed . . .
Youth thus subduing Earth and holding fast,
In life find God, and heaven home at last.

—Lanark, Illinois.

Ashland College News Letter

By Arthur Petit

AS THIS is being written, the students are returning to the campus following the Christmas holiday of more than two weeks. This will be the last holiday until the Easter season.

With the opening of the new semester January 26, Donald Bame, son of Dr. Charles Bame, will assume the duties lately relinquished by Dr. E. E. Jacobs. Mr. Bame has been connected with the Cleveland Public Schools for a number of years as a teacher and in research. He has published many of his findings and has collaborated in others. His interests have for a number of years been in the field of social work. He is a graduate of the Graduate School of Social Science at Western Reserve University.

Mr. and Mrs. Bame, the former Ruby Oliver, and their two children will move to Ashland in the spring following the close of the school term at Cleveland. Bame will teach several new classes including one in Rural Sociology.

The Admission Committee is busy sorting out applications for the second semester. It is expected that between forty and fifty new students will arrive for the new term. Several of these applications are from Brethren young people and more are expected before the term opens.

Not only is the committee busy with applications for the second semester, but applications for September are also being considered each week. One of the most encouraging signs is the increasing interest among the Brethren Churches in Ashland College as the proper place to send their young men and women. If inquiries are any criterion, the number of Brethren at Ashland will be materially increased next fall. Already many have been accepted. An active campaign to acquaint the young people of the churches with the opportunities available at Ashland is under way.

The A Cappella Choir under the direction of Dr. Louis E. Pete is rounding into the closest to perfection possible and by Easter, should be one of the finest choirs in this part of the country. They are preparing for their trip east this spring when they hope to visit nine or ten churches. This trip will follow Easter. Brethren in the East are asked to watch for the complete schedule within a few weeks.

Spiritual Meditations

Rev. Dyoll Belote

ARE YOU A DELIGHT TO GOD?

"I thank my God upon every remembrance of you." Philippians 1:3.

WOULDN'T YOU like to get a letter from some friend who would say that about you? Most of us have photos and mementos of friends whom we hold dear, and every viewing of these "reminders" sets our hearts beating a bit faster in the consciousness of their friendship. Every pastor has in his congregation a little group of people of whom the pastors who preceded him, and he himself, and those who serve after him, can say with Paul "I thank my God upon every remembrance of you."

These are the people who can be depended upon; and when they are not present at the church services the pastor knows there is some good reason for their absence. These, too, are the people who, when others refuse to do the less popular but necessary work of the church, will not decline. These are they whose "first love" is the church. All worldly affiliations take secondary place with these "dependable" folk.

The Church claims the undivided loyalty of the faithful. To these the church is the object of their steadfast concern, as well as of their constant prayers and regular support. And such should be the record of all true Christians. And the measure of the influence of such people in keeping alive the Christian faith of a community and of the world cannot be computed. And if these people are cause for rejoicing in the hearts of the pastors who serve them, may it not be possible that God takes delight in them?

We might ask ourselves these questions: Am I worthy to be counted among the faithful? How vital would Christianity be in my community if all the Christians in it were as I am? Would the cause of Christ prosper more or less if all others supported it with time, prayer, and money, as I do? "What kind of a church would our church be if every member were just like me?" And, am I a delight to the heart of my Maker, because I "Love Thy kingdom, Lord, the house of thine abode, The Church our blest Redeemer bought, With His own precious blood?"

—Uniontown, Pa.

PUBLICATION OFFERING DATE

SUNDAY, JANUARY 25

SEND ALONG YOUR "PRESS FUND" PLEDGES

You must trust a man to serve him. Make him think he is a man, and all the good that is within him will do all the good it can.—Socrates.

Speaking for The Publishing Offering

A Banner Offering for Our Publishing Interests

By J. E. Stookey

President of the Board of Directors

THERE are many reasons why we need a banner offering this year, as I see it, but I will mention only the most prominent.

First, and most important, at least the more pressing, is the rising cost of materials and labor. These increased costs are not things we anticipate or are afraid may come to pass, they are actually upon us. We are facing them right now and must meet them somehow. There is no way we can avoid them. But we can't meet them alone. We are only your agents. All the churches and members must shoulder their part of the responsibility. That can be done by making a larger offering this year. It may mean a little sacrifice on the part of each one of us, but I know of no other way out of the difficulty. We cannot let costs pile up and have no funds with which to meet them. Remember this when you make your offering the last Sunday in January.

Second, we need a larger offering to show that we are growing in loyalty to this institution. If we do just the same thing year after year what can we say for ourselves? Where is the sign of increased devotion to our Publishing House? Where is the evidence of growing interest in this part of the Lord's work? I think we should be growing in our loyalty to every part of the church's work, the Publishing Interests included. Let us show it by a banner offering.

Third, a banner offering will make expansion possible. If we are kept on the grindstone all the time, we cannot reach out into new lines of service. When I talk of expansion, I do not refer merely to the new equipment that is needed right now. That must be taken care of and will be taken care of by the special campaign that Conference authorized. I hope you will remember the Press Fund and get your offering in some time during the year. But in addition to that, the regular Publication Day Offering should be increased to make possible a better working capital so that our management will not be so cramped that he cannot buy to advantage, nor do the little improvements that are necessary from time to time.

Finally, Our prayers for the Publishing House call for gifts that will measure up to our prayers. Our Staff has been calling us to prayer on behalf of our Publishing Interests. You have read these calls, and many have responded. But prayer alone is not enough. It must be accompanied by works, and it is. Those who are praying most earnestly are giving most generously. So, let's do what they are asking us to do, really pray for our Publishing Interests— and give.

—Ashland, Ohio.

An Opportunity to Help

Guy C. Lichty

I HAVE been asked to write a two hundred word letter as to help promote the Publication Day Offering which will take place Sunday, January 25th, 1948. Why is it necessary to urge our good membership to support this appeal? I believe if we will all make a personal canvass of our own selves, according to the way the Good Lord has prospered us in the past several years, there will be very little excuse for the goal not having been met. If we were living in some of those war torn countries, then there would be a reasonable excuse not to share very well, but just look yourself square in the face, then X-ray your bank account and if you have not been careless your account will prove to you that at least one-tenth of that account belongs to God's help. We should feel proud that we have been blessed to this time in supporting all Missionary opportunities.

Remember the teaching where the man asked, "When did I give you drink or when did I give you to eat?" and Jesus said, "Even when you gave to the least of these you did it to me."

This call will be your chance to help support the Publication Day offering and with it the pledge of gifts to the Press and Equipment fund.

—Falls City, Nebraska.

Information Center

Prof. J. Garber Drushal

IN ALL modern aircraft carriers there is a very important central office to which all information concerning the fleet operation in the air and on the surface comes for coordination. From this same central intelligence room go the commands which direct the activity of the pilots who may be flying many miles from that particular ship. They get instructions, directions, and in many instances, assistance in their return to home base from this central intelligence room.

The publishing interests of the Brethren church serve as this central clearing house of information and "spiritual intelligence." To them come the reports on progress from the field, the summaries of activity for Christ and the church. They in turn send these out to the churches and to the individual church members where they become the stimulus for renewed activity and strength. These publications counsel and admonish. They advise and exhort. They are the places where miles are conquered by the printed word which brings the tidings to all parts of the brotherhood.

These publications of our church are the central nervous system of the church without which the Brethren Church cannot and could not exist as a denomination.

Therefore, it is fitting the first offering of the new year is for the publication board. Your first tithe dollar of the year should go to the Publication Day Offering, either toward the general expenses, or toward the press and equipment fund.

—Wooster, Ohio.

A Denominational Need

Arthur Petit, Director of Public Relations

A DENOMINATION as small as the Brethren Church has no choice but to pull together to maintain the institutions which we consider vital to the survival of the denomination itself. For many years, we have considered that we must have a College, a Publishing Company, a Mission Program, a Home and a number of other benevolences. These are all important to the existence of a denomination and all deserve support. Right now, the spotlight is on the Brethren Publishing Company which is conducting its annual campaign to call attention to its needs.

The needs of the Publishing Interests are of particular interest to us at Ashland College because of the volume of work which we have done at the plant in Ashland. However, it is important that the Publishing Company keep up with other printing companies in equipment and convenience if it is to be able to print all of the college literature. The college has to keep up with other colleges in its printing and yet wishes to have its own Publishing Company do its work.

A new press is in the offing at the Publishing Company and it will undoubtedly help in improving the quality of the printing. However, the press was purchased largely on faith that the denomination wanted better printing badly enough to underwrite the cost. The next few weeks will determine whether this confidence was correctly placed.

The College, the Mission Interests as well as other benevolences will all benefit from the improvement in the work of the Brethren Publishing Company. How badly do we want this?

—Ashland College, Ashland, Ohio.

SALVATION

God thought it—
Christ bought it—
The Bible taught it—
The mind sought it—
The soul sought it—
The Spirit wrought it—
The devil fought it—
But I've got it, by the grace of God.

Rev. Dr. Andrew Jackson.

A GIFT THAT LIVES

(At the request of the Ashland College Field Secretary, Pother E. M. Riddle, we are giving space for the following announcement.—Editor)

A Life Annuity Contract with a growing Christian institution is a safe investment and insures a promptly paid income for life. It will save administrative costs and taxes. It prevents the misuse of funds after your authority is gone.

Ashland College will pay 4% up to 65 years; 4½% from 65 to 75 years, and 5% above 75 years of age for any individual.

Write for further information to Ashland College (Office of the President), Ashland, Ohio.

Interesting Items

(Continued from Page 2)

sponsored a tract on "The Holy Spirit," by Dr. L. O. McCartneysmith, which they have had printed. We are informed that they have a number of these which will be sent free to anyone desiring them. These tracts may be secured by writing to Lester Leidy, Secretary of the Vinco Laymen's Organization, R. D. 1, Conemaugh, Pennsylvania.

Word from Charles and Ruth Webb. In a letter from Mrs. Maud Webb, mother of Charles Webb she says that "Charles and Ruth are helping to distribute 320 tons of goods from the Friendship Train. Most of it goes to the school children."

Here is another encouraging report. Several weeks ago we scanned the reports of the churches which had gone into the Evangelist and found some interesting figures relative to the accessions to these churches. These figures were published in the issue of December 13. Now he have been doing some more scanning and come up with the following figures:

Church	Number received
Elkhart, Indiana	5
Johnstown, Pennsylvania, III	14
Lost Creek, Kentucky	53
Williamstown, Ohio	5
Valley Brethren, Pennsylvania	10
Gretna (Bellefontaine), Ohio	2
South Bend, Indiana	8
Falls City, Nebraska	2
Waterloo, Iowa	2
Maurertown, Virginia	11

This totals up to 111, and of course, we do not have the entire number for the same period which came in over the entire brotherhood. But it is encouraging to see progress being made in soul saving.

Business Manager's Corner

(Continued from page 3)

brotherhood. It also means inspiration to aggressiveness in the local work. We commend this splendid church and its aggressive pastor for their faithfulness to every department of the Lord's work. And we are encouraged by the spirit of zeal that seems to characterize so many of our churches. Evangelism is stepping up and every interest of the church is receiving splendid financial support.

Our Evangelist Goal for the New Year

The Evangelist has been supported in a fine way by the churches, but we can always do better. Let's try it this year by setting a goal of 10% increase in subscriptions. There are two ways in which churches can help. First, by getting on the Honor Roll of 100 percenters, or by staying on. Second, by increasing the number of subscriptions by the canvassing method. Put on an intensive campaign, encourage it from pulpit, by church calendar, by reporting interesting items in church paper in Sunday school, on social occasions, at business meetings and other suitable occasions. In every way possible, let's encourage the circulation and reading of our church paper. All together for a 10% increase during 1948.

Following is our Evangelist Honor Roll. If your church belongs there and has been omitted, or if it is there and does not belong there, kindly let us know.

Our 100% Churches

- Ashland, Ohio, H. H. Rowsey, Pastor
- Vinco, Pennsylvania, W. S. Benshoff, Pastor
- New Lebanon, Ohio, W. Clayton Berkshire, Pastor
- North Manchester, Indiana, Bert Hodge, Pastor
- Johnstown, Pa. (Third), Chester F. Zimmerman, Pastor
- Lanark, Illinois, L. O. McCartneysmith, Pastor
- Washington, D. C., Clarence Fairbanks, Pastor
- Ardmore, R. F. Porte, Pastor
- West Alexandria, Ohio, A. E. Whitted, Pastor
- Bethlehem Church, Virginia, John F. Locke, Pastor
- Smithville, Ohio, Vernon D. Grisso, Pastor
- Valley Brethren, Jones Mills, Pa., H. R. Garland, Pastor
- North Georgetown, Ohio, Spencer Gentle, Pastor
- Waterloo, Iowa, Virgil Meyer, Pastor
- Hagerstown, Md., N. V. Leatherman, Pastor
- Muncie, Indiana, E. D. Burnworth, Pastor
- Mexico, Indiana, Robert K. Higgins, Pastor
- Cerro Gordo, Illinois, C. E. Johnson, Pastor
- South Bend, Ind., Claud Studebaker, Pastor
- Akron, Ohio, J. G. Dodds, Pastor
- Stockton, California, Virgil Ingraham, Pastor
- Milledgeville, Illinois, D. C. White, Pastor

Laid to Rest

HOLSINGER. Wednesday, November 5, 1947, Mrs. Minerva Holsinger entered into her eternal rest. She was a member of the Salem Church of the Brethren. Funeral services were conducted by the undersigned in the Brookville funeral parlors on Saturday afternoon, November 8. She was the mother of Brother Roy Holsinger in whose home she passed away. May the Lord comfort the sorrowing ones.

A. E. Whitted.

LINCOLN. Tuesday, November 11, in the early morning Mrs. Leona Lincoln was called to her heavenly home. She was a member of the West Alexandria Brethren Church. Surviving her is an only son, Andrew Lincoln of Cincinnati; 2 brothers, Chas. Guntle of Eaton and Chelsie E. Guntle of New Lebanon; and two sisters, Mrs. Maude Peters and Mrs. Arrie Gilbert both of West Alexandria. Funeral services were held in the First Brethren church of West Alexandria, November 13, 1947, by her pastor the undersigned.

A. E. Whitted.

WARTZ. Jacob S. Swartz, aged sixty-six, died at the Rockingham Memorial Hospital, Harrisonburg, Virginia, on Sunday, November 16, 1947. The funeral services were held on the following Tuesday afternoon.

Brother Swartz had long been a valued member of the Bethlehem Brethren Church, where he served as Deacon. He was Chairman of the Board of Property of the Southeastern District Conference of the Brethren Church. He had not been in good health for approximately a year. Prior to that time he had been very active in civic and community affairs, serving as President of the large Mutual Fire Insurance Company of his home county; a member of its School Board, and a Director in one of the leading banking institutions. He was a farmer most of his life, but had retired in recent years to a new home. Brother Swartz was a very friendly man and enjoyed people. Serving on the county Equalization Board, determining the valuation of property for taxation purposes brought him into contact with hundreds of people as did his other official duties. Wherever he went he made friends. For almost twenty years I had served as his pastor and enjoyed his friendship.

Assisting with me in the last rites was the Rev. W. L. Foley of the Presbyterian Church. The services were held in the Mt. Horeb E. U. B. Church which is quite near his late home. Interment was made in the nearby cemetery. A great throng of mourning friends and relatives filled the church to its capacity, using the gallery and Sunday School rooms and standing in the aisle and at the rear.

He is survived by one daughter, Mrs. Raymond Landes; the widow; two brothers and a sister. One of the brothers, T. D. Swartz is an Elder in the Bethlehem Church and well known to the Brethren of the Southeastern District Conference. To these we would extend our Christian sympathy in their bereavement.

John F. Locke, pastor Bethlehem Brethren Church.

SENSENBAUGH. On Tuesday morning, December 2, Joseph Franklin Sensenbaugh, a life-long member of the St. James, Maryland, Brethren Church, departed this life to go to be with the Lord whom he so faithfully served.

Brother Sensenbaugh was born in Wolfsville, Frederick County, Maryland, on September 8, 1873. In 1895 he was baptized by Rev. Joshua Long and was received into membership in the St. James Church. On February 4, 1897 he was united in marriage to Mary Ellen Hornbaker, also a member of this congregation, who died in 1920.

"Uncle Joe," as he was affectionately known by those who knew him, was a devout Christian man. Although unable to attend church the last three years of his life, due to an amputation operation, his interest and devotion to the Brethren Church never lessened. The great majority of his waking hours was spent in reading the Bible and any other religious books which were brought to him, and it was always his delight to be able to speak to those who visited him about God's Word.

Brother Sensenbaugh is survived by one sister, Mrs. Ella Coblentz of Peru, Indiana; one step-sister Mrs. Samuel Ausherman; and one step-brother, Paul Kline. There are also three sons: Charles, Reichard and Frank; and three daughters, Virginia Sensenbaugh, Nelie Lynch and Kathrine Rachor; and a number of grandchildren and great grandchildren.

Funeral services were conducted in the St. James Church, with interment at the Manor Cemetery, by the undersigned.

Henry Bates.

RODERICK. John William Roderick, son of Sarah and Joseph Roderick, was born May 19, 1875 near Milledgeville, Illinois and passed away at his home in Dixon, Illinois, on December 2, 1947.

He was married to Lottie Jennette Neikirk on August 24, 1897 at Mt. Carroll, Illinois. To this union four children were born: Mrs. Von Ceil Rank of Rock Falls, Illinois; Vivian Chronister of Rock Falls; Ned Roderick of Keithsburg, Illinois, and Margaret Messner of Dixon, Illinois. Nine grandchildren and seven great grandchildren, together with all the above, survive to mourn his departure.

The funeral service was held in the Shirk Funeral Home at Milledgeville on December 4, and was conducted by the undersigned.

D. C. White.

HEIMBAUGH. Mrs. Flora Heimbaugh, daughter of Charles and Emma Downs, was born in Lanark, Illinois, March 27, 1871, and passed out of this life after a long illness, at Freeport, Illinois, December 3, 1947, at the age of 76 years, 8 months, and 6 days.

While a young woman Mrs. Heimbaugh united with the Bethlehem Brethren Church, near Milledgeville, Illinois; and here on January 8, 1891, she was united in marriage with Elmer Heimbaugh, a member of the same church. After moving to Lanark, Mr. and Mrs. Heimbaugh transferred their membership to the First Brethren Church of Lanark, January 11, 1895, where their membership remained until death.

Survivors include: a daughter, Mrs. Louise Diehl, Lanark, Illinois; two sons, Donald Heimbaugh, Savannah, Ill., and Orville, of Mt. Carroll, Ill.; three half sisters, Mrs. John Mest, Tampa, Fla., Mrs. Grace Archer, Los Angeles, Cal. Mrs. Harriet Saunders, Azusa, Cal.; 10 grandchildren, and 5 great-grandchildren.

Funeral services conducted by the writer from the First Brethren Church, Lanark, Illinois, and interment in the Lanark Cemetery.

L. O. McCartneysmith.

"The Bible is God's message, his love letter to all men everywhere. It explains the origin of life and is the guidebook for the journey of life. It is the only Book which gives assurance."—J. E. Lambdin in "The Baptist Training Union Magazine."

OUR TALENTS

Mrs. Elmer Ebbinghouse

We may not all do great things,
But let's do small things in a great way;
And—I know our Maker
Will give us a crown,
When we come to the end of the way.

It isn't the number of talents we have
That will win at the end of life's way;
But how we used
The talents we have,
As we journeyed along day by day.

—North Manchester, Indiana.

CHRISTIAN ENDEAVOR TOPIC

W. St. Clair Benshoff, Topic Editor

"Topics copyrighted by the International Society of Christian Endeavor.
Used by permission."

Topic for January 25, 1948

JESUS CHRIST IS LORD OF MY LIFE

Scripture: Matt. 23:8; John 13:13

For The Leader

WE SHOULD stop and think a moment as to who is really the Master of our life. We may have to give a rather vague answer, because many things enter in. To be specific in a few words, the person who controls our will, is the master of our life. The one who directs our paths, and guides our thoughts is the ruler of life. We are the slave of our master. In the last analysis, there are only two masters in the world. One is the Devil. The other is Christ. It is well for us tonight to examine ourselves to see who is really controlling our actions and plans. We trust that Christ shall be Lord and Master of your life tonight.

DISCUSSION

1. "TO WHOM YE YIELD." Romans 6:16 gives a very, very important thought for all to remember. Learn this verse in your teen age years. Learn it by heart. Say it every day, and you will receive much spiritual help from it in later years of your life. Here it is: "Know ye not that to whom ye yield yourselves servants to obey, his servants ye are to whom ye obey; whether of sin unto death, or of obedience unto righteousness?" That is a very great lesson young people. If others entice you to sin, and you sin, you are yielding yourselves unto them. They, and sin, are your masters, and you are the servants of sin. Poor young people, so many are today yielding their bodies and souls unto the sins of the world. Indulging in sinful practices that can bring only ruin and death. But all the talking and preaching in the world won't change this unless young people purpose within themselves to break away from serving sin and Satan. A final thought from this verse tells us that if we want to do the sinful things, we shall die an eternal death. But that if we desire to serve Christ and live for Him by obeying Him, we shall be righteous forever more. Take your choice tonight.

2. THE DEVIL'S TRAIN. The story is told of a man who had a dream. In this dream he saw a gaily painted railroad train standing in the station. It was jam-packed with people, all laughing and having a good time. More and more people were trying to get on, and extra coaches were being added to take care of the crowd. The conductor cried, "All aboard for Pleasure, Laughter, Good time, and Happiness." The train pulled out. Faster and faster it went, with the people really enjoying the ride. But soon the train began to run recklessly, taking curves and down grades at a dangerous pace. As the train went around one curve and everyone was getting concerned about this time, some one looked ahead to the engine. To their horror they discovered that the Devil himself was the Engineer. About that time, the train started down a steep grade right into the open doors of Hell. It makes a difference as to the outcome if the life you are living. If you're on the devil's train, better get off before it starts down the last long grade!

3. "WHAT ABOUT THAT 'STRAIGHT AND NARROW ROAD?'" You read in the scripture of the two ways. One is broad and leads to destruction. Many find that road. It is the road of which the Devil is the ruler. The other is the straight and narrow road of true Christian living, but it leads to Heaven, for Christ is the Master of that road. Which do you want? These are trying days for you young people who desire to live a true Christian life. Everywhere on every hand are people who are living sinful lives. Pleasure and sin seem to be the key note of today's crazy living. Don't be a party to it. On the straight and narrow road, you will have peace, joy, happiness without end, for Christ is your Lord and Master, and He makes promises which He shall keep.

4. HELL ISN'T BEAUTIFUL. So often today we hear people make light of Hell. They laugh at its fires, and make a joke out of people going there. But do you know that Hell is a place for the final abode of sinful men. It is real. The fires are hot, and they burn forever and ever. One man said he wouldn't mind Hell because his friends would all be there. The rich man that talked to Abraham from Hell didn't find much consolation. In fact he wanted to warn his brothers about the place. If you are living in sin, the sinful friends you're running around with will be there, but your pain and anguish will be so great, you won't get any consolation from their miseries. The thing to do now is to pray to Christ, break the yoke of sin, and make Christ your Lord and Master.

5. DOING THE WILL OF CHRIST. We are the servants of Christ when we have forsaken sin, have conquered our wills, and have yielded ourselves to His will. "One is your Master and all ye are brethren." The thought of the verse is this, that as we make Christ our Master, we are uniting ourselves with other people who are serving Him. In doing this, we are working together throughout the land, each in his chosen or allotted place, to bring glory to Christ. Working in our various fields of endeavor we are united in the eternal bonds of everlasting love. Christ is our Lord, we are His servants. He is truly a kind Master, for He gives to us strength to do His work, and grace to ease the load, and prayer to bind us all together on earth with heaven. There can be no better set-up, for Christ is the Head, and all that believe in Him are His.

QUESTIONS

1. Can a person be just a "nominal" Christian, serving Christ part of the time, and self, the rest of the time? Matt. 6:24.
2. Does "serving Christ" mean we have to be preachers or missionaries? Explain.

SUGGESTIONS FOR A BETTER PROGRAM TONIGHT

Start on time. Hand out your parts in advance. Demand reverence and order. Plan your program before you stand up to lead the meeting. Pick out your hymns in advance. There is nothing so discouraging or uninteresting as a program that is "made up" as you go along.

Prayer Meeting Topic

Contributed by Rev. C. Y. Gilmer

MY NAME IS MENTIONED AT THE THRONE OF GOD

By Martha Snell Nicholson

My name is mentioned at the throne of God—
The same familiar name
My mother called me, and my playmates used
In some dear childhood game.

My name is mentioned at the throne of God.
It is so strange and sweet
To know my Saviour speaks that little name
Before the mercy seat.

My name is mentioned at the throne of God.
Hark how He pleads for me—
"Put all her sins to My account, I paid
Her debt, and she is free!"

My name is mentioned at the throne of God.
He only understands
Such depths of love Who has that name of mine
Engraved upon His hands!

ONE WHO INTERCEDES FOR US

Scripture: Hebrews 7:22-28

Hymn: From Every Stormy Wind; In the Hour of Trial

Leader's Petition

Thought Provokers:

INTERCESSION signifies a pleading or entreating in behalf of another. Thus Christ interceded for the two thieves who were crucified with him (Isa. 53:12). Hebrews 7:25 tells us that He ever liveth to make intercession for His people. Christ appears for us before the Father (Heb. 9:24). He performs His intercession by presenting the sacrifice once offered for us (Heb. 10:12, 14). It is as if the Saviour would say of us needy and penitent sinners, "My Father, they have wronged Thee, and can never pay their debt, but charge it all to My account, and let them go free!" More than freedom through salvation, we are "accepted in the beloved." It is as if our Saviour says, "My Father, as a Partner of Thy Throne I ask that You receive them as Myself." Thus lawless, guilty sinners are saved in Christ before God—"made the righteousness of God in Him." Read Rom. 4:25; 2 Cor. 8:9; Psa. 69:4 (last clause). God is satisfied that Christ has fully met the claims of holiness against us believing sinners. Christ at the Father's throne declares His will as to what He wants bestowed upon His elect (Heb. 10:10). The Father consents and agrees to the will of His Son (John 11:42).

Another Who intercedes for us is the Holy Ghost. (Rom. 8:26, 27). Romans 8:34 is also a reassuring verse of Scripture.

Never show your ignorance by saying, "Nobody cares for me; nobody ever prays for me." "Your name is mentioned at the throne of God." Jesus the one and only Mediator between God and man, prays for you. The Holy Spirit prays for you. Come, be of better courage, my brother. You are an heir of God and a joint-heir with Christ your elder brother (Rom. 8:16-18). You will soon come into your inheritance. Read Hebrews 10:35-39.

It is time to thank the Lord for all His gracious provisions!

COMMENTS

On The Sunday School Lesson

by The Editor

Lesson for January 25, 1948

GOD'S FELLOW WORKERS

Lesson: 2 Corinthians 5:20—6:10

OUR Golden Text really gives us the key to our lesson thought today. It is found in 1 Corinthians 3:9, and reads, "For we are laborers together with God." Jesus expresses it in the words found in Matthew 11:29 and 30, "Take my yoke upon you and learn of me; for I am meek and lowly in heart: and ye shall find rest unto your souls. For my yoke is easy, and my burden is light." It is a wonderful thing to be a fellow-worker with Deity, being yoked together with Him in the work He has planned for our lives, if we remember that in every task He stands ready to help us—IF we do our part. That is what it means—to work WITH Him.

Paul gives us an admonition in 1 Corinthians 15:58: "Therefore, my beloved brethren, be ye steadfast, unmovable, always abounding in the work of the Lord, forasmuch as ye know that your labour is not in vain in the Lord." In the two words "work" and "labour" we find the task and the medium through which the task is performed. Put the two together and we have the idea embodied in our lesson topic—"God's Fellow Worker."

Just now the emphasis on sports in this country is being placed on basketball. As we watch these teams play, we are impressed with the need of co-ordination and team play as an important factor in the winning of games. It is the "play together" factor that wins—individual starrng never contributes very much in the end. In fact, in any avenue of life we find the same thing obtains. After all, our Christian life is one of the avenues (the main one) of expression of our ability to work with others, and we must learn to "work with God" in His plans and purposes, not seeking to "star" after our own fashion. But we must remember that we are working "for" God, as well as working "with" Him. That is the key to success in this field.

There is a song that has within it these lines, "He always takes the heavy end, and leaves the light for me." And how true this is—true in more ways than one.

Why not do as Jonathan did (1 Samuel 14:6) and say, "It may be that the Lord will work for us: for there is no restraint to the Lord to save by many or by few." Again we need the admonition of Paul to Timothy as found in 2 Timothy 2:15, "Study to show thyself approved unto God, a workman that needeth not to be ashamed, rightly dividing the word of truth." Or as the New Revised Standard New Testament has this same passage, "Do your best to present yourself to God as one approved, a workman who has no need to be ashamed, rightly handling the word of truth."

News From Our Churches

WILLIAMSTOWN-GRETNA CIRCUIT

The days between November 3rd and 16th proved to be exceptional and memorable days for the congregation of the Williamstown Brethren Church. For it was during that time that Rev. and Mrs. McCartneysmith were conducting revival services at the church. The people feel that they were quite fortunate in being able to obtain the McCartneysmiths for the meetings.

Many good things have happened because of their stay with us. Much good feeling and interest in the church came as a result. In order to cause this good feeling practically every home in the congregation was visited by the Evangelist. In addition to this, good Gospel preaching was given with the result that the Lord added 5 to the church. On Sunday afternoon, Nov. 16, these 5 were baptized, and were afterwards confirmed and received into the church by the pastor.

The congregation and its pastor wishes to thank the McCartneysmiths for coming to us, and we wish for them continued blessing in the Lord's work.

The Gretna Brethren Church near Bellefontaine, Ohio, has been witnessing some good things as a result of an attendance program being currently sponsored by the Sunday School. The attendance at both Sunday School and Church has been steadily increasing. The primary and intermediate departments have witnessed an increase due to the zeal of some of the Sunday School leaders in the church. The folks go out on Sunday morning with their cars and pick up the children in the community who have no way of getting to the services. It is hoped that this increase in zeal and attendance shall continue.

In addition to this two new members were received into the church on Dec. 21, following their previous baptism on December 7. Everyone was very happy to extend to them the right hand of fellowship and welcome them into the church.

The Gretna Church was also very fortunate to receive an oil furnace as a gift from one of the influential men in the community. The only expense incurred was the cost of installation above that which the men of the church did.

All in all the church is very fortunate and has been blessed during the past year.

LOST CREEK, KENTUCKY

Attendance here at Lost Creek has greatly improved with the revival which has already been reported. There have been fifty-three baptisms to date and more are yet to follow. Souls literally came weeping their way to salvation in the meetings. I think I never saw anything like it. The days of mass revivals certainly are not over. Some church members quit the movies, others, not church members, quit cigarettes.

We are now having more men out to the services than ever before, I think. We also felt that something must be done to keep the revival going. So, one Sunday a few weeks ago, we proposed to the members present that we take a certain man in the community who had never been present at a Sunday service, and one man each day of the week see him and ask him to come. Then, too, we urged prayer for him. Can you imagine the thrill that it gave us to see this man come into the Sunday morning services, and he has since kept coming. It is wonderful how the Lord works when His children do what they can.

And now the truck that those dear Ashland boys gave the work. Now we cannot see how we ever got along without it. We used the truck to bring folks to the revival, and so much otherwise. One day as we were unloading some benches at the log building which we had used at the lower chapel to seat the crowds that came for the meetings, one of the school boys helping unload, said, "How did we ever get along without this truck?"

We have much else to write about, but this is long enough for the present. Of late, somehow, our mail is not going right, and if you have sent something, and are not hearing from us, you had better write us. Use care in sending things to us, especially through the mail. God bless you one and all who have helped His cause in these mountains so well, whether the gifts are small or large. The smallest gift helps. A wonderful truckload of provisions came in here one day recently from the Nappanee, Indiana, Brethren Church. This was a wonderful gift of meat, canned goods, clothing and so many useful things. It was a big covered truck-load. It was the largest gift ever received by the mission and helps so much. God bless you. Pray for us that we may do His will in all things.

G. E. Drushal.

ELKHART, INDIANA

It was the happy privilege of the Elkhart Brethren Church to have Rev. Roland Hudson as our Evangelist in our fall campaign which closed November 2. He was with us three Sundays of meetings. Although there were some children's diseases at the time, the weather was almost ideal. The attendance was good and the interest was exceptionally splendid. As a result we added nineteen to the membership on the last two Sundays. Four have been received since and a promise of several families in a very short time. The offering given to Rev. Hudson was an indication of the feeling of the church toward his preaching and fine spirit. The church itself was also greatly strengthened.

Rev. Hudson was a Chaplain for almost four years, having spent a year each in the India and Burma areas. This gave him a wide experience and he was free to use effective illustrations from this life. He has great missionary zeal. Although he served but a short pastorate in Columbus, Ohio, he has the pastor's view. Rev. Hudson is now Dean of Boys and Dean of Personnel at the new Bethel College in Mishawaka, Indiana. He was thus able to preach for us each evening and at the same time carry on his work at the school.

Rev. Hudson is a very dynamic and pleasing speaker with a great zeal for the lost. His sermons throughout the two weeks were scriptural and I can say, also Brethren. He is not altogether new to the Brethren of northern Indiana. He was one of our speakers at our District Conference last summer. He is also to hold a revival for our Brethren in South Bend and at North Liberty, soon.

It was my happy privilege to baptize him by Triune Immersion on the last Sunday of the service. When he learned of our mode of baptism he said, "In my understanding of the scriptures, I believe the mode taught and practiced by your church is apostolic, but I have never been in contact with a people that practiced Baptism the distinctly scriptural way until now. I am happy to yield to it." I am sure our church will hear more from this wonderful Teacher and Preacher.

Revival at Bryan, Ohio

After the revival here at Elkhart, I left on Monday for a two weeks' revival with the Bryan Church. Coming fresh from our own revival it was a joy to help the pastor of the Bryan Church for their two weeks' effort. The interest throughout the two weeks was good and the people treated the evangelist as a "King." We had a lovely home with Mr. and Mrs. Gaskill, just north of the church, which, of course, was so handy to the parsonage.

Part of the forenoons and afternoons were spent in visitation and we were able to contact a larger number of people in spite of the rainy weather. I enjoyed greatly the two weeks with these fine people. Rev. Gilmer is a hard working pastor. He had plenty of prospects, more than enough for the two weeks and he drove quite a few miles to make these many contacts. I appreciate greatly the fine hospitality, meals, offering and words of appreciation for the sermons, and the privilege of working with Rev. Gilmer and his good wife. She ably led the singing each evening and had choruses for the children as well as the adults. The children too, were encouraging and helpful to the meeting.

The Gilmers are indeed a wonderful couple and the Lord has used them in a wonderful way in previous pastorates, and may I say, even in Bryan more than they realize.

L. V. King.

GEORGETOWN, DELAWARE

The Mt. Olivet Brethren Church of Georgetown, Delaware, has recently been redecorated. May I say it was dressed up inside and without. The inside is painted light buff on the ceiling and sidewalls, with windows, doors and trim varnished; the floor sanded, filled, shellacked, varnished and waxed. New heaters were placed and new carpets laid. May I say it simply looks grand and refreshing. Everyone seems to be pleased with the appearance of our newly redecorated church. The outside of the church was given one good coat of white and it looks refreshed also.

Our women folk are responsible for getting this work started and finished. You have often heard the statement, "If you want a work done, get the women started, and they surely will do the work up right." This they did and it looks very good. I am well pleased with it all and very thankful unto God for these true and faithful brethren and sisters of our church here. You see the men and women here work together. The women see the need and tell the men and these men furnish the means to do the work. Our members work in harmony and their aim is, "Let us set the Lord FIRST."

In December we will try to start a Bible Study in the Book of Daniel, taking one chapter, when possible, each study. We meet each Friday night and have a different leader to read the lesson, and if they have something to say concerning that which they found as they studied the lesson, they usually express it; if not, it is left with the pastor to explain the lesson. The people like to study the Word of God. Further, they like to read it in public and in private. They are not ashamed to talk it over with their fellows.

Dear reader, do you believe the 165th verse of the 119th Psalm? Read it! Do you have the peace described in Isaiah 26:3? Read it and you may have it. Include also Philippians 4:7. Do you have the satisfaction of knowing Malachi 3:16 and 17? This will make our conversation more cautious and benefitting.

We Assist in a Revival

It was my great pleasure to work in a revival service with the Rev. Wm. McDaniel, pastor of the Church of the Brethren at Farmington, Delaware. The service was started October 26, and continued through November 9. The pastor and members of this church were much concerned, and very cordial and truly faithful in all matters pertaining to a revival. The members were looking out for strangers and tried earnestly to get them interested in going to church, and it worked, for several were brought to church by them.

The pastor was constantly using his car every day, from five to seven hours of visitation. It was a house to house visitation and at times we covered up to and over 100 miles a day. We talked scriptures, especially those pertaining to what some churches called "the peculiar Doctrine of the Brethren Church."

The Farmington Church of the Brethren was known to the people within the distance of from twenty to thirty miles. We often heard them say, "O yes, we have heard of you and the church, Rev. McDaniel." May I tell you that he is a hustler and leaves no stone untouched by which he thinks that the church may be benefitted.

This church and pastor believes in good music and plenty of it. They have splendid talents, both instrumental and vocal, and these are used at every opportunity, and they are inviting other group singers from various churches to help them sing. Several of these came during the revival and the spirit of fellowship was first class.

Our method of revival was Doctrinal Evangelism. I feel that the need in our own church to keep before our own people as well as others the whole teachings of the Lord Jesus Christ. As a messenger I am responsible to deliver this message to mankind. I am not in any way responsible for the results, but I must be faithful in what I know to be the teachings of Jesus. You see I like to hear my Lord say that I have been faithful in these little things here, in order that I may share with Him the eternal blessings. God will honor His Word. Unto God be the glory and the praise for His great mercy in the ingathering into the Farmington Church of the Brethren. Eight adults and one boy, all confessing Jesus as the Son of God, and taking Him to be their Savior from sin, were baptized. Three were taken in also by relation. The latter had been baptized and chose to become members of this church.

The credit for these twelve souls are due unto God and the members and pastor of the Farmington church who worked so faithfully in witnessing for their Lord, as well as bringing them to church to hear the Word.

During the two weeks of services I had my home with Brother and Sister McDaniel. These kind folks spared nothing for my comfort, but went out of the way to please me. I must say we had a wonderful fellowship with the pastor and his members. May God's choicest blessing rest upon them and that church that it may be a mighty Lighthouse for the Lord. May the new members be true and faithful to God and the church, is my prayer.

S. E. Christiansen.

FROM THE LANARK, ILLINOIS, BRETHREN

November 3, 1947 marks the milestone of our first year together as pastor and membership of the First Brethren Church here. During the year we have enjoyed many blessings together from the Lord. Now we may look back and "Count our many blessings, and name them one by one and see what the Lord has done." Both material and spiritual blessings have been many. The church has been blessed with Christian unity and the will to work for the Lord and accomplish His will.

A few of the more outstanding material gifts we have received are: the purchase and payment for of a splendid Hammond Electric Organ, which was dedicated to the memory of our boys who gave their lives in the service of our country and church, May 25, 1947. A beautiful Spinnet Piano, bought by the church; a fine Organ Lamp, purchased by Charles and Emerson Gaul, in memory of the wife and mother; a set of beautiful Maas Cathedral Chimes, purchased by Mrs. Sadie Puterbaugh and her daughter, Mrs. Robert Truman, in memory of the husband and father, were dedicated September 21, 1947. The Manse has received two coats of white exterior paint, new storm sash, two rooms repapered, and most of the interior woodwork repainted, and a new stoker in the basement. The choir loft in the church has been extended so that we now have room for 25 choir seats.

Spiritual blessings include an increase in Sunday School attendance for the year 17%. Increase in attendance at Morning Worship 17½%. Evening service increased attendance 23½%. Membership increase 12½%. Thirty-two new names have appeared on the church rolls during the year. Youth Winter Camp in March was a great blessing to us, as was the District Conference of Brethren Churches of the Central District held here in June of this year. Ours is the only church of four here in the village that has had regular mid-week prayer and Bible study, and Sunday evening services.

A great blessing came to us in a splendid three week meeting conducted by Rev. Virgil E. Meyer, Pastor, Waterloo First Brethren Church, and H. D. Hunter, Song Director, North Manchester, Indiana. Brother Meyer presented each evening the unsearchable riches of God's Holy Word in his usual forceful and yet graceful manner; while "Bud" led a series of soul-stirring spiritual hymns and songs, which were interspersed with "special" numbers by local talent. Their work is such that both pastor and people most heartily endorse this splendid evangelistic team wherever needed. As a result of these meetings eleven were baptized, six were received by letter, and one by confirmation, making eighteen additions in all. It was indeed a worthwhile undertaking.

Our two missionary societies, the Junior W. M. S., and the Senior W. M. S. have not been idle. They have their regular monthly meetings and are continually planning something worth while. The Junior group sponsored purchasing a new Maytag washing machine for our Kentucky work and shipped it early this summer, while the Seniors sponsored the publication of a tract by the writer entitled: "Have You Been Baptized?" Both groups are now preparing boxes for the Kentucky mission and will send clothing, etc., in time for the holidays.

We have a splendid choir, which is now preparing a Christmas program; a fine Youth choir; Signal Lights, and Sisterhood, all of which are working nicely.

The Christian spirit of the church is excellent and we are anticipating a continued increase in our efforts for the coming year. Brethren, pray for us, that we may be found pleasing in the sight of our dear Lord, and that many souls may find peace and rest in Him.

L. O. McCartneysmith, Minister.

The New Press Fund

"The Gospel must first be published among all nations."
Mark 13:10.

Authorized by The 1946 General Conference

GOAL	Not less than $15,000.00
Cash and pledges	$8,192.56
Yet to be raised, not less than	$6,807.06

The Brethren Evangelist

Brethren Historical Library
Manchester College
North Manchester, Ind.
comp

Vol LXX, No 4 January 24, 1948

Missionary Board Number

THE BRETHREN EVANGELIST

Published weekly, except the last week in August and
the last week in December

THE BRETHREN PUBLISHING COMPANY

Ashland, Ohio

PRUDENTIAL COMMITTEE

J. E. Stookey, President N. G. Kimmel, Vice-President
J. G. Dodds, Secretary-Treasurer

EDITOR OF PUBLICATIONS—F. C. Vanator

BUSINESS MANAGER—G. S. Baer

EDITOR MISSIONARY NUMBER—E. M. Riddle

CONTRIBUTING EDITORS

Dr. Charles A. Bame Rev. Dyoll Belote

DEPARTMENTAL EDITORS

Dr. C. F. Yoder, Brethren Doctrine
Rev. N. V. Leatherman, Practical Church Problems
Rev. J. G. Dodds, National Goals
Dr. R. F. Porte, Brethren Church History

PLEASE REMEMBER: All material for publication in the Evangelist must be in the hands of the editor at least three weeks before the desired date of publication, to assure same to appear in desired issue. This refers to announcements particularly.

TERMS OF SUBSCRIPTION: $1.50 per year in advance.
CHANGE OF ADDRESS In ordering change of address always
give both old and new addresses.

REMITTANCES Send all money, business communications, and contributed articles to

THE BRETHREN PUBLISHING COMPANY
ASHLAND, OHIO

Entered as second class matter at Ashland, Ohio. Accepted for mailing at special rate, section 1103, act of October 3, 1917. Authorized September 3, 1928.

THE FOURTH

Pastors' Institute

sponsored by

The Missionary Board of the Brethren Church

In cooperation with

Ashland College and Seminary

and

The National Ministerial Association

Post-Easter Week

MARCH 29-APRIL 2, 1948

at

Ashland, Ohio

Speakers

DR. G. E. SWOYER
DR. ERNEST MILLER
DR. O. A. GEISEMAN

MRS. W. A. SUNDAY
DR. E. T. THOMPSON
DR. GLENN L. CLAYTON

PROF. J. G. DRUSHAL
REV. W. S. CRICK
REV. C. S. FAIRBANKS

(Further details will follow in succeeding issues).

Let's Go Forward

In Missionary Endeavor

by Mrs. U. J. Shively

Going forward means motion—anything but standing still. Our entire life is one of action. The clock ticks and the seconds become hours, days, and years. The yesterdays never become the todays, but the tomorrows always do. The waters of the seas are ever in motion, and the planets are always going on and on. The seasons come and go and always forward.

If everything around us moves forward, why should we be surprised when the Church of the Living God does not stand still? The Church must ever be moving forward. But this forward movement of the Church is only in proportion to the moving of its membership. In other words the Church must depend on the consecration of its members.

Some time ago, upon entering a certain church building, I noticed on the wall this placard: "If every member were just like me, what kind of a church would this church be?" Now isn't that a question? And a personal one too!

Thinking of the past year or years, ask yourself a few questions. What has been my contribution to the growth of my church? Which is first in my life, religious or secular activities? Is my love for Christ and the growth of His kingdom my main objective, or do I give to it only the tag ends of my time? How much of my life is consecrated to the Master? Consecration is not only a very big word, but it is a solemn word, which means an act or ceremony of separating from a common to a sacred use. Frances B. Havergal did not entirely define the word when he wrote:

"Take my life and let it be, consecrated, Lord to Thee;
Take my hands and let them move, at the impulse of Thy love.
Take my feet and let them be, swift and beautiful for Thee;
Take my voice and let me sing, always only for my King.
Take my lips and let them be, filled with messages for Thee,
Take my moments and my days, let them flow in ceaseless praise,
Take my intellect, and use every power as Thou shalt choose.
Take my will and make it Thine, it shall be no longer mine;
Take my heart, it is Thine own, it shall be Thy royal throne.

Let us go forward in Consecration!

What would be the result in the Brethren Church, if both leaders and laity would be constantly scouting for recruits for the ministry, for missionaries, for leaders of youth groups, for leaders in every phase of Christian service?

The government sets up recruiting stations all over the country and is constantly calling for recruits for the Navy, Air Force, Marines, Army, and every branch of government service. This call goes out by letter, by radio, by newspaper and magazine advertising, by personal touch, any way to reach the eyes and ears of the youth.

Christ Jesus, through His word and through His Church, issues a recruiting call to all ages—asking for personal discipleship. "Come unto me, all ye that labor and are heavy laden, and I will give you rest. Take my yoke upon you, and learn of me: for I am meek and lowly in heart; and ye shall find rest unto your souls. For my yoke is easy and my burden is light."

I am wondering if the Brethren Church ever had such an opportunity for "recruiting" as now. With more than 700 students in our own Ashland College, surely the challenge is given our educational and spiritual leaders to reap where fields are white.

What do you think the result would be if the Brethren Church, ministry and laity, would set themselves to prayer? What would happen if we should pray for each local church and its membership, pray for the college and its leadership, pray for the student body in all its activities, pray for personal consecration in the entire brotherhood, pray for conviction of sin and carelessness, pray for conversions, pray that God would use all to His glory, and pray that out of the fine student body, the youth from our homes and churches, shall come many life-work recruits?

If the entire Brotherhood, no, if only half the membership or even 25% would give themselves to definite prayer, no one but God could measure the result. Will you pray for conversions and recruits?

The year of 1947 is gone with its results, whatever they may be. We thank our Heavenly Father for the privilege of service. But, please God, give us a new year, a new vision, and a new consecration.

"A great door and effectual is opened unto me," said Paul. The door is opened to the Brethren Church. Let us go forward opening new fields, building new churches, organizing new congregations.

Let us go forward in Missionary Endeavor!

Brethren Youth

by Virgil E. Meyer

"And it shall come to pass in the last days, saith God, I will pour out of my Spirit upon all flesh; and your sons and your daughters shall prophesy, and your young men shall see visions and your old men shall dream dreams." The Lord through the prophet Joel and the apostle Peter has given the promise that He will pour His Spirit out upon all flesh. That "out-pouring" will ever in the Brethren Church be our source of power. Certainly God called all age groups to lay hold of this power—our old men to dream, our sons and daughters to preach, and our young men to see visions.

Notice the emphasis—our sons and daughters, our young men, preaching and seeing visions. God placed upon them the responsibility for the motivation of His program of salvation through Christ. Can we as Brethren do less? Is it not time that we are giving youth its rightful place in the program of our church? Do we fully realize the significance of the oft-repeated words, "our young people are the church of tomorrow?"

For the past ten years wherever our church leaders have gathered, discussion has centered around certain recognized needs of our church. Among the more urgent are these: the need for church extension, for a larger mission program, for a spiritual zeal and for a more vital leadership especially among the laity.

These needs of our church can be fulfilled. They can be fulfilled by our young people. Youth is naturally zealous and has the ability to give of itself wholeheartedly and unreservedly. Young people who know Christ, who have a faith that is untarnished and a vision that is undimmed by experience and reality provide the potential material for vital leaders. They will give of themselves to the task of building new churches and they will willingly endure the hardships of the mission field.

Our summer camp program which is sponsored by the Sunday School Association each year brings a number of young people to the place in life where they yield themselves for full-time service. We have a number of such "recruits" but we need many more. It will be the program of Brethren Youth to reach more young people. It will also be a major part of the program to lead those who have given their lives into deeper consecration. They have made the first step; we hope to lead them into fruitful lives of preaching at home and witnessing abroad. Our youth board has made definite plans to contact, advise, and inspire those young people who give themselves to Christ and are not yet ready for college training. We also have realized that there is a broad gap between the life of a young person while at home in the care of the local church and in the influence of a Christian home, and the one who has gone to college and is then responsible for his own spiritual life. Too often those who have dedicated themselves seem to lose their vision. Therefore plans have been made to set up on the campus at Ashland a program which will build spiritual zeal. To do this, the youth board has decided to employ a full time youth director, whose primary duty would be to build up our youth in Christ. It would be his task to promote youth work on all levels of our total church program. He would work in summer camps, advise sponsors of Sisterhoods, Brotherhoods, Christian Endeavors, and Sunday Schools. He would also aid in organizing the above youth groups.

With full support and cooperation the program as it is set up should lead to a larger mission program and eventually to a larger Brethren Church.

To Strong To Be Saved

A bather in Rothesay Bay, got beyond his depth, and cried for help. A well-known swimmer who stood on the pier, threw off his outer garments, and plunged into the water, but to the dismay of the spectators, he swam round the drowning man, who was struggling vehemently to save himself. Then just as he was disappearing, that able swimmer saved him, and amid cheers brought him to land. "Why were you so long in laying hold of him?" the people asked the rescuer—"he was nearly drowned." "He was too strong at first, and had I seized him then, he would have caught me, and probably both of us would have sunk. I had to wait until he had used up all his strength, then I had my own way with him." So God leaves the sinner to discover that he is "without strength" (Rom. 5:6). Then he trusts himself to Christ, and He saves him.

Reprinted from Gospel Herald.

NEWS

From the Christian World

A third Friendship Train carrying wheat and flour from the Southwestern states will be loaded aboard the S. S. American Leader at Philadelphia for shipment to France and Italy. This steamer has been renamed Friend Ship for this trip.

The arrival of fifty displaced persons from Europe under the sponsorship of Church World Service has brought to 1,200 the total number of D. P.'s who have come to this country under the care of C. W. S.

A "worry clinic" has been established at High Point, N. C., with the pastor of the First Methodist church in charge. Cardinal principles of Christian psychology will be used to help people master their worries.

A German P. O. W. has been employed as organist in a local English church, which was unable to find a qualified musician among its members. The German, a professional organist, applied with the consent of the camp authorities.

Two young men, one a Protestant and the other a Catholic, styling themselves missionaries, are on their way in a small boat to Tabiteuea South in the Southern Gilbert Islands. Taking with them $14 in money and locker full of Bibles, they plan to pass the "Word" to the natives.

A fourth series on the Radio Edition of the Bible is being planned by the Joint Religious Radio Committee. This is in response to the many requests that have come for further series. The first three series of the Radio Edition of the Bible have appeared over 300 stations in the United States, Canada, the Philippines and Hawaii.

At least fifty stateless children of Europe will find a sanctuary on Nevis, an island in the West Indies. An old estate is being cleared and the buildings are being remodeled by the Stateless Children's Sanctuary, Inc. Care, maintenance and education will be provided for fifteen years. Twenty-five highly qualified men and women have volunteered their help.

A "faith train" to follow the freedom and friendship trains has been proposed by Edwin T. Dahlberg, president of the Northern Baptist Convention. Representatives of the three faiths would explain the contributions religion has made to the progress of our country.

A memorial chapel will be erected in honor of the four chaplains who lost their lives after giving their life belts to soldiers on the torpedoed transport, Dorchester. The chapel, sponsored by the Philadelphia Interfaith Committee, will be established in Baptist Temple in that city.

Allan Bates, formerly of the United Nations, says that misleading headlines in the American newspapers are producing the kind of thinking which leads to war.

One million dollars and 1,000,000 pounds of supplies for overseas relief to be raised by the Methodist Church in the next four months is the goal that was set by the church's council of bishops at their recent meeting. The church has raised and distributed $6,500,000 since 1940.

The youth department of the British Council of Churches has invited twenty German Protestant youth leaders to study youth work in Britain for four weeks.

Thirty-five million additional acres of farm land will be opened up by 1952 under the soil reclamation and irrigation projects now under way in Mexico. Only seven per cent of Mexican land now gets enough rainfall for cultivation.

The church at Gona in New Guinea is sending one half of its offerings to Japan, "helping those people who spoilt our country to be better people, so that they will be helping ones, not spoiling ones. That is what I think God wants us to do, because we are his children." The minister of the church had been a prisoner of the Japanese for three years.

Abolition of the principle of racial segregation is a recommendation from the woman's division of Christian Service in the Methodist Church to the general conference which meets next year in Boston. This recommendation is aimed at the organization of the church, which set up a separate jurisdiction for Negro churches when the union of the northern and southern groups took place.

Three Negro women have been transported from the middle of the Sahara desert to Lucerne, Switzerland, in order to demonstrate there the textile arts of the Sahara people. Later they will visit Paris to give their demonstrations.

Charles C. Rohrer, farmer from North Manchester, Indiana, has written the leading newspapers of the country as follows: "Unless the common people of America awaken soon, rise up in their might and demand a cessation of present war acts we will be involved in World War III shortly. The demands of the common people of the world are for peace; if these demands are insistent enough they can keep us out of war."

In spite of the political turbulence in China, the Chinese Christian colleges have continued to operate as beacon lights of hope. More than twelve thousand Chinese students were enrolled last year. Many of these students found it necessary to subsist on one meal a day and the professors often lived on salaries less than the income of a working coolie. Books were hard to obtain and twenty students often had to share one book. The Chinese believe in education.

A 1948 Challenge

"The land whither ye go to possess it, is a land of hills and valleys, and drinketh water of the rain of heaven: a land which the Lord thy God careth for: the eyes of the Lord are always upon it, from the beginning of the year even unto the end of the year." (Deut. 11: 11, 12).

As these words are copied from the Book of Sacred Record, we are only three days from the end of another year. We stand at the verge of a new year, on the edge of the unknown. There lies before us a new year and we hope confidently to go forth to possess it. Who can tell what we shall find? With faith in Him, in Whom we live and move and have our being, we are comforted in the words of the text, "The Lord thy God careth for it . . . His eyes are upon it away to the ending of the year." Here is the most gracious pledge and source of our mercies.

Our country, our churches, and our homes do not need sympathy so much as they do need the consciousness of being in the strong hands of One, the Lord and the Lord of all. That appreciation would steady us at once, and give rest of heart and courage and strength. And that is what will steady us in these troublous and disturbing times—to remember that God is more than a sympathizer and comforter; that He is the mighty Lord, our Lord and the Lord of all. We need the remembrance not only of his gentleness and goodness, but of his greatness too. "The Lord is a great God, and a great King above all gods. In His hand are the deep places of the earth; the strength of the hills is His also." Too frequently our puny, weak faith has caused us to shorten the hand of God, to minimize His power.

APPALLING FACTS

As we approach the new year, consider a few statements relative to the past,—

"J. Edgar Hoover, head of the Federal Bureau of Investigation, U. S. A., better informed about the subject on which he speaks than any other man in the country, says: 'Last year, a major crime occurred every 23 seconds. More persons were murdered within the United States than there were casualties at Tarawa. A robbery occurred every 12 minutes, a burglary every two minutes, a larceny every 39 seconds, and an automobile was stolen every three minutes. Remember that 13 per cent of all murderers arrested were under 21 years of age, as were 39 per cent of all robbers, 55 per cent of all burglars, 37 per cent of all thieves. In fact, nearly 23 per cent of all persons arrested last year were under voting age. More boys, 17 years of age, and more girls, 18 years of age, were arrested than in any other age group.

'This country is in deadly peril. We have won the war but may still lose freedom for all in America. For a creeping rot of moral and spiritual disintegration is eating into our nation.'

Now my friends, every feature of the world situation that you and I confront today is a summons to lay new emphasis on the phrase, "the evangelization of the world." We are a generation of people bowed down under mortal need. At the same time we boast of our riches, our strength as a nation, while Europe is weak and impoverished. While part of the world lives in prosperity with every convenience at hand, there are thousands of homeless, displaced and suffering souls in Austria, Germany and Italy. Here is a mighty problem for the tomorrow and not one of us can brush it aside.

This is not a generation in the clutch of mortal need alone. It is a generation of plastic flow. Great ideas, new things, will constantly creep into the minds of all mankind in the coming year. Ten years from now will mark many changes. Will we sit idly by and allow great ideas to pierce the life of the world while the idea of Christ which we know to be the most piercing and pervasive of all, is postponed to be administered to a preempted world by generations that come after ours? This life is allowing the plastic flow to be fast setting in its molds—molds that will last for our day and a long time after. Was Lowell right when he said, "Once to every man or nation comes the moment—and the choice goes on forever?"

Thus looking upon our world in dire need and with great unrest and so little real joy and happiness, a world that is going on its road toward another day, another year; the plastic flow is now hardening into forms that will hardly change. God forbid that we should abate one iota of our missionary emphasis and zeal for the promulgation of the Gospel of our Lord and Savior to a tired, weary and sin-sick world.

We have a growing missionary zeal. Our churches in South America are prospering. Dr. Yoder gives a most interesting report, since his return, commenting upon the progress shown in so few years. A number of fine young recruits have recently signed up to enter college and seminary training in preparation for missionary service, in our church. As a church we have done nobly in the past few years. We carry and support a great program. Let us not be weary in well doing. But I am persuaded that if every one of our churches should deepen its spiritual life, we would yet greatly enlarge our usefulness in the world. Beware lest we somehow retard the finest work in all the world. We cannot fail if we render to Him our best. With the new year, take new courage—press on.

Our concern as Christians is that the particular and irreplaceable contribution of the Church, holding up to men the freedom of the Gospel, shall not fail for the lack of our prayers, our money and our service.

E. M. Riddle, Field Secretary.

The Message Of The Book

The Acts

by E. L. Miller

(The following article is the first in a series of Bible meditations, each based on a book of the Bible. The predominant note in each one will be the missionary emphasis as found in the Book.—Ed.)

This book is not necessarily a report of the actions of the apostles as the name might imply. It is rather a report of the actions of a larger group of disciples, apostles included, and the Holy Spirit should be given all credit for what was done through and by these Christian workers. It is a book of action and so intrigues one with its recordings. Dr. Luke caught the spirit of things and vividly portrays them to us. From the first chapter to the last action is the theme. Of course action at times requires time out for meditation and preparation, so the Master tells the eleven to tarry until they are endued for action. He makes His last appearance to them as recorded in the first chapter, and gives them orders for service and also a glorious promise of coming again for them. That first chapter also contains a record of an action by the eleven that is sometimes questioned by Bible students. They took it into their own hands to select a successor to the defective Judas Iscariot. Many of us think that Jesus did His own selecting of the new apostle; and in the one born out of due season, Paul, we feel Jesus completed the dozen to be so designated. Paul has all the earmarks of an apostle, even to having the power bestowed on him to raise the dead. The man the eleven selected comes on and goes off the scene in very short notice. But we shall leave that for the theologians to mull over.

The apostles had been warned not to start off unready. With impetuous fellows like a Simon Peter that is a timely warning and a safe guard. More than once this very worthy fellow jumped the gun and had to be disciplined. To have action unimpeded Jesus had them wait until unlimited power would be given them, but even then they seem to have run ahead of the Lord in making their choice of a successor to Judas. It may have been that their action was proper, but as we said, who ever heard of their man afterward? But note well our friend, Paul.

The book of Acts is the New Testament book of history. But since history is in reality biography, so we will have to think of it in the main. And what biographies it contains! But as to its main message, it is missionary. Home and foreign missions are both stressed in its pages. Evangelism, the handmaid of missionary endeavor, stands out prominently. Once the Holy Spirit had descended the disciples were out for souls. The impetuous Peter lost none of his impetuosity but it was better directed. His wonderful discourse of the Pentecostal time won souls by the thousand. He had able assistance on the part of the one hundred nineteen others who were in that upper room. But he was the leader. And again, a little later he repeated with an appeal that brought many more thousands out on the side of Christ and the newly born church. So in Peter and Paul we have wonderful leaders, but remember the Acts includes many more names of able and efficient soul winners.

Indeed, others of the disciples caught the vision and did their part nobly. Remember Stephen and his great sermon that won the hatred of the Jewish leaders but doubtless had something, maybe more than we think, to do with the conversion of one of his arch persecutors. That little fellow Saul was made to think, and the way Stephen went to his death impressed him wonderfully. So also Philip, another deacon, made himself very useful on that Gaza highway, and it is believed today by historians that the Ethiopian church, the oldest in continuous existence among us, is the result of that deacon's efforts. So evangelistic and missionary endeavor went on and the church grew. So we see that the Holy Spirit mightily used others than the apostles during this early period of the church.

But perhaps the outstanding character of this book is the super-missionary, powerful preacher, writer of spiritual letters and founder of churches, the beloved Paul. From the ninth chapter on the book has him very much in evidence. He was a paragon of pluck, and a hard-hitting expounder of righteousness and sound Christian doctrine. He left his foot prints all over the place. Palestine, Asia Minor, Europe, islands of the sea, Italy and beyond all felt the imprint of this little giant. Churches sprouted up everywhere as this first great missionary and his aides Barnabas, Silas, Mark, Timothy, Onesimus, and others went about. Those working with him found him to be a stickler for the doctrines of his Master whom he loved and served. Some couldn't take it and left him. But others stayed with him to the end. Jesus gave the gospel and Paul would preach it whatever might happen. Well, it happened, but nothing moved this "setter forth of strange doctrines," as they said of him. He was soundly orthodox in his Christian faith and doctrine. And how some of our modern preachers could well take a leaf out of his book and do likewise. The cross, crucifixion and resurrection were central in his preaching and teaching. We will all do well to study and follow the presentments of this missionary par excellent, evangelist, and soul winner. Yes, a large part of the book of Acts is more or less a biography of this erstwhile persecutor of Christ and those of the Way, the Church.

Has any one ever shown a better way to meet the trying experiences of the Christian minister? Are not the example of this man Paul as noted in the Acts and his instructions as given in his many letters to churches and individuals the best we can find anywhere? And his example in church founding is one for our consideration and practice today.

No, we have not forgotten the record of the first general conference of the church. Neither would we neglect emphasizing the fine way in which they met and overcame their differences and overcame a threatened division among them. The point at issue was of the most serious kind, more by far than some that have brought divisions among church folks in more recent years. And here again our hero, Paul, ever a contender for pure and unalloyed Christian faith, doctrine and practice stands out big. Agreement was had on a very persistent matter that had brought acrimonious discussion and threatened disunion. Well might we meet and solve our church problems and difficulties as did those founders at the first convention of the churches.

But ere closing we want to stress again the deep missionary nature of this book and its message. Peter and Paul, and the galaxy of collaborators they had, have given to us the method of procedure in church extension. They gave themselves without stint or reserve. They dared all manner of dangers, abuse and misunderstanding. They defended themselves before the leading Jewish leaders and jurists of their day. And never did they let down on the pressing duty of presenting Jesus as the God-sent Savior of the world. He was presented to the wise and unwise as Paul called them—the Greek philosophers on Mars Hill, the Roman judges on the bench, the group down by the river side, and so on. The universality of the Gospel was stressed by Peter and Paul and the consecrated band of workers together with them. All this sets before us the real essence of the book of Acts, not of the apostles, but of the Holy Spirit in the hearts and lives of this group, apostles included. These first decades of the Christian church furnish the pattern for our effort and procedure today.

Now we did not try to rewrite the book. Neither did we make any effort to rewrite any portion of it. So read it. And we feel that it along with what we have tried to say will stir up such interest on the part of the readers that they will read and reread this second book of good Dr. Luke.

—Maurertown, Va.

CONFIDENCE

I do not ask for plainer paths
But for a guiding hand
To keep me from the pitfalls, Lord,
And faith to understand
Thy wisdom and Thy will.

I do not ask for burdens light—
I, too, would bear my part;
But grant me, Lord, from day to day
A strong courageous heart
That knows no fear.

I do not ask for cloudless skies—
For naught of this world's pain—
But give me, Lord, a deep content
That sings all through the rain
And sees a bright tomorrow.

When paths of life sometimes seem rough
Or burdens heavy grow—
When clouds blot out the sun, then, Lord,
Walk with me and then I know
I will not miss the road.

—Eleanor Frey.

NOTICE

A telephone call to Editor Vanator on January 12 from Brother Fred Eccard told of the call of Brother S. M. Whetstone to the Dayton pastorate. The call will be effective about April 15th.

When The Bee Stung Mother

A young boy was once asked how long he had known his Saviour, and if assured that his sins were forgiven.

"Oh yes," he replied; "I know that they are all forgiven; I am quite sure of that."

"When did you first come to know and understand that?" asked the minister.

"When the bee stung Mother," said the boy quickly.

"When the bee stung Mother? Tell me what you mean, my boy."

"Sir," said the boy, "I have a mother, who for some years told me what Jesus had done for me but I never really understood and realized how He had taken my place, and died in my stead, until one summer's afternoon, when playing in the door of our cottage. Mother was ironing in the kitchen, at the door, with her sleeves turned up upon her arms. Suddenly, while I was playing around the doorstep, a large and apparently much excited bee, came buzzing round and round my head. It no doubt had been hurt, and seemed determined to sting. I was frightened, and tried once or twice to flap it away with my handkerchief; but round and round my head it came, closer each time. At last, in despair, I ran inside to get rid of my enemy, and made for my mother, who had been watching my injudicious efforts to free myself from my opponent, and with a cry I hid myself under her long white apron.

"Amused at my fear, but with mother care, she put her iron down, and with a smile, put her arms outside, as it were to assure me that I had full protection.

"This was hardly done, before the bee settled upon one of her bare arms, and before she realized that it was not wise to let the angry little insect remain upon her, the bee had stung her so deeply that the poor thing was unable to draw out its sting, and in an exhausted state crawled slowly down her arm.

"My mother, who felt the sting sharply, was taken aback; but looking at the bee crawling down her arm, a thought struck her which was the means of my salvation.

"She said to me, 'There, you may come out now; the bee has stung Mother instead of you; come out, and look at it crawling on Mother's arm. It cannot hurt you now.'

"Timidly I lifted the apron, and put my head out to see. There was the bee crawling still slowly down my mother's arm; and my mother, pointing to the sting higher up, said, 'There it is; it has stung Mother instead of you. You may play with it now; it cannot sting again; see its sting in Mother's arm. Poor creature, it has only one sting!'

"Half afraid and a little sorrowful for my mother, I looked at the sting. My mother then went on to explain to me how I might play with the bee now, and even take it in my hand, as it could not sting twice, and therefore could not sting me now. She well applied the lesson, explaining to me how it was a picture of what for long she had told me about Jesus having taken my place, and been punished in my stead.

"I had learned and often repeated that verse, 'With His stripes we are healed,' but I never understood until then, with the bee and sting before us, that it was just a picture of what Jesus had permitted to be done to Himself—to be punished instead of us, who deserved to be punished; and how, if we believed that He had taken our place and been punished in our stead, we could not be punished. The Law having punished Him in our stead, it was powerless now to punish us. Yes; and how true these three short lines—

" 'Payment God will not twice demand;
First at my bleeding Surety's hand,
And then again at mine.'

"That moment of realization! I shall never forget it. It was all so clear now. I saw and understood for the first time what Mother had for long taught me, how that God would not punish me, because He had already punished Jesus in my stead. Yes, sir, it was when the bee stung Mother. I have rejoiced from that moment in believing and being assured that Jesus died for me on Calvary."—Unknown—Reprinted from Gospel Herald.

Foreign Missions

Rosario, Argentina,
South America,
December, 1947

Rev. E. M. Riddle
Ashland, Ohio

Dear Brother Riddle:

I feel great privilege to write to you again, and wish you have had a very happy Christmas Day and prosperous New Year. May it be a day filled with the joy of our Lord and Saviour!

We are praying that this New Year may be filled to overflowing with the best blessing and with the fruit of the Holy Spirit.

We feel very happy once more that another year has gone by in the intimate communion and fraternal love of each other, and we feel greatly joyful that as we are ending the year we can say that our work in the Lord has not been in vain, and when our Lord shall appear, may the crown of rejoicing given for the winning of souls be yours in all its glory. We must sincerely express that every heart won for Him by His Grace feels profound gratitude to recognize that great part of this joy they owe to you there by whose means they have been reached.

So all of you dear Brethren in the U. S. receive our sincere thanks and great affection and love.

During this summer, thanks to the Lord, we are already working very actively with scouting work and with the tent work in many towns around. Now in the midst of summer, many of the workers are invited to go to the Summer Camp in Cordoba Hills.

Mr. and Mrs. Pablo Espinosa are now in Colon and they feel very happy there, in the new missionary station. They have begun with good success. They have very nice meetings, and there is a very good attendance.

With much love I remain sincerely yours,

Adolfo Zeche.

The Soul-Winner's Crown Of Rejoicing

by C. F. Yoder

Dr. Yoder's idea of a Personal Workers' training course for South American leaders was approved at General Conference by the Missionary Board. The following is for January and February. We suggest that they be used in C. E. groups, S. M. M., or Sunday School classes. The Missionary office is anxious to hear from church leaders and to know if there is a desire to have a similar study printed each month. A card will give your reaction. They are being printed in Spanish for their use in South America.

E. M. R.

Mary Jo was a good girl, a church member, faithful as the average and beloved by all. But she was not a real worker until she went to summer camp and heard a lecture on the duty of soul-winning. She resolved to be a fruitful branch and not one to be cut off and burned. John 15:6.

She began by giving tracts to unconverted people. Then she began to add a few words of invitation. This led to conversations, and this to arguments, and at last she learned to her consternation that the world is not hungering and thirsting for the Gospel as she imagined. She became discouraged and appealed to her pastor for help.

He explained to her I Cor. 2:14 and Matt. 13:3-9. When she understood that the kingdom of God is really a higher kingdom than that of the natural man, and that the Gospel must therefore appear folly to the unregenerate people, she began to see the necessity of learning the technique of leading the unsaved through the miracle of the new birth to the joy of the new life in which the Gospel ceases to appear folly and becomes sweeter than honey and more precious than gold. Then she began to study to be a worker approved unto God, rightly dividing the word of truth. II Tim. 2:15.

Like Mary Jo there are countless Christians who would like to be useful but have not learned just how to proceed. To such the writer wishes to give some things learned through more than sixty years of Christian labor. By following them the work of soul-winning may become the greatest joy ever experienced. The lessons require the learning of only a text a day throughout a year, and they may be learned in private or in classes. If no such training is being given in your church, do something about it and you may have the reward of leading others into the blessed life of service. The course is divided into four parts of twelve lessons each.

PART I—PERSONAL PREPARATION

LESSON I—THE CROWN OF REJOICING

Golden Text—"For what is our hope, or joy, or crown of rejoicing? Are not even ye in the presence of the Lord Jesus Christ at his coming?" I Thess. 2:19.

Questions (Write the answers)

- 1. What wonderful companion does the soul winner have?
Ans. Matt. 28:20
- 2. What other title of high honor corresponds to "fishers of men?"
Ans. II Cor. 5:20.
- 3. What special joy for the soul-winner is mentioned in II Cor. 5:17, 18?
Ans.
- 4. What did Paul see in Galatian believers which gave him joy?
Ans. Gal. 4:14-15.
- 5. What glory for the soul-winner is revealed in Dan. 12:4?
Ans.
- 6. How does Matt. 25:23 apply to the soul-winner?
Ans.
- 7. When will the joy of John 4:36 be realized?
Ans.

LESSON II—THE CROWN OF THORNS

Golden Text—"If they have persecuted me they will also persecute you." John 15:20.

- 1. Why does Satan and his agents hate Christ and the church?
Ans. John 15:18.
- 2. How can a soul-winner get joy out of his trials?
Ans. I Pet. 4:12-14.
- 3. How do the "marks of the Lord Jesus" preserve from temptation?
Ans. Gal. 6:17.
- 4. How does the soul-winner often experience the blessing of Matt. 5:11, 12?
Ans.
- 5. How does obedience to Heb. 13:13 bring joy?
Ans. Phil. 2:5-9.
- 6. What comfort can the worker who suffers with Jesus find in Rev. 7:9-14?
Ans.
- 7. What O. T. verse is a good motto for soul winners?
Ans. Ps. 126:6.

LESSON III—REGENERATION THE SECRET OF SPIRITUAL KNOWLEDGE

Golden Text—"Except a man be born again he cannot see the kingdom of God." John 3:3-5.

- 1. Why is the new birth necessary to a Christian's joy?
Ans. John 3:6.
- 2. Why should born-again people be happy?
Ans. Col. 1:13.
- 3. What does it mean to be among the "first born" of God?
Ans. Jas. 1:18; Rev. 14:4.
- 4. Of what are the children of God the heirs?
Ans. Rom. 8:17.
- 5. How does faith bring Joy?
Ans. Rom. 15:13.
- 6. What joy follows repentance?
Ans. Lk. 15:7, 24, 47.
- 7. How does Christian baptism contribute to joy?
Ans. Act. 2:38, 39; I Pet. 3:21.

LESSON IV—WILLING WITNESSES

Golden Text—"We cannot but speak of the things we have heard and seen." Acts 4:20.

A good emotion resisted reacts by dulling the conscience. Witness the case of the rich young ruler. God wants children who serve through love, not slaves whose only motive is the lash.

- 1. What, then, should be the longing back of the soul-winner?
Ans. Rom. 8:19.
- 2. What is the method of the Holy Spirit in winning souls?
Ans. Titus 2:11-15.
- 3. What will the Spirit in us inspire us to do?
Ans. Acts 1:8.
- 4. What joyful and unfailing motive have we in John 14:21?
Ans.
- 5. Is not the harvest now greater and riper than ever? So what?
Ans. Matt. 9:36-38; Isa. 6:8.
- 6. What happens if we disobey our call?
Ans. I Cor. 9:16; Lk. 12:47.
- 7. What inspiring example have we in Acts 5:40-42?
Ans.

If we have never seen the vision of need, or felt the call to witness, or been moved by the spirit of compassion, or known the constraint of love, or the impulse of the Spirit, there is something wrong, and we should try Lk. 24:49 with Acts 5:32. That should bring a vision like that of Acts 16:9 and a prayer like that of Acts 4:29, 30, and then a time of rejoicing like that of Acts 5:41. Try it.

LESSON V—THE SOUL-WINNER'S WONDERFUL MESSAGE

Golden Text—"I am not ashamed of the Gospel, for it is the power of God unto salvation to everyone that believeth." Rom. 1:16.

Some Christians try to show their faith by the way they dress and others by the way they profess, but there is also a "more excellent way."

- 1. Why is our conversation a good index of our Christian character?
Ans. Matt. 12:34.
- 2. What kind of talk should Christians avoid?
Ans. Col. 3:8-10.
- 3. What things should soul-winners teach?
Ans. Matt. 28:20.

4. Of whom were the disciples witnesses? Why?
Ans. Acts 1:8; 4:12.
5. Of what did they speak when Spirit-filled?
Ans. Acts 2:11.
6. Did they tolerate any and all teaching in the name of the Gospel?
Ans. Gal. 1:6-9; Rev. 22:18, 19.
7. How did they defend their faith?
Ans. I Pet. 3:15; Jude 3.

LESSON VI—THE WHOLE ARMOR OF GOD

Golden Text—"For the weapons of our warfare are not carnal, but mighty, through God, to the pulling down of strongholds." II Cor. 10:4.

It is a mistake to think of the Christian life as a passive submission to anything and everything. When Jesus said, "Resist not evil" he was denouncing the carnal custom of flaring up and fighting back because of trifling offenses. When it came to firm and faithful testimony for him he said, "I am not come to cast peace but a sword." Matt. 10:34-36. For such a warfare we need the spiritual weapons and the "whole armor of God."

1. As soldiers of Christ with whom must we fight?
Ans. Eph. 6:11, 12.
2. Of what importance is the girdle of truth?
Ans. John 17:17; II Cor. 13:8.
3. "The breastplate of righteousness" means what righteousness?
Ans. Phil. 3:9; Rev. 19:7, 8.
4. How shall we harmonize vs. 15 with Matt. 10:47?
Ans. Rom. 12:18; Acts 4:9, 20.
5. "Above all, the shield of faith," vs. 16. Write seven essentials which depend upon faith. Eph. 3:17
Gal. 3:14 Rom. 9:30 Heb. 11:6.
James 5:16 Gal. 2:20 Jn. 5:4
6. "The helmet of salvation, vs. 17. Compare the helmet of Goliath with that of David. I Sam. 17:5, 45-49. Why are the unsaved unfit to win souls?
Ans. Acts 8:18-23.
7. How did Jesus use the "sword of the Spirit?"
Ans. Matt. 4:3-11.

LESSON VII—THE WORD OF GOD

Golden Text—"The word of God is living and powerful." Heb. 4:12.

While the works of God give their testimony to his wisdom, power, and love, and leading men of science confirm the validity of this testimony, yet it bestows neither pardon for sin, nor the gift of divine life. Only the Gospel does that. Therefore it is the preaching of the only Saviour that brings the only salvation.

1. How is the Bible a "discerner of the thoughts and intents of the heart?"
Ans. Compare Rev. 19:21; I Cor. 19-21.
2. The word of God is a mirror which shows us what we are. How use it? (1) To see our sinful selves, Jas. 1:22-25; (2) To see our Savior," II Cor. 3:18.
3. The word of God is like cleansing water. To purify by I Pet. 1:22; to John 17:14; and to the church. Eph. 5:25-27.

4. The word of God is spiritual food. In it there is Ps. 81:16; I Pet. 2:2; and I Cor. 3:2.
5. The word of God is the good seed which grows into eternal life. By it we have Rom. 10:10; and have been I Pet. 1:23. By it we are counted Rom. 4:3. By it we are John 17:17; and by it we Matt. 4:4.
6. The word of God is John 6:63, not to all but to II Cor. 2:14-16.
7. The called of God are first good Matt. 13:8, then good Matt. 13:8, and then good John 4:36, 37. Where are you? II Cor. 13:5.

LESSON VIII—THE SPIRIT OF GOD

Golden Text—"Tarry ye in Jerusalem until ye be endued with power from on high." Luke 24:49.

This text indicates that Jesus considered the endowment of the Holy Spirit as an essential qualification for his disciples.

1. Why? Ans. John 15:1-5
2. What rite was given to the church to preserve and emphasize this truth?
Ans. Heb. 6:1, 2 with Acts 8:14-17; 19:1-7.
3. What are the conditions of receiving this gift?
Gal. 3:14; Acts 2:38, 39; Luke 11:13.
4. What are the results (differing in persons and occasions):
Ans. Acts 1:8; I Cor. 12:7-11; John 13:38, 39 with Rom. 5:5 Gal. 5:22, 23; I Cor. 6:19; Rom. 8:11.
5. Find some things which we, as soul-winners, are to do "in the Spirit":
Ans. Gal. 5:5; Gal. 5:16; Gal. 5:25; John 14:16, 17; John 14:25 John 16:13; II Tim. 1:13, 14.
6. What should we ask in prayer for one another?
Ans. Eph. 3:14-19.
7. What O. T. truth should soul winners remember?
Ans. Zech. 4:6

Home Mission News

MULVANE BRETHREN CHURCH

Greetings in the name of our Lord and Saviour, Jesus Christ, to all the Brethren:

Knowing of your desires to have an up-to-date knowledge of the various churches, especially those supported by the Mission Board, we take this opportunity to let you know about the church in Mulvane, Kansas.

Our last report covered our dedication services. Since then we have been busy. Our Daily Vacation Bible School was held the last part of May with an average attendance of 41 pupils. At the close of the school two 'teen aged girls accepted Christ as their Saviour. We had our annual Sunday School picnic on the banks of the Walnut River in July. There were 68 present at that time. During the first part of August, there were 14 young people, some teachers and other workers, who left for a week of camp at the new Midwest District Camp Wyandotte, near Kansas City, Kansas. We arrived there on Monday evening, and left the following Monday. Everyone reported a fine time. At the decision service there were four young people stepped forward as life-work recruits. Two rededicated their lives, and five made their first confession, accepting Christ as their Saviour. The following day two more accepted Christ. Six were baptized in the old swimming hole on Sunday afternoon. Two of those baptized were from the Mulvane Church.

On November 16 we began our fall revival with

Rev. Cecil Johnson of Falls City, Nebr., as the evangelist. Brother Johnson gave us some excellent messages, and everyone seemed to grow spiritually as to visible results. There were ten people that accepted the Saviour. We commend Brother Johnson to any of the churches desiring to hold an old-fashioned revival.

We closed the meetings with our fall Love-Feast. There were 38 communicants. We had four visitors from the Church of the Brethren in Conway Springs, Kansas, and one visitor from the River Brethren in Christ Church of Abilene, Kansas. The service was spiritual and uplifting. We also ordained two deacons and two deaconesses on Sunday evening, November 30. They were Brother and Sister Lee Howard, and Brother and Sister Carl Sherman.

At our July business meeting the pastor was extended an indefinite call by the church, which he gladly accepted. Also at that meeting Mrs. Myrtle Kessinger was called to be a missionary evangelist, and the District Conference in October confirmed that call. At present she is located at Haddix, Kentucky.

Our attendance has been growing. The last few Sundays, the Sunday School reported more than 70 present, with church attendance about the same. The evening services usually have about 35 present and the prayer service about 25.

Pray for us that we may always have a zeal for the Lord.

W. L. Thomas, pastor.

IN APPRECIATION

The Mission Board wishes to express its sincere thanks for the generous Thanksgiving Offerings which have come from Brethren Churches and from many individual givers. The response has indeed been heartening. We appreciate your fine interest in the cause of spreading Christianity in our country, and in lending a helping hand to Europe's undernourished war victims.

We appreciate, too, the gifts of many who have contributed to this offering, and whose names we do not have. This is our means of acknowledging your gifts. Thank you!

TEACH ME TO LIVE

Teach me to live! 'Tis easier far to die—

Gently and silently to pass away—

On earth's long night to close the heavy eye,

And waken in the glorious realms of day.

Teach me that harder lesson—how to live

To serve Thee in the darkest paths of life.

Arm me for conflict, now fresh vigor give,

And make me more than conqu'ror in the strife.

—Author Unknown.

CHRISTIAN ENDEAVOR TOPIC

W. St. Clair Benshoff, Topic Editor

"Topics copyrighted by the International Society of Christian Endeavor.
Used by permission."

Topic for February 1, 1948

JESUS CHRIST IS LORD OF ALL

Scripture: Philippians 2:9-11

For The Leader

THIS MATTER of exalting Christ is one which should receive some careful and sober thinking on the part of Christians. Christ is the greatest of all. No other in the world is as great as He. Though men and women curse Him, ignore, neglect and forsake Him, He is greatest. Christ, the satisfier of souls is left out when most men are seeking religious truth. He, the Peacemaker, is ignored when men assemble to "make peace." He, the Reconciler between God and man, is refused as men vainly try to lift themselves to the skies by their good works. But this will not always be. Though men reject Him today He will be exalted and worshipped in a day to come. It behooves us to be His exalter in this extended day of God's grace. Why? So that we shall be His exalters through endless glory and the bliss of Eternity.

DISCUSSION

1. THEY PASSED HIM BY. There was no room for Him in the Inn at Bethlehem. That thought has been the driving point in comparing men's reaction to His love. As there was no room for Jesus then, so there is little room in men's hearts for Him today. Certainly we Christians do not want to be accused of shutting Christ out of our lives. Yet, isn't that about what happens? If we are too busy to pray, to read our Bibles, to attend the service of His house, to give of our substance, we are committing the act of shutting Him out of our lives. Such spiritual loss can never be regained. We are commissioned to make Him Lord of all.

2. WHAT ABOUT THOSE WHO SHUN HIM? Great and terrible things are prophesied in God's Word for those who ignore Christ. They shall be cast out into outer darkness, and there shall be weeping and wailing and gnashing of teeth. First we seem to think this will be for just those who are "heathen," or who are "terribly wicked." It would be a shock if any one told us that some of us might be included in that group. Nevertheless, it is true. By our refusal to listen to His Word, to profit by the sermons, and other things we hear, we are endangering our chances to inherit eternal life. If we laugh at God and go out and engage in sin, we are disgracing Christ, and punishment will come upon us.

3. EVERY KNEE SHALL BOW. Every human being shall bow the knee to Christ. However, when that event takes place, humanity will be divided into two groups. First, those who have bowed before Him in this life, and given Him the leadership of their lives. This group includes all those who, through faith, have accepted Christ as the covering for their sins. They shall enter heaven forever. The other group includes the proud, the adulterers, the lustful, the immoral, cursers and drunkards. It will include those who put physical and material desires ahead of spiritual. They shall die in their sins, and be lost forever. But before they are cast away for ever, they shall see Christ in glory, face to face. They shall bow their knee to Him and acknowledge Him as greatest. They shall recognize Him as the Son of the Eternal God and the Savior of their sins. But it won't do them any good. This life is the time to repent of sin and evil ways.

4. EXALTATION AFTER SERVICE. Christ had glory in the heavens before He came to earth. But He gave up this glory to offer a way of escape from sin's punishment. He became a servant to save men. But now all that is past. From now on the trend is upward. Each succeeding generation of people on the earth is adding its praise to the already innumerable hosts in glory. And present day trends seem to indicate tremendous gains in the number of people who are accepting Christ. Over the radio, through the Christian magazines, through evangelists, people everywhere are finding the message of Christ as the answer to their soul sickness. Christ surely shall be exalted. We'd better check to be certain of our own position. Sin, desires to indulge in world evils, etc., puts us in a dangerous position before God. Don't take chances.

5. "ALL HAIL THE POWER." "All hail the power of Jesus' name, Let angels prostrate fall, We'll join the everlasting throng, and crown Him Lord of all." These selected words from the great hymn by the same name, are suggestive of that bursting praise which comes from the true believer's heart. Yet we are confronted with people who seem to lack that enthusiasm. Why? That would be hard to answer in a few words. Sufficeth to say, if you don't feel it in your heart, you can't sing it. Other interests, secret and open sins, keep us from realizing that enthusiasm in our hearts. Let us give Christ the glory of our lives, for He is the ruler of the universe and Lord of all. We can measure up in a fair way by giving Him the honor and glory which we should. You can gain a great blessing by putting Christ in the head place in your life.

QUESTIONS

1. Christ's coming into the world has altered the lives of all men since. He has done more to change the pattern of world history than any other. Yet today He is persistently ignored by world leaders. Why do world leaders ignore One who has had so much to do in changing the destiny of humanity?

2. Do you think the number of Christians (real believers in Christ) is growing in proportion to the growth of the world's population, or not? Give reasons for your belief.

3. Do you believe there are more people being converted to Christ in the past three years than in the twenty years before that time? Support your answer with reasons.

4. What do you think the outlook is for the next ten years as to the prospects of winning people to a saving knowledge of Christ? (Please note a distinction between winning people to a "saving knowledge of Christ" and that of winning them to Christ's social ways, or better ways of living.)

PUBLICATION OFFERING DATE

SUNDAY, JANUARY 25

SEND ALONG YOUR "PRESS FUND" PLEDGES

Prayer Meeting Topic

Contributed by Rev. C. Y. Gilmer

(Helps for Missions)

SING LEE'S BIBLE

You sent your money across the sea
That bought a Bible for young Sing Lee;
And Sing Lee when he had read therein
Proceeded to turn his back on sin.
Then he rested neither night nor day
Till his brother walked in the narrow way;
And his brother worked till he had won
Away from their gods his wife and son.
The woman told of her new-found joy,
And Christ was preached by the happy boy.
Some of the folks who heard them speak
Decided the one true God to seek.
It wasn't long till half the town
Had left its idols of wood and stone.
And the work's not ended yet, my friend;
You started something that shall ne'er end,
When you sent the money across the sea
That bought the Bible for young Sing Lee.

—Amelia Price Ayres.

WHY I SUPPORT MISSIONS

Scripture: Acts 15:7-18
Missionary Hymns
Leader's Petition
Seed Thought Provokers:

- I SUPPORT missions because—
1. It is the explicit command of the Lord (Mark 16:15). We are to act for the good of others for physical and also higher spiritual good (2 Cor. 9:7-15). At Jacobs well Jesus was a foreign missionary before any disciples (John 4:1-7, 39-42).
 2. I am a direct fruit of missionary endeavor (John 10:16). What I have received I owe to others (Rom. 1:14-16). If Christianity were not a missionary religion it would have remained a mere sect in Palestine (Mark 13:10).
 3. For every dollar that has gone into missions several dollars in actual profits have come back (Luke 6:38; Eccl. 11:1). If every man in this world were truly Christian our taxes would be lower, our homes safer, and civilization secure (Isa. 11:9).
 4. Missionaries go into hard places, strange lands, not for what they can get, but for what they can give (Acts 8:18-20). Such a type of people deserve support. They undertake in our place (Luke 10:7; 1 Tim. 5:18).
 5. Christian missions obtain definite results in all lines of human betterment (Luke 4:18).
 6. Every true lover of his own country will support the missionary on the remotest field, for he stands guard against evils which if unchecked will injure or destroy our own country (Acts 28:28).

7. I support missions for the welfare of my own soul (Acts 20:35). Only as I give can I receive fullness of life (2 Cor. 9:6-11).

8. Christian missions represent Christ Who is the only light and hope of a lost world (Acts 4:12).

COMMENTS

On The Sunday School Lesson

by The Editor

Lesson for February 1, 1948

THE PURPOSE OF JESUS' LIFE

Lesson: Isaiah 53:4-6; Matthew 1:12; 5:17; 20:26-28; Hebrews 4:15-16

IT SHOULD be evident to everyone that the purpose of Jesus' life here on this earth (and we must assume that the life spoken of in our lesson is His existence in human form here on the earth) is to be found in the words of Luke, in Luke 19:10, which is our Golden Text. It reads, "The Son of Man came to seek and to save that which was lost."

In the lesson text, taken from five different places in the Word, we find reference made to five phases of His task: 1. His sin bearing ability (Isaiah 53:4-6); 2. to be the savior of mankind in lost estate (Matthew 1:21); 3. to fulfill the law He had given (Matthew 5:17); 4. to minister to the needs of man and to give His life a ransom (Matthew 20:26-28); 5. to show us how to meet the temptations of life and how to overcome them (Hebrews 4:15-16).

We should remember that if Jesus had a purpose in coming to earth, we, too, should follow Him with a purpose, for a purposeless life is a life of failure. We should read carefully 1 Peter 2:21 in this connection, "For even hereunto were ye called: because Christ also suffered for us, leaving us an example, that we should follow in his steps."

These things should give us sufficient to think about for this lesson.

GOD'S LOVE

Mrs. Elmer Ebbinghouse

When winter comes
And spreads its robe of snow
Upon the hills, where lonely flowers sleep;
We all can know
It is the symbol
Of God's love and care!
He watches o'er each child—
He does not sleep!

Brethren Youth - - - - -

Attention Churches

Any churches desiring Brethren Crusadors or Ambassadors during the summer months, contact Ruth LaVonne Clapper, 1223 East Main Street, Louisville, not later than March 28, 1948. The Crusaders will be Christian young people especially trained in D. V. B. S. work, and the Ambassadors in Gospel Team Work.

Attention Young People

Any young person interested in participating in either of these fields of Christian work should also contact Miss Clapper by March 28th. Both part and full-time work is needed.

Remember

C H C H

Does Not Mean a Thing

UNLESS

U R

IN

IT

THE BRETHREN EVANGELIST

Published weekly, except the last week in August and
the last week in December.

THE BRETHREN PUBLISHING COMPANY

Ashland, Ohio

PRUDENTIAL COMMITTEE

J. E. Stookey, President N. G. Kimmel, Vice-President
J. G. Dodds, Secretary-Treasurer

EDITOR OF PUBLICATIONS—F. C. Vanator

BUSINESS MANAGER—G. S. Baer

EDITOR MISSIONARY NUMBER—E. M. Riddle

CONTRIBUTING EDITORS

Dr. Charles A. Bame Rev. Dyoll Belote

DEPARTMENTAL EDITORS

Dr. C. F. Yoder, Brethren Doctrine
Rev. N. V. Leatherman, Practical Church Problems
Rev. J. G. Dodds, National Goals
Dr. R. F. Porte, Brethren Church History

PLEASE REMEMBER: All material for publication in the Evangelist must be in the hands of the editor at least three weeks before the desired date of publication, to assure same to appear in desired issue. This refers to announcements particularly.

TERMS OF SUBSCRIPTION: $1.50 per year in advance.
CHANGE OF ADDRESS: In ordering change of address always
give both old and new addresses.

REMITTANCES Send all money, business communications, and contributed articles to:

THE BRETHREN PUBLISHING COMPANY
ASHLAND, OHIO

Entered as second class matter at Ashland, Ohio. Accepted for mailing
at special rate, section 1103, act of October 3, 1917. Authorized
September 3, 1928.

INTERESTING ITEMS

Akron, Ohio (Firestone Park). Brother J. G. Dodds reports the continued progress in the work of getting the new Akron church started. At the time we gleaned this news the foundation was in and the material for the superstructure was on the ground, with the builders expecting to start the labor on same at an early date. We will watch with interest, the growth of this new church building.

We note also that the enrollment of the Sunday School has reached the number of 110, with an average attendance during December of 77. The goal which is set to be reached by Easter Sunday is an enrollment of 150 with an average of at least 100 in attendance.

Masontown, Pennsylvania. Quoting from the Masontown bulletin of January 11, "The interior doors are being hung; kitchen sink installed; siding nearly completed, and floors filled." This, of course, had reference to the new parsonage. Brother Ankrum reports a generous contribution from an individual away from Masontown, which will be applied to the new parsonage fund.

Linwood, Maryland. Brother Elmer Keck reports the reception of one new member into the church on Sunday, December 28.

Cerro Gordo, Illinois. Brother Charles Johnson announces the date of their evangelistic meetings as February 1 to 15. He does not give the name of the evangelist.

The following officers were elected by the young people recently: President, Charles Nethery; Vice-President, Harold Nickey; Secretary-Treasurer, Martha Adams. Brother Johnson reports an increased interest being manifested in the organization.

St. James, Maryland. Brother Henry Bates, pastor of the church asks us to report a change which should have been made in the Annual number of the Evangelist (the Conference Annual number) which has to do with the membership of the St. James Church. Instead of the membership being 170 as it appears, this should read 203. We are glad to make this correction. So mark it in your annual.

While we are making this change we also wish that you would add to your church pastor's lists the following: Joseph Hamel, called to be student pastor of the Fairhaven, Ohio, Brethren Church. Also add to the list of ministers without churches the name of Thomas Shannon, Ashland, Ohio, who is a licensed minister by action of the Mid-West District of which he is a member. Brother Hamel's address is Ashland, Ohio.

Berlin, Pennsylvania. From Brother S. M. Whetstone's Berlin bulletin we quote the following: "The Berlin Brotherhood received the following communication: 'Your heifer, No. 8844 has been shipped to Italy on the S. S. Humanitas on December 3, 1947. We thank you for this contribution and shall forward any information regarding your heifer on to you as it comes to us.' Sincerely yours, Heifer Project Committee." We had a picture of the above heifer in the Evangelist not so long ago.

Waterloo, Iowa. The Annual Youth Banquet was held in the Waterloo Church on Saturday night, January 24. We hope to receive a full report of this meeting.

Mt. Pleasant, Pennsylvania. Brother H. R. Garland says he forgot to report the fine Communion which they had on the first Sunday of November when twenty-four surrounded the Lord's table.

Milledgeville, Illinois. The First Family Night Get-together for the new year was held in the Milledgeville Church on Monday, January 19. It was sponsored by Brother Harry Bushman's Class.

Brother D. C. White reports the average attendance for the last quarter of 1947 was 147, with an average offering of $27.26; Bibles carried averaged 46 and the visitor average was 4.

Loree, Indiana. Brother Higgins reports that the Building Committee and the Board of Trustees are going ahead with a remodeling campaign.

(Continued on Page 10)

The Editor Thinks Aloud

Fred C. Vanator

"LOOSE BOLTS VS. CHARGED BATTERIES"

EVERY once in a while one's eyes fall upon a striking statement. Such was the case a few days ago when I came upon the following, quoted from "The Sunday School Builder" and written by J. W. Storer:

"The greatest need of our denomination is not that it go into the organizational garage for simonizing and tightening of loose bolts; we need to have our batteries put on full charge."

While the above did not definitely refer to our own denomination, nevertheless it carries many implications that may apply to us as Brethren.

So, it set me to thinking!

Many times we meet the question, "Are we over-organized? Are we becoming unwieldy in our effort to meet all the goals and problems that are set forth in our program of activities? Are there too many tasks for single individuals, who are closely identified with the various phases of our activities?" In other words, (slang if you choose to call it so) "Isn't the vehicle 'squeaking' a little too much and shouldn't it be sent in for the tightening up process that will take out the 'squeaks'?"

In a great many cases it isn't a matter of "loose bolts," but rather one of "rusty, squeaky hinges," brought about by too infrequent use of the various parts of the vehicle. Rusty rails and a rocky roadbed on a branch of a great railroad system, tells of infrequent use, while bright, shining rails and a well kept right-of-way shows that the road is under full operation, serving the communities through which it passes.

If our organizations are serving a purpose, and we believe they are, they are all worth preserving. They are the outlet for individual expression that finds no other avenue. But we must remember that Divine Guidance, found only in the "prayer room," will do more toward strengthening the full structure of our organizational building than any other one thing. All real organizations of the church are born in prayer. Too many times, in future problems that confront these organizations, prayer is a minus quantity. Far too often we seek to "symonize" the machine and "tighten the bolts," forgetting that the source of power lies in the "battery" spark, without which the engine will not turn over.

Those of us who drive automobiles in the wintry weather, through extreme cold, know the necessity of keeping the battery to "full charge." Nothing is more aggravating than to step on the starter and have nothing happen. How do you suppose the Lord feels?

I think you see what I mean! In applying the thought to our organizations, you may use your own imagination. Think it over!

Life is long enough for him who knows how to use it.

Business Manager's Corner

George S. Baer

Johnstown Third Stays in with 97

WE HAVE just received from the Third church of Johnstown, Penna., a 100% list of subscribers to the number of 97. We are delighted that this splendid church under the leadership of Brother Chester Zimmerman is staying on the Honor Roll and has increased their list. They are sending a check covering the amount, and at the same time they are expecting to send in a Publication Day Offering, which is the proper thing to do. We appreciate large Evangelist subscription lists; they help us and they help the churches too. In addition to these checks for Evangelist subscriptions, Publication month (January) is the time for sending in extra checks to help pay the deficit on our publications. It is not possible to increase the circulation of our paper to the point where it will be self-supporting. The same is true of our quarterlies. That is the reason for the Publication Day Offering. Thanks to all the churches for their patronage in the use of our publications in every home, and for their support by the giving of generous Publication Day Offerings.

An Addressing Machine for Pastors

Pastors can save time in addressing circular letters and church bulletins by using the Elliott Addresserette, a small addressing machine built especially for churches, clubs and associations. Two of our pastors have already placed an order one, and in one case delivery has been made. It is hand operated and addresses from 15 to 21 different addresses per minute, which means it is from 5 to 7 times faster than hand addressing. It sells for $45.00, plus some necessary supplies. If interested, write for descriptive circular.

Additional Press Fund Reports

Mrs. H. S. Baker, Williamsport, Md.	$ 5.00
Mrs. Mary B. Turner, Bethlehem, Pa.	5.00
H. Wm. Fells, Ashland, Ohio	10.00
Bess Wissinger, Johnstown, Pa.	5.00
H. A. Gossard, Lanark, Ill.	50.00
Mr. and Mrs. D. Lee Garber, Mansfield, Ohio	2.00
Horace Huse, Ripon California (Manteca Ch.)	10.00
A Friend	10.00
Mrs. Ida Himiller, Bellefontaine, Ohio	2.50
Glade E. Miller, Waterloo, Iowa	20.00
C. P. Saylor, Union Bridge, Md.	22.00
(For total of Press Fund cash and pledges see page 16)

Supplies Still Going Up

We received notice from the Standard Publishing Company that certain of their church and Sunday school supplies had gone up in price and a long list of such items

(Continued on page 10)

Come Over Into Kentucky and Help Us

Rev. J. Milton Bowman

PAUL was headed for northeastern Asia when he was stopped in his tracks by a vision of a country desperately in need; the outstretched hands of a man whose urgent voice cried, "Come over into Macedonia and help us." A great historical event in the history of the church then took place, for the first Christian Church on the European continent was established, the church at Philippi. It became the foremost church in faith and love in Europe and had God's seal upon it. Paul's directed move to the west instead of to the east brought the advantages of Christianity, not only to the European continent, but also it leaped across the ocean to our own America.

We, today, are reaping the benefits of Christianity and civilization because this zealous missionary followed God's leading. What were some of the results? The Christian family, Christian hospitality, the uplifting of women and children to their rightful places in the scheme of God, freedom of worship, and among other things, exposure to the warm glow of the love of God, and finally, eternal life. So, one man, who "was not disobedient to the heavenly vision," left us this wonderful heritage.

Nearly forty years ago, a young couple saw visions and dreamed dreams. The call to the Kentucky hills was insistent. Even at the risk of their lives and through innumerable hardships, forgotten by many of their former friends, they continued to labor in bloody Breathit County until the light of life has flowed into the hearts of many mountain people. Eight or nine mission posts have been established throughout the Kentucky mountains by their efforts. A remarkable revival has broken out at Lost Creek in the past few months and hosts of souls have been won for Christ. Brilliant stars will shine in the crowns of the Drushals when they hear the voice of the Master saying, "Well Done!" Many Kentucky Christians unknown to us will have their names written in golden light in the Lamb's book of life.

It was Harrington Emmerson who said, "One single idea may have greater value than all the labor of all the men, animals, and engines for a century." How true this is! The Ashland Boys' Brotherhood had an idea. It looked impossible, but it lived; it sparked, and a much needed Dodge truck was presented to our missionaries in Kentucky. Even in the mountains of Kentucky, prices have soared; there are many mouths to feed at the mission schools; there are orphans who need our support; income has remained more or less fixed and costs have multiplied. Lest we forget, food is desperately needed down there.

In I John 3:17 we find a remarkable statement, "But if any one has the world's goods and sees his brother in need, yet closes his heart against him, how does God's love abide in him?" How does it? You answer.

Yes, an idea, however small, may have great value. Listen to a conversation in a Sunday School class meeting at Nappanee.

"Shall we have a fifty cent gift exchange this year?"

One answers, "I think we should skip it and bring toys for our work in Kentucky."

"Toys are good," says another, "but food and clothing are needed worse."

"Well, let's gather some money for food as well as toys," is suggested

Two young men said, "Why not try and fill a truck? We'll furnish the truck, pay all expenses, and take the goods down ourselves."

"That's a good idea," said another, "but why not let the entire church in on it?"

And so the idea grew. A half of a beef; fifty pounds of lard; cases of canned goods; clothing in great quantities; roof paint; wall paper; toys; bushels of vegetables; as well as cash. As the truck stood down town in front of the stores, merchants brought things—sacks of flour; forty loaves of bread from the local bakery; the meat market furnished many things until we had a large truck load of valuable goods. After the truck left, four crates of oranges were shipped down. And so the story goes.

Many years ago, Paul heard and answered the call to Macedonia. Forty years ago the Drushals, as young graduates of Ashland College, went hand in hand into the Kentucky hills. They too, in effect, heard a voice saying, "Come over into Kentucky and help us." The need is still very

(Continued bottom next column)

The Voice of Our Leaders -- Past and Present

Feet Washing

Rev. W. M. Lyon

* * *

(Taken from the files of The Evangelist of May 28, 1902.)

* * *

Jesus Christ, the author and finisher of our faith. Let us seek such a life that begins with Christ and ends with Him, and in order to do this, we shall do well to heed His example in all things.

But if verse 15 is not clear and definite enough, let us drop back to verse 14: "Ye also ought to wash one another's feet." Surely this is a "clincher," unless words have no meaning at all. If by His own example He meant something entirely different, why did He not say, "If I, then your Lord and Master, have washed your feet" (given you an example) "ye also ought to do whatever you think I mean by this," etc. How readest thou? If Jesus did not mean what He said, why didn't He say what He meant? Why did He do what He did, say what He said, and mean for us to do something else which He neither did nor said?

II. The Command

He not only gave the example, but followed it with a positive command. "Ye ought," "Ye should do." Why is it that this is not enough? Why not learn a lesson from the words of His mother? (John 2:5), "Whatsoever he saith unto you, do it." His words shall stand when heaven and earth shall have passed away. And by His words we shall finally be judged.

But many say "ought" does not carry with it sufficient force of itself to set forth a command. It is easy to say this but surely no scholar in Greek will risk his reputation in that way. If so, and that scholar (?) should read these lines, let him please, in his great wisdom, seek out a stronger word or term in the Greek language and

The force and power of personal example passes without question or hesitancy when applied to many other things, why should this constitute an exception? Please read 1 Peter 2:21. Here we find the key: Christ our example in suffering. Why? That we "should follow in his steps." Is not this clear and positive?

I. The Example of Christ

Let us turn to John 13:15 and see whether this statement of the apostle Peter agrees with that of the Great Teacher himself: "For I have given you an example that ye should do as I have done to you." The Master does not say, "I have given you an example in order to teach you a lesson in humility." Why is it that people continually insist upon it that the language of Jesus Christ means something so entirely foreign from what He has given us? Listen: "I have given you an example that ye should do something else — do something else represented by my own example." That is the way thousands read it, but not so with great down there. The fields are ripe for harvest; there is plenty of opportunity for expansion. Brethren laborers are few indeed. "Go," Christ said, "and lo, I am with you all the days."

—Nappanee, Indiana.

give it—a word sufficiently strong to mean real obligation, or carry with it essential force of a binding nature. But laying aside the matter of scholarship, let us try a more simple test. If “ought” and “should” are not strong enough terms with which to clothe a real command, suppose we try that same kind of reasoning on something else. “Men ought to pray”; does that mean that if they fail to pray it is all right anyhow? “A man ought to pay his debts”—but if he does not, he is still justified, because “ought” is too weak a word to mean real obligation! “A man ought to love his wife”—but then if he does not, he is still blameless, and not to be censured, unless you can find a word strong enough to mean something!

III. The Last and Great Commission of Christ Teaches It

Matthew 28:19-20, says, “Teaching them to observe all things whatsoever I have commanded you.” Is not footwashing a part of the “all things whatsoever?” But popular theology says, “Teach them to observe whatever you feel, or think, or believe, is really essential or necessary.” Now the question naturally arises, “If the command of footwashing is non-essential, how are we to know what is essential?”

Upon the same principle can we not put away the communion, baptism or any other gospel command? If not, point out the difference.

Christ instituted footwashing at the same time that He instituted the holy communion. He gave all of these things into the hands of His disciples on the same night, under the same circumstances, and then before He ascended, emphasized all that He had said and done by saying, “Teaching them to observe (do) all things whatsoever I have commanded you,” etc.

IV. A Symbol of Purification

Throughout the Bible, washing is used to represent purification, etc. How beautifully do we have this set forth in connection with the service of footwashing! And could there be anything more appropriate or significant than to observe this sacred ordinance in immediate connection with the Lord's supper and holy communion? In fact I take it that it is not only an emblem of spiritual cleansing, but it would also seem to be typical in its character. Please read Luke 12:37.

The hope of the church, as it is finally to be realized in the coming kingdom of God, is unmistakably represented in this language of the blessed Christ, and not to engage in the observance of this sacred rite would be to lose the blessing God would have us to realize proportionately as we would lose by our failure to partake of the sacred emblems of the communion.

In observing the ordinance of footwashing we rise above the standard of duty into the realm of our high privilege in Christ Jesus as partakers of the “divine nature,” and we see the greater and more blessed meaning of those words of the Divine Master, “What I do, thou knowest not now, but thou shalt know hereafter.” Beloved, we can only see the real meaning of this blessed rite as we view it in the light of Luke 12:37.

Footwashing is a symbol of the necessity of constant cleansing in the blood of Jesus. Traveling this earthly pathway of human existence, our feet come in touch with that which represents sin and evil, and so most graciously do we have given to us this beautiful symbol showing forth our privilege in Christ and the spiritual necessity of constant purification by His blood.

We have already been washed in the baptism of regeneration; our bodies have been washed with pure water (Hebrews 10:22) and therefore, need not be repeated, except the washing of the feet. John 13:10.

But some say, “footwashing is an ancient custom,” “they wore sandals,” etc. Shall we excuse ourselves on account of such objections? Let us reason: Eating and drinking is rather an ancient custom, therefore let us put away the eating of the bread of communion and the drinking of the cup. Praying is rather ancient too, why not set aside that? And then there is marrying and giving in marriage; they are about as ancient as anything. Why perpetuate such customs?

But Jesus did not repeat an ancient custom when He instituted footwashing. If so, why did He say, “What I do thou knowest not now.” Never such a scene as that before. Never before had mortal eyes rested upon such an act. By divine command priests used to wash their own feet before entering the sanctuary. Exodus 30:19-21. Servants washed their master's feet. 1 Samuel 25:40-41. Hosts supplied water for guests to wash their own feet. Judges 19:21. But it remained for Christ to institute the washing of one another's feet. No wonder then that we have the words, “What I do thou knowest not now.”

Then let us accept the example and command and teachings of the Lord Jesus Christ. He enjoined this upon Peter under no less penalty than excision from His kingdom. Let us accept it with its sacred symbolic import. It is a heaven-born reminder of our need of constant cleansing. Are we better than the apostles? Is not the way of life still difficult and do we not still need to be "doers of the word," and not hearers only? Many have said to me, "I think it is all right; the lesson is most beautiful and all that, but really I would not like to do that publicly." In other words, they acknowledge that they would be ashamed to do these things. But let us not forget what Jesus Himself has said about being ashamed of Him and His words. Luke 9:26.

“Trust and obey,
For there’s no other way
To be happy in Jesus,
But to trust and obey.”

And we prove that we are trusting and believing God by our obedience and by that only. "If ye know these things, happy are ye if ye do them."

~~~~~

WITH THE LAYMEN

~~~~~

INDIANA SOUTHERN DISTRICT MEET

THE LAYMEN of the Southern Indiana District of Brethren Churches met at the Roann Church on Monday evening, November 17, 1947, for their regular quarterly meeting. The ladies of the church served a delicious meal in the basement of the church, after which we gathered in the church auditorium for our evening program.

The program had been arranged by George Giltner, Philip Burnworth and Guy Purdy of the entertaining church. J. Robert Ridenour, chairman of the local group, presided. We were fortunate in securing Don Johnson of the local Methodist church as pianist for the evening. Brother "Bud" Hunter led us in group singing, using "The Way of the Cross Leads Home" and "Higher Ground." Brother Lloyd Miller led us in our evening devotions, using Psalm 107:1-15 as the basis of his remarks. We were then favored with a special piano number by Don Johnson; a vocal duet by "Bud" Hunter and Harry Mishler of the North Manchester Church, and two readings by David Downey of the College Corner Church. Each of these numbers were greatly appreciated by all.

Brother Hunter, district chairman, had charge of the business session. The reports of the secretary and treasurer were read and approved. Roll call resulted in the showing that there were ninety-two present. College Corner and Roann reported new organizations. The nominating committee passed out the ballots for the election of officers of the coming year. The result of the election was as follows:

Chairman ..H. D. "Bud" Hunter, North Manchester
Vice-ChairmanHerman Hood, College Corner
Secretary-TreasurerGuy V. Purdy, Roann

Rev. C. F. Golden of the Chili Baptist Church was then introduced as the speaker of the evening. He used as his subject "Voices." He spoke of a number of voices through the scriptures—"The voice of God calling to Adam and Eve; the voice of Noah preaching to the people for 120 years, telling of the coming of the flood which would destroy the human race; the voice of Moses as he led the people of Israel out of the land of bondage into the promised land, and the voice of the people rebelling against him; the voice of Jonah in the wicked city of Nineveh and how his voice was heeded; the voice of John the Baptist, the forerunner of Christ, saying that there was one coming after him whose shoe laces he was not worthy to unloose; the voice of Christ speaking with authority; the voice of Pilate saying, 'I find no fault in this man'; the voice of the mob saying, 'Crucify him, crucify him!'" He then spoke of the number of voices that had been heard in the last decade. The voice of Kaiser Wilhelm and the mass of his followers; the voice of Russia, and now the voice of Communism. He said that unless the mass of Protestant Christianity popularizes the voice of Christ, we will make the last world war look like a miniature one. The most important power is that called Christian. He closed his remarks by speaking of the appearances of Jesus—how He appeared in the flesh and how He died that we might live and is now at the right hand of God interceding for you and me. How some day He is coming to receive the church, His bride, unto Himself. Be ye ready lest ye hear not His voice and miss His appearing. We, as Christian, must put forth the voice and know nothing but the name of Jesus and Him crucified. There are three things on earth that bear testimony—the water, the blood and the Spirit. Thanks be to God if we hear today the voice of the Spirit. There is a time coming when we will hear the voice of Jesus saying, "Come up higher."

After the message the Rev. Arthur J. Tinkel favored us with a vocal solo and Brother J. Robert Ridenour pronounced the benediction.

All Members of the District—Please NOTE: Our next meeting will be held on February 16, at the Flora Brethren Church. Each man is requested to bring his own son or sons, or some boy with him. Please don't forget!

Guy V. Purdy, Secretary.

* * * * *

NOTICE TO SOUTHERN INDIANA
DISTRICT LAYMEN

* * * * *

The Flora Church will be our host on February 16. Supper will be served at the usual hour. This will be in the nature of a Father and Son Meeting, in the hope that we can encourage Brotherhood work in the District, and thus assist the local Laymen's groups to attain goal Number Ten in our National Work.

* * * * *

May we have a delegation from every church in the district and lend every effort in the Laymen's Brotherhood work.

* * * * *

"Bud" Hunter, Chairman So. Ind. Dist.

* * * * *

Our St. James, Maryland Church Has a Fire

We are in receipt of a newspaper clipping from Brother Henry Bates, pastor of the St. James Brethren Church, telling of what might have been a very disastrous fire in the church there.

On Sunday morning, January 11, while the Sunday School was in session, fire was discovered around the chimney, having eaten through the roof, and through one of the inner walls of the building. Quoting from the paper clipping, "The blaze was discovered by one of the women attending children in a nursery group, as she climbed to the attic to get some equipment. Members of the congregation who were singing the opening hymn for the service, quickly evacuated the church and helped remove the pews, pulpit, and other church property. A brief service was held inside after the fire was extinguished. Members of the Western Enterprise and Williamsport Fire Companies battled the blaze." Brother Bates says the damage will amount to about $2,000.00 which is covered by insurance. Plans are being made to immediately repair the damage. Brother Bates promises us a full report soon.

Brethren Youth

In Northern Indiana

ON OCTOBER 21, 1947, about one hundred and twenty young people met together in the Goshen Church. A lovely organ prelude was played by Jean Rowsey of Goshen. Phil Warner, the presiding officer of the host church, led the group in prayer. The song, "In My Heart There Rings a Melody," was sung by the group.

The Secretary's report was read and accepted. The Treasurer reported a balance of $107.60. Election of officers was held with the following being elected:

President Eleanor Mamerow, North Liberty
Vice-President Phil Warner, Goshen
Secretary Janet King, Elkhart
Treasurer Mary Murray, Goshen
Advisor Council: Charles Bonsell, Elkhart; W. I. Duker, Milford; J. M. Bowman, Nappanee; Woodrow Brant, Warsaw.

It was decided to send a check for $80.00 to be used for material in building up the beach at Shipshewana. The North Liberty group extended an invitation to meet with them on January 20, 1948. An announcement was made concerning the Indiana Temperance movement.

Don Chiddister of the host church read devotions from Luke 6:27-38. Woodrow Brant, pastor of the Warsaw Church, led in prayer. The hymn, "The Church's One Foundation," was sung. Julia King played a clarinet solo, "Berceuse from Jocelyn," during the offering. Charlie Wicks, youth leader of the Goshen Church, spoke on the subject, "Youth Responsibility." Jean Rowsey played the violin solo, "Adoration."

Rosena Gearhart gave a brief report of the National Brethren Youth Conference. The attendance banner was awarded to Nappanee with 24 present.

Fun and refreshments were enjoyed as a "Fall Fair."

Rosemary Roose, Secretary

Janet King, Assistant Secretary.

Spiritual Meditations

Rev. Dyoll Belote

CALLING NAMES

" * * * And the disciples were called Christian first in Antioch." Acts 11:26b.

SEATED at the table of a friend some time since, the conversation drifted—not by my leading—to various beliefs and teachings in the religious realm. A young woman, who stays in the host's home, proceeded to pay some rather caustic compliments to the bulk of the churches of our city, making several "passes" at what she called the "Modernist" churches. Then she remembered that there was company present and then she "red-facedly" apologized, assuring the group she was not including any particular denomination in the classification.

As I sat and listened to her it occurred to me to wonder whether or not we are not all guilty, at times, of classifying everyone who does not bear the seal of our approval as "Modernists." I am perfectly well aware of the presence of false teachings and teachers in the world, but it appeals to me that we need to understand the meaning of "terms" and "tags" before we attach them to those whom we meet, and whose lives and motives we may not altogether understand. I have noted many times that people with whom I have talked hold the same views on life's problems that I do, but because they have but a limited vocabulary they do not use the same terms to express themselves; and yet they are just as earnest believers as I.

"Calling names" is a past-time that more than one can play at. By the Mexicans, we of the United States are called "Gringos." Just what the term implies we do not know, but we do know that it is not one of respect and honor. I believe that the "complimentary" (?) term used by Americans for the Mexicans is "Greasers." Now the use of either term does not lead to better understanding between the two nations. If ever the United States and Mexico reach amicable relations that will last it will not be by the use of these un-"complimentary" appellations in speaking of each other.

"Calling names" may be an amusing game for some thoughtless folk, but it never led to a greater respect of the participants for each other, and too frequently ends in heated argument and angry words, if not worse.

Another thing that needs to be remembered is that names applied to movements and enterprises are not always meant as expressions of disrespect, but only as designations to distinguish the adherents thereto from those holding similar, but not identical views, on the same subject.

Too, we need to remember that because someone differs with us on any topic is not necessarily proof of a weak mind on their part. It might be as easily true on the other hand. If the matter over which men differ is a debatable one, then it will have adherents and opponents, for nothing but "a self-evident truth" "needs no demonstration." And the demonstration may provoke the discussion.

Well, those who were once dubbed "Christians" in Antioch, far back in history, are today the bearers of a title that commands respect and reverence, if consistently worn. Let us see that our title is magnified by our words and deeds.

—Uniontown, Pennsylvania.

The National Sunday School Association

Rev. N. V. Leatherman, General Secretary,
104 S. Mulberry St., Hagerstown, Md.

OVERHEAD

Rev. E. L. Miller

THIS IS NOT a dissertation on or about flying saucers, rocket planes, air travel of any sort or air-borne messages. Neither is it concerned with the bugbear of business, cost of operation. We might say something about such matters and they do intrigue us. Overhead in business is much like friction in machinery, it wears and tears things to pieces by and by. What we are concerned about is the overhead in life. We do get excited about what it is costing us when we neglect the proper rearing and teaching of our greatest asset and charge—our children. Yes, there is an overhead in the properly rearing of them. Home and school must bear quite a burden in this effort. And it seems that at times the effort is more or less wasted and the overhead a dead loss. To prevent such loss and such disappointment in life the Sunday School movement addresses itself.

The hundreds of thousands of juvenile cases before the courts of our land mean that we are spending great amounts of money that should be used to better service to children and parents, as well as society in general. Society has the bill to pay, and society should wake up and put more of moral teaching into the curricula of our public schools and demand better service in moral ways from such educators as the moving picture industry and the magazine publishers. What stuff they do publish and what awful impressions they do make on the minds of the young with their maudlin and pornographic prancing on the silver screen! Officers of the law can tell you what the overhead is in this game of child destruction and moral depravity. No parent or adult of any kind should take all this for granted and say it is terrible but nothing can be done about it. Bosh! Something can be done and is being done, but not enough folks are properly interested in the matter or more could be done and a clean-up could be had in all our communities.

It is sad to note how some folks excuse themselves from doing anything along this line by saying, "You can't legislate folks to be good and you can't put moral programs in your legal system." Again I would say this all is what the boys would call pure "Bunk." Ever since laws have been made the moral side of life has been included in them. What folks do want to say is that you should not try to legislate against their pet sins and those of their children and friends. That's what is the matter with our social order today. There is too much specious legislation and personal demand to be "let alone."

But leaving the legislative side of it out, we still feel much is being done to correct things and the church and Sunday School are the two great organizations in this work. Sad again that many church folks are caught in the game of increasing the overhead in producing a generation of decent folks. But our children are still the main consideration of the true church and Sunday School workers. The Brethren Sunday School work as headed by the National Sunday School Association of the church is wide awake here and all effort possible is being made to bring the child up in the way he should go. The stress on summer camps and better Sunday Schools along with the effort to make our college at Ashland more effective Christian training is part of the work of the Association. Stand back of every effort being made to reduce the awful overhead, loss, waste of time and money now being checked up as we read the reports of all the agencies at work trying to save our youth from despair and death, this both of spiritual and physical order.

—Maurertown, Va.

"FORGET IT"

If you see a tall fellow ahead in the crowd,
A leader of men, marching fearless and proud,
And you know of a tale whose mere telling aloud
Would cause his proud head in anguish to be bowed,
It's a pretty good plan to forget it.

If you know of a skeleton hidden away
In a closet, and guarded and kept from the day
In the dark, whose showing, sudden display
Would cause grief and sorrow and lifelong dismay,
It's a pretty good plan to forget it.

If you know anything that will darken the joy
Of a man or woman, a girl or a boy,
That will wipe out a smile or the least way annoy
A fellow, or cause any gladness to cloy,
It's a pretty good plan to forget it.

If you know of a thing, just the least little sin,
Whose telling would cork up a grin
Of a man you don't like, for the Lord's sake keep it in!
Don't don't be a knocker, right here stick a pin—
It's a pretty good plan to forget it.—The Baptist.

Little minds are tamed and subdued by misfortune;
but great minds rise above it.—Washington Irving.

Young Men and Boys' Brotherhood

February Program

1. Scripture Order
2. Praise and Prayer
3. Bible Study:

A Helpful Boy Makes a Successful Man Genesis 26:12-25

ISAAC became a successful man because he was a good boy. He was obedient and helpful to his father. He must have been kind and thoughtful to his aged mother. As a lad his life was saved by an angel. What event was this? The name Isaac means "cheerful."

A little boy said that he loved his mother with all his strength. When asked what he meant he explained that their home was on the fourth floor of the house in which they lived. Since his mother was busy and not very strong he carried the wood needed for their fuel from the basement. That was what he called loving his mother with all his strength. It is one thing to say, "I love you, mother," and quite another thing to show it in actual helpfulness.

God was good to Isaac, and this is the true explanation of his prosperity. God gave him good parents. Can you tell their names? God also directed his father's servant to find him a beautiful wife. Have one of your group to tell about it. (Genesis 24). Isaac was sole heir to his father's wealth. When Isaac sowed seed God made it bear a hundredfold. God trusted Isaac with many things because he trusted Him.

Because Isaac had many flocks and herds he became a well-digger. He knew he must do his part to succeed in life. The site of some of his wells is still viewed by travelers in Palestine. Although he was good and kind to his neighbors and good people loved him, some envied him because of his riches. In order to avoid trouble Isaac moved from one place to another. Finally his enemies stopped following him. Isaac had mastered them. And for his trouble God led him to an artesian well. To stop up a well in those days would be like setting fire to some one's house. Because Isaac showed such a noble spirit after such mean treatment his enemies agreed with him not to hurt him any more if he would not hurt them. They came to fear Isaac because they saw that God was with him. Thus God overruled their envy to the good of Isaac. Christ was crucified because of the envy of the Jews but God overruled to bring salvation to all who will receive it.

To have the blessing of God is better than fighting and contending for one's rights. On earthly and personal matters we please God by yielding, being forgiving and peaceable. It is better to be like Isaac than like the wicked people that did wrong to him. It may be hard at the time, but we shall have no regrets afterward. Christ taught us to return good for evil. We are to think of how we may help and bless even our enemies. Read about the "coals-of-fire" way to treat an enemy in Rom. 12:8; Matt. 5:38-48.

Wherever Isaac lived he built an altar. That meant family prayer and praise. Satan does not want Christ to be honored in our homes and hearts. But God instituted the home, and He alone can protect it. He waits for us to ask His blessing and favor. Read Rev. 3:20 and John 14:23. The family altar today will give us the benefit of these verses of Scriptural promise.

4. Business
5. Recreation

Suggestion: True missionary stories for only 10 cents each, called Eagle Books, may be obtained from the Friendship Press, 156 Fifth Ave., New York. These booklets can be used as a circulating library in the Brotherhood or as mission stories for oral reports in the monthly meetings. Write the above firm for titles.

Interesting Items

(Continued from Page 2)

North Manchester, Indiana. Brother Bert Hodge reports that their Teacher Training Class is now entering upon a series of lessons about the prophecies preceding the birth of Christ, His death, resurrection, ministry and the meaning of His teachings.

A service of Ordination of Deacons and Deaconesses will be a part of the services on Sunday, January 25.

Ashland, Ohio. The Evangelistic Committee of the Ashland Church has arranged for the evangelistic services in the Ashland Church to be held from March 7 through Palm Sunday, March 21. Brother Delbert Flora, of the Ashland Seminary, will bring the messages.

Mexico, Indiana. New piano and pulpit lamps have been installed by two of the families of the Mexico church. Pulpit chairs are also due to arrive shortly.

Pittsburgh, Pennsylvania. Our Pittsburgh brethren united with the other churches in their area in observing the Week of Prayer. Brother Crick was one of the speakers, and one of the services was held in our church.

Business Manager's Corner

(Continued from page 3)

was listed. Remember this when our charges to you are not according to the catalog listing.

About Evangelist Subscription Price

We are not announcing an increase in the price of The Evangelist, for the Publication Board has not taken action, but the price of labor as well as paper has recently taken a sharp rise. A raise in wages has been due for some time and we must now meet it. If any are willing to voluntarily increase their Evangelist payment to $2.00, we will appreciate it. This suggestion is to individual subscribers. We don't expect 100% churches to send more than the regular $1.50 per. But we will be interested in seeing how many others are willing to raise the price on themselves. And we thank you all in advance.

CHRISTIAN ENDEAVOR TOPIC

W. St. Clair Benshoff, Topic Editor

"Topics copyrighted by the International Society of Christian Endeavor.
Used by permission."

Topic for February 8, 1948

KEEPING COURTSHIP CHRISTIAN

Scripture: Gen. 29:16-20; Ruth 2:8-17

For The Leader

WE ARE beginning tonight the first of four discussions under the general heading, "Courtship and Marriage." And when we observe the failure of so many of our marriages today, it is evident that much time can well be spent on this problem. Social, civic and welfare organizations are endeavoring to analyze the difficulties from a purely materialistic and ethical viewpoint. We will want to find the solution from the viewpoint of God and the individuals, rather than just the individuals alone. In this first topic, the matter of Courtship is discussed.

DISCUSSION

1. PICK CHRISTIAN FRIENDS. A young Christian girl marries an unchristian boy. The marriage fails. Or if it doesn't go entirely on the rocks, there can never be real peace and unity in the home. Why? Because the two parties are as far apart in their spiritual aspects as north is from the south. If she is a true Christian she cannot rest in peace knowing her husband is unsaved. She wants to attend church. He has no interest, and begs her to give up her church so she can spend more time with him. That's really making your bed and sleeping in it. The difficulty started when she was choosing her friends. For one friend you meet will without doubt be your husband or your wife. Most young people are too careless in picking friends today. Dance halls, taverns, high school dances, all breed the vices which involve Christian young people with the vulgar type of young people. Pick your friends from your church group, and you are running the best chance of meeting one who will insure for you the happiest kind of a marriage.

2. HOW CAN YOU KNOW? Most young people when they have "kept company" with a fine member of the opposite sex sooner or later give consideration to the matter of life companionship. That is the real purpose of courtship, to decide and choose and analyze, to determine the proper mate for yourself. And much prayerful and sane thought should be given to this. For, when you walk up to the preacher and say, "I do," God and the state insists that you never change your mind. So, how can you know when you have the right one? Consider their habits, what their home looks like, his or her parents, how they treat old people, how they treat children. Consider your likes and dislikes against that of your friend. The best way is to pray to God about it. After all, marriage is His appointed institution, and He has a right to help you choose your mate. He can weed out a dozen or more "close friends" and lead you to the one and only, with whom you can have a life time of happiness. That is, if you are willing to wait, and to seek His leading.

3. DAMAGED GOODS. Shortly after Christmas a lady went into a store and saw a large pile of white blouses all tumbled together on a counter marked, "special 49c each." They were all mussed and some were soiled. Across on another counter were beautifully starched blouses, white and clean, marked, "The best in blouses, $4.95." Inquiry revealed that the blouses for 49c were of the same material as the better ones, and once had been as fresh and clean as the more expensive ones. The cheap ones had become shop worn and soiled from much handling during the Christmas rush. Lives are that way. Far too many of our young people have been "handled, damaged and shop worn," until there is no price of decency or respect upon them. They are just cheap moral rubbish, taken only by those who, because of their own condition, cannot afford any one better. Keep yourself on the pure clean side in your conduct on dates that you might be a prized possession for the one who can rightly claim you because of their own purity of living.

4. CHOOSING ARIGHT. Jacob was really in love. Not puppy love, nor the attraction based on money, glamor, or disillusion. But he loved Rachel dearly. He was devoted to her, and the years that he served for her hand were as nothing, because of his great love. He had chosen one of his own group and he could be genuinely happy with her. Without doubt he chose aright. Samson chose one of the Philistine women, and came to ruin through her craftiness. He possessed her body, but Samson never possessed her heart. Thus we are not to be unequally yoked together with unbelievers. There has yet to be a Christian married to an unchristian which has worked out all right for all parties concerned. Unchristian people belong to another world. Avoid them in choosing a mate. Don't marry one on the pretense of their promise of "joining your church." What they won't do before marriage, they won't do afterwards! Pick your friends from Christians, and you will be choosing aright.

5. SOME GOOD RULES TO FOLLOW. (A) On a date, pray that God will keep you and protect you.

(B.) Pray God's help in choosing your dating friends.

(C.) Dates need not degenerate into kissing or "necking" parties. If that's the main point of a date, you don't have your objectives very high.

(D.) You don't have to "neck" to be popular. Yes, you may be popular as a "date," but your friend won't have a whole lot of respect for you. Why? Because he or she knows you are that way with the other kids you date.

(E.) Have self-respect for your name, your body, your Christian profession, and others will have respect for you.

(F.) Become engaged only after careful study, thought and prayer.

(G.) Use the engagement period as a time of testing. Check motives, conduct, kindness, ability to work.

(H.) If it is discovered that you have become "unsuited" to each other, better break the engagement. That's better than an unhappy marriage.

(I.) Meet your engaged one in prayer; for your plans, for God's possession of your lives.

(J.) Take God into your plans of courtship, engagement and anticipated marriage.

(K.) Live now, for the happy day to come.

Courtship is a wonderful time of fellowship with other young people. You will be supremely happy later on that you kept your courtship and friendship conduct on a Christian level always.

Prayer Meeting Topic

Contributed by Rev. C. Y. Gilmer

(Helps for Praying People)

FOR WHOM I PRAY

By Martha Snell Nicholson

They seem a separate company,
Special and set apart,
And each one bears, all unaware,
The imprint of my heart;

For these are those for whom I pray,
The ones whose names I speak
Before God's throne, the ones for whom His favor I would seek.

Some are my nearest, dearest; some
But strangers in the street,
And some are those of whom I read,
But each name has a sweet

Significance, as though my Lord
And I a secret shared
About them, which will come to light
The day when hearts are bared.

And all the hidden things made known.
Dear ones for whom I pray,
How sweet to meet you face to face
On Heaven's streets some day!

INTERCESSORY PRAYER

Scripture: John 17:9-24

Hymns: "For You I Am Praying," "When Wilt Thou Save the People?" "God Bless Our Native Land," "Where Is My Wandering Boy, Tonight?"

Leader's Petition

Thought Provokers:

ABRAHAM prayed for his selfish nephew, Lot, who had gone worldly, and whose family had gone more worldly (Gen. 18:23-32). Lot was certainly no asset to Sodom or he would have won ten souls, and the city would have been spared! He certainly needed prayer. God in mercy delivered Lot and his two unmarried daughters. But his wife, married daughters and sons-in-law were consumed. Abraham had prayed for Lot and he was spared.

But for the prayer of Moses God would have annihilated a whole nation, instead of cutting off but three thousand of the idolators. The lives of that people depended upon the prayer of faith by Moses (Ex. 32:11-13).

Samuel congregated the children of Israel to pray for them and to judge them because they had sinned against the Lord (1 Sam. 7:1-5). King Solomon in his prayer at the dedication of the temple made intercession for the wayward (1 Kings 8:30-36). When King Hezekiah proclaimed a solemn passover some failed to qualify externally as partakers were commanded to do, and the King interceded for them (2 Chron. 30:17-20).

When Nehemiah realized the condition of his beloved city, Jerusalem, he wept, mourned, and fasted. Then he prayed. He prayed in December, through January, February, March and April. His earnest and patient intercession was wonderfully answered (Neh. 1:4-11; 2:2-8). Nehemiah knew how to get the ear of God. Truly we are to wait on God and spend whatever time is necessary in pleading prayer. Bible saints wept before God in prayer (1 Sam. 15:11). Even Daniel fasted and prayed and made confession of his sins and the sins of his people in his intercession for them (Dan. 9:3-19).

Well known New Testament incidences of intercessory prayer are to be found in Acts 7:60; 8:15; 12:5; 2 Thess. 1:11; Col. 4:12; Philemon 22.

Do you have a prayer list—a daily prayer list? To make such a list—an accumulating list—will insure against the sin of negligence. Be sure to make notation of every answer to prayer. It will pay to keep a record. "It will surprise you what the Lord hath done," some day! Let us be encouraged by the incidents in this lesson to pray. We can go with our prayers where we cannot go with our feet. Let us intercede for people whom we have never seen, for people all the way around the globe.

COMMENTS

On The Sunday School Lesson

by The Editor

Lesson for February 8, 1948

"WHAT THINK YE OF CHRIST?"

Lesson: John 6:35-40; Colossians 1:9-20

UPON WHAT I think of Christ goes very far in relating my life and activities to both God and my fellowman.

After all, just how much do we know about Jesus and how do we relate our knowledge of Him to our own experiences? Our only source of knowledge, of course, is what we find in the Bible and through our own experiences with Him. We do know that He was revealed to men in His days here on earth and that it was not "flesh and blood" that revealed that knowledge to men, but as Jesus said, "it is revealed by my Father which is in heaven." In other words He was received into men's hearts "by faith" just as He must be received today.

In our first verse we find Jesus declaring himself to be "the bread of life." In other words, we must believe that He is the source of spiritual sustenance, feeding us at all times and especially in time of need. We must think of Him as such a provider. Failure to so think can only lead to a distrust of His ability so to do. What I personally think about this, very materially either helps or hinders my Christian life.

The key words in this first scripture (John 6:35-40) must surely be, "utter dependence on Him in all things."

Higley's Commentary (much used in our Brethren Sunday Schools as a teacher's guide) has this statement, "Foolish men endeavor to secure satisfaction through earthly food and drink, which perisheth, but refuse to come to Christ that they may have life and the food and drink that completely satisfies the soul and that endureth forever."

In our Colossian passage (Col. 1:9-20) we find a prayer for the greatest thing in the world—"the knowledge of the will of God." W. R. Nicholson says, "Wisdom is the knowledge of the best means for attaining to the best ends. But the knowledge of moral and spiritual things is essentially conditioned by a state of sympathy with them." To do God's will we must be in entire sympathy with the ends He has in sight.

We need strength which can be attained by "patience and longsuffering with joyfulness." This must be accompanied by the "giving of thanks."

It is essential that we realize the fullness of the description which Paul lays before us in this Colossian passage, of the "powers" embodied in Jesus—Creator; head of the body, the church; the beginning; first born from the dead; preeminent One. It is thus we must think of Him and ascribe unto Him all Majesty and Power, and Dominion and Might."

What think ye of Christ? This is the all-important question!

Laid to Rest

YOUNG—Helen Francis (Moss) Young of the Loree, Indiana, congregation was called from the scenes of earth to her eternal reward from Dukes Memorial Hospital in Peru, Indiana, on December 3, 1947, at the age of 51 years. Sister Young taught school for a number of years and in 1923 was united in marriage to John A. Young. Since their marriage they lived on a farm near Onward, Indiana. Although their home was not blessed with any children of their own, their home has been a home for several homeless children.

Early in life she accepted Christ as her Saviour and united with the Baptist Church in Bunker Hill, Indiana. After her marriage with Brother Young she became a member of the Loree Brethren church. Here she was ever loyal and faithful to all of the churches interests. She was teacher of the Women's Bible Class for a period of years. She bore her last illness with Christian grace and fortitude, being perfectly resigned to the will of the Lord for her. She had made every preparation for her departure to be with her Lord, which she felt was "far better" for her. Her's was a beautiful life and the esteem in which she was held in the church and community was evidenced by the many beautiful floral offerings and the great throng of people that were in attendance at the last rites. In her going she leaves the husband and an adopted son. The day following her death Brother Young met with an auto accident which placed him in the hospital where he remains at this writing, two weeks later.

Peace to him and to the son who needed a mother's care, and to all who share the loss of one who filled a large place in their lives.

The funeral rites were conducted in the Loree Brethren church by the writer assisted by Rev. Thomas Shively of the Church of the Brethren and Rev. W. C. Clark of the Bunker Hill Baptist Church.

C. C. Grisso.

When life is discovered at its truest and best, we are not troubled with any idle moments.

News From Our Churches

PARK STREET BRETHREN, ASHLAND, OHIO

Because of the prolonged illness of Rev. Benshoff, we found it necessary to call another pastor to the Park Street Church in Ashland. As Brother Benshoff had proved himself an excellent preacher, we considered a successor to him only because he was physically unable to continue his ministry.

By a unanimous call, the congregation extended an invitation to Brother H. H. Rowsey, of Goshen, to accept the position of pastor. After his acceptance, whenever Brother Benshoff was unable to preach, the pulpit was filled by different resident elders and group organizations, until Dec. 18, when the Rowseys moved to Ashland and into the newly redecorated parsonage.

Although we are hoping to make further improvements and additions to the parsonage, the Rowseys have been very appreciative of the work that has been done.

On Dec. 22, a Reception-Dinner was held for the pastor and family. During the meal dinner music was furnished by an instrumental trio composed of Jeannette DeLozier, flute; Carolyn Bixler, cello; Jeanne Lindower, piano.

Harry Weidenhamer, acting as toastmaster, introduced Elton Whitted, who led the group in singing Christmas carols. E. P. Lersch, church moderator, officially welcomed the Rowsey family. Rev. Koepplin, pastor of the Peace Lutheran Church and president of the City Ministerial Association, welcomed Brother Rowsey in behalf of the organization. Rev. F. C. Vanator presented an entire Christmas dinner to the pastor and family, a gift from the Builder's Sunday School Class.

Concluding the program, a quartet, Jeannette DeLozier, Joann Riddle, Dorman Ronk and John Lindower, sang a group of Christmas songs.

The church choir, under the direction of Mrs. Victor Humm, presented one entire evening of Christmas music. Mrs. Harry Dotson is the organist for the group.

On New Year's Day, the Rowsey's held open house at the Parsonage so that we might all meet them informally and that we might see the improvement that had been made in the Parsonage.

Now the new year of Pastor Rowsey coincides with the calendar year. May we all heed the admonition of his New Year's sermon so that with all of us it will be, "In the Beginning God."

We are eager for the prayers of all Christian people that we may faithfully serve our Lord and that Brother Benschoff, who continues to live in Ashland, may regain his health and again be able to continue a great Christian ministry.

Mrs. L. E. Lindower

REVIVAL AT CENTER CHAPEL, INDIANA

Having hardly become settled on our new field at Warsaw, Indiana, we journeyed to the Center Chapel Brethren Church to hold a series of evangelistic services, which began on Monday evening, October 6, 1947 and closed on Sunday night, October 19. To say the least, our stay was delightful. The evangelist was entertained royally in the Christian home of Mr. and Mrs. Oscar Summers and their lovely children. I was made to feel at home and soon became as a member of the family.

The good pastor of this fine country church, Rev. Austin Gable, proved to be a fine yoke-fellow and with him we called in most of the homes in the community. We were received very graciously into the local high school and Rev. Gable led the group in singing, read a scripture lesson and sang a solo, after which the evangelist spoke to a very responsive group of Junior and Senior High School students.

Rev. Gable proved to be a very capable song leader and quite often brought the special number. We were blessed with much fine music from the local church and the visitors who supported the entire meetings very faithfully. We tried by the help of God, to bring whole gospel messages and by the work of the Holy Spirit we had several first time confessions and rededications of life.

This country church throws out a challenge to any church in the brotherhood in their fine attendance and support in these services. We averaged well over one hundred for the entire services. Several services found the commodious church filled to capacity.

We wish to thank the Center Chapel church for their kind consideration and for providing for our every need. These women proved to be wonderful cooks and kept Rev. Gable and myself filled at all times. We wish to thank all who treated us so wonderfully and especially the Summers who entertained so royally; the church for their gracious gift of money and other gifts of steak, pork chops, and bacon. May God richly bless this fine congregation and their devoted pastor.

W. B. Brant, Warsaw, Indiana.

VALLEY BRETHREN, JONES MILLS, PENNSYLVANIA

It has been some time since our last writing, so I suppose it is time to give an account of our actions in this part of the Lord's vineyard.

The young people's class of the Valley Church sponsored a project to do some work on the inside of our church building, such as papering, painting the floor, and refinishing the ceiling with panel board. The class now has the funds on hand with which to begin the work, as soon as they are able to locate the panel board for the ceiling. This is going to make a great improvement to our church edifice. After this work is completed we hope to start a project for new seats, as the ones we are using are not so good; in fact, some of the Brethren call them back-breakers. If you know what that is. If anyone in the Brotherhood knows or learns of some good seats that are going to be disposed of, we would appreciate a card from you. Seats for our church would have to be about twelve feet long.

We also began work on a driveway in our church lot which we hope to finish in the spring. This will give more parking space, and also make it possible to get the cars off the highway.

Our fall communion was held the ninth of November with a fine group of folks surrounding the Lord's Table.

While I was on vacation in Maryland this summer, I was able to make some tentative arrangements for a winter revival and after coming home and bringing it before our people, the arrangements were completed by securing the services of the Rev. W. E. Thomas of Cresaptown, Maryland, as the evangelist. After making the arrangements, the local Methodist preacher asked if I would give him the two weeks we had arranged for. I told him I couldn't give him both weeks, but would give him the first week and we would work the campaign together. This we did with the greatest of results. At the end of the first week in the Methodist Church, on Sunday night, December 14, thirteen came forward, twelve for first time confessions, and one reconsecration. Then on Monday night we moved to the Brethren Church to continue the services. This was on the fifteenth of December. The interest kept increasing each night throughout the week and at the end of the second week, which was on Sunday night, December 21, fourteen more had come forward, thirteen for first time confession, and one reconsecration. This truly was the greatest meeting this valley had seen in a long time. The Spirit of God moved mightily in the whole community; sinners were convicted of their sins, and their souls were saved. And many others, in which the seed was sown, we hope to reap soon. You pray with us that they, too, will give their hearts to the Lord.

People came out to these services that hadn't been to church in years. One old fellow in particular who hadn't been in a church, with the exception of a funeral in thirty years. He came the last four nights of the services and said he enjoyed them. Before he came to these services he was preaching that there isn't such place as either heaven or hell; that when you die you die just like a horse. Then, after he had come to church these few nights, and the meeting was over, he told the storekeeper he would just give $5.00 if he would never have gone at all. So, besides those who were saved, there were those who were caused to think about their eternal destiny.

As a result of these services the writer baptized seven on Sunday afternoon, December 28, six of whom were taken into the Valley Brethren Church the same evening. The other one will be taken in later. Two more of the group that came forward during the meeting will be baptized in a couple of weeks; and still another lady who is coming into the church by re-baptism. For all this wonderful victory we give God all the glory.

On January 19, 1948 Rev. Thomas will begin a two week campaign in our church at Mt. Pleasant, one wherein souls will be saved and one wherein you can get sinners out to hear the gospel of Christ, the power of God unto salvation, as Brother Thomas very forcefully preaches it. Let me recommend to you the Rev. W. E. Thomas of Cresaptown, Maryland. Brother Thomas is a brother of Rev. Wilbur L. Thomas, pastor of our church at Mulvane, Kansas.

I believe Rev. Thomas would devote his full time to evangelistic work in the Brethren Church if dates could be arranged. Just now he is doing undenominational work, but he is Brethren at heart. At present time I think he is booked almost full till September.

We ask an interest in your prayers in behalf of the Valley and Mt. Pleasant work, that the Lord may continue to use us for the advancement of His kingdom.

H. R. Garland.

MEETING AT MAURERTOWN, VIRGINIA

This meeting was held from October 20 to November 2 and should have been reported before this, but my correspondence is entirely too heavy for the time available and it is easy to defer some things that will wait for a while. I am keenly aware of the grave consequences of putting off. Rev. E. L. Miller reported this meeting some time ago, and we thank him for the kind words in his report.

For many years I have known Rev. Miller but this was our first meeting together. Our appreciation seemed to me was mutual. He has had a wide experience in evangelistic work and also pastoral work and our understanding of the work to be done seemed to meet with no conflicting ideas. It is always our purpose to preach the gospel just as effectively as God gives us power and leave the results to follow. The pastor is entitled to most of the credit for the folks that are received into the church, whether they are received during the revival or at the regular services.

Th congregation was very appreciative of our ministry. This being the home church of our beloved John F. Locke and the family, his mother now living at Woodstock and John and wife in the lovely farm home near Maurertown. I well remember the father, Glenn Locke, as I met him at national conference—a very friendly and charming personality, a merchant but greatly interested in the church. This is also the home church of the well known pioneer church leader in this valley, Elder E. B. Shaver and family.

It was a genuine pleasure to serve them and to be the honored guest in the home of the pastor and his good wife, a lovely parsonage home and every possible courtesy was freely bestowed. We were also lavishly entertained in many of the lovely homes of this church and received every kindness that any heart could desire. It was a pleasant experience and we sincerely thank this fine congregation and their pastor, who is in his 24th year of service among them. May our dear Lord richly bless them and prosper them in the things of life and of the Spirit.

Claud Studebaker, South Bend, Indiana.

SOUTH BEND, INDIANA

In reporting the meeting at Maurertown, Va., probably a few words from the South Bend Church will be appreciated. As a matter of fact, I never feel that we have accomplished too much to write about. There is so much more that should be done and so many more people that should be reached that I never feel like congratulating ourselves too generously for our work. We have made some improvements such as, converting to oil for heat, new chairs that we do not need to carry chairs from class rooms when we have a large gathering in the basement, 33 new tables that will provide for communion or serving in the downstairs auditorium, redecorating, and various other improvements that totaled more than $6,000.00. This was easily cared for with surplus funds that had accumulated and a special cash offering on a Sunday morning, which was wisely planned by our finance board, when our people gave over $3,000.00 in cash and more came in later so the matter of finance was well cared for. In fact in my pastoral experience we have never had any great difficulty in finance, either in good times or bad times. It is a general observation that spiritual prosperity results in increased giving,

Dr. W. D. Furry was our Educational Day speaker and very greatly appreciated, being a former pastor and highly esteemed by all who know him. It was a special delight to have him in our home as a guest. Our communion was larger than usual. Our Home Coming was held on November 23, with a large attendance and fine spirit; greetings were read, the pastor preached the morning sermon, a delicious dinner served to a large crowd of happy people; memorial service in honor of our departed: Mrs. Harriett Whiteman, Mrs. Wilmer Thomas, Mr. Charles Colip, Mrs. Floy Wilkinson, Mr. Clyde Wolfe, Mrs. Gladys Roush, Mrs. J. W. Clark, Mrs. C. S. Jackson and Mrs. Earl Vincent. Dr. Russell Bollinger preached a very fine sermon for the closing of this day of fellowship and worship. He was much appreciated by our people. Of course every church has a continual loss by death, removal, neglect, offense and various other elements that reduce the numbers and the strength of the church. The only remedy is a continual flow of new members. It is our great joy to receive these new members. The last month has given us eight new members, three men with their wives and two young people. There are many more to reach.

While we have taken in about 275 members since coming to this pastorate, yet there are so many more to reach that it seems to me we should take in more than 100 new members every year and we could if we could get our people as much interested in reaching other people for Christ and the Church as they are in the secular things of life.

The regular institutional life of the church goes on about as usual. We have scheduled a revival meeting to begin February 9 for a period of two weeks, with Rev. Ronald Hudson as evangelist.

Rev. E. A. Duker supplied for us one Sunday and Dr. E. E. Miller, President of Goshen College, another, during our absence at Maurertown, Virginia.

Claud Studebaker.

JOHNSTOWN (THIRD), PENNSYLVANIA

(A Joint Report)

The revival services held November 23 through December 5 at the Johnstown Third Brethren Church with Rev. John Funk Locke as the Evangelist, brought forth blessing in the salvation of souls, the strengthening of the church, and the added gifts from on high of the spiritual graces. During the services there were ten who made their first time confession of Christ as Lord and Savior. In addition there were four who joined the church by letter from the Methodist, Brethren, Church of the Brethren and Evangelical faiths. Baptism was administered on both Sundays by Alvin Grumbling, a licensed minister of the church, and the pastor.

Attendances at the services were consistent, with the second week showing a higher average. There was a greater variety in the musical program with visiting quartets, trios, men's choruses and soloists adding much to the meeting. The newly installed Hammond Organ was used in conjunction with the piano throughout the meetings. Organists for the meeting were Mrs. John Golby and Clyde Orner. Pianists were Mrs. C. F. Zimmerman and David Dysert. Mrs. Zimmerman and Mrs. Golby presented several organ-piano duets during the second week.

The fellowship throughout the meetings was unusually good and was manifest in the way the Brethren remained after the service and visited with one and all. Visiting pastors favored us with their presence.

As an outgrowth of the meeting the "Ninety-Niner's Club" is being organized into a group to support the Prayer Meeting of the Church. This group is pledged to attend prayer meeting as often as possible and the goal is to enroll ninety-nine or more of the constituency.

During the second week of the services Rev. Locke addressed the Conemaugh Valley Church of the Brethren ministerium on the subject "Let This Mind Be In You." The address was well received and a period of discussion on fraternal relations followed. The president of the ministerium, Rev. Roy S. Forney, has been a moving power in practical fraternal relations for he, as the new pastor in the Church of the Brethren, has arranged to have the Brethren men and boys as guests of the Church of the Brethren men at the Father and Son Banquet. By the time you read this we will have already eaten a fine turkey supper and heard a stirring address by Rev. S. M. Whetstone, National Moderator of the Brethren Church.

Brother Locke preached sermons that were powerful, stimulating, interesting and extremely practical. God blessed in the gift of salvation and we are well pleased. This pastor wishes to announce that the door of the parsonage is always open to our beloved brother.

The meetings were opened on Sunday with the showing of the motion picture "Beyond Our Own" which very dramatically shows the worth of missions and the place of the Christian in his own church. A full house was present for this picture.

Music for the services was arranged by Flyod Benshoff, chairman of the music committee and song leader for the services.

On Friday and Saturday of the first week we sent our young people to the Brethren Youth Convention of Pennsylvania, held at the Vinco Church. Rev. Locke was guest speaker at the Saturday afternoon service, speaking on the topic, "If I Were Young," and effectively closed the meeting with an appeal to heed the way of the Lord and do the best that is possible at all times.

The evangelist wishes to thank the Brethren for the fine way in which he was received and for their interest and prayers. The hospitality of the parsonage was particularly enjoyed. This meeting afforded an opportunity to me for getting acquainted with these capable young people, the Zimmermans. I found brother Zimmerman an energetic pastor, wholeheartedly interested in the welfare of his congregation, and their spiritual growth and progress. Both he and Mrs. Zimmerman are giving themselves unstintedly to the many and various activities of this city congregation. Besides this they make a worthy contribution to the general religious life and program of the community. Brother Zimmerman is a man of many talents. I found his companionship, delightful, informative, and stimulating.

The people of the church made me feel very much at home from the very start and my stay in Johnstown will be a memorable experience. It was good to renew acquaintance with many friends of this area. The audiences were very receptive and easy to preach to. The music was superb throughout the services. My sincere thanks are extended to the Zimmermans and the Johnstown congregation for their many kindnesses.

John Funk Locke, Evangelist.

Chester F. Zimmerman, Pastor.

The New Press Fund

"The Gospel must first be published among all nations."

Mark 13:10.

Authorized by The 1946
General Conference

GOAL	Not less than $15,000.00
Cash and Pledges	$8,441.56
Yet to be raised, not less than	$6,558.44

The BRETHREN EVANGELIST

HOLY BIBLE

Official Organ of The Brethren Church

He Sent Them Out to The World to Preach

Brethren Ministers Have Also Thus Been Sent

Vol. LXX, No. 6 February 7, 1948

Brethren Historical Library
Manchester College
North Manchester, Ind.

THE BRETHREN EVANGELIST

Published weekly, except the last week in August and
the last week in December.

THE BRETHREN PUBLISHING COMPANY

Ashland, Ohio

PRUDENTIAL COMMITTEE

J. E. Stookey, President N. G. Kimmel, Vice-President
J. G. Dodds, Secretary-Treasurer

EDITOR OF PUBLICATIONS—F. C. Vanator

BUSINESS MANAGER—G. S. Baer

EDITOR MISSIONARY NUMBER—E. M. Riddle

CONTRIBUTING EDITORS

Dr. Charles A. Bame Rev. Dyoll Belote

DEPARTMENTAL EDITORS

Dr. C. F. Yoder, Brethren Doctrine
Rev. N. V. Leatherman, Practical Church Problems
Rev. J. G. Dodds, National Goals
Dr. R. F. Porte, Brethren Church History

PLEASE REMEMBER: All material for publication in the Evangelist must be in the hands of the editor at least three weeks before the desired date of publication, to assure same to appear in desired issue. This refers to announcements particularly.

TERMS OF SUBSCRIPTION: $1.50 per year in advance.
CHANGE OF ADDRESS: In ordering change of address always
give both old and new addresses.

REMITTANCES: Send all money, business communications, and contributed articles to:

THE BRETHREN PUBLISHING COMPANY
ASHLAND, OHIO

Entered as second class matter at Ashland, Ohio. Accepted for mailing
at special rate, section 1103, act of October 3, 1917. Authorized
September 3, 1928.

INTERESTING ITEMS

Masontown, Pennsylvania. The congregation at Mason-town has set aside Sunday, February 15, as Parsonage Fund Sunday. Brother Ankrum says the approximate sum needed to complete the job is $3,500.00.

We learn that Brother Ankrum was the guest speaker for the Wesleyan Brotherhood of the First Methodist Brotherhood of Scottdale, Pennsylvania, on Thursday, January 22.

Berlin, Pennsylvania. We note from Brother Whetstone's bulletin of January 25, that at the church business meeting he was tendered a call for another year of service in Berlin, but that he made decision to close his work there and has accepted the pastorate of the Dayton, Ohio, Hillcrest Brethren Church. The change will be made on April 1st.

The churches of Berlin are trying out a combined evening service in which the various churches open their doors for a union service. The first service attendance totaled 127.

The Editor pulls a "boner." Yes, he made a mistake in his editorial. He "punched" the wrong letter out of "can't" in his "Thinking Aloud" three weeks ago. He was so intent on reminding his readers that "Now" and "Ever" were important words in what he wanted to "get across" to you that he just "punched" blindly and the result seemed rather incongruous. It seems he had "cat" left instead of "can." But even error can be used to a good advantage, for now he can remind you that it would be a "cat"astrophe if the Publication Day Offering and the Press Fund Pledges would be forgotten. You still "CAN" do something about it, even if you failed to do so before. The Offering is still in the "Cat"egory of the offerings for the year. It was placed in the "cat"alog of "musts" by the General Conference, and we would not want to be in a state of "cat"elepsy at this time anyway. Of course you see what he wanted to say was, "It CAN be done, if we all get behind it and do it! Now think that over!"

Vinco, Pennsylvania. Brother St. Clair Benshoff, pastor of the Vinco church, is temporarily acting as advisor of the Junior and Senior Brotherhoods, until a new sponsor can be obtained.

We note also that the W. M. S., Group I, of the Vinco church sent five boxes of clothing to our Kentucky mission at Lost Creek, recently.

Waterloo, Iowa. Brother Virgil Meyer gives some interesting figures in his annual report. We quote: "Increases in attendance over the previous year were: Sunday School 22%; Morning worship service 10%; Evening service 16%."

Pittsburgh, Pennsylvania. We find in Brother Crick's bulletin that he received a call for another year of service in the Pittsburgh Church, but that he decided not to accept same, and to accept a call to the Gratis, Ohio, Brethren Church, same to be effective on April 1st.

The Communion date of the Pittsburgh Church has been set as of Easter Sunday evening.

The Pittsburgh W. M. S. is sponsoring a new Signal Lights Organization. This meets one of the new goals in the W. M. S. program for the 1947-1948 Conference year.

Milledgeville, Illinois. We note that the newly organized Junior Sisterhood of Mary and Martha held a candy sale on January 24.

Washington, D. C. Brother Clarence Fairbanks, pastor of the Washington Church, says that the Laymen's Organization of the church conducted the services at the Central Union Mission on Thursday, January 22.

Tentative plans have been made to have the Ashland College Choir in Washington on the Sunday following Easter.

The first Sunday in February is set apart by the Washington Church as "Building Fund and Roll Call Sunday." Brother Fairbanks says, "The larger the offering at this time, the easier it will be to begin the first unit of our church."

St. James, Maryland. We quote from Brother Bates' bulletin of January 25: "During the next few weeks, while

(Continued on Page 10)

Business Manager's Corner

George S. Baer

Publication Day Offerings Coming In

SOME OF our churches have been very prompt about reporting their Publication Day Offerings, and we hope many more will follow suit. And if any have not yet taken the offering due to interfering local programs, please do not overlook it altogether, but take it at your first opportunity. There never was a time when we needed a large offering more than we do today. And the reason for the great need is a story that can be told in six words—increased cost of labor and material. Pray that the Lord may use us all to answer this need.

Has Your Evangelist Stopped?

If it has, and you are wondering why, it is likely because your subscription has expired. We are aiming to notify every one when their time is up, before pulling them from the list. Many cards have been sent out, but we might have missed you. If you have missed the Evangelist please renew. We want you with us, but according to the strict rules of the Post Office Department we are not supposed to keep un-paid subscribers on our list, and we are seeking your cooperation to help us obey the rules and keep our subscribers too. With regard to notification, subscribers who are members of 100% churches, or other churches who send large lists at one time, notification will be made through the proper church official or agent. NOW, LET'S GET ON THE 100% LIST. Remember our goal for the year of 1948—10% increase in subscribers.

The Christian Worker's Bible

One of the best Bibles to aid you in saving souls. It is marked on every subject connected with the theme of salvation. The markings are clearly indicated so as to enable any one to study the passages, or to give a Bible reading on the subject marked at a moment's notice. 390-page Encyclopedia and Concordance, summary of the Books of the Bible, Calendar of Daily Readings, 60,000 Center Column References, 16 maps and 16 full page illustrations in color. Priced as follows:

WC1 Genuine Leather, divinity circuit, red under gold edges, $9.95.

WC2 Imitation Leather, divinity circuit, colored edges, $6.95.

WC3 New Edition with "Questions and Answers" and "Aids." Binding same as WC1, $10.95.

Recent Press Fund Reports

Dr. and Mrs. Martin Shively, Ashland, Ohio	$ 2.50
Harrie C. Funderburg, New Carlisle, Ohio (Dayton Ch.)	10.00
Emma M. Aboud, Los Angeles, Calif. (Dayton Ch.)	20.00
Miss Ella Noyes, Falls City, Nebr.	1.00
Mrs. C. W. Shaffer, Johnstown, Pa. (2nd Ch.)	2.00
Mrs. James Hoover, Mansfield, Ohio (Ashland Ch.)	5.00
Mae Wallace, Milledgeville, Ill.	5.00
Mrs. W. W. Livengood, Milledgeville, Ill.	15.00

Ethel P. Oberly, North Liberty, Ind. 25.00

Mrs. Verda Hade Hess, Waynesboro, Pa. 2.50

(For total of this Fund see block on page 16).

Christian Worker's Testament

Contains the same New Testament markings as the Christian Worker's Bible and you will need it to carry with you, while you use the Bible for home study and public services. Handy pocket size. Imitation Leather, $2.00; Leather, $4.00. All postpaid.

The Editor Thinks Aloud

Fred C. Vanator

GOOD MANAGERS

FROM OUR clipping files we gleaned the following which we felt was good comment on the thought that surrounds the Benevolence Month of February. We do not know who was the author, or where the clipping came from, but we do know that "it makes sense." Here it is:

"Pastors are good managers. This may be a surprise to those who think of them as visionary and financially childlike. If you could know the story of the good management that has resulted in clothes good enough to satisfy the congregation; food enough to build good bodies; education enough for the children to give them their chance in the world; money enough to give to every financial appeal in the church and in the community; books enough to keep the mind of the pastor alert and up-to-date; gas and tires and the car itself to carry him on the business of the parish (often the pastor's car becomes a kind of free bus line for councilmen and others to rallies and conventions); wisdom enough to keep out of overburdening debt—add it all up, and you will understand that the pastor's plight in old age is usually not his fault, but the failure of the church to which he has committed his life. Let us do what we can to insure the future of our pastors."

This clipping set me to thinking!

Do not our aged pastors deserve more than just the few dollars that they receive from the Board that is set up by the church conference for the purpose of dealing with their needs? Should there not be some plan being prepared in the offering that would do more to make the declining years of faithful men and women sure and pleasant? Has the church as a whole the "right" to pass this by with so little thought and discussion? Or should we be planning for a more sure method of distribution as the years roll along? Other denominations have a regular "pension plan" the like of which could be established in the Brethren Church. But the churches individually must take a greater interest in the plan, and be willing to obligate themselves for a definite amount, instead of trusting to just the offering which is given, sometimes almost grudgingly, to the Benevolent offering each year. Would such a plan work in our denomination?

Think it over!

Aging Preachers

By Fred C. Vanator, President Brethren's Home and Benevolent Board

NOT ONE of us like to think in terms of age, yet years roll on and each succeeding twelve month period adds another year to our span of life. With each added year, experience increases, burdens are added, knowledge is expanded and hearts are mellowed. Age should and usually does increase the value of the preacher to his congregation, for experience is one of the most valuable assets of the man whose hand is on the helm that guides the destiny of the individual church. True, there may be a slowing down of personal activity, but in the matter of meeting the problems to which the church falls heir, experience and careful consideration of every angle of the matter is very often of infinite value of the congregation.

But there comes a time in the life of every minister when he must turn over the steering wheel and resign the driver's seat in favor of fewer grey hairs (or more hair) and a more active body. In the years he has served he has spent himself unselfishly for his people. A true minister always does this. Too often too little has been given back to him in return for the effort he puts forth. The minister has had little or no opportunity to lay by of this "world's goods" to help him through the "rainy days" that are bound to come, for come they will, sometimes without warning. Consequently his source of income becomes a negligible thing.

Now that is why we have to have a fund that is devoted to the care of our aging preachers. For many years we have maintained this fund, first through the ministrations of the old Superannuated Ministers' Board, which went forth entirely on faith and paid out to such men and women that which they could "rake and scrape" together, often times finding themselves far in the "red" as far as payments were concerned, and toward the end of the year having either to borrow money or renege on the "half-promises" that had been made to these deserving servants of the church.

Finally, at the urgent insistence of both certain individuals and members of the Board, the Superannuated Board was merged with the Brethren's Home Board by an act of conference, some twenty-odd years ago. This Board is now your present Brethren's Home and Benevolent Board. At the time of the merger certain changes were made, among which was the one of "paying as we go," or not living on next year's uncertain income, but by apportioning out only such money as was in the treasury, thus being able to say to the recipients at General Conference time, "We have appropriated so many dollars to your individual fund for the coming year. It is in the bank, subject to the check of our Treasurer. Each month during the coming year you will receive so many dollars each month. This we assure you." (The current year these monthly payments amount to $45.00 per month for retired ministers, and $25.00 per month for widows.) We usually hold back enough that should an emergency arise, we are able to take on one more during the year than our lists of appropriations. But if this emergency arises, as it has this year, and we meet it—then to use the expression of the day: "We are broke." Brethren, this ought not so to be.

This year, while we still expect a fine offering as usual for the support of the Brethren's Home, about which you will be told next week, we are turning our attention to a greater appeal for the Ministers' Fund. As our article is titled, "Aging Preachers," that is exactly what the church is facing in the way of support. Not that our Board is expecting a sudden influx of applications for "pension," yet in the next ten years there are going to be many such applications. We are simply "looking ahead" and striving to build up a surplus that may meet emergencies in the not too distant future.

Now frankly, brethren, would it not be a shame upon the Brethren Church to have to say to our aged men and women who are now receiving their monthly checks, "We are sorry, but we will have to cut the men down to $30 per month, and the widows to $15.00 per month! It is not our fault as a Board, for we have not received sufficient money from the churches to do otherwise!" Do you want that to happen? this next year—or in any year to come? Of course you do not! But it will happen if each one does not give, and give abundantly.

Therefore when February 29 rolls around, put a little extra in your Offering envelope—we suggest you make a play on the date of the offering, the extra day in the present Leap Year, and contribute an extra 29 cents, or any multiple of that amount, say $2.90, or even $29.00. You will enjoy the extra day better if you do.

Just remember that the continuation of our present support of those now receiving their monthly checks is contingent on your continued "high" gifts to this fund. It is your opportunity to "do good" in a pleasant way.

* * *

(The Home will be brought to your attention next week.)

The Unsung Heroine

The Minister's Wife

Christ's follower true in that community
Which he now serves, and loves, I've seen him go,
Forgetting self and home. Should this bring woe
To sometimes lonely hearts of loving spouse,
They never let him sense it in his house.

A true devotion to the work of God
Must be the vision which she shares each day
While making house a home, where children play
Unmindful of the path that they must trod
As "preacher's kids." They'll suffer youthful scorn
Of friends their age, and must examples be
Of life's perfection, to some folks who see
No human life for them, for they were born
To him who teaches them the Spirit's ways,
And so should be pure spirit all their days!
The pastor's wife with love must weld this home
At dawning of the day, or in the gloom.
Her dreams are put into such menial deeds,
But all add up to aid her partner's needs.

He needs her faith in God to reign supreme,
But faith in him must close a second be.
He needs her understanding constantly
Of that devotion which he holds. His dream,
All rosy, of this serving way of life
Has hardened to a rough and stormy road,

RELDA Jean Wright has written a poem entitled, "Love Binding All" which we believe should be printed in large letters and framed and hung in every church in the land. In this poem she has searched the depths of one of the most neglected avenues of service that comes in the service that comes out of the parsonages in the many parishes of the land.

Here is a poem that should make us all stop and take stock of the attitude which we have toward the family life of the average minister, for it goes beneath the surface and brings us much more in the way of facts about the minister's help-meet than we ordinarily think about.

I raise my voice in tribute to the wives
Of pastor-preacher-minister! I'll send High praise for these manse leaders, and defend
All these for service which they give to lives
Of their community. I've seen the things
They do to lift the weary husband-heart;
The courage that they give so he can start
Upon his day of steady work. He flings
Aside himself that he might fuller be

And now he needs someone to share the load
Of problems there. How much a loving wife
Can bear with him the burden, though a part
Of it he keeps within his mind and heart.
He finds God's strength when they've together prayed
That in His way they'll strive on—unafraid.
God, grant that these who serve in Love may be Together, in Thy love, eternally.

Consider the minister's wife! She gets no salary, yet she does many things in the parish that the minister cannot do, and that for only a word of thanks—or, mayhap, not even that, considering the fact that that which she does is not for selfish gain, but for the uplift of the cause she loves.

She constantly is the "hearer" of complaints, of the burdened heart that does not want to confide in the minister-husband. Her quiet sympathy goes far in relieving the burden and assuaging the pain of an anguished heart.

She seeks to keep her minister in health. For she realizes that he cannot put forth his best efforts when his body is wracked with pain, or his mind is sluggish because of ill health.

She has, oftentimes, a gigantic task of keeping up his spirits. "Blue Monday" comes to most preachers and it is her task to change the "blue" to the radiant colors of the rainbow, under the prism of her calm disposition and her smiling, cheery face and voice.

She shares his joys and sorrows. She helps him to overcome those moments of heart-pain at the failure to reach the unsaved with his message; she rejoices in victory which is won when souls come to the feet of the Master. Her tears mingle with his at the passing of some beloved member, only to turn, maybe the same day, to rejoice with him at the joining of two hearts in the ceremony that makes them one. And, too, his home joys and sorrows are her joys and sorrows. Mountain tops and valleys are traveled together.

She ministers in her own way. She can do things that her minister-husband finds impossible. She can open doors to which he does not possess the key. She can search the souls of her sisters in a manner that he cannot, because she is a woman also.

What a task is hers. Only time and eternity will tell the story of her unselfish adherence to her humble tasks, for which she asks no pay, only her husband's love and devotion.

Truly she is an unsung heroine in most every parish!

But We Want a Young Minister

Dwight E. Stevenson, in the Christian-Evangelist

EVERYONE knows that pulpit committees looking for ministers almost universally begin with the one prerequisite: "He must be young!" By this they generally mean not that he must be so young as to lack experience, but that he must still be in the strength of his youth. According to this, the best days of our years in the ministry are between thirty and forty, or by reason of a full head of hair and youthful appearance, they may extend to forty-five; but it is an exceptional pulpit committee that will willingly call a minister when he has passed his forty-fifth birthday.

If the Apostle Paul had been writing to Timothy in the twentieth century, he would never have taken the trouble to say, "Let no man despise thy youth." He might have delayed his letter a little and written to Timothy at the age of fifty-four, "Let no man despise thy maturity." The ancient respect for years and their wisdom has been cast aside in favor of admiration for youth and its vigor.

In this respect the Christian ministry is more like the trades than the professions. In the trades a man may be "fired at forty" because labor is industry's cheapest commodity. In most professions, on the other hand, a man's peak of usefulness is reached after he is fifty. Then he begins to harvest the experiences of the years. Who would think of retiring our physicians, bankers, statesmen, or jurists at forty-five? To do a thing so silly would be to rob society of its most competent leaders in these professions. But, curiously enough, the minister is an exception to this rule among the professions.

How did this state of affairs come about?

The church may be reflecting the secular dread of old age. Our modern American society has a fear of old age amounting to horror. There is hardly anything we moderns will not do to "keep our youth," meaning, of course, the appearance of physical youthfulness. In our "sensate culture," whether our minds remain young, seems to be of little moment.

Why Prefer a Young Minister?

The minister occupies a unique position in that he is the person upon whom we project our unfulfilled ideals. We want him to be everything that we would be; this includes youth! The adulation of youth in ministers is a mirror of our general adulation of youth everywhere and of our modern dread of growing old!

The church has placed a premium upon young ministers by emphasizing activity rather than wisdom and saintliness. With us a thriving church is a "busy" church, one humming with active clubs, societies, circles, councils, boards, commissions, divisions, classes, suppers and projects. To keep up with all these and to keep promoting new ones as the old ones wither, requires the cyclonic energy which no one but a young man possesses.

Sermons that "strike" us are preferred to sermons that instruct or inspire. Activity is preferred to worship and study. Projects seem more important than the deepening of the spiritual life.

Many older ministers fail to keep young minds and some stop growing in spirit. We shall have to admit that much of the blame for the present plight of older ministers rests upon their own shoulders. They simply have failed to keep up. They have had no new ideas recently. They have read no new books. Their education and their growth are too narrowly confined to the past. If doctors, statesmen, and teachers did the same thing they too would be laid on the shelf.

Unfortunately, older ministers who do not grow, make it harder for their colleagues who do. Congregations having unfortunate experiences with older men who are stagnant in their thinking and old in spirit, leap to the conclusion that all older men are unequal to the task; and they do not even give them a chance.

Facing the Situation

The contemporary church by its attitude toward youth and maturing in the Christian ministry, is guilty of a double wrong. On the one hand it is wronging the men. It is laying men on the shelf at the very age when, in other professions, they are reaching the apex of their usefulness. On the other hand, it is wronging itself. It is depriving itself of the garnered wisdom and saintliness that cannot be developed in any man, much less a minister, without the ripening of the years.

I am writing as a young man who has long felt that this emphasis upon young ministers is lopsided and that it ought to be corrected. To locate evil and even to diagnose it is easier than to prescribe the cure. Nevertheless something needs be done. Here are a few timorous suggestions:

First, church leaders must face the situation. Within the church, elders and deacons have allowed this anomaly to develop without giving it any conscious thought. Now it is time to think about it. As soon as they think about it, they will realize how silly it is to close their minds against any minister simply because he is over forty-five. They will know that most men in other professions reach the height of their usefulness after that age and they will begin to wonder if they have been depriving themselves. They will stop saying, like unthinking parrots, "But we want a young minister," and they will begin saying, more sensibly, "What we want is a good minister, a minister who is truly Christian." It will help a great deal to expose this issue to the light of day.

Second, we will seek to increase the caliber and the training of young men entering the ministry. Men who really have native ability and adequate training will not burn out before they are forty. They will usually keep on growing. Let us frankly admit that we have been calling too many second-rate minds and spirits into the Christian ministry. Correct this, and we do much to correct the other.

Third, we must manage to prolong local ministries. A church that is constantly changing ministers has little chance of advancing beyond the spiritual nursery. Similarly, a minister who lives out his career in hitches of two or three years here and there, never gets over making a beginning. He may have been in the ministry forty years, but he may have grown no deeper into it than his longest period of local service. Since he was moving, he did not need to grow. He did not need to change his sermons, he could change the congregation to which he preached them. He could get a fresh church, so he did not need to get a fresh approach to Christianity.

The men in the ministry who have grown the most both in mind and in spirit, have been those who settled down in one church for a long and constructive service of fifteen or twenty years or longer. They have grown in part, because they could root themselves into the soil of a community, and in part because it is harder after all to stay in one place and face life's demands than it is to keep living out the early years of a pastorate over and over again. Other things being equal, if a man remains for a long time in one church, he has to grow.

Fourth, churches must provide and ministers must seek the means of continuous growth. A minister who does not continue to read and study is drawing water out of an empty cistern. Churches must come to recognize this and they must protect ministers' hours of study. It will not hurt if a church lets its minister know that it expects him to use a large block of time out of every day for study. This will be a helpful stimulus to him. Some churches even go farther; they provide a book budget for their minister so that he will be sure to buy and read new books. There are also pastors' institutes, convocations, and conferences which ministers should attend for the stimulus they bring and for the new ideas and methods they convey. Some of these are so excellent that they have the value of short post-graduate courses. A minister who makes a practice of attending them will get little opportunity to fossilize.

Fifth, we need to deepen the spiritual life of our churches. We need to go beyond fund raising, attendance campaigns, membership drives and other activities, toward cultivation of spiritual awareness. And we need desperately to see the church in its true light as the means by which we are enabled to live Christian lives, not as an end in itself. When we begin to ask, "Is our church creating Christian personalities, increasing awareness of God, and Christianizing its community?" we will drive ourselves to discover the resources about which a wise and experienced minister knows most. Our impatience to be up and doing will change into a hunger to become the children of God. If such a change in the temper and spirit of the church were not accompanied by a transformation of our attitude toward the ministry, it would be very surprising indeed.

We want abler ministers, ministers more adequately trained spiritually minded ministers, ministers growing in grace and truth. Some of these will be young, for not all wisdom is confined to old age, but it is a strange profession in which a young man begins at the top and works his way down.

GIVE

Mrs. Elmer Ebbinhouse

When the day is dark and gloomy,
And you're feeling very blue;
Just look around at others
Who are bearing burdens too.

Then give a smile or a kind word
To those who need it too,
And before you would believe it
The sun is shining through.

There is always someone needing
The help that we can give;
And by thinking first of others
We'll learn to truly live.

The National Sunday School Association

Rev. N. V. Leatherman, General Secretary,
104 S. Mulberry St., Hagerstown, Md.

THE SUNDAY SCHOOL IN THE CHURCH

Rev. E. L. Miller

NOTE that our subject is the Sunday School IN the church and not the Sunday School AND the church. Some thirty years ago an able and successful pastor of one of our large city churches quit his pastorate because the Sunday School superintendent would not consent to have the Sunday School meet in the morning either before or after the worship services. That Sunday School met in the afternoon as many Sunday Schools used to do, and perhaps some few do yet. But that pastor insisted upon the change being made so as to keep the Sunday School and church working closer together. He also declared that the worship services would be better attended if the Sunday School and worship services were held in conjunction with each other, that is, following one another.

At that time, over thirty years ago, that may have been the case. But what about today? Could you really have a successful Sunday School in the afternoon? be it in town or city, even in the country! I wonder about it and fear you could not. In the main Sunday School and church services are held in the morning. Most places the Sunday School sessions come first. In some few instances the worship services of the church are held first and then the Sunday School follows. This latter arrangement is being tried in order to overcome a very bad habit or custom into which Sunday School folks have fallen. That habit or custom is the only too well-known one of great numbers leaving after Sunday School, as if all was done and finished when Sunday School was dismissed. This exodus shows a great disregard of the Christ-founded institution against which He said the gates of Hell should not prevail. This turning the back on the worship services hurts pastors and earnest church workers, and we do not believe that it pleases our Lord any too well. But there it is. It is a condition that is not conducive to spiritual growth and development of those who are interested enough to attend Sunday School. Pastors all over the land lament this situation, and how they would thank the Sunday School officers, teachers and members in general if they would do some heroic work in helping interest the folks in the worship services so that they would stay to worship in the services set and prepared for that purpose.

"On this rock will I build My church," said the Master. And we feel that when we do not properly emphasize the place that the church is to have and play in our Christian lives, we are remiss in the discharge of our Christian duties. Nothing has been devised by man, and neither can there be, that will be able and fit to take the place of the church and its services of worship in the lives of the people of any community. Jesus has really said so. And when Paul urged against the neglect of assembling ourselves together, it surely was for worship and preaching services and not for the Sunday School as such, for it did not exist at that time.

Now understand that we would not by any means disparage or belittle the place and work of the Sunday School. The writer has been a Sunday School attendant and worker all his life, and he believes in the Sunday School. But he would not have us feel that the Sunday School is an end in itself. It is a means—a wonderful means—but still a means, set for teaching the Word, developing spiritual growth and leading souls to Christ. As a feeder to the church it is and should ever and always stand in front. But, as with all other church-connected organizations, so the Sunday School should put forth all its effort to glorify the Lord of us all by leading folks into the church and then urging them to avail themselves of all the services of the church.

No doubt any pastors reading this will AMEN what has been said. And we do hope and pray that any and all Sunday School folks reading it will help hold up the pastors' hands and encourage the church workers, by helping stop the walk-out strike against the worship services so much in evidence today.

Now one other word and we leave it with you. What has happened to the evening services of the church? Thousands of churches have dispensed with them altogether. Others are making a determined effort to carry on and overcome whatever it is that has made folks think such services are more or less unnecessary. Sunday School folks, where pastors and workers are making this effort to honor the Lord with worship on His day, lend a hand. Help keep your church alive and doing its best for your community. And where the pastor and folks have given up in more or less despair, just take it up with the proper authorities and let them know that indifference, carelessness or perhaps mere worldliness are not going to get or keep you down. In this day of such great spiritual need there is great need of church folks, young and older, getting back of more worship and all it entails rather than less. Indeed, give a hand in helping overcome this general apathy. It has played havoc with the church all over the land. The cities and towns felt this slump first, but it has reached out to the rural church too. Some may think that if they have attended services in the morning it is enough. Well, it is never enough. But if some feel they cannot get back for the second service, others may well be able to do it. And what about the multitudes that don't get out for morning worship? The Sunday School can give a great boost for attendance at all services of the church. And we feel that what they can do the Lord really expects them to do. And if they do not make a decent effort to do their very best and keep faith with Him, THEN WHAT? You figure that out. And we hope you come up with the correct answer.

—Maurertown, Virginia.

The spiritual interpretation of life teaches us that all human life is sacred: that we are members one of another; that the things which we have in Common are greater than those which divide; that each is his brother's keeper.—W. L. MacKenzie King.

» » » » Our Poet's Corner « « « «

ALL THE WAY

I came into the garden where my Savior knelt and prayed,
He left me by the wayside where the three disciples stayed,
He bade me watch and wait for Him; for this my spirit yearned.

The waiting seemed so long to me for I was quick to go,
I wanted most to be with Him, and yet my Lord said No.
And so I tarried long without the gate wherein He'd passed,

And when I tried to go alone, I learned His way surpassed.
But then one day He bade me come into Gethsemane,
He warned me that the path was steep, the stones were hard to see,
And yet I longed to go with Him, I knew all would be well,
But when I found the stony path, I stumbled, stopped and fell.

The rocks were sharp, my body sore, my head was drooping fast,
But soon we'd walked the garden through, my Lord and I, at last.

I never knew just what it was my Savior suffered there
Till I had gone with heavy heart and bore His load of care.

And yet I fell and lay in grief, the agony too great,
I couldn't raise my eyes to His, I thought it was too late,
I'd wanted most to follow Him, to suffer for His name,
But somehow with the first few steps, I'd only brought Him shame.

I lay before Him weak and worn, my heart was spent within,
And as He beckoned me to go up Calvary's hill with Him,
I cried, "I cannot go, my Lord, the path is filled with grief,
My heart is burdened down with care, and cannot find relief."

And yet again He brought to mind that I had promised all,
And He had promised in return to help me if I fall,
For if I were to bear His cross, I must go all the way,
And I must also sacrifice the things I love today.

And so with bitters I came, I could not see the way,
But I would bear the cross with Him, I'd take it up each day;

I'd bear the suffering and the shame and all the heartache wrought,
If only by my doing this could souls to Him be brought.

For when I yielded all to Him, as ne'er before I'd done,
The burden fell from off my heart, the victory has been won,

For trusting in Him as my strength, I surely could not fail
And I could walk the way where once 'twas all to no avail.

Yes, I would go with Him each day into Gethsemane, I'd face the spitting, scoffing crowd that nailed Him to the tree,

I'd suffer all the anguish and would bear His aching heart,
I'd follow Him no matter where and His great love impart.

'Twas not until I'd struggled long with selfishness within,
That I could answer, "Yes, my Lord," and then the victory win,

For when I sacrificed myself, went with Him all the way,
'Twas then the perfect peace of God came in my heart that day.

—Lelia Elliott, 4/47.

WITH THE LAYMEN

NORTHERN INDIANA LAYMEN MEET

The Forty-fourth Quarterly Meeting of the Northern Indiana Laymen of the Brethren Church was held in the South Bend Church on the evening of December 1, 1947, with one hundred and twenty-one men present, representing Warsaw, Milford, New Paris, Ardmore, Elkhart, Goshen, Nappanee, Brighton, Ashland, and South Bend.

After a fine supper served by the South Bend ladies,
Don Kollar, President of the South Bend Laymen, presided and Dorothy Ewald and Catherine Snyder entertained with a duet, piano and organ, playing Christmas hymns.

Eleven pastors were present. Woodrow Brant, the new pastor of the Warsaw Church was introduced, as were Rev. I. D. Bowman, Rev. Roland Hudson, and Rev. Schuler.

The annual election of officers was held with the following being elected:

PresidentHarold Hummel, Goshen
Vice-PresidentL. Swintz, South Bend
Secretary-TreasurerMax Miller, Nappanee

The next meeting is to be held on March 1, 1948, at the Warsaw Brethren Church.

Rev. Robert F. Porte, pastor of the Ardmore Brethren Church, was speaker for the evening, speaking on "Measuring up to God's Expectations for Us."

Rev. Claud Studebaker pronounced the benediction.
Dart K. Bemenderfer, Sec.-Treas.

* * *

GOSHEN LAYMEN ENJOY FISH FRY

At the last meeting of the Goshen, Indiana, Laymen's Organization, held on January 13, forty-five men enjoyed a Fish Fry and then spent the evening repairing the tables, so much worn by constant use. The tables, numbering about forty, were made ready for many more years of hard usage. Charles Higgins is president of the group.

Dart K. Bemenderfer.

Albert McClelland, Editor, Oklahoma Baptist Messenger: "One of the saddest sights on earth is that of a man trying to preach without a call. A still sadder sight is that of a man with a call refusing to preach."

There are more ways than one of shutting the doors of churches; absence, negligence, and withholding our support will just as effectively close a church as a court order.—Perry F. Webb.

Interesting Items

(Continued from Page 2)

repairs are being made in the sanctuary and Sunday School room, our morning services will be held at the regular time—Sunday School at 10:00 and the worship service at 11:00. We are counting on your increased support and enthusiasm during this period of inconvenience. Due to lighting facilities we will not hold evening services for a few weeks." There's still "spiritual" fire in the church, even though the "material" fire did damage to the church structure.

Cumberland, Maryland. Brother Paul M. Naff, pastor of the Cumberland church, says the church is striving to follow a program of noble and spiritual sacrifice in order to be able to soon burn the mortgage on the building. We trust they will soon reach their goal.

Cerro Gordo, Illinois. Brother Charles E. Johnson, pastor of the Cerro Gordo church, announces that the evangelist for the revival campaign in that church is Rev. Samuel Adams of Pleasant Hill, Ohio, and that Mrs. Adams has charge of the song services and of the children's work. The meetings will close on February 15.

Milledgeville, Illinois. Brother D. C. White announces the service of dedication for the newly installed amplifier system in the church is being held on Sunday, February 8.

The young people of the Milledgeville church will be the guests of the Lanark church at a banquet which is to be held on February 14.

West Alexandria, Ohio. 'Tis done! The West Alevandria congregation burned the note which told of the final payment on their parsonage which was purchased on January 31, 1944. The final payment was made on January 3, 1948—the total cost of the parsonage, including interest paid was $5,308.33. Open House was held by the pastor and wife, Brother and Sister A. E. Whitted, on Sunday afternoon, January 11 from 2:30 to 5:00 o'clock.

Brother Whitted reports the baptizing of a fine young man and his wife on December 18.

Lanark, Illinois. Brother L. O. McCartneysmith calls our attention to the fact that we missed the reporting of 32 which have been added to the Lanark church during the past year, in our "additions to the church" report. We add it to this week's list.

Elkhart, Indiana. Brother L. V. King reports that four have been added to the membership roll of the Elkhart church by baptism, as of New Years Eve.

January was designated as Tithe Month and Visitation Month in the Elkhart church, stressing the observance of God's laws of one-seventh of our time and one-tenth of our income. Tithing cards were to be signed to find out the total tithing strength of the church.

Added to last week's Additions: We are glad to make an additional report of the church additions since our last report:

Church	Number received
Loree, Indiana	4
Linwood, Maryland	1
Lanark, Illinois	32

West Alexandria, Ohio	2
Elkhart, Indiana	4
Total this report	43

Wedding Announcement

GREEN-MATTHEWS. On Saturday evening, December 6, 1947, in their newly furnished home near Udell, Iowa, occurred the marriage of Gwelda Green and Glenn Matthews, in the presence of the immediate relatives. Gwelda's home was in Centerville, Iowa, and Flenn is the son of Ernie Matthews of near Udell. Both are well known and fine people. The reception of the neighbors, who later went in to see them, consisted of the entire community—eighty-some guests.

W. R. Deeter.

HEETER-CUSTER. Barbara Rosann Heeter, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Dale Heeter, and K. Eugene Custer, son of Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Custer, were united in marriage on October 24, 1947 at 8:00 P. M. in the North Manchester Brethren Church, with Rev. Bert Hodge officiating. They spoke their vows before an altar banked with palms, arrangements of "mums" and several candelabra. Miss Charlotte Schutz gave a half hour of inspirational organ music and Miss Lois Ann Walters acted as vocalist.

A reception for one hundred and fifty was held in the church parlors. The couple have both been active in youth organizations and are now making their future plans for residing on a farm near Wabash, Indiana.

GORMAN-HALE. At the Brethren Mense, in Udell, Iowa, occurred the marriage of Miss Rowena Gorman to Mr. Benjamin H. Hale, both of Centerville. Both are Methodists. Only immediate relatives were present. The couple left soon after the wedding for a honeymoon into Missouri and Kansas. We always advice newly married folks to go to church somewhere the first Sunday, then keep it up. The wedding was on November 25, 1947, the groom's birthday.

W. R. Deeter.

Laid to Rest

HOOVER. George Hoover, son of Frederick and Sarah Evans Hoover, was born near Millville, Henry County, Indiana, October 2, 1857. He departed this life at Oakville, Indiana, October 1, 1947, aged 89 years, 11 months and 29 days.

On December 22, 1881, he was united in marriage to Theresa Sherry, who survives. To this union were born five children: Ray Hoover, Bellefontaine, Ohio; Minnie Hol-singer, Springport, Indiana; Lucille Beavers, Rosedale, Indiana; and Denzil and Martha who preceded him in death at the age of 7 months and 1 month, respectively. Others feeling this loss include twelve grandchildren and twelve great-grandchildren.

In 1884 Mr. and Mrs. Hoover with their first child, Ray, moved from Millville to Oakville where Mr. Hoover engaged in the sawmill business with Jeff Hoover and Jacob Repogle. After nineteen years he sold his sawmill interest and bought a farm north of Oakville which occupation he pursued until 1936 when they moved to the present residence in Oakville.

Mr. Hoover united with the Hooverite Church at Chicago Corners, in Henry County, in 1883. Soon after the organization of the Oakville Brethren Church, Mr. and Mrs. Hoover united with this organization where they were faithful and willing members. Ill health prevented active participation in the work of the Church for some time. George Hoover has always been an example of faithfulness to God and love to fellowmen to all with whom he came in contact.

We have lost a friend and neighbor
But we know he's "over there."
He has gone to meet his Saviour
And loved ones waiting there,
He has been a loving father,
A husband—kind and true;
He has loved his church and country
And served both as best he knew.
He will long be well-remembered,
For he lived among us all,
And by a good example
Gave us much to long recall.
We will mourn him for we loved him,
But we know that some day soon
We, too, will go to join him
As he waits in that Upper Room.

The funeral was held on Oct 3, Oakville Brethren Church in charge of Rev. James E. Ault, assisted by Rev. E. D. Burnworth.

BRINEGER. At the age of 77 years, 4 months and 7 days, William Henry Brineger departed this life December 30, 1947, at his home in Carleton, Nebraska. He was a man of good reputation, interested in the affairs of the community and having served on the Carleton School Board 22 years. From early manhood he was engaged in the live stock business, in connection with his farming, and was noted as a man of sound judgment and honest integrity in all his dealings.

At the age of 23 he was married to Miss Edna Brown, who still survives. To this union were born six sons and six daughters, of whom five sons and four daughters survive.

The children grew up under the influence and instruction of the Brethren Church and its Sunday school. Nearly all of them united with the Brethren Church and have been active in its service. The son, Milford, is at present the efficient superintendent of the Sunday school. Rev. J. D. Kemper, now pastor of the Brethren Church in Morrill, Kansas, but several years ago pastor of the Brethren Church in Carleton, and instrumental in leading most of the children to Christ, was called to officiate at the funeral and preach the sermon. The services were held in the Carleton Brethren Church, the pastor assisting. The large attendance of neighbors and acquaintances, besides the sorrowing wife, children, grandchildren, great grandchildren and other relatives, and the many floral tributes, attested the high esteem in which the deceased was held.

H. M. Oberholtzer.

POORBAUGH. Death claimed Mrs. Florence Alberta Poorbaugh, wife of Jacob W. Poorbaugh of Ashland, Ohio, after a rather prolonged illness, which kept her confined to the home for some weeks.

She was born in Ashland, May 28, 1903, the daughter of Samuel and Ella Rannals Kolb. Following the death of her mother when the child was but four months old, she was reared and made her home with her aunt and uncle, Mr. and Mrs. Jesse Dupler. From this home she was united in marriage to Jacob Poorbaugh on May 2, 1922.

She was a life-long resident of Ashland and was a member of the First Brethren Church (Park Street) of Ashland, and a member of the Woman's Missionary Society of the church.

She is survived by her husband; one daughter, Mrs. Clyde Eddy and two sons, Richard J. and Jesse W., all of Ashland; one granddaughter, Linda Kay; her father, Samuel Kolb of Mansfield; two sisters, Mrs. William Iseman of Mansfield, Ohio, and Mrs. Tracy Wertz of Parma, Ohio; and her foster parents Mr. and Mrs. Jesse Dupler. She was preceded in death by her mother, one sister and one brother.

The funeral services were conducted by the undersigned from the Gilbert Funeral Home, Ashland, and burial was made in the Ashland Cemetery.

Fred C. Vanator.

FOWLER. Mary Ellen Fowler, aged 80 years and 3 days, was born in Appanoose County, Iowa, near Udell, and passed away on January 1, 1948. She was the daughter of Riley and Nancy Hayworth. She was married to William Fowler in 1884, and to this union were born two children, Alvah and Elven, the latter passing on in 1918. She leaves a son Alvah and five grandchildren. Funeral services were held at Moravia, Iowa, and burial in the Denny Cemetery. Services by the writer.

W. R. Deeter.

~~~~~

It is not so much because the New Testament writings are the works of inspired men that we believe in their inspiration as that because we know them to be inspired we believe them to have been written by inspired men.—Andrew C. Zenos, D.D.

* * *

I wonder why it is that people can read the labels on patent medicine bottles, and shortly after develop all the pains and symptoms described there on. Or they can hear the complaints of a friend's ailment and immediately become certain they are victims of the same dread disease. Now these same people can hear a sermon that really touches on their faults, yet are unable to see that it applies to them . . . but are convinced that the Parson "sure hit so and so" this morning!

CHRISTIAN ENDEAVOR TOPIC

W. St. Clair Benshoff, Topic Editor

"Topics copyrighted by the International Society of Christian Endeavor.
Used by permission."

Topic for February 15, 1948

FOR BETTER OR FOR WORSE

Scripture: Gen. 2:21-24; Prov. 19:14; Eph. 5:22-23

For The Leader

THIS IS the second of a series of four topics on the general subject of Marriage. Tonight we are dealing with the sacredness and importance of the marriage vows. No vows are more binding or more sacred than those you take at the marriage altar. Considering how lightly most of the people of the world today consider these vows, it is important that we give earnest heed to what they mean.

DISCUSSION

1. MARRIAGE UNITES TWO PEOPLE. When your minister stands in your presence and asks you, "Do you take this man (or woman) whose hand you hold to be your lawful wedded husband (or wife)," just what does he mean? It means that legally you are husband and wife, to share and share alike before the laws of the land. It means that you are permitted to live together and maintain a home. Before God it means that you are no more two people, but one, designed to live together as one. It means that the vows are for the life time of the union. It means that the union can be dissolved before God only by death. See how important it is to choose the right person to be your mate? After you are married, it is a little late to discover that you have married the wrong person. Courtship should be of such a nature that you will be able to discover the things which would prevent a happy marriage.

2. "FOR BETTER OR WORSE." Those who are familiar with the marriage ceremony know the oft repeated words, "For better or for worse." Just what do these words mean? Someone has said that life is a gamble. That is not as true as to say that life is a Venture. It will be just what we make it. If we determine in our heart that when we get married that we are going to keep the upper hand, that what "my mamma and daddy says" is going to be law, then we are starting out for trouble. Successful marriage cannot be that. For better or for worse means that the two people who were married are cast into a common lot in life. Problems which arise must be met and solved by them. The interests of the common bond must exist above all others. If a man loses his job, the wife must stick with him. If in-laws insist on interfering, and they too often do, the two young people must stick together. There must nothing come between the husband and wife if the words, "For better or for worse" are to count.

3. HOW TO BE HAPPILY MARRIED. No standard set of rules can be set up to suit all cases. But a few primary facts should help. First of all, stick together. Put the word of our mate above the words of anybody else. Let no one say things which will create doubts. Defend your mate with your life. Second rule: live within your means.

The time payment system can easily cause financial wreckage of an otherwise happy marriage. No matter how small the down payment or the monthly payments, they have to be met, and it isn't very often that pay checks coincide with the due date on a time payment. Third. Devote time to your home. Furnish it simply, but nice, provide good books and magazines. Spend hours of leisure reading together, improving yourselves spiritually and mentally. Forsake the constant jazz and soap box operas on the radio. They eat away your mental powers. Provide your own entertainment in the home—music, reading, etc. Fourth, pray and read the Bible together. Learn to take your problems to the Lord in prayer and yourselves to the services of God's house from week to week.

4. DIFFICULTIES. Just recently we heard of a Judge in a particular court who handed down some 400 divorce decrees in a five day period. In that time a few more than that number of marriage licenses were issued. Why so many divorces in proportion to marriages? Simply because difficulties have arisen which the husband and wife would not meet. Yes, there are men you can't live with, and there are wives who aren't worth their salt. A lot could be said on that. But you should have found out some of those things before marriage. Love is blind, but it need not be that blind. Besides if you and your mate are willing to pray, forget and forgive, you can master many of your difficulties. Don't forget that when you are married, you have a lifetime contract—for better or for worse. So before you go running off to the divorce courts, stop and think what you are about to do. Even though popular opinion seems to favor the divorce court, we must remember that God has established the marriage vow for life, and it cannot be broken, without serious consequences.

5. THE PERFECT TRIO. Some one has said that "three's a crowd." Yes, three human beings is a crowd. But a husband and wife, and God makes a perfect trio. The minister, ministering in God's name, becomes the agent of God in signifying that union of husband, wife and God. Through him the blessing of God is pronounced upon the young couple, vows are exchanged, prayer is made, and a new union is established. (See why it is important that Christian young people go to their minister to be married instead of an alderman or a justice of the peace?) If you are willing to make God a partner in your marriage, you will be able to overcome all of the obstacles through life.

QUESTIONS

1. About what percentage of marriages end up in divorce in your state?
2. Make a list of causes of divorce that you can think of. How could these be prevented?
3. Prepare a list of principles which can help create a happy marriage.

SUGGESTIONS

It would be a good idea to ask your minister, in advance, to come to your meeting and give an explanation of the marriage vows, and a talk on "Preparing ourselves for marriage."

Begin your meetings on time. If the leader isn't present, let the president take charge. There are few things more depressing than being in a meeting where nobody seems to know what to do next. Get out of the doldrums and provide exciting special features, contests, and music for your meetings. Teach your members to pray. Call on them, but tell them in advance that you are going to ask them to pray. It may be a stumbled prayer, but it will be a prayer.

Prayer Meeting Topic

Contributed by Rev. C. Y. Gilmer

THANKSGIVING AND CONSECRATION

What shall I render to my Lord
For all His grace to me,
Abundant care that never fails,
So precious and so free?

For He has saved my soul from death,
And wiped away my tears;
My feet from falling He has kept,
And freed me from all fears.

Therefore to Him I'll pay my vows,
And bring my gift of praise;
I'll call upon His holy name,
And worship Him always.

I am thy servant, O my Lord,
To Thee I bow the knee;
Accept me as an off'ring, Lord,
O sanctify Thou me.

Thy name to others I'll proclaim,
And magnify Thy grace;
I'll serve Thee, Lord, unto the end—
Until I see Thy face.

—J. M. Blough, Church of the Brethren missionary to India.

Scripture: Psalm 116

Hymn: "Go, Give, Pray"; "Take My Life and Let It Be"
(Not omitting fourth stanza).

Leader's Petition

Lesson:

"What shall I render unto the Lord for all His benefits toward me?"

IF THE goodness of God should bring a sinner to repentance, what should his goodness mean to a saint? The 116th Psalm should produce in the reader the right feeling in this matter. Let us not forget that it was Christ who intervened when we were fallen in sin and helpless under the penalty of eternal death for a violated Law. Since Christ lifted us from a fearful state of a child of wrath and an heir of Hell to the exalted position of a child of God and an heir of Heaven with the privilege of being laborers together with Him in the evangelizing of a lost world, surely no sacrifice is too great a thought of gratitude when expended in His cause! Remember, if we are "born again," we are no longer free to do as we please (1 Cor. 6:19, 20; 7:23). We are individually responsible to God for the use of time, talent and means He has loaned to us as His stewards (1 Cor. 3:13).

"Freely ye have received"—Love (Jer. 31:3; John 3:16); Forgiveness (Psa. 130:4; Acts 13:38); Life (Acts 17:28; John 10:10); Grace (John 1:16, 17); Supply of all needs (Phil. 4:19; Luke 12:22-28); Sympathy (Heb. 2:16-18); Encouragement (Col. 1:11; 2 Tim. 4:17); Comfort (2 Cor. 1:3); Counsel (Psalm 73:24; 16:7; Isa. 9:6).

"Freely give"—Love (John 15:12; Luke 10:27); Forgiveness (Matt. 6:12, 15, 16); Life (1 John 3:16); Grace (1 Peter 4:10); To supply the needs of others (James 2:15, 16); Sympathy (Gal. 6:2); Encouragement (Isa. 35:3, 4); Comfort (2 Cor. 1:4; 1 Thess. 4:18); Counsel (2 Tim. 4:2; Heb. 3:13).

COMMENTS

On The Sunday School Lesson

by The Editor

Lesson for February 15, 1948

POWER THROUGH THE HOLY SPIRIT

Lesson: John 14:25-26; Acts 2:1-4; 4:31b;
Galatians 5:22-26

WHEN JESUS spoke to His followers in the upper room, as recorded in John, chapters 13 to 17, they were seemingly unable to understand or to follow His words closely. He knew that they were soon to be bereft of His earthly presence and that they would need to be guided in the proper paths in order to be "followers of the Way." After having led them into new paths through the medium of the installation of the "footwashing" ordinance and the partaking of the Bread and the Cup, He now feels that they must understand that they are not being entirely forsaken by the Godhead. He, therefore, tells them of the coming of the Holy Spirit, whom He calls "The Comforter," who is to take His place in their midst "to teach and bring all things to their remembrance."

The Golden Text, Acts 1:8, tells the result of the entrance of the Spirit into men's hearts, for it is only through such entrance that power is to be invested in the receivers. Uttered as it is, just prior to the ascension of the resurrected Jesus, it carries no matter of probability. Rather He says, "Ye shall receive power, when (not if) the Holy Spirit is come upon you." It becomes entirely a matter of opening up to receive that power.

Our lesson is divided into four parts and for easy remembrance we use the letters of the word "HOLY" to show them.

1. H-ow the Spirit is to come. Here we have the words of Jesus in John 14:25-26. We have spoken of this above in our opening paragraph.

2. O-n whom it fell. (Acts 2:1-4). It seems that the key to this "falling of the Spirit" on Pentecost is found in the phrase, "all with one accord in one place." They had been in the habit of gathering together to pray. No doubt this is what they were doing when the Spirit fell upon them. There is no place where hearts can be of "one accord" better than at the place of prayer. They were "tarrying in Jerusalem" just as Jesus had told them to do. He had promised the Spirit—and He came.

3. L-eading of the Spirit. (Acts 4:31b). When men accept the Spirit with open heart, there is bound to be a "led" people and a people that will "speak with boldness."

4. Y-ou and the Spirit. (Galatians 5:22-26). Those who are "filled" with the Spirit will grow the "fruit of the Spirit"—rich, ripe, life-giving fruit. As man is empowered physically by material food, so is he empowered spiritually by taking in the Spirit, the source of all spiritual power. Paul says, "If we live in the Spirit, let us also walk (act) in the Spirit."

---

We can not always escape unpleasant conditions but we can turn them to spiritual advantages.

---

News From Our Churches

---

HUNTINGTON, INDIANA

After twelve years of pastoral service in Huntington, Indiana, I decided to resign. It was not easy to make the decision, for we were working together quite harmoniously. I loved the people and they loved me. But I began to surmise that it might be better for the church to have a change of pastor, especially if they can secure a younger man. I prayed much about it and evidence was given that such would be the will of God. Twelve years of service and sacrifice together had made ties of brotherhood and friendship that were hard to sever.

I never once doubted in the least that God had called me to the work in Huntington, although internally and externally, conditions were uninviting. The morale of the church was low. They were able to give very little financial support and the Missionary Board would not risk much. The confidence and friendliness of the public were lacking and the church at large had but little hope. Yet I was confident of the call of God and the Spirit led and urged me on. Although I was tested in various ways, God showed His approval and wonderfully sustained and helped me. In a few months my wife was taken from me by death caused by cancer, but the strong arm of God upheld me.

Those who founded our Huntington church had a vision and hope for a strong and successful church. They built a substantial, well located, commodious, well equipped and beautiful church building. But more than this was needed: a firm, unwavering faith; a loyal and steadfast love for God; deep conviction; the spirit of sacrifice and devotion; and much prayer. Progress was necessarily slow. Much patience, persistence and prayer were required. But, "they that wait upon the Lord shall renew their strength." Those who had eyes to see rejoiced in the victory of faith. Needed property repairs and improvements were gradually made. Bills, including the unpaid balance of the former pastor's salary, were paid. The debt on the property was cleared in a manner that verified our faith in prayer. Public confidence was restored. Souls were won to Christ, although not as many as we had hoped for. Interest in giving, even a passion for giving, was developed. Quite a number became tithers and loved it. The janitor's support and the pastor's support were constantly increased. All bills were paid promptly. Much credit is due to a faithful inner circle of pray-ers. They were not so many, but they were of the sort whose prayers "avail much." Without them, I doubt whether there would be a Brethren church in Huntington today.

Mistakes and failures were made, as may be expected of humans. God permits them for a purpose, and they do even "work for good to them that love God, to them who are the called according to His purpose." Yet I do regret them.

Space does not permit me to relate, in any degree of detail, the many achievements with which our labors were blessed, nor do I wish to do so, lest it seem like boasting. To God be all the praise. We were only instruments in His hands. We and all we did were his "workmanship." To God's glory, I do acknowledge the grace that was given me and His blessing upon my labors. I do thank God for the souls I was permitted to baptize and receive into the church. Some of them I have seen "grow in grace" and become strong defenders of the faith and helpers in the Lord. It has grieved me much that others whom I tried to win to Christ, have not been moved to accept Him. I thank God for the years of service I was permitted to give Him in Huntington. I thank Him for the trials and testings as well as for the achievements and victories. It was a rich experience. I thank God for the Huntington Brethren, for their sympathy in my distresses and sorrow, for their co-operation in the labors of Christ, for their prayers, for their financial support, for their love and friendship. All will be a dearly cherished memory to me. May they abide faithful to their Lord, be fruitful in His service and enjoy His blessing always. I trust they will soon have a good pastor.

H. M. Oberholtzer, Carleton, Nebraska.

---

CARLETON, NEBRASKA

After I had resigned my pastorate of the Brethren church in Huntington, Indiana, the Lord opened to me another door of opportunity, with a call to the pastorate of the Brethren church in Carleton, Nebraska, which clearly indicated to me that my work in the ministry of the gospel was not yet done and that for some purpose God had called me to this particular church so far away. I accepted it as the answer to my prayers and that this was the will of God for me. The Carleton Brethren and I were strangers to each other, but after some explanatory correspondence our confidence in each other was established. They reiterated their call and I accepted it.

The Carleton Brethren sent a truck to haul our household goods, which started on their westward way Nov. 5, and my wife and I started late in the afternoon, Nov. 6. In the meantime we were hospitably sheltered in the home of Mr. and Mrs. Archie Smith. We did no night driving. The first night we spent with our friends, Mr. and Mrs. Ora Abshire, in Wabash, Indiana, and two more nights in hotels along the way. It was a long journey of 750 miles, but a very interesting one. We arrived at the Brethren church in Carleton Nov. 10, 11:00 A. M., just in time for the morning worship. We were cordially received and were introduced to the waiting congregation by the church secretary, Mrs. Charles Rachow. We thanked God for a safe journey and, after a brief period of worship in song and prayer, I preached my first sermon in Carleton. We were very delightfully entertained for the day in the home of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Rachow.

Our household goods, which arrived on Friday previous, were stored in the parsonage, which had been cleaned, repapered and repainted in anticipation of our coming, thanks to the ladies of the W. M. S., and the men who helped them. Monday we began unpacking and arranging the household goods.

A formal reception, with an interesting program of devotions and welcome addresses and a response from the pastor and a generous "pounding" of various articles of food, was given us Thursday evening at the church.

Soon we had a short season of cold weather, with about three or four inches of snow, which was considered very good for the wheat. This was followed by a severe sleet storm that made the roads hazardous and did much damage to trees and electric lines. In a week or so it turned warm and took the ice away and we had a season of mild and pleasant winter weather. So far, at this writing, the temperature has not been below zero in Carleton. Our roads are our greatest worry. The most of them being unimproved, they become very muddy and slippery when wet with rain or snow, and become impassable in places. This hinders church attendance very much. Snow drifts are soon removed from the highways by snow plows, but nothing can be done about the mud, except wait until it freezes or dries up.

The Carleton church has a membership of a few more than 100, of whom there is a sizeable group of very faithful, stable and loyal people. They are interested in local activities and in the general interests of the church. They are well organized and all officers seem to take their responsibilities seriously. We have a thriving church school, an active W. M. S. and S. M. M. and a choir of fifteen voices that I think will be a valuable asset to our work.

We have here a very attractive, well-located, well-built, well-arranged and well-equipped church building, well suited for any church activity or any religious public gathering. The holiday season was fraught with several activities, a Christmas party, or supper, and a Christmas Eve candle light service by our own group; a banquet for high school football players, sponsored by the business men of the town; the high school operetta; and a union Christmas service Lord's Day evening before Christmas. We have some very capable and willing leaders and workers that make possible the carrying out of various programs. With sincere consecration to Christ and His cause, and a firm faith and an abiding trust in God, I believe that this church will be able to accomplish much for the glory of God. I am expecting a happy and fruitful pastorate here.

H. M. Oberholtzer.

Travel Flashes

One Single Trip

IT WAS the storm preceding the first zero weather of our winter. The Sunday morning service was in calm, mild weather. A larger-than-ordinary audience greeted the preacher and listened attentively to his message. The six-mile trip home was uneventful and easy, and the restful afternoon boded fair for the evening service with its last heavy draught on the energy of the pastor. An afternoon nap helped to revive and refresh him and the slight evening meal was finishing and then—alas! It began to snow slowly and easily. It was a heavy, "wet" snow and before the time for departure there was three inches of the white, beautiful covering, all over everything, making the trees and shrubbery fairylike and the icy roads most treacherous. The atmosphere was heavy with moisture and the moon was "in the dark." The walk around the house was cleared of snow and likewise the "auto" which had been left outside because the weather was nice and thus avoiding the up-hill drive out of the garage which was treacherous with ice of the former storm.

Forty-five minutes before the time for service, the preacher went out to try for the trip. The first incident was (in the darkness) to swing too sharply into the road and into a bunch of shrubbery, causing the wheels to spin and the auto to become static, and the next, to slip on the snow-covered ice and either fracture or severely bruise the left short ribs, flat on my back, seeing no stars, and able to rise and after unexplained method, to swerve loose from the bushes and into the road.

A bit more than a mile from home, we tried to round a sharp curve, and an almost right-about curve and continue up a steep grade, all in one. It was too much to achieve on the first try. The wheels began to whirl and groan on the icy curve and a deep ditch into which we had once nearly skidded scared the lady (Mrs. Bame) who scrambled hurriedly out of the car, leaving me alone with my problems.

Now I believe that we could have "made the grade" after a few tries had the missus been a bit more brave and stuck to me in my effort with encouragement instead of "fear and trembling"; but she has stuck to me so faithfully in many more dangerous times, and has suffered so many broken bones by accident that I resigned my convictions that we could have won our way with a few tries more and decided without argument, to go twelve miles instead of six and save further arguments and this one most dangerous risk. It is well, sometimes, to agree with "better-halves" even though we know it is expensive to agree and abide the consequences. This seemed one of the times.

And so, instead of going around and up, we turned to the opposite direction, much further and not too sure that we would come out at the right place in the untracked snow. A former pastor, I am told, said that to get to this church was not easy; but after there, he could always ask the way back. Now it is not quite that bad since we have pointers to tell the way on most corners; and it is wonderfully nice when one gets there to find a real country welcome with smiles and handshakes and worshipful people.

Narrow roads, sharp-angle corners, T-roads, snow, darkness, icy underpinning—none of it assures calm equanimity for the sermon; but we arrived even though we were fifteen minutes late and found fourteen persons, six of them Junior Choristers. There were many members absent who knew the roads, and have traveled them for years and none of them subjected to the necessity of the up-and-around curve that made our trip so much farther, but less hazardous.

Returning, we got lost again. In the excitement, we had misjudged the roads, now trackless and no sign of "blacktops," two of which we had to cross which had always helped us to find our way home, pointers on the way.

This was a real test of our courage. After driving several miles, we became convinced that we were not on 124, one of the blacktops, and helped us to decide only the direction of our home. We knew we had to find a road turning to the right, never guessing where we could come out, or if we would have to drive all the way to Peru, ten miles out of the way, in order to know our way back home. But in our secret hearts, we said, we asked the Lord to direct us and to protect us and so, claimed it all for us enroute home.

Well, we finally came to 124 and I told the lady that we were after all on the most fortunate course we could have taken, save for one very icy, steep hill which we must descend. That took more praying for it would not be up-and-around, but down-and-around for this hill. But we "made it" safely, if slowly, and how we did praise the Lord for guidance, protection, courage and calmness in this dangerous and vexing trip!

The Moral

The moral and excuse for this meditation is that the Lord does keep and guide and protect. I have believed that for many years, but never more than now. I could almost say that it has been years since (if ever) that I do not pray every morning for such guidance and protection and I believe as firmly as that I am alive, that it has been proven to me each day even though I may not have realized it as I declare I did on this venture. The very fact that I am alive and preaching and taking risks that city preachers do not have to, is proof positive to me. If this message can help another to accept this teaching of the Word as proof to One in whom they believe, then this shall not have been in vain.

A Sequent Meditation

This has made me do a good deal of thinking since the zero weather has kept me more quiet than ordinarily since. Did the Lord expect me thus to challenge Him for this protection and guidance? Was I foolhardy to undertake this when others, younger and nearer, did not go? Did I do my duty or was it just a daring risk? If it was my duty thus to dare and to suffer, what made it easy for others to remain by their fires and nod and listen to Charley McCarthy? Just where in the Bible, does one find that preachers must dare more than others to obtain the prize of prizes? My answer is that I do not find it any place in the Sacred Scriptures.

I would not have lost my pay had I done as others did. But, was the child right when, puzzled, he questioned as to the meaning of installing the preacher, asking, "Do they put him into a stall and put harness on him when they install him?" But since I have not been "installed," no answer is needed. It would seem that this boy must have been a farmer boy at that. Not?

We did have a good meeting and at least one said, "I liked it better than any other we have had on Sunday night." That is some recompense; and the other problems of this meditation must be left with the people who did not, and do not, venture risk, and their God in the Day of Rewards.

I may as well say that we are not used to only fourteen in our services. The average gain in our Unified Service over that of last year was fifteen for the first quarter and every treasury showed a nice balance as of our last business meeting. New people come, old ones show improvement and our Sunday evening Bible Forum is proving that these people love the precious Word of God. The housing situation is proving a bit troublesome, but the Lord has promised to provide and He will, through these good people. These two Bames are happy and unperturbed in our work and we shall challenge our Brethren everywhere to watch us grow in grace, faithfulness and even in gains, financially and numerically. We are planning already for Eastertide when we shall have a week of Community Exchanges of friendliness and sermons with the seven churches of our township and an Easter program that will be instructive, interesting and interpretative of the greatest event in the world's history since the birth of Christ—His resurrection, believing those two great established facts determine if we are saved or lost. Romans 10:9, 10.

Charles A. Bame.

The New Press Fund

"The Gospel must first be published among all nations."
Mark 13:10.

Authorized by The 1946
General Conference

|                                       |                           |
|---------------------------------------|---------------------------|
| GOAL .....                            | Not less than $15,000.00 |
| Cash and Pledges .....                | $8,529.56                |
| Yet to be raised, not less than ..... | $6,470.44                |

Special Message to the Evangelist Readers!

Our New Press Is Being Installed The Week Of February 16th

We are, therefore, sending out eight-page issues this week and next, in order that you may not miss a week and that our mailing regulations be satisfied.

We know you will be patient with us during this period of moving our equipment.

THANK YOU!

THE BRETHREN EVANGELIST

Published weekly, except the last week in August and
the last week in December.

THE BRETHREN PUBLISHING COMPANY

Ashland, Ohio

EDITOR OF PUBLICATIONS—F. C. Vanator

BUSINESS MANAGER—G. S. Baer

TERMS OF SUBSCRIPTION: $1.50 per year in advance.
CHANGE OF ADDRESS: In ordering change of address always
give both old and new addresses.

Entered as second class matter at Ashland, Ohio. Accepted for mailing
at special rate, section 1103, act of October 3, 1917. Authorized
September 3, 1928.

INTERESTING ITEMS

Berlin, Pennsylvania. Brother S. M. Whetstone, pastor of the Berlin Church, announces that plans are in the making for services to be conducted through the Lenten Season, and on to and including the Easter services.

He also says that one hundred and thirty-two were in attendance at the second combined evening service, which service on January 25 was held at the Reformed Church.

Waterloo, Iowa. We learn from Brother Virgil Meyer's bulletin of January 25 that the morning worship services of the Waterloo church will be broadcast over Radio Station KAYX—1090 on the dial. These may be heard by anyone who is within tuning distance of this station at 11 o'clock CST. These broadcasts permit the local members who find it impossible to attend the services to get the benefit of the morning worship hour. It is not, we think, aimed to permit the ones who are able to attend to stay at home.

Tuesday, February 10, was set as Family Night in the Waterloo Church. Motion pictures, with an outstanding film, were on the evening's program.

Smithville, Ohio. We learn from Brother Vernon Grisso's bulletin of February 1 that on February 8 the musical organization of Ashland College, known as "Musicalgia" was scheduled to present an entire evening service, with instrumental and vocal combinations, together with the devotional period, at the Smithville Church on Sunday evening, February 8.

We also note that the Wayne County Christian Endeavor Birthday Banquet was held at the Smithville Inn on February 5th.

Brother Grisso reports that a total of twenty-eight had perfect attendance this past year in Sunday School. This was compared with a total of twenty-four as of 1946. He also lists the number by years of perfect attendance in the following manner: Perfect attendance for 6 years—5; for 5 years—3; for 4 years—5; for 3 years—5; for 2 years—4; and for 1 year—6.

Bryan, Ohio. Brother E. J. Black, pastor of the Sergeantsville, New Jersey, Brethren Church, has accepted a call to the pastorate of the Bryan, Ohio, Brethren Church, to succeed Brother C. Y. Gilmer, who has accepted the pastorate of the First Brethren Church of Huntington, Indiana. These changes will be effective April 1st.

Brother Gilmer, in making this change, says of the Huntington Church, "The membership now numbers ninety. They are eager to press forward and their prospects for growth are considered good." Rev. Gilmer's brother, Roy, who is pastor of the Clear Creek Church of the Brethren, has resided in Huntington for the past thirteen years, and his mother and other brother and his family live eleven miles from the city. Brother Gilmer, therefore, is not entirely a stranger in these parts.

Washington, D. C. We learn from Brother Fairbanks' bulletin of January 25, that Brother T. C. Lyon was recently elected moderator of the Washington Church, and Brother T. A. Chappell was made assistant moderator.

February 1 was set aside as Building Fund Sunday, with the usual goal of $1,000.00, with the hope that it could be made more.

Canton, Ohio. Brother E. J. Beekley reports that the average attendance at the Canton Church services for the month of January was: Morning—75; Evening—24.

Ashland, Ohio. By action of the Official Board the Ashland Church is to hold election for three new Deacons on Sunday morning, March 7th. The usual procedure will be by ballot without nominations.

The Youth Organizations of the Ashland Church conducted a very fine "Youth Week" which celebrated the usual Christian Endeavor Week observance with a Party on Monday evening, January 26; full charge of the Wednesday night mid-week prayer service on January 28, and as a climax, a fine program on Sunday evening, February 1, which included many musical numbers; a fine devotional period by the Junior C. E.; talks by Paul Clapper, National President of Brethren Youth and Phil. Lersch, President of the Northeastern Ohio Brethren Youth; an offering taken for the Ohio Brethren Youth project. All three Christian Endeavor Societies had part. The service was in charge of Carl E. Mohler, Youth Director of the Ashland Church.

Ashland College Exchange Student to Sail. Brother Arthur Petit, Director of Public Relations of Ashland College, announces that Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Commisso, the latter formerly Miss Nellie Eller of our Milledgeville, Illinois, Brethren Church, have booked passage on a steamer leaving New York City for Cordoba, Argentina, on Friday, February 27. Mrs. Commisso will enroll as exchange student in the University of Cordoba, and Mr. Commisso will be employed in South America until his duties as Captain of the 1948 Ashland College Football Team will cause him to return to the College Campus in August. Mrs. Commisso will remain in Argentina until October, when she will return to Ashland College. While in South America the Commissos will live in the home of the Romanenghis.

Masontown, Pennsylvania. Brother Ankrum announces that Brother John Locke will not be able to help out in their Spring revival, as announced.

Business Manager's Corner

George S. Baer

First Reports of Publication Day Offering

WE HAVE only scattering reports so far, but they will be coming in rapidly from now on, consequently we want to get started on the publication of them so they will not pile up too high. One of my fellow workers says he has a feeling that our offering this year will come from a larger number of people than ever before, and that when the total is in, it will sum up to a large offering. We hope so, for we have never known a year when it was needed more than it is now. We have said that before a number of times and we are saying it again and again because it is so very true. May it be that no one will fail to do his level best to provide for the needs of this department of the Lord's work. God bless you all for your gifts—those already made and those yet to be made—that God may be glorified in the giving.

|                                                                   |         |
|-------------------------------------------------------------------|---------|
| W. P. Spinggle, Middletown, Va. ....                              | $ 2.00 |
| B. F. Lampton, Brownsville, Ohio .....                            | .50     |
| Mrs. J. J. Wolfe, Hovey-in-the-Hills, Fla .....                   | 25.00   |
| Mrs. Leota Damm, Logansport, Ind. ....                            | 1.00    |
| Edna L. Bell, Somerset, Pa. ....                                  | 5.00    |
| Mrs. E. A. Jueillerat, Portland, Ind. ....                        | 2.00    |
| Mrs. Nina Bishop, Kissimee, Fla. ....                             | 10.00   |
| B. Frank Zercher, Ashland, Ohio .....                             | 25.00   |
| Mr. and Mrs. Jerry L. Flora, Wabash (CollegeCorner) Ind. .... | 2.00    |
| Bessie Clingaman, Denver, Ind. ....                               | 2.00    |
| David S. Hegler, Fairview Brethren, Ohio .....                    | 5.00    |
| Flora Church Offering, Flora, Ind. ....                           | 37.00   |
| Mrs. Mary B. Miller, Goshen, Ind. ....                            | .50     |
| S. A. Shannon, Hamlin, Kansas .....                               | 5.00    |
| Mrs. C. W. Shaffer, Johnstown, Pa. ....                           | 2.00    |
| Mrs. Harold J. Dwyer, Johnstown, Pa. ....                         | 10.00   |
| Mrs. H. R. Beal, Mansfield, Ohio .....                            | 1.50    |
| Vesta N. Hoover, Meyersdale, Pa. ....                             | 2.00    |
| S. C. Flickinger, Morrill, Kansas .....                           | 20.00   |
| Estella Blackstone, Mt. Zion Church, Ohio .....                   | 5.00    |
| Helen E. Shively, Ashland, Ohio (Nappanee Ch.) ..                 | 15.00   |
| Sadie Snyder, Eaton, Ohio (New Lebanon Ch.) ....                  | 5.00    |
| Mrs. Edward Watson, New Lebanon, Ohio .....                       | 2.00    |
| Church Offering, North Liberty, Ind. ....                         | 67.04   |
| Mrs. Sylvanus Beigh, North Manchester, Ind. ....                  | 10.00   |
| Mrs. Ida Himiller, Washington C. H., Ohio .....                   | 2.50    |
| Mrs. Verda Hade Hess, Waynesboro, Pa. ....                        | 2.50    |
| H. J. Riner, West Alexandria, Ohio .....                          | 10.00   |
| Mulvane, Kansas, Offering as follows:                             |         |
| Mr. and Mrs. Olin Davis .....                                     | 2.00    |
| Mr. and Mrs. Paul Anthony .....                                   | 1.00    |
| Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Lehman .....                                | 2.00    |
| Mr. and Mrs. Lee Howard .....                                     | 2.00    |
| Rev. and Mrs. W. L. Thomas .....                                  | 7.00    |
| Mr. and Mrs. Maurice Howard .....                                 | 5.00    |
| Misc. ....                                                        | 1.50    |
| Horace Huse, Manteca, Calif. ....                                 | 5.00    |
| Mr. and Mrs. Dell G. Lemon, Portis, Kansas .....                  | 2.00    |

Mrs. Agnes Lemon, Portis, Kansas ..... 1.00

Total for this report ..... $305.04

Press Fund Reports

|                                               |        |
|-----------------------------------------------|--------|
| Mrs. Nina Bishop, Kissimee, Florida .....     | 5.00   |
| Mr. and Mrs. D. A. Erlstin, Bryan, Ohio ..... | 5.00   |
| The Brethren Church, Flora, Ind. ....         | 10.00  |
| Hagerstown S. S., Hagerstown, Md. ....        | 100.00 |
| Myrtle F. Laughlin, Hagerstown, Md. ....      | 10.00  |
| S. A. Shannon, Hamlin, Kansas .....           | 5.00   |
| Vesta N. Hoover, Meyersdale, Pa. ....         | 1.00   |
| Mrs. Agnes Lemon, Portis, Kansas .....        | 1.00   |

(For total of the Press Fund see block on page 16).

The Editor Thinks Aloud

Fred C. Vanator

WHAT ABOUT YOUR NATIONAL GOALS?

AT A RECENT meeting of the Ohio District Executive Committee in preparation for the making of the program for the Ohio District Conference, which is to be held at Canton, Ohio, the week of June 13th, Brother J. G. Dodds, who is Moderator of the Ohio Conference, and, incidently, also Chairman of the National Goals Committee, raised the question of the emphasis on National Goals. In the course of the conversation it was mentioned that a greater emphasis should be shown among the churches of the District regarding these goals, since the Ohio Five Year Goals Program has been completed and the National Goals Program taken over in its place.

As usual this set me to thinking!

What about the Goals? Are they just on paper, or are they an integral part of the program of your church? In fact, how recently have they, either as a whole, or in their individual fields, been mentioned in any of your Official Board meetings, Sunday School cabinet meetings, or from the pulpit? It is quite easy to forget that the General Conference has outlined a course of procedure which will be workable in ALL churches. True, some of these goals you meet without apparent effort. So easy are some, in fact, that you do not realize that you have made a goal. But others need emphasizing and re-emphasizing before the congregation.

Each church and each pastor should become "Goal Conscious," not simply that you may come to General Conference with a report that you have reached a number of points, but that the work under each goal has been accomplished.

Goals are just something by which to gauge progress. But if one wants an accurate measurement of that progress in relation to ability to accomplish the task, then we have it in our National Goals Program.

Sure, some of these goals are difficult to reach. But do you want to just slide along easily on past momentum? We think not!

Think it over!

Facts and Figures

I HAVE BEEN ASKED by the President of the Benevolent Board to furnish an article for the Evangelist which will give some information of the activities of the Brethren's Home at Flora, Indiana, and to make an appeal for a splendid offering on February 29. He himself has furnished a splendid article for an appeal to give to the Superannuated Ministers' Fund, for our aged ministers and their widows. If you have not read it, read it before you scan these pages. Living costs have almost tripled, yet the amount our ministers and widows receive from the Church is still the same. I do hope the offering this year will be large enough to increase this somewhat. But our ability to do this depends wholly upon your offering.

But Now To The Brethren's Home

Last year we placed a cold deep freezer in the Home at a cost of $595.00, and insulated the attic at a cost of $544.90. The National Woman's Missionary Society furnished us $1,000.00 to pay for this improvement. But since this amount has been put into improvements it leaves us just as much less for running expenses of the Home, as the good women have been contributing almost this amount for some years. We also had to hire a nurse for almost a year for one of our life members. This is the first time we have had to do this for so long a period. We also purchased a Roto Tiller for garden purposes at a cost of $569.42. We had, up to that time, one death which meant an extra expenditure for hospital bill and burial expenses. All this meant that we had to close our books for the past year with a small margin to begin the work of the new year.

Now since Conference, we have had the misfortune of three of our life members passing away, which has meant added funeral expenses. Mrs. Lyda Wertman, Miss Edna Boone and Irvin Clark have all died since conference. We were also compelled to install a new furnace. This, with repairs on the stoker, meant an outlay of $1,600.00. These extra expenses, along with the increased cost of living, have made a heavy drain on the finances. In fact, we were compelled to draw from our resources to pay these bills. We hope now the offering for this year will be large enough to repay this amount, so that we can have a growing fund for erecting cottages at the home

About The Brethren Home

Rev. L. V. King, Treasurer of Benevolent Board

for retired ministers and other couples desiring to come to the Home. The increased cost of building has prevented us from having one or two of these cottages now.

The above statement and facts will reveal the truth that we must have a liberal offering this February from the Churches in order to meet our bills. These are the FACTS.

The Practical Side

BUT now to the practical side and the appeal of this article. All of us know that the Brethren Church has not taken care of her poor and needy as she ought. The entire gift from the Church this past year for both the Superannuated Fund and the Brethren's Home amounted to $8,219.43. That means that we averaged but fifty cents per member the past year for the support of the Benevolences of our own group. Yet many of our people think nothing of spending $1.00 for one evening of amusement for their own enjoyment.

A father complained recently that cigarettes were costing too much, for his family was using one package each for himself, his wife, and two daughters, at a cost of eighty cents a day. That means thirty cents a day more than we are able to spend in a year for the needy of our own faith. What a blessing that family might have had if they would have turned over to the Benevolent Board that $292.00 instead of wasting it on themselves.

One of the problems of every nation is the poor of their land. The Church could greatly relieve this problem IF they would provide for the needy of their own group. The law of the Old Testament was kind to the poor. Read Deuteronomy 15:7-11 before you read further in this article. Every seventh year was a release for the poor. Free will offerings were set aside for their support. Jesus Himself was kind to the poor. We know His feeling for the woman who cast in her mite. He also said, "I was hungered, and ye gave me meat, naked and ye clothed me." The Epistles also make ample provision for the poor and needy of the Church. Instead of calling them "the old folks," St. Paul, in his epistle to the Corinthians calls them "Saints." Read I Corinthians 16:1 and II Corinthians 8:4 and 9:1. He not only calls them saints, but he gives to the Christian Church the method of supporting the poor saints of the church.

Paul in this epistle deals with the various problems the church faced in that early time. In I Corinthians 9:13, 14, he shows how the church should support the ministry and the spread of the gospel. The truth hinges on the words, "even so do ye." Here he is definitely speaking about the Tithe.

But in I Corinthians 16:1, 2 and in II Corinthians, chapters 8 and 9 he is speaking about the support of the poor. And here the method suggested is "Free will offerings." Now, if you will study the method of paying the Tithe and giving free will offerings, you will discover a great difference.

The Tithe is to be deducted when the money is received. Here the offering is to be laid aside upon the first day of the week. And Why? Because the Lord's Day is the Day in which we meet together as one family, rich and poor alike, in common worship.

Again, the Tithe is a stated amount. It is always One-Tenth. But the collection for the poor is one of bounty as the Lord has prospered. The amount to be given is not stated. The Tithe is definitely stated. The Tithe is paid as an act of recognition of our stewardship. The collection is to show our equality in worship. The Tithe is our debt to God. The collection is called an act of grace. The Churches of Macedonia gave out of deep poverty. Yea, they gave even beyond their power. And they prayed Paul that he would receive the gift. This, not for himself, but for the poor saints in Jerusalem.

So as they abounded in other graces, so they are now to abound in this grace, namely, the grace of giving offerings to the poor. In 9:4 he speaks of it as a collection and in verse 5 as a matter of bounty. And he closes his appeal with three of the most wonderful verses in Scripture. Read II Corinthians 9:6-8. And remember, Paul is not speaking about paying the Tithe when he makes this appeal, but about an offering for the needy.

The Old Order Brethren have not lost this appeal for the poor as we have. It is true they neglected missions while we have neglected the poor. Happy will be that Church and denomination and individual who will first give the Tithe to the Church for the presentation of the Gospel. Then, who will upon the first day of the week, lay aside for the poor and needy of the church.

If the Tithe brings a wonderful blessing, (and it does to the sincere heart) so also will the weekly offerings given as a bounty and as a grace for the poor. In fact the Tithe is going the first mile. Many Christians will not go that far. Free will offerings out of a loving heart, is going the second mile and will bring the second mile blessing. So it is not enough to just give the Tithe, or rather should I say to "Pay the Tithe." That is the duty of every man and woman, boy and girl. The heathen do this much. It is also our Christian duty to care for the needy of our faith, the poor saints, through free will offerings.

In every church I have served since this truth came to me, I have endeavored to challenge the church to such a program. I would like to see how it works and what blessings it will bring. I am hoping and praying, now, that the Elkhart Church will be the first to accept the challenge. If others are willing to try it, I would be happy to know about it and the results.

If it is a disgrace for a country to have her worthy citizens in great need, how much more of a disgrace is it for the Church to allow her own to go in want? IF the Brethren Church will take the way suggested by Paul, she will become a great blessing to the world and the wonder of the modern church.

—Elkhart, Indiana.

Word From the Superintendent and Matron of The Home

IT IS INDEED a pleasure to tell you once again of some of the happenings at the Brethren's Home during the past year.

The greater improvements include: the installing of a new furnace; painting the outside woodwork; installation of a Bendix washer, given to the Home by Mr. and Mrs. Lloyd Miller of Roann, Indiana; a piano, given by Mr. Francis Sriver of South Bend, Indiana; a glider for the front porch, purchased with money from the Young Men's and Young Women's Sunday School Classes of Hagerstown, Maryland, in honor of their teachers, Mr. and Mrs. Braden Ridenour.

At present we have eight women and three men with three rooms vacant. One of these rooms will be taken in the spring by Mrs. Luella Kebert of South Bend, Indiana. Mrs. Ellen Newbold of Fremont, Ohio, has recently entered the home. We lost four members last year—Mrs. Lyda Wertman, Ashland, Ohio; Miss Edna Boone, Loree, Indiana; Mr. Benton Speer, Cambria, Indiana, and Mr. Irvin Clark, Center Chapel, Indiana.

We are butchering a seven hundred pound beef and three hogs, which, together with our fruits and vegetables, will fill our deep freeze to the top again.

We want to thank everyone for all the fine things you have done during the past year. Below are a list of the gifts received and the donors. (If anyone person or group is omitted, please let us know.)

St. James, Maryland, W. M. S.—curtains.
 College Corner W. M. S., College Corner, Ind.—$10.00.
 Dutchtown, Indiana, W. M. S.—curtains.
 Mrs. Dell Lemon, Portis, Kansas—hooked rug, towels, wash cloths, aprons.
 Berlin, Pennsylvania, W. M. S.—$10.00 for curtains.
 Liberty Brethren Church, Quicksburg, Virginia—comfort.
 Ardmore Heights W. M. S., South Bend, Indiana—$10.00 for curtains.
 Rev. and Mrs. Harrie Funderberg, New Carlisle, Ohio—$10.00.
 South Bend, Indiana, W. M. S.—four comforts.
 Golden Hour Class, Nappanee, Indiana—comfort, dish-towels, pot-holders.
 Loree, Indiana, W. M. S.—curtains and throw rugs.
 Good Will Circle, Johnstown, Pennsylvania—tea towels and pot-holders.
 Corinth (Twelve Mile) Indiana, W. M. S.—dish towels and pot-holders.
 True Blue Class, Roann, Indiana—$12.00.
 Cerro Gordo, Illinois, W. M. S.—two rugs and a comfort.
 Cameron, West Virginia, W. M. S.—dish towels.
 West Alexandria, Ohio, W. M. S.—comforts, towels, pot-holders, curtains.
 Vinco, Pennsylvania, W. M. S., No. 2—dresser scarfs and tea towels.
 Milledgeville, Illinois, Sisterhood Girls—comfort.
 Calvary, New Jersey, W. M. S.—sheets and pillow slips.
 Willing Workers' Class, Hagerstown, Maryland—$25.00.
 North Manchester, Indiana, W. M. S.—curtains and dish towels.
 Johnstown, Pennsylvania, III, Sisterhood Girls—table scarfs and spreads.
 Berlin, Pennsylvania, Junior Sisterhood—tea towels.
 Ft. Scott, Kansas, W. M. S.—towels, scarfs, rug.
 Ashland Junior W. M. S.—tea towels.
 Ardmore Heights W. M. S., South Bend, Indiana—five woven rugs.
 Mrs. Hawbecker, Lanark, Illinois—clothing.
 LaVerne, California Church—$7.75.
 Morrill, Kansas, W. M. S.—curtains.
 Progressive Class, Berlin, Pennsylvania—quilts.
 Loyal Daughters Class, Milledgeville, Illinois—two rugs.
 Center Chapel Ladies' Aid, in memory of Irvin Clark—$10.00.
 Carleton, Nebraska, W. M. S.—Christmas gifts.
 Pittsburgh, Pennsylvania, W. M. S.—$8.00 for Christmas fruit.
 Mrs. Luella Kebert South Bend, Indiana—fruit from Florida.
 Mr. and Mrs. Elmer Kuns, Flora, Indiana—fruit.
 Flora, Indiana, W. M. S.—fruit.
 Burlington, Indiana, W. M. S.—money for Christmas turkey.
 Lanark, Illinois, W. M. S.—Christmas gifts.
 Washington, D. C., W. M. S.—Christmas gifts.
 Young Men's and Women's Classes, Hagerstown, Maryland—$56.00, with which the above mentioned glider was purchased, and also a picture for the Reception Room, which we do not yet have at this writing.

May we have your prayers to help us carry on His work.

James E. Scott, Superintendent

Mrs. James E. Scott, Matron.

COMMENTS

On The Sunday School Lesson

by The Editor

Lesson for February 22, 1948

ALL ONE IN CHRIST

Lesson: Acts 2:37-47; Ephesians 4:1-6

AT THE very outset let us discern this outstanding fact: The oneness is to be found, not in the idea of a world-wide union of all faiths (whatever they might represent), but in an idea that is bound up in the relationship of the individual to his Lord.

True there was a great "mass meeting" at the time of Peter's sermon, the result of which preaching is found in the verses of our lesson from Acts, but also there was the matter of individual choices to be reckoned with. We cannot, by any stretch of imagination, even think that everyone who stood in that vast throng that surrounded Peter and the rest of the apostles that day, fully subscribed to all the utterances which Peter was led to give forth. Each had to think for himself and had to make his own decision. Each individual had to become "one" with Christ, and, becoming "one with Christ," he was merged into the oneness of the body of Christ. He did not become a part of the one standing next to him, but a part of the great all-inclusive body of the Church.

It seems to the writer that the greatest emphasis of the lesson should be placed on verses 46 and 47 of the Acts passage—the outstanding expressions being, "daily with one accord in the temple"; "gladness and singleness of heart"; "praising God"; "having favor with all people."

When people worship, truly worship (and we are not talking about the mere act of attending the church services, for many attend church who never really worship) but when we really worship together there is a tie that really "binds our hearts in Christian love" and there is a "fellowship of kindred minds" that is "like to that above."

In the Ephesian passage two phrases stand out that should be emphasized—"walk worthy of the vocation wherewith ye are called" (verse 1), and "Endeavoring to keep the unity of the Spirit in the bond of love" (verse 3). As the spokes of the wheel bind the rim of the wheel to the hub, so the lives of real Christians bind the church to the Christ. Each spoke plays an important part in the bearing of the weight of the load. Each individual must play his part in the God-given task of upholding the plans and purposes of a loving Father. Linked thus to the Christ we become one with Him in purpose, in effort, and in the results that are sure to come.

CHRISTIAN ENDEAVOR TOPIC

W. St. Clair Benshoff, Topic Editor

"Topics copyrighted by the International Society of Christian Endeavor. Used by permission."

Topic for February 22, 1948

"WHY THESE SHOULD NOT BE JOINED"

Scripture: Ezra 9:10-15; 10:10-12; Num. 36:6-10

For The Leader

IN THE days of Israel, as brought out in our scripture from Numbers, there was a special admonition concerning marriage. It is one which could well be considered today. The daughters were commanded not to marry out of their own tribe, as also were the sons. In other words, to be assured of the inheritance that was promised unto them, they were to marry among the people of their own tribe. This has a very important significance today. Young Christian people are in danger of losing their spiritual inheritance because they marry unchristian people, or those of a different religious faith. God was interested in keeping the Jewish race of pure blood, so therefore He forbids marriage with the ungodly and pagan nations, under threat of severe punishment. It is the same with us today. God wants to keep us pure and clean for Him, so we are thus to refrain from marrying those who are not of the Christian faith. This is blunt, but it is the truth.

DISCUSSION

1. USING SENSE IN "FALLING IN LOVE." So many times today, a girl or a boy will become interested in another, letting love grow until reason has no power. When if at first thought they would have used a little good judgment, an unhappy marriage would have been prevented. We have seen so many otherwise promising young people in the church begin to keep company with unchristian friends, soon to marry and become lost to the church. A little sense could prevent these misfortunes. We can use sense by picking our company from those of our own intelligence and educational levels. We can pick them from those of our own social and recreational desires. We can pick them from those of our own spiritual interests and levels. And we can know these things before the case gets developed too far.

2. PUT AN EYE TO THE FUTURE. All the honeyed words of a romance will not bring back the dream of happiness when a Christian girl wakes up to the fact that she married a man who has no interest in the church. When he insists on her giving up her church, or he will leave her, it shows that another girl is heartbroken. Too often, just to keep peace, she will give up her religious life and live to please the ungodly husband she married. Her mistake began when she started keeping company with the man. Chances are, she didn't meet him in church. Probably at a dance hall or school dance. Perhaps she herself wasn't too much concerned as to the part her religion and his lack of it, would bear on their future happiness. How much better had she picked her friend from among the church going, Christ loving, young men.

3. AN UNEQUAL YOKE. Paul doesn't mince words in

II Corinthians 6:14 when he says, "Be ye not unequally yoked together with unbelievers. For what fellowship hath righteousness with unrighteousness?" Well, these words can refer to most any kind of a contract with unbelievers, and it can refer to the marriage of a Christian and an unbeliever. If you are a Christian young person, interested in church, do you think by marrying an unchristian, that you will be happy when he chooses to spend his time in doing other things? You may win him to Christ, but the odds are rare. As the church, which is Christ's Bride is to keep herself separated from the world, so we, who are His children, are to keep ourselves separated from the people of the world—especially in such a binding contract as marriage. Christians and unchristians should not be joined in marriage. They live in different worlds.

4. WHAT ABOUT CATHOLICS? The recent war, and the years since, have brought a lot of Protestant-Catholic marriages. This is a serious problem! Will these marriages work? Yes, they will work if the Protestant party gives up their faith. Do you know that if you, a Protestant, marry a Catholic, that unless you give up your faith and join the Catholic faith, that they won't even honor you by permitting you to be married at the regular church altar? You must be "humiliated" on your wedding day by being married at the "side altar!" Also, that you must sign over your future children to the Catholic faith? The two faiths are "incompatible" and will always rise as a dreadful dragon in your married life if you decide to marry a Catholic. Unless you two decide on a definite standard and pattern of life, and come to an agreeable, unbreakable understanding on religion before your Catholic-Protestant marriage, your life will be hard. The sad, sad stories coming to light day after day of these mixed marriages proves the odds against happiness too great to take a chance. Some Protestants have married Catholics, and became Catholics, thus being apparently happy. Some Catholics have married Protestants and became Protestants, and are real happy. But the odds of a mixed marriage resulting in satisfied happiness is too great against it. Think before you enter a mixed marriage!

5 PROBLEMS TO BE ANSWERED. In such a short space it would be impossible to answer, or even deal with the major portion of problems resulting from mixed marriages. There have been some notable exceptions wherein mixed marriages have succeeded, as there have been some apparently good Christian marriages which have gone on the rocks. It would be well to remember that all of our problems can be solved at the throne of grace. Using a clear head, lots of common sense, and prayer, you can work out the solution if you find yourself getting entangled in what we might call "an unsatisfactory set-up" for marriage. After all, Christian young person, you are a servant of God, and a temple of that God, and as such you should be careful to do nothing that will defame or shame that God.

PROBLEM

1. A Christian girl is "dating" a young man who is not a Christian. He is a real gentleman to her. He wants to marry her. Should she say "Yes?" Should she say "No," or "No" just until he becomes a Christian? Should she cast him aside? Should she marry him on the strength of his promise to become a Christian after they are married? Should she be dating him in the first place?

News From Our Churches

UDELL, IOWA

We know you will all rejoice with us with this good news. Our attendance in Church school has almost doubled, and we are happy in the Lord. We have four new families coming, and hope to have others. We had a nice Christmas program on Sunday morning with 70 people present. In the evening we went to the other church Program and they had 80 present.

Our choir-quartette sang over loud speakers in Center-ville one afternoon before Christmas—a 30 minute program. Our quartette also put on a 30 minute program of hymns and spirituals along with the writer with chalk talks, in our county seat town in December. They are also called on for singing at funerals quite frequently.

We have had three weddings since last we reported, and one or two funerals. Since we have been having several children in our church school we have been giving object lessons to them; but all seem to enjoy them. We are still building up our fund for repairs; in the spring we must have a new foundation under most of the building, and are thinking of a new floor oil furnace. We have friends from California, Florida, and other distant places who remember us in our work. Indiana folks are especially kind and help us bear up under the load, and we praise the Lord for such kindness. What would this world be without friends, and particularly our Friend Jesus?

Happy in the Lord,

W. R. Deeter

LOREE-MEXICO, INDIANA, CIRCUIT

With the holiday season past, I thought I should catch up on the news from our Loree-Mexico circuit.

Mrs. Mary Rose Childers of Bunker Hill, and a life-long member of the Loree Brethren Church, passed to the more abundant life beyond our horizon on December 16, 1947. She was born in the Bunker Hill community and lived in this vicinity for her entire life. After being in failing health for several years she succumbed to a heart attack at the age of 79 years. She is survived by four children: Mrs. Charles Miller, Peru; Mrs. Ralph Gibson, Galveston; Roy Childers, Montpelier, Ohio, and Jesse Childers, Bunker Hill. Funeral services were conducted by the undersigned at the Loree Brethren Church, with burial in the Rankin Cemetery.

Our revival effort was held at Loree from December 25, 1947 to January 4, 1948, with the pastor as evangelist, and Mrs. E. R. Carrithers as Song Leader. Our meetings fell in a period of bad weather, and terrible driving conditions, which caused the cancellation of one evening service, because of power failure. But even in the midst of all this and much illness besides, our meetings were well attended and four young men made their first confession of faith in Our Lord. Mrs. Carrithers did a fine job as song leader and we all feel that God blessed our efforts. We are continuing to seek out others for our baptismal service.

The following Sunday School officers were elected for 1948 at the Loree business meeting on January 5. Sunday School Superintendent, Edward Lippold; Assistant, Harrell Waters; Secretary, Wayne Betzner; Assistant, Elbert Sprinkle; Treasurer, Omer Lippold; Assistant, Walter Miller; Chorister, Dale Miller; Assistants, Allen Childers and Joann Zerbe; Pianist, Bessie Lippold; Assistant, Arline Payne; Primary Supt., Alice Lippold; Assistant, Esther Worl; Cradle Roll Supt., Mrs. Evelyn Lemaster.

Brother Walter Shinn, who had been Loree's Sunday School Superintendent for thirty-five years, asked to be relieved of those duties, and his resignation was accepted. Brother Walter plans to take a vacation trip into Old Mexico, and then back home to look for other tasks in the Loree Church, where he is chairman of the Board of Deacons. On Sunday, December 28, the congregation presented the Shinn family with a small token of their appreciation and esteem for their years of faithful service. May God bless Brother Walter and his fine family, and give us more leaders like them in our churches.

Robert K. Higgins, pastor.

MESSAGE OF THANKS

To all those who have already sent their free-will offerings for the Argentine Student Fund, we wish to publicly express our sincere thanks. We have already passed the halfway mark towards the needed goal, and this prompt expression indicates that the remainder will be shortly forthcoming. Ashland College's exchange student will embark the latter part of this month for the Argentine, where she will be at home with the Romanenghi's and enrolled as a student at the University of Cordoba. The friends and contributors will each have an investment in this good-will project. Thanks again.

L. E. Lindower, Treas.,
Argentine Student Fund,
Ashland College, Ashland, Ohio.

Faith must grow or die. One conviction must lead on to another, or the fruit will in time be lost. If a man stand by the truth he has, some day, in some form, Christ, who is truth, will pour into his heart another and another.—William Lawrence.

The New Press Fund

|                                       |             |
|---------------------------------------|-------------|
| GOAL—Not less than .....              | $15,000.00 |
| Cash and Pledges .....                | $ 8,666.56 |
| Yet to be raised, not less than ..... | $ 6,333.44 |

MARCH 1948
FORTY-SEVEN

The BRETHREN EVANGELIST

HOLY BIBLE

Official Organ of The Brethren Church

A Pastor

*He knows but Jesus Christ, the crucified.
Ah, little recks the worldling of the worth
Of such a man as this upon the earth!
Who gives himself—his all—to make men wise
In doctrines which his life exemplifies.
The years pass on, and a great multitude
Still finds in him a character whose light
Shines around him like a candle in the night;
And recognize a presence so benign
That to the godless even it seems divine.
He bears his people's love within his heart,
And envies no man, whatsoe'er his part.
His church's record grows, and grows again,
With names of saintly women-folks and men,
And many a worldling, many a wayward youth,
He counts among the trophies of his truth.
Oh, happy man! There is no man like thee,
Worn out in service of humanity.
And dead at last, 'mid universal tears—
Thy name a fragrance in the speaker's breath,
And thy divine example life in death.*

—Dr. J. G. Holland.

THE BRETHREN EVANGELIST

Published weekly, except the last week in August and
the last week in December

THE BRETHREN PUBLISHING COMPANY

Ashland, Ohio

EDITOR OF PUBLICATIONS—F. C. Vanator

BUSINESS MANAGER—G. S. Baer

TERMS OF SUBSCRIPTION $1.50 per year in advance
CHANGE OF ADDRESS In ordering change of address always
give both old and new addresses

Entered as second class matter at Ashland, Ohio Accepted for mailing
at special rate section 1103 act of October 3, 1917 Authorized
September 3, 1928

More About That Fire At St. James, Maryland

(Brother Henry Bates, according to his promise given just following the fire in the St. James Church, has sent us the following concerning the fire and the plans which have taken shape since that time.—Editor.)

ON SUNDAY morning, January 11, fire broke out in the St. James Brethren Church, causing considerable damage to the Sunday School building and to the sanctuary. The Sunday School services had just gotten underway with the singing of the first stanza of "Blessed Assurance" when the fire was discovered by one of the nursery supervisors. The two buildings were evacuated in an exceptionally orderly fashion, and in a very short time most of the furniture and other movable articles were out of the church. The men immediately organized a bucket brigade and it was only through their efforts that the church was saved from complete destruction. After the fire had been extinguished a short service of thanksgiving and praise was held, for as many of the folks remarked, "We had much to be thankful for."

The Laymen's Organization of the church was scheduled to conduct the evening service on that day, with Dr. Bixler as the guest speaker. We are greatly indebted to Brother Leatherman and the brethren of our Hagerstown church for their kind invitation to transfer the service to their building.

Conceivably it would be a number of weeks before the church would be fit for regular services again, since the furnace could not be used until a new chimney was constructed or until the present one could be complete overhauled. Also we were without lights, since the fire had burned most of the wiring. It was decided that morning services should be held as usual, with all the Sunday School classes gathering in the sanctuary, and that the evening services would be discontinued until the electrical work had been completed. Several of the men spent the best part of a day setting up two heatrolas in the church and repairing an old chimney in order that we might have heat on Sunday mornings. Thus far the inconveniences caused by the fire have not noticeably affected the attendance at the services nor have they in any way dampened the enthusiasm of the folks here. In fact we might say that the desire to see things as they were and the determination to move forward in spite of handicaps has given new life to the work here.

Following the visit by the insurance companies' adjusters, a special meeting of the Official Board and representatives of each of the church auxiliaries was called. It was felt that this would be an excellent time to make other repairs and additions about which we had been thinking for some time. Each of the auxiliaries and organizations was given an opportunity to undertake some portion of this work as their own projects, thus relieving the church as a whole from much of this expense and work. A heart-warming response was accorded this plan by all of the groups represented. The Loyal Ladies Class, in addition to the stained glass windows which have already been contracted for, volunteered to clean and refinish the woodwork in the sanctuary. The W. M. S. took as their project the sanding and refinishing of the floor and purchasing of new carpet for the church auditorium. The Laymen's Organization voted to undertake the financing of 50% of the cost of redecorating the interior of the church—the insurance company paying the balance. New hymnal racks will be furnished by the Primary Department of the Sunday School; while the Men's Bible Class will do the necessary work in the Sunday School building. The Boys' Brotherhood, in addition to their basement or church addition project, agreed to take care of some necessary grading and the planting of shrubs about the church grounds. This leaves just one major project to be taken care of—the sanding and refinishing of the pews—and we feel sure that this will be taken care of in the very near future.

We were quite fortunate in securing the services of a local contractor who has already begun the work of repairing the damage caused by the fire, and we are hopeful that within a very few weeks the "new" church will be ready for use.

We covet the prayers of the brotherhood, both for this work program and also for the spiritual life and enthusiasm of the brethren here.

Henry Bates, pastor.

GROWING HILLS

H. A. Gossard

Ere youth and vigor left these weary limbs,

These hills seemed not so steep as now they seem.
This path seems narrow now, with rugged rims;

It once seemed broad and smooth, and held a dream...
Old trees that decked these hills and lined this path

Have disappeared; these younger show decay...
Where laurel bloomed there's prickly aftermath...

The songbirds too have flown, nor left a lay...

I've reached the Crest!—Now, facing sunset gleams,

The hills, tho steep, are short; the path is wide;
Old songs of love and youth's most hopeful dreams

Seem to return and quicken each slow stride...
Whate'er befall, I'll keep the onward course

Till Eventide;—then rest with no remorse.

—Lanark, Illinois.

(Brother Munson says, "Before you give this article the complete brush-off read the last paragraph, will you?")

Self Denial

Rev. Charles Munson

IT'S A FUNNY THING about self denial—a lot of people talk about it but very few do anything about it. Too many of us are like the little boy who was asked what he wanted to give up during the lenten season, his reply was, "soap." Most of us are seeking the easy way out. Now when you come right down to it, the Bible makes self denial a bigger order than most of us are willing to accept. When Jesus called His disciples we find that He asked them to leave all and follow Him. To the rich young ruler it was sell all. To you and me it means surrender life and pocketbook. It means a soul devoted to one purpose—service for the Lord Jesus.

In Luke 14:26 we read "If any man come to me, and hate not his father, and mother, and wife and children, and brethren, and sisters, yea, and his own life also, he cannot be my disciple." These are rather harsh words, it seems, but Jesus never beat around the bush when he had something to tell. Here Jesus was talking to a large group of people who thought that He was about to establish a great earthly kingdom. In order to clear away this misunderstanding Jesus is quick to point out just what it means to be a follower. Nothing must come before service to Christ. Even loved ones, if they keep one from service, must take second place.

In what place is Christ in your life? How much self-denial is practiced when it comes to choosing between the church and something else? Try to plan an extra church meeting some time and see what happens. Susie has something at school; Joe has a ball game; Mary has planned a party with the girls. So it goes—if the church has that meeting you can be sure it will come in last place. That happens in practically every phase of life—if you don't believe it think back over the times you have thought of the church first. Not many, huh? Let's stop kidding ourselves—a lot of us are trying to carry water on both shoulders. We don't want to be too good or too bad. Being a true Christian is on the basis of whether I have time or not. So Jesus hastened to explain to all that discipleship meant placing everything second to Him.

Now listen, that means more than church attendance. It means that you shall, in your conversations, your actions, and in your thoughts glorify God. There is a lot of self denial involved in order to do that, but a follower who cannot give up pleasures and desires for Christ is useless.

Jesus further tells these people, in Luke 14:27, that each one must be willing to bear his own cross and follow Him. Followers must expect suffering, and should expect to sacrifice. Life itself should hold no desire for us. Paul said he was ready to die for the name of the Lord Jesus. We likewise should be willing to give our lives if that should become necessary. We should feel that way with confidence knowing that nothing shall separate us from the love of God.

I think where a lot of us have made a mistake is in thinking that nothing should happen to us. We think that Christianity insures, or should insure us, against sickness, sorrow, poverty, and early death. On the contrary Christ assured us that His way of life was not an insurance policy against these things, but rather a way of sacrifice and of denial of self. You must deny yourself the thought that everything will be rosy if you are a Christian. The very mention of a cross indicates death. So Christ's work was done under the shadow of the cross, and He calls us to work despite persecution, ridicule, and difficult circumstances.

The cross also means, "that our old man is crucified with Him, that the body of sin might be destroyed, that henceforth we should not serve sin." Further Paul says, "I am crucified with Christ; nevertheless I live; yet not I, but Christ liveth in me: and the life which I now live in the flesh I live by the faith of the Son of God, who loved me, and gave himself for me." So the bearing of the cross implies that the old man of sin was crucified. Self denial is strong here, for it means that old pleasures and desires must be given up and forgotten. But how many of us, instead of giving them up, have tried to compromise and find room for them in the new life. Here is the place where self-denial hurts and sometimes breaks down. But, if every man and woman who professes Christ would truly crucify the old man of sin what a different world we would live in.

Now I realize that this is a very weak discussion of a great Bible subject, nevertheless I hope you will remember a few things. First, remember the title Self Denial. Second, remember that Jesus said it was absolutely necessary to surrender all to Him. Third, remember that if you seek the kingdom of God first everything else in the world will take its respective place. Finally, remember that if you can't be happy doing God's will now, you certainly would be out of place and unhappy in heaven where our chief function will be to glorify God.

Pastor, Williamstown and Gretna Circuit.

---

Honoring The Aged

ABOUT all we can do for the honorable person who has attained old age is to pay him our respect and consideration. As a rule, the high-minded people who have reached fullness of years are not seeking or expecting much. Ambition is not very vigorous and the prizes which allured in earlier years have ceased to glitter, so we cannot do much for them in giving new positions. There is very little we can offer except the deference which should come cordially.

To many, the past life seems short and disappointing. Old Jacob declared his one hundred and thirty years were "few and evil." Something of the same feeling comes to most people who live a long, long life. Remember that those who were friends in maturity, who encouraged and understood, are all gone, and the veteran thinks of himself as quite alone.

Old age is a time of wisdom for those who have been faithful scholars in the school of life, and great attention to their views is usually profitable. Younger people may think the ideas of the elderly are out of date, but usually that is not true. Fundamental principles do not change from generation to generation, and the wisdom of the aged is the grasping of those principles. Old people are sometimes trying, but no more trying than the young are to the old. We may well forget faults in our zeal to do the aged honor.—Selected.

---

Some Tithing Facts To Remember

1. Tithing is taught in the Bible (Lev. 27:30-34, Matt. 23:23).
2. The tithe is the tenth of one's increase or income (Deut. 14:22). Business expenses may be deducted before calculating the tithe, but not living expenses.
3. The tithe is the first tenth, not the second, or last, or what is left over.
4. The tithe is to be used for the Lord's work (Num. 18:21).
5. The tithe should be brought to the Lord's house (Mal. 3:10).
6. The tithe is a law in the Old Testament (Lev. 27:30).
7. Tithing was approved by Christ (Luke 11:42).
8. New Testament Christians gave more than a tithe (Acts 4:32-37).
9. God promised to bless the faithful tither (Mal. 3:10).
10. The tithe is a modest and reasonable requirement (Rom. 7:12).
11. Nothing less than a tithe is sufficient to express our gratitude to God and love for Christ (Ps. 116:12).
12. Tithing would solve our most difficult financial problems.
13. If all Brethren would tithe through their churches we could double our local budgets, triple our missionary offerings and multiply the endowments of our institution by four.
14. If our whole Brethren Membership will tithe for even three months it will enable us to reach our financial goal this year, and help every cause we have—local, state, and worldwide.

WILL YOU BE ONE?

"Prove me now herewith, saith the Lord" (Mal. 3:10).

—Adapted from the Southern Baptists.

---

REMEMBER THE BENEVOLENT OFFERING, FEB. 29TH

---

Young Men and Boys' Brotherhood

BERLIN, PENNSYLVANIA, BROTHERHOOD MEETS

ON MONDAY evening, January 19, the Young Men and Boys' Brotherhood of the Berlin Brethren Brethren Church held their regular meeting in the Church Parlors beginning at 7:30 o'clock.

We had a very good program, every member taking part. Our pastor, Rev. S. M. Whetstone, gave us a very helpful and inspiring talk on, "Prayer and Playing the Game of Life." All our Brotherhood boys have been taught by our Advisor, Mr. Fred Brant, to have daily prayer. At our meeting we have a "Circle of Prayer" and all our members pray audibly.

Rev. Whetstone said in his talk that our "Prayer Circle" is one of the most encouraging things in our church and a source of spiritual strength.

The Sisterhood of Mary and Martha also met at the same hour. At the close of the simultaneous devotional and business meetings, we met together for a social hour. The meetings of the S. M. M. and the Brotherhood thus together is known as the "Brethren Youth Fellowship Hour." A beef and noodle soup supper was served and games were played. There were forty-five young people present. Advisor Fred W. Brant was our host.

The Young Men and Boys' Brotherhood,
Joe Glessner, President.

To the Young Men and Boys' Brotherhoods:

Once more I would like to send greetings in the Name of our Lord and Saviour Jesus Christ to all the Young Men and Boys' Brotherhoods of the Brethren Churches. It has been with much pleasure that I have read of the work that some of our brotherhoods have been doing. Then I believe, too, that others are doing a good job, but have failed to report to the Evangelist. So keep up the good work.

Now, as Welfare Chairman of the National Y. M. and B's Brotherhood Board, I would like to urge you one and all into doing a still better job in 1948. Let us know what you are doing. Now that spring should be just around the corner, there will be many things to do. Have you discussed any project with your pastor? I am sure that the pastors will be glad to assist you, and to have you assist them.

Some things you could do: Find out from some of the new churches that are receiving help from the Mission Board if there is anything you can do to help. Some need new offering plates, bulletin boards, tract boards, Sunday School report boards, Hymn books and any number of items that you boys could make or buy. Then Rev. Drushal of our Kentucky Mission would be glad to tell you of some of the needs of boys around Lost Creek; or, perhaps you would rather do relief work abroad. You could write to the National Mission Board for information in regard to helping some boy or family.

The opportunities for projects are unlimited. The thing to do is to put your shoulder to the wheel and get going. Everybody working together to the glory of God means you will be able to do great things for the Lord and His church.

We are expecting to hear more about your work, so work that you may accomplish the things you want to do.

Yours in His Service,

Wilbur Thomas, Mulvane, Kansas.

Spiritual Meditations

Rev. Dyoll Belote

THE BELLS OF HOME

"How shall we sing the Lord's song in a strange land? If I forget thee, O Jerusalem, let my right hand forget her cunning." Psalm 137:4, 5.

THIS IS one of the Psalms of the exile, when weary and homesick the captive Hebrews thought of the country and city of their heart's love, and desire was stirred within them to see their homeland again. They could not forget Jerusalem even in a far country.

The story goes of a Scotchman, who as a young man left Edinburgh and emigrated to Canada. In a severe Canadian winter he was caught one day in a blizzard, out on the prairie. He soon lost his way, and grew tired and numb with cold. Stumbling he fell and felt a delicious but fatal drowsiness overcoming him. Then suddenly he was startled wide awake. He thought he heard the great bell in St. Stephen's church in Edinburgh, where he had attended when a boy. He made a vow that if God would spare his life he would return to Edinburgh and become a member of St. Stephen's church. Fresh strength came to him and he struggled on to a place of safety. Later he kept his promise, and became a member of the congregation.

It is a good thing for all of us, when we go out into the world to listen for the church bells of our native place—in other words to remember all the influences of Sunday School, Bible class, the church and home. Robert Louis Stevenson, who was a member of the St. Stephen's church, has put the longing of the exile into these words:

"Blows the wind today, and the sun and rain are flying,

Blows the wind on the moors today and now,

Where upon the graves of the martyrs the whaups are crying,

My heart remembers how!"

The Psalmist implored a sign from the Lord to remind him if he should fail to remember his homeland and the city of his God—Jerusalem. And many times God gives warnings to men in the loss of brilliant parts with which He has endowed them, and which they have dissipated in the "far country." The right hand loses its cunning when men forget the things that pertain to righteousness, the teachings of church and home which they learned in childhood and youth.

Bits of Brethren History Information of Interest

By H. C. Funderburg

(These articles are printed just as they come from the pen of Brother Funderburg.)

FARMER AND LAWYER

IT WAS in the year 1800 that Elder George Wolfe landed in New York. On March 3, 1803, his son, George, the subject of this sketch, was married to Anna Hunsicker, the only young unmarried woman in the community. A young lawyer sought her hand, and threatened to severely punish the young farmer for winning the heart of his expected bride. George reasoned with him, telling him the young lady had made choice of her own free will; that the "knot was tied," and there was no use to make trouble over it. Reason would not satisfy the young attorney, and in regular western parlance he told Wolfe that he could just prepare himself for a good thrashing. Seeing that the lawyer could not be satisfied with reason and good common sense, George, who was a man of large bodily proportions, with great strength, and endurance by the hardships of a frontier life, told him plainly that he had married the woman in good faith, and if he thought a little, spindling lawyer could handle a strong robust farmer like himself, he was at liberty to have his satisfaction. The lawyer never troubled George any more.

"A Debate"

Five years later, in 1808, young George and his brother emigrated to Illinois. In the year 1811 occurred the remarkable earthquake in the Mississippi Valley, which lasted six months. The convulsions of the earth were so as to create lakes and islands. Deep chasms were formed in the earth, from which vast volumes of water, sand and even coal was thrown to the height of nearly one hundred feet. It was a year of intense and great religious awakening in the west.

Elder Wolfe continued his labors in Union county for about nineteen years, traveling and preaching much and became widely known. Many remarkable things are related of him, one of which is that he held a public debate with a Roman Catholic Priest in the town of Kaskaskia. The place had been a stronghold for Catholics for more than a hundred years. The debate created a wonderful excitement. It was attended by the Governor of the State, who afterward said, (of Elder Wolfe), "He is the profoundest man for an illiterate man I ever heard." So crushing were Brother Wolfe's arguments against Catholicism, so profound and powerful were his arguments for primitive Christianity, so complete was his victory over his opponent, and so thoroughly was he hated by the Catholics, that his life was greatly in jeopardy.

At that time a company of soldiers was stationed at Kaskaskia, and the Governor, unknown to Brother Wolfe, had detailed a number of soldiers to protect him on his homeward journey. When he mounted his horse to leave the place, he was greatly surprised to find himself surrounded by a band of Cavalry, with drawn swords, whose officer explained to Elder Wolfe that he had orders to accompany and protect him on his journey. After guarding him a safe distance from the town the soldiers returned.

After settling in Adams County, he traveled extensively, mostly on horseback. He was known to have visited the churches in Morgan, Sangamon, and Macoupin Counties every year for over thirty years. In 1858 the ferryman at Naples, Illinois, said he had ferried Brother Wolfe over the river nearly every year for twenty-five years.

In appearance, Elder Wolfe was a giant, being nearly six and a half feet tall, and weighing about two hundred and seventy-five pounds. He had a very large forehead and wore a long white beard. A powerful and erect form contributed to his commanding appearance. In manners, he was as gentle as a child, and yet as bold as a lion. He knew no fear. He was a great reader and possessed a wonderful fund of information, which was always at his command. Colonel Richardson of Quincy said he regarded Elder Wolfe as one of the profoundest thinkers the state of Illinois ever had. Elder Gibson says, "His manner of preaching, like his presence, was commanding."

In one of his last sermons he said, "I have preached the gospel for over fifty years. I labored much when Illinois was a wilderness. My work is nearly done. I have, like Paul, finished my course, and when eternity shall dawn and as I gaze with enraptured vision on the mighty hosts of the redeemed, if, in that mighty throng one soul shall be numbered with the blest because I worked, prayed and preached, I shall be fully repaid for all my labors here."

On November 16, 1865, in his eighty-sixth year, he quietly closed his labors on earth and was buried near Liberty, Adams County, Illinois. He was the father of eight children, six sons and two daughters.

Lord, I am slow to understand the meaning of the upward look, the power of a sincere prayer. Teach me to pray as others pray with me, and alone before thee, thou who hearest prayer and in answer sendest thy peace. This I ask in Christ's name. Amen.

---

Remember Benevolent Offering

Date - February 29th

---

Prayer Meeting Topic

Contributed by Rev. C. Y. Gilmer

(Helps for Soul Winners)

MY CRIME!

What depths of night—
Distorted sight,
And sorrow filled my soul
Before the Lord
Revealed His Word
And stooped to make me whole.

I saw Him die,
And wondered why
Such cruelty and pain
Unleashed should be
At Calvary
Where this God-man was slain?

My soul at first
In anger's thirst,
Sought to avenge this crime;
But now I see
It was for me—
This tragedy of time.

The thorny crown,
I pressed it down
With villiany and mirth;
I drove the nails
And caused the wails
That quaked all heav'n and earth.

Yet, He in love
Spake from above,
O wondrous gift of grace;
Reached out His hand
And bade me stand
To view His smiling face!

—By Chaplain J. T. Wellinga.

* * *

THE AWFULNESS OF SIN AND THE FORGIVING MERCY OF GOD

Scripture: Romans 3:10-26; 6:23.

Hymns of Redemption

Leader's Petition

Seed Thought Provokers:

TWO FACTS make necessary and understandable the death of Christ and salvation by free grace: (1) The incurable depths of human sin, and (2) the infinite loving mercy of a righteous God. It is sin that condemns (John 3:17). In dealing with sinners Jesus was kind but firm (John 3:3). "The law was given by Moses, but grace and truth came by Jesus Christ" (John 1:17; 8:4-11; Luke 7:36-50; 19:6-7). Jesus Christ came into this world to save sinners and nobody else (Matt. 9:13). Those received by Him confessed their guilt by words, tears and restitution.

In the fifteenth chapter of Luke Jesus told of the Lost Sheep, the Lost Coin, and the Lost Boy. The reception home of the unworthy prodigal shows how God longs for the vilest sinners to turn to Him.

Jesus never condemned those who wronged Him (Luke 23:34). He never mistreated Judas, but warned him faithfully (John 6:64, 70). He never upbraided the denying Peter but warned him faithfully (Matt. 26:31-35). He prayed for Peter and forgave him. He did not complain of His unjust trial nor condemn the soldiers (Luke 23:34; Isa. 53:7; Matt. 26:63). Jesus did not come into this world to condemn (John 3:17). Before Pilate He refused to clear Himself by even one word of explanation because He Who was innocent wanted to die as one guilty (2 Cor. 5:21). When Christ took the sinner's place He was speechless just as the sinner will be in the judgment (Matt. 22:1-14). If He saved Himself, He could not save others. Thus He became our Substitute and died in our place (Rom. 4:6-8; Psa. 32:1, 2). He suffered the torments of the damned as a lost sinner (Matt. 27:46). Had He spoken in self-defense He would have accused us.

Jesus came to save (Luke 19:10; 1 Tim. 1:15; 1 John 2:2). He died for all, and for all alike. All Christ rejectors are lost (John 3:18). They are condemned by the Bible (John 5:54; 12:48). Those who sin without law shall perish being condemned by their conscience (Rom. 2:12-16). He came to earth the first time in mercy to save your soul, which is all you have. His second coming will be condemnation to the sinner (Rev. 1:8). In mercy He delays that coming (2 Pet. 3:9).

People are lonely because they build walls instead of bridges.

NEWS FROM OUR CHURCHES

FORT SCOTT, KANSAS

To the Evangelist Readers:

I read my Evangelist and enjoy reading of other churches, and I thought that others might like to know about Fort Scott.

We are still holding on, in fact we are growing. We have increased over fifty percent in attendance the last three months over that of the previous three months. We are averaging twelve at prayer meeting; have organized a Junior Christian Endeavor; have a promising young choir started; a good Woman's Missionary Society, and a real growing interest. For a while we were very much discouraged: we even thought of closing, as so very few attended. Our hearts were troubled. I believe God knew how it would grieve us if it came to that. God must have answered our prayer.

We are very much encouraged by the way things are turning out. Then it also helped us so much when Rev. Riddle was here. He seemed so interested in us and our problems. Rev. Cecil Johnson was here not long ago and we certainly appreciated his coming. To know that others are thinking of us, and praying for us, is a big help to a small, struggling group of people.

Our young folks are really coming to the front. We had a very nice Christmas program with over eighty in attendance. Now it seems that we may get a pastor in the near future.

I feel this way about it:

The Harvest is ready
God's reapers are few,
While Satan is staffed
With a wonderful crew.

The reapers for Satan
Are busy at work,
In scoffing and sneering
They never shirk.

They are leading our loved ones
To a terrible fate—
Dear Lord, lend us a hand
Before it's too late.

Evil surrounds us;
Oh, let us beware,
And ask Jesus to keep us
In His loving care.

Yes the harvest is ready,
Souls lost every day
Because the Old Devil
Is having full sway.

Yes, the harvest is ready,
Which is it to be—
For God or the Devil?
Lord, we pray it's for Thee!

Mary Taylor, Superintendent
Ft. Scott Brethren Church.

HIGH LIGHTS OF SEVEN YEARS AT MASONTOWN, PENNSYLVANIA

When January first, this year rolled around, we had the day before completed seven years work with the people of Masontown, Pennsylvania, Brethren Church, and Community. That day the eighth year started. Where the years have gone, at times causes us to stop and wonder. Yet they have done so. Many changes have been noted in that time. A war was begun and ended. Changes in the personnel of the congregation took place. Many who were exceedingly faithful found it necessary to move away from the community. New ones have in the main been enlisted, but the places of some of those who were forced to locate elsewhere were difficult to fill. During the period there have been a limited number of deaths among the membership. The list of funerals mentioned in another paragraph were in the greater part not connected with the church in any capacity.

We have held nine meetings during the seven years, two at the local church and seven elsewhere. During the seven years here there have been 85 baptisms, with 99 persons being added to the membership rolls of the church. Thirty-one couples have been united in marriage. Eight hundred and six sermons have been preached. Various addresses have been given to Service Clubs, Home Comings, as well as to various Sunday School Classes in the County. Six Daily Vacation Bible Schools have been held.

In the matter of outstanding improvements to the church property, a balcony which made a Sunday School addition that gave us over 750 square feet of floor space was added. This gave us a number of rooms for our use. The cost of this, when prices were normal was approximately $1,400.00 with much labor donated. Considerable work has been done on the parsonage, such as painting of the exterior and re-decorating of the interior. The church building was painted on the outside and the interior re-decorated. At the present time a new parsonage is being completed which will join the church building. This building is estimated by various business men to have a value of $20,000.00 and is modern in every detail. A detailed description will be given later in the Evangelist, with a photograph of the building.

Two books have been written and published. The first one in 1943, "Alexander Mack the Tunker and Descendants," now nearing the end of the edition after which it will be out of print. This is a book of 19 chapters with 362 pages. The second book, "Maryland and Pennsylvania Historical Sketches," has 51 chapters and 298 pages. Both books are profusely illustrated. The new one is meeting with exceedingly favorable reviews and is steadily going out.

The years have been harmonious and we hope constructive though there has been no attempt at the sensational. Not as much has been accomplished as we desired, but perhaps never will be. We have tried to live and preach among the people of the community by precept and action that the greatest testimony could be given for our Master. It is a pleasure to state that people of the various races, nationalities and faith, as we have them in this Mining Community, have manifested toward us the finest spirit of fellowship.

The church is completely organized, with each auxiliary functioning. This church is blessed with numerous talented people in music and various other fields which aids in the training of workers through their efficient leadership.

Owing to the Editor, Brother Vanator gleaned from the Church Bulletin some of the happenings of interest, we have not reported as often as we would otherwise have done. There have been numerous things that have taken part of a pastor's time that need not be enumerated. Suffice it to say when asked what a "preacher does with his spare time," we know of one who does not have any. Working in the home of our Ancestors, the Macks of whom there are numerous descendants in the church and community, is a challenge to us in a number of ways. The years have passed, the future lies before us with its secrets yet to be revealed, but faith will be the aid in meeting its problems.

Freeman Ankrum.

The New Press Fund

|                                       |             |
|---------------------------------------|-------------|
| GOAL—Not less than .....              | $15,000.00 |
| Cash and Pledges .....                | $ 8,666.56 |
| Yet to be raised, not less than ..... | $ 6,333.44 |

The Brethren Evangelist

---

Featuring In This Issue . . .

News Of The Garkida Leper Colony

---

Vol. LXX, No 9 February 28, 1948
Missionary Board Number

Brethren Historical Library
Manchester College
North Manchester, Ind. comp

THE BRETHREN EVANGELIST

Published weekly, except the last week in August and
the last week in December.

THE BRETHREN PUBLISHING COMPANY

Ashland, Ohio

PRUDENTIAL COMMITTEE

J. E. Stookey, President    N. G. Kimmel, Vice-President
J. G. Dodds, Secretary-Treasurer

EDITOR OF PUBLICATIONS—F. C. Vanator

BUSINESS MANAGER—G. S. Baer

EDITOR MISSIONARY NUMBER—E. M. Riddle

CONTRIBUTING EDITORS

Dr. Charles A. Bame                      Rev. Dyoll Belote

DEPARTMENTAL EDITORS

Dr. C. F. Yoder, Brethren Doctrine
Rev. N. V. Leatherman, Practical Church Problems
Rev. J. G. Dodds, National Goals
Dr. R. F. Porte, Brethren Church History

PLEASE REMEMBER: All material for publication in the Evangelist must be in the hands of the editor at least three weeks before the desired date of publication, to assure same to appear in desired issue. This refers to announcements particularly.

TERMS OF SUBSCRIPTION: $1.50 per year in advance.
CHANGE OF ADDRESS: In ordering change of address always
give both old and new addresses.

REMITTANCES: Send all money, business communications, and contributed articles to:

THE BRETHREN PUBLISHING COMPANY
ASHLAND, OHIO

Entered as second class matter at Ashland, Ohio. Accepted for mailing
at special rate, section 1103, act of October 3, 1917. Authorized
September 3, 1928.

The

Field Secretary

Travels

The last issue carried no report of the activities of the Secretary. Not every trip can be recorded, nor would all be interesting to the readers of the Evangelist.

The first trip of the new year included a stop at Fremont, where the Hagenbuch family have a fine start. Their plans and program, with excellent musical talent are bringing a good response. The Christmas display in their own home, largely for the benefit of two fine boys, was almost beyond description. At that time there were plans for "open house" that the congregation and friends might enjoy it.

SMITHVILLE—The next Sunday morning, accompanied by Mrs. Riddle, I spoke in this church so well known to our brotherhood. Many nice things have been done by this congregation lately, especially in their church and parsonage, all of which adds to the beauty and usefulness of both. Brother Vernon Grisso and family have been well received here.

MAURERTOWN-MT. OLIVE—Over the week-end of January 18 I was privileged to be with the Locke's and Miller's and their people whom they serve in the wonderful Shenandoah Valley of Virginia. It was a most enjoyable visit, in spite of the cold weather, which affected attendance at both churches. However, a letter from "Brother Ed" reveals that the following Sunday was much worse. The interests of the College and Missionary Board were presented at both churches.

On the same trip a number of contacts were made at Hagerstown and Linwood, Maryland, by the kind assistance of Brethren Leatherman and Keck in their respective fields.

COLUMBUS—On January 26, in connection with the Ohio Pastors' Conference, your Secretary was present only for the dinner with the Church of the Brethren ministers at the Y. M. C. A., where, as one item of business, we discussed the Columbus Cooperative Brethren Church, with the thought in mind that soon something might be agreed upon whereby our many students from both churches at Ohio State University, as well as faculty members, might be challenged and be satisfied. (Details will be reported later).

JOHNSTOWN—On one of the coldest mornings of the winter I started to Johnstown, where I preached for the Brethren at the Second Church. A very good winter's audience shared in the service. This church is changing pastors, Brother George Jones having served here for a number of years. This church has presented students recently who are taking responsible places in the work of the church. Others will soon enter our College for definite Christian work.

In the evening of the same day, at the Third Church, pictures were shown and a missionary message delivered to an unusual Sunday evening audience. On Monday a number of calls were made for the College and the Missionary Board. Tuesday morning I was a pinch-hitter at the radio devotional service for the churches of Johnstown. The Zimmermann's accompanied me on this early morning mission, as well as on most of my other trips in the city. That is one city where I need a guide most of the time. The evening of this day, February 3, was the quarterly meeting, as well as the annual observance of the Cambria Co. Brethren Youth group. People from four churches were present, besides some friends. Music, devotions, a short message, and two films, one from Ashland College and the other from South America, were shown by the writer. This is a lively group and they are preparing and calling young people into His service.

The secretary landed home in a terrific snow storm, but without mishap.

Brethren, our service, our message is needed. Pray one for the other.

E. M. Riddle, Field Secretary.

Garkida

Leper

Colony

The following interesting account of the Garkida Colony for Lepers in Nigeria, Africa, was taken from a letter written on Christmas Day by Dr. Howard Bosler to Mr. Everett Miller at New Paris, Ind. The Missionary Board, in cooperation with the Church of the Brethren, supports Dr. Bosler and his wife on this field. Recently Dr. and Mrs. Bosler became the parents of a new baby daughter, Cynthia Ann.

Your contributions for this worthy work with the lepers of Africa will be received in the Easter Offering for Foreign Missions.

It would have been fine if you folks could have been here this week of Christmas at the Leper Colony. When you come be sure to arrange it so that you are here Christmas and stay until after Easter. They are the two big seasons of the year. It started off Tuesday when more than 700 got their Christmas gifts from the American Mission to Lepers. Wednesday the rest of them got theirs. That is, all but the very ill that could not get out. They will get theirs tomorrow. The treat was a pan of salt that amounted to about 3 pounds in weight. Then a cake of red soap and a little pan of red pepper. Their soap, salt and pepper should season them up real well for the Christmas season. They got much over a ton of salt. I gave them a little talk about who sends the gifts and let them know that it is all sent in the name of Christ, our Savior, by Christians all over America. We then sing a song and have prayer. In two long lines they march by with their case number which is written down and checked later so that they be sure to have one and only one. You should see them receive it. Some in gourds, pans, hats, cloths, or what have they. The ones dishing out the red pepper do lots of sneezing. We took a movie of it, also some color snaps.

All work stopped Wednesday noon. In the afternoon they killed a 400 pound boar. We have had him in the colony for a few years and are getting a young one. Also they butchered four cattle. Everybody's best clothes were washed. Bathing was general. In the early evening there was a large meeting at the church with a sermon from the African pastor. After that a couple hundred came and sang Christmas carols at our home. Then for several hours they sang Christmas carols all over the colony. As you know there are ten villages and some of them one half mile apart. Not only did they sing in the villages, but all the time they were traveling between the villages. I told Edith I should think that they would be so hoarse that they could not sing at all. But it continued on and on. The curfew did not ring at ten o'clock as usual, but was rung at midnight instead. They were still singing carols when I went to sleep. At four this morning we were awakened by Christmas carolling again. Again we heard them going from village to village until well after day light. What impresses me is that Edith and I had nothing to do with it. The Colony church activities carry on in a way that we appreciate. The only question that was asked me was if I would allow the bell ringer to wait until midnight for the curfew.

Dr. Howard Bosler

Since the Christmas program is in the forenoon at Garkida Station we always have our Christmas service at 2 P. M. A dramatization of the Christmas story is always given. They like it so much. It is a big event to them. There were 845 people present; 295 of them were outside. You see, we do need a new larger church building. Most of them brought bountiful gifts out of their meager possessions. Some all the corn they could carry, others beans, peanuts, corn, chickens, rice, and money. We will know tomorrow what the offering amounted to. The produce will be sold and the money go into their Christmas fund. We took snaps and a movie of this also.

We are so happy now that Miss Dick is to be placed here to help us. She is a good nurse and now we hope to treat the lepers more efficiently than we have been able to in the past. We are giving 54 lepers the new treatment, Diasone. They have had it two months now, and almost everyone says he feels lots better. Most of them show improvement in their appearance as well. I wish we had $5000 a year to give more of them the drug. They all want it. It is hard to tell hundreds that there is not enough money to buy medicine for them. However the medicine is prohibitive. The American Mission to Lepers sent us $1600 worth of Diasone. That will treat 54 a year.

The electrical plants and equipment are just waiting in Note this man's face and scars on arm. Badly diseased.

New church at Leper Colony.

their boxes until Michael gets here. He is to leave Chicago for Africa in March, I hear. I can't get time to do anything with it. It all arrived in good condition. I have three of the sewing machines working that I brought out. It helps the lepers a lot to be able to get their sewing done in the colony. We hope to get the other three at work soon. I have had 9 lepers learning to make shoes. The lepers need the shoes badly and the demand is great. Then we have bought eight tons of peanuts (shelled). They are now making peanut oil and will soon be making soap if we can get the lye. These projects take my time along with the administration of the colony and medical work. At times I get so covered up with problems that they bring me that I get confused and tired. Then I get into the Chevrolet and go out four miles and hunt guineas and crocodiles. Last evening I knocked the back off of a crocodile with my .30 rifle. He crawled into the river with his front legs. I then went on down the road and shot six guineas. We are having fried guinea for dinner today.

You asked about our needs. The first two things I think of are: first, Diasone, as I have mentioned. Second, a man and wife to come and help run the colony. They should be the best of farmers, able to supervise 2,000 acres with 1,500 lepers working. They should be able to "teach them all this, whatsoever I have commanded you," as Jesus said in his great commission. If the Brethren Church could do this for the Garkida Leper Colony it would do a greater work than money can buy. We need workers. The Garkida Leper Colony has become one of the greatest evangelizing influences in our whole mission area. We need devoted missionaries to help us run it in the name of Christ, our Savior. Then you could support them and their work with prayer and cash. Do you think the Brethren Church can find some young people to help us? It pays big for we have tried it and found out for ourselves. There is nothing tiresome about it. It's a great adventure for Christ that should appeal to a young family.

As far as cash is concerned our mission is in need of funds for new work in new villages where Mission Stations are being established. We need missionaries to carry on these places and the funds to build up a school and church. The American Mission to Lepers with the help of the British Government supplies the needs of the Leper Colony in a much better way than our other mission work is being supported.

We are quite happy that the Brethren Church is sending us a nurse this year. In our medical meeting just recently we asked that the Board send her out just as early after the June Conference as possible. It will be a unifying thing for the good of both our churches if we can work together in our mission work. I hope it unifies us enough that we can become one Brethren Church.

Dr. and Mrs. Bosler in front of their home in Garkida.

---

When God is going to do something wonderful, He begins with a difficulty. If it is going to be something very wonderful, He begins with an impossibility.—Selected.

Church Progress Equals Mission Extension

by Delbert B. Flora

It can easily be said that church progress, local and denominational, equals or means missionary extension. Just as logically it may be said that missionary extension means or results in church progress. They are part and parcel of the same thing: preaching the gospel of Jesus Christ to the world. To bear out the thesis which has just been stated a study of the church at Antioch, Syria, as described in Acts 11:19-30 and 13:1-3 will be valuable.

Antioch was founded about 300 B. C. It was a great city of about a half million inhabitants in the time of the Acts, although little now remains except some colossal ruins of aqueducts and Roman walls. It was called Antioch the Golden, and only Rome and Alexandria, Egypt, surpassed in population and wealth. It was regent in politics, philosophy and arts. It was the home of great engineering enterprises, and its architects were known all over the world. Many races met within its walls. The somber cults of the Orient combined with rites of Greece. About an hour's walk from the city was the famous grove of Daphne where Artemis was worshipped with choruses of music, licentious rites and every extravagance of luxury. This city even excelled Corinth in its temptations. Its society was rich and polished and refined and wicked. Chrysostom, a great preacher of the early church, was vainly angry against the luxurious dress, false hair, perfumes and painted faces of its women, and against the love of the circus of its supposedly Christian men.

Into this cultured, wicked heathen city came some Christians as a result of the persecutions which came about at the time of the stoning of Stephen in Jerusalem. Some went to various cities speaking the Word only to Jews, but men from Cyprus and Cyrene came into Antioch and "spoke to the Greeks also, preaching the Lord Jesus." This was a new movement in at least two ways: that of spreading the Gospel into lands beyond Jerusalem and Judea. This was the beginning of taking it to "the end of the earth," Acts 1:8. Also this movement was new in that the Gospel was preached to the Greeks. And it was a success! "The hand of the Lord was with them, and a great number that believed turned to the Lord," verse 21. This was not in an obscure village, but in great Antioch, which for strategical purposes at that moment was more available than either Alexandria or Rome, and was free from limitation imposed upon thinking by Hebraism in Jerusalem.

The story of the progress of the Gospel in Antioch reached the "church in Jerusalem, and they sent Barnabas to Antioch." What he found only confirmed the report and he was filled with gladness and enthusiasm, so that he began to exhort them, too. "He was a good man, full of the Holy Spirit and of faith." The preaching of the men of Cyprus and Cyrene and the exhorting of Barnabas surely had the blessing of God, and great enthusiasm resulted. "And a large company was added to the Lord." This was all a part of the original movement begun in Jerusalem. The witnessing for Christ was spreading.

Barnabas felt the need of certain consolidation and likewise the need of assistance in this great work. Therefore he left Antioch to go to Tarsus in search for Saul whom he brought back with him. "For a whole year they met with the church, and taught a large company of people." The disciples came to be called Christians. That shows two things. Antioch recognized the Church no longer as a part of Hebraism, but as a new society which must have its own name. Also it shows what the Antiochians saw in the disciples. They were the people of Christ. It was of the Christ they spoke, of Christ they sang, for Christ they lived.

As this new Gentile church grew in numbers, in strength, in grace, in favor with God, it began to recognize its relationship with other Christian groups and, particularly, with that at Jerusalem, the mother church. When "Agabus stood up and foretold by the Spirit that there would be a great famine all over the world" the Antioch church determined to send assistance to the Jerusalem church. Those new Christians felt obligation resting upon them and they were certainly not people to shirk obligation and responsibility. They already manifested the kind of spirit which later resulted in a great missionary enterprise. Co-operation was a characteristic of that ancient church.

After they had sent relief to Jerusalem by the hand of Barnabas and Saul they continued in their progress and development at home. They persisted in their worship of the Lord, very definitely manifesting their consecration and devotion. Then a very signal thing occurred in their midst. Possibly it was on a Sunday while they were assembled in worship and fasting. The congregation had been seeking the mind of the Spirit when He made clear to them His will. "Set apart for me Barnabas and Saul for the work to which I have called them. Then after much fasting and praying they laid their hands on them and sent them off." This was the initiation of the great missionary movement which carried the Gospel finally to Rome, the preacher going there in chains, Paul. Paul always began his missionary tours at Antioch and he always returned there to make his report of missionary progress.

This in turn reacted favorably on the church in Antioch. Antioch became the seat of the first Christian patriarchate of the Orient. It rivalled Alexandria in later years in theological schools. Here was collected a great library of the ancient church. It was here that Christianity made its greatest impression in the early centuries

Continued on page 9

The Greatest Combination In The World -- God and You

by W. Clayton Berkshire

Have you, my Christian friends, realized that you are a party in the greatest combination in the world—God and You? Here, truly, are “horizons unlimited.” God and You! What a sublime thought! How wonderful! And why? Because you are yoked together with Jesus Christ the Son of God, and “nothing is impossible with God.” That makes a dynamic team when the relationship between the two is right. Conceived in this relationship are power and willing surrender. Power on the part of God and willing surrender on the part of man. It is the product of the power of God allied with the source of that power. That source of power is omnipotent and yet requires this relationship with man. But could not God accomplish all he desires without this alliance with man? The answer is obviously a positive “yes he is able.” But he has ordained man to be a vessel of service—“we are laborers together.” He has commissioned man to represent his cause—“Ye are my witnesses.” “And hath committed unto us the word of reconciliation. Now then we are ambassadors for Christ” (II Cor. 5:19-20). He has chosen to execute his plans through man. So you, my Christian friend, are allied with the greatest work in all the world. God and you make up the greatest team in the world to redeem the souls of men.

It is a royal privilege to be called into such a position with God and with Jesus Christ his only begotten Son. To be given a share of responsibility in the work of the Heavenly Father is a privilege second to none. It is the privilege of life. Failure to recognize and honor this leads to stagnation and frigidity of spirit. Full recognition of the same leads to warmth and growth in the spiritual life, to a full surrender of self. It also opens eyes to see the importance of the individual in this relationship—importance which says, “unworthy.” It opens ears to hear the command, “Go,” “Disciple,” “Baptize,” “Teach.”

God and You! He has chosen you and you have chosen Him. What supreme satisfaction you may possess from knowing this. And when you turn your hands to do his will how wonderfully satisfying to know that your labor is not in vain. For you labor not in your own strength but in the strength of the Lord. Or, when you travel out to answer a call to service, to know that you walk not alone. You have the assurance “and lo I am with you alway.” It will always be “God and You,” as long as you are willing—“I will never leave you nor forsake you.” God never asks you to walk alone. On the contrary, He reproves you for thinking you are able to do so. Hear Him, “for without me ye can do nothing.”

The promise of the “Abiding Presence” with great power, ever ready to be released upon the seemingly impossible, ought to take away much of our pessimism with respect to accomplishment. It ought to give new meaning to every phase of the Lord’s work. This ought to be true in the Brethren Church. It ought to bring Christian young people, Brethren young people, to a full commitment—“Here am I, send me.” It ought to lead them through arduous years of preparation. It ought to give them courage to venture with God into the “unknown world.”

The promise of the “Abiding Presence” should arouse a deep response from the older Christian people. It should sharpen their vision and keep them steadily moving forward. It ought to do all this for Brethren people wherever they are. The promise is unto us and blessed will we be if we claim it. I speak of necessity.

Out from India the cry for help can be heard. It is the cry of four hundred million souls who do not know Christ. It is a cry for a new religion. A religion that will change, that will transform. India is the land of impossibilities. Your God is the God of impossibilities.

The cry coming out of Europe is a cry for help. A cry for spiritual help. A cry for material help. Clothing, food, medical care, spiritual leadership, moral uplift, the Gospel of Jesus Christ, all of these are “musts” for Europe, a continent of “displaced persons.”

God and You! That is the answer to a crying world. It is a complete answer. Time is running out. Whatever will be done must be done now. Your decision will alter the situation.

—New Lebanon, Ohio.

The Brethren Church and Missions

by Claud Studebaker

BEGINNING OF THE BRETHREN CHURCH

The Brethren Church as a denomination of Christian believers had its organic birth in the year 1708, when eight pious souls under the leadership of Alexander Mack were baptized by triune immersion in the River Eider, near Schwarzenau, Germany. These men set themselves apart under the guidance of the Holy Spirit to obey all the commands of Christ in the holy scriptures, and took him as their Lord and Master, and all they to be Brethren in very truth.

THE PROTESTANT REFORMATION

This was 200 years after the great reformation under Luther and others, which marked the beginning of what we now call the Protestant churches. The multiplicity of denominations and divisions among those denominations has been overdone. At times "strife and vain glory" have caused divisions with their attendant jealousies and emulations. However, before the reformation the one catholic church had become so powerful and so corrupt that common decency revolted against it. This was my church and your church of the early centuries and probably the only way to save the church from her own sins was to call out from her those pious souls who sought above all things to do the will of God.

THE TRUE CHURCH

This certainly is the true spirit of the Gospel and God's way for man. Organization and form can never be the evidence of the true church, but implicit faith in God, obedience to his word and bearing the fruit of the Holy Spirit will make us the missionaries of the gospel.

DIVISION

It is regrettable that the Brethren Church should have had division over things that were not of primary importance, but such was true. If we had been more concerned with giving the gospel to others in a great missionary work, we could have easily overlooked some things that caused division.

MISSIONARY SPIRIT

Soon after the division, the Church of the Brethren became imbued with missionary work and Dr. Galen B. Royer told me that in 30 years while he was secretary of missions he saw their mission investment grow from nothing to one million dollars. We were also slow in launching out in missions. One only needs to look back through the records to discover how dim was our vision and how slow our progress. Then came division to our small church and the plans greatly disturbed. However we must push forward in a great missionary program. The Brethren Church certainly has a message to give to the world. Our emphasis on obedience is certainly the great need of the world today. Brethren teaching has always insisted that obedience to all the words of our Lord, both in doctrine, ordinance and life, was the only true evidence of our unfeigned faith. With the multiplied millions of people over this wide world in such need of spiritual ministry, as well as of physical necessities, it certainly should challenge all Brethren people everywhere to do their utmost in missions.

OUR MISSIONARY PROGRAM

Our mission program has grown and our gifts should increase greatly, if we are to reach out to new fields. Dale Roesch and his wife (Norma Blosser) are serving in Puerto Rico, in the fine work the Church of the Brethren are carrying on. They are our missionaries and we support them, of course. Adding to our number of native workers in Argentina, South America, it is hoped that Rev. Robert Byler and wife (Jane King) will be able to enter our mission work there some time this fall. Archie Martin desires to go to India for mission work, and our board has consented to support him when he qualifies to enter one of the fields administered by the Church of the Brethren. Mr. and Mrs. Charles Webb are serving in France in relief administration, but also giving their testimony for Christ and the church. Miss Liskey is to serve as nurse in the Garkida Leper Colony, Nigeria, Africa field.

COOPERATION

It is easy and logical for us to cooperate with the Church of the Brethren because of the similarity of our churches. Our baptism, laying on of hands, communion and the various ceremonies of the church are the same. Our common history and family relations make possible a greater work than either could do in both foreign and home missions. It certainly is high time all Brethren people get deadly in earnest about giving the gospel to the world. After 240 years of history we have less than one quarter of a million members in all branches of the church. This is to our shame. Others have begun later and have their millions of followers. This should stimulate all Brethren people to do everything possible to increase our missionary offerings and also the number of missionaries.

CHRIST AND THE GOSPEL THE HOPE OF THE WORLD

Nothing will save this world to peace and order but the gospel that the missionary has to preach and the tender ministry of Christ which he has to offer. If the billions of dollars and the millions of men were sent over the world to make Christ known and loved, then the result would be different from the threatening aftermath of war. The giving of food and clothing is not enough to save nations, but the giving of Christ with the food will prepare the hearts of the people for a new day of righteousness.

The Easter time is not far distant when we ask every member and every friend of every Brethren church to present an offering to the foreign mission work of Christ and the Church. There are many needy fields and we need money and workers to carry them the gospel.—South Bend, Ind.

---

The Fourth
Pastors' Institute

Post - Easter Week

March 29 - April 2, 1948AtAshland, Ohio

ENTERTAINMENT

Those desiring a room for the time of the institute will please contact Mrs. W. A. Beeghley, chm. of housing committee, 502 Samaritan Ave., Ashland, Ohio. Do this at once if you plan to come.

Evening dinner will be served at the Park Street Brethren Church each day after Monday. Breakfast and lunch will be available at the college dormitory or downtown.

ATTENTION MINISTERS' WIVES

The ministers' wives will meet Wednesday, March 31 at 3:00 P. M. for a fellowship hour.

An interesting program is being planned. Come to the Pastors' Institute with your husband and enjoy the afternoon with us.

The Message Of The Book

The Galatians

by L. O. McCartneysmith

This short Pauline Epistle of six chapters is addressed to neither Jews or Greeks, but to a fickle group of Gauls—barbarians, which had poured into Greece some 300 years preceding the birth of Christ. These were members of the churches of Galatia which had fallen pray to Judaizing missionaries from Jerusalem, who had presented to them errors of such magnitude that they were in grave danger of falling from grace. Chiefly these errors were:

1. That obedience to the law must be mixed with faith as the basis of the sinner's justification.

2. That the believer is sanctified or made perfect through keeping the law.

Before refuting these dual errors, Paul reminds the Galatians of the soundness of his preaching to them, and pronounces anathema upon any presenting any other gospel than that he had previously preached to the Galatians and they had accepted (Gal. 1:6-9). Paul then relates to them that the source of his gospel was not of the Jews, the apostles, or of any man; but by revelation of the Lord Jesus Christ (Gal. 1:10-24; 2:1-14).

Paul meets the first error by asserting that justification is by faith in the Lord Jesus Christ alone, and not by the works of the law "For by the words of the law shall no flesh be justified" (Gal. 2:14); presenting Abraham as evidence, and as an example of one being justified by faith 400 years before the giving of the law: thereby establishing the fact that "They which are of faith are the children of Abraham" (Gal. 3:7).

As a fitting climax to the refutation of this error, Paul affirms that "As many as are of the works of the law are under the curse: for it is written "Cursed is every one that continueth not in all which are written in the book of the law, to do them" (Deuteronomy 2:26). Then he presents Jesus Christ as our Redeemer from the curse of the law through His becoming a curse for us, quoting the words of the law as written in Deuteronomy 21:23, "Cursed is every one that hangeth on a tree."

The second error is then taken up by Paul, and he proves that it is the Holy Spirit received through faith that sanctifies and perfects the believer, and not the working of the law (Gal. 3:1-5). After discussing the law as a preparatory schoolmaster or disciplinarian to bring us to Christ that we might be justified and sanctified by faith, Paul makes his most outstanding declaration to the Galatians: "But after faith is come, we are no longer under a schoolmaster" (Gal. 3:24-25). Instead of being a servant under the law, Paul presents the believer, justified by faith, as a son in God's family, redeemed from the bondage of the law by Christ Jesus that he might receive the adoption and call God his Father (Gal. 3:26; 4:1-7).

Using as an allegory the story of Isaac, the son of a free-woman, and Ishmael the son of a bondwoman, Paul teaches these fallen Galatians that two systems, law, and grace, cannot co-exist in the Church: that the child of the bondwoman, which represents the law, must be cast out; and the son of the freewoman, representing grace, must be retained (Gal. 4:8-31; 5:1-15): that "Christ is become of no effect unto you, whosoever of you are justified by the law; ye are fallen from grace."

In the concluding chapter, instruction is given to the church relating to restoration of a sinning brother, and teaching him that he must prove his work in order to rejoice in his salvation; that the Christian life is comparable to husbandry; that God anticipates that we bear fruit, and one of nature's strongest laws is that we must reap what we sow: that we must not grow weary in well doing if we anticipate an excellent harvest spiritually.

—Lanark, Illinois.

Church Progress

(Continued from page 5)

of church history. Then great synods of the Church were held there in the third century.

In 1910 a remarkable discovery was made at the site of old Antioch by well-diggers who were at work where an ancient church once stood. It was a silver chalice. Some date it as early as 57-87 A. D. It is a silver communion bowl covered with silver sheet of beautiful ornamentation. Some speculate that it may be the cup which was used in the Last Supper.

Church progress and missionary extension are a part of the same thing, giving the Gospel to a dying world. If the Brethren Church does not give out the Gospel, she will die as surely as Laodicea was lukewarm and nauseating to our Lord. He was about to spue Laodicea from His mouth into oblivion. What may He be preparing to do with the Brethren Church? The Brethren Church can definitely consecrate herself to the work of the Lord, and the Holy Spirit will direct us in our service.

(Note—Quotations from the New Testament are taken from the Revised Standard Version.)

—Ashland Theological Seminary.

Foreign Missions

Argentine Missionary Field

With a friendly welcome that our Brethren Church here tributed to Rev. C. F. Yoder on his return to the missionary field in Argentina, all we Brethren feel very happy and honored to have one in our lines who will make us feel a greater contact with our dear Brethren Churches in the United States.

But greater will be our joy when we shall be able to give our hearty welcome to Mr. and Mrs. Robert Byler as missionaries in our immense field of labour now that we are in such great need of workers.

Already our hearts are overflowing with enthusiasm and happiness.

Missionary tent. It is always a blessing from the Lord to know new experiences in the missionary field, as also to be able to listen to the testimony of the souls that are won for our Lord Jesus Christ, as also to have the privilege of giving the message of the Lord's love in every place where it is possible to do so.

So it is in our missionary field where, thanks to the kindness of our beloved Brethren of the U. S. and their prayers to the Lord for us here, that our activities favourably develop and the Gospel spreads around us.

When summer arrives, during the months of October, November and December, we put up our tent of evangelization in one of our new districts called Tiro Suizo, where some months before we had rented a large hall, as we knew it would be necessary.

From the first night the attendance of children and grown up people was large, and night after night we developed a program for children and continued then with the predication of the gospel for the elder people, with a splendid result.

Beside the constant taking care of the tent, which was in charge of Brother Varela and Brother F. Fiorenza, as we always have to fear the bad intentions of wicked boys who could damage the cloth of the tent, the youth of our church held a special number of music and singing.

Many of them spoke and told about their different experience when they were converted to the Lord our Saviour.

As the fruits of this campaign we have the prosecution of this work for a long time with a large attendance that is always very interested in our Brethren Church and its teachings.

As always, our great inconvenience is the means of transport. It is necessary to walk a great distance to reach the different places where we have to preach and teach in all our meetings and Sunday Schools.

The acquirement of the coach, which will be possible because of the kindness of some of the Brethren of our churches in the U. S. who donated part of the money, will make it possible for these places to be better attended in the future.

Gerli, B. A. Once the campaign with the tent here in Rosario was ended, our assistants Brother Varela and Fr. Fiorenza, the latter a student in the seminary, took the tent and equipment to Gerli, B. A., where they remained about 16 days and their work of evangelization also had a large reward in the attendance and enthusiasm of the people there.

Brother J. Anton has made an effort and invited many other preachers in order to have a different one to preach the message every night, and to make the tent campaign more interesting. They had also some nights a chorus from other churches of B. A.

This simple means of evangelization with the tent in our country attracts the attention of the passers-by, who stop to listen and many of them become regular attendants.

There is not only blessings for the new souls that accept the salvation in Jesus Christ, but it is an awakening to all the churches which conceive a new vision and desire to obey more fervently the commandment of the Lord: "Go ye therefore and teach all nations."

As a reward for this special effort twelve people accepted the Lord as their own Saviour and are interested to learn more efficiently the doctrine of the precious gospel.

Villa Constitucion. After finishing the work in Gerli our helpers of the tent returned with the equipment to Villa Constitucion, where Miss H. Louisa Kugler had worked, actively, awakening an extraordinary interest for the tent work and much enthusiasm to collaborate with it.

They were able to acquire a nice lot not far from the center of the town, and there they put up the tent.

The effort was unanimous and also some other preachers from Pergamino, where our brother-in-law, Rev. Conrado Ihlow is pastor, and from San Nicolas, where Miss Theda Krieger is a teacher, cooperated in the special campaign, bringing beautiful messages of evangelization.

Special campaign with the tent in Gerli, B. A.

They also won some nice souls for the Lord, mostly of young people that from their childhood attended the Sunday School.

As it was nearing Christmas and New Year, the work of the tent was suspended for every church to have its private feast.

Cordoba. After Christmas holidays our church in Cordoba started their Summer Camp in Cordoba Hills, so our pastors and helpers and several of our youth, in fact most of them, went there for their vacation time, and remained for the space of a month, in which they carried out special programs among the hills and had a nice meeting with Bible studies.

Congregation of the Brethren Church in Villa Constitucion

As you can see, beloved Brethren, in each one of our missionary fields the noble effort to do everything possible to carry forward the good news of salvation has been greatly developed.

Colon, B. A. Actually the tent has been erected in Colon, where new work in the interior of the country has been started with the best results and rich blessings.

We greatly ask for your prayers in our favour. Many thanks!
Adolfo Zeche.

---

News From Dunkerque, France

by Ruth and Charles Webb

BRETHREN DISTRIBUTION

Five bales of clothing and blankets were given to Mlle. Denys in Calais for a group of dockers who were out of work and in great need of aid. Tins of milk and meat were given to the local pastor for distribution to the elderly and sick of the church who are unable to leave their homes.

AMERICAN AID TO FRANCE DISTRIBUTION

Through AATF supplies we were happy to brighten Christmas in Dunkerque for about 2873 children in 20 Christmas parties. Many gifts of toys, clothing, food, jam, and chocolate were given. Many hours of work were spent in the cold warehouse packing and repacking these things for Christmas, but there was also a certain joy in doing it.

CENTER ACTIVITIES

Each Thursday the boys and girls came in to work and play. During the month of December they were busy making Christmas decorations for their homes and also to brighten up our activity barrack.

On Wednesday before Christmas we had a perfectly happy little Christmas party for 45 neighborhood children. Thin, dirty little faces brightened up with shouts of joy as they entered the barrack and saw the little touches of red and green and a tiny Christmas tree on the table trimmed with home-made decorations. We sang Christmas songs, saw slides, listened to music, and had a cup of hot chocolate, candy and biscuits. The party ended with a Tolstoy story told by Pastor Dubois with the appropriate theme of "forgiveness" and "loving one another." This little party with the children was very meaningful to us as it was to the children who know so little and have experienced so little of the real Christmas spirit, having been deprived during the war years.

CHRISTMAS IN THE LOCAL REFORMED CHURCH

After a busy afternoon with the children's center Christmas party we hurried off to the local church where we sang and listened to the Christmas message with the German prisoners of war who are still stationed in Dunkerque. The pastor of the church spoke meaningful words of encouragement and comfort to them saying that we really all were prisoners unless we found Christ.

Then, at midnight we sat and sang with the French congregation as they celebrated Christmas Eve at the church in the form of one big family.

It was these activities and meetings that really made us feel anew the real Christmas spirit. For here in Dunkerque one doesn't "get into the spirit" of Christmas by dashing around doing last minute shopping, hearing Christmas music in the shops, or even see many Christmas decorations. As far as outside and material things go one wouldn't know that Christmas is approaching unless he really felt it within himself. Perhaps this is the real test.

FRIENDSHIP TRAIN

Following is the report of the work with the Friendship Train which took up the greater part of December. However, we were still able to get the above mentioned activities in between times. Even Christmas day was a busy one. However, when New Year's day arrived we were able to take a day of rest.

Northern France was one of the seven regions chosen to benefit from the Friendship Train. Charles Webb was asked by the National Committee in Paris to serve as American representative in the Lille region, being responsible for the organization of reception and distribution committees in Lille, Roubaix, Tourcoing, Dunkerque, Arras, Calais and Boulogne.

The National Committee made up of representatives of American Aid to France, American Joint Distribution Committee, National Catholic Welfare Conference and the World Council of Churches, decided that the food for the most part should go to children up to fifteen years of age in elementary school canteens, orphanages and institutions caring for pre-school age children. To avoid any possible misuse of the food, it was required that everything be consumed within the institutions and that nothing be taken home.

The Friendship Train in France was received much in the same spirit as it was given in the United States. After a big reception at the port of Le Havre, dockers worked night and day without pay to unload the ship. French railroads, severely handicapped by a post-war shortage of wagons, made available 500 cars for free transportation to the various sections of France. Official receptions with children, bands, flags and speeches were held in Arras and Lille, departmental capitols, as well as in the other receiving towns. Everywhere sincere appreciation was expressed for the valuable gift of food and for the very tangible sort of manifestation of friendship.

Recently we visited several Dunkerque schools at the time the children were enjoying sweet raisin buns and a bowl of milk made possible by the Friendship Train. At this same time the school children of the North department were sending a car load of collected food and clothing to the eastern part of France where many, many families were suddenly made homeless by devastating floods.

TRANSLATION OF A FRIENDSHIP TRAIN LETTER

Monsieur le President:

We were happy when we learned that a "Friendship Train" had arrived in Dunkerque and it is with satisfaction that each day we receive a bowl of hot milk to help keep us warm during the cold weather. The sweet roll which comes each Friday fills the stomach and keeps it from crying, for the other days, lacking ration tickets, our bread often remains at the bakers.

We thank you then also for the effort made by the Americans in sending food to our school canteen which would certainly have had to close its doors without this timely aid.

It is with a certain embarrassment that we thank the people who have deprived themselves of their surplus to send food to needy Europe and particularly to France. We all join hands together to say, "Thank you, Uncle Sam."

And if then by these gifts we are able to bring in the peace, France will be the first to place its signature beside that of America, which in helping us has applied the words of Christ, "Love one another."

Gerard Legrand

53 Ave. Gaspard Malo

Malo les Bains, Dunkerque.

---

FACTS AND FIGURES

Leprosy is one of the oldest and most dreaded diseases. No specific "cure" has been found but about 10% of all treated cases are discharged annually as "symptom-free."

Besides good diet and general hygiene the standard treatment is the oil of a tropical fruit called "chaulmoogra." Two of the sulfa drugs are now being tested with some success.

Leprosy is not inherited, and not at all easily communicated. Some authorities hold that it is communicable most exclusively to children, and then only by frequent contacts with an "open" case over a long period of time.

It is supposed that there are about 10,000,000 cases in the world, of which perhaps only 1 or 2% are being treated.

Leprosy affects the skin and peripheral nerve fibres, appearing first in discolored or numb spots; it may end by destroying whole members such as the nose, eyes, hands, feet. Reprinted from the Missionary Digest.

Thanksgiving Offering

(Received from October 1, 1947 to February 16, 1948)

SOUTHEASTERN DISTRICT

|                         |           |
|-------------------------|-----------|
| Bethlehem               | $ 202.92 |
| Cameron                 | 33.00     |
| Cumberland              | 78.15     |
| Calvary                 | 41.00     |
| Gatewood                | 23.25     |
| Hagerstown              | 626.25    |
| Haddix                  | 18.32     |
| Liberty                 | 17.75     |
| Linwood                 | 179.74    |
| Lost Creek              | 92.77     |
| Mathias                 | 30.00     |
| Maurertown              | 173.05    |
| Mt. Olive               | 116.59    |
| Oak Hill                | 90.00     |
| Prosperity              | 10.00     |
| St. James               | 113.46    |
| Washington              | 2.00      |
| Miscellaneous Southeast | 55.10     |

PENNSYLVANIA DISTRICT

|                            |        |
|----------------------------|--------|
| Allentown                  | 36.00  |
| Altoona                    | 48.90  |
| Berlin                     | 433.00 |
| Brush Valley               | 42.00  |
| Conemaugh                  | 135.00 |
| Highland                   | 34.25  |
| Johnstown First            | 512.16 |
| Johnstown Second           | 61.50  |
| Johnstown Third            | 543.12 |
| Kittanning                 | 10.00  |
| Masontown                  | 101.17 |
| Meyersdale                 | 131.50 |
| Mt. Olivet                 | 31.50  |
| Mt. Pleasant               | 21.00  |
| Pittsburgh                 | 188.87 |
| Quiet Dell                 | 36.00  |
| Raystown                   | 8.00   |
| Sergeantsville             | 23.50  |
| Summit Mills               | 140.25 |
| Uniontown Second           | 152.00 |
| Valley                     | 11.00  |
| Vandergrift                | 51.00  |
| Vinco                      | 246.90 |
| Waynesboro                 | 80.00  |
| Miscellaneous Pennsylvania | 51.69  |

OHIO DISTRICT

|                |        |
|----------------|--------|
| Ashland        | 190.00 |
| Bryan          | 662.65 |
| Canton         | 90.00  |
| Clayton        | 5.00   |
| Columbus       | 37.50  |
| Dayton         | 464.55 |
| Fairhaven      | 133.25 |
| Fairview       | 32.00  |
| Firestone Park | 63.00  |
| Glenford       | 55.00  |
| Gratis         | 143.00 |
| Gretna         | 257.30 |
| Louisville     | 393.00 |
| Mansfield      | 100.00 |

|                    |        |
|--------------------|--------|
| Mt. Zion           | 5.00   |
| New Lebanon        | 455.75 |
| North Georgetown   | 61.50  |
| Pleasant Hill      | 349.36 |
| Smithville         | 552.25 |
| West Alexandria    | 75.76  |
| Williamstown       | 109.30 |
| Miscellaneous Ohio | 37.90  |

INDIANA DISTRICT

|                       |          |
|-----------------------|----------|
| Akron Coop.           | 10.00    |
| Ardmore               | 115.93   |
| Brighton              | 60.00    |
| Burlington            | 124.39   |
| Center Chapel         | 21.20    |
| College Corner        | 162.63   |
| Corinth               | 53.14    |
| Denver                | 143.00   |
| Dutchtown             | 10.00    |
| Elkhart               | 1,000.00 |
| Flora                 | 516.76   |
| Goshen                | 548.00   |
| Huntington            | 62.00    |
| Loree                 | 178.84   |
| Mexico                | 178.45   |
| Milford               | 126.79   |
| Muncie                | 148.00   |
| Nappanee              | 417.00   |
| New Paris             | 402.16   |
| North Liberty         | 107.24   |
| North Manchester      | 324.86   |
| Oakville              | 258.35   |
| Peru                  | 64.50    |
| Roann                 | 169.60   |
| Roanoke               | 45.40    |
| South Bend            | 871.11   |
| Teegarden             | 18.65    |
| Tiosa                 | 21.00    |
| Warsaw                | 277.90   |
| Miscellaneous Indiana | 50.00    |

CENTRAL DISTRICT

|                       |        |
|-----------------------|--------|
| Cerro Gordo           | 24.50  |
| Milledgeville         | 397.00 |
| Udell                 | 27.00  |
| Waterloo              | 465.00 |
| Miscellaneous Central | 6.00   |

MID-WEST DISTRICT

|                        |        |
|------------------------|--------|
| Carleton               | 46.20  |
| Falls City             | 124.05 |
| Fort Scott             | 11.58  |
| Hamlin                 | 49.28  |
| Morrill                | 20.00  |
| Mulvane                | 62.79  |
| Miscellaneous Mid-West | 20.00  |

CALIFORNIA DISTRICT

|                          |       |
|--------------------------|-------|
| Lathrop                  | 20.00 |
| Manteca                  | 31.00 |
| Stockton                 | 75.50 |
| Miscellaneous California | 43.50 |

|                       |          |
|-----------------------|----------|
| GENERAL MISCELLANEOUS | 15.00    |
| NATIONAL W. M. S.     | 2,000.00 |

CHRISTIAN ENDEAVOR TOPIC

W. St. Clair Benshoff, Topic Editor

"Topics copyrighted by the International Society of Christian Endeavor.
Used by permission."

Topic for March 7, 1948

"LET NO MAN PUT ASUNDER"

Scripture: Matt. 19:3-9; Mark 10:2-12

For The Leader

IN VIEW of the alarming increase in the divorce rate today, it is fitting that this final topic on "Courtship and Marriage" should deal with the subject of divorce. When the minister says, "I now pronounce you husband and wife, 'What therefore God hath joined together, let no man put asunder.'" just what does he mean? Let us give careful heed to the teachings of the scripture on this question!

DISCUSSION

1. THE WORLD AND DIVORCE. Marriage is an institution of God. It says in the scriptures that God planned that a man and woman should live together as one flesh, or one body, or one person. They are united in name and life. Mark 10:8. To get to the basic solution of the divorce problem we must at once see the difference between a Christian marriage, and a marriage of unchristians. God's laws must be taken to heart by all people, especially by Christians. But the people of the world do not govern themselves by the laws of God. They have their own civil laws. So, young people, when you see a great multitude of unchristian people heading for the divorce courts, remember that is their way of solving their problems. It is not for the Christian. We Christians, when we marry, vow before God to remain as husband and wife "until death do us part." Get rid of the idea that if things don't go right when you're married, that you can rush right off to the divorce court. Hollywood and others may do it, but God's children should not follow suit.

2. GROUND FOR DIVORCE. There are many brutes who are husbands, and there are many unworthy women who are wives, even among Christians. And perhaps there are some who feel they have grounds for divorce. But slow up a little! Only as one or the other is unfaithful to the marriage vow, according to Matt. 19:9, is there scriptural grounds for divorce. While the civil laws recognize many other causes, yet this remains the one scriptural basis, for divorce among Christians.

3. SO YOU WANT A DIVORCE? Right now it may be, or at some future date, you may be thinking that a divorce may be the way out of your "unhappy" marriage. What has happened to bring you to this place? Did you discover that life wasn't the bed of roses you thought it was going to be? Is there more work and monotonous jobs connected with marriage than you thought there would be? Perhaps your mate thinks the same thing. Has the thrill and newness of married life worn off? Does the grass in the next field look greener? And because of one or the other of these things, you think a divorce is what you want? Well, think again! Why did you marry your mate in the first place? Because you found in the person the fulfillment of your dreams. You were happier in their presence than when you were apart. And you wanted to live in their presence . . . always. Now, what's the matter? Nothing, except that you have lost that thread of joy and love which knitted your hearts together on your wedding day. Go back and pick up those tangled threads where you had that quarrel or misunderstanding. Go back and bury your pride, and ask forgiveness. Start again. There's no one in all the world who can give you the real happiness you want than the one to whom you are married. Get rid of the notion of a divorce.

4. SOLVING YOUR PROBLEMS. We read recently of a lawyer who was also a Christian. A woman came to him asking him to negotiate a divorce for her, for which the lawyer could easily have obtained a handsome fee. Very tempting, to say the least. (And if you ever go seeking a divorce, there'll be some greedy lawyer ready to break up your home for his fee.) But this lawyer heard her story, and asked her if she had prayed about it. The woman was shocked. Later the husband was invited to the office. Upon arrival, the lawyer spoke to him in the same way. Before long he had the husband and wife on their knees in prayer together. A home was saved through prayer. Yes, if you really want to solve your marriage problems, pray about them. It will cover a multitude of sins and misunderstandings. If you think anything of your home, children or possible future children, you will do everything in your power, and call on the power of heaven, to save your home.

5. FROM COURTSHIP TO MARRIAGE. Maybe it is yet a long way for you to the marriage altar. Perhaps for some of you, there will never be the wedding bells and flowers. But normally speaking, as a young person, you will arrive at that sacred place. If you have kept your courtship and dating days on a Christian basis, if you have prayed about choosing the right person, you stand a good chance of having a happy marriage. But at the altar, you must also determine and resolve that come what may, you will keep your marriage going. If you so determine, the thought of divorce never need occur. It will take much sacrifice and fortitude and love. The intent and purpose of your heart will determine the success or failure of your marriage. If you enter, determined at all costs to succeed, you will have a long happy life. If your mate proves unfaithful by "running around" you are entitled to divorce that mate, but first try praying about it. Pray that he or she might see the error of their way, and return to you. Again, you may be "being too nice" to an unfaithful mate by giving them a divorce. Oftentimes you do better by refusing to give them a divorce. Again, a last word in this series of topics. When you're married remember that when your mate finds real happiness and joy at home, he or she will never wander; this happiness and joy can be found at the altar of prayer which should be the center of every home.

QUESTIONS, PROBLEMS

1. What do you think about the remarriage of divorced persons? How do you interpret the scripture preaching as expressed in Matt. 19:9 and Mark 10:11, 12?

2. A problem: You, a single young person, find yourself "falling in love" with a person who is divorced. Except for that they are a satisfactory possible mate for you. Should you marry? Discuss.

Prayer Meeting Topic

Contributed by Rev. C. Y. Gilmer

WHAT WILL YOU DO WITH THE CALL?

By Perry C. Bashore

We have heard of the cause of missions.
But what does this mean to you?
Are you ready with your love and concern
To help the great cause through?

What will we do with the Master's call?
Will we let it unheeded go?
And allow the god of darkness and fear
His message there to sow?

Will we close our ears and eyes?
And not share in the cause at all?
Then say, "I did not know
This was my Master's call?"

We can not be loyal to Christ,
And heed not this call for help.
It requires a giving of thought,
Of time—of money—of self.

With our lives on his altar of service,
Sacrificing all for his love of mankind,
Many will learn of his love and care,
Many the true way will find.

"WHAT ABOUT THE HEATHEN?"

Scripture: Romans 1:19-31

Missionary Hymns

Leader's Petition

Thought Provokers:

ACCORDING to the opinion of some people the ignorance of the heathen will be their saviour to prevent them from perishing forever in hell. Sentimental and emotional reasoning do not furnish the answer to the question. To be sure, this is a grave and solemn question. THEN GO TO GOD'S DIVINE AND HOLY WORD FOR THE CORRECT ANSWER!

The spiritual condition of the heathen is that they have sinned and are under condemnation (Rom. 5:12-19). As our Scripture lesson says, God reveals Himself through nature unto them, but they do not receive and glorify Him. They are under sin and guilt in God's sight (Rom. 3:9-20). They know not God (1 Thess. 4:5), but they worship demons (1 Cor. 10:20). Their prayers are vain repetitions (Matt. 6:7). Their understanding is darkened through sinful ignorance (Eph. 4:17-19). Dead in trespasses and sins, they are by nature the children of wrath (Eph. 2:1-3). Under the blindness and power of Satan, they need forgiveness (Acts 26:17, 18). They are without excuse (Rom. 1:18-20). They have no hope (Eph. 2:12). Although they know they will be judged, they yet live in sin (Rom. 1:32).

Let us pray for the evangelization of the heathen. Let us also do something about the situation in so far as we are able.

COMMENTS

On The Sunday School Lesson

by The Editor

Lesson for March 7, 1948

"YE ARE WITNESSES"

Lesson: Acts 8:26-39

WE FIND in Thayer's "Greek-English Lexicon of the New Testament" that in the sense the idea of "witnessing" is used in the New Testament that it means "to affirm that one has seen or heard or experienced something, or that he knows it because he has been taught by divine revelation or inspiration." Hence to be a real witness in the sense of today's lesson we find the story of Philip's meeting with the Ethiopian eunuch on the road from Jerusalem to Gaza, as a fine illustration of such witnessing. Here he "bears witness" authoritatively to the Messiahship of Jesus, which he shows by means of the scriptures to be "accredited, attested and approved by these same scriptures," as related to events of the very near past.

There are several things we need notice:

1. Philip, as a witness, was sent as an accredited agent of God. (verse 26.)
2. That he did not hesitate to go on the mission. The first five words of verse 27 tells us this.
3. That he saw the opportunity and met it. (verses 27-30.)
4. That he fulfilled the qualifications of a competent witness by being able to meet the questions of the eunuch, and to answer them comprehensively.
5. That the witnessing was so convincing that it brought the desired results—the conversion of the eunuch.

The impulse to obedience on the part of Philip may have been found in the words of Jesus on the Day of Ascension when He said, "Tarry ye in Jerusalem until ye are endued with power from on high, and THEN ye shall be witnesses to me, in Jerusalem and Judea and Samaria and the uttermost parts of the earth." Philip was already in the Samaria stage of this witnessing, for he was holding forth in a revival in that Samaritan territory. From here he was sent to one who was to begin the process of carrying the "Gospel Witnessing" to some of those "uttermost parts of the earth," for he (the eunuch) was to carry it back to his own people in Northern Africa.

Let us not ignore the words of the Golden Text, which say, "As My Father hath sent me, even so send I you." We may be sent only a short distance from our own homes, or it may be to the "uttermost part of the earth," but wherever it may be, we are to be ready to obey the command of the Master to "be witnesses" of the truth and the value of the "Gospel of the Son of God."

Partners

With Him

Carrying out the "Great Commission"

Jesus has called us into partnership with Himself in this greatest of enterprises.

"And he said unto them, Go ye into all the world and preach the Gospel to the whole creation."

Mk. 16:15

WHAT IMPULSION?

Go ye therefore.—Matthew 28:19.

"It would be interesting to study the great compulsions that have sent men and women into the world to share the love of God to others. What was it that sent out Carey and Livingstone, Judson and Stanley, Florence Nightingale and Clara Barton—Judd Jones, Grenfell, Schweitzer? Jesus said, "Go ye THEREFORE!" His is the power, ours is the task. We are responsible for doing our best, not for results. The power is his!

There is, however, one little secret to remember. Between our task and his power there must be constant connection. We can truly share with others effectively only when we remain always vital through our touch with him."

Pray For

ALL missionaries

ALL the homeless and hungry

All relief workers

ALL Brethren people to share in this missionary appeal.

Easter Sunday

is

Foreign Missionary Day

The BRETHREN EVANGELIST

HOLY BIBLE

Official Organ of The Brethren Church

Since many of the "Evangelist" readers remember the interior of the Smithville, Ohio, Brethren Church as it formerly was, we proudly present this picture as proof of the beautifully remodeled and redecorated chancel. The rest of the church has received like attention, but this has made the most noticeable change.

Vernon D. Grisso, Pastor

THE BRETHREN EVANGELIST

Published weekly, except the last week in August and
the last week in December.

THE BRETHREN PUBLISHING COMPANY

Ashland, Ohio

PRUDENTIAL COMMITTEE

J. E. Stookey, President N. G. Kimmel, Vice-President
J. G. Dodds, Secretary-Treasurer

EDITOR OF PUBLICATIONS—F. C. Vanator

BUSINESS MANAGER—G. S. Baer

EDITOR MISSIONARY NUMBER—E. M. Riddle

CONTRIBUTING EDITORS

Dr. Charles A. Bame Rev. Dyoll Belote

DEPARTMENTAL EDITORS

Dr. C. F. Yoder, Brethren Doctrine
Rev. N. V. Leatherman, Practical Church Problems
Rev. J. G. Dodds, National Goals
Dr. R. F. Porte, Brethren Church History

PLEASE REMEMBER: All material for publication in the Evangelist must be in the hands of the editor at least three weeks before the desired date of publication, to assure same to appear in desired issue. This refers to announcements particularly.

TERMS OF SUBSCRIPTION: $1.50 per year in advance.
CHANGE OF ADDRESS: In ordering change of address always
give both old and new addresses.

REMITTANCES: Send all money, business communications, and contributed articles to:

THE BRETHREN PUBLISHING COMPANY
ASHLAND, OHIO

Entered as second class matter at Ashland, Ohio. Accepted for mailing
at special rate, section 1103, act of October 3, 1917. Authorized
September 3, 1928.

INTERESTING ITEMS

New Paris, Indiana. The New Paris Church, of which Brother Stewart is pastor, honored Dr. and Mrs. G. W. Rench on Sunday, February 22, the occasion being the Golden Wedding of the RENCHES. We offer our congratulations to this very wonderful couple.

We learn from Brother Stewart's bulletin of February 8, that a group of Northern Indiana ministers met at the home of Brother and Sister King at Elkhart for a pot-luck dinner. At this time Brother and Sister W. E. Ronk, who recently assumed the Goshen pastorate, were honored by a reception.

Udell, Iowa. Brother E. J. Beekley, pastor of the Canton, Ohio, Church, recently held a revival meeting at the Udell Church, the dates being February 8 to 22.

Akron, Ohio (Firestone Park). We learn from Brother J. G. Dodds' bulletin that a Signal Lights organization was recently instituted in the Akron Church, under the sponsorship of the W. M. S.

Warsaw, Indiana. We see by the Warsaw bulletin of February 8, that Brother and Sister Joseph Shilling of Warsaw recently celebrated their fifty-eighth wedding anniversary. Brother and Sister Shilling have for a great number of years been faithful attendants at the Warsaw Church services. Brother Baer joins the editor in extending congratulations.

Masontown, Pennsylvania. A card from Brother Freeman Ankrum in answer to correspondence with the editor, in which we informed him that we were in the midst of press erection and that we surely were in a "mess" here at the publishing house, he says, "Talk about mess. We moved yesterday (February 19) into the new parsonage." So at last that move has been made. While the personage is not completely finished on the outside it is practically done on the inside. The completion of outside work waits for warmer weather.

Brother Ankrum also reports a fine offering given on the parsonage fund day, with money still coming in.

Berlin, Pennsylvania. Brother Whetstone announces that Holy Week services will begin on March 23 and continue through Friday evening of that week. Communion has been set for Easter Sunday evening.

We also note that the sum of $63.00 was given by various classes and individuals of the Berlin Sunday School for seeds to be sent to needy families in Europe.

Cumberland, Maryland. Brother Paul M. Naff tells us through his bulletin that the church debt has been reduced to $400.00 and that Cash Day for the liquidation of the remainder of that debt has been set for Sunday, March 7. We trust that they make it.

Louisville, Ohio. We are in receipt of the brand new mimeographed church paper, Vol. I, No. 1, of "The Pastor's Helper" which Brother John Byler, pastor, is issuing. It is an attractive six-page paper, just full of interesting items and suggestions. We read it from "kiver to kiver," Brother Byler, and found it most interesting.

We note that the Louisville Church has a fine plan whereby they have placed a chart in the vestibule of the church with the Sundays of the coming summer listed and a space beside each of them for the signing up for the bringing of flowers for the church on that particular Sunday. We feel that it is a fine suggestion and pass it on to the other churches.

A Boys' Brotherhood was recently organized in the Louisville Church.

Vinco, Pennsylvania. We learn that pre-Easter services will be held at the Vinco Church, beginning on Palm Sunday and closing on Easter Sunday. Brother Benshoff, the pastor, will bring the messages.

Loree, Indiana. Brother Robert Higgins, pastor of the Loree Church, announces that on February 5 baptismal services were held for five who had made confession. The service took place in the Peru baptistry.

Waterloo, Iowa. Brother V. E. Meyer announces the averages of January, 1948 as compared with those of 1947, as follows: January, 1947—worship service, 124; 1948—worship service, 140.

(Continued on page 10)

The Editor Thinks Aloud

Fred C. Vanator

SOMEWAY, IT JUST DON'T MAKE SENSE

THOSE who want to make this nation "military conscious," who seek to throw the war scare into the American public in such a way as to be able to get passage of the Universal Military Training law, are surely making statements that "just don't make sense." Just a few days ago I heard one proponent of universal military training say, and I quote, "Our next war will last in its intensity, just about one minute, and then all will be over." Then, almost in the next breath he pleads for the expenditure of what has been estimated as amounting to $3,000,000,000 a year for intensive military training for our young men, in order to be ready for the next war.

This set me to thinking!

To get ready for WHAT? We have been told that men cannot combat the new atomic weapons, as men. We have been told that flesh and blood, cities and villages, cannot withstand the power of atomic warfare. What, then, the idea of training all of our young men in the rudiments of ground and aerial war? The idea of subjecting our young men to all the dangers of army life, with its untold temptations, both morally and physically, surely does not appeal to the rank and file of the followers of Christ, the Prince of Peace.

Far better spend such training money for education and moral and physical uplift. We are told what the sum of Three Billions of Dollars, which is the estimated military training goal, could do if used in the right places. Someone has figured it out that with that amount of money the following could be accomplished: The construction of a ten room, modern school building in every county in the United States each year; the construction annually a of a $150,000 hospital in each county; the employment of 10 doctors and 10 nurses full time for schools and public health services in each county; the purchase of 10 new school busses in each county; the maintenance of one psychiatric and behavior clinic in every county; provide 10 full-time recreation and juvenile guidance workers in every county; bring all schools of the country up to a reasonable standard of efficiency; meet the pay roll of one junior college with 10 instructors in every county; provide additional educational facilities for three million children under 18 who are not now attending school; pay all expenses of a three-year post-graduate course for 10,000 students and scientists each year; to pay one year's expenses at college or technical school of the 900,000 boys who would be caught in the military training program each year; to erect a $750,000 trade and technical school in each district each year—AND have an unexpended balance of $15,300,000, annually.

Besides all this, do we want our boys for the next untold number of years to be TAUGHT THAT WAR IS THE ONLY WAY TO SETTLE DIFFICULTIES AMONG NATIONS? How about sending out a few missionaries?

Think it over!

Business Manager's Corner

George S. Baer

New Press is Installed

AT THIS WRITING, Friday morning, February 27th, the new press is set up on our floors, but the mechanics do not have it regulated and ready for running. We are counting on it being ready for running next week and we are anticipating printing our Bible Class Quarterlies on it as the first job. And I want to say it is a beauty and we have found it to be perfect in every way. The erector has shown himself to be a real expert and particular about every detail. We have the old press moved into the basement and it is already in operation. Last week's Evangelist, the Missionary Number, was the first job from it in its new location.

We are still very much crowded due to workmen and tools necessary for the finishing of the job and the rearrangement of some of our equipment. We will soon be organized and ready for normal production in every line. Thank you all for your part in making possible the achievement of this much of our program. It is God who has worked in and through you and us to the accomplishing of His will. He has supplied the biggest need of our plant in a wonderful way and brought it about more quickly than we had faith to believe. Will you—all those who have united in the Press Prayer Band throughout the brotherhood, either privately or in public—will you join in earnest thanksgiving to God for His goodness, and then continue to pray that He may work upon our hearts to finish up the job in the scheduled time. We want to have everything paid for that relates to this equipment campaign within the three years set apart for it, and the campaign is to close with the General Conference of 1950.

Get your Sunday School Orders in at the earliest possible moment. Order blanks are in your hands. Use them instead of plain sheets of paper, where possible, but if you have mis-laid yours, use any paper. We have written in new prices, but some price changes have arrived since we sent out the blanks. As soon as prices seem to be stabilized, we will print some new order blanks. But send orders immediately. Thank you.

Additional Publication Day Offerings

|                                                 |         |
|-------------------------------------------------|---------|
| Mrs. Jennie Wilcoxson, Columbia City, Ind. .... | $ 1.00 |
| J. I. Hereter, Gettysburg, Pa. ....             | 15.00   |
| Mr. and Mrs. A. M. Erbaugh, West Milton, Ohio.. | 10.00   |
| Akron, Indiana, Church .....                    | 15.00   |
| Berlin, Penna., Church .....                    | 96.00   |
| Robert Hoffman, Berlin, Pa. ....                | 2.00    |
| Bryan, Ohio, Church .....                       | 200.00  |
| Pittstown, N. J., Church as follows:            |         |
| Mr. and Mrs. E. C. Hackett .....                | 4.00    |
| Miss V. E. Hackett .....                        | 3.00    |

(Continued on Page 10)

The Voice of Our Leaders -- Past and Present

(From the Brethren Evangelist—May 28, 1902)

The Lord's Supper

J. O. Talley

WE APPROACH this subject with a consciousness of our inability to do it anything like justice in the brief time and space allotted to us. To the student, who not only reads, but studies the Word, one of the most touching and significant scenes in the life of our Lord was enacted in the "upper room" in Jerusalem the last evening He spent with His disciples before His crucifixion. One night of agony in the garden, weighing the crushing curse of sin with bowed heart and on bended knee; one more day of buffeting in "mock robe" and "crown of thorns," would complete the work which He came to do.

With all this before Him, His loving disciples, good men though they were, in the very presence of their divine teacher, had so far failed to understand their Master, as to be wasting time discussing who should be greatest in the Kingdom, and talking of "places of honor." All this while a dark night of a closing dispensation was hovering over them; how dark it would be none but He could know.

Fourteen hundred years of "Law and Prophets," as teachers, "offerings and sacrifices" as symbols of divine life, were just drawing to a close, with varied impress on the minds and hearts of God's chosen race. Israel was preparing to celebrate their "Passover" that commemorated their deliverance from a serfdom in Egypt, into a nation, and typical kingdom. The type of the deliverance was a "sacrifice and spilled blood." Participation in which by the people was a union of people and purpose, looking to a fulfillment of promise of God to Abraham.

As we come to this period in the Lord's life, we feel we must look at the institutions of that last night as a whole, i. e., the supper, and the "bread and wine." Jesus, being the antitype and fulfillment of the law and the Prophets, points to the "bread and wine" as witness of His death, and its purpose; i. e., "the blood which was shed, and the body which was broken" for our sins, (on account of our sins). "Without the shedding of blood there is no remission of sins."

Almost in the closing paragraph of the old dispensation, our Lord inserts the closing scene of the new which He is soon to usher in by His resurrection, with the promise that "He would come again." Luke 22:18. It would seem that the "bread and wine" point to what has come to pass, and that the disciples were to thus pledge themselves to a participation with Him in it. "The cup of blessing which we bless, is it not a communion (kinonia participation) of the blood of Christ? The bread which we bless is it not a communion (kinonia participation) of the body of Christ?" I Cor. 10:16.

So it would seem that this part of the institution was accepted by the early Christians as a pledge of faithfulness to their Master, even unto death. Indeed the writings of the fathers, and the testimony of the martyrs, and the edicts of the Governors against the early Christians, all go to show that the institution was so understood. In the bread and the wine they pledged themselves to God and to each other, to be faithful in the promulgation of the Word, even unto death, while it was so understood and practiced by the Christians who gave up their lives, and thus it is that the church was founded on the blood of martyrs.

In connection with this, we find the supper, an institution pointing to another object, and teaching a different feature of the one great lesson in divine life. Let us look into the manner in which it was instituted.

"As they were eating," Luke 22; Matt. 26; Mark 14. All the synoptists agree they were eating. What were they eating? John explains, by calling it a supper—(deipnon) John 13. The synoptic Gospels describe the Sacrament part of the meal. John describes the meal itself. "As they were eating—what? Why a supper. Jesus arose,

Matthew and Mark say, as they were eating. Luke says, "after supper." He took bread and blessed it. What kind of bread? Presumably such as they had on the table. It would require a very fine distinction to divide the institution, and indeed we do not desire to do so, believing that it should always be observed just as it was in the upper room. Was it the old Jewish Passover He ate with His disciples that night? Much has been said and written on this point, and we will not enter into any discussion, but simply notice a few facts about it.

In John 13 we see that Jesus ate this supper the night before He was betrayed, and that He went out into the garden and prayed. Did He observe it as the Passover was commanded to be observed? No. Exodus 12—they were commanded to "eat it roast with fire, with loins girded; staff in hand, and were to eat it in haste." None of these things did they do. The supper of the "upper room" was eaten with great deliberation, and during the time He washed the disciples' feet, and then they reclined at the table and talked, Jesus discoursing upon many of the most weighty themes. They had a sop, or sodden meal. Would Jesus have transgressed the law of God in this matter, He who said He came to "fulfill the law and the Prophets?"

Then in John 18 we have Jesus before the High Priest on trial the next morning, and the "Jews went not into the Judgment hall lest they be defiled, but that they might eat the Passover." Here it is clear they had not eaten the Passover.

Clement, an eminent writer of the second century, says, "He was buried on the day of the Passover." Anti-N? Vol. 8, page 773. Hipolites, also a writer of the second century, says, "He did not eat the Passover of the law. For He was the Passover that had been proclaimed of old, and that was fulfilled on that determinate day. Vol. 5, page 240. The same author also says, "He who also said, 'I will not eat any more of the Passover,' but He probably partook of a supper before the Passover. But the Passover He did not eat, but He suffered." Clement of Alexandria gives quite a long and full dissertation on the subject, showing that it was observed by the Christians in his day, and was not a meal that was to be done away with." Vol. p, pages 237-245.

I might indeed fill several pages of the Evangelist with historical references from acceptable authors, but time and space forbid. One more reference to history.

In the days of Pliny the younger, who was governor of the province of Bythnia during a great persecution, he wrote to the Emperor of Rome describing the Christians, many of whom lived within his jurisdiction, and among other doctrines and practices among them, he describes the Supper and says, "They all eat of it, rich and poor on an equality, and pledge themselves to faithfulness to one Jesus, whom they expect will return and become their king." He said they ate it at night, with singing, and much praying. He wrote this, and asked the emperor what he should do with those people. The emperor advised that a decree or an edict be issued prohibiting the observance of it by the Christians, as it seemed to be destined, if continued, to break up established customs, making master and slave equal in importance, and inimical to the loyalty due Caesar. The reader will see that I have put this history in my own language, for purposes of abbreviation, as the quotation is too long to give here in full.

Purpose of the Supper

Some of the foregoing quotations will show the purpose of the institution called the Lord's Supper. From the expressions in the Gospels, especially in Luke 22:18, our Savior would have us see in it a pledge of His second coming. "I will not . . . any more . . . until the kingdom of God shall come." And in the parable of the great supper, Luke 12:37, He promises the faithful who "watch," the blessedness of service when He shall come forth, "gird Himself, make them sit down to meat, and shall come forth and serve them." In Revelation 19:9, John seems to have gotten a glimpse of its fulfillment in that future day, when the Lord shall call His own: "And he saith unto me, Write, blessed are they who are bidden to the marriage supper of the Lamb. And he saith unto me, these are the true words of God." Jesus says, "Blessed are those servants whom the Lord when he cometh, shall find watching: verily I say unto you, that he shall gird himself, and make them to sit down to meat, and shall come forth to serve them." Luke 12:37.

From this and many other similar scriptures we seem to see in the supper, an institution which, if understood and practiced in the spirit of the Master, is designed to break down caste, slavery, and all forms of human bondage, which was the curse of the old world and from which the world is not now free. A heavenly institution observed by the people "of the kingdom on earth" among whom there can be neither master nor slave, but that equality that becomes all who are called to become high priests of God, making acceptable offerings to Him on the altars of hearts that have been made free from all earth customs of bondage.

The supper is the Lord's and therefore it can only honor Him when partaken of by those who are of His spirit and purpose, looking to the same heavenly Father for an inheritance incorruptible and that fadeth not away.

The observance of the supper by early Christians and the great truth it symbolized, or indicated, i. e., the coming of the Lord into His kingdom, was looked upon by the Romans as a menace to secular and worldly pomp, which led to issuing a decree against its observance, is evidence of its observance among them. It is a full meal, partaken of in the evening, and while at this table of the Lord, the bread is broken, and the cup is divided among the believers, in which they pledge their lives for the truth for which Jesus died, i. e., the Fatherhood of God, the brotherhood of man, and the coming of Him whose right it is to rule. So let us observe it till He comes.

*Charles Munson Called to be
First National Director
of
Brethren Youth*

The National Board of Brethren Youth, Inc. is happy to announce the acceptance of Charles Munson to the call extended to him by the board to become its first National Director. The following qualifications had been set up to aid in the choice of such a person:

1. A consecrated Christian, vitally interested in Brethren Youth.
2. A young person who knows the problems of the church and of the youth.
3. Someone who is not easily discouraged.
4. A leader of youth—able to “click” with young people.
5. Organizational ability.
6. A go-getter with drive.

These pre-requisites are very well filled in Mr. Munson. He is a junior in the seminary at Ashland this year, and has been serving as the minister in the Gretna and Williamstown churches. He also has been the adult advisor of the Ashland Boy's Brotherhood, which has done outstanding work in its project of buying a pick-up truck for Kentucky. He is married and has one daughter.

We ask the continued prayers of the brotherhood in behalf of Brethren Youth. The growth of this organization during the past two years has been very gratifying, and, with the help of the Lord, many more things are being planned.

Faith

Raymond Stoffer

FAITH MEANS to have confidence and trust. This world is run on faith; we have faith in our transportation facilities to get us to our destinations; faith to believe, when retiring at night, that tomorrow will come with its various activities; that the sun will shine and bring its light and heat. As we must have faith in humanity and in temporal things, so we must have faith in God for our spiritual things—simple, childlike faith in God for all our daily guidance and protection. We must trust Him for the little things in life as well as our great problems. Hebrews 4:16 says, "Let us therefore, come boldly unto the throne of grace, that we may obtain mercy, and find grace to help in time of need."

A story is told of a minister who was about to cross a small stream on a plank. He was not sure of the plank's safety. A lady near by said, "The plank is safe—trust it." Some time later in a meeting, he had the privilege of talking to this same woman about her soul. He said, "Just trust Jesus as I trusted the plank."

As a child has faith in its parents, for all of its care and keeping so should we have faith. I am "caretaken" of Jesus for all my wants and needs, both temporal and spiritual. How willing a parent is to give the best to the child. So God is even more willing to give His goodness than we are willing to ask for it.

In Mark 9:23 we read, "Jesus said unto him, If thou canst believe—all things are possible unto him that believeth." I am sure that if we would believe and trust God for more, we would receive more of His goodness. God wants us to trust Him. How many young people fail to trust their parents for counsel and guidance and thus make miserable failures of their lives. Many children think their parents are too old-fashioned. They have not as yet learned that experience is the best teacher, though sometimes a very expensive one. Children do not realize that most parents worry over their children as to their conduct.

How much more we who are older should realize how our God is concerned about our affairs and how abundantly able He is to care for us. He never has lost a battle; He never fails; He is always watching. He careth for the lilies of the field and the very sparrows that fly through the air.

Who are we that we should not have faith in Him who has everything at His command? The cattle upon a thousand hills are His; the planets move at His command; all things were created by Him—why not have more faith in our Great God?

The preachers of the past that were successful in winning souls for our Master had faith in God. With all their persecutions they had faith to believe that God would bring them through, more than conquerors—Finney, Moody, Whitfield, the Wesleys and many others. Their faith in God made them great preachers and successful in winning of souls for God.

How faithful was Job with all of his trials. He came out more than a conqueror. Daniel in the lions' den had faith and he was delivered. The three Hebrew children had faith and came forth out of the fiery furnace. Elijah had faith. He prayed and no rain came for three and a half years, and he prayed again and a great rain came.

Peter and John had great faith, when at the Temple the lame man was healed. Peter said, "Silver and gold have I none, but such as I have give I thee. In the name of Jesus Christ, rise and walk."

Jesus has gone to prepare us a mansion on high. Are going to have faith to love and trust Him, in order that we may walk the golden streets and forever be with the Lord? Have faith in God. It will pay on the great Judgment day. When all others fail, He will never forsake us.

—North Georgetown, Ohio.

---

The Test

Fra Rocco, celebrated Dominican orator, preached a powerful sermon on penitence before a great gathering of men.

Naming the evils of the human race he enthused—"All who are truly penitent, hold up your hands!"

The show of hands suggested every man had replied.

Fra Rocco lifted his face to heaven, threw up his own hands and in rousing voice cried—

"Holy Angels of God, with flaming swords around the throne, I summon you: I summon you to cut me off every hand not raised in utter sincerity!"

He paused and said, as if aside: "I hear them, I hear them coming."

Amid silence like the grave—every hand dropped.

Young Men and Boys' Brotherhood

MARCH PROGRAM

1. Scripture Order
2. Praise and Prayer
3. Bible Study:

SOME BAD BARGAINS

Genesis 27:22-40

WHEN THE PEOPLE in a home are good and love each other, they are very happy. The good Isaac and the beautiful Rebecca had twin boys named Esau and Jacob. Esau was Isaac's favorite, but Rebecca loved Jacob more. This resulted in a partiality which caused trouble. Ambition spoiled what otherwise would have been a happy home.

When Esau and Jacob grew up they still acted like boys. Esau followed hunting for a livelihood and Jacob became a shepherd. One day Esau came home from the hunt with no game. He was extremely tired and hungry. Jacob was cooking a savory dish and tempted Esau to sell his birthright for a bowl of chili soup. Esau, being the eldest, was entitled to the birthright, that is, to have twice as much from his parents as any other child, and also the headship of the tribe upon his father's death.

The tricky Jacob took advantage of Esau's hunger to bargain for his birthright with something to eat. Esau agreed because he thought he was about to famish with hunger. The benefit of his birthright seemed so far away, but the soup would be a present possession.

Many people, like Esau, can see only the immediate, but never the remote. A boy was given the price of entrance to a circus. The barkers attracted him and he spent too much of his money with the side-shows. When he came to the main tent he did not have enough money to get in. He was sorry, but it was too late. And so it was with Esau. A day came when he wanted his birthright, but could not have it though he sought it earnestly with tears.

A teacher of a class of boys once stated that he who buys the truth makes a good bargain. He asked if any could remember of instances of bad bargains as recorded in Scripture. "I do," said one. "Esau made a bad bargain when he sold his birthright for a mess of pottage." Another said, "Judas made a bad bargain when he sold his Lord for thirty pieces of silver." A third responded: "Jesus told us that for one to gain the whole world and to lose his own soul is to make a bad bargain." Then the teacher observed that other bad bargains boys make are to swap the Sunday school for the street, home for wicked companions, the Bible for books, and health for tobacco. Boys who make bad bargains always get the worst of it.

One day Isaac in his old age sent Esau to hunt deer that he might enjoy a dish of venison. This done, he promised that Esau would receive his birthright blessing. Rebecca wanted Jacob to have this blessing so she taught Jacob how to deceive his aged and blind father. She urged the faltering Jacob to hastily prepare two kids for savory meat. She dressed Jacob in Esau's clothes and put the skins of the kids on his wrists and neck to make him hairy like Esau. Jacob sinned in order to get first place. He told his father falsehoods. Is it ever right to do evil that good may come? If God meant for Jacob to have the blessing could He not have brought it about in the right way? As it was, Jacob was driven from home without money or friends.

Jacob made a very bad bargain. First he urged Esau to sell his birthright. Then he deceived his father to get it. Tell how the trick was turned into a lie. Why does one lie call for another? What are some things which boys cannot afford to do? What are some of the best bargains in life. What mother in the New Testament had a wrong ambition for her two sons?

4. Business

5. Recreation

Suggestion: Check the Brotherhood Goals for progress on them. Keep an accurate record of progress made from time to time. Do you have your Brotherhood membership cards for your bill-folds?

NEWS

Send all C. E. News Items
To Rev. W. St. Clair Benshoff
Rt. 1, Box 152, Conemaugh, Pa.

WILLIAMSTOWN, OHIO, C. E.

The Christian Endeavor Society of the Williamstown Brethren Church is moving right along in the C. E. work. This group which was organized just a year ago is made up of all ages as we do not have enough for two societies.

In order to meet the C. E. Goals this year, the president has appointed persons responsible for particular goals. This proves a good practice for the responsibility does not fall on one person.

One Sunday last fall we decided to change our meeting by having a picnic supper along with our program, at one of Ohio's pretty roadside parks. You, no doubt, have guessed what happened. Yes, it rained so we ate in one of the Sunday School rooms, without the roasting ears. We enjoyed it anyway and will try the outdoors again some time.

As for some of the projects, the organization is paying for the church bulletins and at Christmas time a box of candy, fruit, and nuts was given to the Hancock County Children's Home at Findlay.

Another thing the society has done and that is to start a choir for Sunday morning and evening worship services.

We are planning many things for the future, including a special program for C. E. Week which we will tell about in our next quarterly report.

Williamstown Brethren C. E.

The National Sunday School Association

Rev. N. V. Leatherman, General Secretary,
104 S. Mulberry St., Hagerstown, Md.

Are You Dreamin'?

Chester F. Zimmerman, National S. S. Association
Missionary Education Director

ON A JULY day in 1491 the dean of the church at Seville assembled the chapter in the Court of the Elms and said, "Let us build a church so great that those that come after us may think us mad to have attempted it." The result of that dream was the glorious cathedral at Seville. No great cathedral was ever reared except on the foundation of a great dream, and no great life was ever built except the foundation of a dream. Joseph dreamed greatly, and a great life was the result.

The world needs doers, but it needs dreamers first and foremost. Almost anyone can successfully do the routine and the commonplace. Almost anyone can be a follower and complete whatever plans have been made by the dreamer. The real things of life have been always accomplished by the man with a dream. He sees far beyond his nose—far beyond the ordinary things of life—far beyond the human limitations of time, talent and strength.

Are you dreamin'? What about? It's useless to waste time on the things that have been done. It's wasteful to think about the things that are being done by others for this can only lead too often to envy.

Are you dreamin' about the impossible? Then just remember that with God all things are possible and that working with God then all things are possible for you. It has been proven over and over again that when a man dreams the impossible and lets God work through him the dreams will come true. Perhaps not the first time—for we learn by experience—but as surely as we put our trust in God the impossible will be accomplished.

As a general rule our trouble is that our dreams are ordered up in the small sizes. Our faith is small—so our dreams are small. This is the real tragedy in our life. How about measuring your dreams?

Some of us are dreaming about the day when there will be no dearth of missionary recruits. We are dreaming about the time when each church will be supporting missionaries to the proportion of one missionary for each ten wage earning members of the local church. Impossible? Absolutely not! Is it being done? It is! How about enlarging your dream?

Some of us are dreaming about the day when the church will be aroused to the insidious, devilish, faith-shattering work of the liquor traffic. An aroused church can and will fight to the death this terrible enemy of the home, school and country. If the church will not accept its responsibility in this matter then the church will slowly but surely be sapped of its vitality by a liquor drinking people.

Some of us are dreaming about the day when the church will be filled with ministers and laity filled to overflowing with the presence of the Holy Spirit. Not until each and every member of the church has opened his heart to the Holy Spirit and let Him have His way in the life can God's will be fully done. Too big a dream? Every member and active member means every member empowered with the Holy Spirit. It's a big dream, but not an impossible one. Will you help us dream?

Some of us are dreaming about the day when the whole strength of the church will be thrown into the whole program of the church. The first message sent by telegraph was "What hath God wrought?" The whole world would say "What hath God wrought?" when this dream came true.

The scoffer will say that dreams are worthless. The cynic will say that the dreamer is a waster of time. The narrow minded of the church will refuse to dream and will continue on in their same old rut.

But still the dreamers go on and on and on. In one of the cathedrals of England there is a beautiful window through which the sunlight streams. It displays the facts and personalities of the Old and New Testament and the glorious truths and doctrines of the Christian revelation. This window was fabricated by the artist out of broken bits of glass which another artist had discarded. He dreamed!

—Johnstown, Pennsylvania.

Spiritual Meditations

Rev. Dyoll Belote

YOUR CALLING AND MINE

"And he gave some, apostles; and some, prophets; and some, evangelists; and some pastors and teachers; For the perfecting of the saints, for the work of the ministry, for the edifying of the body of Christ: . . ."

IN PAST YEARS this writer has sensed among some a seeming air of condescension toward others who may not be engaged in the same type of activity, secular or sacred. I have wondered often if such have ever read that illustration used by St. Paul in his first epistle to the Corinthians, where in chapter 12 he says (vs. 14) "For the body is not one member, but many." And then in verses 15 to 19 he makes the argument concerning the various members making light of each other, and then ends up in verse 20 with the conclusion: But now are they many members, yet but one body." Then in the closing verses of the chapter Paul makes the application to the relative importance of the various callings in the church, and ends up by calling attention in chapter 13, to the "more excellent way."

It has always appealed to this writer that we need to exercise care in our evaluation of the relative importance of what we are doing in comparison to the work of others. It is true that men are not all equally endowed with abilities, mental or spiritual. And we remember that the Master gave the parable setting forth this unequal distribution of endowment, when in the Parable of the Talents, He set forth this fact in the explanation of the difference in these words, "To each according to his several ability." But Jesus did not commend the five or two talented men because they were smarter than the one-talented man, nor yet condemn the latter because of his lesser ability, but the rewards were distributed according to faithfulness.

And just here I should like to remark that the very construction of the story suggests that we are not going to be rated for rewards because we were listed here as belonging to any superior order, but only as it can be said of us that we have fulfilled our ministry, whether prophet, apostle or teacher.

—Uniontown, Pennsylvania.

Business Manager's Corner

(Continued from page 3)

|                                     |      |
|-------------------------------------|------|
| Miscellaneous .....                 | 5.00 |
| Carleton, Nebr., Church as follows: |      |
| Miss Alice Baker .....              | 1.00 |
| Mr. and Mrs. M. K. Brinegar .....   | 2.00 |
| Mr. and Mrs. Lauren Lietsch .....   | 5.00 |
| Mrs. Harry Lioings .....            | 1.00 |
| R. A. Lichty .....                  | 2.50 |
| Mrs. Ella Miller .....              | 2.00 |
| Mrs. Ivan Miller .....              | 1.00 |
| Rev. and Mrs. Oberholtzer .....     | 5.00 |
| Mrs. Anna Rachow and Alta .....     | 2.00 |
| Miscellaneous .....                 | 4.21 |

(More Reports to follow). See Press Fund Totals on page 16.

Interesting Items

(Continued from Page 2)

The Waterloo Laymen listened to Rabbi Sholem Epstein on February 24. He spoke on the Palestine situation.

Nappanee, Indiana. Brother E. M. Riddle, Missionary and College Field Secretary, was a recent speaker at the Nappanee Church. Nappanee boasts fourteen students in attendance at the College this year.

We note that Brother and Sister U. J. Shively were the donors of beautiful floor coverings for the new Nappanee Church.

St. James, Maryland. We are in receipt of the fine program booklet which the St. James Laymen have issued. They really have a fine program outlined. James Norris is the President and Donald Bowers is the Secretary.

Brother Bates says, "We are indebted to Brother John G. Smith of Hagerstown for a complete set of new lights to be used in our church building. It was through the kindness of Brother Smith that the present lights were installed several years ago."

Elkhart, Indiana. We note from Brother King's bulletin that Brother Wayne Swihart, pastor of the Burlington

Church, and Chairman of the Indiana Sunday School Board, was a recent speaker in the Elkhart Church.

Milledgeville, Illinois. Brother D. C. White announces that by recent action of the church it was decided to re-decorate the church and that a special offering was received for that purpose on Sunday, February 8.

The annual World's Day of Prayer services were held in the Milledgeville Church on Friday afternoon, February 13.

On Sunday, February 8, the new chimes of the Milledgeville Church were dedicated at the morning hour.

Brother White will hold his own evangelistic meeting, beginning March 14 and continuing for a period of two weeks. The Dutchtown brethren will join in these services and Rev. Klotz will be the song leader with Mr. Lowell Barnes directing the joint choir.

Washington, D. C. Brother Fairbanks informs us that the Building Fund offering which was received on Sunday, February 1, amounted to $1,008.00, and he adds this significant comment—"over the top."

Lanark, Illinois. The Milledgeville Brethren Church congregation were the guests of the Lanark Church on Sunday evening, February 15.

A Youth Valentine Banquet was held in the Lanark Church on Sunday evening, February 14. A fine program was rendered. The W. M. S. was in charge of the arrangements.

Brother McCartneysmith informs us that the Lanark Church has had thirty-two additions to the church during the past year. So add these to the number we have been reporting from time to time.

Mansfield, Ohio. Brother H. E. Eppley has completed arrangements for a week of pre-Easter meetings in the Mansfield Church. The Editor will have the privilege of bringing the messages each evening, except Saturday during the week. He will also speak at both services on Palm Sunday and at the Easter morning hour.

The Mansfield Church will observe Holy Communion on Easter Sunday evening.

APPRECIATION

"Appreciation is a necessary element in successful teaching. Let Mary know that you appreciate her efforts when she has studied her lesson faithfully. If Mary has a hard-working mother who has taken time to help her with the lesson, does gratitude rise up in your heart for your co-laborer, and do you hasten with willing feet and a glad heart to thank Mary's mother for her cooperation? How about appreciation in a teacher of an older class? Real appreciation is as sweet to the normal person as honey in the honeycomb. Do we ever stop to think of our Father's appreciation of the slightest efforts we make for his sake? The pupil who studies, who thinks deeply, who digs up treasure from the mine of God's Word; yes, any pupil who is responsive to the teachers suggestions and desires should awaken warm, rich appreciation in the teacher-heart. Appreciate, and you shall be appreciated."

Death hath nothing terrible in it, but what life hath made so.—Author unknown.

---

Laid to Rest

---

MILLER. John Wesley Miller, son of William and Lydia Miller, was born near Waterloo, Iowa, June 10, 1860 and departed this life December 13, 1947, at his home in Davenport, Nebraska, at the age of 87 years, 6 months and 3 days.

He was one of fourteen children, three of whom are still living. He grew to manhood near the place of his birth and on September 28, 1882 he was married to Cecelia E. Nedrow, to which union were born seven children, three of whom preceded him in death.

In early life he united with the Brethren Church in Waterloo, Iowa and throughout his long life was vitally interested in the cause of Christ. While homesteading in South Dakota he was superintendent of a Sunday school in the community where he lived. Moving to a farm near Carleton, Nebraska in 1891, he and his wife united with the Brethren Church in Carleton. They entered heartily into all the activities and interests of the church and continued faithful throughout their lives. Brother Miller served the church in various offices and was the honored senior deacon at the time of his death. His wife, who preceded him in death in 1944, was a respected and faithful deaconess. As long as health and strength permitted, brother Miller was a faithful attendant of his church and always a generous supporter. At the request of the family, the funeral services were held in the Lutheran Church in Davenport, the village where he had lived and near the cemetery in which his body was buried, and the sermon was preached by Rev. Henry Dumler, the pastor of the Lutheran Church, with the writer assisting in the services.

It was the writer's privilege to visit brother Miller in his home a few days before his death. His mind was keen and his memory good as he related many interesting experiences of the past. He showed particular interest in the affairs of the church and matters spiritual.

H. M. Oberholtzer.

---

WOLFE. Emma (Miller) Wolfe, widow of the late and well known and beloved J. Milo Wolfe, departed this life at the family home in Lathrop, California, on December 26, 1947, at the age of eighty years. She was a native of the state of Indiana. She was a resident of this area for about fifty-three years.

Until two weeks prior to her death she continued teaching her primary class in the Bible School of the Lathrop Brethren Church, of which church she was a life-long member and deaconess.

If all the people who came under her teaching of the Word of God in the Bible School and her modest, yet consistent influence for Christ in other ways, could give their appreciation, a sizeable volume would be required to contain the things that could be written, instead of the few words of this obituary. To many she was affectionately known as "Mother Wolfe." The loving ministry of her loved ones, graciously given, terminated only when she breathed her last.

Two sons survive, Wilbur of Lathrop, and Harold of Stockton, also five grandchildren, and four great grandchildren; two sisters, Mrs. Etta Wilson of Santa Cruz, California, and Mrs. Roger (Mollie) Darling of San Jose, California; and one brother, Henry Miller of Los Gatos, California, remain of her family.

We Brethren of Northern California as well as many who moved from this district, have lost a grand friend. Funeral services were held in Manteca, California, at Fry and Son's Funeral Parlors. Interment was made in Old East Union Cemetery. Many friends gathered to pay their last respects and to give sympathy to those bereft of their friend and neighbor. We unite our sympathies with the rest. Services by the writer.

J. Wesley Platt.

---

FETTERS. Charles Jefferson Feters, a member of the Loree, Indiana, Brethren Church, passed away at the home of a daughter, Mrs. Donald Black of Galveston, Indiana, on January 23, 1948, at the age of eighty-nine years.

Funeral services were held at the Thomas Funeral Home in Galveston, at 2:00 o'clock on January 25th, with the writer in charge. Burial was made in the Rankin Cemetery near Loree.

Mr. Feters was a retired farmer and was well known and respected by all who knew him. It was an oft repeated eulogy that he loved little children and little children loved him. Does a man need greater honor from this life?

Robert K. Higgins.

---

BURNS. On February 2, the body of Cpl. Paul L. Burns, who was killed in action in Belgium on Christmas day, 1944, arrived in Milledgeville, Illinois, under the usual military escort. Upon arrival the body was taken to the Milledgeville Brethren Church where private funeral services were held at 2:00 P. M., with the undersigned officiating, assisted by Dr. W. S. Bell. The stores of Milledgeville were closed in honor of the deceased from 1:30 to 3:00 on that day.

Cpl. Burns was born in Milledgeville on August 1, 1922, the son of Paul and Alma Glenn Burns. He was graduated from the Milledgeville High School in 1940, an outstanding student and athlete. He was serving with the famed 509th parachute infantry battalion at the time of his death.

Besides his parents he is survived by his grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Dave Glenn and Mr. and Mrs. Dan Burns of Milledgeville, besides many aunts, uncles and cousins.

Interment of the body was made in Bethel Cemetery at Milledgeville.

D. C. White.

---

MILLER. Word has come to our desk of the death of Rev. Elmer C. Miller, formerly of South Bend, but lately of Miami, Florida. Rev. Miller did considerable evangelistic work in the Brethren Church some years ago. His death occurred at Miami, Florida.

CHRISTIAN ENDEAVOR TOPIC

W. St. Clair Benshoff, Topic Editor

Topics copyrighted by the International Society of Christian Endeavor.
Used by permission.

Topic for March 14, 1948

"HOW CAN I GROW SPIRITUALLY?"

Scripture: Eph. 3:14-21; James 1:19-27

For The Leader

EVERY Christian should be interested in growing spiritually. If ever in our experience we feel we have reached the peak of Christian growth, right there we begin to rot. If we are in that state of contentment that we desire no further spiritual growth, we too are beginning to decay. To remain a real Christian, we must continue to grow. Spiritual growth is a vital part of the development of a well rounded Christian personality. There is a big difference between stagnated Christian contentment, and a vital, refreshing and active Christian life. We, tonight, must take a look at the sad state of affairs resulting from inactive Christian expression. We also must seek ways in which we can keep growing spiritually all the days of our lives.

DISCUSSION

1. WHAT CAUSES LACK OF GROWTH? Look at people who have not had enough to eat, or who have not had the proper kind of food. Note their starved, undernourished condition. We agree that had they had a little more food or the right kind, they would be healthy and strong. People even starve to death because they have not had enough to eat. Lack of food causes lack of growth. The world is deeply alarmed over the starvation facing multitudes of people. Would that we were just as much alarmed over the spiritual starvation facing the world's population.

2. SPIRITUAL STARVATION IN OUR CHURCHES. Perhaps it seems like a blind shot in the dark to insist that there is spiritual starvation in our churches today. Yet there is some grounds for the statement! Start a survey and see what percentage of your church members attend at least one service a month. Use your thinker and figure an estimate of the number of people in a church service who have their ears shut to the sermon, thus missing the benefits of the pastor's message. Also, observe the number of people who limit their spiritual instruction to what their Sunday School teacher gives them. (This point becomes important when you consider that your church is paying a preacher good money to prepare sermons, and then they don't hear those sermons.) Did you ever think of it in that way? Your minister is specially trained in the art of preaching and study, so that he might supply sermons which will meet your spiritual needs. It's to your benefit to hear God's message through the minister's message.

3. HOW DOES WORSHIP HELP US GROW SPIRITUALLY? The services of our Church are designed with a specific purpose in mind. A lot of preparation, time, prayer and effort on the part of the Pastor and others has gone into that service. They say that one service can take as much strength and energy from a pastor as another man will expend in eight hours of labor. (Only hard working ministers can fully appreciate the truthfulness of that statement.) Worship helps us grow spiritually when we put ourselves fully into the service. If you read the Sunday School paper, write notes to one another, laugh, chatter during church or wish your parents wouldn't insist on you staying for Church, you surely aren't going to grow spiritually. In worship we hear the Bible read, we join in prayer, we sing, we give, and we listen. We go away rejoicing because we have had spiritual nourishment. Thus we grow.

4. WHAT ABOUT PERSONAL BIBLE READING, PRAYER AND MEDITATION? Done in the correct way, private worship is rich food for our souls. But we must take the time for it. A chapter of the Bible read while choking down a piece of toast with a cup of cocoa, listening to the news broadcast or "good morning" programs on the radio, isn't going to help us grow spiritually. It takes time to grow spiritually, but it is time well spent. Take the time each day for a period of private devotion. Your life will be a transformed life.

5. REACHING OUT. One of the best ways to grow spiritually is to reach out into the lives of others. James tells us to "be doers of the word, and not hearers only." All the spiritual knowledge in the world will avail us nothing if through it all we have not helped another soul find a closer walk with Christ. A real test of spiritual growth is seeing those in need, and giving to them the necessary help in the name of Christ. For instance, your Church service will mean a lot more to you if you stop and bring a neighbor along with you. Christian witnessing in times of opposition will cause you to grow spiritually in a wonderful way. Standing for the right when others are giving themselves over to wrong, will make of you a stronger Christian. By the help of Christ you can grow to be a truly strong Christian, being a credit to your God and your Church.

QUESTIONS

1. What is the first condition of spiritual growth? (John 3:1-6.)
2. How is true worship accomplished? That is, in what way must we worship? (John 4:24.)
3. Name some other ways in which we can worship God Eph. 5:19, 20.)
4. Cite some instances of your own personal life in which you feel helped you to grow spiritually.
5. What is the advantage of a "deep spiritual life?"
6. What are some of the fruits of the spiritual life? (Gal. 5:22-24; Eph. 5:9.)

HOW TO TITHE

John D. Rockefeller is said to have once made the following statement concerning the habit of tithing: "I never would have been able to tithe the first million dollars I ever made if I had not tithed my first salary, which was $1.50 a week."—Watchman Examiner.

"Am I not destroying my enemies," Lincoln gently replied, "when I make them my friends?"—The Spray.

Prayer Meeting Topic

Contributed by Rev. C. Y. Gilmer

SIN AND ITS CURE

"The worst of all diseases
Is light compared with sin;
On every part it seizes,
But rages most within.
'Tis palsy, plague, and fever,
And madness all combined;
And none but a believer
The least relief can find.

"From men great skill professing
I thought a cure to gain,
But this proved more distressing,
And added to my pain.
Some said that nothing ailed me,
Some gave me up for lost;
Thus every refuge failed me,
And all my hopes were crossed.

"At length the Great Physician—
How matchless is His grace,
Accepted my petition,
And undertook my case.
First gave me sight to view Him—
For sin my eyes had sealed,
Then bid me look unto Him;
I looked and I was healed!"
—Taken from Log of the Good Ship Grace.

SIN AND SALVATION

Scripture: John 3:14-21

Hymns of Salvation

Leader's Petition

Seed Thought Provokers:

EVERYONE is born in sin (Psa. 51:5). Sin is in a baby's nature from birth displaying temper, disobedience and selfishness (Psa. 58:3). Unsav- ed people are dead in sin (Eph. 2:1). They are spiritually dead while physically alive. When the Spirit of God is absent from a human soul, it is dead (Luke 15:32). Until we believingly act upon God's Word, we are dead (John 5:24). Until we trust Christ's crucified body and shed blood for the remission of sin, we are dead (John 6:53). Until the sinner is awakened from his lost condition and comes to Christ for forgiveness and salvation, he is dead (Eph. 5:14). As long as one lives only for worldly pleasure, he is dead (1 Tim. 5:6). Until one is converted, he is dead (James 5:20). If one does not love real Christians, he is in a state of death (1 John 3:14). Many church members have "a name to live," but are dead (Rev. 3:1).

Before conversion one is without God (Eph. 2:12). His unforgiven sins force God to take sides against him (John 3:36; Rom. 1:18; Rom. 2:5). All are commanded to repent (Acts 17:30). God is a terror to the unsaved (2 Cor. 5:11). He is fearful for the unsaved to meet (Heb. 10:31). God is a consuming fire (Heb. 12:28, 29). If God be against those who will not repent, who can be for them in the day that He will judge them?

The unsaved are condemned already (John 3:18). The lost are already under condemnation, awaiting the execution of their just sentence (Rev. 20:15). The impenitent are facing physical death alone, and Hell (Luke 6:22, 23). Those who repent do not fear death (Psa. 23:4; 2 Cor. 5:8). To die unsaved is to face the judgment (Heb. 9:27; Rev. 20:12; Luke 12:2, 3). Those born again have had their sins judged in the body of Christ on the cross and shall not come into judgment (John 5:24; Rom. 8:1; 1 John 1:9). Those who die in their sins will meet every- one of them in the judgment (John 8:24).

The unsaved will be resurrected and brought into judgment and then spend eternity in a lake of fire (Rev. 15:20; 21:8; Matt. 3:12; 25:46; Mark 3:29). Luke 16:19-31 tells of torments in flames that are never relieved, where cries for mercy and prayers for loved ones are never heard.

"What must I do to be saved?" 1. Seek the Lord (Isa. 55:6; Acts 17:27). 2. Call on the name of the Lord (Acts 2:21). 3. Repent (Luke 13:3; Acts 2:38). 4. Have faith in Christ and the Gospel (Mark 1:15; 16:16). 5. Confess sin and confess Christ (Acts 26:20; Matt. 10:32-33). 6. Obey Him (Heb. 5:9; Acts 5:32).

When saved, grow in grace by daily prayer and Bible reading. Attend divine worship regularly and be a winner of souls. Follow 1 John 2:28.

COMMENTS

On The Sunday School Lesson

by The Editor

Lesson for March 14, 1948

THE DIGNITY OF CHRISTIAN CHARACTER (Temperance Lesson)

Lesson: Ephesians 5:6-21

OUR LESSON for today is labeled a Temperance Lesson. At first glance it would seem that one might have a difficult time applying it to a temperance thought. Probably this is because we have so generally thought of temperance as being applied solely to the drinking of intoxicating beverages. But temperance has a deeper meaning than that. Let us see if we can find it!

In all probability we have never thought of disobedience as entering into this category. But we find Paul saying in verse 7, "Be ye not partakers with them" (children of disobedience). The fact is that disobedience to the laws which God has laid down sends us on the first steps to intemperance in any avenue of life, whether it be drinking, eating, or what not.

Now to verse 11—"And have no fellowship with the unfruitful works of darkness." Most intemperance in its activity begins with the fellowshiping with those who walk in darkness. When the Light of Christ shines in, it casts such a shadow that no one, who counts himself anything at all, is willing to stand in it to be the medium by which the shadow is cast.

In verse 18 we find the reference to what we feel is the thought that will come to most minds when we talk about temperance—"And be not drunk with wine, wherein is excess." The accent should be placed on that word "excess," for that is what the drinking of wine invariably leads to.

We have, therefore, these three ideas: disobedience to God's laws; the fellowshiping with the evil doers of darkness; and the drinking to excess that furnishes the downward pull that makes the lives of men and women, boys and girls, most miserable.

On the other hand we, as Christians, ought to "prove what is acceptable unto the Lord" (verse 10); "awake from our sleeping condition" (verse 14); "walk circumspectly"—that is, to be looking all around us as we walk in order that we may be able to see the dangers that surround us, and thus be in a position to combat these things—(verse 15); "redeem the time"—or as another translation has it, to "buy up every opportunity"—(verse 16); "sing unto the Lord"—spiritual songs instead of the ribald songs of drunkenness—(verse 18); give thanks unto God for all things"—especially that He has kept us from yielding to the temptations that come to us—(verse 20); and, "submit ourselves one to another in the fear of God"—counting our influence as a thing not to be despised—(verse 21).

One of the most important things to remember is that we must be very careful as to the kind of company we keep, for the old adage, "Birds of a feather flock together" is all too true, with humans as well as birds.

Travel Flashes

Dr. Charles A. Bame

To The Sick

DOUBTLESS one of the severest tests of modern

Christianity is its failure to do the will of God toward the sick. Our greatest failure with the modern set-up is neglect to "visit the sick, the fatherless and the widows." James 1:27. It is glaring disobedience and unforgivable failure. The "sick and the afflicted; the poor and the needy; the distressed and the oppressed" were seldom forgotten in the prayers of the ancestral fathers of the church, but their fulfillment of "visitation" was not so apparent. Their prayers were often repetitious as rotely as that of the parrot; so much so that the prayers of a certain talented (in rhetoric) preacher became the subject of jest as they were rehearsed by boys on the street, in derision. Many of them were "set" prayers, made so by lack of vocabulary and also of really learning by the school of experience the unused power of prayer.

But any kind of prayers are so much better than no prayers that I would be the last one to criticize any kind of prayers. I once heard a newly converted schoolboy pray, "Let the Holy Spirit splash all around and over us"; but God knew, since He interprets even a "groan." I guess He has much to do for all.

So do we, perhaps. I am sure that we lack much in preaching, teaching and even in practicing the healing we should realize and experience which would make us at once a church known for power in prayer; and thus a witness to the world and uninformed churchmen that the "effectual prayer of a righteous man availeth much in its working." James 5:16. How did James know all this before the days of our knowledge of "the workings of the mind?" There is a sufficient answer—"Holy men of old spake as they were moved by the Holy Spirit." James was one of them. And that is why so little advancement in healing by doctors and others is made.

Anointing and Praying

Yesterday I drove forty-five miles to anoint a suffering brother. He is not too old to yet give years of service if it is the Lord's will for him to get well. He is so sure of a "better land" that he is not crying for recovery; but he at least, seeks surcease from suffering. But if it be the will of God that he recover, we shall add another to our assurances of answered prayer. In one way it was unusual. Having no resident pastor there, we sought and secured the assistance of a Church of the Brethren pastor who gladly came and gave assurance of our oneness in belief and practice. We came away with the blessings of both the pastor and of the Lord for mercies apart from the healing we sought. We tried to do His will and "he that willeth to do His will shall know of the doctrine." John 7:17.

Pray Without Ceasing

"Pray without ceasing" is the admonition of one of the greatest of the Apostles. I Thess. 5:16. In the classic on praying for the sick, James says, "Is any sick among you, let him pray. Is any afflicted, let them call for the elders of the church and let them pray over him." Much prayer, but moreover, "anointing them with oil in the name of the Lord" is yet commanded. James 5. Wonderful promises if we do. Read them. Practice them. Did you ever pray with or for a sick person? You are happy if you have.

James, the Psychologist

Many years ahead of modern psychiatry and psychology, James knew all about it and directed the whole process of healing. Preceding all the admonition of praying and anointing with oil he gave the entire psychological background without which, I hope, I shall never again anoint another believer. James 5:7-12. Mary G. Baker Eddy must have based her entire philosophy of healing on the fifth chapter of James. Note the admonitions: "grudge not"; "be patient"; "swear not." All that means calmness, surrender, the commitment of all to God. The virtue of healing need not be condemned by whomsoever it is achieved. Mrs. Eddy had something; but not all: She omits the tangible "oil."

(To be continued)

Discretion of speech is more than eloquence; and to speak agreeably to him with whom we deal is more than to speak in good words, or in good order.—Bason.

Ashland College News Letter

By Arthur Petit

AS YOU READ this, somewhere on the high seas between New York and the Argentine is Nellie Eller Commisso, Ashland College co-ed and member of the Milledgeville Brethren Church. Mrs. Commisso will reside with the Romanenghi family during her stay in South America.

The opportunity to visit South America came when Mr. Romanenghi wrote to Ashland College several years ago and suggested an exchange of students between Ashland and the University of Cordoba. After all the preliminary arrangements had been made, Miss Rita Guzman arrived on the Ashland Campus. She is now assisting in the Spanish Department.

Mrs. Commisso came to Ashland College from Milledgeville in 1945 and has completed five semesters of work. She will return to the campus in October and will start back into college work in English after being in classes taught in Spanish for about seven months. She will study primarily in the Humanities while at Cordoba. She will also instruct in conversational English.

The exchange student came to Ashland as Nellie Eller and in September was married to Joe James Commisso, college sophomore and captain-elect of the football team for 1948. He accompanied her to South America where he will remain until August when he will return for the football season. He will study physical education methods and health conditions around Cordoba.

The faculty of Ashland College and a number of friends in the Brethren Church have made it possible for Mrs. Commisso to make this trip by their financial help.

Doubtless the young people will be reported frequently in the Evangelist.

It's good to have money and the things money can buy, but it's good, too, to check up once in a while and make sure you haven't lost the things money can't buy. —George H. Lorimer.

News From Our Churches

MEXICO, INDIANA

On January 29, sixty-seven members and friends of the Mexico Brethren Church enjoyed a Fellowship Supper and Birthday Month Program in the Church basement.

The Southern District Brethren Youth held their Quarterly Meeting in the Mexico Church on Monday evening, January 26. The Mexico young people won the banner for attendance, on a percentage basis. Mrs. E. R. Carrithers of Peru, Indiana, gave a fine travel talk on their trip to Panama.

The Mexico Brethren Church is in the process of completely redecorating the building interior, with the pastor, janitor and the men of the church doing the greater part of the labor. We hope to finish the main auditorium by the Easter Season.

Robert K. Higgins, pastor.

FIRST BRETHREN CHURCH, WARSAW, INDIANA

Have been asked by one of our faithful "guards," why no report from Warsaw had appeared in the Evangelist lately, and so must say it is not because there is nothing to report, but that somehow, much that is being attempted is difficult to put into a readable report.

Rev. W. B. Brant, wife and daughter, Mary Ann came to the field in October. Rev. Brant held the Center Chapel revival which has been reported and began his get acquainted efforts immediately. Homecoming and Rally Day were observed this month. The Choir has been reorganized and thus appropriate musical numbers helped in Thanksgiving services and during the Christmas season a Children's Christmas program was given on Sunday morning, complete with Santa serving the children and a very delightful and instructive adult program was given in the evening.

The Sunday morning worship services have been having fair attendance and the majority of those coming for church, remain for Sunday School. With the pastor leading, a lot of "visiting" is being done, an approach which was used and commended by Jesus.

A watch meeting New Years Eve and a family fellowship party are two of the events, shared by old and young, which were successful in bridging all age gaps and uniting fun and fellowship with spiritual uplift. One Sunday Rev. Brant gave us a surprise by exchanging pulpits with Rev. Bert Hodge of the North Manchester Church. Such exchanges might bring our Brethren churches into a closer fellowship.

The Youth Fellowship, though few in number, meet regularly and a Brotherhood has been organized. Much planning is being done to arouse and hold the interest of the younger groups. The Senior and Junior Sisterhoods are working toward their goals; the Laymen are active, and the W. M. S., as per usual, are going strong.

It would be like getting up from the dinner table and leaving a very delicious dessert, if this report were closed without telling about the Thursday night, prayer, praise and Bible study. Under the leadership of the pastor, the Book of James has been read, reviewed and those who were a part of the study group, could not help but feel the stronger urge for Christian living taught by James. Right now we are deep in the faith as taught by Paul, in the Book of Romans.

Plans for Bible Institute, pre-Easter services, revival and other activities are started and a matter of prayer, and will be carried forward unless they are halted by the ban which it has been necessary to place on assemblages in this area. A death caused by the dread disease black smallpox has caused all meetings to be called off and it is to be hoped the prayers of the Christian people of the vicinity will be lifted up in their homes. Much more might be added, but this will give to those interested, a glimpse of the leading of the Word at Warsaw.

Jennie Bennett, Church Correspondent.

LOUISVILLE, OHIO, FIRST BRETHREN CHURCH

Having been at Louisville, as pastor, almost sixteen months, perhaps it is nearly time for a general report of the work here. It has been pleasant, and the people friendly and responsive. But of course, we are only too aware of the fact that much more needs to be accomplished.

During the period of time we have added 18 members and have three others waiting for admission, now, into the fellowship of the Church. In the same period we have had a number of people leave us, too, by death or by letter.

One of the chief reasons why our work here has been so pleasant is due to the cooperative attitude on the part of the various organizations of the church. We have two active Women's Missionary Societies, two Sisterhood Organizations, a Laymen's Organization second to none in the district, and a newly organized Boys' Brotherhood. In addition, our Junior Christian Endeavor and our Young People's Organizations fill very important places among our younger people. From our Youth Group came six or seven "Crusaders" who helped in Vacation Bible Schools, and various other activities in at least four states last summer. And because of their enthusiasm, we expect an even larger number to enter this work in the coming year.

With the formation of the Louisville Ministerium, we have had several cooperative community programs. Among these have been Good Friday and Thanksgiving services, as well as a Community Daily Vacation School which last year had an enrollment of more than 225. Through this organization, also, a township religious survey was conducted in June. We hope, for another project, to bring the liquor question out into the open for a vote in the next election, as well.

During the last year we had the privilege of being hosts to the District Laymen at a Ham Banquet, and to the District Youth Rally. Again we are to have both of these groups with us—the Young People within the next several weeks. The theme of the Rally this time will be "Missions," and we are hoping to have Rev. Sidney Correll of Dayton, the Editor of the Missionary Digest, as our speaker. We have also booked the Missionary Film, "Beyond Our Own," for the occasion.

We have made a number of improvements during this period. At Christmas, 1946, we installed a Schulmerich Electric Tower Music System, and then in June of last year, in order to make our music more complete, we installed a set of Maas Cathedral Chimes. These additions have been enjoyed not only by our own people, but by the entire community, for they can be heard throughout the town.

Another addition to the church which has been very much appreciated is the painting presented by the Bratten Family as a memorial to Jacob Bratten. This painting is a copy of Hofmann's "Christ in Gethsemane." It was painted by Chester Bratten, an artist well known in art circles throughout the country. Needless to say, it has been a source of inspiration to all who have seen it, and it adds greatly, and constantly, to a worshipful attitude in our sanctuary.

One other improvement to which we all look forward is the installation of a reconversion gas burner for heating our church. Due to the ban placed upon new installations by the East Ohio Gas Company, we have not yet been able to make this change, but as soon as conditions permit it, the new burner is to be added.

The pastor held a two-weeks revival in late October and early November. This, too, was a cooperative effort in the respect that two of the other churches of town held meetings simultaneously, with their pastors doing the preaching. While only two made confessions as a direct result of these meetings in our own church, the response on the part of the people was excellent. In spite of the other services, our average attendance was just under 100 for each of the 16 services. And since we feel that this series has been only a beginning of bigger things, we have scheduled another two-weeks' series to begin June 20. The evangelist for this series is a brother of the pastor, Rev. S. E. Byler of Okalona, Mississippi.

In closing, we offer any of you an earnest invitation to join with us in worship if ever you happen to be in our area on a Lord's Day. Our prayers continue to ascend for the work of the brotherhood, and we trust that we may be remembered by many as well, that we remain faithful and ever alert to our opportunities and privileges as Christians.

John T. Byler, Pastor.

The New Press Fund

|                                       |             |
|---------------------------------------|-------------|
| GOAL—Not less than .....              | $15,000.00 |
| Cash and pledges .....                | $9,701.06  |
| Yet to be raised, not less than ..... | $5,298.94  |

The BRETHREN & EVANGELIST

HOLY BIBLE

Official Organ of the Brethren Church

Here is an Inner View of Another of Our Fine Rural Churches

This is of the Glenford, Ohio, Brethren Church of which Brother Glenn Shank is Pastor

THE BRETHREN EVANGELIST

Published weekly, except the last week in August and
the last week in December.

THE BRETHREN PUBLISHING COMPANY

Ashland, Ohio

PRUDENTIAL COMMITTEE

J. E. Stookey, President N. G. Kimmel, Vice-President
J. G. Dodds, Secretary-Treasurer

EDITOR OF PUBLICATIONS—F. C. Vanator

BUSINESS MANAGER—G. S. Baer

EDITOR MISSIONARY NUMBER—E. M. Riddle

CONTRIBUTING EDITORS

Dr. Charles A. Bame Rev. Dyoll Belote

DEPARTMENTAL EDITORS

Dr. C. F. Yoder, Brethren Doctrine
Rev. N. V. Leatherman, Practical Church Problems
Rev. J. G. Dodds, National Goals
Dr. R. F. Porte, Brethren Church History

PLEASE REMEMBER: All material for publication in the Evangelist must be in the hands of the editor at least three weeks before the desired date of publication, to assure same to appear in desired issue. This refers to announcements particularly.

TERMS OF SUBSCRIPTION: $1.50 per year in advance.
CHANGE OF ADDRESS: In ordering change of address always give both old and new addresses.

REMITTANCES: Send all money, business communications, and contributed articles to:

THE BRETHREN PUBLISHING COMPANY
ASHLAND, OHIO

Entered as second class matter at Ashland, Ohio. Accepted for mailing at special rate, section 1103, act of October 3, 1917. Authorized September 3, 1928.

INTERESTING ITEMS

Louisville, Ohio. A note from Brother John Byler, pastor of the Louisville Church, tells of his return to his charge after having spent a short time in our Lost Creek Kentucky, field in a Bible conference. Brother Byler spoke four times while there. He reports a fine conference.

We note from the Louisville bulletin that there has been a fine increase in their Mid-week prayer service attendance. Such increase is always bound to result in increased spiritual activity.

Carleton, Nebraska. We learn that Brother Cecil H. Johnson, pastor of the Falls City, Nebraska, Brethren Church recently held a ten-day meeting at the Carleton, Nebraska, Church.

Falls City, Nebraska. Brother Cecil Johnson, pastor of the Falls City, Nebraska, Church informs us that he is holding a week of pre-Easter services in his church.

Smithville, Ohio. The Smithville Church begins a two week period of evangelism on Sunday, March 14 and closing on Sunday, March 28. Brother Vernon D. Grisso, the pastor, will be his own evangelist, but has secured the services of Rev. Miles Strine, a student at Ashland College, and pastor of the Red Haw, Ohio, E. U. B. Church, as song director.

We note that "A Night of Fellowship" was held in the Smithville Church on Wednesday evening, February 25. Brother Charles Munson, National Youth Director, elect, was the guest speaker of the evening.

From Mexico, Indiana to California. The editor received a card from Brother C. C. Grisso of Mexico, in which he states that "Mrs. Grisso and myself are leaving for California tomorrow, (February 29) for six weeks of evangelism and a four-day Conference with the Northern California District, and with Brethren Platt and Ingraham. We ask the prayers of our great Evangelist family in this effort. Will report our labors as we advance." Let us remember Brother Grisso in this work.

St. James, Maryland. Word from Brother Henry Bates, pastor at St. James, says that the work is progressing nicely on the repair of their church following the fire which they recently experienced, and that they hope soon to be back on regular schedule of all services in the church.

A week of special pre-Easter evangelistic services is planned in the St. James Church with Brother Bates being his own evangelist.

Mexico, Indiana. Brother Robert Higgins, pastor of the Mexico Church, reports that the pews and woodwork of the church has taken on a "New Look" because the congregation got together and made it so by many hands making the work light.

Happy Birthday. We just learned that our old friend, Dr. I. D. Bowman, who now resides at Howe, Indiana, had a birthday on March 7, at which time he celebrated his eighty-sixth year. We add our congratulations.

Pittsburgh, Pennsylvania. We note that Brother Harold Garland was the guest speaker at the Pittsburgh church on Sunday evening, March 7. Brother Garland is the pastor of the Valley and Mt. Pleasant Brethren Churches.

Nappanee, Indiana. Brother J. M. Bowman announces that some more fine gifts have been given for the new church at Nappanee: Large stained glass window—donated by Mr. and Mrs. Virgil Stuckman—$1,000.00; Communion Service—donated by the Deacons and Deaconesses—$80.00; Hymnals—250—donated by Mr. and Mrs. Cal Lehman and Mr. and Mrs. Lonnie Farmwald.

Milledgeville, Illinois. Brother D. C. White announces that the Milledgeville Church is host to the Central District "Spring Camp" from Friday evening, March 12 until noon on Sunday, March 14.

Another Change in Pastorates. We learn from Brother Ankrum's Masontown bulletin that Brother Dyoll Belote, who has been pastor of the Highland-Uniontown, Pennsylvania, circuit for the past seven years has accepted a call to the Linwood, Maryland, charge, same to be effective April 1st. Brother Ankrum was a former pastor of the Linwood church.

Masontown, Pennsylvania. We note that Rev. W. C.
(Continued on Page 10)

The Editor Thinks Aloud

Fred C. Vanator

"EXPERTS"

WE HAVE all heard that facetious definition of an Expert as "a common ordinary man a spurt away from home." But a definition of the word from the dictionary gives us a clear statement of its meaning. Here is what the dictionary says, "Expert—one who has special skill or experience in some branch of knowledge; a specialist."

Of course the thought of "expert" coming up at this particular time had to come from some source, and that source came with watching, from time to time, the man who came to the Publishing House to supervise the erection of our New Press. It came in hundreds of pieces which were unpacked and laid out all over the place. We wondered how they would ever get these pieces in their proper places. But under the eye and hand of this "expert" erector, the press gradually took form and now, as I sit at my desk, I can hear the click of impression after impression as the first form rolls from the press at the rate of nearly 2,000 per hour of continuous production, as it is set now. Every disquieting, strange noise is immediately checked by this "expert." And he "knows" and through his "special skill and experience" he is able to make the proper adjustments. Now as I looked and marveled at this "expert"

It set me to thinking!

What is there to hinder every Christian from being an "expert" in his Christian life—to be skilled in the Word of God, with ability to think and act decisively in critical times, because of his knowledge of that Word? Why should not the experience of Christian living be a form or pattern whereby we are able to solve problems which have to do with spiritual questions? Why should not the real Christian "be ready always to give an answer to every man that asketh a reason of the hope that is in you with meekness and fear . . . that they may be ashamed that falsely accuse your good conversation (manner of living) in Christ?" (I Peter 3:15-16). John was constantly saying, "I know." Luke says he "had perfect understanding of all things from the very first," and that he wrote to Theophilus that he "might know the certainty of those things wherein he was instructed."

Each Christian has an opportunity to become an "expert" in his own field, in some particular branch of service for God. He may not know it all, but he can know enough to be skilled in some definite phase of the work—whether it be speaking it, interpreting it, singing it, or just living it.

Think it over!

"Mama," said a bright little girl who had been savagely censured by her mother for a show of ill-temper, "why do you call it 'cross' when it's me, and 'nervous' when it's you?" How about this, mothers?

Business Manager's Corner

George S. Baer

Bible Class Quarterly First Run on the New Press

WE ARE ALL delighted with the new press that is installed and running. The Adult Bible Class Quarterly was the first form on, and from now on it will be steady operation. Thank you all, again we say, for helping to make it possible. And let us all thank our Heavenly Father for bringing to pass so soon the object of our prayers. May the Spirit of God cause us to work together perseveringly until the whole project has been completed and all equipment paid for.

More Rags Needed

Our supply of rags is getting low, and we are going to need more, now that the new press is in operation. The ladies have been very good to us thus far. We have had to buy no rags. That means a big saving. Individuals, Ladies Sunday school classes or Missionary or Sisterhood Societies are invited to send in their accumulation of rags. No woolen goods nor ladies hose will do. Any cotton goods that will do for dish cloths will serve our purpose. Thanks.

Send Delayed Offerings as Soon as Possible

Some churches and individuals have not yet sent in their Publication Day Offerings. Sometimes local circumstances prevent taking offerings on the proper date, but we will appreciate receiving them as soon as possible. Let's have an offering from every church, and we want every church to have a record that it can be proud of before the Lord.

Evangelist Subscriptions

Keep new subscriptions coming and keep the old ones renewed. We have been compelled to take off some subscribers that are behind in payment because of postal regulations. If we have made any mistake, please notify us and correction will be made. Further report of 100% churches will be made soon. Let others push for the goal.

Publication Day Offering Reports

|                                                  |         |
|--------------------------------------------------|---------|
| Mrs. Henry Grove, Burr Oak, Mich. ....           | $ 3.50 |
| Mr. and Mrs. Hamilton Bowser, Kittanning, Pa. .. | 5.00    |
| F. S. Beeghley, Ventura, Calif. ....             | 25.00   |
| Church Offering, Akron, Ohio (Additional) .....  | 25.00   |
| Brush Valley Church, Penna. ....                 | 14.50   |
| Canton, Ohio, Church Offering .....              | 46.50   |
| Cerro Gordo, Ill.—as follows:                    |         |
| Mr. and Mrs. Ed. Hess, ....                      | 2.00    |
| Mr. and Mrs. Chas Snoke & Family .....           | 2.00    |
| Mrs. Amanda Vulgarrett .....                     | .50     |
| Mrs. Lenora Snoke .....                          | 1.00    |
| Conemaugh, Pa., as follows:                      |         |
| Mrs. Annie Rorabaugh .....                       | 1.00    |
| Mr. and Mrs. John Leidy .....                    | 2.00    |
| Mr. and Mrs. Walter C. Wertz .....               | 15.00   |
| Mrs. Julia Wertz .....                           | 3.00    |

(Continued on Page 11)

The Voice of Our Leaders -- Past and Present

(From the Brethren Evangelist—May 28, 1902)

The Eucharist

By B. C. Moomaw

THAT THE Eucharist is in part, or wholly symbolical is held by all Protestant denominations. The Roman Catholic church and also the Greek church hold the doctrine of Transubstantiation, or the miraculous change of the bread and wine into the real body and real blood of Christ, rejecting all figurative or symbolic interpretation of the ordinance. As this view was manifestly contrary to the Lord's own words, (John 6:52-63) and to every reasonable principle of exegesis, and as it had been for ages the open door of admittance for the grossest abuses, and the worst spiritual tyranny, the Reformers of course, rejected it and turned directly to the Scriptures for a more rational interpretation of the doctrine.

It was not to be expected, however, that the first effort should result in complete emancipation from ages of terror, hence we find traces of the old heresy, a sort of sublimated transubstantiation in the first dissenting, or Lutheran creed. In the language of that confession, the bread and wine do not become in themselves the real corporeal body and blood of Christ, but "that body and blood are received in, with and under the bread and wine of the sacrament." Or, as a theologian of that school, (Von Burger) explains, since our Lord said, "Take, eat, drink, this is my body, my blood," his body and blood are really and truly present, and are distributed and received. This reception is by the mouth, but at the same time spiritually, because the body and blood of Christ is a spiritual heavenly food, which is not assimilated by the body as earthly food would be.

While this was a great improvement upon the Roman Catholic view, it was not destined to become the accepted and final deliverance of the Reformation on that subject. That dignity was reserved for the Helvetic Confession, which, with slight modifications, represents the position, the final settlement of faith, of the great Protestant body. The article in the first Helvetic Confession reads as follows: "The bread and wine of the Supper are holy, truly symbolism through which the Lord offers and presents the true communion of the body and blood of Christ for the feeding and nourishing of the spiritual and eternal life."

The statement of the doctrine of the Eucharist in the Westminster Confession of faith, one hundred and eleven years after, reads as follows: "The Lord's Supper is to be observed for the perpetual remembrance of the sacrifice of himself in his death, and the sealing of all benefits thereof with true believers, their spiritual growth in him, their further engagement in, and to all duties which they owe to him: and to be a bond and pledge of their communion with him and with each other, as members of his mystical body. Worthy believers do inwardly by faith, really and indeed, yet not carnally and corporally, but spiritually receive and feed upon Christ crucified, and all the benefits of his death.

In the Shorter Catechism of that confession we have the following: "What is the Lord's Supper? A Sacrament wherein by the giving and receiving of bread and wine, according to Christ's appointment, his death is shown forth, and the worthy receivers are, not after a corporeal and carnal banner, but by faith, made partakers of his body and blood, with all its benefits, to their spiritual nourishment and growth in grace."

The Society of Friends discard the outward symbols, and teach "the communion of the body and blood of Christ is inward and spiritual, which is the participation of his flesh and blood, by which the inward man is daily nourished in the hearts of those in whom Christ dwells."

In our view there is, in the Eucharist, perhaps less of mystery, less of the supernatural than in any of these confessions; except so far as the communication of the new life to the soul, and the nourishing of that new life by proper spiritual food, may be considered mysterious and supernatural. The Communion is first a memorial of the death of our Lord, (I Cor. 11:23, 25) and a sign of the atonement for sin, wrought out in and by His death. That atonement is the foundation of the whole plan of salvation, and any divinely appointed means by which our faith is made to take hold upon it, or by which we are reminded, refreshed, quickened and strengthened in our hold upon this Christ of the Atonement, this Christ of the broken body and shed blood, results in a direct and sensible increase of spiritual life. The Holy Spirit by means of this quickened faith, specially directed by the symbols of the Eucharist to Christ, in the supreme moment when he actually wrought out our salvation on the cross, imparts to us a fresh vigor of the new life, as the body feels refreshed and invigorated after partaking of nourishing food.

In this is the manifest use of the Eucharist, the form of which is so devised as to present to us a perpetual object lesson, a vivid mental picture, of the body which was broken, and the blood which was shed for us; and our partaking of the consecrated bread and wine symbolizes that spiritual feeding, by faith, upon Christ, as it were upon His flesh and blood, which is so necessary to the new life, and by which His divine, immortal, eternal life is continually imparted unto us, and we thereby become "members of his body, of his flesh, and of his bones."

The Basic Problem of Ashland College

Rev. George T. Ronk

THE BASIC problem of Ashland College is the maintenance of a large enough student body each year to carry the finances above the "break-even" point. This is clearly shown by a careful study of the problem as it has recurred for the last forty years. There is a minimum break-even point, because a college must carry certain basic classes and equipment and services regardless of the attendance, or it cannot get any students at all. It costs very little more to teach classes of thirty than classes of 5 or 10.

For twenty years before World War II, the college ran just a fraction below the critical point, so a small deficit was gradually accumulated. When the war broke, and the boys were taken, the attendance fell heavily, so that the deficit rose sharply, in spite of the Reserve for Contingencies which the Church supported rather well. With the end of the war, and the great influx of G. I.'s, the finances rose above the critical point, so that a heavy inroad is now being made on the accumulated deficit. From these experiences, the management is able to work out a minimum requirement for attendance, somewhat below the present G. I. influx. If this minimum can be maintained, what with the annual College offering in the church, the church can rest at ease regarding any jeopardy to the school.

What is the long range solution to this attendance problem?

School authorities, including those in North

Central Association, tell us the quickest solution is by building a modern Girl's Dormitory, to attract more girls whose parents are looking for a Christian College, and some better science accommodations to attract more high caliber boys who need better Pre-science courses for entrance to professional schools of Medicine, Law, Engineering, Agriculture or Pure Science. Such added inducements will attract more regional students, and more from Brethren homes, where we do not nearly receive the percentage of loyalty to be expected.

But how are we to finance such needed building? There is such a solution, used already by many church schools and also by many state universities. So, in suggesting the following plan, we are doing nothing whatever original; in fact, we are waking up, like Rip Van Winkle, about twenty years late, when other colleges are just completing their payments on plans launched years ago.

Our solution is to provide for an Ashland Corporation, whose stock shall be owned by Ashland College. Money for the stock investment we believe will be provided by a comparatively few people within and without the church, who are looking for some strategic method of contributing to the Lord's work, whereby their gifts may be greatly multiplied.

Provision of $25,000 should be enough to start business, and $50,000 would be the near term goal. On the basis of this capital, which would be risk capital, which might be partially impaired at times in paying interest, it would be the plan to borrow $5.00 for each dollar of capital paid in at 4½ or 5% on 25 or thirty year self amortizing bonds with sinking funds provisions. The income from dormitories would be used to pay interest and principal of bonds, like the ordinary Building and Loan process.

$25,000 capital would provide for $125,000 building funds to erect at least two units of a Unit-plan Girl's Dormitory, on ground deeded the Ashland Corporation for one dollar for that purpose. I am assured there should be no difficulty in raising the money for the bonds, even if the church did not subscribe for any of them, which is unthinkable.

Of the first $25,000 stock, $10,000 has already been offered and partly paid in. I am sure the other $15,000 will be readily forthcoming.

At the recent meeting of the Board of Trustees, the writer was authorized to suggest the solution to the Laymen for comment either way, with the thought if the plan seems to be favorably received, the project could be launched after authorization by the regular meeting of the Board of Trustees of Ashland College April 2, 1948.

What do you think, Brethren? I would be glad to receive comments, or offers of stock or bond subscriptions, if the project should be finally approved. Please address me at my home, 2200 Fifth Ave. S. E., Cedar Rapids, Iowa.

Record of Educational Day Offering - 1947

The first report of the Educational Offering is printed herewith. It appears by Districts and churches. A short miscellaneous list is included. The place of membership of these donors was not given.

The College administration is hopeful that those churches which have not reported may do so soon. Another report will be made. These gifts are up to March 2, 1948.

THE REPORT

Central District

|                               |           |
|-------------------------------|-----------|
| Cerro Gordo, Illinois .....   | $ 9.55   |
| Lanark, Illinois .....        | 231.25    |
| Milledgeville, Illinois ..... | 427.00    |
| Udell, Iowa .....             | 12.00     |
| Waterloo, Iowa .....          | 249.00    |
| Total Central District .....  | $ 928.80 |

Indiana District

|                              |             |
|------------------------------|-------------|
| Akron Cooperative .....      | $ 33.30    |
| Ardmore .....                | 110.50      |
| Burlington .....             | 140.31      |
| Center Chapel .....          | 36.25       |
| College Corner .....         | 80.74       |
| College Corner .....         | 20.00       |
| Corinth .....                | 80.74       |
| County Line .....            | 1.00        |
| Denver .....                 | 30.10       |
| Dutchtown .....              | 25.00       |
| Elkhart .....                | 600.00      |
| Flora .....                  | 55.55       |
| Goshen .....                 | 268.89      |
| Huntington .....             | 40.40       |
| Loree .....                  | 74.80       |
| Mexico .....                 | 69.00       |
| Milford .....                | 89.95       |
| Muncie .....                 | 63.00       |
| Nappanee .....               | 527.00      |
| New Paris .....              | 147.54      |
| North Liberty .....          | 65.22       |
| North Manchester .....       | 580.00      |
| Oakville .....               | 48.31       |
| Peru .....                   | 26.28       |
| Roann .....                  | 142.63      |
| Roanoke .....                | 27.00       |
| South Bend .....             | 298.00      |
| Tiosa .....                  | 34.00       |
| Warsaw .....                 | 415.75      |
| Total Indiana District ..... | $ 4,050.52 |

Mid-West District

|                               |           |
|-------------------------------|-----------|
| Carleton, Nebraska .....      | $ 12.53  |
| Falls City, Nebraska .....    | 132.38    |
| Ft. Scott, Kansas .....       | 4.10      |
| Hamlin, Kansas .....          | 42.52     |
| Morrill, Kansas .....         | 172.00    |
| Mulvane, Kansas .....         | 15.00     |
| Portis, Kansas .....          | 10.00     |
| Total Mid-West District ..... | $ 388.53 |

Northern California District

|                                |          |
|--------------------------------|----------|
| Manteca .....                  | $ 16.00 |
| Stockton .....                 | 31.44    |
| Total N. Calif. District ..... | $ 47.44 |

Ohio District

|                              |           |
|------------------------------|-----------|
| Ashland .....                | $ 499.75 |
| Bryan .....                  | 500.00    |
| Canton .....                 | 216.80    |
| Dayton .....                 | 537.15    |
| Fairhaven .....              | 45.37     |
| Washington Court House ..... | 30.00     |
| Fremont .....                | 5.00      |
| Glenford .....               | 28.00     |
| Gratis .....                 | 59.00     |
| Gretna .....                 | 71.90     |
| Mansfield .....              | 5.00      |
| Mt. Zion .....               | 5.00      |
| New Lebanon .....            | 250.04    |
| North Georgetown .....       | 69.45     |

|                       |        |
|-----------------------|--------|
| Pleasant Hill .....   | 63.35  |
| Smithville .....      | 407.25 |
| West Alexandria ..... | 24.00  |
| Williamstown .....    | 105.53 |

Total Ohio District .....$ 2,922.59

Pennsylvania District

|                         |           |
|-------------------------|-----------|
| Berlin .....            | $ 221.75 |
| Brush Valley .....      | 33.00     |
| Calvary .....           | 9.00      |
| Cameron .....           | 24.50     |
| Conemaugh .....         | 31.50     |
| Highland .....          | 36.00     |
| Johnstown, First .....  | 127.75    |
| Johnstown, Second ..... | 123.82    |
| Johnstown, Third .....  | 56.00     |
| Kittanning .....        | 10.00     |
| Masontown .....         | 10.00     |
| Meyersdale .....        | 105.00    |
| Mt. Olivet .....        | 79.75     |
| Pittsburgh .....        | 252.87    |
| Sergeantsville .....    | 10.00     |
| Uniontown, Second ..... | 158.94    |
| Valley .....            | 5.00      |
| Vinco .....             | 119.01    |
| Vandergrift .....       | 37.38     |
| Waynesboro .....        | 25.00     |
| White Dale .....        | 25.43     |

Total Penna. District .....$ 1,501.70

Southeastern District

|                  |          |
|------------------|----------|
| Bethlehem .....  | $ 12.00 |
| Cumberland ..... | 32.50    |
| Hagerstown ..... | 555.00   |
| Linwood .....    | 35.35    |
| Maurertown ..... | 52.29    |
| Oak Hill .....   | 49.00    |
| St. James .....  | 121.82   |

Total Southeastern District .....$ 857.96

Total—Churches .....$10,697.54

Miscellaneous

|                                 |         |
|---------------------------------|---------|
| Maud Tovillo .....              | $ 1.00 |
| Mrs. Isaac Grubb .....          | 10.00   |
| Mrs. Lavonne Hutcheson .....    | 1.00    |
| Mrs. Rose Miller .....          | 1.00    |
| Mary Carpenter .....            | 5.00    |
| Mrs. Minnie Sloan .....         | 5.00    |
| Mr. and Mrs. C. C. Long .....   | 15.00   |
| Sadie Fauss .....               | 1.00    |
| Eleanor Ovelman .....           | 1.00    |
| Katherine Miller .....          | 12.00   |
| Annabelle Merrifield .....      | 2.00    |
| Jean Hartong .....              | .50     |
| Mr. and Mrs. H. Sherry .....    | 10.00   |
| Mrs. Clara Brim .....           | 2.00    |
| Harry and Dorcas Gehman .....   | 25.00   |
| Valley Brethren .....           | 1.00    |
| Mr. and Mrs. H. Hartman .....   | 5.00    |
| Rev. and Mrs. F. B. Yoder ..... | 25.00   |

Total Miscellaneous .....$ 122.50

|                           |             |
|---------------------------|-------------|
| Total Churches .....      | $10,697.54 |
| Total Miscellaneous ..... | 122.50      |
| Grand Total .....         | $10,820.04 |

Dr. and Mrs. Rensch Honored on Their Golden Wedding Day

MORE THAN two hundred persons attended the reception in the First Brethren Church in New Paris, Indiana, on Sunday evening, February 22, in honor of the Golden Wedding Anniversary of Dr. and Mrs. G. W. Rensch.

Mrs. Woodrow Immel, organist, played the Lohengrin wedding march as Brother and Sister Rensch were ushered to their places by Byron and William Smoker and Carolyn Immel and Cynthia Smoker, the latter serving as flower girls.

Everett Miller presided at the program, which included the following: Greetings by Rev. C. A. Stewart, pastor of the New Paris church; Marimba solos, "When I Grow Too Old to Dream," and "Put On Your Old Gray Bonnet," by Mrs. Immel; a recitation, "Our Gratitude," Stephen Smoker; Vocal solos: "Silver Threads Among the Gold," by William Bellinger, and "I Love You Truly," by David Smoker; a reading, "Sweetheart, Just You and I," by Mrs. William Bollinger; vocal solo, "When Your Hair Has Turned to Silver," by Margaret Vail; Violin solo, "Love's Old Sweet Song," by Mrs. Everett Miller; Vocal solo, "Always," by Rex Miller; an original poem by Frank Roscoe; duet, "When You Were Sweet Sixteen," by Mr. and Mrs. Chet Smoker; a recitation, "Golden Gifts for Wedding Day," by Carolyn Cobb; group singing, "When They Ring the Golden Bells, led by Max Smoker with Mrs. Roscoe at the piano. Talks were given by Rev. Claud Studebaker, South Bend; Rev. Willis Ronk and Mrs. Harley Stuckman, Goshen; Rev. W. I. Duker, Milford; Rev. and Mrs. J. Milton Bowman, and Mrs. U. J. Shively, Napanee; Mrs. Frank Wampler, North Manchester, and the following New Paris ministers: Elton Evans, William Brubaker, C. A. Byrt, C. W. Walmer, Iverson Mishler, Galen Bowman, Charles Gump, Virgin Mock and C. A. Stewart. The benediction was pronounced by John Smoker.

Mrs. Guy Vail and Mrs. Mark Smoker presided at the coffee service and refreshments were served by Mrs. Dale Hollar, Marietta and Joan Smoker, Eleanor Cobb, Margaret Vail and Mrs. May Gary.

Many lovely gifts and greetings were presented to Brother and Sister Rensch. Fifty red roses, sent by the First Brethren Church in Johnstown, Pennsylvania, gold bells, red, white and blue carnations and tapers and yellow roses were in the decorations.

There were many out of town visitors among those present. The occasion was indeed a very happy one.

The Itinerary

March 30

Johnstown, First Church

March 31

Vinco Brethren Church

April 1

Berlin Brethren Church

April 2

Hagerstown Brethren Church

April 3

Linwood Brethren Church

April 4

Morning

St. James Brethren Church

Evening

Washington, D. C., Church of the Brethren

April 6

Masontown Brethren Church

The Ashland College

FIRST ROW—Kinsel, Guenther, Hale, Sword, McLau
SECOND ROW—Ballou, Plank, Richmond, Harp, Matthews, Mosier, THIRD ROW—Dilgard, Lewis, Shultz, Lindow
FOURTH ROW—Richmond, Campbell, Rinehart, St

The Story of The Choir

"Fifty trained voices transformed into one thrilling majestic choral unit"; "A superb interpretation of great masterpieces"; "Finest group ever to be in our city"; "A real group of the finest young men and women amateur singers ever to appear here"; "If these young people are representative of college men and women, the next generation is safe." These and many others are typical comments of those who have heard the Ashland College A Cappella Choir which will sing in the Pennsylvania and Maryland Churches from March 30 to April 6.

Last year the ensemble sang eleven concerts in as many cities of Ohio and Indiana. Critics were unanimous in their praise. Recently Roland Hayes, noted negro tenor, praised them very highly following a special rehearsal for him. He really felt that this was an organization to which he enjoyed listening. Mr. Wilfred Bain of the National Association of Music Schools said of the choir, "It is really one of the fine choirs that I have listened to in the United States."

Ministers and laymen from the churches and communities in which they have sung have expressed their delight in being able to hear such fine singing from other than a professional group. "Best choir Ashland College ever had," is the expression both on and off the campus when the 1948 edition of the Ashland College A Cappella Choir is discussed.

The choir will be under the direction of Dr. Louis E. Pete, one of the most capable and enthusiastic directors in Ohio. Not only does Dr. Pete direct the College choir, he also directs the Ashland High School Orchestra, Band and Choir, the Ashland City Symphony Orchestra, the Trinity Lutheran Choir in Ashland and the Ohio State Fair Boys Band. This last organization consists of 400 of the best musicians in Ohio and plays each year at the Ohio State Fair in Columbus. Its director since 1932, Dr. Pete has developed the organization until it has become one of the featured attractions at the annual exhibit.

Dr. Pete is a graduate of Ashland College. He has also studied at Kent State University.

In addition to his work at Ashland College and in the city of Ashland, he has served as instructor in both Bowling Green University and Northwest ones, Cabbage, Earl, Guy, Brownson, Riddle, Smith.

Choir On Tour

 Earl, Bixler, Gilbert, Stuckey, Shultz, Barnard, McWilliams.
 Hurst, Righter, Neely, Ronk, Hart, Frantz.
 Reid, Dye, Nolte, Henry, Johnson, Grumbling.

Brethren Yoang People in the A Cappella Choir

Carolyn Bixler, Ashland, Ohio

Paul Clapper, Louisville, Ohio

Ardine Frantz, New Lebanon, Ohio

Ann Gilbert, West Alexandria, Ohio

Doris Gilbert, West Alexandria, Ohio

Doris Guenther, New Lebanon, Ohio

John Lindower, Ashland, Ohio

Joan Riddle, Ashland, Ohio

Jean Rowsey, Ashland, Ohio

Alvin Grumbling, Johnstown, Pa.

Doris Hart, Washington, D. C.

Phil Nolte, Sergeantsville, N. J.

Sam Richmond, Nappanee, Indiana

Joe Shultz, Berlin, Pa.

Dorman Ronk, Manteca, Cal.

Shirley Sword, Milledgeville, Ill.

Jeannette DeLozier, Ashland, Ohio

University. He is past president of the Ohio ic Educators' Association.

r. Pete directs musical organizations because likes to "make Music" and he has the uncanny ty to bring out the best in each member of choir. He puts forth every effort to secure a ect blend in his choir. He selects each voice only for its individual quality, but also because adds something to the entire group. "I want a r, not voices," he tells his candidates each fall.
 he 1948 choir, he feels he has come close to perfection that every director hopes for.

represented on the Roster will be young peo-from both coasts of the United States. The up of 55 voices will represent six states and hington, D. C. One boy comes all the way n California while two boys are from New ey and one girl from the national capital.

rtually all members of the choir have had e training and many expect to make singing e life work. Almost everyone is an accomed performer on some instrument in addition nging. The musical ability and wide variety xperience of the group make it one of the ac-plished college choirs of the midwest. Under the direction of Dr. Louis E. Pete, they are able to bring out the finest in both sacred and secular music.

The group sings as readily with or without accompaniment. A number of members of the choir have perfect pitch and it is seldom that a pitch pipe is needed when they are sing a cappella. The group is all the more remarkable because they practice only two hours each week, less than the average church choir. The members must attend regular classes on the Ashland campus and can find only a short time when all can be present.

The Choir is a relatively new organization as choirs of its type are rated. Patterned largely after the world famous A Cappella choir of St. Olaf College in Minnesota, the Ashland group first sang without accompaniment during the winter of 1936-1937, just eleven years ago. Up until then the musical participation was in the Ashland Singer's Club, an outgrowth of the college glee clubs of former years.

The arrival of Dr. Louis E. Pete on the Ashland Campus brought the idea of developing a cappella singing. Dr. Pete had studied this type of "making music" as he prefers to call it, and de-terminated to mold together a group of singers on the Ashland Campus which would be able to make others feel the same as they do about good music. He was well on his way to perfection when the war interrupted his efforts and he was forced to be satisfied with a girl's chorus for several years. The return of the G. I.'s last year gave him that for which he had been seeking. The mature voices of his 20 veterans gave the quality which makes the 1948 Ashland College A Cappella Choir the culmination of eleven years of untiring effort.

The choir this year will visit eight churches in the eastern section of the denomination. Last year, Indiana and Southern Ohio made up the itinerary. Dayton, New Lebanon, Pleasant Hill, North Manchester, Peru, Warsaw, Nappanee, Elkhart and Bryan were visited. Ashland, Canton and Louisville were made on shorter trips.

This year the choir is trying to combine education with its tour and will spent a day in Washington, D. C. Leaving Ashland on March 30, the choir will sing in the Johnstown First Brethren Church. Mr. Darr, and Mr. Furry of that church have arranged the appearance and all of the Johnstown churches are cooperating. On March 31, Vinco will hear the choir. On April 1, the choir will be in Berlin; April 2, Hagerstown; April 3, Linwood; April 4, St. James and Washington, and April 6, Masontown, Pa. On April 3, the group will go from Hagerstown to Linwood by the way of Gettysburg. April 5 will be spent in Washington, D. C. They will return home after the Masontown concert.

Several concerts near Ashland are planned later. The choir is traveling the week following Easter because the Ashland city schools are on vacation and it the only time that Dr. Pete can leave Ashland for so long a time.

The number of Brethren students in the choir represents about 30% of the choir, although Brethren students on the campus are only about 20% of the student body. The names of Brethren students appear at the head of this article.

NOTICE TO MINISTERS

Since the resignation of Rev. E. J. Black as pastor of the Sergeantsville and Calvary Brethren Churches of New Jersey, effective May 1, 1948, will leave these churches vacant, we are asking pastors who may be interested in this charge to correspond with the undersigned at once.

Ida S. Leigh, Secretary
Sergeantsville, New Jersey.

Interesting Items

(Continued from Page 2)

Berkshire, pastor of the New Lebanon, Ohio, Church, is to be the evangelist at Masontown in a meeting beginning April 5 and closing Sunday, April 18.

Waterloo, Iowa. Brother Meyer announces that a plan has been made by the laymen of the church whereby they have promised to take any of the boys of the Boys' Brotherhood who attend every meeting between the present time and July 5 to a White Hawk baseball game.

Washington, D. C. We glean the following from the Washington bulletin of February 29. It is entitled, "Good news for the Building Program." It reads as follows: "The Perpetual Building Association has approved a loan of $30,000.00 at 4½% interest for the construction of the First Unit of the New Church. This money is to be repaid at the rate of $225.00 per month. It will now be possible to begin on it this spring, but we still need about $5,000.00 to complete and partially furnish it." We feel sure they will do it.

Brother Fairbanks reports that twenty-eight members of the Washington church were in attendance at the Central Union Mission on Thursday evening, February 25, when the Washington Laymen had charge of the meeting.

The Washington C. E. sponsored what they call a "Fam-boree" at the evening hour (5:00 o'clock) on Sunday, February 29. Lunch was served and a good time had by all. The regular services followed at the 7:00 o'clock hour.

Vinco, Pennsylvania. The Public Service of the Woman's Missionary Society of the Vinco church was held on Tuesday evening, February 24. The two societies combined in this service. The service was held in the church and the public was invited. The Mission Study Book was reviewed by Mrs. W. S. Benshoff.

The Vinco church feted their boys basket ball team at a supper on the evening of March 1.

Cerro Gordo, Illinois. The Union Good Friday Services of Cerro Gordo will be held in our church, March 26.

The Young People of the Cerro Gordo church as planning a banquet to be held on March 18. This organization is young, but they are full of "pep" and have been used in a number of ways since organization. They sang recently at a revival service at Oakley. An annual Easter Sunrise service is in the making.

Wedding Announcement

FLENNER-SCOTT. Adelene Scott, a member of the Mexico, Indiana, Brethren Church, was united in marriage to Donald Flenner of Rural Route Number 2, Macy, Indiana, at the home of the bride's mother, Mrs. Otto Scott, in Mexico on January 24, 1948, at 2:30 in the afternoon. The double ring ceremony was read by her pastor, the undersigned.

Robert K. Higgins.

Laid to Rest

RACEY. Stonewall Jackson Racey, aged 69, well known Shenandoah County, Virginia, farmer was called to his Heavenly home February 2, 1948, having been in failing health for the past seven months.

He was born September 5, 1878 near Columbia Furnace, Virginia and spent his entire life in the St. Luke community, except a few years in Woodstock, Virginia and Washington D. C.

The second son of the late St. Luke and Lydia Sherman Racey, married Miss Margaret Sherman of Wheeling, West Virginia, who survives, in November 1901.

Fifty-one years ago he united with the St. Luke Brethren Church, being baptized in Narrow Passage Creek by the late Rev. P. W. Wiseman, for many years the beloved pastor of this congregation.

His loyalty to Christ and His church and his fine Christian character was an influence for good to all who knew him.

Funeral services were conducted by his pastor, the undersigned, in the St. Luke Brethren Church, with burial in the nearby cemetery.

Nephews acted as pallbearers and nieces as flower girls.
Rev. John Dodson.

Business Manager's Corner

(Continued from page 3)

|                                                  |        |
|--------------------------------------------------|--------|
| Lois Jean Wertz .....                            | 3.00   |
| Mr. and Mrs. Chester A. Myers .....              | 5.00   |
| W. M. S. ....                                    | 5.00   |
| Dayton, Ohio, church offering .....              | 85.00  |
| Denver, Indiana, offering as follows:            |        |
| Mr. and Mrs. N. B. Brower .....                  | 2.00   |
| Sam Klingaman .....                              | 1.00   |
| Mr. and Mrs. Herman Shoemaker .....              | 1.00   |
| Mr. and Mrs. Dallas Eikenberry .....             | 1.00   |
| Osmer Fisher .....                               | 1.00   |
| Mr. and Mrs. Carl V. Maus .....                  | 5.00   |
| Mr. and Mrs. Ed. Bink .....                      | 1.00   |
| Eldon Fahl .....                                 | 1.00   |
| Doland Click .....                               | 1.00   |
| Dale Flora .....                                 | 5.00   |
| Mr. and Mrs. Rufus Carlin .....                  | 1.25   |
| Misc. ....                                       | 17.00  |
| Elkhart, Ind., Church Offering .....             | 250.00 |
| Bessie Davis, Fair Haven Church, Ohio .....      | 5.00   |
| Flora, Ind., Church Offering (Additional) .....  | 22.00  |
| Mrs. Pearl Russell, Fort Scott, Kans. ....       | 7.00   |
| Gratis, Ohio, Church Offering .....              | 48.32  |
| Gretna, Ohio, Church Offering .....              | 32.15  |
| Hagerstown, Md., Church Offering .....           | 255.45 |
| Carrie M. Stoffer, Haddix, Ky. ....              | 2.00   |
| Mr. and Mrs. John Fitt, Johnstown, 1st Ch. ....  | 10.00  |
| Mr. and Mrs. Earl Benshoff, Johnstown, 1st Ch... | 10.00  |
| Mrs. Isaac Grubb, Johnstown, 3rd Ch. ....        | 10.00  |
| Lanark, Ill., Church Offering .....              | 72.65  |

|                                                   |        |
|---------------------------------------------------|--------|
| Mrs. Agnes Elliott, Lathrop, Calif. ....          | 10.00  |
| Rev. and Mrs. Eppley, Mansfield, Ohio .....       | 3.00   |
| Mr. and Mrs. Fred Boss, Mansfield, Ohio .....     | 1.00   |
| Mr. and Mrs. H. Longshore, Mansfield, Ohio ....   | 1.00   |
| Mr. and Mrs. D. M. Henney, Mansfield, Ohio .....  | 2.00   |
| Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Miles, Mansfield, Ohio .....   | 1.00   |
| Masontown, Pa., Church Offering .....             | 49.60  |
| Mr. and Mrs. Harry Berkshire, Masontown, Pa. ..   | 25.00  |
| Maurertown, Va., Church Offering .....            | 14.50  |
| Meyersdale, Pa., Loyal Group as follows:          |        |
| Miss Mable Baer .....                             | 10.00  |
| E. M. Bowser .....                                | 2.00   |
| Mrs. Cyrus Bird .....                             | 5.00   |
| Miss Miriam Bird .....                            | 15.00  |
| Mrs. H. M. Cook .....                             | 25.00  |
| Naomi Lenhart .....                               | 10.00  |
| Sydney Lenhart .....                              | 10.00  |
| Irene Lenhart .....                               | 10.00  |
| Mrs. Maud Suder .....                             | 1.50   |
| Misc. ....                                        | 25.00  |
| Mexico, Ind., Church Offering .....               | 33.00  |
| Milford, Ind., Church Offering .....              | 50.00  |
| Milledgeville, Ill., Church Offering .....        | 119.56 |
| Mrs. Bessie Miller, Milledgeville, Ill. ....      | 25.00  |
| Dr. and Mrs. W. S. Bell, Milledgeville, Ill. .... | 100.00 |
| Anny L. Runnels, Milledgeville, Ill. ....         | 10.00  |
| Maggie Smith, Mt. Olive Church, Va. ....          | 10.00  |
| Mrs. Etta Leslie, Nappanee, Ind. ....             | 5.00   |
| Nappanee, Ind., Church Offering .....             | 100.00 |
| New Paris, Ind., Church Offering .....            | 115.83 |
| North Georgetown, Ohio, as foilows:               |        |
| Mrs. Gladys Wyss .....                            | 1.00   |
| Mr. and Mrs. F. L. Albright .....                 | 5.00   |
| Lauvenia Stoffer .....                            | 10.00  |
| Misc. ....                                        | 16.50  |
| Oak Hill, W. Va., Church Offering .....           | 45.00  |
| Oakville, Ind., Church Offering .....             | 55.05  |
| Mr. and Mrs. Willis Flora, Roann, Ind. ....       | 5.00   |
| Mr. and Mrs. Horace H. Mirritt, Roann, Ind. ....  | 5.00   |
| Roanoke, Ind., Church Offering .....              | 22.00  |
| St. James, Md., Church Offering .....             | 15.00  |
| Mrs. H. E. Berry, Wooster, Ohio .....             | 5.00   |
| Sergeantsville, N. J., Church Offering .....      | 10.00  |
| Summit Mills, Pa., as follows:                    |        |
| Mr. and Mrs. Irvin Fike .....                     | 2.50   |
| Mrs. Sadie Gren .....                             | 1.00   |
| John Gren .....                                   | 1.00   |
| Mr. and Mrs. Lloyd Klatz .....                    | 2.00   |
| Mrs. Galen Peck .....                             | 1.00   |
| Mrs. Elizabeth M. Rishel .....                    | 5.00   |
| Mr. and Mrs. George Werner & Family .....         | 5.00   |
| Mr. and Mrs. Mahlon Werner .....                  | 10.00  |
| Tiosa, Ind., Church Offering .....                | 13.50  |
| Mr. and Mrs. Frank M. Miller, Waynesboro, Pa...   | 10.00  |
| White Dale, Terra Alta, Church Offering .....     | 16.19  |
| Udell, Iowa, Church Offering .....                | 14.00  |
| Estelle Huse, Manteca Church, Calif. ....         | 15.00  |
| Columbus, Ohio, Church Offering .....             | 5.00   |

Let us never lose courage nor fall out of the ranks. but keep ever pressing on, filled with the consciousness that Jesus, the sinner's Friend, is ever near to lighten the load and lead our straying feet in the "straight and narrow way."—Southern Christian Advocate.

CHRISTIAN ENDEAVOR TOPIC

W. St. Clair Benshoff, Topic Editor

"Topics copyrighted by the International Society of Christian Endeavor.
Used by permission."

Topic for March 21, 1948

SPIRITUAL TRIUMPH THROUGH CRISIS

Scripture: Romans 8:18-39

For The Leader

DO YOU THINK your life is being lived in vain? Do you feel that you have more than your share of heartache and trouble? Do you have a tendency to revolt against God when trouble enters your life? Do you think that every bit of trouble which comes is punishment from God? What is your attitude toward hardships in your life? The answers to these questions, if put to you by a psychiatrist, would give him a real picture of your emotional and spiritual life. If we have the wrong attitude toward these questions, then life for us will be one miserable depressing incident after another. But if we possess an optimistic, scriptural and healthy attitude, our life will blossom forth in beauty and glory. We can really have spiritual triumph in crisis. Life has its real problems for everybody. If we face them with the right attitude, God helping us, we will be stronger, happier and more useful for Christ.

DISCUSSION

1. NONE LIVE IN VAIN. Often times you will meet up with people who can see no point in living. You read about them in the newspapers, for some of them commit suicide. A crisis comes in a life such as described, they cannot meet nor face it, so they take the "easy way out." It is truly a spiritual triumph in life when we realize that we do not live in vain. When we realize that life has a purpose, even though that purpose be hid. A Christian, feasting on his daily diet of scripture and prayer, may face a temptation to consider life in vain, but he will never believe it to be such. Even in these troubled times there is a purpose in our living here.

2. GOD HOLDS THE THROTTLE. The natural thing for us humans to do is to revolt against the cause when trouble enters our life. Too often, we challenge God to show reason why we must suffer a certain trouble. Perhaps we have glared at God in contempt because "He has permitted such and such to happen. But hold on a minute! Has God promised a path of roses and ease? The same God who said, "Come unto me all ye that are weary and heavy laden, and I will give you rest," also said, "My grace is sufficient for thee." He also said, "In the world ye shall have tribulation, but be of good cheer, I have overcome the world." A great spiritual triumph has come to us when we learn to bear all things patiently, knowing that God ever watches, understands and cares. A careful, continuous reading of His precious Word will give to us great spiritual strength in times of need, for "God is our refuge and strength, a very present help in time of trouble."

3. IS TROUBLE PUNISHMENT FROM GOD? This is a problem which cannot be answered by a simple "yes" or "no." There are sincere pious souls who interpret every hardship, accident, etc., as a direct punishment from God for some sin they have committed. Other souls are going through intense agony, spoken of to no one, believing that God is punishing them for some infraction of His laws, perhaps even years ago. Well, Saul did have wars in his land "the rest of his life" for his sin. So did David. Moses could not lead the children of Israel into the promised land because He sinned against God. So there is a great measure of truth in this attitude. God cannot use individuals if these is unforsaken sin in their lives. But we are not to interpret this question to mean that all hardship is punishment from God. If this were the case, and if God punished us for sin in this way, our lives would be incessantly filled with trouble. We must distinguish between the ravages of sin and God's punishment for sin. If we willfully sin, our body will break down, become diseased and ruined. That's a form of punishment. But to feel that every trouble or heartache in our life is a direct punishment from God is to deny the forgiving power of God operating through the grace of our Lord and Savior. God teaches us lessons in trouble, but not all trouble emits from God. Believe this, and you have reached another spiritual triumph.

4. HOW DO YOU FEEL ABOUT TROUBLE IN YOUR LIFE? The scriptures tell us that "The trial of your faith worketh patience." Instead of revolting against God, regardless of the cause of our trouble, we should be drawn nearer and nearer to Him. God uses the trouble of our lives to work out His great plan for us. Never a heartache or burden but what we can be strengthened by His keeping power. Affliction should only serve to draw us closer to Him. We have seen people suffer, and have received strength from their lives. We have seen them suffer, have seen them wonder why they must suffer, but we have seen that suffering bind them closer to their blessed Lord. The more severe their suffering, the closer they are to God, and the more they trust Him. As another has said, "Suffering serves but to drive me closer to Thee, Oh God." Young people, with your life stretching ahead, may you learn the secret of being drawn closer to your Christ in times of crisis. When you take that attitude, you have reached the greatest spiritual triumph in your life.

QUESTIONS

1. You have seen and heard of families in the Church which seem to have no end of trouble, and of families outside the church who seem never to have trouble. Suppose someone reminded you of that, and accused God of forsaking His own, how would you answer them?

2. List the things which are able to separate us from Christ. (Romans 8:35-39). How big a list did you get?

3. Describe before the group some incident in your life which was a crisis, and which turned out to be a spiritual triumph for you.

REMINDER

The time is getting short. Already Spring is on the way, and many societies have not yet sent in news reports to the C. E. Board. Do it today! Soon General Conference will be near and you will want your society to stand among the leaders.

Prayer Meeting Topic

Contributed by Rev. C. Y. Gilmer

(Helps for Christian Living)

A JOYOUS EASTER

John 20:20

Yes, they were glad on that fair Easter morning
Viewing that miracle—the empty tomb.
Those sad, dark days of doubt and fear were ended
Jesus had risen—Light and joy had come.

How they again rejoiced when in the evening,
He brought to them His words of love and peace,
And showed to them the wounds that spoke of suffering,
But were to them the emblems of release.

Release from sin, and full and free forgiveness,
Made fully theirs that Resurrection Day.
Release from fear—for every foe was conquered,
Even death's sting had vanished far away.

We too may share the Easter joy and gladness
May enter in and worship and adore.
We have a risen and a living Saviour,
A Christ Who is alive for evermore.

In Him we live, sharing His resurrection,
Seeking to follow Him along earth's way.
Some day, yes, some day face to face we'll see Him,
The glorious risen Lord of Easter day.
—Ema M. Newman.

WHAT THE RESURRECTION MEANS TO US

Scripture: 1 Cor. 15:12-23

Resurrection Hymns

Prayer

Seed Thought Provokers:

UNLIKE twentieth century Christianity, the first century did not underestimate the importance of the resurrection (Acts 4:33). The central fact of Christ's victory is not the cross but the resurrection. Without the resurrection the cross would spell defeat (1 Cor. 15:19). The cross speaks of the cost of victory; the resurrection is the victory. To leave Christ hanging on a crucifix is a sad mistake (v. 20). The resurrection gave us a living Saviour. We worship, not the crucified Christ, but the living Christ (Rev. 1:18).

In 1 Cor. 15:1-4 are given the facts of the good news: Christ died, was buried, and rose again. In the third fact the Christian faith stands. It is as authenticated as any fact in history. The Psalmist declared our Lord's resurrection (Psa. 16:10). After Peter had met the resurrected Christ he used the words of the Psalmist as fulfilled prophecy (Acts 2:24-32).

The resurrection proves the penitent sinner is justified before God (Rom. 4:24, 25). God raised Jesus because His death had justified believing sinners. The resurrection shows to the world that Christ's atoning work on the cross had met God's approval. Without the resurrection the crucifixion would have been a victory for Satan. Christ's resurrection guarantees our own resurrection (John 5:26-29; 14:18-20). The man who thinks that when he dies there is no more to him than to a dead horse has no incentive to live right. Those who believe in the resurrection have a different motive (Dan. 12:2, 3).

It was the risen Lord Who gave us our life-work (Mark 16:15, 16). His resurrection guarantees the Judgment Day (Acts 17:30, 31). That will be the fulfillment of Ecclesiastes 12:14. It also means that the stewardship of Christians will be judged (1 Cor. 3:12-15). The accounting of Christian stewards is not the same as the great white throne judgment in Rev. 20:11-15.

COMMENTS

On The Sunday School Lesson

by The Editor

Lesson for March 21, 1948

THE KINGDOM OF GOD AMONG MEN

Lesson: Luke 4:16-20; Mark 4:26-29; Luke 17:20-21;

Romans 14:17

THE WORKING for and the building of God's Kingdom among men is far too often misunderstood. Missing the real ideas set forth in the Scriptures will often-times lead us into misinterpretation of passages which, when combined, will give us a biased view of the whole.

Let us first of all see what is necessary to the makeup of a kingdom. There are four things that go into its final establishment, namely, a king, a people, a land or a place of habitation, and a law to govern. Earthly kingdoms can be ruled by either absolute dictatorship or as a "limited" monarchy. The kingdom may be an established one, or one in the making. We can better understand this thought by looking into present history where countries are made or broken over night. At the present time the papers are full of the claims of one or more monarchs who have been, as they claim, "temporarily deposed."

But we are not interested in worldly kingdoms in connection with this lesson, except as they come to us for the purpose of illustration. That which should draw our attention is that the kingdom is in the process of building and that we, as Christians, who form the Church, the Bride of Christ, are a part, now, of that structure and, as such, must do our part in the days of preparation and construction.

The best way to find out what is embodied in the building of the kingdom and its essential elements is to turn to the kingdom parables of Jesus, one of which is found in our lesson text for today, and let them tell the story. The idea of the story Jesus tells in the parable of Mark 4:26-29 is that of growth and fruition. Jesus says, "The kingdom of heaven is like," and then shows forth the likeness in the parables.

The thought embodied in the Golden Text should receive some attention. It reads, "Thy kingdom come, thy will be done in earth as it is in heaven." As the Father's will is done in heaven, so should it be done in the membership of His kingdom, which is in the building here on the earth. We, as members of that coming kingdom, should be ever doing His will and not our own—seeking to live such lives that those about us will see in us fit subjects for such a kingdom as our God is setting up as the years go on and on, and which will be consummated at the "end of the age."

---

Travel Flashes

Dr. Charles A. Bame

---

Travel, but No Flash!

YESTERDAY, having a part of the day left, I decided, despite the "fog and gloom," to drive out the ten-mile distance to two of my own parish who were ill and again discover the difficulty of getting places in this "funny" neighborhood near our church where no roads are winding or strange, yet where it is easy to get lost.

It was mid-afternoon and only one thing went wrong causing me to add too many miles to my speedometer in these times of scant gas supply: I turned the wrong way. I was in sight of the home, but did not recognize it and turned right instead of left—wrong instead of right. Had I turned left, I would have been right; but in turning right, I was wrong. It was wrong to turn right, just then. I do not wish to tell how many miles I drove to right the wrong of turning right; but it made a long trip before I reached the place again and thus righted the wrong turn.

Long, Wrong Turns

There are many of these wrong turns in life. We do too many of them and not all, unconsciously. "The wages of sin is death," which is but another way of saying, "Wrong turns lead to dreadful ends"—they make many sicknesses, too. Late meals, too large menus, concocted soft drinks and others stronger, all make trouble in our "insides" when we could have used good foods and pure water to bring health. Then, we pay doctors to give us poison potions to help us out of a dangerous "wrong turn." Late hours, irregular eating, "crying over spilled milk," arguing with those who "get the better of us"—all take a toll of health, happiness and vigor, the price of conscious folly all so easily avoided had we learned of James, the Psychiatrist of near 2,000 years ago, in chapter five of his brief message.

Right Was Wrong

Now, thinking I had turned right did not make it right, or wrong. It did not relocate the road or move the house. There are some things that way just because they are. Such is all truth. It is good that there are some things so static that they are immovable and irrevocable; that rock-bottom can be, and is sometimes reached. But two times two can never be anything but four. All the hard thinking of a century cannot change some things. We do, for sure, reach solid ground or truth sometimes; and by dogged persistence and tardy penitence, find we have not, when we thought we had. But none can change truth by thinking error any more than we may think we make our wrong directions to be right. It is thinking that has marked the progress of the race to great discoveries; but never just by thinking did anyone make left right, or wrong right. But some smarties have bumped their heads trying.

We Must Have Standards

Now, had there been a road sign pointing to the home of Brother Smith, I could easily and more undisturbed have driven there without the loss of miles, time and gasoline. But none being there, I missed it all. But we do have truth. Jesus said, "My Word is truth" and I think sufficient evidence has accumulated to verify beyond quibble that His Word is rock foundation. Here we can plant our feet where nothing can frustrate or move. The Holy Spirit was sent also to "guide into all the truth and to show things to come." John 16:13. If all would seek and follow this greatest unused Guide, all would reach the center of unity—Truth. Holy Spirit, Faithful Guide, lead us all. And here let me advise, claim the promises! Do not turn left here when the pointers turn right. "Elders" and sick people should read James 5 until they are able to reach the power of God in this beneficent command.

Remarkable Healings

A sister eight hundred miles from a dying brother was sick abed with serious kidney trouble. She was determined to visit him before he passed away. Her husband-preacher sent one hundred miles to get a helper to anoint her, who believed that anointing was for healing. She was anointed in the afternoon, and against protests, friends were compelled to get her clothes for her and she dressed, helped to get the supper, took the train next day for the long trip when trains went much slower than now. She was a cousin of my mother, first wife of the late W. C. Teeter.

A sister, wife of a doctor, "Mother of the Cradle Roll," during my pastorate at Philadelphia, was "wheel-chaired" with Elephantiasis, then at least, considered incurable. I asked her, when her faith was ready, to ask God for healing. In a few days she did. She was anointed. Immediately she began to reduce the size of her enlarged garments and in a week, as I remember, was walking with a cane. She entirely recovered and lived to be ninety-five.

A sister with cancer—three of them—was pronounced incurable by her doctor. I told her that when her faith was equal to it, to "call for the Elders of the church" to anoint her. In a few days she did. She fainted as the service proceeded. Next morning her doctor exclaimed, "Why Mrs. M., what has happened?" She told him and he laughed. But the sore which he had been dressing each morning was so changed that he was amazed. God had worked. All three sores healed; she bore another son to her husband and lived years longer to die of another disease entirely.

A rich man, still living I am told, and not keeping the promise he made, was very sick and disheartened with a lump aside his neck and face that, after examination, was diagnosed cancer. He renewed his covenant and two elders anointed him for healing. I'll never forget his first word after the service: "Well, now I am right with the Lord again!" He recovered; is still living, I am told, and I hope he reads this as a reminder.

Sylvester Lowman, still living, was the preacher in a Kansas parish; I was evangelist and Brother . . . was severely afflicted. The final phases of an incurable disease had been reached. He was dying. Lowman drove all night, over greasy Kansas roads, slipped into a ditch, got out, to get to the sick man, only to meet the doctor at the bedroom door and to be told that his parishioner had died. Lowman, full of faith, would not accept it thus; he went in and anointed him, and he raised up, and recovered and went back to his railroad job and lived, I do not know how long afterwards.

"My brethren, if anyone of you strays from the truth" (James 5:19) and fails to lay claim to this tested and tried method of bringing blessing to sick and ailing folk, "mull over" this a long, long time. Get the rockbottom facts and turn "right," right back to duty and privilege. Claim for your own all that is theirs and have your own faith enriched by happy experiences.

—Wabash, Indiana.

INDIANA BRETHREN

YOU ASKED FOR IT                      AND HERE IT IS

A Combined Program

Indiana State Conference Program
Bible Conference with Splendid Lecturers
Conference on Evangelism
Great Missionary Rally
Youth Emphasis

Date .....June 7 to 11
Place .....Beautiful Shipshewana Lake

Plan now for an inspiring week of vacation.
Plan your Daily Vacation Bible Schools accordingly.
Watch the Evangelist for further announcement.

L. V. King, Conference Secretary.

News From Our Churches

VINCO REVIVAL

It was our happy privilege to spend two weeks in a Revival with the Vinco, Pennsylvania, Brethren early in November.

Vinco is an unusually fine community with a definite future. It is growing continually. The Church there has a good testimony. Her message has been heard in the community and as "the salt" and "the light," her presence has been felt.

The Brethren at Vinco are preparing to meet the spiritual demands of a growing community. They are active and possess a sense of loyalty to things that are avowedly Christian. This is most commendable.

It is thrilling to one's soul to feel the sway of the Spirit upon the congregation of people gathering night after night. To see folks "come out" after some nights of conviction and deliberation. To receive them "in the name of Jesus." All of this after prayer has been made, the Word preached, and other human requirements have been met. Thus we witnessed at Vinco, a good response to the call of the Spirit.

Brethren from surrounding Brethren Churches added their good spirit to the services on several different evenings. They came from the Johnstown Churches, First, Second and Third, and from the Conemaugh Brethren Church. Others attended from the near-by Methodist Church, the Pleasant Hill Church of the Brethren and several other Churches, some bringing fine musical numbers.

Our material needs were well met. We made our home with the parsonage family, the W. S. Benshoffs. We enjoyed the comfort and the fellowship of their home immensely. Mrs. Berkshire, Sharon and Phyllis were able to be with us for the second week and helped with the music.

We express our deep appreciation for the way we were received in the many homes we were able to visit and the royal way in which we were received into the fellowship of the Brethren in general.

"Thanks be to God, which giveth us the victory through our Lord Jesus Christ."

W. Clayton Berkshire, New Lebanon, Ohio.

CERRO GORDO, ILLINOIS

It has been some time since a report from the Cerro Gordo church. This is not because of failure on the part of the church to accomplish anything but rather a matter of neglect. It is true there have been no startling accomplishments but rather a steady forward movement. All the special days of the church have been kept and offerings taken.

On Sunday, February 1st, Rev. Samuel Adams and wife began an Evangelistic service which continued to the 15th. Prior to their coming we had experienced a most mild winter, but they had no sooner begun their work than winter struck with a vengeance. We had our first real snow storm and the temperature dropped to zero and below. This together with an epidemic of measles and whooping cough kept many away. However the Christian people came out, but the unsaved were noticeable by their absence. Brother Adams preached the word with fervor and Sister Adams directed the singing in a most acceptable manner. The membership of the church was greatly strengthened. The other churches of the town co-operated in bringing special music. The robed chorus of the high school with some thirty-four voices were with us one evening.

Two, one a high school girl, and one younger made the great confession. The day following the close of the meeting another high school girl made her confession. Two of these have been baptized at this time. On Wednesday following this the church celebrated Holy Communion.

Forty-nine surrounded the tables of the Lord. Several were kept away by sickness.

A special word of comment should be made of our young people. On first coming to this field we had no young people upon whom we could depend. A union meeting of the three churches was being held. Because of conditions we withdrew from this and organized our own group. After a long period of struggling we now have a young people's group of which we can be proud. They meet each Thursday evening for Bible study and a discussion period. This week they are to go as a body to a neighboring town to sing at an Evangelistic service. They are earnest and determined to be of service to their Master. We also have a younger group of children that will soon be heard from. Thus little by little we move forward. Disheartening at times because of the slowness of it all and then taking new courage as we see progress being made. May God's blessing be on all His people is the prayer of the Cerro Gordo church.

C. E. Johnson.

---

EVANGELISTIC MEETING AT CERRO GORDO, ILLINOIS

Mrs. Adams and I were privileged to assist Rev. C. E. Johnson and the folks of Cerro Gordo in an evangelistic meeting which began February 1st, and ended February 15th. As we began our meeting weather conditions were ideal, but after the first two days of our meeting we had snow followed by zero and below zero weather.

The attendance was good. Interest in the Word of God was excellent. This made our ministry of music and speaking a real pleasure each night.

Our fellowship with the Cerro Gordo brethren was a source of inspiration. Their ministry to our physical needs at noon were beyond our words to describe.

We take this means of thanking the church for the opportunity of working with them. Our thanks for their fine offering. Brother Johnson and his preparation for the meeting was truly in keeping with the Word, effectual prayer. For this we were grateful.

We made our home with Brother and Sister Hess and they did everything possible to make us comfortable. We do thank the Lord for their hospitality.

The results of the meeting Brother Johnson will give. We trust seed was sown that in due season will bring forth fruit that will indeed be a blessing to the church. The people responded to the preaching of the Word—in that they sought the lost for Christ.

Mrs. Adams was helped tremendously with a good choir, and a fine spirit of cooperation in bringing special numbers of music either from their group or from visiting churches.

Rev. and Mrs. Samuel Adams, Pleasant Hill, Ohio.

---

UDELL, IOWA

Another Mid-Winter revival is now history, and we had a happy time in the Lord. Rev. E. J. Beekley of Canton, Ohio, came on the scene February 10, and preached every night till the 22nd. This is the minister that through the recent years we have desired that he be our successor on this field. We still hope and pray that it may be so, if the Lord wills. Brother Beekley was liked from the first, and won the esteem of the entire community. Three-fourths of the entire mixed audience on the closing service, with 100 people present, consented for his return next fall. Sure, we would like to turn the work over to him.

Rev. Beekley's stay among us was indeed a rich experience in his life and he had some wonderful surprises which he will not soon forget.

The average attendance for all services was 49-plus. On the last Sunday evening the attendance was a record breaker—the most people present for many, many years. We made close to half-hundred calls, and really some who had never made the good confession were deeply under conviction. We pray that they may soon yield in our follow-up work. We had many special numbers by both local and visiting people from other churches. Rev. Beekley's solos and object teaching was of the best. The general offerings took care of all the overhead, and the love offering was excellent. The Lord has never failed us yet.

The W. M. S. is doing a good work and has some new people coming.

We now have four classes in the church school and the attendance has been holding up good in spite of the severe cold winter of snow and ice and bad roads. We are grateful for the interest and prayers of friends far and near. The Lord bless you good.

W. R. Deeter.

---

OAKVILLE, INDIANA

The Oakville Brethren Church is anticipating Holy Week Services, March 21 to 28, with Rev. E. M. Riddle as Evangelist. In addition to these, there will be a Sunrise Service and Breakfast for the entire church and community on Easter Sunday. The day before, the children will enjoy an egg hunt on the Church lawn.

This will be a spiritual climax for our winter activities and a boost for the summer months ahead. We have had the usual program, starting with our Homecoming last fall with Rev. Willis E. Ronk as speaker. We have tried to stress Family and Community nights at Oakville, and at Thanksgiving time the men in the Church served a Supper in the basement of the Church, followed by a program in which the moving picture, "Beyond Our Own," was shown. At Christmas time, after the program by our children and Young People was presented, over two hundred met in the basement for fellowship. Again on New Year's Eve, we had an entire evening together, which proved to be an inspiration to all. Now we covet your prayers that our Easter Meeting might bring many into our church fold. We have received twenty-one into the church during the time spent here.

Deaths from 1946 to 1948 have taken the following persons from our midst: Minnie Peckinpugh, Ludie Bowman, Roy Keesling, Ralph Ball, George Teeter, Rosa Hol-singer, infant son of Mr. and Mrs. George Ring, George Hoover, George Metzker, and Mrs. Mary Ellison.

James E. Ault, pastor.

The Brethren Evangelist

MANCHESTER COLLEGE
NORTH MANCHESTER, INDIANA

Vol LXX, No 12 March 20, 1948
Missionary Board Number

Brethren Historical Library
Manchester College
North Manchester, Ind. comp

THE BRETHREN EVANGELIST

Published weekly, except the last week in August and
the last week in December.

THE BRETHREN PUBLISHING COMPANY

Ashland, Ohio

PRUDENTIAL COMMITTEE

J. E. Stookey, President N. G. Kimmel, Vice-President
J. G. Dodds, Secretary-Treasurer

EDITOR OF PUBLICATIONS—F. C. Vanator

BUSINESS MANAGER—G. S. Baer

EDITOR MISSIONARY NUMBER—E. M. Riddle

CONTRIBUTING EDITORS

Dr. Charles A. Bame Rev. Dyoll Belote

DEPARTMENTAL EDITORS

Dr. C. F. Yoder, Brethren Doctrine
Rev. N. V. Leatherman, Practical Church Problems
Rev. J. G. Dodds, National Goals
Dr. R. F. Porte, Brethren Church History

PLEASE REMEMBER: All material for publication in the Evangelist must be in the hands of the editor at least three weeks before the desired date of publication, to assure same to appear in desired issue. This refers to announcements particularly.

TERMS OF SUBSCRIPTION: $1.50 per year in advance.
CHANGE OF ADDRESS: In ordering change of address always
give both old and new addresses.

REMITTANCES: Send all money, business communications, and contributed articles to:

THE BRETHREN PUBLISHING COMPANY
ASHLAND, OHIO

Entered as second class matter at Ashland, Ohio. Accepted for mailing
at special rate, section 1103, act of October 3, 1917. Authorized
September 3, 1928.

The

Field Secretary

Travels

In the shift from one date book to the new one for the beginning of the year, two churches were missed in my last report.

Mansfield—December 14 we visited our Mansfield Church where Brother and Sister Eppley are in charge. There was a good attendance and a fine spirit in the services. A number of new improvements have been made to this church such as new cement steps, aisle and platform carpets and floors refinished. A well-kept church speaks volumes for the congregation.

Glenford—On the last Sunday of the year the Secre-

The Pastors' Institute Post-Easter Week

March 29-31, April 1

At

Ashland, Ohio

Excellent Speakers

Inspirational Fellowship

Have you written for lodging reservations?

Write Mrs. W. A. Beeghly

502 Samaritan Ave., Ashland, Ohio.

tary travelled with Brother Glenn Shank to Glenford. This is an old congregation and has been served by some of the best preachers of the denomination. A good number of the leaders of this group live 20 miles or more distant, at Newark. This church has been shepherded almost exclusively by student pastors.

Nappanee—The first Sunday in February I spoke to a very excellent audience in the new basement of the Nappanee Church. Two hundred, sixty-eight gathered on a cold morning for Sunday School. There was a fine interest and great eagerness for the completion of the church edifice. This little town has more students in Ashland College than any other except towns or cities in Ashland County. Still more will be coming next year. The Bowmans have done a fine service here.

New Paris—In the evening it was a joy to speak in the New Paris Church, where Brother C. A. Stewart is pastor. Having been here many times before it was like getting home. Here we always visit Elder and Mrs. G. W. Rench. This church is small numerically, but rich in talent and willingness to give. Their missionary giving has been outstanding.

Goshen—On the same trip, in the absence of Rev. W. E. Ronk, I was called to speak for the Laymen's group at Goshen. The men served a fine dinner and had a good program, with a good attendance.

Other contacts were made at Elkhart, Warsaw, Columbus, Bellefontaine (Gretna), Williamstown, and Upper Sandusky.

New recruits for the ministry are being found. New enlistments are being made for missionary service. We pray and expect that every one shall enter our own college and seminary for training.

Pray that many souls shall be brought to the Lord Jesus during these pre-Easter days.

E. M. Riddle, Field Secretary.

“ . . . If I

Be Lifted Up . . . ”

by Arthur R. Baer

On Easter thousands will be in church who haven't darkened its doors for months. The depressing stretch of empty pews will be filled. The church will echo the hymns of the Cross and the Empty Tomb.

One is tempted to be a bit cynical about it. We might scoff at a fashion parade that finds its way to the church but once a year. We might call it an unholy sham as we see the finery on parade in a church dedicated to One Who was despised and rejected. We might be partly right; there is much of sham in this flood of worshipers at this season. Yet the real reason is much deeper than that. The sham is there but the reality is there also. That is why Easter has held the power to draw men and to empassion hearts and fill them anew with a vision of the Christ. With all our insincerity and worldliness, with all our proud spirit and fine apparel, there is within, something that cannot resist the appeal of Easter. There is a spark of the spirit of the Master, and for one day at least, it will not be denied.

Thousands may be lured by the voice of some silver tongued orator, by the soul stirring anthem of the choir, or the beautiful ritual; but there is something within that answers a call more universal than these, that is the eternal appeal of the Cross. "And I, if I be lifted up . . ." It is the eternal magnetism of Calvary.

You have seen a magnet. You know what it is and what it does. The magnet will draw things to itself of like nature. It can also pass on its power of attraction to things of similar nature. If you stroke a needle with a magnet, it too, will become a magnet. If you rub your knife over a magnet it also will gather the power to attract. A magnet will pick up needles, pins, nails and scores of other things. Some cities have magnetic street cleaning machines to pick up nails and other metallic substances to protect automobile tires. I remember seeing a huge electro-magnet at a steel mill. This magnet suspended from a huge crane was dropped into a pile of scrap iron and tons of the scrap metal would cling to the magnet to be transported to the blast furnace.

Not only are iron and steel magnets, we too, are magnets. We attract each other, or we repel. Some influence for good and others for evil. Meet some people and the touch of human love throws a spell over you, meet others and they irritate you. Our homes are magnets and its occupants are magnets in varying degrees. Books are magnets. Beautiful things are magnets. The good things of heaven and earth charm us, attract us and win us. The best things in life are drawn out that way.

How does a magnet attract iron filings? By discovering within the filings that which is akin to itself. Every bit of filing is a magnet in miniature. How do the flowers attract the bee? By the beauty of their form and color, and by the richness of their fragrance. How does a father win back a wayward son? By the eagerness of his quest, and the stretch of love that never rests until he finds him. That, too, is the way Jesus attracts. By winsomeness, by the tenderness of his human sympathy and the redeeming quality of His sacrificial love. A woman in her bewilderment said to him once, "Thou hast nothing to draw with . . ." She did not know Him then. He had his way of drawing. The church's greatest attraction today is neither its elaborate music, nor its popular sermon. These of themselves will never meet the situation.

Our text is of the greatest magnetic power of all, the power of the Cross. Christ said, "And I, if I be lifted up from the earth will draw all men unto me." It was not said that he would draw part of the race, nor just a superior race, not just the whites nor blacks, not just the Jews or any other group, but ALL men. At another place the command was given, "Go therefore and teach all nations, baptising them in the name of the Father and of the Son and of the Holy Spirit . . ." It was All nations, not just one nation, nor the most powerful, or the most civilized.

Jesus drew unto himself and ministered to all kinds of people. You remember of course the blind beggar. Sometime ago I saw a blind man on a street in Wheeling. He was walking faster than most blind men do and he almost ran into a small frail old lady. I thought how helpless most blind people are! In all likelihood the blind beggar whose eyes Christ opened was a person with a monotonous past and hopeless future. He may have come from a background of poverty or even of filth. With neither money nor education he didn't amount to much in the community. His friends were likely as powerless to help as he himself. Yet Jesus saw his potential worth, the things which might transpire for him, and said: "Receive thy sight, thy faith hath saved thee."

The Master drew unto himself and had fellowship with all kinds of people. Every sort of helpless person, physically and spiritually seemed to gravitate toward Him. We see Him talking to the woman in sin. In her early life she too had had aspirations, even as you and I. Then something happened to her hopes. It may be that she simply got into the wrong crowd and found herself slipping to the bottom. The glories of the past and the hopes for the future had long since become a faded dream. Naturally, her companions would be of the lowest. She was an outcast woman, looked upon by other women with scorn and disgust. Yet she was the object of Jesus' love and magnetic power.

Think of the various types of people with whom Jesus has fellowship and who are unable to resist His appeal. There was the impulsive Peter; the lovable John; the educated politician Nicodemus; the wealthy Joseph of Arimathea. Christ loved and drew all—the rich, the poor, the learned, the ignorant, the social, the anti-social, the ambitious, the lazy, the black, the white, of whatever color or condition. He saw the world of men and loved them so deeply that He died for them, each one of them, that he might draw them unto himself.

Jesus drew men unto himself that they might have abundant life. "I am come" he said, "that they might have life, and have it more abundantly." Christ drew men unto himself because he is sufficient for every need. No man's problem is too great for Him. Being aware of the sins of the world, that it is a malignant growth on the souls of men, He challenges us to take our place along side the Cross, and realize his sufficiency. The Christ of yesterday has become the triumphant Christ of today.

It is easy to talk about the triumph of Jesus, but through the Church he brings to us a personal responsibility. The task is not an easy one, which comes to us in His words, "And I, if I be lifted up . . ." The task is plain, we must lift up the Christ in the midst of misery, suffering, sin and chaos. It has been our privilege to be drawn to the foot of the Cross, it is also our privilege to allow its magnetic power to work through us that all men may know Him, "Whom to know aright is life everlasting."

It has been our privilege to read of the abundant power manifested in the life of the early Church. It is our privilege, if we will, to live and work in a church that is not only drawn, but exerts the irresistible appeal of the Man of Calvary. The Church which uplifts the Christ, will alone, have that power. As, and if, we are sure of the drawing power of the Cross, let us go forth to make it real in our lives. He remains forever our greatest attraction.

Once and for All, Christ has been lifted up on the Cross of Calvary. It remains for us to lift Him up in our pulpits and in our daily life, and we can be sure that He will still draw men unto Himself.

—Cameron, W. Va.

THE STEWARDSHIP OF GUIDANCE

That was a very sober word that Mary spoke to the servants when she said: "Whatsoever he saith unto you, do it." The mother of our Lord probably knew very little about the doctrine of the Holy Spirit, and she had never heard the word "guidance," but she knew a simple principle of life so thoroughly that she warned the servants very carefully. "When you understand what he has told you, do it."

It is a very common thing for Christians to pray, "Show me the way, teach me thy will." The fact is, however, that most of us have enough guidance at all times to keep us busy doing our duty. Few of us need more guidance; most of us need to follow the guidance we already have.

It very rarely happens that any Christian, face to face with a known duty, is in any doubt as to what he ought to do. He may be unwilling to do what he knows he should do, but he has no doubt as to the "oughtness" of the situation.

On one occasion a friend is said to have remarked to Mark Twain: "There is a lot in the Bible that I do not understand, and it troubles me," to which the great humorist-philosopher replied, "I am not troubled much by the things in the Bible I do not understand. It is the things that are perfectly plain which I do not want to do that give me trouble."

Somewhere among Jesus' words is the expression: "To him that hath shall be given." He does not seem to have spoken those words in connection with any discussion of the question of guidance, but they have a very intimate relationship to that theme.

To the man who has guidance, and follows it, shall be given more guidance. We learn as we act; we grow as we put forth effort; the path becomes plain as we walk in it.

Once that a duty becomes perfectly plain, so that there is no doubt about it, we may be absolutely sure that we will receive no more light until we have walked in that which is already ours.

To have guidance from God—to be shown the way—we must stand ready to walk out into the light whenever it appears. God does not waste knowledge upon those who will not use it; he does not grant light to those who will not walk in it. To have knowledge we must act upon such as we already have; to be given guidance we must stand ready to follow it wherever it leads.

The servants could not have anticipated the amazing results that were to follow their filling of the water jars. That was not their responsibility. They were not commanded to see into the future, but to do the present duty. They earned their reward by seeing their works blessed far beyond all they could have anticipated. God does not need those who can see to the end of the road, but those who are willing to take the next step.

—by Roy L. Smith.

Seven Words Reveal

Our Redeemer On The Cross

by John F. Locke

Crises and emergencies in our lives reveal our real characters. If you had stood near that cross so long ago, a stranger in the crowd attracted there by the tumult, what would you have learned about Jesus the Messiah? Palm Sunday and the events of Holy Week emphasize the admonition "Behold your King." At Calvary we behold Him suffer. These seven sayings preserved for us by the Gospel writers have a perennial significance for mankind. They reveal so much about Him, who is our Savior and our Life. They reveal that He was Himself to the very end. Not only on some sunny day among friends is He the Way, the Truth, and the Life . . . but now! The last cruel hours of suffering provide a dark background against which His sayings and His life glow with radiant luminence. Hate, selfishness, insane fury, human littleness, only serve to accentuate His love, His unselfishness, His complete sanity, His Divine mercy. He did not have to die. This is not the death of just the best man who ever lived. He is facing death for every man. He is dying for the sins of the world. This is God dying for the redemption of humanity lost in sin. Since this is true we shall listen with no common interest to what he says in these last hours.

I.

The first that He said after the cross was lifted up and allowed to slide down into the hole prepared for it, was a word of Intercession. It reveals His boundless love. "Father forgive them for they know not what they do." He did not cease to love humanity, all humanity. He had taught love for enemies, to pray for those who persecute you, now He does it! Humanity was here conducting itself abominably. Those who surged about the cross were driven by fierce hatreds, merciless cruelty, stupid ignorance, blind folly. It is rather easy to love one's fellowmen when they are behaving nicely, or with courage and dignity. But here is love so amazing, so divine, that it embraces all, even the enemies that have hated without cause. It does not balk at those who have borne false witness which has led to a whole series of indignities culminating in the crown of thorns, the beating, and now, the death by crucifixion . . . a horrible way of execution because it was slower, prolonging the agony of suffering.

One famous scholar says it is certain that Jesus spoke these words for they are utterly unlike anyone else. If we are to be like Him let these words arrest our mind and claim its thoughtful meditation. The Centurion in charge of the detail of soldiers must have been shocked by these words. They undoubtedly helped him to arrive at his evaluation of Jesus, "Truly this man was the Son of God."

II.

The second word is one of pardon revealing His saving power. He assured the penitent thief, "Today shalt thou be with me in paradise." Here is a promise of immediate and conscious fellowship after death in paradise. Paradise is a Persian word and does not signify an intermediate state, but connotes the very bliss of heaven itself. Xenophon uses the word for an enclosed park or pleasure ground. In Rev. 2:7 the word is used again, "To him that overcometh I will give to eat of the tree of life, which is in the midst of the paradise of God." The abode of God is a garden of delight, not some hazy intermediate state. How like Him was this act! He was always ready to pardon every repentant sinner . . . "Him that cometh I will in no wise cast out." The Cross reveals the worth of man. Man is the brother for whom Christ died. The worst thing that could have happened to anyone in the Roman world happened to that thief that day, but it was the best thing that could have happened too, for Jesus turned it into the road to Paradise. The worst turns to the best in His hands.

It is for each of us to say whether we shall enter Paradise with Him. We can if we will.

The dying thief rejoiced to see
That fountain in His day
And there may I, though vile as he Wash all my sins away!

III.

Our Savior is revealed in His compassionate providence for His mother. Whatever He had done for humanity as a whole, or for individuals here and there, no more lovable act, endearing Him to us, is recorded than this one in which He sees to it that His mother shall be cared for. Perhaps He delayed the beginning of His public ministry until he was thirty, in order to help his widowed mother rear the family of younger children.

Men may rise high in the esteem of their fellows and snatch many of the worldly honors and prizes, but they are essentially little and unlovable, if they lack this same concern and esteem for the one who first cared for them and taught them, who kissed away their childish fears and bruises. A degenerate society forgets its old and neglects its young. A Christian society will provide for both just as a Christian individual must. His birth and death scenes forever consecrate motherhood.

Herein His unselfish love is again to be seen. He forgot Himself to the last being concerned with others. Dying for the whole world did not cause Him to forget His own mother.

IV.

His fourth saying from the cross reveals Him dying in the sinner's stead. "My God, why hast thou forsaken me?" Who can measure the depths to which these words take us? Forsaken, even of God, because He is the sin-bearing Savior, the Lamb being slain for the sins of the world. He who knew no sin became sin for us, suffering for our sakes. When the evil scoffers taunted Him, suggesting if He were indeed the Son of God He should come down, He stayed, FOR US! This saying seems the very climax of despair. In it is summed up the agony of being alone, forsaken by Friends, Religion, and Law. He need not have done it. He chose the cross. He laid down His life to save. He became sin that He might forever effectively deal with sin for all who will believe.

V.

The fifth word allows us to behold Him in physical suffering. He the Great High Priest is touched with the feeling of our infirmities. He has fellowship with our sufferings. His agonies were greatest in the realm of spirit, but He suffered as a man. "I Thirst." Fainting from loss of blood, the acute and unrelieved pain, the human nature of our Lord calls out for some temporary relief. We are told that no physical pain is greater than the extreme thirst which accompanies the agonies of death brought on by the loss of blood. The torments of Hell are represented by a violent thirst, when Dives begs for a drop of water to cool his tongue. To that everlasting thirst we are condemned but for the atoning death of Christ.

Christ on the Cross was spoiling powers and principalities of evil, setting us free. Only this one time, are we reminded by His words of the physical suffering He endured. Jesus was a realist. There are people who try to build a sort of philosophy out of His teachings, who exclude the reality of pain and suffering and death. They say these things are not real. But Jesus never taught anything of the sort. He never taught foolishness. He dealt with fact. We know that our Great High Priest understands all about our everyday realities, heartaches, and sufferings.

VI.

In the sixth saying we behold Him in the assurance of victory. "It is finished." All that He had come to do was now done. Atonement for sin is now complete. Salvation is now a fact. The fountain for cleansing is now open. The foundation for peace and happiness has been laid that shall never fail. The malice and enmity of his persecutors is able to do no more. The Father's will has been done. The ceremonial law is accomplished, for the veil of the temple is now rent from top to bottom. Sin is finished, for now the Lamb of God is perfected to take away sin. His sufferings are finished and He is about to enter Paradise. In all history no one ever accomplished so much. An infinity of meaning is compressed into this statement.

VII.

The seventh statement from the Cross reveals His peace. "Father into thy hands I commend my spirit." "That is the way to die," you say. To the Christian death can be like that, a rendering up of the spirit to the Father. His peace He gives to us. It is so unlike the world's peace. Into whose hands dare you commit your spirit if today were your last mortal one? Behold your suffering Savior. Look to Him and Live! Honor Him with your lips and with your heart. Crown Him with many crowns . . . Crown Him Lord of all. Behold, how He deserves it!

One man who gave himself wholly to Christ called Him "King of kings and Lord of Lords." Another saw Him in heaven and reports, "On His head were many crowns." When you survey Him on His wondrous cross what is your reaction? Are we not under obligation to herald the story of the Cross to all men? Must we not love Him supremely who first loved us? Some day He will remind us, "I was a thirst." How shall it be reported that we acted? To a world in sufferings and hellishness, carnage and slaughter, ignorance and darkness, crying for help, did we carry a vinegar sponge or the water of Life?

Look once more to Calvary and then take a good look at what you are doing for Him, who did everything for you there. Surveying the cross may make us ashamed of ourselves. But it may also make us more like Him and far more useful to Him.

No wonder a Christian poet wrote,

"Beneath the cross of Jesus
I fain would take my stand."

There is no other refuge from sin, sorrow, loneliness, failure and cruelty, the emptiness and uselessness of life, no better place to see Him as my Savior and my Friend.

—Maurertown, Va.

NOTICE

Joseph D. Hamel of Johnstown, Pa., living in Ashland, Ohio, has been granted permission to preach the Gospel and conduct the Ordinances of the Brethren Church as a licensed minister by the Johnstown, Pa., Second Brethren Church, by authority of the Ministerial Examining Board of the Pennsylvania District Conference of the Brethren Church, for one year beginning February 8, 1948.

Rev. Hamel is the present pastor of the Fairhaven Brethren Church.

The Unbroken Promise

by D. R. Wolfe

Heaven only knows how many millions of persons have lived and died without ever having found Peace! It is equally impossible to estimate how many millions more are searching vainly for that Peace of Mind of Joshua Leibman's. Most individuals are living as if life were a valley of tears through which man must pass before he reaches the inevitable axe of destiny. With such a vulgar conception of life it is not any wonder that man cannot find Peace.

Modern man is afraid! He is afraid of his World; he is wary of his fellow man; he is frightened at the mysterious prospects of Life; and he trembles before the on-rushing tidal wave of Death. The only effective antidote of fear is peace. Call it Faith, Happiness, Hope, whatever you will, it is still peace. Earth's crying need is Peace. Not that shallow peace that will allow life to go on but which really does nothing but cloak the fear under an outer covering. What is really needed is the Peace of God that passes understanding. Human life depends upon the realization of that Peace!

Man has no real peace either within or without. "Within are tumults and without are fears." It is precisely as Jesus predicted, "In the world ye shall have tribulation"—but, "Peace I leave with you." Real Peace must coincide with life, here and now. The world of force and power in which we live is not conducive to peace. We lack the moral and spiritual power to keep our vast scientific achievements and particularly our own selves under control and to use them only for constructive purposes. We have a sense of power and greatness, but we do not possess the necessary sense of responsibility to direct our prowess toward the achievement of peace and security. This is the paradox of our times. We are the strongest people of all ages, yet our strength is brought to naught by our own moral weakness, and the result is a lack of peace and the sense of futility which plagues our times.

All men are searching for something outside of life although they may not be conscious of their quest. If man is ever to have peace he must first realize that it is not a part of life as we find life; and he must be willing to pay the price of that peace. It is time for men to realize that life is not a game we can play as children play "Farmer in the Dell" or "Ring around-the-rosey." It is a much more serious business that rightfully demands our highest ideals and our most concerted efforts. Life does not work like a slot machine with peace and happiness as the "jack-pot." We get back from life exactly what we put into it. If we live a nickle and dime existence we are not going to get back two-bits. It is wrong, dreadfully wrong, to gamble with human life and human happiness, regardless of how high the stakes may be. If human life is ever to be peaceful, man must know without a doubt that he wants Peace and that he will never cease searching for it until it is achieved, even though it takes the rest of his life. When human lives and happiness are at stake a lifetime itself is not too great a price of peace.

The "Peace of God" and the peace of the world are not one and the same thing. The peace of the world is at best only a temporary armistice because men have not taken the time to define peace. In spite of wars, social reforms and treaties we have no peace. In fact, peace may not come to our times at all. Peace is not a state of affairs, it is a state of mind. Man can have peace in the midst of war or in the depths of tragedy, but it is a peace which cannot be defined. Peace defies definition precisely because it is the "peace that passes understanding."

Man has no natural peace. Although many attempts have been made to identify man with the peace and harmony of the natural world, it has not brought the peace of nature. While it is true that there is a peace of nature, that there are no moral conflicts in the natural world, that the world of things is not torn asunder by fratricidal strifes; that peace cannot satisfy the needs of human life. What is needed is not a peace that will free man from these moral conflicts, but a peace which will enable him to see through the cloak of immediate darkness and reveal the true character of life and its conflicts. Human life will never be free from conflicts, never, so long as man is free!

Nor can we depend upon the peace of the world which is really a peace of force. A forced peace eventually breaks into open rebellion and you have no peace at all. The only effective peace for man is "The peace of God" which is a peace of Love. Love man can understand and appreciate for Love is indeed the law of life. It is not peace free from the conflicts of human life, but it is not conquered by those conflicts. "The 'Peace of God' has pain and sorrow in it," because it is a peace that man understands and knows. It is the peace which sent Jesus Christ to the Cross and it is the same peace which brought Him triumphant from the grave.

Easter brings us face to face with the greatest force in the world—Immortality, the spiritual manifestation of the "Peace of God." We must admit that here is a difficult story. Men just don't rise up from the dead, pass through solid walls and doors and suddenly ascend into the heavens. Yet, every attempt to discredit the resurrection story has failed! Science can say "impossible," yet you and I are living in a civilization built upon the reality

Easter Morn

A woman bent with weeping
Outside a rock-hewn tomb,
A loving watch is keeping
Throughout a night of gloom.
The Sabbath Day is ending
But what is time or place?
For early on the morning
Again she'll see His face.

Softly the day is breaking,
Lighter the shadows seem;
Far over Judea's mountains
The morning star is seen.
O Master, I must see Thee,
She sobbed, too grieved to pray.
Then sorrowfully wondered,
"Who'll roll the stone away?"

And now the day grows brighter,
The shadows all have fled;
She comes with costly spices
For her beloved dead.
The last time she shall see Him,
But, where is He who died?
Behold! the tomb is empty,
The door is open wide.

Her eyes are dimmed with weeping,
A workman's form she spies,
And thinking Him the gardener,
"Oh, give Him back!" she cries.
Her name is spoken softly,
"Mary!" Her fears are gone.
All hail Thee! Master, Jesus
It was the Easter Morn.

of that resurrection. Take away the story of the resurrection and the whole world will fall before your very eyes. Life is not founded upon a myth, and the empires of the past that were, are today only pages in a history book or objects of archeological research. The evidence of the resurrection is overwhelming.

But, men must decide for themselves whether the empty tomb is a fact or a fraud, and live accordingly. Immortality and the "Peace of God" are both proofs of the reality of the resurrection and testimony of the empty tomb. Easter has given new meaning to human life, the meaning of immortality and eternal life. Immortality does not begin at the grave but is always a part of human life. This is the peace that Jesus promised and gave to the world. Whenever the fear of life and death is overcome and man realizes that he is immortal and God is eternal, then, and then only is man free from conflicts which tear at his soul and heart. Only with this in mind can man achieve the "Peace that passes understanding." Any other peace is selling life short and is sacrificing the only real part of life.

The only possible peace for man is the Peace of Love. That is the Peace which Jesus promised that he would leave with the believers. Fortified with this Peace, life is never a crisis, never disastrous, and certainly never vain. Immortality is the promise of the empty tomb, and He who triumphed over the power of the grave says to the whole world, "Peace be unto you."

—Ashland, Ohio.

The Message of the Book

James

by Chester F. Zimmerman

James was a great believer in activity. Activity that was backed by faith was the motto, dream, vision, burning desire, or whatever you may wish to call it. James had no place for those who placidly admitted to faith but showed no life or activity.

We are told that there is a wide, shallow river in Arizona, the Rio Puerco that has this peculiarity — its bed is nearly all quicksand on which you may travel with safety providing you keep moving, but the instant a halt is made the treacherous sands begin to engulf you. How like the world that is! God never intended that we should tarry in it since "the fall." The Christian must keep moving or become submerged in its sands. James was setting forth this principle in clarity and preciseness when he said that faith without works is dead being alone.

The missionary message of the second chapter is summed up in the word "do." It is a ringing challenge for all men of faith, everywhere. Ask yourself this question: "What have I done that will stand the light of eternity?" Think how many live like a sewing woman, sewing all day long, and then suddenly discovering that her needle is not threaded. How many like a man pushing from the shore at night, and after rowing till his hands are sore, wonders why he has not reached the opposite shore, and as the morning comes and as night is lifted, to his amazement he discovers that his boat is tied to a post. Life is like a bag full of holes, things are put in, but at last nothing is seen. James tied faith and works together in his message of missions and put meaning and worth into every activity.

"Free to serve!" These words were uttered by a thoughtful woman as she saw a great vessel loosed to plough its way into the ocean. In the water only could it find its native element. It was in bondage until it was launched. It found its freedom in its preparedness for service. A man is like that ship. He is not free when he is his own, withheld from God. His truest freedom comes by submission, his emancipation by surrender; he has a man's will only when he submits his will to God's will. God's will is the ocean to him, his native element. Once in that element once fully yielded to God, he, like the ship in the ocean, is free indeed. He is "free to serve," and in serving finds his highest liberty. There is no limiting of faith in the book of James, unless there is a limiting of the ocean of God's will in our minds.

Just a few hours after the awful Iroquois theater fire in Chicago, a lady who was returning from the city to her home at Oak Park, noticed in the seat opposite her in the street car, a young lady who seemed so pale and agitated that she finally ventured to engage her in conversation and asked the cause of her unusual excitement. With intense emotion, the young lady stated that she was one of the few who had escaped unhurt from the terrible disaster at the theater, having been borne along with the fear maddened crowd, trampling upon the writhing forms of those who had fallen, never to rise again. When she had finished, the older lady said: "Certainly you ought to feel thankful that you escaped such a frightful death." Quickly the now weeping girl replied "Yes I know I ought to be thankful, but oh, I didn't save anyone!" Hoping to comfort her, the lady soothingly said, "Yes, dear, but you were perfectly excusable in acting for yourself under such intense excitement." Instead of taking comfort from the words the trembling girl only bowed her head and sobbed aloud, "Yes, but I didn't even try to help anyone." That same cry will arise from the lips of many a Christian some day when it is known that loved ones in the home died worse than physical deaths, and yet they hadn't even tried to help save them. The appeal of James is not limited to home or city or country. His practical appeal is for us to do, today, what we can and must do. Faith and works going hand in hand to accomplish the Lord's will. To James the burning shame was that we do not try.

A young man who had heard the gospel accepted Christ. A little while after this, a Christian teacher asked him: "What have you done for Christ since you believed?" He replied: "Oh, I'm a learner." "Well," said the questioner "when you light a candle do you light it to make the candle more comfortable, or to have it give light?" He replied, "To give light." "Do you expect it to give light after it is half burned, or when you first light it?" He replied, "As soon as you first light it." "Very well," was the reply, "go thou and do likewise; begin at once." Shortly after there were fifty more Christians in town as a result of the man's work. Faith and work go together.

—Johnstown, Pa.

Foreign Missions

A LETTER FROM DALE AND NORMA ROESCH, CASTANER, PUERTO RICO

Dear Friends:

It does not seem possible that we have been here four months. We both feel like we know something of the work now. There is much to learn, and if we only could speak Spanish. Little by little we are learning to understand it, but maybe we get too impatient.

Norma's work is much the same as it was at home only more along the supervising line. She is in charge of the linens also, and that means keeping the hospital clothes mended, see to the issuing of new clothes and linen to unit members in the hospital.

We have a Puerto Rican who sews three hours a day. With the nurses helping in spare time we manage to keep our heads above water, or clothes, I should say.

All the Puerto Ricans in the hospital are fine workers and we enjoy working with them very much. Making out the schedule is quite a problem because of scheduling help in both the clinic and hospital. We have two clinics off the grounds and one that is connected with the hospital where all emergencies come.

We are starting a new class of nurse aides and orderlies next month. We cannot employ all we instruct, but we feel it is a way of teaching health, and some of the girls and boys have been able to find employment in other hospitals. We have two classes a year of around six or seven students.

Most of our emergency cases in the hospital are from machete cuts, either from fighting or working with them. Everyone carries one with him all the time. The machete is a large knife about a yard long. There are many cases of abdominal parasites.

I am enjoying my work very much. I am in charge of all laboratory work and have one Puerto Rican helper in making analyses. When I cannot be there no work is done so I am starting a class to teach other unit members some of the test and emergency work such as blood typing. Next week we are going to spend a couple of days at another hospital to see how they operate. I shall spend some time in the laboratory learning some of the tests, and Norma will observe in the hospital.

We hope that you will continue to pray for us that we might do our work as the Lord plans it, and that we shall not only attend to the needs of the physical but the spiritual as well. We are gaining a lot of good experience and hope that we shall be able to help the Puerto Ricans as much as they are helping us.

Yours in Christ,
Dale and Norma Roesch
PRRA, Castaner Project
Castaner, Puerto Rico.

This boy is almost 2 years old. Weighs 13 pounds now, but only weighed 10 when he came in to the hospital. He is just now picking up and has been in since- December 1

View of the unit at Castaner

The following is an excerpt from a letter written by Norma Roesch on February 15, 1948.

The scenery is really beautiful and we have climbed a couple of mountains to get a better view. One Sunday a group of six of us got up at 3:30 A. M. to hike up a mountain to see the sunrise. That was really something, climbing by flashlight, and then it was cold at the top because we were in the clouds. Then we only had glimpses of the sunrise between clouds going by. For worship we had a meditation period and it certainly was impressive to look out over the hill and see the ocean on one side, many colored trees and homes sprinkled all over the hills.

You'll have to wait until we are back to show you the pictures. We are making colored slides and with these you will be able to appreciate some of the beauty we live in. Of course, it isn't all beauty because of the poor homes and conditions, but it is a blessing they have something that is beautiful.

The Bucare trees are out now and you can see whole valleys full of this deep orange tree. Valentine's day one of the girls brought me two gardenias and Dale picked me some red flowers that I don't know the name of yet. They have many beautiful flowers—roses, lilies of different kinds, and many others. There are also many kinds of ferns growing around.

Home made out of palm leaves

The orange season is about over and we are going to miss them. The coffee season is over also, but the cane season is just starting. That will mean more machete cuts because they cut all their cane with these big knives. Don't see how we can have many more though, because someone is always fighting with them. One boy came in one Sunday morning with about 5 minor cuts and one large one about four inches long on the head that cut part way into the bone. He recovered without any apparent after effects, but was afraid to go home because he was living with his sister and it was her husband that cut him.

Two friends will get drunk, then mad, and cut each other up, and also bring each other to the hospital. It has even been known that after being sewed up, they went right out and started fighting again.

We have to be careful not to admire anything too much or they will just give it to you, including children. Even if they need things very badly, or it is the last they have, they will give anything to you if they know you admire it. Some of them try to show their appreciation in that way.

---

"A layman sometimes feels that he is unimportant in a church unless he is an officer or at least a member of a committee. He should remember that a church without laymen would scarcely be a church at all. The work of a church reaches fruition only when the Christian ideals which it teaches are put into practice outside the church by its laymen in everyday life."

—F. C. Shipley, City College of N. Y.

If you want to keep the health of Christ, keep from all spiritual sores, from heart wounds and irritations. One hour of fretting will wear out more vitality than a week of work; and one minute of malignity or rankling jealousy or envy will hurt more than a drink of poison. Sweetness of spirit and joyousness of heart are essential to full health—A. B. Simpson.

The Christian's Responsibility to Missions

by Spencer Gentle

When I think of my responsibility to the Missionary Program, my mind automatically rehearses the Great Commission as we find it in the 19th verse of the 28th chapter of St. Matthew's Gospel: "Go ye therefore, and teach all nations, baptizing them in the name of the Father, and of the Son, and of the Holy Ghost . . ."

This should be the experience of every Christian today, because this Great Commission was given for you and for me. It was not given for the disciples only, it was not given for missionaries only, it was not given to preachers only, but it was given to EVERY Christian. We have a responsibility to the Missionary Program, and all of us can and MUST feel that responsibility and then do something about it.

Each and every Christian has to go to the Mission field, and he can go in prayer, by giving, or by going himself.

In the 9th chapter of Matthew, we find these words of Jesus: "The harvest truly is plenteous, but the laborers are few; pray ye therefore the Lord of the harvest, that he will send forth labourers into his harvest." Every Christian should pray earnestly and often for our missionaries, and for missionary fields all over the world, because Jesus has commanded us to. So many people are afraid to pray "that he will send forth labourers into his harvest" because they are fearful that God will send them. If this be the case, then let us pray even more earnestly about it. Every missionary with whom we talk tells us that prayer is the most important factor in his work; his prayers in the field, and those prayers which are being offered back home. If Christ thought it important enough to command us to pray concerning this great work, then He will hear and answer our prayers.

A Christian's first responsibility to the Missionary Program is that of prayer. Let us Pray!

Then, we must go to the mission field by our giving. I think the reason that we don't give more for missionary work is because we do not realize how much good a little can do. We spend great sums of money here at home to advance the Christian cause, but it seems that very little good is done. It is quite the opposite in our mission fields. Missionaries tell us that literally thousands of lost souls in heathen lands are saved upon their first hearing of the wonderful name of Jesus Christ. Isn't it worth a few dollars on our part if one soul can be brought to Christ? I have a friend who is very much interested in the missionary work and he gives a good portion of his salary toward this work. He has also made it a practice not to send flowers when a loved one or a friend passes on, but to send five or ten dollars or even more to a mission center, and within a few days the bereaved family will receive a notice that a living memorial has been set up in memory of the departed one in the form of mission work. This is a true spirit of giving, and many Christians could very well follow such an example today.

Our second responsibility to the Missionary Program is to give. Let us give!

Every Christian can pray for this great work. Every Christian can give to this great work. But every Christian is not called to enter a particular mission field. However, if the call from God should come our way, let us heed it. If every person who has received such a call was on the field today, there would not be a shortage of missionaries! God has not failed in calling men, but man has failed in answering that call. Man is afraid, or he doesn't want to leave home, but Jesus has said, "Lo, I am with you alway, even unto the end of the world." Every returning missionary will tell us that these words are true. It's a great honor to be called of God to be a missionary, a preacher, or a Christian worker.

Our third responsibility is to GO if God should call us. Let us go!

Yes, every Christian has a responsibility to the Missionary Program, whether it be abroad or in our home land, therefore let us pray "without ceasing" and let us give until "it hurts." Perhaps we shall never know how much our prayers have helped, or perhaps we shall never know how much good our gifts have done, but we can rest assured that God will answer the prayers, and will see that the gifts are used for His glory.

We have the responsibility; let us bear our share.

—Ashland, Ohio.

NEWS

From the Christian World

Seventeen women are on the list of ordained ministers in the United Church of Canada. This is unique among the larger Protestant bodies of the Dominion.

A fifty-bed hospital, the only one for Negroes in Lawton, Okla., has been made possible through the gift of Rev. Perry McArthur and his wife. The Methodist minister and his wife are using fifty per cent of the profits from oil wells on their property for charitable purposes.

The 1947 public relations award, given annually by the National Association of Public Relations Counsel, Inc., was presented to Paul W. Litchfield, chairman of the board of the Goodyear Tire and Rubber Company. The award went to Mr. Litchfield primarily because of the sponsorship by his company of the Greatest Story Ever Told, a radio dramatization of the Bible.

President Truman recently urged Americans to give more liberally to the "character-building agencies and institutions upon which the integrity of the nation is based." President Truman said, "We cannot hope to be worthy of continued blessings of prominence if our prosperity is used selfishly."

One hundred fifty-nine heifers were shipped to Italy in early December. Another shipment will go this month. Another shipment is scheduled for March. More cattle are needed. If you have a heifer which you want to go, notify the heifer project committee, New Windsor, Md.

Charles and Ruth Webb are giving their time now to distributing relief goods which have come to France on friendship steamers which transport goods from the Friendship Train. Two shiploads have already arrived in France. Charles and Ruth Webb are serving under the direction of the Brethren Service Committee.

Empress Menen, wife of Haile Selassie, has given her beautiful jeweled crown to the Church of the Nativity in Bethlehem as a gift. She did this to fulfill a vow she made in 1935 when Italy invaded Ethiopia and she took refuge in Jerusalem. Her promise was that if her country was delivered from its enemy she would make this gift. A special emissary recently made the trip to Bethlehem to make the presentation. Empress Menen is a member of the Coptic Church in Ethiopia. Thousands of years ago another Queen of Ethiopia came to Jerusalem with gifts for great King Solomon. Empress Menen's gift is for a far greater King, even though born in a manger.

Experiments in Germany indicate that soya flour is a very valuable addition to the diet of malnourished people.

Weight was gained and people could do better work.

Five leading chieftains from Uganda, Africa, were present recently in St. George's Church in England to commemorate a hundred years of missionary work in Uganda.

In Auburn, New York, Catholic, Jewish and Protestant faiths are uniting in a joint "Crusade for God" to improve the moral and religious attitudes of their city.

The Chinese national government, in spite of its pre-occupation with the civil war, has granted the equivalent of about a half million dollars in American currency to the work of building Christian colleges in China. China, more than almost any other country, emphasizes the extreme value of education.

Alcoholic advertising has been refused by national magazines which have a total circulation of nearly 44,000,000. At least 180 daily newspapers and about 2,000 weekly newspapers refused to accept alcoholic advertising. These magazines and papers should be encouraged.

More than 500,000 children and 100,000 aged persons in France will receive supplementary rations for six weeks to two months from the Friendship Train food sent by the people of the United States. Food for the children will be made available through school canteens or afternoon snacks in orphanages, nurseries and other institutions.

A majority of the people polled in five countries—the United States, England, Canada, Holland and Sweden—favor strengthening the United Nations. If peace is to be attained, these people believe that the UN must become a world government having control over the armed forces of each member country.

American Protestant churches are planning to send 500 missionaries to Japan within the next three years, it was announced by Dr. Luman J. Shafer, chairman of the Japan committee of the Foreign Missions Conference of North America.

Thirteen men are now working in the Brethren workshops in Bremen, Germany. This carpenter shop and shoe repair shop, called the Christopher Sauer Workshops, are helping war victims and refugees to rebuild themselves a place in society.

The ministerial association of Kalamazoo, Mich., has insisted that a commission be established in that city to pass upon motion pictures shown there. It would be their purpose to keep out of the city those movies which seem to them questionable.

CHRISTIAN ENDEAVOR TOPIC

W. St. Clair Benshoff, Topic Editor

"Topics copyrighted by the International Society of Christian Endeavor.
Used by permission"

Topic for March 28, 1948

EASTER FAITH IS MINE

Scripture: I Cor. 15:1-10; Acts 26:19, 20

For The Leader

A GAIN it is Easter! Again the world heralds the Resurrection of Jesus. Again the Believer confirms his Christian faith and eternal hope in the facts of the resurrection of his blessed Lord. Around Easter we have built our hopes of eternal life, and rightly so. Resurrection is somehow centered around cemeteries. As we think of Easter we subconsciously think of deceased loved ones in a distant cemetery. From our thoughts arise the vibrant words, "Because I live, ye too shall live." Easter is a symbol of hope, of promises fulfilled, of eternal life with Him. Surely our hearts must break forth in a reverberating crescendo of ever increasing melodies of praise as we ponder on the meaning and promises of this day. You will enjoy life more if you possess the real Easter faith as it rests in Christ.

DISCUSSION

1. WE MUST BELIEVE BY FAITH. As far as there being any concrete evidence of the resurrection of Christ, we would go far to find any. Nineteen hundred years have separated us from the event. So we find ourselves involved in a strictly faith proposition. (And isn't that the primary factor in the Christian theology?) When you believe the resurrection because of faith, then the evidences are too numerous to be accounted. We accept, by faith, the Bible as the infallible Word of God. We believe it to be the eternal Word of God in printed form. And this Bible, accepted by faith tells of the resurrection of Jesus Christ from the dead. So, therefore, by faith, we believe in the resurrection of our Savior and Lord from the dead.

2. FAITH IN OPERATION. Faith does not stop with believing, however. It becomes operative in our lives. Faith in the resurrection of Jesus Christ imparts to the believer a course of action. Our very existence, acts, motives, and outlook are governed by the knowledge that our Savior is risen. When this highest truth of Christianity takes hold of the heart of an individual, it changes the course of that soul for eternity. What do we mean? Simply this, that when we accept the truth of Christ, His mission, His deity, and His resurrection all done as a remedy for sin, we then accept Him as such. Then our destiny is changed from Hell to Heaven. Take away your Easter faith, and you are most hopeless.

3. EASTER FAITH IS PRECIOUS. We must always hold fast to our faith in the facts of Easter. Perhaps it may seem funny to say that to Christians. Yet, do you know that there are forces at work today which are determined to destroy our faith? Chiefest of these is the common doctrine of Easter as a time of "awakening of nature in new life, so we should take new hope in the future." Did you ever hear anything like that? We have. Oh, yes, it may be hidden by flowery words, scripture verses, and beautiful songs, but if it doesn't bring forth the full truth, it is false. In other words, watch those who indicate by their words that they are not proclaiming the true resurrection of our Lord. We would like to pin one of these "preachers" down some time as to why they observe Easter when within themselves they do not believe in the resurrection of Jesus Christ. Your Easter faith in the resurrection of the Lord is very important. Hold fast to the facts as given in the scripture, for they are true.

4. A FAITH THAT INSPIRES. We all know that we do better work if we know we are going to receive something for our labors. If we can see a point in what we are doing, we do a better job. Our Easter faith puts sense into Christian living. If we were to "be good" refraining from evil, just for the sake of living a good life, there would be little point. But assure us of an eternal life and reward for our righteous living on earth, and we will strive all the harder to live successfully. Easter brings to us the assurance of such a life to come. Through Christ's resurrection we are justified before the heavenly Father. We are given the promise of all the rewards that heaven possesses. Thus when we review our Easter faith we find a "carry-through" from this life to the next. It should inspire us to forsake all evil and to cling to those things which are good.

5. A FAITH THAT CALLS TO SERVICE. This is a time worn plea, yet one which must be continually made. The ranks of Christian workers is never completely filled. Always there is a "shortage" of dedicated workers for Christ. Easter calls us to service for Christ. There is room for all. If Easter means anything at all to us, it should mean a life of service in gratitude for salvation's assurance. There are so many in the world yet without a soul saving knowledge of Christ. So many are suffering under false religions. So many are shackled by false religious beliefs. Don't you think that we should be willing to devote time and talent and money to the spread of Christ's gospel to all men? Easter faith means eternal hope, but it also means service for Christ. The two are inseparable!

QUESTIONS

1. Who are the ones mentioned in the resurrection scriptures as having visited the tomb on Easter?
2. Can you name all those who saw Christ on His resurrection day?
3. What does Easter mean to you?

The best way to live a life of holiness is to associate with the God of holiness and follow His instructions.

Wanted! Church members with God-pleasing characters for with this, all the discipline of life is set in order.

It is not so much the circumstances under which you were born, nor the surroundings in which you were reared, but your choices in life which will determine your eternal bliss or blight.

Faith is an adventure of daring; doubt cuts the nerves of its power.

Prayer Meeting Topic

Contributed by Rev. C. Y. Gilmer

GO YE INTO ALL THE WORLD

Frank B. Myers

Go ye into all the world,
And in Jesus' blessed name,
Let Love's banner be unfurled,
God's eternal truth proclaim;
Ye, whose souls have been redeemed,
By God's high and matchless price,
With the crimson blood that streamed
From dark Cal'vary's Sacrifice.

Ye, whose souls have seen the light
Of the Savior's heartfelt love,
Shining through sin's darkest night,
From the realms of light above,
Tell to nations, far and wide,
The sweet story of the cross,
How Christ suffered, bled and died,
Saving men from endless loss.

India needs to know the Word,
The dear Gospel's saving power,
Millions there have never heard
How it cheers those, hour by hour,
Who God's message have received
Into honest, willing hearts,
And in Jesus have believed,—
Of the joy His love imparts,

China's millions daily cry
From the depths of sin and strife;
Oh, how sad that they must die,
Knowing not the words of life!
Brother, sister, don't you love
Those for whom your Savior died,—
He Who left His home above,
And for them was crucified?

If you do, why won't you go
At the gracious Lord's command,
And His love to sinners show
In this far-off heathen land?
May we consecrate our all
To the One of Calvary,
And, wherever He doth call,
Gladly answer, "Lord, send me."

THE PROVISION OF GOD FOR THE HEATHEN

Scripture: Ephesians 2:13-22

Missionary Hymns

Leader's Petition

Thought Provokers:

THE SCRIPTURES teach that God has made provision for the heathen that they may be saved and realize the great spiritual blessing. His love and grace are such that He has provided eternal life as a gift for the whole race of mankind (John 3:14-16; Titus 2:11). He does not will that any should perish, but that all should come to the knowledge of the truth, repent and live (1 Tim. 2:4-6). The heathen may be justified and sanctified through faith (Gal. 3:8; Acts 16:17, 18; 2 Thess. 2:13). They may have the blessing of Abraham and the gift of the Holy Spirit through faith (Gal. 3:14). They may be fellow heirs of the blessings in Christ through the Gospel (Eph. 3:16). By the baptism of the Holy Spirit they may become members of the Body of Christ which is the Church (1 Cor. 12:12, 13; Eph. 1:22, 23). By the blood of Christ they may become part of the household and temple of God (Eph. 2:13-22).

Our responsibility is to see that they get their share of the inheritance. We are in position to see that they get it. It is the obligation of all of God's people to bring the Gospel to the lost. To what extent are we dedicated to our task?

If we pray more for the heathen we may come to do more for them.

COMMENTS

On The Sunday School Lesson

by The Editor

Lesson for March 28, 1948

THE CERTAINTY OF ETERNAL LIFE (EASTER)

Lesson: Colossians 3:1-4, 12-17; 1 John 5:11-12

CHRISTIANITY could have no meaning if we could not speak of a "Crucified and Risen Lord." The abiding thought in our lesson today lies in the last two verses of our printed text—1 John 5:11-12. Whatever has gone on before finds its culmination in the thought that is found here.

If Easter means anything at all, it stands for eternal life—God-given life. We find John expressing this very thought in verse 11, "God hath given to us eternal life, and this life is in his Son." Then he says, "If we do not have "the Son" in our life, then we do not even have the life—eternal life.

Paul says in the first verse of our lesson (Col. 3:1), "If ye then be risen with Christ, seek those things which are above, where Christ sitteth on the right hand of God."

Now let us put the two thoughts together and we will have the gist of our lesson. Having the "Son" in our lives is bound to bring about the kind of a life which will be a constant searching after the "best" things—the things "which are above." And it is only a "risen life" (risen with Christ) that will so seek.

Let us remember that "eternal life" is a realistic experience. We are already passed "from death unto life," says the Word. But all that is to be found in the expression of Jesus, "if ye keep my comandments" must be adhered to if the living are to "remain living." "Dead unto the world, but alive unto God," well expresses it all.

A Divine

Challenge

Hear your commission, O Church of the Master!

Friends and disciples of Jesus, take heed.

How are you doing the work of the Father?

How are you caring for hunger and need?

Useless to stay in your doorway, and beckon—

Those who need most will never come in;

Fighting the devil with art and with culture,

How he must laugh at his stronghold of sin!

Go—to the sheep that are scattered and fainting,

Having no shepherd, and tell them to come;

Go—to the highways, and tell every creature

Still the feast waiteth, and yet there is room.

Go—the time shortens, the night is approaching—

Harvests are whit'ning and reapers are few;

Somewhere, perhaps, in the darkness are dying

Souls that might enter the Kingdom with you,

Go—Church of Christ, for He goeth before you,

And all the way that ye take He doth know.

On the bright morrow He'll say, "Come ye blessed,"

But till the dawning the Message is, "GO!"

—Annie Johnson Flint.

Easter Offering for # Foreign Missions, March 28

The Optimist

*I sing a song to the Optimist
To the Man that is Brave and strong—
Who keeps his head when things go right,
And smiles when things go wrong!*

*I'm proud of the genial Optimist,
His radiant Voice and Speech;
He helps to smooth the Rugged path
Of all within his reach.*

*I like the way of the Optimist
Who looks for the bright and best;
He scatters Sunshine as he goes,
And leaves his Fellows Blest.*

*I'm glad to meet the Optimist
With his message of good Cheer;
He carries hope and Confidence
To those assailed by fear.*

*So here's a Song to the Optimist
Who Joyously works and sings.
And Daily shows this weary World
The Way to Better things.*

THE BRETHREN EVANGELIST

Published weekly, except the last week in August and
the last week in December.

THE BRETHREN PUBLISHING COMPANY

Ashland, Ohio

PRUDENTIAL COMMITTEE

J. E. Stookey, President    N. G. Kimmel, Vice-President
J. G. Dodds, Secretary-Treasurer

EDITOR OF PUBLICATIONS—F. C. Vanator

BUSINESS MANAGER—G. S. Baer

EDITOR MISSIONARY NUMBER—E. M. Riddle

CONTRIBUTING EDITORS

Dr. Charles A. Bame                      Rev. Dyoll Belote

DEPARTMENTAL EDITORS

Dr. C. F. Yoder, Brethren Doctrine
Rev. N. V. Leatherman, Practical Church Problems
Rev. J. G. Dodds, National Goals
Dr. R. F. Porte, Brethren Church History

PLEASE REMEMBER: All material for publication in the Evangelist must be in the hands of the editor at least three weeks before the desired date of publication, to assure same to appear in desired issue. This refers to announcements particularly.

TERMS OF SUBSCRIPTION: $1.50 per year in advance.
CHANGE OF ADDRESS: In ordering change of address always
give both old and new addresses.

REMITTANCES: Send all money, business communications, and contributed articles to:

THE BRETHREN PUBLISHING COMPANY
ASHLAND, OHIO

Entered as second class matter at Ashland, Ohio. Accepted for mailing
at special rate, section 1103, act of October 3, 1917. Authorized
September 3, 1928.

INTERESTING ITEMS

Washington, D. C. A fine gift came to the Washington Church in the recent presentation of a Communion Set, the gift of Mr. H. R. Smith of Waynesboro, Pennsylvania. The set was given as a memorial to Mrs. Edith Smith and was dedicated to her memory on Sunday, March 21.

Brother Fairbanks, Washington pastor, says that "Our builder is planning to begin actual construction of the new church by March 22." It should be under way when this issue reaches you.

Vinco, Pennsylvania. From the Vinco bulletin of February 29: "The approved Blue Prints for the addition to the Church have been received by the Building Committee. Plans for building the basement unit, as authorized at the last business meeting, are in progress. Work is expected to be started next week. How is the work coming, Brother Benshoff?"

Spring Camp at Milledgeville, Illinois. Dr. L. E. Lindower informed the editor last night that the Spring Camp this year for the Central District was a great success. The camp will, no doubt, be reported by someone from that district.

A Fine Record. Mrs. Lulu Snellenberger of the Warsaw Brethren Church has an enviable record for several things. In renewing her subscription to the Evangelist she says, "In looking back I find I have been a steady subscriber to the Evangelist for about 36 years, beginning back while Dr. Carpenter was still here; also a continuous member of the W. M. S. for 42 years, and have rounded out my 24th year of perfect attendance in Sunday School, with the exception of two Sundays when sickness kept me away."

Canton, Ohio. We learn from the Canton Bulletin that Brother John T. Byler, pastor of the Louisville Church, was a recent speaker at the Canton Laymen's meeting.

North Manchester, Indiana. Barton Rees Pogue, Hoosier poet and lecturer, was a recent speaker at the North Manchester Church.

We learn from the bulletin that a "New" young married people's class was recently organized in the North Manchester Sunday School. One of such classes should be organized in every church at least every ten years.

New Lebanon, Ohio. Rev. and Mrs. Samuel Adams of Pleasant Hill, Ohio, have been conducting evangelistic services at the New Lebanon Church. These services began on Sunday, March 7.

Carleton, Nebraska. Brother H. M. Oberholtzer, pastor of the Carleton Church, reports a fine meeting with Brother Cecil Johnson, pastor of the Falls City, Nebraska, church, as evangelist. The meeting was of ten days duration and the visible results were four first time confessions, all young people.

Brother Oberholtzer reports that he has been ill but is able to be about his work again.

Pleasant Hill, Ohio. A card from Brother Floyd Sibert, pastor of the Pleasant Hill church, says, "We began our meeting March 7 with two good services in the church and another on Monday night with the pastor as evangelist. Tuesday night was the record night with 1100 people attending. We had to take the crowd to the High School Auditorium in order to get parking space and seating space. Dr. B. R. Lakin was speaker for that night. Three radio stations carried announcements of the meeting last week and two of them announce it daily all this week and it is free advertising. The stations announcing are WLW—Cincinnati, WING—Dayton and WPTW—Piqua. The Lord certainly put our church on the air. I think He has something very definite in mind for us."

Warsaw, Indiana. Brother W. E. Ronk, pastor of the Goshen, Indiana, Church, was a speaker at the Warsaw church four evenings, March 16-19. Brother Brant, Warsaw pastor, began his regular evangelistic services on March 21, closing March 28, with Communion at the evening hour.

Stockton, California. We are in receipt of a card announcing the evangelistic services at the Stockton church,

(Continued on Page 10)

Business Manager's Corner

George S. Baer

Waterloo and Smithville Stay 100%

THE BRETHREN Church at Waterloo, Iowa, recently sent a new 100% list of 106 Evangelist subscriptions. Brother Virgil Meyers is pastor of this splendid church. Another church that has a fine record of loyalty is Smithville, Ohio, where Brother Vernon Grisso is pastor. We have just received a list of 63 subscriptions, which keeps it on the 100% Honor Roll. Thanks you, Waterloo and Smithville, both, for your loyalty. And may there be many more churches who will join the 100% group.

Voluntary Increases in Evangelist Subscriptions

Some time ago we mentioned the increase in labor and material cost in printing the Evangelist, and though the price has not been raised, we wondered how many would voluntarily raise the price on themselves and send in $2.00 instead of $1.50. Of course we didn't have in mind 100% churches, only individual subscriptions. And you would be surprised to know how many actually increased their subscriptions. We thank them all, and others too who will yet be so kind as to do this.

Beautiful Flannelgraph Backgrounds

We have a supply at last of real flannel, size 24 in. x 36 in., painted artistically for various scenes, Lake scene, Mountain scene, River, Landscape, Village, Indoors, etc., price $3.95 each. Also many Suede-graph books with objects and lesson stories, at $1.25 each. Also easels ($3.95) and boards ($3.97).

Pastors and their Wives

All who attend the Pastor's Institute at Ashland following Easter are invited to attend the Book Store and look over our stock. We will also have a book table in the church where the Institute is held. We will have some new Speed-O-Scope machines on hand, and supplies.

Press Fund Reports Come Later

Publication Day Offerings Continued

|                                                       |         |
|-------------------------------------------------------|---------|
| B. H. Showalter, Palestine, W. Va. ....               | $ 5.00 |
| Canton, Ohio, Additional Church Offering .....        | 44.50   |
| College Corner, Indiana, Church Offering .....        | 25.00   |
| Cumberland, Md., Church Offering .....                | 15.00   |
| Dayton, Ohio, Additional Church Offering .....        | 25.00   |
| Fairhaven, Ohio, Church Offering .....                | 26.60   |
| Glenford, Ohio, Church Offering .....                 | 14.00   |
| Goshen, Indiana, Church Offering $280.76 as follows: |         |
| Havid Holtzinger .....                                | 5.00    |
| W. M. S. Circle .....                                 | 50.00   |
| Mr. and Mrs. Earl Shaffer .....                       | 5.00    |
| John E. Baer, Sr. ....                                | 5.00    |
| Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Cooper .....                       | 2.00    |
| Mrs. Gordon Simmons .....                             | 1.00    |
| Mr. and Mrs. Verne Younce .....                       | 1.00    |

|                                    |      |
|------------------------------------|------|
| Mr. and Mrs. Al. Higgins .....     | 5.00 |
| Mrs. Jessie Maley .....            | 5.00 |
| Mrs. H. F. Stuckman .....          | 5.00 |
| Angeline Whitehead .....           | 2.00 |
| Mr. and Mrs. R. W. Huff .....      | 2.00 |
| Mr. and Mrs. Chauncey Hepler ..... | 1.00 |
| Mrs. Chester Mast .....            | 2.00 |
| Mr. and Mrs. Bert F. King .....    | 5.00 |
| Mrs. Percy Gosey .....             | 1.00 |

(Continued on Page 11)

The Editor Thinks Aloud

Fred C. Vanator

WE THINK ABOUT THE RESURRECTION

THE DATE on this issue of the Evangelist is the day before Easter. This issue will reach some of our readers before that day, while with others Easter will have come and gone. At a corresponding day hundreds of years ago, the day before the resurrection, the followers of Jesus of Nazareth were a forlorn group—hopes gone; hearts full of fear; sorrow outweighing all other emotions, for they had laid His body in a rock-hewn tomb; had seen the massive stone rolled against the opening, and the seal of the government under Pilate placed upon it. To them it was the end of all their hopes, and the words, "We had hoped . . ." were spoken over and over again. Suppose that had been the end—what then?

These thoughts set me to thinking further!

What would be our present situation if Christ had not risen from the tomb? What would I be doing today, if, indeed, I had ever been born? What would be your occupation? What would the world be like? Would heathen temples occupy the sites of our beautiful churches? Would human sacrifice still be a part of the worship of pagan peoples who would inhabit the earth? Would disease and pestilence have long since rid the world of most of its inhabitants? I am sure that whatever might have been the result that the picture would not be a pleasant one to contemplate.

Have we really ever stopped to think what the Resurrection really means to us? Have we sought to take stock of our present position and opportunities? Take your pencil and paper and write down on one side of the paper the things you can think of that would be here if Jesus had not risen from the dead. Transport yourself into the past and live there in thought. Then sum up these things and see how you would like to exchange it all for your present manner of living. Now turn the page over and just list the blessings that may be yours because Jesus did arise from the dead. Would you like to be without them?

Really now, what does the Resurrection of Jesus mean to you personally? Do you appreciate it, except, possibly, on the one particular day—Easter Sunday?

Think it over!

COPYRIGHTED BY PROVIDENCE LITHOGRAPH CO

"Suffer little children to come unto me and forbid them not, for of such is the Kingdom of God."

THESE WORDS of Jesus concerning little children have always been a challenge to the church. In the verse prior to this one the gospel writer tells us that they (mothers) brought their children to Jesus. What a beautiful picture! Mothers bringing their little ones to Jesus that He might lay His hands on them and bless them! What a contrast to the picture we see today!

Too few American mothers lead their children to Christ and many fail to see the importance of so doing. There it was evident that those mothers realized their children needed Christ early in life—a good lesson for the modern mother.

Can you see how the disciples stood off in awe? They rebuked the mothers who brought their children to Jesus. Christ welcomed them and I believe it is His will that we give children special attention today. No doubt we have those in our churches like the disciples of old, who need their eyes opened to the value of the child in the church. Christ not only welcomed and blessed the children, but He said, "Of such is the Kingdom of God." This is a promise that children have a place in the Kingdom of God. Christ knew the importance of bringing a child up in the church and it is here in His teaching that He emphasized its value by linking it to the Kingdom. Therefore the value of the children's work in the church is eternal. What do you value most in the life of your child? May your work be such that will lead children to eternity with God.

The Editor asked Mrs. Miller to write on this particular theme because he knew of her very great zeal in the work of the Children in the Smithville Church. She has been particularly successful in Children's work as is attested by the reports that come from Smithville in this regard.

The Value of Children's Work In The Church

By Mrs. Jean Miller

Solomon taught that if you train up a child in the way he should go when he is old he will not depart from it. (Prov. 22:6). Perhaps Christ was thinking of this when he encouraged the bringing of children to Him, therefore it is a good plan for us to follow today. The importance of the early religious teaching given to the child, whether in the home or in church, cannot be overemphasized. A child who has been regular in church attendance since birth will accept Christ very young; this may cause the comment that he is too young. But, friends, Brethren, the willingness of the child to accept Christ is a challenge to both the parents and church teachers to follow the confession with sound teaching in Christian living.

Getting the children into the church is the beginning of a long struggle. Our public schools make big demands on the children that tend to draw them away from church activities. So we must plan a good and sound Spiritual program to hold their interest through the high school age. Thereby, we will hold them and find our youth consecrated and capable, when they shall have attained maturity, of shouldering the responsibilities of adult church members.

It is imperative that we have an active children's work in our churches, that by sharing in the work they become conscious of the fact that they are a part of the church. Having gained the interest of the child, many times the parents become more regular in attendance. Perhaps the part the child plays now may not seem too important, but the real value to Christ and the church will unfold as they grow into consecrated church workers. And I think you will agree that we need more Christ-loving adults who take their church responsibilities seriously.

It is apparent that modernism is gaining in

The children of today are the hope of our Church in years to come. The Spiritual condition of the future Brethren Church depends on how young lives are being molded today.

Spiritual Meditations

Rev. Dyoll Belote

"AM I MY BROTHER'S KEEPER?"

"When he saw the multitudes, he was moved with compassion on them."—Matthew 9:36.

WHEN WE READ these words we are led to exclaim at the great love of our Lord, and to marvel at the depth of His compassion for needy, lost humanity. But never in the world's history has there been so wide-spread misery and suffering and all-round need as in this, our day. It is not merely scattered areas in some countries that know want and hunger and distress, but whole nations are cold and starving and dying. At least some of these lands are training their youth to see the needs of their country and are encouraging these youth to prepare themselves to meet these needs. And it might be well if American youth and adults as well, would feel the call to serve as well as lead.

In the presence of the universal need of the world, how can we turn our backs and sit complacently by and feel no urge to do something to alleviate the suffering and hunger and cold and nakedness and pain and anguish and doubt in the bodies and minds of those who dwell in the stricken areas of the world's surface?

It is just the presence of this tremendous need and distress, and the false promises of Communism to right the wrongs and bring equality for all men under all conditions that is winning many away from the church and endangering the chances of setting up Christian democracy in the war-torn areas of the Old World.

In the early history of the Church as recorded in Acts we read that the Apostles "continued with one accord," and I wonder if we ever noticed that it was then that the baptism of the Holy Spirit came upon them. The Christian people of the world must learn to put the question, "Can I help you?" in the center of their thought. When we do this perhaps another Pentecost will fall upon the church. Cain's family has always been too prolific.

—Uniontown, Pa.

Common sense is the knack of seeing things as they are, and doing things as they ought to be done.—C. E. Stowe.

ATTENTION, MINISTERS

Effective April 1st, the Pastorate of the First Brethren Church of Pittsburgh will be vacant. Interested ministers will please address inquiries to the undersigned, Chairman of the Ministerial Contact Committee of the Pittsburgh Church.

Ralph R. Rau, 632 Sickles Street. *
Pittsburgh 21, Pennsylvania. *

The Bite of Sin

Rev. H. R. Garland

"As Moses lifted up the serpent in the wilderness, even so must the Son of man be lifted up, that whosoever believeth in him should not perish, but have eternal life."

John 3:14-15

WHY DID Moses lift up the serpent in the wilderness? It was God's command. It was also God's plan to help the people, if they would be obedient. The Lord opened up a way for the cure of each one who would do what they were told. Most folks are good at doing what they are not told, and it seems like it is very hard to do what we are told, especially if it appears in the Bible.

The people in question had been bitten and there was absolutely no cure for them as far as man was concerned. But God in His mercy, and kindness, gave just one remedy for their cure and this was to look at the serpent on the pole, put there at the command of God. Why should people believe there are "many remedies" for sin when it is not so? God gave one and only one remedy for the sin of the world and this remedy is not effective unless it is applied as per the directions. These directions are to take Christ as our Saviour. He is God's answer to the terrible disease.

It was a full and adequate remedy. Not a patched-up job; not just a relief. It was a complete remedy for everyone. This remedy did not fail. Why? Because it was of God. Our failures are manifested on every hand because we do not take God at His word and do not try what He bids us do. If we would take heed to the word of the Lord just half as much as many believe man's word, we would be better off. God gave the orders and they were carried out. The cure was provided, not for a few, but for all. Each and every one has a right and privilege of being a partaker of this healing provided by our Heavenly Father.

Often times we do not accept the many and wonderful provisions which God arranges for our blessings. We can all approach His throne and find help in time of need, but many pursue another course and try to work it out without prayer. Many times we get our directions for victory when we take it to the Lord in prayer. The promise of God is, that if we pray, seek His face and turn from our evil way, He will hear from Heaven, and this means victory will be forthcoming. Not by the strategy of men, but by the help of Almighty God, who is ready to deliver us from the enemies of mankind. Our loving Heavenly Father has made a way of escape for everyone who will accept it through our Lord and Master.

The people of that day had been bitten, and this bite or sting was unto death. What a predicament to be in. Nobody or nothing could help. People were dying very fast. What would or could they do? Yes, there is one thing left. What is it? Prayer. They prayed unto the Lord and the answer to their prayer was: "I (God) will do my part and I will tell you what to do. If you do it, life will be your portion, if not—death will be your master now." Look at what can be done by crying unto the Lord.

The earth right now is menaced by many evils and these evils are not to be treated lightly. They are serious and must be treated with Divine help, which we can get when we meet the conditions given to us by the promise of our God. If you would ask the people who were cured of this bite, "Have you ever been bitten?" they would testify and say, "Yes, many a time." Then I ask you, "By what?" Some would say, "I was bitten by a lying tongue that deceived me and I fell for the salves that seemed to be so soothing. Through this tongue of deception I took the wrong step; yielded to temptation, and my life is wrecked." Another says, "I was bitten, too, by a lying tongue and was persuaded to invest my money in or go into the wrong business. What a price I have paid for believing a lying tongue."

Another says, "I was bitten by the serpent of adultery and have suffered many things in mind, heart and body." How true this is, and if you do not repent you will suffer by the loss of your soul. Many times the bite from the serpent of adultery does not give pain for a while. Ah, but give it time, and soon it will be anguish and pain that no aspirin tablet can cure. Sleepless will be the nights, and no sleeping powder will remove the sting within. Yes, there will be an aching heart that no medicine can relieve and to those who do not repent of this or any other sin, they are faced with a dark future, a Christless eternity.

Still another says, "I have been bitten by the serpent of gambling." Yes, and the rest of the family feels the sting of this bite. What a fascination gambling is to many people. Many a home has been made sad because the weekly or monthly salary has been gambled away. Who is the loser? The one who gambled; the wife; the children.

The father does not really want to gamble in most cases, yet the old serpent has betrayed him and he thinks that he will "clean up." There will be a cleaning up—a cleaning out of the home, jewelry, furniture, and the house itself also. This is the sting of gambling, and those of the home are paying the price.

Another says, "I have been bitten by strong drink. It affected my happiness, my home. It stole my job, my health, my wealth. O, if I could only live my life over again! It would be different." You have lots of company—if it were not for the "IF."

These serpents in the time of Moses were no respecters of persons, neither male nor female. All were bitten. In these times that serpent Strong Drink is biting the female as well as the male. We should never let our children say, "My parents set the example before me and I got my first drink in Home, Sweet Home."

A fellow who went to prison through strong drink said that his mother gave him the first drink that led him to gambling and then on to murder. He refused to see his mother before he was electrocuted.

Others have been bitten by the serpent of profane language or the taking of the Lord's name in vain. The name of God is a joke to many. His name is connected by some to the most wicked utterances that can come from the mouth of a human being. The name of God should be honored and revered in the home, in places of business, and in all institutions of learning. The Lord said He would not hold men guiltless who take His name in vain. Even small children are heard taking this name in vain. Do they hear it in their homes?

Others have been bitten by the serpent of lust—lust for power; lust for money. They will get it by fair means or foul. Some will fight over a dead relative's body for their part of the estate. Many are not on speaking terms because of money. Some are broken in health by working day and night. For what? For something to leave that others may "scrap" over it. The Lord said that the love of money is the root of all evil. Money is not sin, but the love of it is.

Many have these bites and stings in life because of wrong appetites, lust, desires and conduct, and find life miserable because of past sins. The remedy our Lord has provided not only saves from past sins but shows light for the future. He says, "If I be lifted up," and that is my calling—to lift up Christ.

We need more sin-haters in this world. If we hate sin, we will fight it with the Sword of the Spirit, the Word of God. A fireman is a fire-fighter. That is his job. A Christian should be a sin-fighter, because his Master hates sin. If a mosquito lights on you are you going to say? "Help yourself." No! Anyone who has the use of either hand will slap at him and not for fun, either. And the sting of the mosquito is very small in comparison to the "sting of sin." Shall we sit idly by, with folded arms, and say, "We give up!" The world is as good as it is because of the fight and resistance given by those who stand for the right. Yes, Christ must be lifted up and evil must be exposed and disposed.

What would happen if our houses and streets were left to pile up with dirt, and the city Health Department went out of business? What a deplorable condition this would be. These things are taken care of by those who are interested in them. What would be the condition if evil had no check and no one preached against the serpents' bites of our time? Are we to "soft pedal" the truth? Let the Lord answer the question. He says, "Cry aloud and spare not." None are to be spared who are sponsors or supporters of sin. All good citizens are interested in good government. This we cannot have to any degree of success unless more people will be for Christ and that means that you must take your stand against sin. Christ must be lifted up as the true remedy for a sin-sick world. Man has tried, and is still trying "QUACK" remedies that have proven worthless—spending time and money, only to see the sin-bitten world grow worse. Christ must be lifted up, not as another great hero, but as the Savior of the world, through His death on Calvary, where He shed His blood for the remission of our sins. He must be lifted up to His rightful place in the home, the church and the country, as the Holy Divine Son of the Living God. He must be lifted up as the only one who can forgive sins, and as man's best friend.

Man proposes; God disposes. A peace plan without the Prince of Peace is just about as secure as a ship without a bottom. Christ must be lifted up as a remedy for the present evils which are now raging on the earth; as a constant and continuous cure for the hate that now dominates the modern world. Yes, Christ has the key to all our problems, for in Him there is wisdom, justice and love, and this is what it takes to bring about a better understanding for the people of this world.

All will agree that the conditions of the world are not very bright, and we are in need of a better world. When people were dying fast, in the time of our text, it may be that all did not agree on the one cure given, namely, to look at the brazen serpent on the pole. They could have discounted such instructions and said it was only lunatics who would believe. "We have enough firey serpents now, without any more being raised up. Why put a 'brazen serpent' on a pole? why make fun of our dying relatives?" Their disagreement or opposition, if there was any, did not change the fact that this was God's way. Dispute it and die; accept it and live!

When God gives orders—and He does through His Word—do not question or ask how, why or when. Why should men die when there is a remedy for all? And this remedy is not a bitter one. It only took obedience. That is all that is required of us now.

Some say, "Something has to be worked out for a better world." My friend, it has already been worked out by the great Architect and Builder. It is now up to man to accept God's plan.

What are the highlights of this message? Simply this: Humanity is in dire need; death is sure without a proper remedy; the remedy was provided by prayer; it was simple, but it worked; the people obeyed and lived; it was God who worked the healing. Our Savior turns the pages of time and refers us to these facts. He says that He, too, must be "lifted up" as the remedy for the sins of the world. We have all been bitten; we can show the scars; but unless the sting of sin is conquered by Christ, there is no hope for any of us. Why will we let sin destroy our peace and happiness, and bring eternal death? Yes, Christ is the answer to the need of the world.

---

The National Sunday School Association

Rev. N. V. Leatherman, General Secretary,
104 S. Mulberry St., Hagerstown, Md.

---

RELIGIOUS EDUCATION—An Individual Matter

Rev. Arthur R. Baer

IN THE first place we must admit that Religious Education is the business of the Church. Perhaps not its sole business, nor its chief concern, yet so definitely bound up with its chief concern (the saving of souls) that if you are a stickler for exactness in speech you may have some difficulty in defining their separate limits. Ordinarily, religious education is, in the mind of many, wholly within the province of the Sunday School. There they have placed it. There they have planned for it and there they have limited it. Even the rest of us, as we organize that we might more efficiently work our plans, the Church as a whole is largely excluded from our thoughts.

Religious education and education in religion are practically synonymous, although they have not been so in our thinking. Organization has been attempted in religion and yet in spite of our attempt Religion refuses to be organized. To a certain degree we may profitably organize our efforts to extend it, but the thing itself, vital, living Religion refuses to be organized. Perhaps that is one condition of its very existence.

It is a problem to discover just what place organization should occupy in our efforts. Certainly we should remember that there can be religion without organization and organization without religion. As in religion, so in religious education, organization may have its place. But as we concede it a place we should remember that we cannot assign privileges nor delegate responsibilities to another individual or group of individuals. We cannot designate another as our spiritual proxy. Too often we engage a minister, or preacher, call him what you will, and charge him with the responsibility of making all religious connections. Or it may be that we organize a Sunday School with well trained officers and teachers and then sit back in smug satisfaction having the notion that we are doing something religious or even toward religious education. However, having created such conditions we have provided an environment where religious education may more easily take place; yet we should determine to what extent organization contributes to educational efficiency. Efficiency, to me, means effectiveness toward the desired end. We may discover that there is no necessary connection between organization and efficiency. Sometimes we think of the two in such a fashion as to imagine that they are identical. In the operation of railroads, construction work and kindred work where one deals with exact materials and dimensions, there may be this close relation, but neither in religion nor its education. Both of these have to do with the spirit and work from within. They deal with living personality, one of the most delicate and intangible factors of the universe.

If some time we were to contact a person without prejudice and ignorant of all our educational machinery and then tell him the purpose of religious education and all that we hope to accomplish, would an image of a school come to his mind as an answer to the need? Rather, would he not think of it as the work of consecrated individuals working alone or even united in effort? The point I am trying, perhaps vainly to stress, is that religious education is an individual matter.

This is not meant, and we hope it will not be so construed, as deprecating the importance of the Sunday School as an organization. Certainly we can engage in such work as a group, and with greater efficiency, if as a group we have in mind common ideas concerning the thing to be accomplished, and a definite individual or group of individuals upon which to exert our common effort. But the whole force of this paper is founded on the assumption that even this will fail except we as individuals are conscious of the nature of religious education and the part we must individually play.

But perhaps we have been a bit foggy in our ideas as to the nature of religious education. We have pigeon-holed it, organized it, and defined it as the work of the Sunday School. In its best sense, religious education is simply the Church using all powers to meet the individual needs of its members: and its members uniting in such a way that the community receives the impact of their united personality. Whenever individuals find that they are growing in spiritual capacity, religious education is taking place. Religious education is not an extra-church item discovered and appended with the advent of the Sunday School. In other days, the finest example was when the Master walked the earth, and by example and precept changed men's minds, hearts and lives. Today its finest results are also accomplished by the individual, by his ability to deal intelligently in every contact and help other individuals grow in those matters that are essential to the experience of a Christian. Perhaps the more important items are: the worship of God, one's private attitude toward God, the cultivation of an altruistic spirit and the accumulation of knowledge of holy things. The building of these things into civilization is religious education. We often refer to it as the field of religious education, but perhaps it is not so much a field as a force.

When in conversation with a lad you deal with his questions concerning our Church Ordinances and their meaning, that is religious education. When one comes to you seeking instruction and guidance in the matter of prayer, that is religious education. When you help two to patch up a quarrel and help those involved to understand the meaning of forgiveness in the name of Christ, you are engaged in religious education.

Any church can make itself into a group where such things as these take place, but scarcely, unless these are already being done by the individuals. When a church does such, it is engaged in religious education. It can do so by connecting certain people with certain other people in definite spiritual relationships: for example, a man with a boy or group of boys; or with another man; a woman with a girl or group of girls or with other children, etc. The fact that it may result in an outward resemblance to a school is entirely accidental. If a church is engaged in such work, it is to that extent engaged in religious education even if it has no school. On the other hand, if it isn't engaged in making such connections it is not engaged in religious education even if it has a school.

As our conclusion, all religious education is based on the assumption that individuals recognize and accept the responsibility for spreading the tenets of their faith. Having accepted that, churches will grow and the worry and heart-ache which seems to be the natural heritage of church leaders will be greatly eased.

—Cameron, W. Va.

Bits of Brethren History Information of Interest

By H. C. Funderburg

(These articles are printed just as they come from the pen of Brother Funderburg.)

Another Incident Concerning Elder Wolfe

IT IS RELATED that Elder Wolfe, hearing of a mass meeting to be held in the western part of Indiana, at which the ablest ministers to be found were to deliver addresses setting forth what they considered to be the best religion for a pioneer life, at once decided to attend that meeting and address the assembly in behalf of his church. He set out on horseback, his usual way of traveling. After a long journey he reached a rudely constructed house in the woods, where the meeting was to be held. A vast concourse of people had already assembled, an overflow of listeners. Elder Wolfe's fine appearance attracted attention at once. He was a stranger, but everybody seemed to know that he was a preacher.

To satisfy the curiosity of the people, he was chosen to make the first address. His mind was well prepared for the occasion. It is said that for hours he held that vast assembly, which listened intently and drank in eagerly everything he presented in behalf of the religion which he accepted, and which he considered eminently adapted to the wants of a frontier. It is further related that, after he had finished his discourse, not another preacher ventured, in his presence, to present a contrary view. He had made it so clear that the simple form of religion, as set forth in the New Testament, if taken in all its parts, was perfectly adapted to all the necessary conditions of mankind, in every age, and in every clime, and, of course, to the man and his family on the frontier as well.

Another Interesting Event

According to the Biographical Cyclopedia of Blair County, Pennsylvania, Jacob Neff was attacked by two Indians at his mill at Roaring Springs in November, 1777. They then fled, after which the entire war party came up and burned his mill. While in his mill two Indians suddenly came upon him. He hid in the water-wheel where he remained until everything was quiet, which was a good while. Then he emerged with his gun and ran up the hill in the direction of East Sharpsburg. As he glanced back, he saw an Indian close upon him, gaining on him. He suddenly turned and fired. The Indian fell dead, but he was afterward disciplined by the church—some said he was expelled. I do not vouch for the truth of the last statement. S. B. Furry.

National Goals Program

Rev. J. G. Dodds, Chairman

WHAT CONSTITUTES ACTIVE CHURCH MEMBERSHIP?

Rev. John T. Byler

THIS IS A SUBJECT about which it is likely that not all Christians will be in agreement. But the older I grow, as a pastor, the more do I think of the lost opportunity in most churches, because of the fact that a great majority of church members are inactive. It seems to me that we have all too often assumed a defeatist attitude on the whole question. One of my seminary instructors, I recall, suggested to a class of which I was a member that we would do well, during our pastoral experiences, if we could keep one-fourth of our membership in attendance at church. In other words, he was suggesting that our churches would be up to the national average, among Protestant groups, if we were to run on a 25% efficiency basis (assuming that the members who attend regularly are all efficient, consecrated Christians.)

Actually, church attendance in our country is on an even lower level than this among Protestants. We are told that church attendance among Protestant Church members is really only on the basis of one in five. In other words, if this figure is correct throughout the country, only 20 members out of every 100 among Protestant people can be counted upon as regular attendants. On this one point we will all agree—barring those who must miss church because of sickness or work—there is something woefully lacking in the Christian lives of the remaining four out of five or 80% who don't regularly attend services. And it is concerning this particular lack that I wish to speak.

What constitutes active church membership? Let us suppose that you are a pastor, and your church has decided to have you, as the pastor, make two lists—one naming all of the active members—the other, listing all of those who are inactive. What would be the basis of your judgment? What criteria would determine the placement of various individual names on one list or the other? Or suppose—you who are laymen—that the pastor of your church were asked to place your names on either one of two lists—an active or inactive list. What basis of judgment would you want your pastor to use as he made his decision concerning your status?

From the pastor's point of view, it is a good thing that he is not often asked to do this. (But I might add, also, from the pastor's point of view—he already has such a list in his own mind, if not down on the records). And there are times, when I believe that a church would be much better off if its pastor were required to make just such a differentiation. At least a church and pastor might know which members were dependable.

I have already inferred that I don't expect complete agreement concerning my thoughts here, but nevertheless, I am going to list at least some of the requirements, as I see them, essential to active church membership.

It seems to me utterly impossible for an individual to be an active church member if he has not been led by the Spirit of God to accept the Lord, Jesus Christ, as his own Saviour. I know that we do occasionally find individuals on church rosters who have not seemed to experience the coming of Christ into their lives. They have been baptized; they take communion; they may be regular in attendance—in fact they may even hold positions of leadership and responsibility in the church—and yet I can't see them as active church members, simply because they can not be a part of the church unless they belong to the Body of Christ. An individual is in Christ only if the Holy Spirit is an indwelling Presence within the individual. "For as many as are led by the Spirit of God, they are the sons of God." (Romans 8:14) And unless an individual, and a church member is led by the Spirit of God—regardless of his morality, and good works and charities and regular attendance at God's House—he is not, Scripturally speaking, a part of Christ's Church.

But as we are led by the Spirit, we learn to walk together in Christian Love. When I see church members who are quarrelsome and who can't get along harmoniously, I have to (at least in my mind) question their position as Christians. I don't mean that we must agree with everyone in all things. But there can be such a thing as differing as Christians—in Christian love.

If we are truly Christians—members of the Body of Christ—it will be an uppermost desire of our hearts that the work of the Church shall go forward. It is Christ's work; we are His people, called to the particular task of promoting His Church and spreading His Gospel. This, then, it seems to me, becomes the most important thing in life for us—our living, our work, our family life, our associations, are, or should be, a means to fulfilling this great program.

When, as a pastor, I find some of my people at home, reading the Sunday papers, or "sleeping in" or making garden or cleaning the cellar or yard while others are trying to advance the work of the Kingdom, it is hard for me to keep from placing the names of such people upon my inactive list—the list of those who don't care, or who are willing to let others carry their share of the burden of prayer and support.

When we took the vows of baptism, we all promised that we would pray for the Church; that we would support it with our material means; that we would support it with our presence whenever possible, and that we would work for the promotion of its purpose in whatever ways we found possible. AND THESE PROMISES WERE MADE TO GOD—not to the preacher or the congregation—BUT TO GOD! This is a pretty high standard, it is true; but the Church of Christ has higher standards than any earthly institution, and, if we are to be members of that body, it will be because we are willing to follow these high standards.

Can you think of any organization anywhere which operates, today, in the slovenly manner that we have allowed the church to follow? I can't think of an earthly institution which could operate successfully with the support of only 20 to 25 percent of its membership. And again, our policies in the church are often a hit or miss effort which would not be tolerated in business or in other realms, simply because business and other groups could not conduct their programs under such carelessness. For example—a Sunday school teacher suddenly decides to visit a relative or to spend a week-end in another city. At 9:00 o'clock, Sunday morning, the Superintendent of the school, if he is fortunate, may hear, indirectly, that a certain teacher will be missing from her class, or perhaps, he may get no word at all. But the church is expected to overlook this thoughtlessness, and provide a substitute on a moment's notice. Neither would be permitted in business, but since the Church is what it is, it is to carry on without complaint. Or, the church needs some repair work done. The same work in our homes would be immediately attended to, but because the work is for the church—it can wait, and wait, and often times, wait some more!

An active church member must of necessity be a flaming witness, as well. I don't mean by that that every member must preach or teach or lead services. But if God's Spirit dwells within, people will know that we are Christians for we will have a witness through our way of living and talking. Speaking to others may be difficult, but we are promised that we "shall receive power after that the Holy Ghost is come upon" us. Too many church members have not the power to witness simply because they have not made room in their own hearts for the working of the Holy Spirit within them. The power of the Holy Spirit will help us to walk circumspectly; He will call to our remembrance the things that Christ taught; He keeps us from taking offense; He helps us to forgive others who are not Christian in their actions toward us; and He continues to reveal to us the things of God.

Perhaps I might have said all of this in fewer words. It seems to me that Active Church Membership in the Church of Christ is dependent upon one thing—That is, a willingness to be yielded to God's Holy Spirit. If all of our church membership were to recognize this need what a glorious church ours would be, even here upon the earth.

I am glad that it is not the pastor's obligation to differentiate between active and inactive members. But if each of us will look at ourselves in the light of our own individual yieldedness to the Spirit of God, and will in turn, yield, completely, our inactive membership will take care of itself.

Louisville, Ohio.

---

Interesting Items

(Continued from Page 2)

---

Brother C. C. Grisso holding forth there from March 7 to 21.

Berlin, Pennsylvania. We note that Brother Whetstone was the final speaker at the Lenten services which have been conducted in the Berlin Churches. The last service was held in the Reformed Church.

Nappanee, Indiana. We note that more needs in the New Church have been met as follows: Dishes for the kitchen—$140.00—donated by Mrs. M. D. Price, Frienda Bowers and Mrs. Amos Miller; Ten burner gas stove—$399.00—donated by the W. M. S. and women of the church; Silverware for kitchen—$140.00—donated by Mrs. John Becknell and Hattie Cunningham.

The Quarterly Cash Day offering recently received amounted to $1,562.00.

Elkhart, Indiana. Brother King reports that six were welcomed into church membership on Sunday, February 29, and that Miss Betty White presented herself for full time service as the Lord shall direct.

Waterloo, Iowa. Brother V. E. Meyer is conducting a week of Pre-Easter services, having as his assistant Brother H. D. Hunter, of North Manchester, Indiana, who is acting as song director.

Preaches in Laymen's Tabernacle. Brother John F. Locke reports that he preached for the Laymen's Evangelistic Club at Mt. Crawford, Virginia, recently. This organization has been functioning over twenty years. Recently the club took an abandoned Baptist Church (whose roof had blown off and ceiling was falling in, and the whole place had become a habitation for bats) and repaired and transformed it into an attractive meeting house again. Brother Locke says, "A good audience was present and there was enthusiastic singing. When I began to read the scripture lesson there were many Bibles opened. Two little blind boys, for whom the club is paying for the surgery which some day may restore their sight, were led in. Each had an eye bandaged which some day soon will be removed. The people are praying that they will be able to see then. The evening was a most interesting experience."

We note also that the Mt. Olive Church recently gave Brother Locke a unanimous call for another year.

Business Manager's Corner

(Continued from page 3)

|                                                            |            |
|------------------------------------------------------------|------------|
| Mrs. Morris Miller .....                                   | 1.00       |
| Mr. and Mrs. Harry Rowell .....                            | 20.00      |
| Mr. and Mrs. Ben Schrock .....                             | 1.00       |
| Mr. and Mrs. DeFoe Eckleberger .....                       | 2.00       |
| Mrs. Harriet Richmond .....                                | .50        |
| Mr. and Mrs. Rollin Roth, Sr. ....                         | 5.00       |
| Mrs. N. Wombold .....                                      | 2.00       |
| Jeanette Berger .....                                      | 5.00       |
| Mr. and Mrs. DeMain Warner .....                           | 10.00      |
| Mrs. Laura Ulrey .....                                     | 1.00       |
| Mr. and Mrs. Rob Hamilton .....                            | 5.00       |
| Mrs. John Baer .....                                       | 1.00       |
| Miss Lodema Hamilton .....                                 | 1.00       |
| Mr. and Mrs. Glenn Berkey .....                            | 1.50       |
| Mrs. Chas. Gill .....                                      | 3.00       |
| Dr. E. M. Miller and Family .....                          | 5.00       |
| A Friend .....                                             | 1.00       |
| Misc .....                                                 | 118.76     |
| Highland Church Offering, Marianna Pa. $25.50 as follows: |            |
| Mr. and Mrs. L. E. Moore .....                             | 5.00       |
| Geraldine Miller .....                                     | 2.50       |
| Jonathan Moore and Family .....                            | 3.00       |
| "Belotes" .....                                            | 5.00       |
| Mr. and Mrs. H. E. Dague .....                             | 10.00      |
| Huntington, Ind., Church Offering .....                    | 17.00      |
| Johnstown, Pa., 2nd Church Offering .....                  | 25.00      |
| Total including this report .....                          | $3,219.16 |

WITH THE LAYMEN

A STARTER

HERE IS evidence of laymen definitely becoming mission-minded. At a recent meeting of the Northern Indiana Laymen's Brotherhood of the Brethren Church, held at the Warsaw Brethren Church on March 1, the men voted to send $100.00 to Rev. G. E. Drushal, superintendent of our mission at Lost Creek, Kentucky. We feel this was a splendid and noble gesture on the part of these men. To this amount was added a $5.00 bill by Brother Fred W. Brant, a visitor from Berlin, Pennsylvania.

We might also state that plans are now being made for a work-project this spring at Lost Creek. A group of Laymen are to go down and spend one week working—repairing, remodeling, or possibly building new. Groups from North Manchester, South Bend, and Nappanee have already expressed the desire to help. (More about this later.)

At this meeting the Laymen were privileged to listen to a challenging message, delivered by Dr. Russell Bolinger of North Manchester College, who spoke on "The Potential Possibilities of Laymen." He brought out many interesting relationships of laymen and pastors, observing and stressing the layman's place in the program of the church, as the crisis of the church, also noting the possibility of professionalism among the clergy as the result of lay minority in church government. The alarming thing is that this condition is not being actively attacked, but ignored. Our churches are manned by men of profession and women. (The latest definition for church—"a few men with a bunch of women around them.") The speaker offered these physical observations: Pastors' time occupied by social engagements, rather than being devoted to personal needs of individuals; any leadership group in power too long tends to become jealous, self-righteous and short-sighted—suspicious of any outside line of thinking.

The scope of lay service is church wide. Do what you can do. By continually denying the warning, the privilege of service is taken away. Laymen should share in church government and in administration policies of the church. Lay business experience is valuable; lay teachers, lay preachers and lay evangelists are needed.

In making general observation, the speaker stated the real test is Jesus. In a observation of this type, the spiritual condition always controls the success or failure. Success cannot be the result of any one preacher or even class representation, but must come from the teachings of Jesus. The time has come when we must throw aside the trivial things of life and show forth by true Christian service the unselfish love He manifested while here on earth.

Benediction was pronounced by Rev. C. Y. Gilmer of Bryan, Ohio.

Max Miller, Sec.-Treas.

"The day of formal praying and petty giving is over and the day of big things has come."

CHRISTIAN ENDEAVOR TOPIC

W. St. Clair Benshoff, Topic Editor

"Topics copyrighted by the International Society of Christian Endeavor.
Used by permission."

Topic for April 4, 1948

THE CHURCHES' COMMON HERITAGE

Scripture: Mark 3:13-19; Matt. 16:13-20; Acts 2:1-4

For The Leader

THIS IS A lesson in Church History tonight, for we must go back to the very beginning of the Church life to find some of the facts in the case. When we speak of the Churches' common heritage we think of the common origin of all churches which directly or indirectly center their origin in Christ. But it is well to remember that not all branches or break-offs of this original church have remained true in doctrine and teaching and practice to the truth as Christ presented it. Thus it behooves us to examine the doctrine and teachings of a church in the light of the scriptures to determine whether or not they are a true Christian, Christ-honoring Church.

DISCUSSION

1. THE ORIGIN OF THE CHURCH. Our passage in Acts tonight tells of the coming of the Holy Spirit. The disciples were gathered in the upper room at Jerusalem, it was ten days after Jesus had ascended into heaven with the promise of coming again. As the disciples were there in that room praying, the Holy Spirit descended with power upon them. They were given power to speak. As they went forth from that room it was under the influence of the Holy Spirit, the third Person of the God-Head. As they went, they preached, souls were converted to Christ. Thus the Church was born. This Church which is the Bride of Christ, this Church for which Christ died, this Church for which He will come and receive unto himself. It is this church which is to keep itself unspotted from the world.

2. CHRIST PURGES HIS CHURCH. The historical evidences point to numerous divisions and splits in the Church. How and why of these divisions would fill many pages. Some were necessary, some were harmful. But in a way, Christ has had to bring about these divisions in order to keep His Church pure in doctrine, faith and practice. The great reformation was one of these. The domineering Roman Catholic church had become so severe in its corruption of Christian principles and the insertion of the pagan practice of idol worship that multitudes of the people were becoming disgusted. Among these was Martin Luther, the first of the Protestants. Luther took with him in his heroic rebellion the precious faith of salvation through faith in Christ. Instead of "salvation" through confessionals, penance, purgatory payments, and fear, Luther freed the Gospel and preached "salvation through our personal faith in Christ." Which do you prefer today?

3 HALF-BREED CHURCHES. As we mentioned in the beginning, all church groups have a common heritage in Christ, but not all have remained true to Christ. We who are good Brethren like to consider a church a Church, for we want to be fair, unbiased and impartial. But do you know that there are churches in America which do no worship God, nor honor Christ? We need not mention them, for any person can find them if he looks around. Often they go by the name church, often they have built great "churchy" buildings. However, a very strict point must be emphasized. Christ's church is a gospel preaching, soul saving, and soul-missionary organization. Any church which misses this point is nothing more than a "half-breed" church. It assumes the title of church, but misses the purpose of the Church.

4. PROTESTANT DIVISIONS. When Luther freed the gospel from the tyrannical control of the Roman Catholic Church, he gave rise to a regime of free and literal interpretations of the scriptures. His movement lacked the rigid control and unitized power as had been present in the Roman Catholic group. This was not strange, for it was a little like the freeing of the slaves in the Civil war. They were free, but, being in bondage for so long, they didn't know what to do with their freedom. The early Protestant groups were about like that. Had the Protestants been able to effect the miracle of a central organization of true gospel believing groups, there might not have been the immense number of denominations we have today. One good thing, among others we could mention, which has resulted from the divisions of protestant groups is that wherever you have had division, instead of one church working for Christ, you have two. This may not appear to be good on the surface, but it is so.

5. CHRIST'S PART IN DIVISIONS. We would be the last to declare that Christ had any part in the divisions of denominations. Yet, in a sense this has been true many times. Not all of the times. And here's how. If a particular denomination, or church dynasty, takes it upon itself to reject the true gospel preaching of the Word of God, and seeks to make that decision binding on the membership, then uprisings occur. There are always the true faithful Christians who cannot stand false doctrine. Christ must keep His gospel preaching machine (the Church) free from foreign doctrines. So there comes a purge, and, like as not, a division occurs. Think about this before you form any conclusions of your own. The best bet is to help keep the church true to the original tenets of the gospel as given by Christ in the days of the disciples.

5. PETER'S FAITH—A BASIC PRINCIPLE OF THE CHURCH. Peter was never a pope; he was never the first pope of the Roman Catholic Church. There is no scriptural evidence of any sort which gives license to such a person as a pope in the Church of Jesus Christ. The Roman Catholics have misinterpreted Christ's statement to Peter to mean for their own use, that Christ appointed Peter as the first Pope. What Jesus did mean, and the importance of the difference can easily be seen, is this: Jesus said that the faith which Peter expressed that "Jesus is the Christ, the Son of the Living God," is the faith on which the Christian church should be built. That faith is the Rock of salvation. That faith is the Rock upon which countless millions of people have based their salvation from sin. To this faith we must cling today.

A PROBLEM

How can we be certain that our own church and ministry is preaching the true gospel as Christ intended it to be preached? Acts 17:11.

Prayer Meeting Topic

Contributed by Rev. C. Y. Gilmer

(Helps for Soul Winners)

YOU CANNOT LEAVE GOD OUT

Though you may try in many ways
To circumscribe your life,
To plan your time and chart your course
Amid the varied strife.
You may spurn heavenly guidance,
Turn from it with a laugh—
But somewhere in the plan of things
God will cross your path.

It may be in the spring of youth
He makes a bid for you.
You laugh Him off, there're other things
You must have time to do.
He tries again in middle life,
You turn away in wrath,
You need Him not, you're satisfied—
But God will cross your path!

You cannot leave God out of life,
I care not how you try.
Though you may dodge and shake Him off—
Sometime you've got to die,
You'll meet Him face to face that day
Not in His love, but wrath,
And all life's bravado will flee—
God has crossed your path!

—M. R. Warren.

THE UNAVOIDABLE CHRIST

Scripture: John 20:19; 8:23, 24; Rev. 6:14-17

Hymn: "You Cannot Hide from God"

Prayer

Seed Thought Promovokers:

THE CRUCIFIED Christ and the risen Son of God still lives. Men cannot bar Him from their mind and conscience. His claims compel every man to decide for or against Him. Christus existed in Roman history. The world's calendar is based on His birthday. He was a historic personality and remains a fact. His claim to deity occasioned His execution (John 10:33). But He had the authority of the Godhead behind Him. To this day no one can reject Him without an effort. Because His presence brings conviction men try to avoid Him. After sinning Adam and Eve tried to hide from God but were forced to stand ashamed in His presence. Jonah tried to flee from the presence of the Lord. Read Psalm 139:7-12. Jesus stands in the midst in adversity, sickness, and death. As in Pilate's case He is on every man's hands. And every man, as in Pilate's case, cannot escape an inevitable decision. Some try to compliment Him (Luke 6:46). Some crucify Him (Heb. 6:6). Others accept Him.

Those who will not take Him as Saviour now (John 3:17, 18) will make Him their Judge (Rom. 14:12).

Today we have to face God's Christ (Heb. 1:1-3; John 5:26). He alone can make our life worth living (1 Peter 1:8, 9; 1 John 3:1, 2; Phil. 1:21). Being Master of the ages (John 8:58; Rev. 22:13), He alone is our infallible Guide (John 8:12; Psa. 32:8; Acts 4:12). The powers of Hell could not destroy Him for He arose from the grave to declare, "All power is given unto Me in Heaven and in earth." The time is coming when all who have set themselves against Him will have to bow the knee to Him (Phil. 2:9-11).

All will have to face God's Christ with the fact of their sin (Rom. 3:23) and failure (Matt. 22:37, 38). It is to either take the gift of God or the wages of sin (Rom. 6:23; Matt. 25:41-46). If you receive the gift of grace you may know you are saved (2 Tim. 1:12; 1 Peter 1:18). You must come to Jesus (Matt. 11:28; John 6:35), confess Him openly (Rom. 10:9, 10), be baptized (Mark 16:16), and obey Him (Heb. 5:9).

COMMENTS

On The Sunday School Lesson

by The Editor

Lesson for April 4, 1948

A PROPHET AMONG THE EXILES

Lesson: Ezekiel 1:1-3; 3:1, 17-21; 4:1-3

WE MOVE from the New Testament back into the Old Testament as we begin this new Quarter's lessons. We will find that this series of lessons will seek to show how the religion of the Jewish people was preserved under foreign domination. It will be possible in our studies to set forth many practical applications of the principles involved. We will begin with Ezekiel's service in keeping alive the faith of a people who were held in bondage. This can be aptly applied to our present-day situation, when we realize that even now, behind Russia's "Iron Curtain" there are many who have "not bowed the knee to Baal," and who are keeping up their worship of the Christ, even if it is not permitted in the open. That God does "not leave himself without witness" is to be remembered at all times.

In studying this lesson we should interest ourselves in the reason for the necessity of keeping the people in memory of their God. To this end we will need to study the circumstances which led to the captivity and the results of the bondage into which they were carried. We have not space to more than mention this.

God called Ezekiel to be a prophet, even while he was in captivity, and he became the one authorized to declare "unto the children of thy people" (Ezekiel 3:11), "Thus saith the Lord," and to warn them of the dire results of forsaking God, even in their captivity.

Our lesson for today is to be drawn from the words of the Golden Text—Ezekiel 3:17, "I have made thee a watchman . . . therefore, hear the word of MY mouth, and give them warning from ME." It is God speaking. Here is a grave warning and responsibility which is laid upon every follower of God—to warn those living lives of sin of the consequences of their ungodly acts. The "warning" is our duty—the results are between the "warned and God." It is not ours to compel obedience, for man is a free moral agent; but it is ours to set the stage, for here is a drama of real life which is to be played out with God and the warned man as the chief actors. If we are faithful to our part of the work, we are "right with God" regarding the warned party. If not, surely God will "require it at thine hand." (Ezekiel 3:20).

There is much in this lesson to make us stop and take stock of our own activities.

Young Men and Boys' Brotherhood

April Program

1. Scripture Order
2. Praise and Prayer
3. Bible Study:

DRIVEN AWAY FROM HOME

Genesis 28:1-22

HOW WOULD you like to be driven away from your home? Name three people who were to blame for Jacob being driven from home. Why did his own mother tell him he had to go? The boy who was to get a double share of the family estate that always went to the eldest son had to leave home. Explain. Who had persuaded and helped Jacob to deceive his own father? Now Rebecca sends Jacob on foot a distance of five hundred miles to the home of her brother Laban. She never saw his face again in this world!

After Jacob had tramped about fifty miles he was exhausted in body, mind and spirit. He had no place to sleep at the setting of the sun. He cast himself on the ground and lay his head on a stone for a pillow. It was his own sin and selfishness that brought him to this sad place. A boy's worst enemy is himself. The demands of self are costly to a boy. A boy's life must have a center—self or Christ. Only Christ can save us from ourselves.

In this hilly country Jacob could hear the wild animals howling as he tried to sleep. He may have thought about his grandfather Abraham having traveled this way years before. He may have thought of God's great promises made to his grandfather and also to his father that through their descendants Christ would one day come as a Saviour to a lost world. He fell asleep and had a wonderful vision. He saw a ladder reaching from earth to Heaven. On this ladder which speaks of Christ he saw angels ascending and descending. From a glorious figure at the top of the ladder he hears the voice of God. God can find and meet a young man in the most unlikely places. Although he had done wrong and was unworthy

God came near to comfort and cheer. What did God say to Jacob from the opened heavens?

The school teacher came to the parsonage after school to inquire if Phil who had been absent for three days was ill. The father said that Phil had left home every morning at school time. When Phil came home he could tell what his father knew. He was punished by having to sleep in the attic for three nights because he had deceived his parents for three days. But the father and mother could not sleep that first night. Finally the father said, "Mother, I can't stand this any, longer; I am going upstairs with Phil." With his pillow he tiptoed softly to Phil's bed so as not to awaken him. But Phil's eyes were wide awake and glistened with tears. The father wept, too. Then they slept together the three nights. This, though imperfect, is a picture of God in Christ lying down alongside of sinful man three days and nights, sharing our suffering and removing our sin.

What hymn, which is a favorite of your grandparents, is based on this lesson? Sing it. In the morning Jacob said, "Surely the Lord is in this place and I did not know it. This is the house of God and the gate of Heaven." He poured oil on one of the stones and called the place Bethel, which means "House of God." He made a vow that if God would take care of him he would give God a tenth of all that he might have in life. Many years later Jacob returned to this dear spot and built an altar. Jacob came to the land of Uncle Laban and worked many years for a wife.

Thus we see how sin separates man from God and also from his fellowmen, and makes him a wanderer like Cain. But there is a remedy in Christ for the sinful and the needy. Jesus came into this world to save sinners and nobody else "for all have sinned and come short of the glory of God." When Jesus said to the sick man, "Wilt thou be made whole?" he answered, "I will." Accepting Christ is deciding to let Him heal us of all our sin.

4. Business

5. Recreation

Notice: Ohio Pastors and Campers

To the Brethren Churches of Ohio:

By authority of the National Sunday School Association, there will be an Ohio Camp this year. One of the members of the Association will serve as the General Director of the camp. For the first year, there will be two age groups from nine to thirteen years, inclusive.

The camp, at Lake O'Dell, located fifteen miles south of Wooster, contains forty-seven acres and is ample to accommodate the schedule of two different age groups at the same time, except for meals, vespers, etc. Included in the camp equipment for sports will be Volley Ball, Badminton, Soft Ball, Archery, Ping-Pong, Shuffleboard, Boating and Swimming.

Sleeping accommodations are provided in the form of a dormitory for the girls, and separate cottages for the boys.

The program at Camp O'Dell begins early in June and we are fortunate to be able to secure a choice date—July 11 to 17. As yet we cannot state the registration fee other than approximately $11.00 to $12.00. All meals will be provided by the regular camp management.

Those wishing to go to Shipshewana may do so, but we welcome any from the Ohio churches to come and camp with us. Credits will be extended in the Ohio Camp just the same as in our other camps. Should you desire further information before our schedule is mailed, it may be had from J. G. Dodds, 1581 Merrill Ave., Akron 6, Ohio; E. J. Beekley, 604 Paar Place, N. E., Canton, Ohio; or J. T. Byler, 1033 East Main Street, Louisville, Ohio.

Yours for Ohio Camping,

THE COMMITTEE.

News From Our Churches

REVIVAL AT GATEWOOD, W. VA.

It was our happy privilege the last two weeks of September to go to the Gatewood Brethren Church for a Revival meeting. Upon our arrival, we found the Church in very good shape for a Revival. Much hard work, faith and prayer had been manifested before our coming. This faithful preparation on the part of the good people under the direction of their pastor, Rev. Smith F. Rose, made for a good start for the two weeks. Interest and attendance were good from the start and increased as the two weeks progressed. Services were held each evening of the week and morning and evening on Sundays. The second Sunday was Homecoming Day for the Gatewood Brethren. Special features in addition to the regular morning and evening services were a carry in dinner at noon, and an afternoon service. At this service, many visitors were present from nearby churches.

The church at Gatewood, W. Va., is a rural church with a very nice building in good repair and condition. It is located in this fine community among the hills just eight miles from Oak Hill, W. Va. Rev. Rose is the hard working pastor, carrying the work of this church along with his duties as pastor of the Oak Hill Brethren Church. Through the efforts of Brother Rose, the Church is well established in the Brethren faith. It has a large percentage of boys and girls, along with their parents, making for a bright future for the church. The church and the pastor stand well in the community.

Our home for the two weeks was in the home of Brother S. S. Goff and family, who exerted every effort to the making of our stay a very pleasant one. We got into a goodly number of the homes, some for good West Virginia cooking, and others in visitation. Inasmuch as Rev. Rose along with his full time duties as pastor of these two churches, is also teaching school full time, he was not able to be with us at Gatewood during the days. For our visitation we were "piloted" around by Rev. Clower, of the local Church of the Brethren, and by laymen of the Gatewood Church.

Through the efforts of the Rose family we were able to see many of the beauty spots of West Virginia; also to attend a football game and see the team coached by Rev. Rose in action. It was a real treat. This section of West Virginia is noted for its mountain beauty and coal mining industry. Thousands and thousands of tons of coal are mined each year by the men of this territory for the homes and industries of America.

At one of the evening services, and at the Homecoming service the second Sunday we were privileged to have the Oak Hill Brethren Church choir with us. This fine choir added much to the services. As we think back over these two weeks, we can count many spiritual blessings we received personally from having learned to know these Gatewood Brethren. Their encouragement and attention in the services was an inspiration to the writer. As someone has written that it is impossible to meet any person without being influenced by them in some way, so we, in being with these people have received great spiritual blessing through their faith, and Christian living. Their generous offering was far above the average. We would despair of trying to write a full picture of the joy and blessing we received while there. But our prayer is that a portion of the blessing we received shall have been imparted in the church, and that the church at Gatewood shall have been encouraged, blessed and inspired to go forward in even greater activities of service for Christ.

We are certain that under the guidance of Rev. Rose, and the Spirit of God, they will. We have our life-time memories of two weeks spent in the service of the Lord at Gatewood, and we pray constantly for God's blessings to be continually upon them.

W. S. Benshoff, Vinco, Pennsylvania.

REVIVAL AT VINCO, PENNSYLVANIA

The Vinco Brethren Church was fortunate in being able to secure Rev. Clayton Berkshire for a two weeks' series of meetings in November. Rev. Berkshire came to us from his busy pastorate at New Lebanon, Ohio. The second week of the meeting, Mrs. Berkshire and two of the children, Sharon and Phyllis were with us. The weather for the two weeks was normal November weather. The attendance averaged a little over 100 for each of the 16 services. The home of the evangelist was in the parsonage where his company, and the company of his wife and children the second week, was much enjoyed by the parsonage family. Meals were taken in the various homes of the church; others contributing food for "after-church" lunches at the parsonage.

Each evening service was preceded by a pre-prayer service at 7:15. Much stress was laid upon the value of this service, and upon prayer in general. The evangelist suggested a noon-time prayer period during the meeting, which was followed generally. Local talent and visiting Brethren furnished special musical numbers at all of the services. Evangelist Berkshire also led the singing for the meeting. Our platform was graced each evening with the Adult choir and the Young People's choir. Rev. and Mrs. Berkshire furnished us with vocal and violin numbers from time to time which were well received.

The Vinco church was definitely blessed by the presence of the Berkshires in our midst. Aside from the many spiritual blessings received, we are able to report 10 re-consecrations, and 11 added to the Church roll, 6 of these 11 being first time confessions. These have since been baptized and received into the full fellowship of the church.

We thank Brother Berkshire for the fine, Biblical, soul searching, helpful and inspiring messages which he brought to us. Vinco Brethren hearts have been filled with the soul satisfying messages he brought to us as God's chosen Messenger. We thank him also for his excellent song leading for the meeting. Rev. Berkshire preached the Word with a firm conviction of its importance and power. He preached with sincerity and force, that one could not fail to get a blessing from his sermons. This fine spirit has continued since the meeting, and was especially felt in our communion service a few weeks later when 140 Brethren gathered around the Holy tables. A further report, Lord willing, will be made in the near future of other Vinco Brethren activities.

W. S. Benshoff, pastor.

FIRE AT MT. OLIVE PARSONAGE

Fire completely destroyed the Wash house which stood behind the parsonage of the Mt. Olive Brethren Church and but for the direction of the wind and prompt action by the Harrisonburg fire company the parsonage itself would have burned. The dwelling was damaged considerably at one corner where the weatherboards are burned away and the rafters charred. The custodian of the church and his family occupy the parsonage building here. They lost personal property of value stored in the out building.

The congregation made a gift of $25.00 to the fire company in appreciation of their assistance. A few minutes later and perhaps not only the parsonage but the church itself might have been destroyed. The Lord graciously delivered us from very serious damage.

Brother John Locke is the pastor of the Mt. Olive congregation.

NORTH LIBERTY, INDIANA

We of the First Brethren Church of North Liberty are looking forward to two weeks of evangelistic services which will begin with a Sunrise service on Easter morning. This service will be in charge of the young people of the church. Following this early morning service, breakfast will be served in the church dining room. Sunday School and morning worship will follow.

The messages for our services will be brought to us by Rev. Rolland V. Hudson, who is Dean of men and Professor of Missions and Practical Theology at Bethel College. He has had wide experience as a pastor and evangelist and was a supervising Chaplain in India and Burma during the war, serving with the rank of Major.

Rev. Hudson's messages are filled with thrilling illustrations from his wide experiences. He has recently held services in Elkhart, South Bend and Ardmore.

Mr. Charles Tramer of Mishawaka, who is a very active member of the Gideon Society, will assist Rev. Hudson by supervising the musical part of the services. He has had wide experience in this work and is a very capable song leader and soloist.

Come and worship with us. The entire congregation and Rev. George Pontius, our pastor, extends you a hearty welcome in His name.

Please remember us in your prayers.

Mrs. Ernest Schrader, Cor. Sec.

FALLS CITY, NEBRASKA

We are going along quite well here. During the year of 1947 there were sixteen baptisms, all of whom were taken into the church at Falls City. There are several who are thinking of taking the step at the coming Easter week of services.

We have done quite a little benevolence work. We sent clothing to Europe, and sent eggs and canned food to an orphanage in Omaha.

The "Training For Service" training Class, No. 1, taught by Rev. Johnson is taking its final tests. Training Class No. 2 by the undersigned, is studying the Third unit of the course. This work has proven very interesting to those who come, that all our Bible School teachers may be trained teachers.

February 29th was Brethren Youth Day in the church. The Young People of the Bible School put on the full morning service.

Our annual birthday party was held March 2, following one of the biggest snow storms of the season. Sixty-six braved the weather to attend.

Rev. Cecil Johnson, our pastor, is holding pre-Easter services at Carleton, Nebraska, at the present time.

We are planning and working on our Easter program which will be a song service Easter evening, with every department of the Bible School presenting two numbers.

Easter morning services will be a Decision Day program.

Mary E. Rieger, Cor. Sec.

Laid to Rest

CULP. Earl C. Culp passed from this life at his home near Bellefontaine, Ohio, on February 8, 1948. Mr. Culp was born in Logan County, Ohio, on November 8, 1887. He served as a railroad engineer for about thirty years, retiring a few years ago because of ill health.

Mr. Culp was a member of the Gretna, Ohio, Brethren Church where he attended faithfully when his health permitted.

Funeral services were conducted in the Kenny Funeral Home in Bellefontaine, Ohio, by the undersigned.

KNIGHT. Lorenzo Knight departed this life on December 12, 1947, in the Miller-McComb hospital, at the age of sixty-five. At the time of his death he was a salesman for the Farmer's Guide Magazine.

Mr. Knight was born in Williamstown, Ohio, but prior to his death he lived in Findlay, Ohio. He was a member of the Brethren Church in Williamstown.

Memorial services were conducted from the Coldren Funeral Home in Findlay by the undersigned.

Charles Munson.

MANCHESTER COLLEGE LIBRARY
NORTH MANCHESTER, INDIANA

What Is Truth?

*Said one to me, "You ministers don't preach the gospel right;
You hem and haw and find excuse for sin in heaven's sight.
Next Sunday preach the real thing, just give it to us straight;
It's truth we want, most reverend sirs, in terms most up-to-date.*

*So, sore ashamed, I sought my desk and pored my Bible o'er,
To get the truth the brother asked, the truth he hungered for.
When Sunday came, I spoke the truth, which was that men should give
A tenth of all they earned a year, as long as they should live.*

*I thought that brother sure would say, "Your sermon, sir, was fine,
Just preach that tithing truth again and count on me for mine."
But not a word he uttered as he passed without the roof,
And never since has asked of me to preach the gospel truth.*

—Author unknown.

THE BRETHREN EVANGELIST

Published weekly, except the last week in August and
the last week in December.

THE BRETHREN PUBLISHING COMPANY

Ashland, Ohio

PRUDENTIAL COMMITTEE

J. E. Stookey, President    N. G. Kimmel, Vice-President
J. G. Dodds, Secretary-Treasurer

EDITOR OF PUBLICATIONS—F. C. Vanator

BUSINESS MANAGER—G. S. Baer

EDITOR MISSIONARY NUMBER—E. M. Riddle

CONTRIBUTING EDITORS

Dr. Charles A. Bame                      Rev. Dyoll Belote

DEPARTMENTAL EDITORS

Dr. C. F. Yoder, Brethren Doctrine

Rev. N. V. Leatherman, Practical Church Problems

Rev. J. G. Dodds, National Goals

Dr. R. F. Porte, Brethren Church History

PLEASE REMEMBER: All material for publication in the Evangelist must be in the hands of the editor at least three weeks before the desired date of publication, to assure same to appear in desired issue. This refers to announcements particularly.

TERMS OF SUBSCRIPTION: $1.50 per year in advance.
CHANGE OF ADDRESS: In ordering change of address always
give both old and new addresses.

REMITTANCES: Send all money, business communications, and contributed articles to:

THE BRETHREN PUBLISHING COMPANY
ASHLAND, OHIO

Entered as second class matter at Ashland, Ohio. Accepted for mailing
at special rate, section 1103, act of October 3, 1917. Authorized
September 3, 1928.

INTERESTING ITEMS

Milledgeville, Illinois. We note from Brother D. C. White's bulletin that the North Manchester Church A Cappella Choir, composed of fifty-seven voices, gave a concert at the Milledgeville Church on Saturday evening, March 27.

Hagerstown, Maryland. Brother N. V. Leatherman held three nights of Pre-Easter services, with a baptismal service following the Friday night service. He held a class of instruction for children desiring baptism on the Saturday previous.

Linwood, Maryland. As previously announced, Brother Belote has been called to assume the pastorate of the Linwood Brethren Church, but he will not begin this work until about the middle of June, instead of April 1st as announced.

Flora, Indiana. A Gospel Team from Ashland College had a part in the Pre-Easter meetings in the Flora Church, being present for the Friday evening and the Sunday services. Brother J. Edgar Berkshire, pastor of the church, preached the sermons on Wednesday and Thursday evenings.

Stockton, California. A note from Brother C. C. Grisso who is holding evangelistic services in the Northern California District, tell us of the baptizing of ten persons during the Sunday services on March 14th. He said that the evangelistic efforts in the district are going forth in fine shape. Brother Virgil Ingraham is pastor of the Stockton church.

Canton, Ohio. We are in receipt of several newspaper clippings from Brother E. J. Beekley, pastor of our Canton Church, telling us of the efforts which were put forth recently to stop the influx of liquor selling places in residential districts of that city. Brother Beekley says the fight has been a difficult one all the way through. We do not yet have the result in our hands.

Cerro, Gordo, Illinois. We note that the Young People Morning Sunrise service. At the close of the service a of the Cerro Gordo Church were in charge of the Easter breakfast was served in the Junior Sunday School rooms.

St. James, Maryland. Brother Henry Bates announces that the Spring Love Feast and Holy Communion of the St. James Church will be held on Sunday evening, April 11th.

Nappanee, Indiana. The revival services in the Nappanee Church begin on Sunday, April 4, with Brother Virgil E. Meyer, pastor of the Waterloo, Iowa, Brethren Church as Evangelist.

A bus load of young people from Nappanee, fifty-seven in number, attended the Brethren Youth skating party at Mishawaka recently. A fine time was reported.

Cordoba, Argentina, South America. It is not often that we receive "Interesting Items" from our South American field, but we have just received a note from Brother Yoder with some interesting information in it. We pass it on: "I gave Bible studies all through the month of January in our 'Summer Camp' here and have remained to take care of the property and help to build a room 15 x 23 feet, in which to store tents, benches, etc., and also to have a place for a caretaker if necessary. It is a beautiful site by the river in the mountains only fifteen miles from Cordoba, but I cannot leave it alone on account of the many people who come hunting bathing places by the river, and I have been in Cordoba only once during this time. We hope to have the roof on our building by Easter. It is not costing much for we are building from rocks left by the railway which passes the place. As there are few to help I have been very busy, but happy to help to provide a center which we believe will be a valuable adjunct to our work."

Bryan, Ohio. Under the Goal for organization of Signal Lights in the various churches, the Bryan W. M. S. has sponsored such an organization and the first meeting was held at the 10:15 hour on Sunday morning, March 21, with Mrs. Jay Corwin and Miss Hazel Keiser as leaders. They will continue to meet the third Sunday of each month.

Business Manager's Corner

George S. Baer

Please Report Publication Day Offerings

A GOODLY NUMBER of churches have not yet reported their Publication Day Offerings. We are content that they will all be sending in a gift, but if it can be done soon we will appreciate it. We are hoping to be able to report a 100% response on the part of our churches to this offering appeal. We thank all those who have sent in their offerings and those who will yet give. God bless you all for your loyalty to this part of the Lord's work.

Press Fund Offerings

Space does not permit reporting Press Fund Offerings until later. But some nice offerings are being received. That new press is doing a grand job and we are expecting to keep it running steadily. It was a great investment and we are confident that the Brotherhood will see the campaign through to a completion and that by another year, the close of 1949, we will be out of debt on all equipment.

Mother's Day and Children's Day Programs

It is not too early to make plans for your observance of these special days. We have in stock the following booklets ready to serve you: "Standard Mother's Day Book No. 3" (25c); "Standard Children's Day Book No. 2" (25c); "Children's Day Helper, No. 47" (30c). Place your order early while stock is on hand.

Bibles and Testaments

Don't forget, we have a large stock of Bibles and Testaments on hand—including White Bibles for weddings and special gifts; Zipper Bibles; Large Type Bibles; Teacher's Bibles; Young People's Bibles; Handy Pocket Bibles, genuine morocco and leather lined; Christian Workers' Bibles and Testaments, as well as many other kinds, and sizes. In case you will be wanting gift Bibles for various occasions, write us about your needs.

If You Are Confused

Many people are. They are unable to reconcile the Christian view of God and the world with these disturbed conditions, or even with their own disappointments and failures. They wonder if this is God's world, and if He is in it, and if there is any meaning to it all. You will find help in the book of lectures and sermons by the late Dr. J. Allen Miller. For example, Two Lectures in particular will help you to arrive at a Christian philosophy of life—"The Plan of the Ages and the End of the World," and "The Philosophy of Life." The book is entitled, "Christian Doctrine—Lectures and Sermons." Price $2.50, postpaid.

More Publication Day Offerings

Jones Mills, Pa., Church Offering, $16.56,
as follows:

Rev. and Mrs. H. R. Garland ..... 1.00

|                        |       |
|------------------------|-------|
| Katherine Miller ..... | 10.00 |
| Helen Stahl .....      | 1.00  |
| Bobby Logan .....      | .50   |
| Arline Stahl .....     | 1.00  |
| Mrs. Nellie Pyle ..... | .50   |

(Continued on Page 10)

The Editor Thinks Aloud

Fred C. Vanator

WISHING VERSUS WORKING

THE EDITOR is appreciative of the many bulletins from the various pastors and churches that find their way to his desk each week. Aside from the news items he gleans for his "Interesting Items" column, very often he comes across a sentence that he lays back to "think about." Such was the case when he picked up Brother Whetstone's Berlin bulletin of March 7 and found four short, pithy sentences at the bottom of page three. One of these caught his fancy, and he jotted it down for future reference. Today he did some "sorting" and came across what he had jotted down. Here it is: "Work Will Win Where Wishing Won't." He read it again, and

It set him to thinking!

Aside from being a fine example of alliteration, it is a very true statement. You surely cannot "wish" anything into existence. Anything that is worth while is worth working for. Nehemiah could not have accomplished the great work of rebuilding of the walls of Jerusalem if the people had not had "a mind to work." It would have accomplished just nothing for Nehemiah to have stood beside the broken walls and to have said, "O, how I wish the walls were rebuilt." It took effort and endurance.

I got to wondering just what the word "wish" really means. So, as usual, I went to the source of definition—the dictionary—and found that it means "to crave, to want something which is sometimes obtainable and sometimes not." It does not necessarily satisfy a "need" for it may simply express a desire to have some feeling gratified. It is always easy to "Wish," but the desire for accomplishment means "Work."

Just as curious, I turned to the word, "work." I found it means, "Physical or mental effort directed to an end; that which is accomplished by exertion." It is "labor with a purpose."

So, turning to our "thought creator" we find that we might say it thus: "Physical or mental effort directed to an end" will win, while merely sitting back and "craving or wanting something" will get you exactly nowhere. We must want a thing enough to be willing to expend our energy upon it if we expect to gain the ends desired.

It works in the physical and mental; and it also obtains in the spiritual. We cannot "wish" the church into a lovely, growing body—we must "work" it to this end.

Think it over!

A Little Child Shall Lead Them

Mrs. Loretta Carrithers

struction from them. Christ Himself, when a child, was in the midst of the doctors, Luke 2:46.

Jesus took the little children up in His arms and taught us not to look down for them any longer. A friend of ours told us that one day she was walking along the street when she heard a voice say, "Hello, Miss Jones." She looked around, but saw no one. Again the little voice. She looked everywhere, but still saw no one. Then a little voice said, "Keep a-lookin' up, Miss Jones." She said, "I looked up and up and up, and finally I saw her way up in a tenement house and when I found her, she said, 'You didn't see me, Miss Jones, because you didn't look high enough.'" Far too many people in our world have been looking down for children, and have, indeed, missed seeing them!

Christ requires that you must be converted, made a new creature in Him. You must become as little children, desiring "the sincere milk of the word." As His children we must be careful for nothing, but leave it to our heavenly Father to care for us. We must be harmless and unoffensive and void of malice. The little child of a rich man will play with the child of a beggar, and Christ would have us freely show the same attitude toward our neighbor.

He taught us that unless we become as little children we shall not enter the kingdom of heaven. As we study a little child, we see simple but strong faith, humility and love that He wants us to achieve. When we have the faith of a little child, we will have that faith with which we shall be able "to move mountains," as little Bill, who stood watching his Daddy working for hours to place a bolt in a difficult place in the engine of his truck. After working without success, and speaking some words which were not becoming to escape the lips of a Christian, little Bill spoke up

ALTHOUGH our Lord could have used a masterly vocabulary that even the most learned scholars could not comprehend, He usually spoke in simple words that even the little children could understand. In many instances, He spoke by parables or illustrations and used little children as examples in teaching His disciples the truth He wished for them to know.

Jesus loved the little children when He was here on earth, and picked them up in His arms and blessed them. Jesus was the first great teacher of men who showed a genuine sympathy for childhood. When He said, "Of such is the kingdom of heaven," it was a revelation.

Jesus saw, in little children, the characteristics that older folks should possess. We see in Matthew 18:1-6, an example of Christ teaching through children. He teaches us, in these verses, to be humble. Humility is a lesson so hardly learned, that we have need by all ways and means to be taught it. When we look upon a little child, we should be put in mind of the use Christ made of this child. He set Him in the midst of them, not that they might play with Him, but that they might learn by Him. Grown men, and great men, should not disdain the company of little children, or think it below them to take notice of them. They may either speak to them, and give instruction to them; or look upon them, and receive inwith words, "Why don't you pray, Daddy, and ask Jesus to help you fix the truck?" The Daddy was quite surprised and ashamed as he answered, "Daddy has said some bad words, so why don't you pray for me?" Without hesitation, little Bill bowed his head and prayed simply, "Dear Jesus, please help Daddy fix the truck." Much to the Daddy's amazement, the bolt was slipped into place in a moment of time. Today, that father testifies that his little boy led him into a closer Christian experience through prayer and in faith believing.

As children are little in body, and low in stature, so we must be little and low in spirit, and in our thoughts of ourselves.

Our Lord shows here the danger of pride and ambition. Whatever profession men make, if they allow themselves in this sin, they will be rejected both from God's tabernacle and from His holy will. Pride threw the angels that sinned out of heaven, and will keep us out, if we be not converted from it. That are lifted up with pride, fall into the condemnation of the devil; to prevent this, we must become as little children, and, in order to do that, must be born again, must put on the new man, must be like the holy Jesus.

The humblest Christians are the best Christians, and most like to Christ, and highest in His favor, are best disposed for the communications of divine grace, and fittest to serve God in this world, and enjoy Him in another.

In Matthew 19:13-15, we have the welcome which Christ gave to some little children that were brought to Him. This is quite a contrast to the reception which children receive in many instances of society today. We ever find churches failing to give children the place that Christ taught us to give them, yet we expect them to be good adult Christians. We have too many parents who are very good at caring for the Martha part of their homes, but neglecting the Mary side, such as Anna shows us. "Mother, you have forgotten my soul," said little Anna, three years old, as her mother was about to lay her in bed. She had just risen from repeating the Lord's Prayer. "But, Mother, you have forgotten my soul!" "What do you mean, Anna?" "Why—'Now I lay me down to sleep, I pray thee, Lord, my soul to keep; and if I die before I wake, I pray thee, Lord, my soul to take,' we have not said that." The child meant nothing more, yet her words were startling. How many mothers, busy hour after hour fashioning pretty garments and caring for the bodies of their little ones, forget their souls.

Many times little children have influence on adults, just as the Word tells us that "a little child shall lead them," and as Jesus taught His disciples, by their examples such as we see in the wife of a prominent lawyer, who had been under deep conviction for several days. She gave the following account at prayer meeting of her conversion: "Last evening my little girl came to me and said, 'Mamma, are you a Christian?' 'No, Fannie, I am not.' She turned and went away, and as she walked off I heard her say, 'Well, if Mamma isn't a Christian I don't want to be one.' And I tell you my dear friends, it went right to my heart, and then I gave myself up to Christ."

We have also the story of how Little Fred, son of Dr. Paton, escaping from the mission house on Amina, rushed into the midst of a ring of savages who were consulting how to kill Dr. Paton, and leaping on the knee of the Chief, threw his arms about his neck and began coaxing and scolding him as "naughty." The fierce brows relaxed, and the men slunk away from the mission premises, disarmed by a child. As the sling and stone were used of God to slay the giant, so was this little child to the preserving of his father.

Praise the Lord for the little children and their influences in this sin sick world today.

May each of us become like them, that we may be able to enter into the kingdom of heaven.

—Peru, Indiana.

---

God's Helping Hand

Dot Custer

If through the years, you have reached fame,
Which causes many to speak your name,
Don't give yourself a pat on the back,
This shows that wisdom you do lack.

If something you do brings many cheers,
Till your eyes with happiness fill with tears,
To you all credit doesn't belong—
So don't start boasting to the throng.

If a fortune should come your way today,
Which puts you on easy street to stay—
Don't feel too proud of yourself, my friend,
Then you'll be happier in the end.

Is all credit mine, ask yourself,
For your fame, fortune, cheers and wealth.
Remember your life by God is planned,
And you always need His helping hand.

—Pittsburgh, Pennsylvania.

Are All Men Sons of God?

A Sermon delivered by L. O. McCartneysmith, Minister of the First Brethren Church, Lanark, Illinois, on March 24th, 1948

Theme: "He came to His own, and His own received Him not, but as many as received Him, to them gave He power to become the sons of God, even to them that believe on His name: which were born, not of blood, nor of the will of the flesh, nor of the will of man, but of God" (John 1:12-13).

IT IS my intention to always have a reason, or purpose for every sermon presented; hence this topic. The doctrine of the Universal Fatherhood of God, presented along with the doctrine of the Universal Brotherhood of men, is not only widely proclaimed, but far too generally accepted as being true, and founded upon the word of God, to pass unnoticed by true believers of the Bible.

The question presented in this morning's topic is a matter of the most vital importance to every person naming the name of the Lord Jesus. Vital, because these doctrines are being proclaimed by some of the larger denominations as being the sum and substance of the Bible. Ideas for a new World Order are being fostered, and these spurious doctrines are offered as supporting evidence for the necessity of their presentation to unsuspecting men and women. Protagonists of these doctrines assume that to have all men live together harmoniously and peaceably, all that is necessary is to have them believe that all men, women and children, are by nature children of a common Father-God, or as they phrase it, Parent-God, and as such, they will as a result live together as brothers should.

Although to some, such a theory may sound good, nevertheless, it is so far removed from the truthful teaching of Jesus Christ that it has become a source of grave danger to the Christian religion, and demands refutation by every minister of the Gospel who believes true New Testament doctrine. Jesus said: "And ye shall know the truth, and the truth shall make you free."

To express to you the universality of these false doctrines and the fearlessness expressed by their proponents in presenting them, it seems well to quote briefly a few of the many outstanding declarations made by leaders of various denominations, which have been voluntarily published.

From a questionnaire circulated among Protestant ministers of Chicago by the School of Education of Northwestern University we have the following: "Jesus' emphasis was almost entirely upon the life men should live on earth. He held to the great ethical ideals and to the high doctrines of God's Fatherhood and man's brotherhood."

A declaration of the General Assembly of the Presbyterian Church, U. S. A.: "The heart of the Gospel is the faith that all men are sons of God."

The following has been quoted from "Brethren Service,"

Elgin, Illinois: "The Church of the Brethren and the Brethren Service Commission believe that all men are sons of God."

Quoting from program for World Day of Prayer, February 13, 1948, sponsored by United Council of Church Women; which calls for leader and congregation to recite the Lord's Prayer, after which the following comment is presented by the leader: "Our Father who art in heaven" "These two words 'Our Father' are pregnant with meaning. To us Christians they are also heavy with responsibility, for as we repeat the first two words of this Prayer Universal we commit ourselves to the world-changing fact that all the peoples of the world are ONE, that 'He hath made of one blood all nations' . . . and that every man and woman and child of all races and nations is a son or a daughter of our Parent-God."

The phrase "every man and woman and child" makes no exception of "The fearful, and unbelieving, and the abominable, and murderers, and whoremongers, and sorcerers, and idolators, and all liars," which God's word unhesitatingly states "shall have their part in the lake which burneth with fire and brimstone, which is the second death." (Rev. 2:8).

In spite of the irrefutable evidence of the unsoundness of such doctrine, thousands of unsuspecting men and women participate in these services. It is high time that ministers and laymen carefully examine all religious literature, and reject all not in harmony with God's word.

These doctrines are creeping into our Sunday school lessons. The following is listed as Objective IV of the International Council of Religious Education, from whom we must secure permission to publish the headings of our Sunday school lessons. Read it carefully:

"Christian education seeks to develop in growing persons the ability and disposition to participate in and contribute constructively to the building of a social order throughout the world embodying the ideal of the Fatherhood of God and the Brotherhood of Man."

If I understand the Word of God correctly, the distinctive work of the Church, which fosters Christian education, is not seeking to develop in our young people the ability and disposition to participate in and contribute constructively to the building of a world social order, but rather to contribute and participate in the divine purpose of this age, which is taking out from among the Gentiles of a people for His name; a spiritual empire. Relative to this we read the words of the Apostle James in Acts 15:13-14: "Men and brethren, hearken unto me: Simeon hath declared how God at the first did visit the Gentiles to take out of them a people for His name, and to this the words of the prophet agree." Also in the great Commission as related in Mathew 28:19-20, nothing is said about a world social order; but we are commanded to "teach all nations, dipping them in the name of the Father, and of the Son, and of the Holy Ghost: teaching them to observe all things whatsoever I have commanded you." Had Jesus intended us to build a world social order He would have said so.

It seems to me that it becomes the duty of Brethren, who believe and accept the Teachings of Jesus as our only rule of Faith, and whom God has exhorted through his servant Jude to "Earnestly contend for the Faith once for all delivered unto the Saints," to expose these unsound doctrines and present instead the basic doctrines of the New Testament.

I. What Saith the Scriptures?

1. God's Holy Word, which is man's final authority in spiritual matters teaches us that to become sons of God, one MUST be born again. In the words of Jesus: "Do not wonder, that I said unto thee, ye MUST be born from above." (John 3:7, original Greek). This is one of the "Musts" of the New Testament, and the Greek word "an-othen" cannot be correctly translated except by using the phrase "from above."

Nicodemus, searching for a closer walk with God, came to Jesus, and inquired: "How is a man able to born being old?" to which Jesus replied: "Indeed, Indeed, I say to thee: if any man be not born out of water and spirit, he is unable to enter into the Kingdom." Nicodemus then asked: "How can these things be?" Jesus informed him: "That having been born out of the flesh, is flesh; and that having been born out of spirit is spirit." Here we readily see that it was not of a natural birth that Jesus spoke.

2. The New Birth is a Supernatural birth brought about by the Holy Spirit, which is positively essential to our becoming children of God; and anything falling short of this fact is not the teaching of Jesus Christ and should be repugnant to Bible-loving Christians.

3. God gives to one class only, the authority or power to become His sons, or children: to them that receive His only begotten Son, for we read from the text: "As many as received Him, to them gave He power to become the sons of God, even to them that believe on His name: which were born, not of blood, nor of the will of man, but of God." (John 1:12-13). These are the only people in this world who possess the power or ability to become God's children; yet facing these great God-given statements, men will tell the world: "All men are sons of God." This supernatural work of Grace is the reconciliation of sinful man with God, solely through the finished work of Jesus Christ, and man's acceptance and obedience thereto, and not through racial or national fleshly birth; but through the power of God wrought by the Holy Spirit in making of sinful man a "new creation" in Christ Jesus: "So that if any one is in Anointed (Christ), he is a new creation, the old things passed away, lo, all things have become new." (From original Greek, 2 Cor. 5:17). Paul continues, speaking of the origin of this "new creation": "And all things are of God, who hath reconciled us to himself by Jesus Christ, and hath given to us the ministry of reconciliation" (2 Cor. 5:18). Then in the 20th verse of this chapter Paul tells us that we are "Ambassadors for Christ" beseeching men to be reconciled to God: not building a world social order!

II. False Doctrines are established by Misinterpretation of Scriptures: purposeful misinterpretations; purposeful twisting; or in the phraseology of 2 Peter 3:16: they "Wrest" scriptures unto their own destruction.

1. Perhaps the most outstanding of these misinterpretations is the first two words of the Lord's Prayer: "Our Father." This is universally "twisted" and presented to support the doctrine of the universal Fatherhood of God and Brotherhood of man, and palmed off to unsuspecting people as irrefutable evidence that all men, women and children are children of God, as quoted from program of World Day of Prayer in the introduction.

2. This prayer cannot be applied universally, to every man and woman and child of all races and nations; because Christ never taught it to all people. He gave this prayer to His disciples, and to them only! The Lord's Prayer is found in connection with Christ's Sermon on the Mount, and is a part of that sermon, which begins with Matthew 5:1, and ends with Matthew 7:29. In the first two verses of Mathew 5, we discover that this entire sermon was not delivered to the multitude, but exclusively to His own disciples, for we read: "And seeing the multitudes, He went up into a mountain: and when He was set, His disciples came unto Him, and He taught them, saying . . ." From this introduction to the conclusion of the sermon, He taught none excepting the Twelve! Luke tells us that one of His disciples requested this teaching: "And it came to pass, that as He was praying in a certain place, when He ceased, one of His disciples said unto Him, Lord, teach us (His disciples) to pray, as John also taught his disciples." (Luke 11:1). He taught only those who had received Him, and to whom He had given Power to become God's children. Therefore this prayer cannot be applied universally to all men, and used as evidence that all men and women and children are children of God.

3. Only those having been born from above have the right or privilege to be called God's children. The right to call our own earthly parent "father" comes by having been born into our earthly father's family, and we are his heirs by the right of birth alone. In like manner, only those who have been "born from above," by the will of the Father may be enumerated as His children and joint heirs with Jesus Christ, regardless of what men may say and teach.

4. Gross misinterpretation in support of these doctrines has been applied to the story of the young man, by Jesus, commonly called The Prodigal Son; but who should be correctly called "The Lost Son"; for God so names him. In this chapter we find three parables: (1). The Lost Sheep, (Luke 15:3-7). (2). The Lost Coin, (Luke 15:8-10). (3). The Lost Son, (Luke 15:11-32).

Jesus speaks of this "son" as being both lost and dead. Lost because he had broken fellowship with his father; and dead in trespasses and sins, as a result of this broken fellowship. This son had been born into his father's family by the will of his father; and had left his father's house by his own will, and had become of his own desire an outcast; with no responsibility attached to the father, for his conduct. He had to return to his father and make confession and obtain forgiveness before he was restored to the father's fellowship. This is a true representation of a child of God, who having been born into the family of God, of his own accord breaks fellowship with God, and is therefore lost until he discovers his condition and has the broken fellowship restored; and has no relationship whatever to the universal Fatherhood of God.

5. Gross misrepresentation has been made of Acts 17:26-28 in the endeavor to support this tottering doctrine of the universal Fatherhood of God and Brotherhood of man. Here we read: "And hath made of one blood all nations of men for to dwell on all the fact of the earth." The word "blood" is not found in the oldest manuscripts, but has been a later addition. It reads in the best Greek manuscripts: "Made out of one every nation." This refers to Adam as the ONE whom God created in His own likeness and image. The ONE who ingloriously fell because of Satanic meddling and disobedience, and was judged, sentenced, and driven out of God's presence. Therefore the descendants of the ONE are "like father, like son" and have need of the "new creation" in Christ Jesus to be called the sons of God. This has no reference whatever to the universal fatherhood of God nor to the universal sonship of man.

In Acts 17:28, we read: "We are the offspring of God." That is true, because Paul was not speaking of unregenerate men, but he was speaking about those who had been "born from above," because he used the personal pronoun "we," which included himself. The word "offspring" has been translated from the Greek word "genos," which means "Race," and may refer to mankind as a race, and not as sons of God.

III. Jesus Speaks of Two Fatherhoods; Also Two Sonships.

1. The Fatherhood of God.
2. The fatherhood of Satan.
3. The sonship of God.
4. The sonship of Satan.

The statement of the Presbyterian Church of the U. S. A. has been quoted: "The heart of this gospel is that all men are sons of God." Now let us quote Jesus Christ: then take your choice. Speaking to the Jews who endeavored to slay Him, He said: "If God were your Father ye would love me: for I proceeded from God." (John 8:42). "Ye are of your father, the devil, and the lusts of your father ye will do. He was a murderer from the beginning, and abode not in the truth, because there was no truth in him." (John 8:44). He then told these unbelieving Jews that the reason they could not understand Him was due to the fact that they would not listen to His word. This may be applied to the present generation equally well. Here Jesus Christ makes a great difference between men. He does not tell these Jews that they are sons of God; but because they do not believe Him, and receive Him; He calls them sons of the devil.

Conclusion

From comparisons of statements of men with statements from God's Word we have undertaken to make it plain that the Doctrines of the Universal Fatherhood of God, and the Universal Sonship of Man are spurious; and that those undertaking to support these unscriptural doctrines have rejected the true doctrines of the New Testament. Ministers and Laymen should studiously compare every new doctrine with the Word of God, and reject everything that does not measure up to the doctrines taught by Jesus Christ. We must not forget the exhortation of the Word: "Ye should earnestly contend for the Faith once for all delivered unto the Saints."

The Northern California District Conference

Held at the First Brethren Church, Lathrop, California
March 29 to April 4, 1948

(We realize that this conference program will not arrive in the hands of the Evangelist readers until after it has taken place. Nevertheless, we desire to print it in order that the churches may know the program of the Northern California District and may see that they are alive to the obligations and opportunities which come to the Brethren Church. The program was sent to us by Brother C. C. Grisso, who is now in the Northern California District doing evangelistic work.—Editor.)

Conference Theme: "Knowing and Following Christ."

Conference Scriptures: Phil. 3:10; 1 Tim. 1:12; John 17:3; Luke 9:23.

The Conference Program

Monday, March 29—Business Day

Afternoon

- 2:00 Opening Session
Prayer and Hymn
Devotional ..... Fred Kleist
Welcome .. David E. Frey, Moderato Lathrop Ch.
Response—Manteca, Stockton, Turlock and other guests.
Business session
3:30 Moderator's Address—"Do We Dare!"
Virgil Ingraham

Evening

- 6:45 Pre-Prayer Service—Rev. J. W. Platt Quiet Hour Director
7:00 Young People's Hour Led by Rev. George H. Jones
7:30 Devotional ..... Tesibel Frey
Special Music
8:00 Evangelistic Message ..... Rev. C. C. Grisso

Tuesday, March 30—"Study Day"

Afternoon

- 2:00 Prayer and Hymn
Devotional ..... Elmer Gall
Special Music
2:15 Message—"The Scholarship League, Its Plan and Purpose" ..... George H. Jones
3:00 Talk—"Northern California District Scholarship League Program for 1948-1949 .... Hazel Crom
3:30 Message—"Bible Study: For Personal Growth and for Service" ..... George Anderson

Evening

- 6:45 Pre-Prayer Service ..... Rev. J. W. Platt
7:00 Young People's Hour ..... Rev. George H. Jones

- 7:30 Song Service
- 7:45 Devotional .....Helen Ernst
Special Music
- 8:00 Evangelistic Message .....Rev. C. C. Grisso

Wednesday, March 31—"Prayer Day"

Afternoon

- 2:00 Prayer and Hymn
Devotional .....Edna Johnson
Special Music
- 2:15 Message—"Our Christian Responsibility"
Rev. Frank Gehman
- 3:00 Business session

Evening

- 6:45 Pre-Easter Service .....Rev. J. W. Platt
- 7:00 Young People's Hour ....Rev. George H. Jones
- 7:30 Song Service
Devotional .....Freda Wolfe
Special Music
- 8:00 Evangelistic Message .....Rev. C. C. Grisso

Friday, April 2—"Missionary Day"

Afternoon

- 2:00 Woman's Missionary Society Hour
- 3:15 Mission Board Program for 1948-1948
District Mission Board

Evening

- 6:45 Pre-Prayer Service .....Rev. J. W. Platt
- 7:00 Young People's Hour ....Rev. George H. Jones
- 7:30 Song Service
Devotional .....Howard Frey
Special Music
- 8:00 Evangelistic Message .....Rev. C. C. Grisso

Saturday, April 3—"Berean Day"

Morning

- 10:00 Prayer and Hymn
Devotional .....Donald Walters
Special Music
- 10:15 Message—"A Challenge to Youth" Rev. Earl Flora
- 11:00 Business Session

Afternoon

- 2:00 Song Service .....Ella Mae Johnson
Devotional .....Lillian Harnden
Special Music .....Manteca Woman's Quartet
Talk—"Beginning of Bereans" ....Artie Detling
Accordion Solo .....Rosalie DePriest
Bible Quiz .....Virgil Ingraham
Offering
Special .....Stockton Girl's Choir
Talk—"Following Christ" .....Ruth Kisse
Talk—"Knowing Christ" .....Julion Hallett
Vocal Solo .....Alvar Platt
Talk—"Knowing and Following Christ"

Harry Ernst

Evening

- 6:45 Pre-Prayer Service .....Rev. J. W. Platt
- 7:00 Young People's Hour .....Rev. George H. Jones
- 7:30 Song Service, Testimony Service, Special Music—
Conducted by the Bereans
- 8:15 Evangelistic Message .....Rev. C. C. Grisso

Sunday, April 4—"Worship Day"

Morning

- 10:00 Bible School .....Ivan Eubanks, Superintendent
- 11:00 Message .....Rev. Roger Darling

Evening

- 6:15 Pre-Prayer Service .....Rev. J. W. Platt
- 6:30 Christian Endeavor ....Led by George H. Jones
- 7:30 Song Service
Special Music
- 8:00 Evangelistic Message .....Rev. C. C. Grisso

The Whetstones Are Honored

ON WEDNESDAY evening, March 24, the Berlin Brethren Church held an "Appreciation Meeting" in honor of Brother S. M. Whetstone and Family, the occasion being brought about by the resignation of Brother Whetstone from the Berlin pastorate, that he might assume the pastorate of the Dayton, Ohio, Hillcrest Brethren Church.

A fine program was rendered as follows:

- Musical Selections .....Thelma Taylor
- Doxology
- Prayer .....Rev. D. S. Stephan, D.D.
- Vocal Solo .....Mrs. Robert S. Nagle
- Remarks .....Visiting Pastors
- Mixed Quartet .....Brethren Youth
- A Tribute in Rhyme .....Mrs. W. A. Johnson
- Appreciation .....William Cober
- Response .....Rev. S. M. Whetstone
- Response .....Mrs. S. M. Whetstone
"Blest Be The Tie That Binds"
- Benediction .....Rev. Robert S. Nagle

The evening program was in charge of Brother A. B. Cober.

After the program the entire company adjourned to the social rooms where refreshments were served.

Brother Whetstone assumes charge of the Dayton work on April 1.

A Farewell For The Gilmers

Rev. and Mrs. C. Y. Gilmer were tendered a Farewell Party recently at the Bryan, Ohio, Church where they are closing their ministry to taking up the work at Huntington, Indiana.

A fine fellowship hour was enjoyed with an excellent attendance and a great abundance of food on hand to make the occasion one to be remembered. The gift of a fine Remington Rand portable typewriter, a mahogany end table, and a profusion of cut flowers was the expression of appreciation which was presented to the Gilmers at this time. The Junior Sisterhood presented a fine pair of bronze bookends to Mrs. Gilmer and a handkerchief shower was also tendered her by the Child Study Club.

The Gilmers will take up their work in Huntington on April first.

Brotherhood News

Fred W. Brant, News Editor

IT HAS BEEN approximately two years since our dear Brother Gilmer left Vinco, consequently you have not had much news of our Brotherhood work.

May I state here our appreciation for the wonderful way in which Brother Gilmer handled our two organizations after his departure for Bryan, Ohio. The Laymen's Organization, which sponsors the brotherhoods, elected me to the very pleasant task of being Advisor to the Junior Society. We now have twenty Junior boys who are very much enthused about the work of the Brotherhood. In addition to meeting our goals to the best of our ability, we sent a heifer to Italy through the Brethren Service Center at New Windsor, Maryland, in the rehabilitation program. The above cut shows the recipients of this fine animal. (A letter of appreciation is reproduced below.)

This year our project was a clothing project for foreign relief.

One of our most important undertakings I wish to pass along, that others may benefit as we have. In order to instill into the hearts of our young boys a zeal for missionary work, we started having the boys report "good turns" with the expectation that they themselves would start talking to other boys about coming to church and Sunday School and the cautioning of those who would use tobacco, profane language, cheat in school, at play, etc. Again we wish to thank God for making that plan work. They began reporting their missionary acts unsolicited. We have seen results in our Sunday School attendance, better living and the giving of hearts to the Lord Jesus Christ. God most certainly can work with young folk. Many times these younger folk are responsible for the better life of adults.

Knowing that our church is a 100% Evangelist church, I know of no better way to thank the parents who so obligingly open their homes each month for our meetings, than to do it through the columns of the Evangelist. If any credit is due anyone for this work, it is the parents who cooperate so wonderfully. Without their cooperation our work would not prosper. After all, what institution could compare with the home insofar as the training to live for Christ is concerned. We covet your prayers in behalf of our Brotherhood work.

Harold E. Parks, V. Pres. Dist. Advisory Board.

THE LETTER OF APPRECIATION

Dear Brother Parks:

If our records are not incorrect, the cow in the enclosed photo should be the one that was contributed by you a little over a year ago. In the meantime, she has found her way to Italy and has given birth to an "Italian" bull calf. We found your cow to be in very good condition the day we visited her. She is rebred and is still giving one and one-half gallons of milk per day.

The family that now has your cow seems to be taking very good care of her and she has a nice stall. In case you would like to write to this family for further information, or just as a friendly gesture, their address is:

Guidoti Anunziato,
Quercioli No. 17,
Massa (Apuania), Italy.

The province of Apuania, in which our offices are also located, was the scene of the front lines of war between the German and American forces for many months. Most of the farmers lost their animals either to the foreign armies or to the Italian underground forces. The Guidoti family had two cows before the war.

We believe that your cow has been placed in a most needy part of Italy where she can help in the reconstruction of a family and community. More than that, we like to think of her as a symbol of good will and understanding which has been shared by Christians in America with their brothers across the water. You might also be interested in knowing that another shipment of 157 head of cows arrived at the Naples port on Christmas morning and there is now a ship crossing the ocean bringing 154 head.

May the Lord bless you in your deeds of love and sharing.

Sincerely,
D. Eugene Lichty.

Business Manager's Corner

(Continued from page 3)

|                                                      |       |
|------------------------------------------------------|-------|
| Mrs. Garnet Logan .....                              | 2.00  |
| Charles Stahl .....                                  | .50   |
| Misc. ....                                           | .06   |
| A Friend, Morrill, Kansas .....                      | 1.00  |
| B. Racy, Mt. Olive, Va. ....                         | 5.00  |
| North Vandergrift, Pa., $35.00 offering as follows: |       |
| B. F. Buzard .....                                   | 5.00  |
| Walter Graham .....                                  | 1.00  |
| Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Krider .....                   | 20.00 |
| Mr. and Mrs. Irvin Kelly .....                       | 4.00  |
| Mr. and Mrs. Chas. Lowmaster .....                   | 2.00  |
| Mrs. David Stewart .....                             | 1.00  |

|                                                 |            |
|-------------------------------------------------|------------|
| Mrs. Ruth Shutt .....                           | 1.00       |
| A Friend .....                                  | 1.00       |
| Roann, Ind., Church Offering .....              | 52.76      |
| Williamstown, Ohio, Church Offering .....       | 59.81      |
| Ashland, Ohio, Church Offering .....            | $ 229.50  |
| Cambria, Ind., Church Offering .....            | 10.00      |
| Cameron, W. Va., Offerings as follows—$10.05:  |            |
| Rev. and Mrs. A. R. Baer .....                  | 5.00       |
| Mr. and Mrs. Chas. Strope .....                 | 2.00       |
| Mrs. Cassie Antill .....                        | 1.00       |
| Mr. and Mrs. H. C. Risor .....                  | 2.00       |
| Erma Jean Higgins (6 yrs. old) .....            | .05        |
| Corinth, Ind., Church Offering .....            | 30.08      |
| Mr. and Mrs. John E. Baer, Jr., Goshen, Ind. .. | 5.00       |
| New Lebanon, Ohio, Church Offering .....        | 163.45     |
| Pleasant Hill, Ohio, Church Offering .....      | 40.25      |
| Quiet Dell, Pa., Offerings as follows—$11.00:  |            |
| Rev. and Mrs. A. R. Baer .....                  | 5.00       |
| Mr. and Mrs. Lloyd Strait .....                 | 5.00       |
| Mr. and Mrs. Geo. Hieronimus .....              | 1.00       |
| Smithville, Ohio, Offering as follows—$202.00: |            |
| Church Offering .....                           | 27.00      |
| Edna Curie .....                                | 8.00       |
| Mrs. H. L. Coffee .....                         | 5.00       |
| Pearl Curie .....                               | 5.00       |
| Mr. and Mrs. Albert Curie .....                 | 10.00      |
| Mr. and Mrs. J. Garber Drushal .....            | 10.00      |
| Mr. and Mrs. Harry Hartzler .....               | 20.00      |
| Mr. and Mrs. E. O. Franks .....                 | 20.00      |
| Mr. and Mrs. Boyd Hostettler .....              | 5.00       |
| Mr. and Mrs. I. V. Kime .....                   | 10.00      |
| Mrs. R. B. King .....                           | 2.00       |
| Mrs. Hazel Long Mast .....                      | 10.00      |
| Mr. and Mrs. Edwin Steiner .....                | 10.00      |
| Mrs. Maude Rutt .....                           | 50.00      |
| Mr. and Mrs. Myron Steiner .....                | 5.00       |
| Della Lehman .....                              | 5.00       |
| West Alexandria, Ohio, Church Offering .....    | 17.30      |
| <hr/>                                           |            |
| Total with this report .....                    | $4,027.57 |

Bryan, Ohio, Dedicates Organ

SUNDAY, March 21 was a high day in the Bryan Brethren Church. On that day the recently installed Hammond Organ was dedicated to the service of the Lord. The Guest Organist for the day was Mrs. Hazel Shearman.

The dedication service program follows:

Prelude—"Prelude from Third Sonata in C Minor" .....

Guilmant

Hymn—"Faith of our Fathers" .....

Congregation

Invocation .....

The Pastor, C. Y. Gilmer

Hymn—"The Church's One Foundation" ....

Congregation

Sacred Concert

"The Pilgrim's Song of Hope" .....

Batiste

"Nocturne" .....

Chopin

Hymn Group, Organ and Piano

Mrs. Sherman and Miss Hineman

"He Leadeth Me"

"Rock of Ages"

"Jesu, Joy of Man's Desiring" .....Bach

"Ava Maria" .....Bach-Gounod

Anthem—"Let Not Your Heart Be Troubled" ....Choir

The Dedication of the Organ

Presentation of the Organ .....Charles Hineman

(From the Organ Committee)

Acceptance of the Organ ..Rev. C. Y. Gilmer, Moderator

(On behalf of the Brethren Church and its Trustees)

The Act of Dedication .....Rev. Gilmer

The Doxology .....The Congregation

Offertory—"A Shepherd's Evening Prayer" .....Nevin

Solo—"The Lord's Prayer"—Mallote

Mrs. Virginia Dorwart

The Dedicatory Prayer

Benediction

Postlude—"Fanfare" .....Lemmens

Ronald Scott is Chorister; Gladys Hineman, Choir Director; Mrs. Wilma Lockhart, Pianist; Gladys Hineman and Hazel Keiser, Organists.

The Organ Committee was composed of Ronald Scott, Chairman, Charles Hineman, Mrs. Denver Lockhart, Miss Gladys Hineman, Mrs. Frederick Rusk and the Board of Trustees composed of Ellsworth Dietrich, David Erlsten and Walter Diehl.

Cerro Gordo, Illinois, Young People Hold Banquet

ON THURSDAY evening, March 18, the Young People of the Cerro Gordo Brethren Church met together for a banquet. This group is a growing group which meets each Thursday evening for the purpose of definite Bible study and the discussion of some subject that is of vital importance to them. The group is a definite organization officered as follows:

President .....Charles Neathery

Vice-President .....Harold Nickey

Secretary-Treasurer .....Martha Adams

The program of the evening follows:

Group Singing led by Helen McDonald

Reading .....Lenoar Snoko

Reports on the Winter Camp:

  Forest Sites

  Elaine Metzger

  Naomi Walker

  Martha Adams

Moving pictures of Camp Scenes

The group express appreciation to the school authorities for the use of the school projector for the showing of the pictures.

Brother Charles E. Johnson is pastor of this fine growing group of Young People.

~~~~~

He who is not liberal with what he has, deceives himself when he thinks he would be liberal if he had more.

—W. S. Plumer.

CHRISTIAN ENDEAVOR TOPIC

W. St. Clair Benshoff, Topic Editor

"Topics copyrighted by the International Society of Christian Endeavor.
Used by permission."

Topic for April 11, 1948

DISTINCTIVE CONTRIBUTIONS OF THE CHURCHES

Scripture: I Cor. 12:12, 13

For The Leader

THE QUESTION to be answered tonight is this, "What have the churches done for our society and life?" To answer this question fully would take many, many pages, for the churches and their message have made us what we are. The church, above all, teaches, or should teach, the gospel of Jesus Christ as a remedy for the sin of man. This is by far the chiefest contribution of the churches. It is the one this old world needs more than anything else. Many subsidiary contributions of the churches are in evidence. We will do well to study the part the church has had in the formation and growth of our nation. We should study to see where the church is being warred against today.

DISCUSSION

1. CHURCH CONTRIBUTIONS. To start with, there are churches which have made a good contribution to our life, and others which have emitted false doctrines. The American democracy embraces both kinds under the guise of religious freedom. However, we maintain that when a democracy allows religions to continue under its protection which in themselves would destroy that freedom, we are on dangerous ground. And such we have today. The part which they intend playing in our future national and religious life of our country is too great to be ignored by freedom loving peoples.

2. WHAT THE CHURCHES HAVE CONTRIBUTED. Some of the greater things contributed by the churches of Jesus Christ form the basic principles of our living. Salvation through Christ is the first great contribution. Men can live, not just for the present life, but in hope of a future life. Next the church has contributed a principle of love which enables men and women to live together without fear of one another. The principle of sharing could next be considered. Also, because of the church, we have hospitals, welfare agencies, educational institutions, law and order. While all of these do not bear much resemblance to their original beginning in the church, yet basically the teaching and practice of the church forms their foundation.

3. FURTHER CONTRIBUTIONS OF THE CHURCH.

Anyone intent on belittling the good of the churches, or trying to destroy their progress should do a little real thinking. It does seem that in this day and age, that the pagan forces are reaching into the ruling powers of our government. When the highest court of the land will rule against the teaching of the religious beliefs which have made America what she is, then it is time to think. Had there not been the free teaching of the gospel in this land, there would never have been the progress which the last 200 years has seen. We are committing national suicide when we "outlaw" the right to teach about the God who has blest us with His favor.

4. THE SUPREME COURT DECISION. At this writing, the papers are full of the 8 to 1 decision of the U. S. Supreme Court against the teaching of religious education in the public schools. This decision stems from the case of a woman who calls herself an Atheist, asserting that "religion is a disease contracted in childhood." And the U. S. Supreme court ruled in favor of a woman like that! What the Supreme Court has failed to realize is that the freedom which allows them the power to make decisions in a democratic government, is a distinctive contribution of the Church of Jesus Christ, against which the recent decision was made. If the lady from Illinois is right, and the U. S. Supreme Court seems to think she is, that there is no God, then the foundation of America crumbles to dust. For if no God, then no earth, no nation, no law, no order. Take away the fear of God and punishment for sin, and you remove respect for national law and order. The lady in question and the Court have a day coming when they will learn with certainty that there is a God of Might, who cannot long be defied as the decision in the case has obviously done. We hope that Christian America will see what has been done in this decision, and awake to the dangers facing her security and freedom.

5. WHAT THE CHURCH HAS GIVEN TO PRESENT DAY CHRISTIANS. Our Church has given to us our teaching about God. It has taught us in her Sunday Schools and Christian Endeavors and church services what we know about the Christian way of life. The highest ideals of life have been upheld for us. We have been taught our need of Christ as our Lord and Savior. We have been taught the love of God and the promise of a home beyond the grave. For such a fine contribution, don't you think we owe a lot to our church? And what does our church ask of us? It asks for our prayers, for our attendance at her services, for reverence in her sanctuary, and support of her financial needs. It asks us to give a part of our time to its special tasks and projects. It asks us to interest our neighbors and friends in its services. It calls us to a life of loyalty and undying service. Do we just take our church for granted, or are we willing to answer the call of its needs?

QUESTIONS

1. Who are the people who support our church?
2. Did it ever occur to you that you have a part in its support?
3. A personal question: "If every member attended like I do; If every member gave like I do; and if every member prayed like I do for my church; Then what kind of a church would my church be?"

Experience shows that success is due less to ability than to zeal. The winner is he who gives himself to his work body and soul.—Charles Buxton.

Hypocrisy is folly. It is much easier, safer and pleasanter to be the thing which a man aims to appear, than to keep up the appearance of what he is not.—Cecil.

Prayer Meeting Topic

Contributed by Rev. C. Y. Gilmer

(Helps for Christian Living)

THE BEGGAR

I've often thought about the use
Of prayer among God's people;
Whether it be within the home
Or gathered 'neath the steeple.

Some speak their hearts so ardently,
To Him Who ever hears;
Expressing thanks for hopes and joys
And trust for all their fears.

Some pray so automatically,
As though it were recorded,
So much routine, it seems to me,
Unworthy—almost sordid.

Some humbly touch the Throne of Grace
For those who know Him not;
Asking that power to bring them home
Shall be their blessed lot.

Yes, prayers are many in their ways;
But lo, I faint to hear
The one who casts but careless words
Upon the Listener's ear.

The one who prays so unconcerned,
Perhaps just half believing
The promise of our Lord that we May ask and be receiving.

Yea, brothers, loud are we in song,
Our Saviour's praise to sing,
Then toss but crumbs of prayer, to make
A beggar of our King.

—Donald Wayne Hanna.

TAKE GOD'S GIFTS

Scripture: 1 Cor. 2:12; Psa. 34:1-10

Hymn: "Standing on the Promises"

Prayer

Seed Thought Provokers:

HOW GOOD God is (1 Tim. 6:17)! Our poverty is unnecessary (Rev. 3:17). If we have failed to take by simple faith the gifts of God's faithfulness we have failed Him and ourselves. Have we received the "unspeakable gift" (2 Cor. 9:15; John 4:10; 3:16; 1 John 5:11, 12; Rom. 6:23)? This is our first necessity (1 Cor. 1:30). Then how about the "all things" that God wants us as His children to enjoy (Rom. 8:32; 1 Cor. 3:21-23; Col. 2:9, 10; John 1:16; 2 Cor. 9:8; Eph. 1:3; 2 Peter 1:3, 4)? Are we enjoying the sufficiency of His equipment for our work (Phil. 2:13; 1 Thess. 5:24; Eph. 6:13-17; 1 Cor. 2:12)?

Have we possessed our possessions (Eph. 3:8; Matt. 6:33; Isa. 26:3; John 16:16; 14:17; Acts 5:32)? God is actually begging us to receive His rich gifts (Isa. 34:8). He wants us to prove Him (Mal. 3:10). It is our trust and faith that pleases Him (Heb. 11:6). Think what a loss we, and God, also, sustain by our failure to take from His good hand the gifts so freely offered for victorious and fruitful Christian living (Gal. 5:22, 23; John 15:8; Eph. 5:18; Mark 6:6). It is one thing to ask and another to take and use. Do we realize that God gives us more grace as the burdens of life increase (2 Cor. 12:7, 9)? Do we realize that fear comes from Satan and that God gives the antidote to fear (2 Tim. 1:7; James 4:7; Prov. 1:33; Rev. 12:11)? Have we learned the secret of overcoming in spiritual conflict (2 Cor. 12:9)?

COMMENTS

On The Sunday School Lesson

by The Editor

Lesson for April 11, 1948

EZEKIEL'S MESSAGE FOR OUR DAY

Lesson: Ezekiel 18:1-4; 34:11-16; 36:25-28

THERE IS very little in the Old Testament, if properly read and interpreted, that will not have some bearing or carry some message to us who live upon the earth today. This is especially true of our study which is before us.

Here are some of the things we may consider which are as old as the nature of man, and yet as new as the latest moment before us.

1. "The soul that sinneth it shall die." Ezekiel 18:4.
2. "I will both search my sheep and seek them out." Ezekiel 34:11.
3. "I will seek that which was lost." Ezekiel 34:16.
4. "I . . . will cleanse you." Ezekiel 36:25.
5. "A new heart will I give you, and a new spirit will I put within you . . . I will give you a heart of flesh." Ezekiel 36:26.
6. "Ye shall be my people, and I will be your God." Ezekiel 36:28.

Note that the main ideas are the "searching of God"; "the cleansing" of the individual; and the replacement of the old with that which is new. In other words, Ezekiel's message is practically the message that is, or should be, upon every preacher's lips today. If God was not pleased with the attitude of the people in Ezekiel's day, why should He be pleased with the activities of the people today, who act under, and react to circumstances that, in the main, have not changed our world from then until now?

Note how many times God says, "I will" in our lesson text. I count twenty times and several times the phrase is understood. God is willing to DO, if we are willing to GO ALONG in His way.

Let us note where the burden of responsibility rests. It is found that it rests upon each individual. True, in some measure, we are responsible for our brother, but let us remember that "everyone must give an account of himself to God." I cannot give an account for you; and you cannot give an account for me, when we stand in the presence of the judgment of Almighty God. He cannot "put a new heart or a new spirit" into me for you. Each individual must open his or her heart to the ministrations of the Master.

Note that He will be your God, if you are willing to be one of His people.

Washington, D. C. Breaks Ground For New Building

Sunday, March 16 marked the "Breaking of the Ground" for the erecting of the New Washington, D. C. Church.

After a scripture reading and a prayer, Rev. Clarence S. Fairbanks, pastor of the church, had charge of the service of pastor and people in the reading of the ceremonial ground breaking responsive reading.

The actual breaking of the ground was in charge of the following: Moderator T. C. Lyon, for the Church; E. S. Cormany for the Building Committee; Ray Haliday for the Trustees; Artis Fields for the Laymen; Mrs. Frances Brady for the Woman's Missionary Society and Preston Campbell and Rockwell Drummond for the Sunday School.

The service closed with the singing of the Doxology and the pronouncing of the Benediction.

News From Our Churches

REVIVAL AT UDELL, IOWA

In answer to the call of this mid-western church, we left Canton, Ohio, for Goshen, Indiana, and then I went on to Udell. I soon found a group of fine Brethren people under the leadership of Rev. and Mrs. W. R. Deeter, ready for their revival.

All things worked together for good throughout the two weeks. Many visitors from other denominations came every night. Many ministers from surrounding villages were in attendance. The Church of the Brethren dismissed their evening services to attend ours in Udell. Every service was blessed with special music from various churches and groups, so that a fine spirit of fellowship and worship was evident at all times.

We visited in many homes and appreciated the fine reception that awaited us and the opportunities that came to speak to men and women about the Lord and their salvation. The seed of the Gospel was sown in many fertile hearts and we hope and pray that soon it will grow and lives will be changed into born-again Christians.

Brother Deeter is the Chaplain of Udell. He ministers to people of all faiths and helps in the healing of mental, physical and spiritual problems that continue to be ever present in this community. He preaches the Word in the church, in the home, in the field—anywhere. Along with their work in the church Brother and Sister Deeter have changed a house into a wonderful Brethren Parsonage, as well as making some improvements in the church building.

The field in Udell is ripe. Ours is the only church in the village and ideally located next to the consolidated school. Many fine Christian people have gone out from our church there, well equipped to meet the problems of the world with Christian faith, due to the continuous Biblical preaching and teaching they have received. They do not have great numbers, but their fruits have proved the value of fulfilling the command that was given to us by Christ, through the Great Commission. May the Lord continue to bless those who minister and worship together at Udell.

E. J. Beekley, Canton, Ohio.

CARLETON, NEBRASKA

We are very happy to report some good news from this part of the Lord's vineyard. A brief season of special mid-Lenten services was planned to begin March 1, with Brother Cecil H. Johnson, our district evangelist, as the gospel messenger. Thanks to him and to the Falls City Brethren, whom he serves as pastor. We had first thought to have these services during Passion Week, but Brother Johnson's plans for his home work did not permit.

Weather and road conditions turned out very unfavorable, as it seemed. We had continuous near zero and sub-zero weather throughout the series of meetings, with the deepest snow this section had experienced for several years and boisterous winds that piled the snow into monstrous drifts that blocked the roads and made them impassable. This prevented many from attending, but we labored on persistently and prayerfully. We made many calls, all on foot. Brother and Sister Charles Rachow provided lodging and breakfast for Brother Johnson and others provided other meals. Led by the Holy Spirit, Brother Johnson gave a fitting and helpful course of sermons, which were heard with good attention and were well appropriated. He is a zealous and conscientious preacher and worker. Four young people were moved to accept Christ as their personal Savior and were baptized by the pastor on the Lord's Day following the meetings.

Although only ten days this was a very wonderful and blessed series of meetings. God gave us victory over difficulties and turned them into helps. Those who attended were strengthened and their strengthening will doubtless be reflected in the lives and service of others. We are now planning and working for an inspiring and fruitful Easter service and for the summer season, when weather and road conditions will permit more united and prosperous labor for the Lord.

H. M. Oberholtzer.

The National Sunday School Association

Rev. N. V. Leatherman, General Secretary,
104 S. Mulberry St., Hagerstown, Md.

OUR HERITAGE—A LIVING FAITH

Horace Huse

WHAT IS Christianity? Is it an abstraction, or is it a reality? Is it merely an ideal, or is it at the same time an actual experience? If it is merely an abstraction or an ideal it seems foolish to waste so much time, energy, and money in trying to convert others to the same mental "set." Why not, if this is true, as so many would have us believe, rather turn our efforts toward a worthwhile end whereby humanity might be benefited? But wait a minute! Is the Christian Faith a non-essential after all? Let us examine history.

When Christianity entered the world we find that it first took root in the Roman Empire. Here it was, at first, bitterly opposed, its proponents being persecuted constantly and martyred by the thousands. As it gradually spread over the Roman Empire, the opposition decreased in intensity until finally the Christian religion was even adopted for the national religion, Rome, the empire's capitol, later being designated the official center of religion. Now the moral and spiritual condition prevailing at the advent of Christianity was at its lowest level. Vice and crime reigned supreme; human life had little value placed upon it; morality was practically unknown; and religion, which was mainly polytheistic, was the object of derision. The nation was decaying internally, and unless something of a miracle occurred, was sure to fall. The Gospel of Jesus Christ and His free gift of salvation proved to be the fulfillment of this need. Everywhere it spread it brought about a revival of morality and spirituality thus lifting the nation from its degeneracy and lengthening its life by many years. Are multitudes of people so obsessed by abstractions—intangible goals and beliefs—that they devote their whole lives and entire beings, regardless of its risk to personal life, to its promotion?

Upon a further study of history we find that the Christian Religion underwent a great degeneration following its first victorious advent. Hellenistic influences crept in unawares due to the gradual compromising of Christian culture with Greek culture. Christian culture is a culture of the soul, Greek culture, one of the intellect. In other words, it was a conflict between self-sufficiency and the need of divine help. This gradual delineation from the unique Christian teachings culminated in the triumph of Greek intellectualism which finally resulted in that dread era which we call the Dark Ages.

However true Christianity had not died. There were yet those who retained the true vision of the kingdom, and as early as 1170 Pierre Waldo had begun his Bible instruction campaign which ended with the massacre of hundreds of the Waldenses, as his followers came to be known, by the Catholic Church. In his footsteps followed such men as John Huss, Desiderius Erasmus, Martin Luther, and others who started the renaissance proper to rolling. In their wake came such men as Count Zinzendorf, the Wesleys, Robert Raikes, and many others whose goals were the retaining of the ground already won and also the acquiring of new ground through the establishment of classes and schools of Christian education. Were these men urged on to the accomplishment in their almost overwhelming task by wear, inanimate convictions? Hopeful thinking surely cannot change the course of world history so radically! And even in our twentieth century does it seem likely or even possible to you that the Golden Age of Sunday School and the day of the great revivals came due to the likewise revival of an ancient myth? Very obviously the answer to all these questions is an emphatic "NO!" Therefore, we must assume, yes proclaim, our Christian Faith as a true and living hope.

We have just touched upon a very few of the accomplishments of the Christian religion in history. Let us now consider its present possibilities and future potentialities. First of all, we must confess that Christianity is not producing fruit in the abundance which it has in times gone by. True, man is searching to supply a spiritual need; however, too often they do not find that Christianity is that "something" which can fully supply that need due to the ignorance on the part of so many Christians of the fundamentals and Scriptural history of their Faith. They are not "ready always to give an answer to every man that asketh a reason of the hope that is in them." The church is not fulfilling its educational mission. This is the reason why Sunday Schools have decreased in attendance and Churches in membership. Men are not growing in the grace and knowledge of the Lord Jesus Christ to the degree which they ought due to the fact that they are not sufficiently "studying to show themselves approved unto God." And the Sunday School is largely to blame. Why, I know of a Church—a non-denominational church at that—where mission Sunday School classes are highly encouraged. As of November, 1947, this church was sponsoring thirty-one such classes, one of which a friend of mine is teaching. She reported that, although hers was one of the three newest classes, there were thirty-one present one November Sunday morning, placing it second highest in attendance of the thirty-one. The Bible is being taught here! And so it should be in every church!

A great field is open to Christianity. Nearly every country in the world will admit missionaries, some are even begging for them; whole communities in our own United States are not being ministered to; yet the church sits so idly by, waiting for the Spirit to move it. If it doesn't wake up to its opportunities soon we will have no need for the church; for the day of the Lord is at hand.

But, what is the church? The church is you and I, all Christian people everywhere, but first and foremost are we! We, as individual members of the church are just as responsible for its failures as our brethren. We cannot, we dare not overlook our opportunities and responsibilities. The fate of civilization and, perhaps, even of mankind, depends upon Christian zeal. If we are to leave a Christian heritage to our descendants, let it be a living Faith!

—Ashland College, Ashland, Ohio.

Laid to Rest

MILLER. Mrs. Sara Miller was born to Mr. and Mrs. Jacob J. Glessner May 22, 1852, in Somerset County, Pennsylvania, being one of a family of eight children and the last remaining of the entire family. She was married to Samuel A. Miller, Jan. 21, 1872, in Berlin, Penna. After living some years in the locality of their nativity, they emigrated to Waterloo, Iowa, and later, in 1885, moved to Nebraska. She was the mother of eight children and was preceded in death by one son, two daughters and her husband, who died in 1902. At the age of almost 96 years, she passed away in her home in Carleton, Nebraska, Feb. 29, 1948. She confessed her Lord and united with the Brethren Church early in life and remained faithful to her covenant until death and was highly esteemed in the community. Funeral services were held in the Brethren Church and burial was made in the Carleton cemetery. The pastor officiated at the services.

H. M. Oberholtzer.

LIVENGOD. Samuel Livengood was the son of Abraham and Fannie (Meyers) Livengood, who were among the early settlers of this community—Milledgeville, Illinois. He was born two miles west of the town on December 5, 1869, at the old Livengood homestead, now owned by John Fogel, near the Dutchtown Church of the Brethren. He was one of a family of thirteen children and was the only living survivor of the family. He was seventy-eight years of age his last birthday.

At the age of seventeen he entered into the general merchandising business with his father in Milledgeville and continued in that business for a period of fifty-three years, retiring in 1939.

Mr. Livengood was married to Ida Mae Smith on January 10, 1893. To this union was born one son, Fred, of Milledgeville.

"Uncle Sam," as he was known by his great host of friends, was active in church, social and business life in the community. He often said that one of the most desirable places to live in was Carroll County, Illinois. He was deeply interested in promoting and supporting any good causes of his community.

In his passing the community has lost a valuable citizen; the church a faithful member and all of us a precious friend. He lived an active life until almost the very moment he was called to be with his Lord. His earthly labor finished, he was called suddenly to his well earned rest at the hour of his retirement for the night, it being that while on his way to bed that his spirit, unannounced, left the earthly tabernacle to enter into the heavenly. All who knew him could say with Paul, "To be absent from the body, is to be present with the Lord."

The surviving members of the family are his son Fred T. of Milledgeville, and one granddaughter, Irene Livengood, of Chicago, Illinois; besides nephews, nieces and a host of friends.

He passed away on February 12, 1948 and was buried from the Milledgeville Brethren Church on Sunday afternoon, February 15, with the services conducted by the undersigned, assisted by Dr. W. S. Bell. D. C. White.

Wedding Announcement

RAISH-LONG. Miss Leona Frances Raish, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Raish became the bride of Samuel Claude Long, Jr., in the Bethlehem Brethren church on February 25th at 8 P. M. The church was beautifully decorated for the occasion. Preceding the nuptial rites a program of suitable wedding music was presented by friends of the bride.

The bride is a recent graduate of Bridgewater College receiving the Bachelor of Arts degree there at the close of the last semester. The groom is a young business man whose service overseas included North Africa and India. The happy couple will reside in Mt. Crawford, Virginia.

The impressive double ring ceremony which united these two fine young people in matrimony was read by John F. Locke, Pastor of the Bethlehem Church.

GARMAN-MYERS. On August 16, 1947, with the First Brethren Church beautifully decorated, Miss Mary Jane Garman, daughter of Brother and Sister John Garman of 714 Maryland Ave., Hagerstown, Md., was wedded to LeRoy E. Myers of Clear Spring, Md. Miss Garman is one of the fine young ladies of this church and until her marriage was active in the choir, the S. M. M., and other interests of the church. The ceremony was read by the undersigned pastor.

N. V. Leatherman.

AHALT-DAHLHAMER. Miss Marie N. Ahalt, a member of the First Brethren Sunday School of Hagerstown, Md., was married to George E. Dalhamer, in the First Brethren Church on the evening of November 5, 1947, by the undersigned pastor of the church. This was another church weddings with decorations appropriate to the occasion.

N. V. Leatherman.

WE THINK THEY ARE GOOD

We are in receipt of two books from the Rodeheaver Hall-Mack Company, one their new song book "Church Service Hymns" and the other a book of four hundred and fifty choice selections of Anecdotes and Illustrations for Public Speakers, entitled "F'r Instance."

The "Church Service Hymns" is just off the press, having been published January 15, 1948. It is surely a choice selection of hymns and choruses, and suitable for practically every kind of service. It sells for $1.00 per copy, postpaid, or in quantities of 25 or more, 87½ cents, transportation not prepaid. It is published by the Rodeheaver Hall-Mack Company at Winona, Lake, Indiana.

The little book "F'r Instance" is one that every preacher should have. It not only is full of telling anecdotes, but is full of advice from Mr. Rodeheaver, covering many situations in which he, himself, has been found. The price of this book is $1.00.

These can be ordered through the Brethren Publishing Company.

The BRETHREN & EVANGELIST

HOLY BIBLE

Official Organ of the Brethren Church

Vol. LXX, No. 15 April 10, 1948

thren Historical Library chester College
comp
th Manchester, Ind.

THE BRETHREN EVANGELIST

Published weekly, except the last week in August and
the last week in December.

THE BRETHREN PUBLISHING COMPANY

Ashland, Ohio

PRUDENTIAL COMMITTEE

J. E. Stookey, President N. G. Kimmel, Vice-President
J. G. Dodds, Secretary-Treasurer

EDITOR OF PUBLICATIONS—F. C. Vanator

BUSINESS MANAGER—G. S. Baer

EDITOR MISSIONARY NUMBER—E. M. Riddle

CONTRIBUTING EDITORS

Dr. Charles A. Bame Rev. Dyoll Belote

DEPARTMENTAL EDITORS

Dr. C. F. Yoder, Brethren Doctrine
Rev. N. V. Leatherman, Practical Church Problems
Rev. J. G. Dodds, National Goals
Dr. R. F. Porte, Brethren Church History

PLEASE REMEMBER: All material for publication in the Evangelist must be in the hands of the editor at least three weeks before the desired date of publication, to assure same to appear in desired issue. This refers to announcements particularly.

TERMS OF SUBSCRIPTION: $1.50 per year in advance.
CHANGE OF ADDRESS: In ordering change of address always
give both old and new addresses.

REMITTANCES: Send all money, business communications, and contributed articles to:

THE BRETHREN PUBLISHING COMPANY
ASHLAND, OHIO

Entered as second class matter at Ashland, Ohio. Accepted for mailing
at special rate, section 1103, act of October 3, 1917. Authorized
September 3, 1928.

INTERESTING ITEMS

Elkhart, Indiana. Brother L. V. King, pastor of the Elkhart Church, reports the baptism and reception of four additional members in his March 28th bulletin.

He also reports that the Communion which was held on Thursday evening, March 25, was the largest since records have been kept back to April 10, 1941. Twenty members have not missed the last fourteen communions; thirty have missed only once and thirty-two have missed only twice. The number of communicants this year was 238.

A Sunrise service was held at the 6:30 hour in the Elkhart Church, with the young people presenting the Easter story in scripture, song and story. The breakfast was served for all attendants in charge of the choir.

The Choir brought a "Vesper Cantata" at the five o'clock hour.

Waterloo, Iowa. In the absence of Brother V. E. Meyer, pastor of the Waterloo Church, who is holding a revival at the Nappanee, Indiana, church, the April 4th service was in charge of the W. M. S., which presented its Public Service. Brother Meyer announces Brother Riddle as the probable speaker for the 11th, and Dr. Glenn Clayton, President-elect of Ashland College and National President of the Laymen's Organization, as the speaker on April 18.

South Bend, Indiana. Brother Claud Studebaker lists the names of those who have been received into the South Bend Church since the summer time. We find by counting that the number is forty-six, fifteen of which came in on Easter Sunday.

We note that the ladies of the church are making new baptismal robes for the use of candidates for baptism in the South Bend Church.

Goshen, Indiana. Brother W. E. Ronk, pastor of the Goshen Church, informs us that the Easter attendance in the church went well over the five hundred mark. A quartet of young men from Ashland College were present and sang at the evening hour. The quartet was composed of Francis Berkshire, Dorman Ronk, John Lindower and Ivan Ronk.

We note that the Goshen W. M. S. held a joint meeting with the Elkhart W. M. S. at Elkhart on April sixth. The meeting was held at the evening hour.

Canton, Ohio. Brother E. J. Beekley, pastor of the Canton Church, informs us that we will scarcely know the Canton church when it is our opportunity to visit it again. The floors are being refinished and many other improvements are being made.

By the way, READ AND HEED the appeal found elsewhere in this issue concerning the advance information desired by the Canton Church about the number of delegates and friends to be entertained during the coming Ohio District Conference. With the housing situation as it is this is a very important matter to the Canton church. So, please, answer their inquiry at your earliest convenience.

We have before us a four-page mimeographed, well, we would call it an "After Easter" sermon, that Brother Beekley sent out to his entire congregation. It is an earnest plea for church attendance following Easter, and is rightly named, "The Tragedy of Easter."

Exchange Students Arrive Safely in South America. News has come to Arthur Petit, Director of Public Relations of Ashland College, that Mr. and Mrs. Joe Commisso, exchange students, (the latter formerly Miss Nellie Eller of Milledgeville, Illinois) have arrived safely in Cordoba, Argentina, South America. Mrs. Commisso began her work in the university there at once. We expect a fuller report later.

Akron (Firestone Park), Ohio. Brother J. G. Dodds, pastor of the Firestone Park Church, brings us news of the laying of the Corner Stone for the new church on Palm Sunday afternoon at the three o'clock hour. The address of the afternoon was given by Brother Aubrey Black, Moderator of the church, while the ceremony of laying the stone was in the hands of Brother Dodds.

(Continued on page 7)

The Editor Thinks Aloud

Fred C. Vanator

A MODEL CHURCH

JUST A FEW DAYS ago I happened to run across a copy of a paper which was written by a thirteen year old boy as a summary of the thoughts that had been taught him in a Vacation Bible School. And, since it is time now that we be thinking in terms of what should be taught to the boys and girls in the summer Vacation Bible Schools (and I wish I might emphasize the word "Bible" in the relation it bears to such a school), I thought it might be well to pass on to you the words which were written down by this young boy.

Well they set me to thinking, and I wonder if you will be made to also think about them?

Here is what he wrote:

"1. A church is a model church if it has model members. It should be a growing church, many people believing in the Lord Jesus Christ and uniting with the church.

"2. It should be a studying church. Members should know the scriptures and the will of God.

"3. It should be a distinctive church. There is something about Christians, even in their everyday life, which makes them distinct and different from other people. Therefore, the members of a model church should live so that people know they are Christians.

"4. It should be a stewardship church. The people should be willing to give money freely to carry out the will of God. The church should not have rummage sales or send out people to beg for money for this purpose.

"5. It should be a praying church. To carry on God's work successfully a church should be guided by God through prayer.

"6. A model church should be a missionary church. The church should carry out God's commands by either sending out missionaries or help to support those sent out by others."

This young lad seems to have grasped the real meaning of the task of the church and its membership. It is evident that he either was taught these things in the course of his attendance at the Vacation Bible School or that he lived in a home which really knew just what the church stands for. Of course it could have been that his regular Sunday School teachers through the years also impressed these truths on him to such an extent that he had absorbed them in his heart and life. Could be!

Think it over!

It is from personal experience that I feel that there is no human arrangement so powerful for good, there is no benefit that can be bestowed upon a community so great, as that which places within the reach of all the treasures of the world which are stored up in books.—Andrew Carnegie.

Business Manager's Corner

George S. Baer

Do All to the Glory of God

IT'S NOT an editorial I have in mind. I'm leaving those in the capable hands of our editor. What I have in mind is the simple statement that there should be a spiritual motive back of all we do. This applies not only to the everyday affairs of life, but also, and in a very special way, to the business of the church. Whether building a parsonage, paying superannuated ministers, surveying mission fields, or directing the work of a church publishing house, all should be done to the glory of God. And if those in charge of these various types of Christian work are to be actuated by spiritual motives, so also should all members of the church be spiritually motivated as they respond to the calls for cooperation.

Nothing is more important than that we should adopt this attitude toward all phases of the church's activity. That is my own attitude toward the work of building up an efficient church printing plant. This business is the Lord's, and that makes it a great spiritual objective. If we can all—every member of every church—come to the place where we can see it in this light, its problems will be solved and its support will be guaranteed. Many have already come to that place; that is why God has made possible such progress as has already been accomplished.

May God lead us all to see in every department of the church's work a great spiritual challenge and cause us to respond to every great need as a call of the Lord. As Paul admonishes us, let us do all to the glory of God. That is good business as well as good religion.

Additional Publication Day Offerings

Mada Dyer Furry (Fairview Ch.) Washington
C. H., Ohio	$ 2.00
Mrs. W. H. Beachler, Ashland, O. (For Hagerstown Ch.)	10.00
F. L. Kleist, Lathrop, California	1.00
Loree, Indiana, Church Offering	35.08
Mrs. Nellie Kistner, Morrill, Kansas	2.00
Pittsburgh, Pa., offering $81.00, as follows:
C. A. Garland	25.00
Mary Callett	5.00
G. M. Garland	10.00
Mr. and Mrs. J. A. Rishel	10.00
Misc.	31.00
Vinco, Pa., Church Offering	108.15
Uniontown, Pa., 2nd Ch. Offering	49.50

Total to date, including former reports$4,315.80

Gift Bibles—Time to Order Them

We have secured a quantity of very moderately priced Bibles, bound in genuine leather, divinity circuit, gold

(Continued on Page 11)

The Voice of Our Leaders -- Past and Present

(From the Brethren Evangelist—May 28, 1902)

Faith

J. D. M'Faden

FAITH IS THE force element of grace, the victory that overcomes the world, the password that pleases God, the help of humanity, one of the links that binds us to God.

Faith is essential to every day life. Man rides on the cars trusting to the engineer; he reads his paper and believes the news of the world; he heeds the words of the doctor, merchant, and friend; he has confidence in his own powers and works or to accomplish his object in spite of obstacles.

How much more essential is faith in the spiritual world; man cannot live the spirit-filled life or do business for eternity without it. Faith is to the spirit what light and sound and odor and touch are to the physical. Through it he can live and communicate with the world of grace and love and truth.

The Old Testament and the New are filled with illustrations of faith, from the storm manifestations around the cave of the prophet to the silent touch of the Master's garment by the diseased woman who sought his aid, and yet how simple is faith. Its wonderful results are best shown in Hebrews, where Paul calls the roll of the worthy dead, and yet faith is so simple a little child can understand it.

Faith is the assent of the mind to a truth presented. But saving faith is more than this. It is not only the assent of the mind to the truth of a divine proposition, but it is the acceptance of that truth and the application of it to the needs of our spirits in such a way as to bring about a change of character, in the development of a new life. Such a faith is historical, not speculative; positive, not negative; constructive, not killing. It is active, progressive and persevering.

Christ is the object point of true faith, the center and circumference of the Christian's life, the bone and blood and nerve of his religion, for He is the author and completer of the believer's faith, to those who believe in Him He gives power to become the sons of His Father, who gave all things into His hands. Unless our faith is Christ-centered, man fails to reach spiritual success.

There must be faith in the proclamation of Christ. When the Emperor of Russia desired to free his slaves, his counsel doubted. The Emperor issued his proclamation and forty million slaves believed it and were free. Our King has issued a proclamation of freedom and men are to believe it. Faith will make them free, it gave sight to the blind, and speech to the dumb, and saves today from the state, power and consequences of sin.

There must be faith in the future. Christ the object of our faith has gone to prepare a place for us. He will keep that promise, and faith in it will make the present bearable. A lady noticed a poor cripple and said, "Poor boy, what a life to lead. What has he in all the future to look forward to?" The boy heard her, and as she passed by him, he said with a smile, "I am looking forward to having wings some day, lady." Faith makes us patient with our humble lot here; it helps us to mount up with wings as eagles. It is the motive power that helps us run and not be weary, knowing there is a rest for the people of God.

Faith enables us to use the power we have to do God's work. Paul said he could do all things through Christ who gave him the power, and he said that God was able to do according to the power in us. If Christ, the hope of Glory, is formed within, then God can use us to His glory. Man can take sulphur, charcoal and nitre, combine it, put fire back of the solid ball and it is sent for miles through space to the destruction of foes. God can take the elements in and around us, spiritually combine them, and a spark of faith will move the mountains of opposition in the way. Faith back of Aaron's rod gave it power to bud. Faith back of David's sling resulted in the giant's death.

Faith must be exercised, or it will die, and man becomes a failure. There is a Moslem myth concerning Moses and a tribe of men living by the Dead Sea. They had forgotten the inner heart of nature and were devoting their time to falsities. God sent them Moses to warn and instruct them, but the Dead Sea men sniffed and sneered and considered him a fraud. Moses left and the men who rejected him were turned into apes, who spent time grinning, gibbering, and chatting nonsense. Now and then would come a half conscious thought of something gone; through their blinking eyes they could see lost souls. They failed to use their souls and lost them. Much of the so-called new thought faith has the same tendency.

Let us exercise true faith that God who sees us as we are, might make us as we ought to be.

Have faith in Christ and show it in accepting his teachings. He can guide and we can rest in His knowledge, love and power. The passengers on a boat became worried at the speed of the vessel. A fog surrounded them. They sought the captain and failing to find him, were greatly troubled. But the mate told them there was no cause for alarm, that the fog only reached the upper deck and the captain was in the pilot house, above the fog, and he would guide them safe. Christ is in the pilot house above the fog. It may surround the ship, but He can see, and His love will guide us into port. Have faith in Christ.

What I Feel The Church Needs Most

Rev. Charles E. Johnson

I HAVE BEEN asked to write an article on the above subject. In thinking over this subject so many things enters one's mind. There are so many things the church needs, and in speaking of the church I am speaking of the church universal; it is hard to settle on the one most needed. However I feel the greatest need is that of prevailing prayer. Prayer is talking to God. Prevailing prayer is talking to God and getting results. We hear so many people say they cease to believe in prayer because God does not hear and answer. On the other hand we have man who believe in prayer because they have had the answer to their prayers.

We look about us today and see that the world is in a troublous state. We are in grave danger of entering into a third world war. Diplomats and political leaders of the nations of the world gather together and attempt to iron out the difficulties only to find themselves mired down deeper in misunderstandings and suspicions. The church is largely in the same condition. Differences of opinion spring up, misunderstandings and suspicions grow. The church struggles along, but the man of the street, looking on, loses faith, and turns away. The great question that arises is: What is wrong? What is lacking in both the affairs of the world and of the church? I believe it can all be summed up in the statement: A lack of prevailing prayer. When men and women turn to God and pray and get results the ills of the world and church will be solved. There is something desperately wrong that we are not getting results. Let us look into the Word and see what is needed for prevailing prayer.

We are assuming first of all that the one praying is a Christian, a child of God. In John 9:31 we read: "Now we know that God heareth not sinners, but if any man be a worshiper of God, and doeth His will, him He heareth." But there is more than that to prevailing prayer. One must ask in faith. James 1:6 says: "But let him ask in faith, nothing wavering. For he that wavereth is like the wave of the sea driven by the wind and tossed." Again, he must ask in the Will of God, That, if we ask anything according to His will, He heareth us." We also must be submissive to the Will of God. Many times we ask for those things which if God would grant them unto us it would be our undoing. Luke 22:32 "Saying, Father, if Thou be willing, remove this cup from me; nevertheless not my will, but Thine be done." Then there must be agreement. Matthew 18:19 "Again I say unto you, that if two of you shall agree upon earth as touching anything that they shall ask, it shall be done for them of My Father which is in heaven." There can be no such thing as prevailing prayer where there is no agreement on what is to be prayed for. Lastly we must be in earnest about it all. James 5:17-18. "Elias was a man subject to like passions as we are, and he prayed earnestly that it might not rain: and it rained not upon the earth by the space of three years and six months. And he prayed again, and the heaven gave rain, and the earth brought forth her fruit."

The above are just a few of the references given that will bring us into that condition whereby God could hear and answer our prayers. It is only natural that differences should spring up among us. We do not all see or think alike. Sin enters in when we begin to quarrel and fight as we attempt to bring the other to our point of view. It is because of this that we now have several hundred different denominations in the world. No wonder that God cannot work where there is such divergence of opinion. If men could come together quietly, discuss their difference, and then in the Will of God, earnestly pray for guidance and direction, God would hear and answer and all other needs of the church would be solved. Christ instituted but one church while here upon earth, but what a monstrosity we have made of it by attempting to operate it in our own wisdom and strength. When we bring ourselves into that state of mind whereby we become submissive to the Will of God, then God will hear and God will answer and His church will prosper as He intended it should.

—Cerro Gordo, Illinois.

Bits of Brethren History

Information of Interest

By H. C. Funderburg

(These articles are printed just as they come from the pen of Brother Funderburg.)

SHARPSBURG, MARYLAND

THE TOWN of Sharpsburg, Maryland, is situated in Washington County, twelve miles south of Hagerstown, and about an equal distance north of Harper's Ferry. It is an historic town, chiefly for the bloody, but indecisive battle fought in its suburbs and along the banks of Antietam Creek on September 17, 1862. A National Cemetery, at the eastern end of the town contains the mortal remains of 4,667 Union soldiers, while probably an equal number of the opposing army fell victims to the cruel war. A much larger number were wounded, some of whom died, and others were maimed for life.

It is conceded that more men were slain in a given time in this engagement than any other battle during the war. Large shafts and monuments, numerous tablets, and silent artillery mark the places of this, one of the severest engagements.

Other points of historic interest are Burnside's Bridge, across Antietam; Bloody Lane and The Tunker Church. This meeting house is in the Manor Congregation. It is situated one mile north of town and was built in 1853. It stood within the line of battle and was partly demolished by the batteries of both armies. After the battle it was used as a hospital for both the "Blue" and the "Gray," and is a silent witness of human carnage and inhuman warfare.

The building was repaired in 1864. (Pardon me, but this is in the year of the writer's birth.) The war department proposed to purchase the house and preserve it as a relic of the bloody event. The offer, however, was declined by the congregation, believing it would serve a better purpose by using it as a place in which to worship "The Prince of Peace," and to teach the doctrine of love and good will. A tablet had been placed on the outer wall, to the right of the door, by the government, which gives a brief history of the meeting-house and its connection with the battle.

The central meeting house of the congregation is known as The Manor Church, and was built in 1832 by John Weaver and Peter Shamel. The Annual Conference of 1857 was held in this church.

Previous to the building of Manor house this territory was a part of The Beaver Creek Church. Up to 1897 the Bishops in this territory were Joseph Emmert, Jacob Emmanuel, Isaac Long and David Reichard. Brother Emmert was an uncle of Eldes Joseph Emmert of Arneldo's Grove, Illinois, who was the grandfather of Mary Stover of India. He preached mostly in German, as that language was the most common. These faithful standard-bearers had all gone to rest before the roar of cannons resounded within the walls of this hallowed sanctuary.

Samuel Mumma donated the church lot whereon the Sharpsburg House was built in 1852 or 1853. He was born in 1801. He was living within the line of battle at the time of this engagement. His dwelling house, barn and nearly every building, with most of the contents, were laid in ashes during the battle, leaving scarcely a change of raiment for the family.

Elder Joseph Emmert of Arnold's Grove, Ill.—next placed in charge of the flock. Elder Long was well known in the Brotherhood, having served frequently on the Standing Committees of the Annual Meetings and other important committees. He reared a large family—four sons: Joseph, Victor, Orville and Walter. These, with three of his sons-in-law, Ely Yourtes, Seth Myres and E. D. Kendig were all ministers. During the war the Manor Congregation numbered between three and four hundred members. It now numbers two hundred and forty. Many have moved to other localities and the Hagerstown congregation has taken a part of their territory and membership.

—New Carlisle, Ohio.

Interesting Items

(Continued from Page 2)

We also learn that the goal that was set for the Easter services was 125, and when the count was taken it was 127. The enrollment goal was set at 150 in the Sunday School as of Easter and when the enrollment was completed it added up to just 150.

Brother Dodds reports one accession by baptism, a young wife.

Hagerstown, Maryland. We note that the Easter Sunrise Service and Breakfast in the Hagerstown Church was in charge of the C. E. with the breakfast being furnished by the Laymen's Organization.

Loree, Indiana. Brother Robert Higgins, pastor of the Loree Church informs us that he has been extended a call for another year of service with the Loree church.

Plans have been made for a choir to sing at the worship services of the Loree church.

Mexico, Indiana. A Men's Fellowship Supper and program was held in the Mexico Church on Tuesday evening, March 16. Rev. Lee Jackson, pastor of the First Christian Church of Peru, Indiana, was the guest speaker.

The Playlet, "An Easter Adventure" was presented at the evening hour in the Mexico church on Sunday, March 21.

Peru, Indiana. An Easter Sunrise service and breakfast was held in the Peru Church basement. A fine time is reported. Brother Elmer Carrithers is the pastor of the Peru Church.

Rev. Wayne Swihart, speaking for the Indiana Sunday School Board, was guest speaker at the evening service in the Peru Church.

Masontown, Pennsylvania. Brother Ankrum informs us of the revival now in progress in the Masontown church, with Rev. W. C. Berkshire, pastor of the New Lebanon, Ohio, Church as evangelist. The services began Sunday, April 4 and close on Sunday, April 18.

Louisville, Ohio. Brother John Byler, pastor of the Louisville Church, tells us of the reception of five through baptism and two by letter on Easter Sunday.

On March 14, the Louisville Laymen enjoyed the results of a contest in which the "Beavers" who were defeated by the "Greyhounds" entertained with a supper and program. The wives and sweethearts were guests. Rev. J. I. Byler of Washington, D. C., father of Rev. John Byler, was the guest speaker.

Brother Byler says, "We are pleased to announce the completion of installing a new sewer in the church, which should eliminate any further problem of water in our basement."

We are in receipt of Brother Byler's "Pastor's Helper," the little monthly magazine which he sends out to his congregation. Again it is packed full of news and announcements of interest to the congregation. Every department of the church is represented.

Lanark, Illinois. We learn that Dr. L. E. Lindower was a recent speaker at the Lanark Church during the pre-Easter week.

During the absence of Dr. McCartneysmith for several weeks the guest speakers are: April 4—Rev. Albert T. Ronk of Cedar Rapids, Iowa; April 11—Rev. Robert Byler and the Victory Male Quartet of Moody Bible Institute. The Mid-week services will be in charge of H. A. Gossard and H. B. Puterbaugh.

Udell, Iowa. A card received this morning, March 31, from Vail E. Deeter, son of our Brother W. R. Deeter, gives us the following information: We quote from the card: "There was a small roof fire at the Udell Brethren Church on Easter Sunday Morning, so there was no service. A large crowd gathered and a bucket brigade put out the fire. The Trustees now plan to shingle the whole roof with asbestos shingles." He also states that "nervous strain, shock and likely a small clot from a bursted blood vessel put his father on his back." Upon arrival Brother Deeter's two sons, Loyde and Vail, they found him some better and expected him to be around as usual in a few days. Our prayers go out for him.

Raystown, Pennsylvania. Brother Ralph Singer, pastor of the Raystown Church, sends us the following interesting bit of news:

"The Raystown Church has been redecorated. It has been painted a light buff, and the wood work has been varnished. It is beautiful and is a very inviting place to worship. All expenses are paid and the church is ready to go forward in the Master's work." He also states that the Easter services were held with a very good attendance. A new roof was put on last fall by the Pennsylvania District Mission Board. A two weeks revival is planned for the month of May and a rededication of the church at that time.

Who are the mountain movers? They are those who go forth with an all conquering, victorious faith in Christ.

Unless the Christ fills us with the triumph of Jesus we are not in reality victorious Christians at all.

It is curious how economic sanity follows the groove of religious teaching, how closely the persistence of hatred penalizes those who indulge in it.—Devere Allen.

The National Sunday School Association

Rev. N. V. Leatherman, General Secretary,
104 S. Mulberry St., Hagerstown, Md.

THE SOWER WENT OUT TO SOW

"And he spake many things in parables, saying, Behold, the sower went forth to sow, and as he went some . . . others . . . and others . . . and others." Matthew 13: 3-8.

WE READ so often that Jesus spoke in parables. We deal with one that is a really searching story from the lips of Him who said, "The harvest truly is great, but the laborers are few. Pray ye, therefore, that the Lord of harvest thrust forth laborers into His harvest."

Let Us See the Sower

Jesus was sitting in a boat. He was speaking to the multitudes gathered on the beach. As His eyes looked beyond the throng of people they may have fallen upon a sower busy at work, scattering his seed. At least there was a picture of a sower in His mind's eye, and in a few deft phrases He drew the picture for the people who hung eagerly upon His words. There is a touch of autobiography in what Jesus says about the sower. In all His teaching He was scattering seed. His very life was a process of sowing. He was called by many names. It is probable that He would have welcomed the insight back of the speech if someone had called Him "The Sower."

Not only did Jesus himself scatter seed, but He caused others to become sowers. In a sense the ministry of training the twelve was just a preparation that they might be able to scatter the seed of the kingdom; and they, in turn, were to inspire others, until there should be sowers enough to cast the seed in every place, over the whole world.

We talk a great deal about Christian growth; and much should be said of the developing Christian character. But do we speak as often as we should about Christian sowing? Do we remember that we are to sow as well as grow? What if the sower does not go forth to sow? What if the seed is not scattered? In a moment we shall say something about the importance of having good ground. In the meantime let us remember the importance of having a sower to scatter the seed. It is not enough to say that preachers are the sowers. It is not enough to say that those specially giving their lives to Christian work are to be the sowers. Every Christian must have a share in scattering the seed if the kingdom is to prosper.

And Now to the Soil

As Jesus looked out upon the multitude He was thinking that they were the soil upon which His words, like seeds, must fall. And what different kinds of soil they were. Some were like wayside paths, their minds hardened by the passing of familiar thoughts, until there was no welcome for new thoughts at all. Some had led such superficial lives that they would give no depths of welcome to new truths. They would hear with eagerness, but in their shallow lives the truth would soon wither. It was as if a great mass of stones were under a thin layer of earth. Some were like preoccupied ground, with thorn roots only waiting to spring up and grow. The truth would be heard, but the cares of wealth or the cares of poverty would fill the mind and the truth would be forgotten. But some would be like good ground, unoccupied and fertile, and here the truth which Jesus spoke would find real welcome and could come to maturity in lives which loyally received it and loyally obeyed it.

Did the men and women who sat on the beach, listening to the words of Jesus, understand that He was describing them as He spoke of the different kinds of ground? And did some begin to question themselves earnestly, asking what kind of soil their lives offered to the words which fell from the lips of the great teacher?

Jesus was doing more than describing those who sat on the seaside that day. A great multitude no man could number, the multitude of those who, in all after days, would hear the message of Jesus, was to be concerned in this matter of varieties in human soil. Wherever the gospel is preached there is to be found the irresponsible life, the superficial life, the preoccupied life, and the life which is ready to receive the message into a fertile soil. After all it is the man who reads the parable today who should ask himself what kind of reception he is giving to the words of Christ.

Then Comes the Harvest

Jesus speaks of four kinds of ground. Three of them brought forth no harvest to reward the sower's toil. Good seed cannot accomplish much in bad soil. This is the principle which is at the very heart of the parable. The good seed may go for nothing. The labor of the sower may go for nothing. All this may come to pass because the soil is bad.

Another very interesting suggestion comes at the close of the parable. Different pieces of good ground produce different quantities. Good soils always produce, but their capacities are not the same. Good lives always are productive, but not in the same measure. The soil which produces thirty-fold is called good as well as that which produces a hundredfold. Goodness does not equalize men in productiveness. The great thing is that a man should produce as much as he can. It is less important whether he produces as much as another man. If the man of hundredfold capacity produced only sixtyfold, he would not be as much of a man as the thirtyfold man who produced thirtyfold. This recognition of difference in capacity of equally earnest men is of far-reaching significance.

The good soil always produces. So we may find a test for our lives as Christians by asking ourselves if they are productive. If there is no harvest there must be something the matter with the soil.

The Responsibility of the Soil

After all we may be inclined to say the soil cannot help being just the kind of soil it is. It does not make itself stony or thorny or good. And just here lies the difference. A man can have something to do with the kind of soil he offers to the gospel. And implicit in the words of Jesus is an appeal to the people to offer good soil to the words of truth which fall from His lips. A man can refuse to allow his life to become hard, like a path where many feet have trodden, so that no seed can take root there. He can so eagerly struggle to be loyal to the best he knows that he conquers superficiality and so prepares the soil of his life for the words of truth. The superficial man is the man who is not making a moral struggle. He can so weed out the thorns of preoccupation that there shall be a great place in his life for words of truth, a place which they will not have to share with words of error, which will finally take up all the room. There are a great many things a man is unable to do. But by eagerness and striving he can make his life good soil for the words God will speak to him. Indeed, in all this preparation God is his helper. From the moment a man begins really to wish that his life may be open to the truth, God's Spirit begins to work with new power in the life, preparing it and making it receptive.

Jesus felt that it was not enough to have a sower. It was not enough to have good seed. There must be good ground, and again and again, directly or indirectly, He appealed to men to prepare the soil of their lives for the seed He desired to sow.

NEED OF LEPROSY EXPERTS, MEDICAL AID, AND LEPROSY PREVENTION MEASURES TO PROTECT CHILDREN

RETURNING on March 13th from a five months tour of leprosy missions in the Orient in behalf of the American Mission to Lepers, Dr. Eugene R. Kellersberger, a member of the Surgeon General's Commission on Leprosy and general secretary of the American Mission to Lepers, described the plight of leprosy victims in the Far East as "tragic and deplorable" and called upon American churches and the medical profession to aid in providing more supplies of anti-leprosy drugs, more doctors, nurses, and missionary leprosy experts, and more facilities for the care of patients.

Dr. Kellersberger's itinerary included leprosy missions in the Philippines, Hawaii, China, Siam, and India.

Large areas of China, particularly, have no provisions—government or private—for the care of leprosy patients, Dr. Kellersberger said. In the West China province of Szechuen, for instance, with a population of 60,000,000, there is only one small institution with a capacity of 50 male patients. The great need for China, and for the Orient in general, is for large agricultural and industrial colonies "where men and women can live like human beings and know that God loves them and their children too," Dr. Kellersberger stated.

"Instead," he said, "the lives of thousand of children, leprosy's chief victim, are endangered by their daily contact with infectious cases who should be institutionalized; but cannot be for lack of facilities for their care—or for the care of the children."

Reconstruction of prewar mission colonies in Burma, India, and China, abandoned in the face of hostilities is proceeding slowly, Dr. Kellersberger reported, and few which have been re-established are able to operate at full pre-war capacity. Shortages of medicines, chaotic conditions and lowered standards of health resulting from war and post-war conditions are further obstacles to leprosy control.

During his journey Dr. Kellersberger completed arrangements for the establishment of regional leprosy training centers at Chiangmai, Siam, and in connection with medical schools of Cheeloo University, Tsinan; West China Union University, at Chengtu, Szechuen, and Vellore Medical College at Vellore, India. These centers are among the first units of a world-wide post-war leprosy prevention program of the American Mission to Lepers by which doctors, nurses, public health and church workers will be trained for regional campaigns for detection and treatment of early leprosy cases and for wide public education in leprosy prevention.

According to Dr. Kellersberger, supplies of the newly developed drugs, diasone and promin, first made available through the American Mission to Lepers this year, are proving far from adequate even for initial experimentation. Since December, 1946, supplies valued at $84,500, have been sent to leprosy missions in 23 countries and many government colonies. "It will take a long time to supply enough drugs for the patients now in controlled experiments in leprosy institutions; and by that time, we hope, there will be thousands more under the care they need so desperately."

Throughout the world there are an estimated ten million leprosy victims; approximately 1% of these are under care of any kind.

SPECIAL NOTICE TO THE BRETHREN CHURCHES OF THE OHIO DISTRICT

We, the Entertainment Committee of the Brethren Church of Canton, Ohio, wish to remind you that Conference time for the Ohio District, June 14 to 17, will soon be here.

Because of the preliminary plans necessary for your entertainment, we would like to have you notify us of the approximate number of delegates and visitors we should expect from your church. We would also like to know whether they will arrive Monday afternoon or Tuesday morning. Kindly let us have this information on or before May 16th.

We are looking forward to a fine conference and hope that each church will have its full quota of delegates in attendance.

Cordially yours,

Mrs. Zilpha Sutton,
Chairman of Entertainment Committee
2327—15th Street, N. E.,
Canton 5, Ohio.

I had six honest serving men.
They taught me all I knew:
Their names were What and Why and When,
And How and Where and Who.—Kipling.

CHRISTIAN ENDEAVOR TOPIC

W. St. Clair Benshoff, Topic Editor

"Topics copyrighted by the International Society of Christian Endeavor.
Used by permission."

Topic for April 18, 1948

CHURCHES CAN COOPERATE

Scripture: John 17:20-23; Gal. 3:26-29

For The Leader

THERE HAS BEEN a lot said about this matter of churches cooperating. Much good can be done when churches can agree on polity, sharing, doctrine, and practice. Though we are separate bodies, as denominations, yet much good can be done in the name of Christ by working together. We are all aware of the time-worn classic example of how churches can fail to cooperate, as note the following. One church on the corner of an intersection was singing, "Will There Be Any Stars In My Crown?" A church across the corner was singing, "No, Not One." Still a third church was singing, "Glory, Glory, Hallelujah." A later version of the story has it, that yet a fourth church chimed in with "The Fight Is On." Now this example of "How not to cooperate" is probably overdrawn, yet it portrays the true attitude of many church groups. We should seek ways in which we can aid each other's programs in presenting the crucified and risen Christ to a lost and dying world.

DISCUSSION

1. AVERSIONS AGAINST COOPERATION. We will do well to investigate every religious enterprise that calls for money, time, talent, and prayer. There is much today in the name of religion, but not in the name of Christ. For Christian people to give their money, or tie up with any religious group which does not exalt Christ and preach salvation through faith in Him, is to misuse God's gifts. First, last and always, the gospel preaching of salvation from sin through Christ, the Son of God, is the message of the Church. All other enterprises and activities of the churches pale into insignificance before this great purpose. We will have real cooperation when churches get together in a united effort to seek men's sinful hearts and to preach to them the saving grace of the Son of God. Think what a tremendous revival would sweep the world if churches would cooperate in preaching the gospel. Until that time, there will be aversions against cooperation.

2. WHY THIS IS SO. Ideally, it is a wonderful thing to preach cooperation of the churches of America. Scripturally, it is another thing. For thinking people are aware of much that is going forward under the guise of religion that is not scriptural. The scriptures warn us to beware of false teachers, evil doctrines, seducers, etc. And many people can see the falseness in doctrine and practice as put forth by many groups today. And so, rather than lose the full preaching of the glorious gospel of Christ, finding it necessary to substitute a "chaff" preaching of most anything, many people stand out against such cooperation. This condition exists in every denomination and church group today in America. We will do well to do our own thinking when it comes to giving of that which we possess into various "religious" enterprises.

3. COOPERATION AS JESUS SPOKE OF IT. Jesus prayed, "That they all may be one; as thou, Father, art in me, and I in thee, that they also may be one in us: that the world may believe that thou hast sent me." In making this high priestly prayer, Jesus breaks forth with the desire that all who name His name, might be one. Paul writes the book of Ephesians to encourage unity of believers. And there is no reason why true believers cannot work together in various church programs. But when Jesus spoke of cooperation, He meant cooperation in His will. Again we state that the business of the church is to preach the gospel. That is the work that Christ ordained His followers to do. When we are engaged in this work, we are cooperating in His will. Miss the point, by "cooperating" in "religious schemes," gospelless programs of church enterprise, and you are out of the realm of Christ's will.

4. COOPERATING IN CHRIST JESUS. The commonly accepted and prevailing theory in religious circles today of the universal fatherhood of God and the world brotherhood of man receives a definite slap in the face when considered in the light of our second portion of scripture, Gal. 3:26-29. Here he says, "Ye are all the children of God" which sounds nice, but when he adds, "by faith in Christ Jesus," it takes on a different light. There are definitely two families in the earth today. First, God's family, consisting of those who have accepted Christ as Lord and Savior, and who are born again, into God's family. Second, Satan's family, consisting of all those who have not accepted Christ, who are according to scripture, "dead in trespasses and sin," and as Christ says "of their father, the devil." The very, very best thing we can do is to cooperate, as the children of God "in Christ Jesus" in the preaching of His gospel, to win men's hearts, thus winning them from the Devil, sin, and Hell. This is cooperating in Christ Jesus.

5. SPECIFICALLY. Here are suggested some things churches can do right now to cooperate in the gospel ministry of Christ. Each week hold doctrinal discussion classes; thus weeding out false conceptions, and getting down to the real basic principles of sin and its Cure. Unite in holding of special services in which personal soul winning methods can be discussed. Hold regular union prayer meetings, in which the power of the Spirit will be sought, and the burden of souls laid upon the hearts of Christians. Hold special "after school sessions" for boys and girls, and young people, in which the gospel will be presented in their language. Personal visitation in the homes of careless parents, enlisting their cooperation in attending services with their children. More could be mentioned, but these will do for a starter. What you are going to do if one of your town's ministers is a social gospel, sin-smoother, and bloodless preacher, along with members of this congregation, we don't know, except to pray about it. We do know, that this is God's work, and He will bless it mightily, if we are willing to cooperate as He has taught us to do.

PROJECT

Endeavor to put some of the listed suggestions into operation. Let your topic Editor know how you make out. Your suggestions, comments and helps are valuable to us in writing further topics.

» » » » Our Poet's Corner « « « «

BALLADE OF LAMPS

O lamp of lamps, exuberant light,
Lifting out of the Orient
At dawn, you reach a reckless height;
A gate-of-gold marks your descent.
You are a dazzling ornament
Upon the blue silk dress of Day.
Your mission is most reverent:
To light men in a lovely way.

And moon, a brooch more kindly bright,
What silver beauty you present,
Shimmering in the gown of Night
As she lies dreaming in content
Until her slumbering is spent.
Your streamers glisten, glide and stray
And dance and drift with youth, love-bent,
To light them in a lovely way.

You, stars, a trembling sequined sight—
Like pearls unstrung by accident—
Are cereus fragrantly white.
Your mysteries are immanent,
Though patient men and diligent
Search tirelessly. Your every ray
Is candleglow and twinkling, blent
To light men in a lovely way.

ENVOY

One day a Lamp more eloquent
Will shine—eternally have sway;
Sun, moon, and stars need not be lent
To light men in a lovely way.

Courtesy The Chicago Tribune Annabelle Merrifield.

A STRONGHOLD

Mrs. Dale Heeter

Twine was put up today
For the morning glory vine,
That needed a support to cling to
And heavenward to climb.

It was green of leaf and reaching;
Nothing there on which to hold;
And it soon would fall neglected
Without some help its life to mold.

Tendery its course was shaped
By placing it upon the twine,
Almost at once it fastened there
And started happily to climb.

How many, many lives have fallen
By refusing outstretched hand
That would grasp and fondly hold them,
And lead them to a happier land.

With no desire to live their utmost,
Unconscious of a better way,
Wasted, groping, neglected, fruitless,
Who at the cross their lives could lay.

How blessed thus to know a Stronghold
That never wavers, never turns,
He who works on life's hard problems,
At His feet life's lesson learns.

—North Manchester, Indiana.

Business Manager's Corner

(Continued from page 3)

edges, Scholars' Aids, Presentation page, special prayers, colored maps and illustrated. Page size 4½ x 6¼; good clear type. They sell for $4.00 for single copy. Write for prices on a quantity order. Identification number is "B3R."

A New Speed-O-Print Duplicator

This company has developed a new duplicator that is guaranteed to give perfect hairline register and is greatly improved in other ways over the Model "L." It is called "Liberator No. 200" and we were allowed one of the first 50 machines to be placed on the market. It sells at $125.00 plus $10.00 for counter, to which price is added excise tax. For those who want a high class machine, this will compete with the best on the market. If churches want an inexpensive machine that will do good work they will still find the Model "L" the most economical one available. Write us about your needs. We have both kinds ready to ship.

HAVE YOU GOT IT?

Morbus Sabbaticus (Sunday Sickness)—Morbus sabbaticus is a disease peculiar to church membership. (1) The symptoms vary, but it never interferes with the appetite. (2) It never lasts more than twenty-four hours at a time. (3) No physician is ever called. (4) It always proves fatal in the end—to the soul. (5) It is very contagious. The attack comes on suddenly every Sunday; no symptoms are felt on Saturday night, and the patient wakes up as usual, feeling fine, and eats a hearty breakfast. About nine o'clock the attack comes on and lasts until around noon. In the afternoon the patient is much improved and is able to take a ride, and read the Sunday papers. The patient eats a hearty supper, but the attack soon comes on again and lasts through the evening. The patient is able to go to work on Monday as usual.—Author unknown.

"He who drew the plans for your life and mine, will prove the most willing and most helpful Counsel to aid us in working out these plans."—Norman Evans.

Prayer Meeting Topic

Contributed by Rev. C. Y. Gilmer

(Helps for Christian Living)

WHY THIS THORN?

2 Cor. 12:8, 9

Why, O my Father, is this thorn with me?

Why dost Thou not relieve me of this pain?

I am Thy child: I love to speak of Thee—

Yet still it pierces—o'er and o'er again!

I know that Thou can'st do all things, O Lord.

I know that Thou could'st now relieve me; yea

Could'st now remove this thorn—just by Thy word—

For well I know all things must Thee obey.

But Thou dost not, my Father: still with me

It doth remain to pierce me more and more;

Unless, prostrate, by faith I look to Thee

And lose myself in Him Whom I adore.

Is this the reason? O my Father—this?

Even my need to cleave so closely now

To Thee; who then can'st give me what I miss

When to Thy will submissively I bow?

O let me be obedient to Thy Voice.

Let me not wander from Thy wounded side.

Yea, Father; let me in this thorn rejoice

If by its presence Thou be glorified.

Alice Purves Allan.

Scripture: 2 Corinthians 12:1-10

Hymns of submission, resignation and trust

Leader's petition

Seed Thought Provokers:

NO ONE in human history had so much to boast about legitimately as Paul. He could boast of his human relationships (Phil. 3:4-6). He could glory in his citizenship (Acts 22:27, 28). He could boast of his adaptability (1 Cor. 9:19-23; 10:33). He could glory in his scholarship (2 Cor. 11:5, 6; Acts 22:3). He had a remarkable integrity (Acts 23:1; 24:10). He could boast of a most unusual Christian experience (Acts 22:4-21; 1 Cor. 15:8). In the realm of divine call his was certainly unusual (2 Cor. 11:23-28). He could boast of his spiritual responsibilities (2 Cor. 11:28). God committed to him a mystery never before revealed (Eph. 3:3-6, 9). Paul was made custodian of this truth to the Gentiles. For commanding his apostleship he could glory of his wonderful revelations (2 Cor. 12:1-4). John on the Isle of Patmos was permitted to look into the beautiful City, but Paul actually visited the City.

The man who had everything about which to glory said, "Lest any man should think of me above that which he seeth me to be, or that he heareth of me, and lest I should be exalted above measure through the abundance of the revelations, there was given to me a thorn in the flesh, the messenger of Satan to buffet me, lest I should be exalted above measure." Paul wanted us to know that he had a weakness that pulled him back to the ground of humility. He did not tell us what the weakness was for if we knew and did not have the same kind we would not learn the lesson. Good spiritual sense reminds us that we have our thorns of which we may well be ashamed. We should not keep a weakness that we do not have to have. However, Paul asked the Lord three times to take away his thorn. But God said, "My grace is sufficient for thee. My strength is made perfect in your weakness." Paul said, "Most gladly therefore will I glory in my infirmity that the power of Christ may rest upon me." He concluded that he would rather have the thorn and an extra supply of grace. He was saved from being exalted above measure, and thus was enabled to do what the Lord wanted him to do.

COMMENTS

On The Sunday School Lesson

by The Editor

Lesson for April 18, 1948

FULFILLING GOD'S PURPOSE

Lesson: Ezra 1:1-4; 4:24; Haggai 1:3-8, 13-14

WHEN GOD sets out to do a thing we may write the words, "It will be accomplished" with full assurance that the task will be completed. The end may not be "immediate" because of the interference of human obstinacy and failure to fit into God's plan. But be that as it may, in the end the matter will be accomplished and some one or other becomes the instrument in God's hands for the final step in the task.

Note, if you will, that the "spirit of Cyrus, king of Persia" was stirred up by the Lord. The occasion was the necessity of fulfilling the prophecy of Jeremiah (Jeremiah 25:12 and 29:10) which had been spoken before. When we remember that the definition of prophecy is "history written before it happens," we can readily see why God, in His infinite knowledge could reach across time and cause these things to be both prophesied and accomplished.

The practical side of our lesson is to be found in the fact that we have been placed on the earth to have a part in fulfilling God's plans and purposes. It should not be considered strange that God can look ahead for each of us, and lay out our course of action for us. The strange part of it is that He can accomplish as much as He does with all the perverse activities of the human race.

Far too many times, like in our story in the lesson text, something steps in and stops a work which we have begun. We are not always responsible for the circumstances that come to do this, but all too often the obstacle might be removed if enough time, energy and prayer would be injected into the problem. More dependence upon God and more appropriation of His power will do wonders in accomplishing and fulfilling His purposes.

We should always be looking to the spiritual with more eagerness than to the material. We should remember that the Word says, "Seek ye first the kingdom of God and His righteousness, and all these (other) things will be added unto you." God's purposes are spiritual in nature and it takes a spiritual trend to find them in our lives. This should be well remembered.

Travel Flashes

Dr. Charles A. Bame

Short Flashes

FOR THE past two weeks and a bit longer, I have been making short trips back and forth to Roann, eleven miles away. When this engagement was started some twelve months ago, it was entirely a matter of faith. Answering their invitation to come, it was in the face of the fact that I had been ailing for a whole year and had preached but a few times and health still a problem. I gave a very brief but succinct answer and that ended the correspondence.

Little did I then think that I would be living only a few miles distant and pastor of a small country church so near all my pastorates, with the very brief exceptions of "vacation pastorates" had been in the larger cities.

I believe that few people realize, either, what a strenuous affair real evangelism is as it has been carried on in the Brethren Churches. What with much visiting, the stated "big meal" or meals out, where the tables vie with each other to be the best and Brethren evangelists making the "big meals" a prominent part of their "report" and most of them so poorly paid that it is a real treat and an opportunity to "feed up and fill up," the temptation is too great. Neither am I criticizing save for the too gorgeous, rich and elaborate meals the "workers" get tending to laziness rather than diligence in the task at hand. Now, do not get me wrong; I am not confessing other's sins; I am stating a fact rather lamentable when missions are starving; and the immediate task at hand demands efficiency, activity and swift work. Two weeks is not time enough to do a complete job at evangelism as we proved when we used three and fail when we use only two or less.

God's Way

Evangelism is God's way of getting the work of salvation done. It is "by the foolishness of preaching" some are being saved. Do we forget that it was prophesied 700 years before, that a part of the mission of Jesus was to "preach the gospel to the poor?" (Isa. 61:1), and that He did it? (Matt. 11:5). Do we forget that it is to be preached to every creature (Mark 16:15), and that when that is finished the Lord will return (Matt. 24:14)? Do we forget that it is the Gospel that is the "power of God unto salvation" (Rom. 1:16) and is sharper than any two-edged sword, piercing" (Heb. 4:12) and that we are "earnestly to contend for the faith once-for-all delivered to the saints" (Jude 3)?

"Earnestly Contend"

"Only let the lives you live be worthy of the gospel of the Christ," (Moffatt) says Paul to the Philippians (Ch. 1:27). I've been a pastor sometimes. I know how busy we are trying to reach artificial goals set up by Boards and promoters and how we must stress them and direct our energies to reach them; and I do not disparage such united effort; but I do declare that it too completely uses our time and energies to enable us to "contend" overmuch. But while beer and perfumes and soaps spend multiplied millions to "contend" that theirs is best, we are so supine that one thinks of the "old settin' hen." Her achievement is that she hatches an egg, while we go on trying. It was preaching and contending that won the three thousand at Pentecost and established churches in places that would frighten most of our modern "baby sitters."

I Challenged Him

Last night, in a union effort of community churches, a guest preacher referred to the Dunkards (with many College Corner Brethren before him) as going through a feet-washing service and among other things said: "It did not impress me a bit." Moreover, his text was "follow Me." Did I allow that to pass? Not me. Not in the service, but after, I castigated him openly; told him I am a Dunker preacher and warned him that I'd come to his town and "straighten him up." He had no answer or did he insist that I come. But I satisfied my aching heart and was made happy "to contend for the faith." I'll advertize to the public when I'll answer him. Evangelism is "earnestly contending" and offers the small opportunity left for such faithfulness to the gospel of Christ.

Our Great Opportunity

Our church is an evangelistic church. It has always been so and we can not go forward to great obedience or achievement if we fail in this. If we'd "earnestly" and actively push our mission and message, still clear and rid of the vagaries of the "easy ways" of modern churches offering salvation where the gospel disproves it, pledging "eternal security" and pardon for writing names on a church-book; professing sanctification while living like the devil; if we'd practice what we preach as to healing and have faith to see the passing of disease and freedom from the torments of accusing consciences; if we "go forward" to—not back—to making our lives "worthy of the gospel of Christ"; we could easily redeem our losses made through false presentations and professions of selfish leaders and become the mighty church of a "Whole Gospel" we have professed to be for decades. None added, to the Word as some have and do, none subtracted as many do, we'd have a message and a growth born of God and backed by his eternal covenants.

A Revival?

Oh yes, we did for some, but not for all. Measles and Mumps all but emptied the schools and had a terrific drag on our effort. Scarce a family that did not have some "sitters" most of the time and the Sunday School awfully decimated, yet we did have many renewals of faith and several presentations at the Altar for first time or complete salvation and sanctification. I came away with a perfect score on health by my specialist, well fed, very happy and well recompensed. Thirty-three years ago, I had a wonderful revival at Roann that left me with unforgettable memories. Now, many of those converts are leaders in the church. Praise the Lord!

Thirty-Three Years

Thirty-three years is a long, long time. Then, the pastor was the late H. H. Wolford, carpingly branded as a Modernist because he was awhile at Chicago University, his wife (now Mrs. H. M. Oberholtzer) and himself all "Billtowners" with me, his lovely daughters mere children, Lucille, one of the converts, we did have a great revival measured by any standard. Ellie Clingerman, now an invalid, was Chief Usher and during three weeks of sloppy February weather, they never sat down, all seats being taken every night. It ended with 13 pairs of marriageable folk at the Altar some of whose children and grandchildren were doubtless among the "converts" this time, and they, carrying on the Lord's work now.

I invited myself back and expect to go again. I have returned to so many of my former sites of campaigns that it is a habit of mine to expect to thus be invited. In one of these churches, under the pastorate of brother Duker, we added more than 125 in two successive efforts and that was only two of four meetings there. The Lord is good. "I am his and He is mine." Amen!

—Wabash, Indiana.

NOTICE

TO THE PASTORS OF THE INDIANA DISTRICT

I am advised by Rev. C. C. Grisso, President of the Indiana District Mission Board, that the Executive Board appointed me Secretary of the said Board, in Absentia and incognito, that is, I knew nothing of it except the statement in a letter and the books of the Secretary. So, Brethren, kindly send in your church apportionments to the undersigned at 801 N. Moss Road, South Bend 19, Indiana, or to Mr. C. G. Wolfe, North Liberty, Indiana, the Treasurer.

Signed, R. F. Porte.

WHERE WOULD HE GO IF HE LIVED TODAY?

During the frontier days, the driver of a covered wagon stopped his horses on the street of a young town and called to a passing man, "Hey, any saloons in this place?"

"Sure, we've four," boastfully replied the man.

"Giddap!" the driver shouted, urging his horses on.

"Stop!" called the man.

"I can't stop here," replied the stranger. "I've got four boys in this wagon."

"Why?" again called the man. "What's your business?"

"My business is to raise these boys for God, and I can't do that in a town with four saloons." And he hurried his horses on, soon turning the bend in the road and passing out of sight.

News From Our Churches

MANSFIELD, OHIO

The Mansfield, Ohio, church planned for a week of meetings preceding Easter. Rev. F. C. Vanator of Ashland was invited to do the preaching at these services. He preached his first sermon on Sunday morning, March 21, then each evening during the week excepting Saturday. His final message was brought on Easter morning. His messages were designed for the season and were scriptural, logical and appealing. He was ably assisted by his family. They were present for every service and his daughter and son-in-law pleased the audience with several duets. The climax came on Easter morning when the entire family formed a quartet and favored us with a song.

It is customary to comment on the weather for or during meetings and perhaps I should not break the rule. We had some weather. For about half of the services it was anything but inviting. I will not say it was bad weather for it might have been just what we needed. Be that as it may some of it was not inviting, unless it was for the half-interested to remain at home. However, the attendance throughout the week was fair, constant and on the increase.

Easter was a successful day in many respects. It began with a sunrise service in a country home. When starting time came, five-forty-five A. M., the streets were a shimmering glare of ice. In spite of this there was a commendable attendance and an inspiring prayer, Bible study, and testimony service. Following this Mrs. Ed Fitch, in whose home we met, served breakfast consisting of bacon, eggs, coffee, cookies, bread and butter. After a spiritual feast for the soul and a physical feast for the body the crowd departed for their homes about eight o'clock.

Sunday School convened at nine-thirty. This was well attended and all records of a year ago were exceeded. The worship period followed immediately. There were two special musical numbers and a thank-offering for brother Vanator. Following an inspiring and heart-searching sermon, in response to the invitation, four girls of junior high school age accepted Christ as their Savior. This constituted a fitting and stirring climax to the week of meetings. We thank brother Vanator for coming over and helping us and for the assistance of his fine family.

No finer ending to a week of meetings could be than a soul stirring and heart satisfying communion service. This was experienced Easter Sunday evening. The attendance was above average. A number of first-time observers were present at the tables. There were present a few witnesses who had never seen a service of this kind. These were favorably impressed. One, a member of another church said afterward, "It is in the Bible and should be practiced." Thus another Easter has been observed in the Mansfield church.

H. E. Eppley, pastor.

PRE-EASTER SERVICES AT MANSFIELD, OHIO

It was a real privilege for the Editor to hold forth in a week's Pre-Easter services with our Mansfield Brethren, beginning on Palm Sunday morning and continuing through Easter Sunday morning.

In spite of weather which was anything but conducive to regular attendance, we were agreeably surprised to find that they came through both rain and snow and over icy streets to have a part in the services.

We found in the Mansfield congregation a real desire to hear the Word of God and to the speaker it was a real inspiration to look into their faces and to realize that they were "of one accord" and eager for service.

A fine audience greeted us on our opening day. On that day we were surprised to learn that they were nearing their last dollars on the first $1,000.00 which they are laying aside for a parsonage fund. When the offering was received we were glad to learn that they had gone over their mark by some $9.00. They are a people who are not afraid to open their pocket books for the Lord.

We felt the interest grow each night during the week and came to the final service with a feeling that everything had been done to make the Easter morning service all that it could be. We were not disappointed, for the church was well filled for that service and when the invitation was given at its close, four fine young ladies came forward to give their hearts to the Master. It is that which fills the heart of both pastor and evangelist with joy unspeakable. All these young ladies were from one Sunday School class and the influence of that teacher could be felt in the confessions that came. O, for more Sunday School teachers who seek to lead their pupils into a greater knowledge of the Lord.

We wish to express our appreciation to the Mansfield Church and to Brother Eppley, the pastor, for the fine response to the entire meeting and for the material offering which they gave us. May God richly bless the church in its future endeavors.

Fred C. Vanator,
Ashland, Ohio.

ARDMORE HEIGHTS, INDIANA

After sojourning in Warsaw, Indiana in the service of Christ for six years we are now located west of South Bend, Indiana, in this residential section just outside the city limits. The congregation has just enjoyed a real spiritual refreshing from the presence of the Lord in twelve days of pre-Easter services under the preaching of Rev. Roland V. Hudson. There were a number of re-consecrations and four persons were baptized and received into the church on Easter Sunday morning. The receiving of new members is always an encouraging experience because it is a testimony to the active presence of the Holy Spirit and the power of the inspired Word of God. Every faithful pastor would like to baptize and receive many whom we know ought to accept the Gospel call and yield to the Lord Jesus. We are very glad for those who do come and pray that the church may be faithful to these new members that they may grow in the Christian faith.

The church here sponsors organizations for both boys and girls. The young people's work is also encouraging. There is no need to recite the problems because we all have them. It is encouraging to every pastor to know that there are some who are alive in the Lord and this pastor is encouraging these faithful ones to let their light shine out so that, perchance some drifting soul may find the harbor and anchor in the Rock. My congratulations are hereby personally offered to every minister of the Gospel of the Grace of God for daring to stick to his job and keep on plugging for the Christian advance whether that minister is young or old. It takes heroism to keep going in any pastorate and this pastorate is no more difficult than those of my fellow-ministers. Let us trust God and His Word of life and let Him take care of the results. We all need the prayers and the words of help from every redeemed child of God.

R. F. Porte, pastor.

VANDERGRIFF, PENNSYLVANIA

On Monday night, March eighth, the writer was privileged to begin a two weeks meeting with the Vandergriff Brethren. This was our first visit to this community. Rev. Percy Miller is the Shepherd of the flock. He also cares for the Brush Valley church which is 35 miles away. In addition to preaching he is a Science teacher in the Vandergriff High School. It is needless to state that he is a very busy man. Because of this he was unable to take me about on visitation, but this was ably done by Brother Frank Buzard, an active layman, who has been with the church from its beginning.

The Vandergriff church is the home church of the late Elder J. B. Wampler whose home was in Apollo, which is a borough across the river from Vandergriff proper. His aged daughter, unable to attend the services will be 80 in June. There are numerous descendants of this prominent churchman of other days. Unfortunately many of them seem to have too little interest in the church of today.

The Vandergriff people have reached the unanimous decision that their church must be relocated out of the flood zone by the river also from the unsavory surroundings which have throttled growth. They have two lots on the heights known as "Kepple Hill," where they hope to erect a commodious brick structure which will care for their needs for years to come. This is a new development and a number of Brethren families are settled there with more desiring to come. Plans are already completed and they hope to break ground for this beautiful structure this summer. This is a large undertaking owing to the smallness of the membership, and help will be needed from various sources.

Brush Valley furnished delegations several times for the meeting. Rev. St. Clair Benshoff came a night from Vinco and Rev. W. S. Crick with two car loads came from Pittsburgh. Rev. Garland came from Mt. Pleasant with a delegation. It was stated by some of the members that the average attendance was the highest it has been for a number of years. This is a congregation where many of the men work one of three shifts in the local mill which meant that regular attendance was not possible. A colored chalk sketch was made each night which was given away at the close of the service by Rev. Miller. The visible results of the meeting were twenty-seven, re-consecrations and first confessions.

The people were very hospitable and many homes were opened to manifest this Brethren spirit. It seemed as though the two weeks went rapidly and soon it was Sunday night, March 21 with the meeting closing.

We had our home with the Charles Lowmaster family, which was everything that could be desired. This is one of the progressive families which is making a contribution to the church in numerous ways. He is a builder of considerable experience and is Chairman of the Building Committee. The best wishes of the writer are with these people as they develop their dream of a commendable place of worship and Church and Kingdom extension.

Freman Ankrum, Masontown, Pennsylvania.

Wedding Announcement

SMITH-BOWMAN. Culminating a childhood friendship was the marriage of Miss Ella Bovey Smith, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John G. Smith, and Paul Stewart Bowman. The double ring ceremony was read by the undersigned, pastor of the bride, in the First Brethren Church, September 24, 1947. This was the 28th wedding anniversary of the bride's parents. The couple gave their marriage vows before an altar banked with white gladioli, palms and white candleabra. Green pine was twined around the choir loft and each pew was festooned with bouquets of white gladioli and palms. Preceding the ceremony, John L. Carnochan, Jr., sang "Through the Years," and "Consecration." Kemp Kretzer, organist, and Bernard Siegert, celloist, played "Ave Maria," Schubert's Sere-nade" and "My Heart at Thy Sweet Voice." Miss Jean Smith was maid of honor, Misses Etta Belle Cushen and Bettie Shadrach were bridesmaids; Frank Bowman, brother of the groom was best man, and his little son Frank, Jr., acted as ring bearer. The bride is a graduate of Ashland College. She is a member of the First Brethren Church of Hagerstown, and a faithful worker in the choir and other interests of the church. She is now teaching in the Clear Spring, Maryland high school. Mr. and Mrs. Bowman are at home in their apartment, 155 King Street.

N. V. Leatherman.

POFFENBERGER-WALLACE. White gladioli, palms and candelabra decorated the First Brethren Church for the wedding of Miss Dorothy Jane Poffenberger, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Carroll R. Poffenberger, Oak Hill avenue, Hagerstown, and Ralph E. Wallace, son of Mr. and Mrs. V. O. Wallace, McDowell Ave. The ceremony was read Sunday afternoon, July 6, 1947, at three o'clock, by the undersigned, pastor of the bride. Preceding the wedding, nuptial music was played by the organist, Kemp Kretzer, and selections were sung by John L. Carnochan, Jr. and Miss Jane Strevig who joined in singing, "Through the Years." The bride is a B. S. graduate from Drexel Institute of Technology since spring.

N. V. Leatherman.

CASHMAN-KING. In a nicely arranged church wedding in the First Brethren Church of Hagerstown, Maryland, Miss Thelma Louise Cashman, a member of the Brethren Church at Waynesboro, Pennsylvania, was united in marriage to Donald E. King, June 7, 1947, by the undersigned.

N. V. Leatherman.

Laid to Rest

VINEY. Wm. S. Viney was born May 2, 1860 and departed this life to meet his Master of the great life beyond on March 3, 1948, his passing occurring at his residence in Flora, Indiana, after a period of lingering illness. He was eighty-seven years of age.

Born in Green Briar County, West Virginia, he was one of fourteen children born to Mr. and Mrs. Paxton Viney. The family came to the Flora community while he was yet in his infancy. His later life was devoted to farming in the local vicinity until his retirement a few years ago. The last three years have been spent in blindness and confinement to his bed.

He is survived by his wife, Malinda, to whom he was united on March 27, 1881. To this union were born five children: Mrs. Alva Pritts, William E. and E. E. Viney, Mrs. Roy Blue and Mrs. Clarence Davis, all of whom survive. Also surviving are eight grandchildren, twelve great grandchildren and four great great grandchildren.

He was faithful to his Lord, serving with the Flora First Brethren Church. Services were conducted by the writer.

J. Edgar Berkshire.

CONCERNING THE OHIO DISTRICT PROGRAM

The Program of the Ohio District Conference will appear in the Evangelist, issue of April 24. As I write this it is the 31st of March, the date by which all who are on the tentative program were to inform the undersigned as to whether they would accept the assigned part on the program. To date no refusals have been received. Therefore we take it that the program will be as it was first assembled, and thus it will appear in the Evangelist. If we do not hear from you at once we take it that you are preparing the part assigned. Address all correspondence concerning the above to: Fred C. Vanator, 524 College Avenue, Ashland, Ohio, since the regularly elected Secretary of the conference has gone from our District, and the matter now falls on the Assistant Secretary.

Fred C. Vanator, Ass't. Sec.
Ohio District Conference.

The Brethren Evangelist

Vol. LXX, No 16 April 17, 1948
Missionary Board Number

Brethren Historical Library
Manchester College
comp
North Manchester, Ind.

THE BRETHREN EVANGELIST

Published weekly, except the last week in August and
the last week in December.

THE BRETHREN PUBLISHING COMPANY

Ashland, Ohio

PRUDENTIAL COMMITTEE

J. E. Stookey, President N. G. Kimmel, Vice-President
J. G. Dodds, Secretary-Treasurer

EDITOR OF PUBLICATIONS—F. C. Vanator

BUSINESS MANAGER—G. S. Baer

EDITOR MISSIONARY NUMBER—E. M. Riddle

CONTRIBUTING EDITORS

Dr. Charles A. Bame Rev. Dyoll Belote

DEPARTMENTAL EDITORS

Dr. C. F. Yoder, Brethren Doctrine
Rev. N. V. Leatherman, Practical Church Problems
Rev. J. G. Dodds, National Goals
Dr. R. F. Porte, Brethren Church History

PLEASE REMEMBER: All material for publication in the Evangelist must be in the hands of the editor at least three weeks before the desired date of publication, to assure same to appear in desired issue. This refers to announcements particularly.

TERMS OF SUBSCRIPTION: $1.50 per year in advance.
CHANGE OF ADDRESS: In ordering change of address always give both old and new addresses.

REMITTANCES: Send all money, business communications, and contributed articles to:

THE BRETHREN PUBLISHING COMPANY
ASHLAND, OHIO

Entered as second class matter at Ashland, Ohio. Accepted for mailing at special rate, section 1103, act of October 3, 1917. Authorized September 3, 1928.

the afternoon. They are a small group, but very loyal to the interests of the church. One from here is in Ashland College this year. Brother Belote closed his ministry for these churches the first of April. Pray that they may have a good shepherd.

Masontown, Pa.—En route to Masontown, it was my privilege to meet with the Pennsylvania Mission Board at the East Liberty Y. M. C. A. in Pittsburgh. The main discussion settled around the question of selling the North Vandergrift Church and the prospects for building a new and better one on a new site.

At Masontown, I spoke for a morning and evening service while the pastor, Brother Freeman Ankrum, was in special meetings. The attendance and spirit of these services were very, very good. Their latest achievement is the building of a new parsonage, next to the church. It is a beautiful, commodious house. It was a delight to be entertained in it so soon after being occupied by the pastoral family. Out of this church also will come other servants for training next year.

Short trips have been made to Milledgeville, Lanark, Troy and Pleasant Hill, in the interests of the college and missionary work of the church.

Oakville, Ind.—Holy Week was a blessed experience at this church where Brother and Sister Ault serve. No preacher could have asked for better attendance or finer cooperation. Even on the Friday night when the devastating storm hit the center of Indiana, in fact most of the state, with great damage and loss of life, a goodly number gathered at the church. All were protected, for which we gave thanks.

The Resurrection Day was well and beautifully observed with a complete program. A Sunrise service and Easter breakfast at the church, with the worship services at the regular hours brought a wonderful response. The Pastor will, no doubt, give more of the details.

Pastors' Institute—The last days of the month were enjoyed in Ashland, when the Pastors' Institute was in session. This was a genuine success according to the voice of many. The speakers surely did their part. The attendance from the local community and college students was much better than in previous years. Due to moving the first of April, some pastors could not attend. It was sponsored by the Missionary Board, the Ministerial Association and the Seminary.

E. M. Riddle.

The

Field Secretary

Travels

Uniontown, Pa.—It was my first visit to the Uniontown Church. Brother and Sister Belote have had an unusual experience here, since they have served this congregation the third time. Here your Secretary was greeted by a very enthusiastic audience. The services were well attended, too. Out of this group is coming a young minister and a young missionary, both for our college. I also spoke in the Highland Church in

Keeping The Spirit of

Easter In Missions

by Elmer R. Carrithers

"Ye are witnesses of these things. And, behold, I send the promise of my Father upon you: But tarry ye in the city of Jerusalem, until ye be endued with power from on high." Luke 24:48, 49.

As we approach the Easter season, we plan a series of services in which the complete story, of the sufferings, trial and death of our Lord is presented to the church. On Easter Sunday we hear a sermon on the resurrection of Jesus, we hear emphasis on an Easter offering for missions and many draw a sigh of relief that their missionary duty is done for another year.

If we are willing to see our Savior as he suffered humiliation, persecution, and in agony—the death of shame for you and me, personally, that we, as sinners, might be redeemed and presented to God the Father, as His children our spirit of Easter would last much longer than for a few days.

The real spirit of Easter is far more than a commercialized, socialized few days in the Spring. Jesus taught the real spirit of giving at Easter time. He gave all he had for us. He taught us a great lesson in giving.

When we make our giving a matter of prayer, and study, we find much more joy in it. When we spend much time with our Lord, in prayer, in the study of His word, and close fellowship we have the desire to serve Him in every way we can. It seems that most people spend more time with the Lord during the Easter season than at any other time of the year, and catch the missionary vision at that time. However, if we, as Ministers of the Gospel, use our influence in planning a more prayerful, spirit-filled yearly church program, I believe we will see more of the "Easter Spirit" during the whole year. The special Bible reading, the special prayer services, need not be only at Easter time. "A wise gardener spends much time on his knees." Perhaps if we Brethren men wore more of our pants out at the knees instead of the seat, we would see more Easter spirit in the year. Perhaps our Brethren women wearing their hose out in the knee instead of the heel would be an aid to the keeping of the spirit of Easter.

Thank God, our Lord did not just die for a few people of His day, but that He died for all people, of all time, who accept Him. Thank God, our Lord did not give the great commission to a few people of His time on earth, but He would have each of us to catch the real missionary visionary vision. "Go ye therefore, and teach all nations, baptizing them in the name of the Father, and of the Son, and of the Holy Spirit: Teaching them to observe all things whatsoever I have commanded you: and, lo, I am with you to the end of the world. Amen." Matt. 28:19, 20.

We may not all be able to go personally into some country as a missionary or minister, but if we have the real missionary vision we will each one go indirectly—by sending some one in our place.

Thank God our Lord did not limit the day of salvation to periods in the year. Thank God He did not pay for half of our redemption and expect us to pay the rest!

Many years ago, we remember of receiving a gift from one of our playmates, but it was not long until Eddie wanted his gift back, and proceeded to make a fuss until he obtained it. We praise the Lord that He did not decide to take His gift of life back, after he gave it to us.

To have the missionary spirit of giving, of devotion only in the spring would be like spurning Him who loved us and gave Himself a ransom for us. He wants a 365 day faith, devotion, missionary spirit.

God wants our lives, our talents, our time, our money, whatever He has entrusted to us. It may be that you have money and the other man has the ability and health to go and reach others. Then you can have a part in that missionary life, by giving of your money, not just at Easter time, but along as God prospers you. Perhaps age has crept upon you and you can not go out into full time service, but you can be a missionary in your secret closet, praying for those you know are lost, praying for your minister, and for some missionary in foreign service, praying each day of the year.

Our Lord did not tell us to "be faithful during the Easter season and he would give to us the crown of life," but "be faithful unto death." When Paul caught the missionary vision, he did not keep this spirit periodically. Paul kept it until death! Of the twelve Apostles, one kept the spirit of Christ for a time and became the traitor, betrayer! God grant that we may not be a Judas and crucify our Lord anew, after a brief period of days, but that we may have a real missionary vision, the true spirit of Easter and keep it each day of our lives. When we, as a Brethren Church, have this Easter spirit we will see many souls born into the kingdom; we will see our church growing by leaps and bounds.

—Peru, Ind. Brethren Church pastor.

Second Fiddles

The conductor of one of America's great symphony orchestras was being interviewed by a reporter from the high school paper. She was an eager youngster, who took her job very seriously. It was obvious to the older newsmen there that she was determined to get a real "story" out of her first assignment.

When it came her turn to ask a question of the famous musician she said: "Maestro, what is the most difficult instrument in the whole orchestra to play?" The conductor's eyes flashed, and he smiled as he replied, "The second fiddles. It is always easy to find solo violinists and first violinists, but it is very hard to find a good second fiddler."

The most of the world's work is done by the second fiddlers—those people whose names never get into the headlines, whose work is never publicized, who play in the mob scenes, who never sit at the head table, and never get any rebates on anything.

There is a whimsical story told of a man who stood looking at a prize winning picture on display in the art exhibit. A stranger watching the humble man was much impressed by his interest, and said: "It is beautiful, isn't it?" "Yes, I think so," the plain one answered. "I did it." "What!" the stranger exclaimed, "are you the artist?" "No," the man answered. "That was not what I meant. I made the frame, and the frame makes the picture."

Smile as we may at the simple satisfaction of the workman, the fact remains that he had found the secret of a happy life. He had learned to administer the stewardship of second fiddling.

It would be a poor sort of army which consisted entirely of generals, and it would be an uninteresting orchestra which consisted entirely of solo violinists.

Occasionally one comes across a church whose bills are paid by three or four rich men, and whose small givers are not cultivated. It seldom happens that such a church exercises any great influence in the community. It may employ great music, and it may employ a famous pastor, but it does not command the loyalty of the masses.

There is a spiritual value in giving to which even the small givers are entitled. And there is a power generated by giving which even the church with rich members is entitled to enjoy. But if the small givers are not cultivated it will never know that power.

There was something very beautiful about the career and the attitude of John the Baptist. He was willing to play second fiddle to Jesus. At the time he was doing so he had no knowledge of the resurrection, nor of the vast implications of the movement that was to spring up in Jesus' wake. He was only a Godly man who was big enough to play second fiddle for the sake of the total cause.—Roy L. Smith.

Youth Has A Part To Play

by Charles R. Munson

Joe was sort of a jerk and no one expected him to get a part in the school play, but he did. His name appeared beside the main characters; he had a part to play. Came the night for the production and the third act was just ready to close when Joe, playing the part of a butler, walked into the room carrying a suit case and said, "Here is your bag, sir," and then walked out again. That's all Joe had to do but he had a part to play and he played it well. He didn't quit because he wasn't the whole cheese. Confidentially, young people, you have a part to play, and while it may not be the whole show, it is important. Sometimes we think that because we can't set the world afire we can't do anything but such is not the case. Oh, shucks, why don't you read this and see what I mean?

I. GIVE

I once heard of a girl who wanted to go to China as a missionary. Her minister told her that because of her health she could not go. She made the attempt, however, and was turned down because of a physical defect. Upon returning to her minister she told him the story and said that she was going anyway, whereupon he asked how she intended to do that since she had been turned down? She replied that she was going to save her money and send someone else in her place.

That attitude is typical of a number of people, but sadly enough it is not true of enough of us. Some of us feel that God in His mercy will save all the heathen and we do not need to send missionaries. So the first thing the youth of our land needs to decide for itself is the necessity of missions. Here's the part that youth has to play. Jesus realized the need of missions for His command concerned all the world. Now God may make a special dispensation for the heathen, but we dare not take the chance on it since the command is the missions. But you know somehow here is where the young people fall down, or else it's not their responsibility. Be honest now, isn't that true, young people? The devil has fooled you into thinking that your efforts are of no avail until you get older.

Giving isn't a privilege to be held by the older folks alone, but it is given to all who will take part. Oh the devil is bound to tell you that a half-dollar won't amount to much; he will say the same thing about ten dollars if you let him fool you. Let's wake up, young people, and realize what a tremendous opportunity God has offered us when he permits us to give our money. Have you been using that opportunity, or have you been duped into thinking you are just a young squirt? Listen young people, why don't you start to flex your muscles and see how strong you are; and realize just how much you can do for our mission program? That's the part you have to play.

Now as I have suggested you must understand the need for missions and then you must realize just how much a little can do in the kingdom of God. You all know how much Jesus was able to do with the loaves and fishes that the little lad gave for him to use. He multiplied until he could feed thousands of people. Are you willing to give?

II. GO

Not only did our Lord give us the privilege of giving but He called us to go. Right now I can think of seven people, all of them young people, interested in the mission field. Mr. and Mrs. Roesch in Puerto Rico, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Byler preparing to go to South America, Miss Liskey planning to go to Africa, and Mr. and Mrs. Charles Webb in France. Yes, youth has a part to play in the mission program of our day. I don't think anyone would deny the fact that Jesus chose young men for his disciples despite the fact that pictures would show otherwise. Jesus called then and calls now for young people to follow; yes, to go into all nations. Don't ever deny yourself the privilege of serving the Lord if He calls you for special duty.

However, whether He calls you for special duty or not, you can be certain that He calls you to Go. When you stop to think about it Jesus didn't say any particular group in His last command; He said go. There is as much universality about His call as there is about His message—YOU GO to ALL the world. Are you willing to GO?

III. GET

I can't forget the story about the widow who gave all she had, and then how she was blessed for it. Jesus said that she had given more than the rich pouring in their wealth. Now that's exactly what I mean by this idea of getting. I think that one would have to say that a man usually does not become rich in mission work—if he did everybody and his brother would be in it. If there would be a fee of $5 placed on every soul brought into the kingdom I imagine we would work a lot harder. But as I was saying, a person won't get rich but he will, like the widow, be blessed because he has given.

It is true that giving and going for the Lord still bring rich blessings to the individual; more than anything this world has to offer. The doctor's profession is a glorious one, but in a few short years the body passes away. The missionary's profession is likewise a glorious one for he treats the soul which lives forever. Think it over and catch hold of the wonderful blessing you get when you know that you have helped to heal a soul and prepare it for heaven. Here's your part as Christian young people.

The story is told about Christ that when he returned to heaven he was asked about his stay here on earth. The heavenly host gathered about him and inquired concerning his work, and the preparations which he had made. He replied that he had left the message in the hands of 11 men. Then one of the host asked him what would happen if these men should fail and Christ replied, "I have no other arrangements."

Plan to Give, to Go and you will Get the blessings from God. Play your part well, young people!

HE LEADETH ME

In pastures green? Not always; sometimes He
 Who knoweth best, in kindness leadeth me
 In many ways where heavy shadows be.
 Out of the sunshine warm and soft and bright—
 Out of the sunshine into the darkest night,
 I oft would faint with sorrow and affright,
 Only for this—I know He holds my hand;
 So whether in the green or desert land
 I trust although I may not understand.

And by still waters? No, not always so,
 Ofttimes the heavy tempests round me blow,
 And o'er my soul the waters and billows go
 But when the storms beat loudest and I cry Aloud for help, the Master standeth by
 And whispers to my soul, "Lo, it is I."
 Above the tempest wild I hear him say,
 "Beyond this darkness lies a perfect day,
 In every path of thine I lead the way."

So whether on the hilltops high and fair
 I dwell, or in the sunless valleys where
 The shadows lie—what matters? He is there.
 And more than this, where'er the pathway lead,
 He giveth me no helpless broken reed,
 But His own hand, sufficient for my need.
 So where He leads me, I can safely go,
 And in the blest hereafter I shall know
 Why in His wisdom, He hath led me so.

THE LAMB

Little lamb, who made thee?
 Dost thou know who made thee?
 Gave thee life and bade thee feed
 By the stream and o'er the mead;
 Gave thee clothing of delight,
 Softest clothing, woolly, bright;
 Gave thee such a tender voice,
 Making all the vales rejoice?
 Little lamb who made thee?
 Dost thou know who made thee?

Little lamb, I'll tell thee;
 Little lamb, I'll tell thee.
 He is called by thy name,
 For He calls Himself a Lamb;
 He is meek and He is mild,
 He became a little child.
 I a child and thou a lamb,
 We are called by His name.

Little lamb, God bless thee!
 Little lamb, God bless thee!

—William Blake.

The Message of the Book Ephesians

by John T. Byler

The Book of Ephesians—along with several others of Paul's Epistles—is a different style of writing than that which is found in Romans, or Corinthians, or Galatians, for example. These latter were written during the "white heat" of missionary zeal—while Paul was "on the go" from place to place. In contrast, Ephesians was written in a much more leisurely fashion, while Paul was in prison, giving him ample time to put down in his best manner just what he had thought and felt and experienced in his unusual life for Christ. That accounts for the term we sometimes hear applied to this and several others of Paul's letters—"The Afternoon Epistles."

On Paul's Third Missionary Journey, he had used Ephesus somewhat as the center of his work. He spent approximately three years here, for it was a very important city. With a population of about 225,000 people, it had become the Roman Capitol of Asia Minor as well as the religious center of the Roman Empire. Rome maintained the lead as the intellectual center of the Empire, but Ephesus, even before the introduction of Christianity there, had established herself as the center of religion.

The fact that Paul was able to establish a church here gives evidence of his success as a missionary. Ephesus was an idolatrous city; all kinds of magical arts were practiced here, for these, along with idol worship were parts of the worship of the people at this place. It was in this city that the great marble Temple of Diana was to be found. 220 years in building, it was one of the seven wonders of this ancient civilization. It is a remarkable testimony to the zeal and missionary activity of Paul that he was able to enter into such a background of pagan culture and religion and win many "Diana Worshipers" to acceptance of Jesus Christ. In fact, Paul was so successful that Ephesus finally became the stronghold of Christianity in the Christian world at this particular period of history.

The letter is addressed "to the saints who are at Ephesus," but there is some variation of opinion on this matter, due to the fact that no individual greetings are included in the book as is the case in many of Paul's letters. By some it is supposed to be a more general epistle—to all of the churches in the Ephesus area—rather than only to one church. Whatever Paul's original intention, the letter is one of the most profound writings in all of the Scripture.

As we enter into the book, we enter through a gateway of praise. The first chapter has included in it a psalm of praise, a psalm divided into three sections. Each section (verses 3 to 6a) speaks of the glory of redeeming love before the foundation of the world. Section two (6b to 12a) speaks of the glory of redeeming love which is present in the soul—securing for us the forgiveness of sin. The third division (12b to 14) speaks of the glory of redeeming love with respect to the future. With this as an introduction, Paul follows with a prayer that the eyes of his readers might be opened so that they may enjoy the privileges to which they have been called.

Following the prayer, a section of the letter (to 3:13) is devoted to a discussion on doctrine. He speaks of what God has wrought in Christ, having raised Christ from the dead, and having made him the Head over all things—especially in reference to the Church. Secondly, he speaks of what God has wrought in us through Christ—in bringing us salvation. In the third place, he points out what God has wrought in Paul, whom God used to reveal the unsearchable riches of Christ. Paul marvels that God could use him "who am less than the least of all saints," but rejoices in his privilege to preach Christ.

Chapter 4 introduces us to a practical section which deals with Paul's urging the Christians to have no part in the vices, so prevalent around them, which the Gentiles indulged in. It also speaks of some sociological problems concerning husbands and wives, parents and children, servants and masters. He continues this section with some admonitions concerning the Christian's walk and behaviour, and closes with an appeal that is familiar to all of us: "Put on the whole armour of God."

It is not possible to bring to mind all of the outstanding thoughts and characteristics of this epistle in one short article, but there are several remaining characteristics which must not be overlooked. (1) The book possesses a height in thinking that Paul realized was beyond his own human thought. He tries only to express the grandeur of thought in showing us the impossibility of expression through the use of such words as "exceeding," "abounding," and "unsearchable." As he speaks of his conception of God the Father, of the Son and of the Holy Spirit, he knows he is dwelling in the riches of mercy and grace and love and glory which are beyond man's understanding. (2) As Paul views the plan of redemption most be thought of as the key word of the entire epistle. He discusses the origin of redemption, showing God's claim upon us before the foundation of the world. He points out the privileges of the redeemed. And he brings to our thinking the goal of redemption. (3) A very important third characteristic comes to our attention in his view of Church Unity. And the word "Unity" might almost be thought of as the key word of the entire epistle. He speaks of the unity of the church with God, of the Gentiles with the Jews, and of the individual with God. Quoting from the 10th verse of chapter 1, "That in the dispensation of the fulness of times, he might gather together in one all things in Christ, both which are in heaven, and which are on earth." (4) Finally, we notice that the book of Ephesians is outstanding in its scope. It begins back in the eternities, spreading out over the entire world as its field, and reaches its culmination only when it has seen all things in subjection to Christ.

The letter to the Ephesians has rightly been called "The Switzerland of the Bible." For a mountaintop experience, go to the Book and read it, and make it a definite part of your Christian experience.

Men and the Church

by Dr. G. W. Rensch

Part I

(To be concluded in the next issue)

The leadership of the Church is vested in her men. It has always been so. When the Word became flesh and dwelt among us, it was incarnate in a man—Jesus, the Son of God.

Long ago Jesus knew the value of men. He must have been a man's man to have gathered about him Peter, Matthew, Thomas, John, Nicodemus, and Zaccheus—men of widely different qualities and temperaments. Paul gathered around him such men as Barnabas, Timothy, Titus, Aquila and Onesimus.

The Catholic Church has long known the value of her men. Who can estimate the power of the Dominicans, Franciscans and Jesuits? One night, when the German Reformation was at its height, Loyola stood with two companions on a hilltop in Paris, and as the bells tolled out the midnight hour, they raised their hands to heaven and vowed to overthrow the work of Luther. What student of history does not know the result?

Through the magnitude and splendor of his vision for men, Jesus is bringing the whole world to his feet. He included the eternities in his plans for human life. His vision was that of a world-kingdom in its reach for men. He proposed to enlist the entire being in his service—body, soul and spirit. Jesus is an absolute autocrat, being unwilling to share his throne with any one. He was the most daring in his faith in the accomplishments for men. His venture was so startling that it riveted men's attention and their service. He lifted men to the level of immortal beings, and pointed out to them the Canaan of their rightful inheritance. He unrolled before men the blue-prints of the divine Architect, and said, "Build ye after the pattern shown you in the holy mount."

It was his call that made a queen out of a harlot. It was his call that made a reformer out of Saul of Tarsus, the murderer. It was his call that made a martyr out of Stephen, the unknown, and a seer out of John, the fisherman.

And it is his call that enables men today to link their lives with great tasks, and through great tasks to become great men. When Jesus masters men, they in turn master themselves, and become world-builders. Common toilers of the earth, when inspired by his spirit, do earthly tasks in a heavenly way, living masterful lives.

Sweep your eyes but hastily over the pages of history, and note at once such magnificent men as, Polycarp, who sat at the feet of John; Clement, Ignatius, the brilliant Origen, Justin Martyr, Tertullian, the silver-tongued Chrysostom, and Eusebius the historian. There was Ambrose, who converted Augustine; Gregory the Great; Charles Martel, who hammered back the Moslems; Hildebrand, the rugged and pure pope; Anslem and Aquinas, who gave the church her theology; Savonarola, the prophet of flaming fire; Wyclif, the morning star of the Reformation; Luther, Calvin, Zwingli, Wesley, Zinzendorf, Fox, Roger Williams and Alexander Mack, all mighty men of whom the world was scarcely worthy.

But is the church getting hold of men today? Is it true that the modern preacher addresses the three b's—benches, babies and bonnets? A number of questions were sent out to many professional and business men to ascertain more correctly the feeling on this question of the church's failure to reach men, and some of the condensed answers are given: Many held that the church was not reaching as many men as fifty years ago, (1) "On account of the intense commercial conditions and the consequent demand on the time of the men;" (2) The decadence of faith, arising from the spirit of the age to question everything"; (3) "The failure of the church to adapt her message to the times;" and also, (4) "The overorganization of society into clubs, and lodges, etc." The editor of a city daily says the church is winning more men than ever before in the history of the world. A college professor says the church is reaching the men, and that these men are leading their respective communities in life and thought. A prominent Western business man shows how men are taking up the work of the church in a social way. A leading minister advocates the institutional church, making every building a veritable Y. M. C. A.

After studying the subject carefully, the conclusion reached is "That where God's means are used to accomplish his ends" the process of calling out a people for his universal Kingdom is progressing as well as it ever has. Of course there are hindrances. Satan would not be the devil he is if there were none. But the material at hand is sufficient, as it always has been.

A new minister after being with his charge for a few weeks, had occasion to find fault with his deacons. This he did in conversation with the janitor. After pointing out the short-comings of Deacon Brown and Deacon Jones and Deacon Smith in a most fault-finding way, the stuttering janitor replied, "B—b—b—but they're the best we've got." "The best we've got," is always good enough—until we can get better.

In contrast with this incident, a very successful evangelist and pastor says, "I had just accepted the pastorate of this well-known church and was standing at the foot of the pulpit steps one morning after I had preached my sermon when an aged man passed along and taking me by the hand said: 'Well, sir, I am very much afraid that you will make this pastorate a failure. I know that you will without help. We have had distinguished men here as pastors of this church and you are young and I tremble for you; but I have stopped to say to you that I am going to help you.' It seemed almost ridiculous and I wondered what this old man could do for me. Then he said: 'I have covenanted with two other men to pray for you so long as you are pastor of this Church and we have determined to ask God to make you a winner of

(Continued on page 12)

The Sunday School In Relation To Home Missions

by N. V. Leatherman

The Church needs to be rethought today. Home Missions need to be rethought today. The Sunday School needs to be rethought today. Every generation has this responsibility. This is not to change everything. It may mean to change little or nothing. It does mean we must know why we should or should not change. Not to change often requires as much thinking and sometimes more, than to change, if we remain with a semblance of intelligence and at the same time plastic to the leadership of the Holy Spirit. Yet to make no changes ever, may be a definite indication that both thinking and spiritual processes have atrophied and ceased to function. Conservatism can be as radically wrong as liberalism. We have professing liberals who are practicing conservatives. We have professing conservatives who are practicing liberals. Both because thought has surrendered to other human minds presumed to be greater. There are always leaders who enjoy this presumption and assume their places of advantage over their unthinking subjects. Hence the church has seen more than one dark age. A new renaissance is in order. And either it or our Lord must come before we have a new reformation or revival.

Our Sunday School needs to be rethought in order that it might function better for our Lord and his church. Much of our Sunday School work is missing the point. Much of our Christian Education is missing the point. We are not getting the maximum, either in education or Christian life. All this is true because we do not take the Lord's work seriously enough. These generalities may be particularized by observing the church doors between the Sunday School and the Church worship hours; by observing the language, the attitudes and actions of the pupils of the Sunday School in the Church and community. This may seem like a diatribe to discourage any and all Sunday School work and workers. We must believe what we see and hear however. Many Sunday School workers are discouraged because this is all the truth they see. They lack vision to see that these conditions are but exceptions from what ought to be, and that they call our attention to the great good and power for ever greater good existing in the Sunday School. We cannot take an institution like the Sunday School and place it in balances to proportion the good and lack of good. We cannot put it through the screen and sift the bad from the good. What we do is to seek to discover error and weakness with a viewpoint of correction, and adding strength.

What is the Sunday School? It is that organized group of Christian church people seeking to function as our Lord commanded: "Go ye therefore and TEACH." We quote again an aim for the Sunday School developed by a half dozen classes studying "The Principles of Teaching"; "We take the pupil as he is, and aim, to so teach, by directing in knowledge, in attitude and conduct, that he might be what he ought to be in Christ Jesus, a saved and graceful servant."

Pursuing our Lord's commission and this objective we will discover ourselves with the Sunday School toward the front in every Home Mission project. In fact this is much the history of Brethren Home Missions. While evangelism by evangelist and pastor has its prominent and essential place in the church, we need to be reminded that the Sunday School is that steady, Sunday after Sunday teaching and learning group which pastor and evangelist farm most for their immediate results. There is a growing dangerous tendency among us, to exalt the office of the elder and minimize the functioning of the laity in the church. This has demonstrated itself in a developed careless attitude toward the Sunday School and other auxiliaries of the church. Sunday School methods have been criticized and instead of constructive direction, their weakness is taken advantage of to exalt the authority and place of the elder. This is a lazy, loose and careless attitude. Let the elder assume the larger task, that of encouraging, inspiring and training his laity for wholesome, Christian service in the Sunday School and church and Christ Himself will be exalted therein. Christ's statement about the least being the greatest can truly apply here.

The church and her missionary endeavor has yet to learn the full value of a whole-hearted, inspired and trained laity working in and through the church, and Sunday School. Yet if it had not been for these good laymen, in this good work in the church, in the past as well as the present, Home Missions would be another story entirely.

Teaching the gospel, and harvesting the results, is evangelism, missionary work and true Christian service. The Sunday School is organized for that purpose. With its Cradle Roll, Children's, Young People's, Adult and Home departments properly functioning there is no limit to the possibilities of a well organized, trained and inspired Sunday School. Such schools have built new congregations and rebuilt older ones. They are not only forerunners of new churches, they are the means to put new churches to work. Their value is too great to neglect. Their possibility for church extension, when properly envisaged is too important for a passive attitude. We should awaken to their appeal.

Foreign Missions

New Missionary To Africa

Shown here is Miss Veda Liskey of Harrisonburg, Virginia, a member of the Bethlehem Brethren Church, who will go this summer to the Garkida Leper Colony in Nigeria, Africa, where she will serve as a medical missionary, working with Dr. Howard Bosler.

At the recent meeting of the Missionary Board in Ashland, Ohio, Miss Lisky was presented at which time she stated her plans and arrangements for this work. She was officially notified by President C. S. Studebaker for the Mission Board of their acceptance of her for work on the African field.

Miss Liskey is a registered nurse, and is now completing a year of seminary training at the Bethany Biblical Seminary in Chicago, Ill. She will sail for Nigeria in July. The Garkida Leper Colony is one of the projects which is maintained cooperatively by the Church of the Brethren and the Brethren Church.

Miss Liskey is an enthusiastic young Christian woman and deserves the prayers and support of the Brethren

Church at large. We are proud to include her in our growing list of foreign missionaries.

A more complete account of Miss Liskey and her work will follow in next month's Missionary Number.

New Church Organized At Castaner, Puerto Rico

On February 25th the workers at the Castaner Project in Puerto Rico organized a church, and are holding regular worship services. They have no minister, but the ones who speak Spanish well, will preach in Spanish. They hold services in a building used for a school.

Dale and Norma Roesch have sent a special request to the churches of the homeland for prayer for themselves and fellow-workers in this newly organized work, which will add to their other responsibilities. Let us pray that they may be led by the Spirit, and that their new work may grow and be pleasing in the sight of the Lord.

Easter In Argentina

by Rita Guzman

In Argentina Easter comes in the autumn, generally soon after the schools have opened and classes have begun. For the great majority of the people Easter, or "Pascuas" (Passover) is just another holiday. In reality there are four days free, that is, Holy Thursday, Holy Friday, Saturday and Sunday. They call Easter week "Semana Santa" Holy week, and many take occasion for a trip or for receiving visitors.

The activities among the Catholics consist in doing the "Via Crucis," which means going on Thursday from one church to another until completing seven stops and prayers, in remembrance of the procession of the Lord to Calvary. On Friday they must not eat meat, but there is plenty of fish and other things on sale instead. There is generally a religious procession on Friday night when the dead Christ is taken to the street and hundreds of people see his image. Saturday is called "Sabado de Gloria," and in the evening the church bells ring loud and long announcing that Christ is risen. We think of him rising Sunday morning but they have him rise Saturday evening.

Meanwhile the Evangelical missions make special efforts to get people to hear the preaching of the Gospel. Generally meetings are held every night and many tracts are distributed during these days. There are also radio programs and sacred music, appreciated by all.

FISHERS OF MEN

by C. F. Yoder

This is the second in a series of Personal Workers' training courses. These studies may be used by individuals or groups who are interested in winning souls.

LESSON IX—THE HOLY SPIRIT OUR FELLOW-FISHERMAN

Text—"We are witnesses of these things, and so also is the Holy Spirit whom God hath given to those who obey Him." Acts 5:32.

Write answers to the following questions:

1. What are the "gifts of the Spirit?" I Cor. 12:8-10; 13:1.
2. What are the "Fruits of the flesh?" Gal. 5:19-23.
3. Which is stronger—the flesh or the Spirit? Gal. 5:16.
4. Who is "the Vicar of Jesus Christ?" John 16:8-14.
5. Who are the "Children of God?" Rom. 8:14.
6. Why can we not win souls without the help of the Trinity? John 6:44; 14:6; I Cor. 12:3.
7. What is the temple of the Holy Spirit? Eph. 2:20-22; I Pet. 2:3-6.

LESSON X—THE GIFT OF WISDOM

Text—"If any of you lack wisdom let him ask of God." James 1:5.

1. What precious promise have we for times of crisis? Luke 21:15.
2. What help of the Spirit may we have? John 16:13.
3. What argument does the Spirit use to convince men of sin? John 16:8, 9.
4. What argument to convince of the justice of Jesus? John 16:8-10.
5. What argument to show the certainty of judgment? John 16:8-11.
6. What is the best gift of the Spirit? Why? Rom. 5:5; I Cor. 13:31; 13:1.
7. Examples of wisdom given by the Spirit? Acts 2:32-37; 4:29-31; 6:8-10; 8:26, 27; 13:1, 2; I Cor. 1:17, 26-30.

LESSON XI—SCIENCE: NATURAL AND SPIRITUAL

Text—"Study to show thyself approved unto God, a workman that needeth not to be ashamed, rightly dividing the word of truth." II Tim. 2:15.

1. What preparation do fishers of men need? I Tim. 4:13-16; II Tim. 3:16.
2. What impression did Peter and John give with their testimony? Acts 4:13.
3. What did the learned apostle Paul preach? I Cor. 1:17-31.
4. What use did Paul make of his knowledge of history? I Cor. 10:1-12.
5. How did he use natural science? Rom. 1:19-33; Acts 17:24-31.
6. Does the Bible condemn all science? Col. 2:8; I Cor. 2:20.
7. Of what value is the knowledge of prophecy? I Pet. 1:9-12; II Pet. 1:19; Dan. 9:2, 3.

Men and the Church

(Continued from page 8)

souls.' Then I looked about the great church with eyes filled with tears and knew in my heart that God was going to give us a manifestation of his presence and power in that work. The three men soon became ten, the ten grew to twenty, the twenty numbered one hundred and the 'Brotherhood' grew until at last every Sunday morning from four to six hundred men met for prayer and conference. The men prayed for God's blessing to rest upon me as their pastor. They frequently accompanied me into the church. They sometimes formed a great choir in the gallery and sang with great effect. Again they occupied seats in different parts of the house and watched for souls. They stood by me when I preached on the streets. They went with me as a great army when I conducted services elsewhere." These men were not whiling away their time lamenting that "They had nothing to do." Instead, they were honest enough to admit that they knew how to pray for the pastor and they had religion enough to do what they could. Is it any wonder the Bethany Church of Philadelphia, grew, and that their pastor grew also?

In reaching men for the work of God, by far the most important factor in the case is the minister. The "sissy" and "over-saintly" preacher is a stumbling-block. A man that is too "everlastingly good," to enjoy a ball game, or an ice cream social, ought to be in heaven for he has lost his usefulness on earth. Sidney Smith once said, "There are three sexes: men, women and ministers." Dr. Coe says we have made too much of the "eternally feminine." The man in the pulpit should be broad-spirited—one who can give and take, who can eat, sleep, laugh, cry when it's worth while, hate, and fight when unjustly attacked. His sermons must be sensible, and bring the spirit and teachings of Jesus to bear upon the problems of modern men. His illustrations must be about the things men deal with, and not the "dear sisters."

No one can command the respect of real men unless he impresses them with his sincerity. "He that hath the

LESSON XII—ABIDING IN CHRIST

Text—"He that abideth in me and I in him the same beareth much fruit, for without me ye can do nothing." John 15:5

1. To what work does Jesus call disciples? Mk. 3:4.
2. What evidence have we of abiding in Christ? Acts 4:13.
3. What precious promise accompanies our great commission? Matt. 28:20.
4. What, if anything, can separate us from Christ? Heb. 12:15; 10:38, 39.
5. Compare results of abiding or not abiding in Christ. John 15:5, 6.
6. What results from the Spirit abiding in us? John 14:16, 17, 26.
7. What comfort have we in Rev. 3:20?

Son hath life; and he that hath not the Son of God hath not life," is a leading statement of the New Testament, and it is either true, or false. The men who take the position that "Life" comes some other way need not expect to be successful as a minister of the Lord Jesus Christ. If he thinks "Life" comes through Evolution and culture, let him think it, but he would be less the hypocrite if he were in some modern college, rather than in the pulpit. Men, busy men, who see an open grave across their pathway have no time for trifles. Sin is an awful fact with them. The "smooth, oily dope," that they are not so bad as they think does not appeal to them, for they know they are worse than they think they are. Too many men, who have gone to the very depths of sin, have tried that wonderful panacea,—“all men are divine in a degree, only Christ is more so,” and have found that a sham—borrowed from paganism. They now know that they “were dead in trespasses and sins, and “Even when we were dead in sins, hath he quickened us together with Christ.” Talk “culture” to a down-and-outer, and it is as nauseating as castor oil is to the bilious.

ADDITIONAL THANKSGIVING OFFERINGS

(The following offerings were received after the publication of the general list of Thanksgiving Offerings, Brethren Evangelist for February 28, 1948):

Washington, D. C.	$278.77
Ashland, Ohio	350.00
Dayton, Ohio	58.25
Lanark, Illinois	343.65
Cheyenne, Wyo.	35.00

NEWS

From the Christian World

Religious life at Cheeloo University, China, is active this year, according to President K'e-ming Wu. Attendance at morning prayers is three times what it was last year. Cheeloo is the only Christian university in the midst of at least 130,000,000 people.

Seventeen prefabricated churches, mission schools and parsonages are on the way to Japan. Ten buildings are churches to replace a few of the nearly 500 places of worship destroyed during the war.

A religious service is conducted at 1:30 A. M. every Sunday by Rev. Ernest S. Cochran, pastor of the Mount Pleasant Methodist church, in the offices of a taxicab company of Roanoke, Va. The congregation is made up of those men who will be driving cabs later in the morning and so will not be able to get to church services.

A study of the Protestant church life of Indianapolis, Ind., revealed that less than thirty per cent of the members of all the churches there were men; that laborers, who make up twenty-six per cent of the population, comprise only eight per cent of the membership of the churches; that fifty thousand people nominally Protestant are unreached by the churches; that an average of thirty-one per cent of the city's Protestants attend Sunday morning services.

Petitions are again coming into Congress asking that alcoholic advertising be prohibited on radio broadcasts which reach more than one state and in magazines which have interstate coverage.

Three Bible societies—those of England, Holland and Scotland—are cooperating in a program to print and translate the Bible for distribution in Indonesia. At the present 20,000 Bibles, nearly 50,000 New Testaments and as many Gospels are being published in seven different languages to meet the needs of the Indonesian churches. There are about two million Christians out of a population of seventy millions.

An example of friendly cooperation between groups that for centuries have been fighting one another was the meeting of the Czechoslovakian churches of all denominations in Prague on February 2. A manifesto condemning war as a means of settling problems and calling their own people and all Christians everywhere to work and pray for brotherhood was issued. The churches also appealed to all governments and statesmen to respect peace, however difficult it may be to solve certain problems.

One hundred thousand kits of clothing for destitute children in Europe and Asia is the 1948 goal of the Girl Scouts of the United States. The kits of new or remodeled and cleaned clothing are designed for three age groups—infants, one to three, and four to fourteen.

Great Britain is putting on an energetic campaign to reverse her lagging church attendance. Two methods will be used, personal visitation and a widespread program of advertising. One of the advertisements will carry this caption, "Before you criticize, learn what the churches are doing and what they teach." It is claimed that church attendance in England is lower than almost anywhere else in the world.

The Greatest Story Ever Told, broadcast each Sunday evening, was voted one of the outstanding radio programs of the year. It is sponsored by the Goodyear Tire and Rubber Company whose president has been voted the annual award for "doing the most through public relations, during the current year, for the general good."

One hundred Protestant mission boards in the United States and Canada expended approximately $33,000,000 in 1946 for home and foreign missions. More than half of the total or about $20,000,000 was sent to foreign fields. Of the total Protestant group, the Seventh Day Adventists spent the largest amount, followed closely by the Southern Baptists.

J. Edgar Hoover says, "Church attendance is a vital factor in the nation's crime prevention program. While serving as director of the Federal Bureau of Investigation during the past twenty years, I have been profoundly impressed with the fact that the churchgoing people are the most substantial group of citizens in the nation. Church attendance and crime appear to be like the ingredients of oil and water—they do not mix."

The enrollment in Methodist Sunday schools has increased by more than five hundred thousand during the past three years, it was disclosed at the meeting of the Methodist Board of Education. The gain, including a fourteen per cent increase in average attendance, was a part of the Crusade for Christ.

A resolution declaring "our unqualified opposition to universal military training" was adopted by the Conference in Cleveland representing more than 2,000 Methodist youth in the United States between the ages of 12 and 24.

The resolution asserted that peacetime conscription is "a denial of the spirit of United Nations" and warned that "indoctrination of the military mind into the youth of America will greatly speed this nation on the path to war."

CHRISTIAN ENDEAVOR TOPIC

W. St. Clair Benshoff, Topic Editor

"Topics copyrighted by the International Society of Christian Endeavor.
Used by permission."

Topic for April 25, 1948

MAKING MY VOCATION CHRISTIAN

Scripture: John 6:25-40; Col. 3:17, 23, 24

For The Leader

IT IS A TRAGIC thing that so many good Christian people are going into professions which have no relation to their Christian profession. The allurements of "good pay," easy working conditions, etc., are drawing young people away from serving their Lord. Our Church, its ministry, minister's wives, lay workers and missionary program needs talented, consecrated young people. From where shall these come? From that group of you who are well reared in Christian homes, knowing of our church, and able to step into the work with a Brethren Christian background. It is a major tragedy when a good Christian young person of our Church forsakes our Church for allurements elsewhere. We should pray much about our life-work, trusting that God will supply all our needs.

DISCUSSION

1. THE LABORS THAT PERISH. We recently heard a young person say, "Oh, I want to do such and such a thing when I get through school. The pay is good, etc." The job in question was one which would have drawn that young person completely away from the church. In fact, it was of such a nature that the young person would have been working during most church service times. That's not all, for the type of people with whom that person would be dealing, would not be the kind which would encourage the living of the Christian life. And after years of constant struggle in the job, that young person would be no further ahead than at the start. "Labor not for the meat that perisheth." How much better for that young person to anticipate some form of Christian service, where the results of labor would "shine as the stars of the morning forever." Engage in Christian service, and you will enjoy the fruits of your labors for all eternity.

2. ARE YOU A "LIFE WORK RECRUIT?" Through the years of camp programs we have seen quite a number of young people step forward in reconsecration. Out of that group there were those who dedicated themselves to the service of Christ; still others who volunteered as "life work recruits." In the next several years, the Brethren Church should be seeing the positive results of this program. But we cannot help but wonder about those who have "literally fallen by the wayside." May God bless and encourage them! But to you who are definitely "life work recruits": Do you know that you have made a sacred vow before almighty God? That vow is irrevocable! Only as you might be found physically or mentally unfit, can you retract your vow. You have said to God, "I will serve thee wheresoever You will." That is a sacred promise! Remember about the man in scripture of whom the Lord spoke? Jesus said, that whosoever putteth his hand to the plow, and turneth back, is not fit for the kingdom of God. We knew a young minister who threatened to leave the ministry on several occasions, but who admitted later on that he could not then turn back. It was his calling, and so he was to keep at it.

3. THE QUESTION. The Jews said unto Jesus, "What shall we do that we might work the works of God?" That question is vital to all of you who have promised to serve the Lord in His church. It may not be clear to you now, but through prayer and sincere Christian living, you will be led. They tell us that when we have served many years in Christian work, that life is a testimony of God's goodness, guidance and provision. God will guide you, but you must be willing to serve Him. Once we considered a job which would have required being on duty all day long, with several hours, more or less of book work in the evening, six days a week. The personnel manager said, "On this job, you really sell yourself to the company." There would be no time for any other pursuit, or for much else, at all. In a sense, a Christian vocation is just that. When you go all out for Christ, you must serve Him 100%. But think of the results and reward. When we promise to serve Christ we have no choice but to keep on serving Him. To do less is to be a traitor.

4. GLORIFYING GOD. It hurts to see good Christian young people going into jobs where their talents will be wasted. If we have talents, and have dedicated our lives to His service, then we must use those talents to His glory. What will we say on the day when we appear before the judgment seat of Christ? For then we must give an account of the things done in the flesh. When He looks us in the eye, reminds us of our dedication, and then asks us about the things we did for Him during life, what will we say? Will we tell Him we have served faithfully, trusting Him for everything. Or will we have to tell Him that our hands are empty, simply because we spent our life in a job "because the pay was good." As you know, as a Christian, "Ye are not your own, ye are bought with a price, ye belong to God. His you are; Him you must serve!" This is not just a matter of choosing a job. This is a matter of your well being for all eternity. Let the worldly people serve the world; their meat shall perish with them; let you as a Christian serve the Lord.

QUESTIONS

1. List some "vocations" which are suitable for Christians. List some that are not.
2. What is the test of a vocation that is suitable for Christian young people?
3. Is a Christian young person better off in a true Christian vocation, than one in which his or her surroundings are vulgar, unchristian, and worldly? Think it over.
4. "You tend to become like the people with whom you associate." Would not this have its effect on you if engaged in a profession which kept you away from your church and church people?

WATCH NEXT WEEK FOR A SPECIAL ANNOUNCEMENT FROM YOUR TOPIC EDITOR WHICH WILL HELP YOU IN PLANNING YOUR WEEKLY C. E. MEETINGS.

God is especially indebted to help a church that will strive to carry out His vision in missions.

Prayer Meeting Topic

Contributed by Rev. C. Y. Gilmer

(Helps for Missions)

COSTLY PRAYING

A MINISTER said to his young people, "I want you to spend fifteen minutes every day praying for missions; but I warn you that it will be a very costly experiment." "Costly?" they asked in surprise. "Yes, costly," he answered. "When Carey began to pray for the conversion of the world, it cost him himself, and it cost those who prayed with him very much. Brainerd prayed for the dark-skinned savages, and after two years of blessed work, it cost him his life. Two students in Mr. Moody's summer school began to pray the Lord to send forth some laborers into His harvest, and lo! it is going to cost our country five thousand young men and women who have, in answer to their prayer, pledged themselves to the work. You will find that you cannot pray for this work and withhold your labor, or your money, or your life itself."—Peloubet's Notes.

WORLD-WIDE EVANGELISM

Scripture: Mark 15:14-20

Missionary Hymns

Leader's Petition

Seed Thought Provokers:

The Great Commission is the final command of our LORD (Acts 1:8; Matt. 28:16-20) to His disciples and through them to His people. He had completed His work of redemption, lived His sinless life, paid the debt of sin, met all demands of the law. All His claims for Himself were verified in the resurrection. Forty days of unmistakable proof were furnished. On the day of ascension He gave His last charge and provision for the continuance of his work on earth after that the Holy Spirit had baptized the believers (Acts 1:4, 5).

The message is to be relayed to no fewer people than to all of them (Isa. 45:22; 52:10; Acts 13:47; Zech. 9:10). All that the prophets have spoken concerning Christ and His Kingdom must be fulfilled through Him or His Church and converted Israel in the last days (Luke 3:6; 2:32; Acts 13:47; Matt. 8:11).

The motive of salvation includes no less than the whole world (John 3:16). We could not conceive of salvation for the Jews and we Gentiles left out, nor God's love for North America only. God does not offer salvation to some and forbid it to others (2 Peter 3:9). God's love knows no barrier. He loves all sinners, but hates their sin. The love that gave Jesus to die for us will not stop short of world-wide evangelism. Love will cross rivers, deserts, mountains, endure hardships, sacrifices and die for its objective.

The spirit of the Gospel includes no less than the whole world. Christianity is a world religion. Its spirit is giving, not getting, without regard to nationality, race, locality, or condition. The spirit of the Gospel is not to get healed and to keep the blessing to one's self. It is giving to the limit for Christ gave Himself, His life, that men might live (John 12:24). So missionaries deny themselves of the pleasure of friends and the comforts of home (Matt. 8:20).

Jesus commended the good Samaritan who paid his debt to a wounded stranger in time, strength, money and credit. If we love those whom He loves, if we have the spirit of Christ, we shall not withhold from them the Bread of Life.

Christ has commanded, commissioned, and equipped His church for evangelization of the whole world. We have abundant resources through prayer. The Church has sufficient men. In two world wars we could spare large numbers of business men, young men, physicians, farmers, ministers to kill men. CERTAINLY WE CAN SPARE ENOUGH TO SAVE MEN! The church has its share of the wealth. In the carrying out of His program the Lord gave a special promise of His presence (Matt. 28:20b). What are we waiting for?

COMMENTS

On The Sunday School Lesson

by The Editor

Lesson for April 25, 1948

GOD'S STANDARD FOR LIFE

Lesson: Zechariah 1:1-4; 7:8-14; 8:16-17

THERE ARE TWO words that should stand out with great prominence in our study today—"truth" and "honesty." God's standard for life is built around these two great thoughts. We certainly cannot be unacquainted with the words of Jesus when He said, "I am the Truth," and, "The Spirit of Truth will guide you into all truth." It goes without saying that when Jesus came into the world to reveal the Father, He came with the standard which God had set up for humanity. He came knowing and living it.

As we go back into the Old Testament text of our lesson we meet the fact that people which God had chosen to be His own, did not measure up to God's standard, and we read in our second verse, the words of the prophet, "The Lord hath been sore displeased with your fathers," and in verse 3, the word of the Lord Himself, "Turn ye unto me, and I will turn unto you." Verse 4 continues with His word, "Turn ye from your evil ways," and then the condemning words, "but they did not hear, nor hearken unto me, saith the Lord." The result? Only what could be expected of a true and righteous God—punishment. They abode not in the truth.

Men must be honest with both themselves and with God. When Paul wrote to the Romans he said, "Provide things honest in the sight of all men," and when he wrote to the Corinthians he said, "Whatsoever things are honest, pure, lovely, etc., think on these things." He also admonished that our lives should be honestly lived in the sight of all men.

God's standard of life has never changed, because God never changes. Truth and honesty are the foundation stones for a life spent as He would have it spent.

Brethren Youth

Plan Now To Attend The First Annual Leadership Training School for Ambassadors, Crusaders, Teachers, Life Recruits and Youth Leaders

June 4, 5, and 6, 1948

at

Ashland College

Program of Christian Education, Spiritual Refreshment, Recreation

Directed by

BRETHREN YOUTH, INC. and their staff of specialists in the fields of Teacher Training

Music

Handcrafts

Worship

Visual Education

Missionary Education

D. V. B. S.

Registration and tuition—$5.00

Write for your reservation and also for more complete information to

BRETHREN YOUTH, INC.

BOX 28

LOUISVILLE, OHIO

Note: The teams chosen to be 1948 Ambassadors and Crusaders will receive this training free of charge. For information about becoming a member of either team, write to the above address. All churches interested in employing Ambassadors or Crusaders during the summer months, MUST MAKE YOUR RESERVATIONS AT ONCE. The summer itinerary will be completed by May 15, 1948, and any church wishing to be included in this tour must have its requests in before then. If more information is desired, write to the above address.

National Offering for Brethren Youth Sunday, May 16, 1948

$7500 is needed to direct Brethren Youth activities in the next year. Get ready now for your offering.

The BRETHREN & EVANGELIST

HOLY BIBLE

Official Organ of The Brethren Church

Vol. LXX, No. 17

April 24, 1948

Brethren Historical Library
Manchester College
North Manchester, Ind.

THE BRETHREN EVANGELIST

Published weekly, except the last week in August and
the last week in December.

THE BRETHREN PUBLISHING COMPANY

Ashland, Ohio

PRUDENTIAL COMMITTEE

J. E. Stookey, President N. G. Kimmel, Vice-President
J. G. Dodds, Secretary-Treasurer

EDITOR OF PUBLICATIONS—F. C. Vanator

BUSINESS MANAGER—G. S. Baer

EDITOR MISSIONARY NUMBER—E. M. Riddle

CONTRIBUTING EDITORS

Dr. Charles A. Bame Rev. Dyoll Belote

DEPARTMENTAL EDITORS

Dr. C. F. Yoder, Brethren Doctrine

Rev. N. V. Leatherman, Practical Church Problems

Rev. J. G. Dodds, National Goals

Dr. R. F. Porte, Brethren Church History

PLEASE REMEMBER: All material for publication in the Evangelist must be in the hands of the editor at least three weeks before the desired date of publication, to assure same to appear in desired issue. This refers to announcements particularly.

TERMS OF SUBSCRIPTION: $1.50 per year in advance.
CHANGE OF ADDRESS: In ordering change of address always
give both old and new addresses.

REMITTANCES: Send all money, business communications, and contributed articles to:

THE BRETHREN PUBLISHING COMPANY
ASHLAND, OHIO

Entered as second class matter at Ashland, Ohio. Accepted for mailing
at special rate, section 1103, act of October 3, 1917. Authorized
September 3, 1928.

INTERESTING ITEMS

Muncie, Indiana. Brother Chester F. Zimmerman, pastor of the Third Brethren Church of Johnstown, Pennsylvania, is holding forth in a revival at Muncie, Indiana, with the meeting having begun on Sunday, April 12, and to close on Sunday, April 25. Brother E. D. Burnworth is pastor of the Muncie church.

Manteca, California. A note from Brother J. W. Platt says, "Have been sick a lot since June 30. Just got home from two months leave. Brother George H. Jones kindly took charge of our work for these two months. Brother C. C. Grisso is with us in Manteca in a revival meeting. Sorry I am not able to get into the work as I would love to. Pray for us."

Bryan, Ohio. Brother C. Y. Gilmer, in his final bulletin from the Bryan church, tells of some fine things that transpired in that church over the Easter time. Among these are: 1. The installation and dedication of a fine new illuminated Bulletin Board; 2. The rendering of a fine sacred dramatic Cantata, "On the Third Day," on Easter Sunday evening; and, 3. The receiving of additional appreciation gifts by the Gilmers from various organizations as parting tokens of esteem.

Among the speakers filling the pulpit in April were Brethren E. M. Riddle and M. V. Garrison the first two Sundays, with the Laymen's Public Service on the 18th and the S. M. M. Public Service to be held on the 25th.

Brother Gilmer informs us that his Huntington, Indiana, address will be 421 Webster Street, which is two blocks east of the Court House and one block north of the Church.

St. James, Maryland. Brother Henry Bates gives some interesting figures from his pastor's report which was given recently to the congregation. The following yearly averages are quoted: Sunday School—118; Morning worship—74; Evening Worship—46; Offering—$50.00. These figures show a slight increase over the last six months of the preceding year.

Cerro Gordo, Illinois. Brother C. E. Johnson tells us that the W. M. S. voted to purchase six dozen sets of plated silver ware for the use of the church.

We note also that the Young People of the church are using the "Biblical method" of raising money—tithing, to raise their Summer Camp apportionment. More power to them.

Ashland, Ohio. On Sunday evening, April 11, the College Sunday School Class which is taught by Dean and Mrs. M. A. Stuckey, presented the Ashland Church with a fine sound projector, and it was dedicated to the service of the Lord by the Pastor, Brother H. H. Rowsey and the congregation. The College Class is a fine group with very large attendance at the Sunday School and Sunday services, as well as at the Mid-week services of the church. The class had already presented the church with a fine outdoor illuminated bulletin board. Their services and loyalty are much appreciated by the local folks. Brother Joseph Shultz of Berlin, Pennsylvania, a pre-seminary student, is the class president.

Warsaw, Indiana. The editor had the privilege of having charge of the devotions in the morning service of his home church in Warsaw on Sunday, April 4. We found a fine audience and a growing work, which is in charge of Brother W. B. Brant, Gratis, Ohio. We received our first bulletin from Brother W. S. Crick since he has assumed the duties of the Gratis work. As usual it is full of material interesting to the local congregation. No doubt Brother Crick will soon report the close of the Pittsburgh work and the opening of the Gratis charge. We welcome Brother Crick to the Ohio District.

Washington, D. C. Brother Fairbanks tells of the baptism and reception of five members into the Washington church on Wednesday evening, March 24.

Canton, Ohio. We note that the pageant, "The Challenge of the Cross," was presented at the Canton church on Good Friday evening. The pageant was under the direction of Mrs. Kurt Beneleit. The offering of the evening was added to their choir robe fund.

(Continued on Page 10)

The Editor Thinks Aloud

Fred C. Vanator

HOW ABOUT SOME NOURISHMENT?

SKETCHING SOME Exchange papers that come to my desk each week, my eyes fell on the following paragraph which had been inserted as a "filler" in one of the columns. It read like this:

"What would become of that little new-born babe if it should be taken from its mother's arms, and thrown into the snow banks? And what will become of the little new-born child of God if it be ushered into a church where the atmosphere is lukewarm, and worldly, and indifferent to God's claims?"

I read it and re-read it, and

It set me to thinking!

Counting the church additions which we are reporting in this issue of the Evangelist, we have been informed that there have been 277 that have united with the church since the first of the year. And, of course, we do not have a complete list by any means. Some of these, we realize, came by letter, others by relation—but by far the major portion came by confession and baptism. The thought comes to me—how are they being fed and nourished? It seems to me that one of the greatest tasks of the church is to nourish these new Christians and help them to learn to walk personally in the footsteps of the Master. How well is it being done?

It goes without saying that a new-born convert cannot assimilate and digest what a "mature" Christian can. They need teaching and such teaching that will ground them in the fundamentals of the "faith once for all delivered to the saints." They cannot take it in large "doses" any more than a babe can take an adult portion. They must be fed slowly and carefully and upon the proper diet. They must be "warmed" in the proper attitude of a really friendly congregation; they must be carefully nourished and made to feel the importance of the step they have taken; they must be kept healthy by frequent periods of self-examination, brought about by real Gospel teaching; they must be guided in the pathway of righteousness by those who really "know" the Way; and they must be made to feel that they are, in truth, members of the family of God.

No, it isn't easy to do this, nor, in fact, is it easy to rear any child. But the burden of such a task is laid upon every church and the responsibility does not diminish as the years go by, for the larger the family grows, the more important the plan of nourishment. The Lord said, "Feed my lambs," and He meant it.

Think it over!

God has no time to make "Nobodies." Every person has at least one talent that is of real value.

"The Church without missions is a church without a Mission."

Business Manager's Corner

George S. Baer

Good List of 100% Churches

WE ARE PLEASED with the number of 100% churches we have to report this week. Following is a list of the churches with a number of subscribers reported by each:

	Number subscribers
Nappanee, Indiana	102
Vinco, Pennsylvania	112
Loree, Indiana	60
Mexico, Indiana	30
North Manchester, Indiana	165
Smithville, Ohio	63
Waterloo, Iowa	106

The Vinco list has been in for some little time, but due to space has prevented giving attention to this feature sooner. We appreciate the loyalty of these churches and believe they will be greatly blessed by keeping the church paper coming into every home of their membership. There is room for many more, and we pray that others may set about promptly to take their place on the Honor Roll. Write us, if we can help you.

Additional Publication Day Offerings

Uniontown, Pa., Second Church	$ 49.50
Center Chapel Church, Indiana	18.45
Bethlehem, Harrisonburg, Va.	6.00

Total to date (4-15-48)$4,423.10

Mother's Day and Children's Day

We have program booklets for these special days, as follows:

Standard Mother's Day Book, No. 3	25c
Standard Children's Day Book, No. 2	25c
Children's Day Helper, No. 47	30c

Smallest Bible and Finest Kind

Especially popular with pastors. It occupies no more pocket space than the ordinary New Testament, yet it contains the entire Bible, King James Version, finest morocco binding, Oxford India paper. Actual size 3 3/4 by 5 5/8. Price $8.50.

And don't forget to place your order for "gift" Bibles, at $4.00 single; special prices for quantities. Also beautiful White Bibles for weddings and gifts.

Books for Your Sunday School Library

Every church or Sunday School ought to have a library filled with the best helps for every teacher and every departmental officer, as well as for the superintendent and pastor. Following are some of the books in our stock which ought to be available to every Sunday School worker:

(Continued on Page 11)

Intercession At The Father's Right Hand

Rev. J. Milton Bowman

WALKING by some bushes one day, a man heard someone behind them saying the alphabet over and over again. Upon investigation, a child was found behind the bushes in an attitude of prayer. Quietly waiting until the voice ceased, the man inquired as to why the child kept repeating the alphabet. The answer was simple and confident, "I don't know how to pray, but Jesus knows how to put the letters together." In this simple childlike attitude toward our Lord, the child struck the key to true intercession.

Christ was made partaker of human nature—became inhumanized—that He might enter into truest fellowship with us and we with Him and the Father. As soon as the believer makes a real effort towards a consecrated life, that moment the evil one moves his fifth column in to take over the government of our hearts. We must be alert. There is a fearful conflict with the powers of darkness immediately. Divine providence has made adequate provision for our security, protection, peace of mind and heart, even while we are so confused by the complex problems facing us that we do not know how to turn nor how to pray. Christ, who died, rose, ascended into heaven and is now seated at the right hand of the Father, becomes a source of help to the Christian under trials. Our Lord's entire life on earth was one of absolute obedience to the will of God the Father and of love to Him and to man. These same characteristics ought to be ours—obedience to the will of God and love to Him and to others. By virtue of His death, resurrection, and eternal priesthood, He became worthy to be our Intercessor and thus becomes a channel for blessing from God. Let us look then at the meaning of intercession.

Intercession is a pleading or entreating in behalf of another. It has within it the idea of hitting upon, or to hit the mark, which is the exact opposite of the translation for sin, meaning to miss the mark. Christ is at the right hand of the Father, having gone there for the express purpose of making intercession for us. He makes the claims necessary for our holiness even while making provision for our shortcomings. We often sin and come short of His glory. We are often perplexed, even as Paul was, concerning his thorn in the flesh, not knowing how to pray about it. Perhaps "we have not, because we ask amiss" or for a selfish motive. What shall we do? If we have sinned, let us confess our sins and have the assurance of His faithfulness, justice, forgiveness, and cleansing.

If we do not know what to pray for—start praying! Even though we are uncertain what we exactly want, the inner longing for something spiritual is not useless. Pray for what we think we need. Start praying! If it is a sincere desire of a believer's heart, like the child's prayer of the alphabet, divine intercession will put it together and give you the answer.

The Holy Spirit also assists our weaknesses. Since our prayers are sometimes very vague and we often do not know how to pray as we ought, the Spirit pleads for us with sighs that are beyond words. Then Christ, seated at the right hand of the Father, who searches the human heart, takes over. He knows what is in the mind of the Spirit who dwells in us, and likewise knows the will of the Father. Our prayers by means of the two intercessors, Christ and the Holy Spirit, are harmonized according to the Father's will. Christ's pleading and entreating for us hits the mark where we have missed it. He presents the merit of His sacrifice once offered for us reconciling us with the Father. The Father is the Eternal Source of all things; the Great Planner of the Universe. He, then, sends down the answer to our petitions.

Here we see the secret of how a believer though weak, may gain power by contact with the Infinite. Let him enter his closet, close the door, start praying, even though he is not quite sure of himself. He is able to get into the spiritual groove which is so essential to successful Christian living. Often the whole personality has been transformed from that of a weakling into that of a spiritual giant. One who has been a failure can go from strength to strength and victory to victory. We must be certain that we are truly sincere in our prayers. Remember that Christ accomplished His mission while on earth. Salvation began in His atoning death; it is continued in the resurrection and intercession. We have an Ever-living High Priest at God's right hand continually making intercession for us, who is liable to save to the uttermost—completely.

It is a perfect circle from human to the divine and back again. We pray, perhaps in weakness; the Holy Spirit who indwells our hearts groans out our needs. Christ understands both the mind of the Spirit and the will of the Father. By virtue of the price He paid for us in the sacrifice of Himself, He has a right to plead our cause to the Father. Since He is the Source of all things, according to His riches in glory, the Father then supplies our needs; sends the answer to us. It is a perfect plan. In it we see the abiding assurance of the perfect completeness of Christ's intercessory work for us and in us. "Who shall lay anything to the charge of God's elect? It is God that justifieth. Who is he that condemneth? It is Christ that died, yea rather, that is risen again, who is even at the right hand of God, who also maketh intercession for us." Romans 8:33, 34.

—Nappanee, Indiana.

Are You a Worshipper?

WHAT IS WORSHIP? As the Christian uses the word, it is WORTH-SHIP—the recognition of the value of God to our lives. The desire to worship is instinctive; one of the great philosophers says that man is incurably religious; men stifle the instinct, but not without loss. One of the best ways in which we can understand what true worship of God is, is to read over the great hymns which have been the expression of the worshipping hearts of the men of all ages.

Do men need worship? Worship is the true foundation of character. When the heart of a man is fixed upon God, God is moulding that man. That is the real source of spiritual power. "They that wait upon the Lord shall renew their strength." Worship is the instinctive recognition of our divine kinship. It is the conscious point of contact between the human and the divine. There is no question that we can and that many men do get along without it; but by so doing they accept for themselves a narrow limitation measured by their own small human resources. It is the man who keeps his conscious point of contact with the Divine who has back of all his human power the resources of the untold riches of the Spirit of God.

Private prayer and meditation are the mark and sign of those deep-running lives who meditate to the world the real Spirit of God. In public worship the results experienced are usually directly commensurate with the amount of effort expended. The person who sits passively through a service without active participation of spirit, voice, or mind will derive from it relatively small benefit. He, on the other hand, who participates fully in song, reading, personal prayer and in attentive and intelligent apprehension of the purpose and spirit of the hour, will not fail to find in such a service, however poorly conducted it may be, that inspiration and stimulus which is characteristic of the moving of the Spirit of God in the souls of men.

Public worship, rightly planned and conducted should be, for those who participate in it, the re-creation of standards and ideals; it should be the reinterpretation of divine truth to make it applicable to the problems and effective under the conditions of the passing hour. There is no desire to vindicate what may at times seem like a very imperfect performance of that task; yet it is often true that when a given individual feels no response whatever to the attempt to interpret God in terms of the thought of men, there is some obstruction in his own attitude or state of mind which prevents him from entering sympathetically into that atmosphere of true worship, through which most easily the greatest gifts of the Spirit of God are mediated to the human soul. Many a man or woman fails ever really to enter into worship for lack of that adequate personal preparation which makes possible the point of contact where the divine and the human seem to find their place of meeting. Those who come sincerely seeking, and knowing what to seek usually find. Not all find that moment of Divine communion at the same time or in the same way; an exercise that is meaningless to one may be the very gate of the temple to another. In some moods one of the great hymns or anthems will establish that contact with the Divine, when all spoken words fall flat. Through the ministry of music, if it is worthy and sincere, one may appropriate these historic expressions of the lyric faith of the ages, these wonderful harmonies in which men through the years have poured out their very souls in aspiration.

To another it may be that the symbolic act of the consecration of the material things to the service of God is the very point where he feels himself directly and concretely brought into touch with the Divine purpose, accepted as an instrument of the divine will. To many that is the act of worship most easily grasped, most fully entered into, most completely the real test of real devotion unto God.

For others the practice of the moment of prayer as one enters the sanctuary is the place of meeting where the human soul turns itself toward God and looks into His face. In that moment one lays down the burden that has been upon the mind; in that moment one breathes the prayer of repentance, and in the consciousness of answering forgiveness enters with all the heart into the hour of worship. It is that moment of preparatory prayer which eliminates unworthy thoughts and secures in the heart, and, so in the room, the atmosphere of reverence. It is that prayer which is most truly answered by the presence of God. It is not too much to say that upon that prayer depends much of the service which is to follow. Certain it is that great preaching never comes in the presence of a congregation unprepared—and it never will. No mere human instrument is strong enough to do such work as that alone. It is a unusual affair and if the people in the pews are not in a receptive mood, the Spirit of God will not speak unto them through their preacher, be he small or great.

It is the atmosphere which determines the presence or the absence of that divine element which transforms a crowd into a congregation. It is that which causes us to feel justified in setting aside from all secular use great and beautiful buildings for the worship of our God. Exponents of efficiency rail at the church's maintenance of expensive plants for use one day in seven. But they do not realize that the place wherein we worship God can never be used for anything else. Even the uses of a Church School or a "popular" evening service can tend to diminish in our hearts that deep and fitting reverence which alone can make the church the consecrated meeting-place of the heart of man with the Spirit of God. Many churches must, of course, use the audience room for other purposes than that of worship; but when that is done, there is need that every person who enters that room at the hour of prayer shall bend all the powers of the soul to making that hour instinct with reverence, an atmosphere where the Spirit of God may enter in unhindered.

So, and so only, will man awaken to the truth that it is worship that the spirit of man communes with God; and that it is through such communion that there comes upon the soul that sense of rest and peace, of attainment and mastery, which is the condition of the highest and the most effective living. And so God seeks the worship of loving hearts that He in turn may be able to fill the souls of men by the inspiration of His Holy Spirit with that mighty power which we call the love of God.—Selected.

Tentative Ohio District Conference Program

To be held at The Canton Brethren Church

(Seventh Street and Gibbs Avenue, N. E.)

June 14 to 17, 1948

The Program

Conference Theme: "Building The Church"

Conference Text: "... Upon this rock I will build My Church; and the gates of Hell shall not prevail against it." (Matthew 16:18). "For we are laborers together with God: ye are God's husbandry, ye are God's building." (I Corinthians 3:9.)

Monday afternoon, June 14

- 4:00 Registration and Assembly
- 7:30 Song Service H. E. Eppley
- Scripture and Prayer W. S. Crick
- Special Music Canton Choir
- 8:00 Sermon—"The First Century Church"
John T. Byler
- Music
- 8:40 Missionary Lecture, with Pictures .. E. M. Riddle

Tuesday morning, June 15

- 8:30 Simultaneous Meetings:
 - Ministerium
 - Woman's Missionary Society
 - Laymen
 - Brotherhood
- 9:30 Song Service H. E. Eppley
- Conference Devotions A. E. Whitted
- Address of Welcome F. E. Clapper
- Ministerial Delegate Response W. C. Berkshire
- Lay Delegate Response J. E. Stookey
- 10:00 Moderator's Address J. G. Dodds

- 10:40 Music
- Report of Credential Committee
- Election of Committee on Committees
- 11:00 Bible Lecture S. M. Whetstone
- 12:00 Adjournment—Dinner

Tuesday afternoon

- 1:30 Song Service H. E. Eppley
- Devotions
- Business Session:
- Reports:
 - Credential Committees
 - Committee on Committees
 - Treasurer
 - Statistician E. J. Beekley
 - Goals E. J. Beekley
 - Ashland College and Seminary E. M. Riddle
 - Brethren Publishing Company .. George S. Baer
- 3:00 Woman's Missionary Society Session
- Ohio District Mission Board Meeting
- Committee Meetings

- 5:30 Supper

Tuesday evening

- 7:30 Song Service H. E. Eppley
- Scripture and Prayer George Hagenbuck
- Inspirational Talk: "The Zealous Church"
Charles Munson
- 8:10 Announcements and Offering
- Sermon—"The Tithing Church" F. C. Vanator
- Playlet—"Tight or Tithers" Akron W. M. S.
- Adjournment

Wednesday morning, June 16

- 8:30 Simultaneous Sessions
- 9:30 Song ServiceH. E. Eppley
- Conference DevotionsE. J. Black
- Business Session:
- Minutes of the Secretary
- Committee Reports
- Ministerial Examining Board Report
- Ashland College Trustees
- A. E. Schwab, Harvey Amstutz
- Election of 1948-1949 Conference Officers
- 11:00 Address—"The Successful Church"..H. H. Rowsey
- 12:00 Adjournment—Dinner

Wednesday afternoon

- 1:30 Song ServiceH. E. Eppley
- Devotions
- "Building the Church"—A Panel Discussion by the
- Ministerium, W. C. Berkshire, Chairman
- 2:15 District Mission Board Session
- Summer CampsL. E. Lindower
- 3:00 Woman's Missionary Society Public Session
- Installation of W. M. S. Officers
- 5:30 Supper

Wednesday evening

- 7:30 Song ServiceH. E. Eppley
- Devotions: Subject: "The Missionary Church"
- D. R. Murray
- Music
- Announcements and Offering
- 8:00 Sermon—"The Soul Winning Church" Floyd Sibert
- 8:40 Laymen's Session—"Laymen as Soul Winners"
- Glenn L. Clayton in charge

Thursday morning, June 17

- 8:30 Song ServiceH. E. Eppley
- Conference DevotionsVernon D. Grisso
- Business Session:
- Committee Reports
- Unfinished Business
- Reading of Minutes
- 9:30 Charge to the District: "The Working Church"
- E. J. Beekley
- Installation of District Officers
- Adjournment of 1948 Conference

WASTING TIME

If a man were so foolish as to throw a valuable piece of money into a pit, or into the sea, he would not literally throw away anything but the metal; but virtually he would throw away whatever best thing it would have purchased as bread, clothing, refreshments, medicine for the sick, instructive books, etc. Even so, a person wasting time throws away, not only the time itself, but the opportunities and privileges which that time represents.—John Foster.

Lips telling out the Gospel with clear trumpet tones and the Light of the KNOWLEDGE OF GOD shining out of a broken heart, and CHRIST the WORD OF GOD uplifted, these are the crying needs of today.

Spiritual Meditations

Rev. Dyoll Belote

TIME IS AGAINST THE WRONG

"If God be for us, who can be against us?"—Romans 8:3b.

PATIENT FAITH is needed by those who would battle for the right. No great reforms have ever been won in a day. It seems to be a characteristic of reform movements that too many times the exponents thereof, if their first skirmish with their opponent is lost they lose heart and quit trying. The thought is aptly illustrated in the story told of Martin Luther. On one occasion the great Reformer had become discouraged and was having a real case of the "Blues." The next morning his wife came to breakfast all dressed in black. The minister could not understand and asked the cause of the somber regalia. "Why, hadn't you heard?" answered Mrs. Luther, "God is dead!" Doctor Luther caught the rebuke and thanked his wife for her strategy in teaching him the lesson he needed to learn. Two great English statesmen have stressed this necessity for patience in Christian enterprise, by illustrations from current happenings of their day.

William Gladstone, the militant English statesman, once fought a losing encounter in an effort to put across a reform movement. His enemies gloated over the great man in their victory. Gladstone's only answer was, "Gentlemen, time is against you!"

Sir Sidney Smith was another Englishman who could not be dismayed by a seeming defeat for his reform measures. Writing about the matter he said: "I do not mean to be disrespectful, but the attempt of the Lords to stop the progress of reform reminds me very forcibly of the great storm of Sidmouth, and of the conduct of the excellent Mrs. Partington on the occasion. In the midst of this sublime and terrible storm, Dame Partington, who lived upon the beach, was seen at the door of her house, with her mop, squeezing out the sea water, and vigorously pushing back the Atlantic Ocean. The Atlantic was aroused; Mrs. Partington's spirit was up; but I need not tell you the contest was unequal. The Atlantic Ocean beat Mrs. Partington. Gentlemen (speaking to his co-laborers) be at your ease—be quiet and steady. You will beat Mrs. Partington."

Such is the faith that makes men know that they have chosen the side of the right. Time will not erase the beliefs of such; it will bring them to pass.

—Hagerstown, Maryland.

"The message of the Bible is a world message; it is addressed to all people regardless of race, color, or condition; it thinks of earth's millions as members of one human family and prospective members of the family of God; it is the inspiration for all the thinking of men of all time who have dreamed of democracy in political and social relationships; it is universal in contemplation."—J. E. Lambkin in "The Baptist Training Union Magazine."

Help Brethren Youth Look Forward With Christ

Offering
May 16
1948

Approved by The 1947 General Conference

Dr. W. Robert Smith

MEET OUR YOUTH DIRECTOR

Brother Charles Munson was willing to give up a very successful student pastorate in two of our good churches, to accept the full-time position as Director of Brethren Youth. He will be available to keep in constant contact with all Brethren young people, especially those in our College and Seminary, and help them with their problems and activities. "Charlie" is very well liked by every one of us and we know that he is going to be fully led of the Lord in his great ministry.

EVERY CHURCH AND INDIVIDUAL IS REQUESTED TO CONTRIBUTE TO THE $7,500.00 NEEDED TO BE USED FOR:

1. Youth Director's salary and expense in visiting churches; 2. General Conference program for young people; 3. Crusaders' and Ambassadors' work and awards; 4. Young People's Magazine.

Brethren YOUTH, INC., coordinates and promotes the organizations and activities of young people in the Brethren Church. It has four major goals and objectives for young people:

1. A personal walk with Christ daily; 2. A knowledge of the advantage of being Brethren; 3. A vital Bible study; 4. A witness for Christ at home and abroad.

MEET THE BOARD

Ruth L. Clapper, Editor, and Director of Crusaders and Ambassadors.

Harvey Amstutz, Associate Editor, and President of the Board.

Charles Munson, Director of Brethren Youth.

Gilbert Dodds, Evangelism.

Virgil Meyer, Representative of the Brotherhood, and Director of General Conference Youth Program.

Lois Coleman, Representative of Christian Endeavor.

Leslie E. Lindower, Representative of Sunday School, and Treasurer of the Board.

J. Milton Bowman, Representative of Mission Board, and Vice President of the Board.

Paul Clapper, President of Brethren Youth, Inc.

MEET OUR CONFERENCE SPEAKER

Dr. W. Robert Smith, the young, challenging professor from the Seminary in Dubuque, Iowa, will again be on hand for the Young People's Conference in August on Ashland College Campus. He is returning because of the insistence of the young people who enjoyed his presence so much last year. We know he will again make a very worthwhile contribution to Brethren Youth.

Charles Munson

Your College, Your Church and You

Material from The College Publicity Office

(Herewith is presented the first of series of articles about your college. With Ashland becoming more and more the center of the denomination, it becomes imperative that every Brethren know his college, its purposes and its ideals. The series which will continue indefinitely, will deal with all phases of Ashland College. The following is an excerpt from the new issue of the Ashland College catalog. Suggestions will be welcomed as to what phases of Ashland are to be covered.—Art Petit, Director of Public Relations.)

FOR SOME YEARS, the philosophy and program of Ashland College have been incorporated in what has become widely known as the Ashland Plan. The Ashland Plan's distinctive characteristics are three-fold: first, an elaborate program of individual analysis, counselling and guidance; second, vocational participation for each student; and third, systematic planning for the complete and balanced growth of each student. The college administration and the faculty believe that any educational institution can perform a better service if its educational philosophy be clearly and simply formulated, and its program of courses and activities be organized in accordance with the general guiding principles of that philosophy. Furthermore, the goals and objectives of the College arise directly from its educational philosophy, and will be pursued by means which are in accordance with that philosophy.

The nature of the Ashland College program is described in the following three sections:

I. The Basic Principles of Ashland's Educational Philosophy

The administration and the faculty of Ashland College believe that the characteristic features of their educational philosophy can be expressed in four fundamental principles:

1. Education should be conceived as a continuous process of personal growth and development.

The traditional conception of education as the accumulation of information, the development of skills, and the earning of credit hours toward a diploma is obviously superficial and mechanical. This is not to discredit the very real values of facts and skills, nor to propose that colleges should abandon the granting of credits and degrees. Rather, it is a shift of emphasis to the only criterion by which the success of an educational program can finally be measured, namely: the amount and character of change produced in individual students.

2. The educational process must recognize and provide for those native differences among students which lead to variations in rates and levels of growth.

Large enrollments, democracy's emphasis on equality of opportunity, and standardized methods of mass production have tended to obscure this principle in American education. Educational methods have been geared to the mythical "average" or "typical" student, at the expense of students at both extremes of native ability. The less gifted have been neglected and disheartened, and the more gifted have not been stimulated, but have been content with mediocrity.

For the individual student, education has failed in its obligations unless maximum potential capacities for service and self-realization have been developed.

3. Education must also recognize and provide for student differences growing out of varied cultural experiences and backgrounds.

Even among students with approximately similar native abilities, the colleges have found a very wide range of difference in ability to do college work. Pre-college educational, industrial, social, religious, and family backgrounds all vary from excellent to extremely inadequate. The individual student's college program must be planned and evaluated in terms of all the factors in his previous experience.

4. The educational process must be conceived and planned as embodying the individual's total experience, both within and outside the control and direction of the college. Failure to consider the various non-school aspects of education—the many informal experiences which affect individual growth and development—has led to duplication, nullifying and even contradicting much that informal education has tried to accomplish.

So far as they can be discovered and analyzed, all the agencies and influences affecting the individual student's growth and development must be taken into account, utilized, or compensated for in planning his college experience. The point of view of the cloister and ivory tower has prevailed too long in college circles.

(To be continued)

Ashland College News Letter

By Arthur Petit

WITH THE coming of spring and the consequent easing off of the pressure on the Public Relations Office, it is hoped that this column may again be prepared weekly. Mrs. George Guiley is now full time secretary in the Public Relations Office, handling details while the writer is busy visiting high schools and churches in the interest of next year's freshman class.

The A Cappella Choir has returned from the most successful trip in the history of the college. In eight days, it sang to over 2400 people in eight churches. In two cities, Hagerstown, Md., and Washington, D. C., they performed in the Church of the Brethren churches. In every case the Churches were filled, in many cases even to opening all of the Sunday School rooms. The outstanding audience was in Johnstown First Church where almost 500 people acclaimed the choir as among the best ever to appear in that city. The trip was plagued continuously by transportation difficulties. In all, five busses were used consecutively on the trip. Every church concert was met despite these difficulties, but one high school concert, Hagerstown, had to be canceled.

A number of members of the college staff attended the meeting of the Ohio College Association last week. Included were President Bixler, Dean George Guiley, Dean Mildred Furry, Professor Lindower and the writer.

Two members of the faculty, Dr. Maurice Newkirk and Dr. Paul Saleste was elevated in faculty rank, the former to Associate Professor and the latter to full Professor when the board of trustees met early in April. New Members elected to the board at that time included Frank Clapper to fill the unexpired term of C. Y. Gilmer, Gus Schmeidt and Harold Wolfe from California, Wilbur Thomas from Midwest, Myron Bloom from Southeast, Floyd Benshoff from Pennsylvania, and Garber Drushal and Herbert Rowsey from the Alumni Association. Myron Kem was reelected president of the board, Bert Hodge vice president and Harvey Amstutz, Secretary.

While it will undoubtedly be reported more fully elsewhere, it is well worth noting that the campus received a great stimulation from the gathering of ministers and Christian workers who attended this very important institute. The attendance and interest was much greater than ever before.

The May Queen

Plans are going forward to make May Day, May 15, one of the most memorable occasions on the campus. Miss Garnet Miller, niece of the late Clifford Mast of Sterling, Ohio, is May Queen. The coronation will be at one o'clock this year with other events following in order, baseball game, dinner and play. The A Cappella Choir will sing in the First Brethren Church on Sunday morning. The afternoon pageant will be entitled "Tales from Aesop" and the evening play is "The Little Foxes." Dinner at the Ashland High School Cafeteria is by reservation only. All reservations should be sent to the Alumni Office, Ashland College, immediately.

Nobody ever made a law that will prevent a man from making a fool of himself.

We are obliged to admit there is much majoring in "barkology"—too much noisy, fussy preaching.

The world is full of unsuccessful men who spend their lives letting empty buckets down into empty wells.

The big things in life are never done by fussy people.

Interesting Items

(Continued from Page 2)

Louisville, Ohio. Brother John T. Byler, pastor of the Louisville church, tells us that there was a gain of five in the Sunday School average for February over January, and a gain of twelve in the morning worship service over the same period.

Flowers. A note from Welker K. Rutt of the Fairhaven, Ohio, church bears testimony to the value of the Evangelist, telling of the great enjoyment the magazine has been in his life and that of his father, who, not now being able to read for himself any longer, must depend upon his son to relay the church news to him, which he does each week. Brother C. E. Johnson of Cerro Gordo also throws a bouquet for the set up of the paper. Others also have been kind in their words of appreciation. The editor says, "Thank you."

Dayton, Ohio. Word from Brother S. M. Whetstone, who recently assumed the pastorate of the Dayton Hillcrest church, tells us that his new address is 32 Marie Street, Dayton, Ohio, and that his phone number is Randolph 3480.

Pittsburgh, Pennsylvania. We note that the redecoration of the interior of the Pittsburgh church was begun shortly after Easter.

A farewell "Valedictory Party" was tendered Brother Crick and family on Thursday evening, March 25. A brief program was rendered.

Milledgeville, Illinois. Brother D. C. White reports the reception of fifteen members as a result of their recent meeting—thirteen by baptism and two by letter.

Nappanee, Indiana. Brother J. M. Bowman states that the Easter attendance was as follows: Sunrise Service—175; Sunday School—450. He also tells us that eight were received by baptism.

Masontown, Pennsylvania. Brother Ankrum says that the High School Baccalaureate services will be held in our church on May 16, with Brother Ankrum as the speaker.

The Masontown church will observe the Holy Communion on Sunday night, May 23 at 7:30 o'clock.

Smithville, Ohio. The Community Three Hour Good Friday service was held in our church this year. Brother Grisso reports a fine service with the church well filled.

Flora, Indiana. The W. M. S. held their Public Service on Sunday, April 4, with Mrs. Harland Smith, former missionary to China, as guest speaker.

Vinco, Pennsylvania. Brother W. S. Benshoff says in his bulletin of March 28, "After working on the excavation of the church addition through most of last Friday, operations were stopped by rain until Thursday of this week. With a shovel, and a 'bull dozer' and four trucks hauling the dirt, the foundation is now completely excavated."

Vital statistics. Again we bring a summary of the church additions since our last report. Of course you realize this cannot be a complete report, since we do not have all the facts and figures from all our churches. Nevertheless it is very interesting.

Church	No. received
Elkhart, Indiana	4
South Bend, Indiana	46
Akron, Ohio	1
Louisville, Ohio	7
Mansfield, Ohio	8
Ardmore, Indiana	4
Peru, Indiana	7
Washington, D. C.	5
Ashland, Ohio	5
Vandergrift, Pennsylvania	27
Smithville, Ohio	8
Milledgeville, Illinois	15
Nappanee, Indiana	8

Business Manager's Corner

(Continued from page 3)

"Special Days in the Church School," $2.00; "How to Lead a Bible School," $1.25; "This Business of teaching," 20c; "How Would Jesus Teach," 50c; "Building a Successful Bible Class," 25c; "All About the Sunday School," $1.75; "Learning in a Nursery Class," $1.50; "Worship Services and Programs for Beginners," $1.50; "Junior Worship Materials," $1.50; "Stories for Junior Worship," $1.00; "Intermediate Worship Services," $1.75; "Guiding Intermediates in Worship," $1.75; "Worship Programs for Intermediates," $1.75; "Four-Minute Talks for Superintendents," $1.00; "More Four-Minute Talks," $1.00; "Primary Worship Services," $1.00; Cradle Roll Lessons," $1.50; "New Testament Stories Dramatized," $1.25; "Phunology," $1.75; "The Cokesbury Game Book," $1.75.

Those Publication Day Reports That Have Not Arrived

We want to make a 100% report on the Publication Day Offering. Will you help us by sending in your offering? And your church should have the credit of giving. Individual gifts also are welcome. Thanks to all.

Press Fund Reports will soon start in this Corner.

THERE WILL BE LOSS, not gain, unless laymen sense the challenge of their new leadership and stand ready to pay the price in rigorous discipline. They must be willing to give time to Bible study, to the study of the world program of the church. They must restudy church administration; they must read the significant religious books and the great religious journals. They must make ready for magnificent leadership in a day which demands of them the very impossible. Only at such a price will this modern laymen's movement be a blessing to the church.

"Our thanksgiving so often stops short of acknowledging gratitude to the ultimate Giver. May this season remind us of our dependence on God and lead us to express our thanksgiving through generosity of spirit, word, and deed."—William J. Fallis in "The Teacher."

Bits of Brethren History

Information of Interest

By H. C. Funderburg

(These articles are printed just as they come from the pen of Brother Funderburg.)

"CONESTAGO"

THERE IS a place in Lancaster County, Pennsylvania, called Conestago. In the vicinity there were several members of the Tunker Church: Conrad Beisel, Veronica Frederick, Henry Hoen and wife, John Moyer and wife, and Joseph Shaffer. On the twelfth of November, 1724, they were organized into a church (with the name Conestago) by Elder Peter Becker. At this time Conral Beisel was chosen to be their minister.

Soon after the organization, Sigmond Landert and wife were received by baptism. At first they held their meetings on Mill Creek, but soon after in Earl Township, at the house of Peter Nageley. At this place they held their meetings for seven years.

Conrad Beisel was the principal minister from 1728 till 1734. There was much friction and confusion in this congregation. Beisel began to imbibe some strange views, and they grew so strong that he withdrew fellowship from the Brethren and a number of members went with him. After the withdrawal, the remaining members were ministered to by Elder Peter Becker, until September 29, 1734. On this day there was a reorganization of the congregation with Michael Frantz, "minister," as their leader.

This was effected by a somewhat novel method of working. They were assembled in a council meeting in a barn. Brother Frantz laid a rail on the floor. One side of the rail he called "the right side"; and the other side the left. He then solicited those who would remain with the Brethren and constitute the reorganized church, to step to the right side, he leading the way. He then asked all who wished to follow Beisel to step on the left side. Thus there was a friendly division.

The following members constituted the new body: Michael Frantz—minister, John Frantz, Samuel Good, John Landis, Michael P. Frantz, Emick and George Reyer, Philip Rowland, Henry Sneider, Rant Woolf, and others whose names are not given. Immediately after there was an encouraging revival with sixteen additions. Brother Frantz was ordained in 1735 and died in 1748, being succeeded by Elder Michel Pfoutz, who served until 1763. Then Elder Jacob Sontag was ordained.

ALCOHOL—THE ILLUSION

The promises which John Barleycorn makes entices the beginner to reach for his first drink. Unfortunately, these promises are nothing but illusions, for, in reality, what the drunkard finally manages to achieve is nothing short of sordidness; most of the sordidness is brought on innocent victims—the drunkard's family.

We have on the positive side of wondrous grace the "happiness of love": the "happiness of purity" and the "happiness of His pleasure."

CHRISTIAN ENDEAVOR TOPIC

W. St. Clair Benshoff, Topic Editor

"Topics copyrighted by the International Society of Christian Endeavor.
Used by permission."

Topic for May 2, 1948

CONSIDER A FULL-TIME CHRISTIAN VOCATION
(Vocations Day)

Scripture: Matthew 18:19, 20; Ephesians 4:1-7, 11-16

For The Leader

THIS IS THE second in a series of topics on Vocations, or life's work. Vocation means a particular job or profession which you follow through life. A bricklayer follows bricklaying as his vocation. So does a minister or a teacher follow their profession. It is reasonable to suppose that in the next few years each of us will be choosing some job for our life's work. What will that be? We venture to guess that it will be a work in which you have been influenced by some one else. A friend of yours may have been a good salesman. So you like the friend, you get interested in his work, and you choose that work yourself. Here then is a reminder that we should look to those professions which will develop and use the very best that is in us. An excellent speaker and lover of people would be wasting his talents as a light house keeper or radio transmitter engineer. Better that he be a minister. Our effort tonight is in the direction of urging you to choose Christian vocations. There are many of them.

DISCUSSION

1. CAN GOD USE YOU? We heard once of a young man who chose the ministry because he was looking for a job in which he wouldn't have to work too hard. Pure folly, for two reasons. First, there is plenty of hard work in the ministry, calling for the best that is in a man. Second, for any man to choose the ministry without first having been called of God is sheer insanity. Ministers are ordained to be God's ministers and servants. If such a person is not called of God, failure will result. Often times, though, we could be used in a special Christian work but for one reason. The reason being that God cannot use us. He cannot use us because we are not yielded to Him. Too much of personal ambition, sin, and "walking afar off" keeps us from being a fit vessel for His service. God uses earthen vessels to do His will, but those vessels must be clean. If we want to make our vocation Christian we must first of all have our lives cleansed by Him.

2. FULL TIME VOCATIONS FOR CHRIST. Topmost on the list is the ministry and the mission field. In many ways, they are sacrificial positions. A young man who accepts either, as the call from the Lord, must pull in his belt, lower his sights from the best of this world's goods, and center his life on the blessings which are far more numerous than material possessions. But the Lord can truly use such a man to bring blessings to many. And years of experience will teach the young minister that there are many returns which cannot be classified in dollars and cents. A man who devotes his life to serving others will find genuine happiness and eternal reward. Yet, too, the servant is worthy of his hire, in which case our churches are doing better than years ago. If we truly serve Christ in the ministry He will care for us. Let's give it much consideration as a vocation.

3. THE UNSUNG HEROINE'S PART. Perhaps the greatest phase of Christian service is filled by that one whom we commonly call "the preacher's wife." Men of the church willingly accept the minister, his sermons, and his work among them. But the women are vitally concerned as to the nature and ability of that effeminate creature known as the preacher's wife. She must be a person of much tact and judgment, for she will hear things which would break the spirit of her husband if he were to hear them. She must, in a sense, atone for his blunderings when she meets the ladies in their meetings. She must accept his moods, his fits, his gloatings. She must encourage him when he is down in the dumps, and she must knock him out of the clouds when he feels he's done pretty good. In other words, a good minister's wife is a God-send, and truly a help meet. Blessed are we who are so blest. It is a noble attainment for any consecrated, pure living, capable young woman.

4. OTHER CHRISTIAN VOCATIONS. Musicians, Bible teachers, Religious education teachers, field workers, children's group teachers, selling religious books, etc., are a few. In short, any work in which we go ahead in faith and trust in God for daily bread in service to Him can be called a Christian vocation. The world needs many of these today. From your group may come those who will be serving in these fields tomorrow. Pray definitely that God can use you in such a work.

QUESTIONS FOR DISCUSSION

1. What qualities do you think a young man should have in order to become a minister?
2. What do you think our college and seminary should teach our young men to make them more effective as ministers?
3. What qualities do you think a young woman should have in order to make a good minister's wife?
4. How can we know for sure whether or not we have had a call for some special Christian work?

SPECIAL ANNOUNCEMENT

By the time you read this, some one in your society, your pastor or officer, should have received a special publication called "Brethren Christian Endeavor Worship Programs." They are self-explanatory, but in case you did not receive a copy, drop a card to your topic editor, Box 152, Rt. 1, Conemaugh, Pa., and you will receive one by return mail. This opus is sent to society officers of which we have record to help with your devotional programs. They constitute a full and complete worship program for each Sunday in May for young people's groups. Your response and use of these will determine succeeding issues. We shall continue to use this Brethren Evangelist page for discussion and questions so that each member of your society might possess a copy. The worship programs are supplied extra to all who want them. If you have not received a copy of the May issue, write for yours today. If your officers did not receive a copy, ask your pastor about it. Yours for better Christian Endeavor.

Prayer Meeting Topic

Contributed by Rev. C. Y. Gilmer

Helps for Christian Living

"Sin is the living worm, the lasting fire;
Hell soon would lose its heat could sin expire.
Better sinless in Hell than to be where Heaven is and be found a sinner there.

"One sinless, with infernals might do well,
But sin would make of Heaven a very Hell.
Fools make a mock of sin, will not believe
It carries such a dagger in its sleeve.

"How can it be, say they, that such a thing
So full of sweetness ere should wear a sting?
They know not that it is the very spell
Of sin to make men laugh themselves to Hell."

—John Bunyan.

"SHOW MY PEOPLE THEIR TRANSGRESSIONS"

Scripture: Isaiah 58:1; 56:10; 1 Tim. 5:20; 2 Tim. 4:2;
Titus 1:13; Jer. 6:13, 14.

Hymns: "Yield Not to Temptation," "My Soul, Be On Thy Guard"

Leader's Petition

Seed Thought Provokers:

TO TEACH salvation without regeneration, faith without repentance, Heaven without Hell, will bring no conviction, repentance or renunciation of a sinful world. Love and kindness of heart demands preachers to have the courage of conviction to preach hard against sin. Jesus said, "Blessed is he who is not offended in Me." None of us are nicer than Jesus Christ who taught so plainly against sin. It is the duty of all in authority, parents, teachers, and the government to say "don't" to all who would violate God's commands. No preacher is true to his God and his Bible, his ordination vows and charge, yea, his own soul, who does not preach what the Bible plainly says about sin and its penalty. Even the moral conscience of unsaved and also heathen people is against sin!

God hates sin, and His people must be against sin. To compromise with sin as did Lot in Sodom by failing to rebuke and breaking with sinful society and by calling the wicked his "brethren" is to lose the respect of a lost world (2 Peter 2:7,8; Gen. 19:7). The lost have no confidence in that kind of Christianity that tolerates sin. When hardened sinners want to get right with God they go to honest Christians who oppose sin for instruction. They have no confidence in those who pretend to be for God but are not against the devil and his works.

Law should be preached as well as grace (Gal. 3:24; 2 Tim. 3:16, 17). Law brings us the knowledge of sin and the need of a Saviour. To preach God's love and say nothing about His wrath is to mutilate both Testaments. Honesty demands the teaching of condemnation as the occasion for forgiveness (Rom. 6:23; John 3:18, 36; Isa. 55:7).

A preacher is, like Jonah, under God's orders to preach against sin, and must not preach as he pleases (Jonah 1:2; 3:1, 2; 1 Tim. 5:20; Titus 1:10, 11). Read these samples of Old Testament preaching: Isa. 1:2-15; 3:18-23; 5:11, 14; 28:7, 17, 18. Now read a sample of New Testament preaching: Matt. 3:7, 8; 14:4; 23:13-29; Acts 2:23; 5:1-11; 13:10; Gal. 2:11.

John the Baptist, the forerunner of Christ, was a gospel preacher (Mark 1:1). He was a preacher of grace, teaching salvation by faith (John 3:36). His preaching pleased Jesus Who said of him: "Verily I say unto you, Among them that are born of women there hath not risen a greater than John the Baptist" (Matt. 11:11). Jesus also used John's favorite text: "Repent for the kingdom of Heaven is at hand" (Matt. 4:17). Paul preached against particular sins (Acts 19:19) and so did Jesus in His seven woes against the Pharisees. The lovely Jesus preached sin, judgment and Hell in every sermon as He called on men to repent. Let us hate our own sins and penitently forsake them for Jesus' sake.

COMMENTS

On The Sunday School Lesson

by The Editor

Lesson for May 2, 1948

WHAT MAKES A REAL LEADER?

Lesson: Nehemiah 4:1-6, 13-14, 21-23; 6:15-16

LET US LEARN first of all that any work requires a leader, and that any good work will be opposed by the forces of evil. By realizing these facts we may the more easily understand the force of our lesson.

There are three words which may be used to characterize our lesson thought: 1. "Work"; 2. "Cooperation"; and 3. "Fearlessness."

We find that the ridicule of the Samaritans had little or no effect upon the leadership of Nehemiah. He had no reason to be disturbed, for he had been sent to his task by a message from God. Being God-guided, he could be sure of ultimate success.

When we come to verse 6, we see the secret of the success of the undertaking. By taking God at His word, Nehemiah led the people to a task. They "worked" as they knew they should, to accomplish the task. But please note that it was a "cooperative" working. The Word says "So built WE the walls." Nehemiah took no great credit to himself. He led and the people followed, and, working together, the wall was completed. Far too often we are prone to say, when a task is finished, "There, see what I did," and we put too much emphasis on the "I." No task of any considerable size can be finished by separate endeavors—it must be by combined efforts. But a real leader must first of all learn to be a follower—a follower of the Master.

Our other characteristic, mentioned above, is "fearlessness." Nehemiah tells us the reason for fearlessly approaching the task in the last verse of our lesson—"this work was wrought of our God." With God near at all times, no task need be feared, neither need we fear those who would oppose the task—for God is with His people and His will must be done.

Today there is a seeming lack of the qualities in too many men that go to make up real leadership. There is a need to return to a feeling that certainty that when God plans, He will see His purpose accomplished. And, having returned to that place, to then launch forth with the assurance that the task, under God, will be performed.

Christian Endeavor News

NEWS FROM CUMBERLAND, MARYLAND

Greetings from the Cumberland, Maryland, Christian Endeavorers:

Our society is a small one, hence it is made up of Adults, Young People, Intermediates, and Juniors. We hold our meetings regularly throughout the year, except on the night of our Communion Service.

We use the topics (as a rule) found in our Evangelist and have some interesting discussions of same. Our President makes out a list of leaders in advance and posts them in the Vestibule of the Church. We have our Consecration Meetings the first of each month and sometimes hear some one giving a scripture verse read in response to names of ones who are absent.

The present officers are as follows:

PresidentMiss LaVerne Greenawalt
 Vice-PresidentJames Naff
 Recording SecretaryJohn Maffley
 Assistant SecretaryMiss Lorraine Greenawalt
 TreasurerMiss Lorraine Greenawalt
 Adult CouncilMrs. F. J. Beachley

In the past our society has purchased a mimeograph for the use of our pastor (and I dare say he uses it.) Also we have purchased two flags—the Christian and the United States flags—which add to the appearance of the church. We also give to various other causes as the needs present themselves.

We covet an interest in your prayers for the spiritual growth of our society, as well as the other auxiliaries and the church as a whole, in Cumberland, Maryland.

Younr Sister in Christ,
 Lorraine Greenawalt.

Travel Flashes

Dr. Charles A. Bame

Trouble, Troubles

I AM WRITING with the persuasion that "Travel Flashes" should have a good deal to do with Travel. But how may one expect always to be traveling and never encounter trouble? It is not the lot of man to escape trouble. "Vanity of vanities, all is vanity and vexation of spirit," said the wise Solomon. I guess he had plenty of troubles; with 700 wives, one should expect a quantum of trouble and perplexity.

Why Trouble?

March weather and a ten-year-old auto might well spell trouble as it did me last week (Holy Week)! The occasion was the Pre-Easter Week of devotions and community fellowship in our township with seven churches and a time-honored custom of a meeting in each church. It was quite exactly arranged and the program was quite enticing to a new pastor, offering a chance to visit the other community churches, meet their workers and hear their pastors. All went well in friendships and fellowships save a single one. I reported that incident in my last "Flash."

"Now, Another Trouble"

Now don't let me or anyone insult my ten-year-old auto. I would not trade it for many of the new ones, today. It just suits me and whenever something wears out on it, I get it repaired or renewed. On Good Friday afternoon, you remember, the Middle-West had one of those twisters, centering around the U. S. auto Route 40, and most damaging in our state. It came just at the time to go to the evening service—the one I wished most of all to attend. Lady Bame chose to remain at home for it was blowing and swishing around here, tail-end (or side?) of the storm; but I was brave! I would not be frightened when desire and duty called. I started but did not arrive. Once outside the city, it began to pour. I never saw the equal of it. I came within a mile of the church off main road 13, but did not know when I passed the crossing. To the next cross-road was 2 miles; but I did not reach it until the "pour" ceased. I could not see the dividing stripe in the road; I thought I was skidding into the east berm of the road, but when it lightened a bit, I discovered that the front wheels were on the west berm. "Believe it or not," the lights of the auto made rainbows there in the dark, the like of which I never before saw. Flashes of lightning and peals of thunder did not help in any way I could know. There I sat cross-wise in the road praying that an approaching auto would not crash into me. It did not. It stopped, also and waited. Finally, one came from the opposite direction lightening the way a bit more and the rain ceased the "pour phase" and knowing the flood-conduct of the Wabash River in our city, I was glad to return, even though it was a confession of fear I hate to admit. Others reported a "nice" crowd and a "good" meeting with a "rather poor sermon" for reward. That "Good Friday" was not so easy to interpret. The others had come ahead of the storm.

The Third Trouble

Saturday came with its reports of worse troubles from the storm for many Indianians than myself, and I went to the Garage to see what was needed to make my car more safe. The mechanic, without examination decided it was a new carburetor—the old one the one then on, too ancient to be repaired. Even though the price staggered me, I ordered it installed. In two hours, it was pronounced "fine" all adjusted, tested and ready to go. Driving it two blocks to my front yard, it was so "nice" that I tested it no further. In the evening, I again started to the service, this time 15 miles away, again without my life-time Pal. She was just too "tired" with a cold. But again, out less than two miles, I discovered "all was not well."

I returned to the mechanic to discover that he was not available, took on another, who worked two hours more and gave me a car that had to be forced to make 30 miles an hour. Even at that it was 9:30, Saturday evening and I, again frustrated in my plans, this time from hearing a life-time friend who was supplying for another absentee preacher. Also, my patience had run out, but I drove it twice (as was) to church Sunday and went back Monday to have it all "done to a king's taste," "good as new"; "better than many of the new ones" and ever since, "all things working together for good" and myself praising the Lord that it was not worse "amid the trials we meet."

No Trials?

We did have a wonderful Easter, anyway. But for epidemics of both measles and mumps, we would have had an attendance of 100—a goal we had set 3 months before. I know we shall have a fine Easter Offering when it is all counted and our "All College Corner Cast" presented the finest Easter Pageants ("The Holy Sepulcher") ever given in any church I have served. It was to an audience that more than filled the capacity of our church. I may as well close these "troubles" with a Chorus I wrote especially for our junior Choir for this Eastertide. It goes like this:

Hallelujah! Hallelujah!
Angels rolled the stone away,
Hallelujah! Hallelujah!
Happy hearts should hail the day, of Easter
Hallelujah! Hallelujah!
Death to Jesus lost its sting,
Res-ur-rect-ion glor'ous Victory to bring
All man-kind: and so we sing.

"My Father worketh hitherto and I work" said the Master. "All things work together for good to them that love the Lord who are the called according to his purpose." "He that endureth to the end shall be saved." So, "let us not be weary in well-doing for in due season we shall reap, if we faint not."

—Wabash, Ind.

News From Our
Churches

SMITHVILLE, OHIO, REPORTS REVIVAL AND NEWS OF THE CHURCH

Behold, how they love one another, might be our sole report. These Brethren certainly know how to help and show love to one another in all things. They are great to call on, sympathize and to give both spiritual and material aid, one to the other.

"By this shall all men know that ye are my disciples, if ye have love one for the other" was certainly spoken of the Brethren here.

We are reporting simply some of the prevalent facts that we have found already in evidence upon our arrival and early labors among the Brethren at this place. We accept no credit as yet, only an earnest desire to be a part of the earnest seeking for the will of our Lord and zeal for the Spirit of God that is a constant evidence in their daily ministration of His works in this church.

We have already discovered many virtues among the people here, but little evidenced of worldly vices. There is sin to combat, but we thank God that most of the evident sin is outside His church, where we can join our efforts together to combat it.

Reverence in God's house, before and after the services, has been a fact that has drawn much comment from visiting laymen and ministers. Friendliness has been vibrant and warm for the visitor as well as for one another. Many have asked how it is achieved. We have not discovered the secret, if it is a secret, except that it is His Way of showing Himself in His body of believers.

How these Brethren love the scriptures. In Sunday School, in Prayer Meeting, and in the sick room, it is a great pleasure to see them respond to it when reading it or having it read to them. Their giving as well as receiving has been stimulating without great necessity of pleading and coaxing.

The two weeks of pre-Easter Revival was opposed by much sickness and every kind of bad weather. The first week the attendance was too low, but explainable and well made up for in the second week. Rev. Miles Strine of the Evangelical United Brethren Church of Red Haw and a student at Ashland College ably assisted us with his solos and song directing. He brought us many great messages in song. It was a blessing to the pastor to bring the messages each evening from God's Word, because of the fine appreciation and receptivity. During the second week eight souls found their way to confessing their Lord as Saviour. On the Sunday following Easter baptismal services were held following the morning service in the Sanctuary, and in the evening we held our second Love Feast amidst perfect harmony and true love. It really was a love feast.

A mark of outstanding observation in this work has been that we have needed to spend and waste no time scolding or criticising, since they are of one mind, but we have "given ourselves continually to prayer and to the ministry of the Word." While the Smithville Church may not be large in membership, she is mighty in proportion in attendance, influence in the community and denomination, and in her proportionate offerings.

While progressing spiritually, our next move in material advancement is the building of some new class rooms in the basement for the children's department. The children's work is not only active on Sunday morning, but doing an excellent work in Sunday evening Junior Christian Endeavor work, with a large attendance, meeting at a simultaneous hour, while the Youth group and the adult worship groups meet in a different part of the building.

These Brethren are "conservative but consecrated"—and that means power.

The Smithville church has three Woman's Missionary Societies—one at Smithville, one at Rittman and one at Wooster. They work together and separately—real cooperation.

The Laymen's group is of the finest type, good programs, devotional in spirit, good attendance, and all without eats or special enticements of the world.

The Sisterhood of Mary and Martha is faithful, consecrated and in earnest, doing all the good works we can expect from normal, active, Christian girls.

The choir is the kind that is always there, singing, backing us up all the time, without commotion or urging. They just go on—serving with the talent the Lord has given them and praising God in song.

This has been our bold observation in six enjoyable, but careful months of service, without anxiety among the Brethren here. May I say with Paul: "Great is my boldness of speech toward you: I am filled with comfort, I am exceedingly joyful in all tribulations." It is good to glory in the Lord's work. There victories shall be won!

Vernon D. Grisso, Pastor.

Laid to Rest

BOOZE. James E. Booze passed away on March 13, 1948, in the Fremont Memorial Hospital. He was six years of age. His parents are members of the First Brethren Church of Fremont, Ohio.

Funeral services were conducted in the Weller-Wonderly Funeral Home in Fremont, by the undersigned, pastor of the church.

Rev. George E. Hagenbuck.

HILL. Mary Magdalene Bork Hill was born May 14, 1870 and passed away March 21, 1948, at the hospital in Mansfield, Ohio. She was 76 years, 10 months and 7 days of age at her departure from this life.

She was a faithful member of the First Brethren Church of Fremont for the past thirty-five years. Services were held at the First Brethren Church by the pastor.

Rev. George E. Hagenbuck.

SPACHT. Wilma Burkett Spacht, wife of Dr. Alvin J. Spacht passed to her reward "very early in the morning" of Easter, 1948, a fitting time for the passing of a talented, trained, devoted Christian who had faithfully served her Master, husband, family, the Church and her God. She had suffered much from an incurable disease without murmur and her translation seemed a climax worthy of the services she had faithfully rendered.

Graduate of Manchester College, teacher for a number of years, pastor's wife, mother of three daughters and a son, herself, her husband, her son and all of her daughters graduates of college and teachers in the schools of a number of states, she left a record of fidelity and devotion scarcely matched.

She together with her husband served in the pastoral relation in Brethren, Church of the Brethren and Congregational groups. Beautiful floral tributes from churches in distant states served recently and years since; friends from the College and city; and many relations, most of whom had traveled more than 100 miles, gave silent but irrefutable evidence of esteem and love.

Called to offer last words at her funeral, myself a cousin of Dr. Spacht, Mrs. Bame, cousin to Wilma, a brother-in-law offered prayer, a cousin by marriage sang solos requested, and all together, it is hardly possible that such an arrangement of relations in such ministrations are duplicated.

Her body was laid to rest beside her father and mother at North Manchester to await the call of her Master whom she served in so many ways, who promised to come again and receive his own to himself; provide rest from labor, and reward for faithfulness to his cause.

Charles A. Bame.

Wedding Announcement

LANTZ-JOHNS. Miss Betty Johns and Evan Lantz of Delphi, Indiana, were united in marriage on Sunday, March 21, 1948, at two o'clock, at the First Brethren Church of Flora, Indiana.

The ceremony was read by the undersigned before a setting of fern, flowers, and a seven branch candelabra on either side. A quarter hour prelude of piano music was presented by Miss Marjorie Moore of West Point.

A reception was held in the basement of the church immediately following the ceremony. Tables were decorated with candles and sweet peas. The couple spent their honeymoon at Niagara Falls.

They plan to make their home with the parents of the groom, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Lantz of near Delphi, where the groom will resume his duties on the farm.

J. Edgar Berkshire.

RYDER-CRAWFORD. Sunday afternoon at 2:00 o'clock on October 26, 1947, Miss Dorothy Ryder, a member of St. Pauls Evangelical United Brethren Church of Hagerstown, was married to Raymond Crawford, son of Brother and Sister Charles Crawford, and a member of the First Brethren Church of Hagerstown, in a marriage ceremony with a nicely arranged program of music and decorations. The ceremony was read by the bride's pastor, Dr. F. Berry Plummer, assisted by the undersigned pastor of the groom.

N. V. Leatherman.

BOWMAN-JOHNSTON. On the morning of December 20, 1947 a splendid young couple, Miss Alice M. Bowman of Wisconsin, a graduate of the University of Maryland, and Lynn E. Johnston, a student at the same university, a member of the First Brethren Church of Hagerstown, Md., were married by the undersigned, pastor of the groom. The double ring ceremony was read in the groom's church.

N. V. Leatherman.

ROBINSON-PEIFFER. Miss Betty J. Robinson, a member of the First Brethren Church of Hagerstown, Maryland, was married to Fred E. Peiffer of Greencastle, Pa., in the bride's church, and by her undersigned pastor, in the evening of December 20, 1947.

N. V. Leatherman.

To Mother

Cleo Konow

*I love the search for perfect words to tell
To you, O Mother, all the things I know;
Of boundless faith whose graces with you dwell,
While worlds of hope and love within you flow.*

*Without your hand to guide me through each hour
I would not dare to walk Life's shadowed road;
Without your smile, rare as a passion flower,
I would count burdensome each earthly load.*

*Without your calm, sweet voice to bring new joy,
When added cares have crushed my tired heart,
I could not mask my soul when fears annoy,
Nor give with sweet content Life's needed part.*

*I know this blessed power you hold on me
Is Heaven-sent, a treasured mystery.*

THE BRETHREN EVANGELIST

Published weekly, except the last week in August and
the last week in December.

THE BRETHREN PUBLISHING COMPANY

Ashland, Ohio

PRUDENTIAL COMMITTEE

J. E. Stookey, President N. G. Kimmel, Vice-President
J. G. Dodds, Secretary-Treasurer

EDITOR OF PUBLICATIONS—F. C. Vanator

BUSINESS MANAGER—G. S. Baer

EDITOR MISSIONARY NUMBER—E. M. Riddle

CONTRIBUTING EDITORS

Dr. Charles A. Bame Rev. Dyoll Belote

DEPARTMENTAL EDITORS

Dr. C. F. Yoder, Brethren Doctrine
Rev. N. V. Leatherman, Practical Church Problems
Rev. J. G. Dodds, National Goals
Dr. R. F. Porte, Brethren Church History

PLEASE REMEMBER: All material for publication in the Evangelist must be in the hands of the editor at least three weeks before the desired date of publication, to assure same to appear in desired issue. This refers to announcements particularly.

TERMS OF SUBSCRIPTION: $1.50 per year in advance.
CHANGE OF ADDRESS: In ordering change of address always
give both old and new addresses.

REMITTANCES: Send all money, business communications, and contributed articles to:

THE BRETHREN PUBLISHING COMPANY
ASHLAND, OHIO

Entered as second class matter at Ashland, Ohio. Accepted for mailing
at special rate, section 1103, act of October 3, 1917. Authorized
September 3, 1928.

INTERESTING ITEMS

The Meyersdale, Pennsylvania, Church. Word has reached the Editor's office that a decision favoring the Loyal Group of the Church has been handed down by the court of Judge Norman T. Boose in Somerset, Pennsylvania. The ruling, which in substance turns the property back into the hands of the Loyal Group of Brethren there, was the result of the decision covering the court action which began in December, 1946. The decree will be finalized on June 14, 1948.

Canton, Ohio. Brother E. J. Beekley says in his bulletin of April 11, "Now the floor of the sanctuary has been refinished, thanks to a few faithful men." Still getting ready for the Ohio District Conference, we see.

The Canton Mother and Daughter Banquet is scheduled for May 10 this year, being held in the First Church of the Brethren.

Cerro Gordo, Illinois. Brother Charles Johnson says that the time of the Mother and Daughter Banquet has been changed to Tuesday evening, May 4.

A Union Daily Vacation Bible School is being planned in Cerro Gordo this year.

Warsaw, Indiana. Plans have been tentatively made for a "Family Night" gathering on Friday evening, May 7th, is noted in Brother Brant's bulletin.

St. James, Maryland. Brother Henry Bates announces the establishing of an evening nursery for the convenience of the parents of small children. It will be supervised by two of the ladies of the Young Married People's Class "who are not members of the church."

Washington, D. C. Word comes to the editor from Brother Clarence S. Fairbanks, pastor of the Washington Church, which tells us that the foundation of the new church is practically completed, and that they are looking forward to the rapid completion of the first unit of the building.

Bryan, Ohio. A card from Brother C. Y. Gilmer, dated April 16, says, "We are moving today." (Which meant they were finally getting their goods off to their new charge in Huntington, Indiana.) He also wrote, "Good News! Bryan's Easter offering is $1,050.52—of which amount $895.00 is for the total support of Brother LaRue Roesch in his first year as laboratory technician in the Castaner Project Hospital, Puerto Rico." He is a Bryan boy.

Elkhart, Indiana. Brother L. V. King, pastor of the Elkhart Church, lists the following regarding Easter Sunday's attendance: Sunrise service—135; Breakfast—100; Bible School—479; Morning worship—425; Evening Vesper—180. The Foreign Mission offering was $2,370.00.

He also reports the reception of twelve in the church membership and one confession made on Easter.

Masontown, Pennsylvania. Brother Freeman Ankrum, in his bulletin of April 18, the last day of their evangelistic meeting, that, up to the night before, the average attendance had been 148. We will look for a full report of these meetings soon.

Vinco, Pennsylvania. Brother W. S. Benshoff, pastor of the Vinco Church, reports that the Junior and Senior Brotherhood Groups are working on a "soap collection" project during the spring months and that a sizeable amount has already been brought in.

On the morning of April 11, the Vinco Church had as their guests the members of the Senior Music Class of the Conemaugh High School.

The Junior and Senior Sisterhoods presented their Public Program on Sunday evening, April 25. A play, "We Call It Freedom," sponsored by the Johnstown Y. M. C. A., was presented.

Cumberland, Maryland. We note with pleasure from the bulletin of Brother Paul M. Naff, pastor of the Cumberland Church, that the long hoped-for day of "Mortgage Burning" arrived on Sunday, April 25. We hope to have a full report of this fine event for our readers.

Nappanee, Indiana. Brother Milton Bowman says that

(Continued on page 11)

The Editor Thinks Aloud

Fred C. Vanator

THE NATION'S MOTHERHOOD

MOTHER'S DAY is one of those quieting, thought-provoking, periods of time in our lives that should bring out the very best that lies within us. It is a day when we look at our lives, both in retrospect and prospect; when we view past influences and seek to judge future opportunities; when we think of our own mothers and endeavor to grasp the full significance of motherhood.

I was thinking about these things as I seated myself at my desk to write this column, and there, before me on the back of an old envelop, I saw the words which I had jotted down some days ago while going through some proof of an article, the author of which I do not now remember. But I do know that it struck me sufficiently to put it in writing for future reference. Here it is: "No nation has ever risen in character above the standard of its womanhood."

Of course, it set me to thinking!

As we look at our country today we are made to wonder what kind of men and women the rising generation will grow to be. Of course we are far too prone to judge the entire mass of humanity by the "badness" we see in those around us, forgetting that there are yet thousands of young people who have not "bowed the knee to Baal." Too often, we are, like Elijah, content to sit with head between our knees, and say that "I, even I only, am left." It is about time that we receive the word of the Lord, as did Elijah, to "go, return on thy way," and do whatsoever He commands us to do, remembering that there is still a real motherhood in the world, even though outward appearance seems to denote otherwise.

As I look around me, in our own local church, I can see a preponderance of Godly mothers, with sons and daughters who "know the way of the Lord," and who "walk therein." The call to youth that is uppermost in the hearts and minds throughout our own denomination at this very present time, speaks well for the future of many Christian homes. As we put our influence and material assistance into this movement for our Youth, we tell the world what we think of the future of our country. For it is on the spiritual attitudes of our young people that the future depends.

And where did the impulse for Christian living come from in these fine young people? I feel that I make no mistake in saying that it came from a Godly home background in practically every case. Who rocked the cradle and taught the childish lips to lisp the nightly prayer? The mother, of course. Let us not entirely disparage the motherhood of America, slipping though it seems to be, but let us seek to make and maintain a higher ideal for American motherhood, for it is certainly true that "No nation has ever risen in character above the standard of its womanhood."

Think it over!

Business Manager's Corner

George S. Baer

Three More Honor Roll Churches

WE ARE HAPPY to report three more 100% churches this week. They are as follows:

First Brethren Church of South Bend, Indiana
Firestone Park Brethren Church, Akron, Ohio
First Brethren Church, Ashland, Ohio

The South Bend First Church, which sent us 231 subscriptions, is one of the strong churches of the brotherhood and keeps on growing and serving under the able leadership of Brother Claud Studebaker. The Akron group constitutes one of the youngest churches of the brotherhood, but it has 27 homes receiving the Evangelist and, under the energetic leadership of Brother J. G. Dodds, it is working and growing in a most encouraging manner. The Ashland church, which has long occupied a unique place of leadership and is proving itself worthy of such leadership under the wise direction of Brother H. H. Rowsey, gives us 114 subscriptions. We are proud of the record of these churches. God bless them for their loyalty to the Publishing House and may they be fully rewarded by the information and inspiration they shall receive from the regular reading of their church paper.

There is Room for More

Yes, there is room for many more on the Honor Roll. We are ready to give prompt assistance to any church in a campaign for new or renewed Evangelist subscriptions. We have subscription envelopes, or agent's subscription books to be had free for the asking. Just a post card notice, and we will gladly help your church attain the coveted goal of a "100% Church."

When Renewing—A Suggestion

When renewing the subscription list from your church, if it is convenient, we shall be glad to have you arrange to have all subscriptions expire at the same time. It will save labor at this end of the line and we believe you will find it satisfactory too. We will notify the Evangelist agent or pastor preceding the time of expiration, in plenty of time for all to be again renewed at the same time. If you put the Evangelist on your church budget, or if you get your subscriptions by solicitation, we believe you can set a date when all subscriptions will expire, then pay three cents per week for each one up to that time. We believe you will find it easier to get subscribers and easier to keep them when, all members are asked to subscribe at the same time.

More Rags Received

Several packages of rags were recently received, one from Irene Lenhart of Meyersdale, Pa., and several from friends who did not want their names mentioned. Well, we like to give credit to whom credit is due, but we thank

(Continued on page 11)

The Tragedy of Easter

(The following was mimeographed and sent out throughout his entire congregation by Brother E. J. Beekley, pastor of the Canton Brethren Church, just following Easter. When we received a copy from Brother Beekley we felt it was so good and so much to the point that we asked his permission to present it to the readers of the Evangelist. This permission was kindly granted and the article follows.—Editor)

* * *

"It is not reason that we should leave the word of God . . ." Acts 6:2.

EASTER is a day of triumph: there is no question concerning the credibility of that truth. It is a glorious climax to the story of the Son of God. It is unique for the story ends in a manner that is unexpected in the realm of human nature. The Old Testament writers had no clear cut conception of life after death, and the resurrection is a shaft of light revealing the glories of the Christian experience in a manner hitherto unknown.

Countless sermons, musical renditions, beautiful poetry and works of art have all made their particular contribution to the exuberant feelings realized in the Easter triumph. It is fitting and proper to have these contributions for Easter is one of the great days of the church program. Every such contribution verifies the story of the New Testament—THERE IS HOPE BEYOND THE GRAVE TO EVERY FOLLOWER OF CHRIST. We shall some day see our loved ones who followed Him. When the final act of life is played, and we are laid away to rest—there is the overwhelming assurance that the grave holds no bond: like our predecessors of the faith, we shall rise and ever be with Christ.

The Lenten Season provided a suitable prelude for the observance of the Easter triumph. Tenderly we followed the footsteps of Jesus as He made His way through the maze of human suffering to the final awful moments on the cross. Studying the personalities related to the final events is a lesson in itself. What pictures came to mind when we thought of Judas, Peter, Nicodemus, Pilate and the others. As Jesus sought to prepare the hearts of those about Him, so we became prepared for the last fearful event—The Death On The Cross.

Then Easter arrived. Exultant was our praise as we sang of the risen Christ. Our churches were filled on Easter morning with people from every walk of life—people who felt they should be in church that morning to give praise and just honor to the Risen Christ.

The Tragedy of Easter

Could there be any blot upon the joyful observance of such a momentous event? We wish it were possible to escape the Tragedy of Easter: how delightful it would be to go on from Easter into the weeks ahead with that message a living motivating influence in our lives. It is more than coincidence that Easter comes during spring. New life abounds everywhere: every blade of grass speaks the Easter triumph. IT IS MAN ALONE WHO

SPEAKS OF ITS TRAGEDY. Our churches this year were filled as never before. The tragedy lies in the fact that out of so many million of worshipers on Easter morning a large majority will slip back to their former status. OUR CHURCHES WILL RETURN TO USUAL ATTENDANCE THE FOLLOWING SUNDAY. We are so sure of it happening this year, every year, that we have come to the place of common acceptance, to EXPECT REDUCED ATTENDANCE FOLLOWING THE EASTER TRIUMPH. WE EXPECT AND LOOK FOR DEFEAT FOLLOWING TRIUMPH. The Tragedy Of It. The tragedy, that this observance, the greatest next to the very fact of the existence of God's Son, should create such a slight individual impression on men and women. It is as though we are saying with one breath "Christ Arose," and with the next breath "So What—It makes no difference to me."

Choirs spent long hours in rehearsal, decorating committees were busy providing beautiful settings, bulletins were selected to exalt the living Christ, and ministers spent hours in preparation of sermons that would bring the appropriate honor and justifies praise to the occasion. The results? The faithful will continue to worship, new members will seek to find their place of usefulness, but many will soon forget there was an Easter. Can it be possible that such a message will have so little influence on so many people? Must we be content with such conditions? In God's name—NO. The message of the season is too valuable to be given such a trifling place in our life.

Correcting the Tragedy

Easter becomes but a beautiful story until we validate its message in our individual lives. It should be a PRELUDE to increased service and interest in God's Kingdom. Easter should forcibly remind us that all of God's love, mercy and compassion may be found in the personality of our Lord. Easter is for us as individuals. Christ died for the individual. As the force of that truth dawns upon our minds inevitably there follows the truth that, He arose for the individual, and He now lives for the individual. Therefore would it be too much for us to express appreciation by greater individual service? Easter demands a human repayment in service. It is not enough merely to enjoy the beauties of the day: we must go on from there in service.

It isn't any wonder that something happened following the resurrection in the New Testament days. A group of bewildered and frightened disciples became a living force for righteousness. Thousands found their way into God's Kingdom as the result of one man's preaching. Men who had lost all hope were now rejoicing in the fact of a living Christ. Easter was the prelude to a glorious period of growth, and the final results were evident in the rapid spread of Christianity.

You were a worshiper at our Easter service. Your presence was a sign of personal interest. We hope you enjoyed the service: we tried to do our best to provide a worshipful atmosphere. It was inspiring to have so many present. Naturally, a minister is thrilled with a large crowd, but he also wonders to himself—where will this same crowd be next Sunday, the following Sunday, and the ensuing weeks? Can we avoid the Easter tragedy here? I believe that we can—with your help.

Easter is too valuable to relegate to one side. Do we want to go back to our former ways and completely ignore what God has done? The old position brought war and intense human suffering. The old position gave us greed and many other problems. We need a change in this world: by accepting the Easter message as a challenge for increased service we move to a new position—a position God would want us to be in.

I believe you understand what I am driving at: I want the church to be filled next Sunday—and every Sunday. The success of Easter can only be judged in the coming Sundays. The attendance next Sunday will determine the depth and scope of influence of the Easter story. If attendance returns to normal we must accept it as a tragedy, if we continue to show interest we will move forward to great things. Will we forget immediately the bitter pathway to Calvary, or will we accept personally a cross of our own and follow Him? We will not avoid the tragedy if we slip back and forget that God gave us Sunday for worship services. We would like to see you every Sunday in our worship service.

I opened this address with a quotation from the Book of Acts: "It is no reason that we should leave the word of God . . ." Let us do what God wants us to do. The pains of the world can be cured if men throughout the world will do God's will. We can't expect others to do it unless we are willing ourselves. It is not reasonable that we should forget God's love at the close of the Easter Season.

The very fact you were present Easter Sunday is an indication of interest in spiritual matters. Let that interest grow and blossom into regular church attendance. With your help we can avoid the tragedy which plagues so many churches. May I count on your presence again next Sunday?

The Indiana District Conference

HELD AT SHIPSHEWANA LAKE, INDIANA
JUNE 7 to 11, 1948

CONFERENCE THEME: "Faithful to the End."

CONFERENCE TEXT: "Be thou faithful unto death."
Rev. 2:10b.

* * *

PROGRAM

MORNING SIMULTANEOUS SESSIONS

8:00 to 9:00

MINISTERS

Tuesday, June 8

"The Service Man and the Church"

Rev. Elmer Carrithers

Wednesday, June 9

"The Newly Weds and the Church" ..Rev. C. Y. Gilmer

Thursday, June 10

Business and Open Forum

Friday, June 11

"The Preacher and the Church—or, What Laymen Expect of their Pastors"Walter Lichtenberger

WOMAN'S MISSIONARY SOCIETY

Tuesday, June 8—4:00 P. M.

TEA at the Hotel. New Paris W. M. S., Hostess.

Wednesday, June 9—8:00 A. M.

Business

Wednesday, June 9—4:00 P. M.

Message from a Returned Missionary Dr. H. C. Amstutz

Thursday, June 10—8:00 A. M.

Flannelgraph—"Words of Prayer"

Mrs. Max Landis, Flora

Special Music

Installation of OfficersMrs. U. J. Shively

Memorial Service—"Words of Eternal Life"

Warsaw W. M. S.

SISTERHOOD OF MARY AND MARTHA

General Assembly in Sisterhood Cottage each morning—
8:00

Thursday morning—Election of Officers

Thursday Noon—Annual S. M. M. Luncheon at the Hotel

BROTHERHOOD—LAYMEN

(Program to be supplied)

BIBLE CONFERENCE

9:00 to 11:45

Tuesday—Rev. J. Milton Bowman, Presiding

9:00 Moderator's AddressRev. C. A. Stewart

10:00 Bible LectureRev. Roland Hudson

11:00 Panel Discussion—"Church Extension"

Rev. W. E. Ronk

Wednesday—Rev. C. A. Stewart, Presiding

9:00 Bible LectureDr. W. D. Furry

10:00 Bible LectureRev. Roland Hudson

11:00 Question PeriodDr. W. I. Duker

Thursday—Rev. W. I. Duker, Presiding

9:00 Bible LectureDr. W. D. Furry

- 10:00 Bible LectureRev. Roland Hudson
 11:00 Panel Discussion—"The Relation of the Sunday School to the Church"Rev. E. M. Riddle

Friday—Rev. L. V. King, Presiding

- 9:00 Bible LectureDr. W. D. Furry
 10:00 Bible LectureRev. Roland Hudson
 11:00 Question PeriodRev. C. A. Stewart

CONFERENCE BUSINESS SESSIONS

Tuesday

- 1:30 Song and DevotionsRev. James Ault
 1:45 Conference Business
 Report of Conference Membership Committee
 Report of Committee on Committees
 2:45 District Missions
 Report of Our Work..Dr. R. F. Porte, Secretary
 Address by the PresidentRev. C. C. Grisso

Wednesday

- 1:30 Song and DevotionsRev. Wm. Monroe
 1:45 Conference Business
 Election of Officers
 Report of Boards, Committees, etc.
 2:45 Conference Trustees

Thursday

- 1:30 Song and DevotionsRev. Robert Higgins
 1:45 Conference Business
 Unfinished Business
 2:45 Publishing Company Interests

Friday

- 1:30 Song and DevotionsRev. W. B. Brant
 1:45 Conference Business
 New Business
 Time of Next Year's Conference
 2:45 Sunday School Board

EVENING SESSIONS

Evangelism, Missions, Youth

7:30 to 9:00

Monday—Elkhart Night

- 7:30 DevotionsDr. R. F. Porte
 MusicElkhart Choir
 8:30 "Mass Evangelism"Dr. Charles A. Bame

Tuesday—South Bend Night

- 7:30 DevotionsRev. E. D. Burnworth
 MusicSouth Bend Choir
 8:30 "Personal Evangelism"Dr. Claud Studebaker

Wednesday—Goshen Night

- 7:30 DevotionsRev. George Pontius
 MusicGoshen Choir
 Sermon—"Sunday School Evangelism—Teaching"
 Rev. Wayne Swihart
 AddressRev. Don Falkenberg

Thursday—Nappanee Night

- 7:30 DevotionsRev. J. Edgar Berkshire
 MusicNappanee Choir
 8:15 Ashland College—"You and Your College"
 Dr. Glenn Clayton

- 9:00 Missionary AddressRev. Ronald Hudson

Friday—Youth Rally

- MusicNorthern Indiana Youth
 DevotionsSouthern Indiana Youth
 Address—"Fitting Ourselves for Tomorrow's World"Dr. Glenn Clayton

Spiritual Meditations

Rev. Dyoll Belote

UNLOCK THE DOOR

"If any man will open the door, I will come in." Revelation 3:20.

CHRIST LIVED with his Apostles for nearly three years, and yet at the end of that time He felt the necessity of testing them as to their real understanding of His identity. And so one day He asked them: "Whom do men say that I am?" "John the Baptist or a prophet come back to life," was the reply. He knew what others thought of Him as well as what view was in the heart of each of His followers, but He wanted to bring them to confession of their own real faith. So he again asked the question, but this time He made it personal for each one of them: "But whom say ye that I am?" Peter then answered for all of them with the "Great Confession": "Thou art the Christ, the Son of the living God!" In his daily, living contact with Jesus, as His follower, Peter had made that discovery which every man must make who would know complete salvation, that Jesus was the supreme revelation of Almighty God.

This realization and confession does not come to all men in the same way. Paul's vision and acceptance of Jesus as his Lord came to him on the Damascus road, and from that hour Paul's faith in Christ was complete and unwavering. And his acknowledgement of that faith took the form of a surrender to his Lord, "Lord, what wilt thou have me to do?"

Thomas had been incredulous as to the story that some of his brethren had seen the resurrected Christ, but when Jesus came through closed doors and stood before him, and he saw the pierced hands and feet and side and thorn-scarred brow, Thomas needed not to even touch the beloved Master, but voiced his faith in the Lord in that terse but sufficient reply, "My Lord, and my God."

And every man's discovery of God must be his own personal experience. Emerson said, "God enters into every life by a private door," which is just another way of saying that every man must find God for himself. Jesus declared, "Behold I stand at the door and knock, if any man will open the door I will come in to him . . ." We must unlock the door. He will not force the entrance, but He will bless those who admit Him.

—Hagerstown, Maryland.

The gospel is not primarily something to go to church to hear, but something to go from church to tell.—Copied.

Young Men and Boys' Brotherhood

May Program

1. Scripture Order
2. Praise and Prayer
3. Bible Study:

AN ALL-NIGHT WRESTLING MATCH

Genesis 32:1-30

GOD PROSPERED Jacob away from home. He married and had a family of twelve sons and one daughter. He also gained many sheep, cattle, and servants. Because of his increasing prosperity his father-in-law, Laban, came to have an ill will toward him. Jacob decided to return suddenly to his boyhood land without Laban's knowledge. But Laban took after them to make them come back. They agreed to separate as friends for God had told Laban to do no harm to Jacob.

As Jacob neared Canaan he heard that Esau was coming to meet him with an armed band of four hundred men. He trembled because he remembered how he had cheated Esau and deceived his father. He was sorry for his sins and could not censure Esau for being angry. Sinners fail to realize that God knows their sin, and that their sin will follow them and be their enemy. A boy and his sister were to carry a basket of cakes to their grandmother. The tempting cakes made their mouths water. After counting they several times they concluded that no one would know if they ate one. But as they were ready to eat one the sister looked into her brother's face and said, "Can't God count?" A young man working in a bank was tempted to take money when a bit of Scripture which his mother taught him flashed across his mind: "Thou, God, seest me."

As Jacob and his caravan approached the brook Jabbok he stopped on the bank to think what he should do. He divided his family into two companies, so that if one was taken the other might flee. Joseph, the boy he loved most, he placed in the second company. Then he sent droves of sheep and cattle as presents to Esau. These presents he sent, one after another, with the word, "This is a present from your brother Jacob." When a boy this writer incurred the ill will of some neighbor boys. He told his trouble to his mother. She went to see these boys about the matter and took some tasty dainties as presents to them. The boys said that they did not mean the mean threats they made but were only joking. But Jacob went to God in prayer for protection. God can make our enemies friendly if we ask Him.

Tom was a Christian boy who went away to boarding school. When he knelt at his bed to pray as was his custom his companions laughed and pelted him with shoes and boots. Unmoved, the manly boy finished his prayer. Each night he did the same thing and finally there was no more ridicule and other boys who had been too cowardly to pray at their bedside began to do so. It pays to ignore opposition when you know you are doing right.

After Jacob had sent Esau the presents and his family had crossed the brook, he remained alone to pray. While in prayer a mysterious man took hold of him and tried to throw him. But Jacob was strong and wrestled with him all through the night. At last the stranger touched his thigh and he was made lame. Jacob knew it was the angel of God and could wrestle no longer. Too weak to stand, Jacob clung to the angel now wishing to depart, and said, "I will not let thee go except thou bless me." The angel said, "What is thy name?" And he said, "Jacob." "Jacob" means supplanter or one who cunningly replaces another. Thus Jacob confessed that he was a cheat for having sinned against Esau and Isaac. The angel knew he was sorry for his sin and gave him a new name, "Israel," which means "a prince of God." Jacob called the place Peniel, which means "face of God." Here Jacob was changed to a good man by the power of God's Holy Spirit. Unless the Spirit of God is put into us we will never be worth anything for Him.

After more than twenty years Jacob met Esau. They kissed each other and Jacob was forgiven. Together they buried their father who died at the age of 180 years. Jacob went back to Bethel, built an altar, and worshipped God.

4. Business and Recreation.

Laid to Rest

PUTERBAUGH. Sadie A. Puterbaugh, a life-long resident of Lanark, Illinois, died in her home April 6, 1948, as the result of a stroke suffered March 30. She was born April 3, 1870 in Rock Creek, the daughter of Elias and Ellen Livengood, the oldest of seven children. Her parents, three sisters and one brother preceded her in death.

On August 16, 1888, she was united in marriage to Edwin W. Puterbaugh, the ceremony being performed by her grandfather, Elder D. M. Miller. To this union were born two children, a daughter, Mrs. Robert Truman, and a son, H. B. Puterbaugh, both residing in Lanark.

She leaves to mourn her departure her daughter and husband, her son and wife, three grandchildren, Kenneth Truman, Mrs. Marjorie Berkshire and Edwin Puterbaugh, and six great-grandchildren, and many nieces and nephews.

She united with the Brethren Church at an early age, and has been very active in church work all her life. She spent much time visiting the sick, and in other errands of mercy and kindness. The misfortunes of others she made her own, and extended a helping hand to many.

Funeral services were conducted at the Lanark Brethren Church by the undersigned, in the absence of the pastor, with remarks and reading principally on the resurrection and on the favorite passage of the deceased, II Tim. 4:1-8, which symbolized her energetic and devout Christian life.

George T. Ronk, Cedar Rapids, Iowa.

Let's Talk About Brethren Youth

If the Church stays by them, they will stay by the Church.

Brethren Youth Sunday will show them our backing.

What? Another Offering?

Rev. Virgil E. Meyer

YOU CAN LOOK upon it as just another offering or you can look upon it as another opportunity to have a vital share in bringing some lost soul to the feet of Jesus. We can say that we cannot afford to give to another offering, but in our personal daily relationships we find things that we have vital need of, and get them. We say we have to have them, though the money is not at hand. Therefore, we go to the bank or loan company and borrow money and obtain that which we have to have. Did you ever hear of anyone borrowing money to give to the Lord that a soul might be saved? Let's put first things first. Is our own personal comfort more important to us than seeing souls saved?

The Brethren Youth Board has a budget of $7,500.00. To give less than this would mean that we would have to cut out our National Youth Conference which is held at the same time as our National Conference, or it would mean curtailing the activities of our newly appointed Youth Director.

A couple of weeks ago the Ashland College Board of Trustees approved unanimously, the program of Brethren Youth, in which they made request to put the youth director on the college campus and promote there a vitally spiritual program for all Christian young people. This has needed to be done for

Brethren Youth Will Receive

Send all offerings direct to the L. E. Lindower, As

years. Our state colleges and universities do it, so v not a Christian School?

This is your opportunity, and obligation, to help in t task of putting out more and better preachers and m sionaries.

Beware of becoming a defeated and fruitless Christi

Towering high above all things of world, Christ's Church and His Cross
Christians for consecration.

Brethren Young People are answer
the call.

Are we prepared to put them to work

National Offering May 16 of the Brethren Youth Board, ge, Ashland, Ohio.

anyana" (Spelling???) may be all right for a pop-song, but it certainly isn't all right for Brethren interested in their young people. Now is the time to help them, not tomorrow.

ase don't wait to see if Brethren Youth is going to before you give it your support; do it now.

Charles Munson.

Let's Give For Brethren Youth

Their program is preparing now for a great future.

Brethren Youth Offering will insure a vital year's work.

What Of The Future?

We could drop leaflets over every Brethren Church in the land; or, perhaps send telegrams to each church member; or, maybe some sky-writing via airplane; however—any one or all three of these methods couldn't possibly give enough publicity for, or show the urgency of the date of the year—MAY 16th! To Brethren people this date is more important than the Cancer drive, Red Cross, and Heart Disease all rolled into one—because it is the day set aside for BRETHREN YOUTH. Support the Four-Point Program:

1. Youth Director—full time job; 2. Youth Conference—"the melting pot"; Youth Magazine—our own publication; 4. Crusader and Ambassador work.

Give, and Give Generously to Brethren Youth, Inc.

Therein lies our future!

Paul M. Clapper, National President
Brethren Youth, Inc.

Brethren Young people Are Looking Up God is speaking to them

Our various organizations and activities in which young people are interested have been preparing them for Christian service. Brethren Youth, Inc., is very much needed to coordinate all these activities, making them more effective at home and sending them out into the needy places everywhere. Our generous support of the Brethren Youth Offering will help make this possible.

Your College, Your Church and You

Material from The College Publicity Office

THE ASHLAND PLAN

(A continuation from Last Week)

II. The Objectives of Education at Ashland College

The Board of Trustees of Ashland College defined the purpose of the College in the Articles of Re-Incorporation—July 20, 1888—as follows:

"The object of said corporation is not for profit, but to establish and maintain a college for promoting education, religion, morality, and the fine arts and to secure to its members and patrons the advantages of education in all departments of learning and knowledge."

The college is still concerned with discharging the purposes of its founders by directing its program toward the achievement of definite objectives. The objectives of the institution, as defined by the Board of Trustees and Faculty, are:

1. "To assist students in the development of Christian character, refinement, sound scholarship, and Christian experience under influences which are frankly and avowedly Christian;

2. "To aid men and women in organizing and unifying their experience into a workable and satisfying philosophy of life;

3. "To furnish ministers, missionaries, and religious workers, especially for the Brethren Church;

4. "To provide a broad liberal education for future specialization, with a sufficient trend to the technical to acquaint the student with the practical pursuits of life;

5. "To develop the whole personality of the individual student by coordinating and integrating the instructional process with the physical education, health service, extra-curricular, student guidance, and religious programs."

III Distinctive Procedures and Techniques of the Ashland Plan

The distinctive philosophy and objectives of colleges or other educational institutions are unlikely to become functional unless they find expression through procedures and devices specifically planned for realizing those objectives. Ashland College has therefore planned its activities and organized its life and program in harmony with its stated philosophy and purposes. The distinctive procedures and techniques of the Ashland Plan include the following:

1. Selection of a faculty and other employees who are sincerely and actively Christian.

2. Organization of a program of Christian activities and opportunities for Christian Service for all students: compulsory daily chapel and courses in Bible and religion, religious counselling and service opportunities in the campus Christian organizations.

3. Organization of the curriculum on two levels—a lower and an upper division. The lower level, designed to furnish a broad, general, and cultural background of education, includes the first two years. At the end of the sophomore year, the ability of the student to undertake a field of specialization is determined. Upon admission to the upper level, the student selects his field of concentration and the division of the field in which he expects to major. On the practical side, provision is made for industrial, vocational, professional, and social activities in order to supplement his classroom experience and to furnish exploratory experiences in various fields of activity.

4. A thorough program of student analysis and counselling. Every student who enters Ashland College has the benefit of a detailed analysis of his previous academic achievement in the various basic subjects, his innate capacities and abilities, his vocational interests, his personality traits, and his social adjustments. This comprehensive picture of the individual provides the basis for a thoroughgoing program of student counselling, which covers every significant area of growth and development from health through education, vocations, religion, and life philosophy.

5. Enrichment activities and auxiliary educational agencies. The College has arranged a program of cooperation with industrial, professional, social and cultural groups in the vicinity in order that the student may have the benefit of actual contacts and participation in the daily life of the community. Such groups as the Ashland Symphony Orchestra, the city schools, the service organizations, music clubs, and many other local groups cooperate to provide a well-rounded total educational experience for Ashland's students.

6. Opportunities for employment and vocational experience. A systematic effort is made to provide actual work experience for all students. Through the cooperation of the people in the cities of Ashland and Mansfield, many of the students are employed on part time. It is not recommended that students attempt to work their entire way through college. There are two types of student working-units. The first, the industrial units, are made up of those who are working in affiliated business organizations for pay; and the second, the participating units, are composed of those who are participating in industrial, professional, and social groups for the experience such participation gives.

It is expected that eventually all students will acquire experience in industrial or participating units. A personnel officer supervises the work of the students and acts as a coordinator between the College and the industrial, professional, and social groups. A personnel clerk is in charge of part-time employment service.

7. Adaptation of the college program to current world problems and conditions. The war has brought problems not only to the colleges, but also to students. Ashland College undertakes to adjust its program to these problems in several ways:

(a) By providing opportunities for accelerated progress toward the degree for especially capable students;

(b) By encouraging women students to enter such technical fields as mathematics, chemistry, physics, biology, and engineering;

- (c) By arranging for special opportunities to qualify for public school teaching, to help meet the serious shortages in that field;
- (d) By providing expanded opportunities for training in secretarial work and business administration for those who wish to render this type of service;
- (e) By adapting the content of regular courses to passing world events and relating them to present and to post-war problems;
- (f) By offering a broad pattern of courses in the evening division to the general public, as well as to regular students.

By these processes Ashland College undertakes to stimulate in students that sort of personal growth and development which constitutes the essence of liberal education. As our experience accumulates, we shall constantly strive to improve the efficiency of the College in achieving the objectives and realizing the ideals of the Ashland Plan.

Interesting Items
(Continued from page 3)

the floor coverings will soon be laid and the lawn cleaned and graded. Every step now shows progress toward the ultimate end of the road to completion of the new church.

Milledgeville, Illinois. Brother D. C. White reports an average Sunday School attendance for January, February and March of 151, and an average offering of $25.75. The date of the Daily Vacation Bible School has been set for June 7-18, with the closing exercises on Sunday evening, June 20.

An Opportunity to Help. Dr. Martin Shively, has informed us that he and his good wife have need of a housekeeper, since, because of illness, Sister Shively cannot do the work of the home. If any of the readers of the Evangelist know of such a woman or should be interested personally in rendering such a service, please write to Dr. Shively and he will give such information as you desire concerning the position. Address: Dr. Martin Shively, 1014 Grant Street, Ashland, Ohio.

Business Manager's Corner
(Continued from Page 2)

you one and all, just the same. The new press calls for more rags, especially hard-surfaced cotton rags.

Additional Publication Day Offerings

North Manchester, Indiana	$ 21.87
South Bend, Indiana, 1st Church	177.50
Total to date (4-23-48)	$4,622.47

Please keep these reports coming until all churches have responded to this call of the Lord. There are some good offerings still outstanding. When all have been received we believe the required amount will have been reached. Let's have a 100% report this year.

Press Fund Reports

Mrs. Frank B. Hartzler, South Bend, Indiana

(1st Ch.)	$25.00
Mr. and Mrs. A. M. Erbaugh, West Milton, O.	10.00
Mrs. Clara J. Brim, No. Kansas City, Mo.	2.00
Mrs. Annie Long, Central City, Pa.	4.50
O. C. Lemert, Walkerton, Ind.	5.00
Charles Munson, Ashland, O.	2.00
E. B. Miller, M.D., Manistee, Mich.	50.00
Ellen B. Lichty, Pasadena, Calif.	5.00
Luther M. Miller, Latrobe, Pa.	20.00
Dorothy Carpenter, Ardmore Heights, Ind.	5.00
L. F. Chamberlain, Ardmore Heights, Ind.	5.00
Wilma Baer, Ashland, Ohio	1.00
Grace B. Briggs, Ashland, Ohio	10.00
Mr. and Mrs. Earl Coleman, Ashland, Ohio	5.00
Mrs. Cynthia Slotter, Ashland, O.	5.00
Mrs. S. E. Duncan, Ashland, Ohio	1.00
Mr. and Mrs. Fred W. Brant, Berlin, Pa.	25.00
Berlin Brotherhood, Berlin, Pa.	10.00
Lawrence L. Brant, Berlin, Pa.	50.00
Mrs. Mary B. Turner, Bethlehem, Harrisonburg, Va.	5.00
N. L. Hoag, Bryan, Ohio	10.00
Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Ransom, Montpelier, Ohio	10.00
Mr. and Mrs. Charles Strape, Cameron, W. Va. ..	10.00
Mr. and Mrs. H. C. Risor, Cameron, W. Va.	2.00
Christian Endeavor Society, Cameron, W. Va.	5.00
Rev. and Mrs. A. R. Baer, Cameron, W. Va.	10.00

(More Reports later)

The Bible Marches On
THE BIBLE MARCHES ON

SOME PART of the Bible has now been published in 1090 languages and dialects, according to a survey made by the American Bible Society. These figures cover publication up to the end of December, 1947.

The entire Bible has been published in 185 languages; a complete New Testament in 241 more and a Gospel, or other whole book, or some substantial part of a book of the Bible in 664 additional languages.

The latest language to appear in book form, for missionary use, is the Gospel of Mark in Tzeltal, an Indian dialect spoken in Mexico.

A new language added to the list was the Micronesian dialect of of Palau. The Gospel of Luke in this dialect was printed in Tokyo during the war from a manuscript of the New Testament left there by German Missionaries, who had translated the Testament. At that time the American Bible Society, through the Japan Bible Society, was considering publishing the work. The American Bible Society is now printing a larger edition of the Gospel.

The ten new languages that have been added to the list this last year circle the world. They are Aztec, Puebla; Chol; Mixteco; Tarahumara; Tzeltal and Tzotzil spoken in Mexico; Naga; Chang, Mao in Assam; Nantcheri used in French Equatorial Africa and Palau in Micronesia.

Copies of all of these books are now in the library of the American Bible Society in New York City. The Society's collection contains more than 16,000 volumes of Scripture in 906 languages and dialects.

CHRISTIAN ENDEAVOR TOPIC

W. St. Clair Benshoff, Topic Editor

"Topics copyrighted by the International Society of Christian Endeavor.
Used by permission."

Topic for May 9, 1948

PARENTS AS YOUTH SEE THEM

Scripture: Ephesians 6:1-4; Malachi 4:5, 6; Proverbs 17:6

For The Leader

THIS IS the first of two topics dedicated to home relationships between parents and youth. At the age we are now, we realize that parents are very valuable to us. This is Mother's Day, and the day in which we honor mother. Thus it is a suitable day for the study of home relationships. It may be that some parents tonight can hear these words and gain something which will help them make their home a happier place. Also, it may be that some young people may be able to gain a bit of help which will inspire them to make their homes better. There are problems in our homes, but none that cannot be solved through mutual discussion and prayer. Try it!

DISCUSSION

1. WHO ARE PARENTS? All of a sudden some time in life we wake up to the knowledge that there are two adults in our house who call themselves our parents. Somehow it seems to us they always plan what we are to do. We must go where they go, we must get up when they want us to, and go to bed when they want us to. We must ask them for permission to go anywhere, and they must always pass on the company we are seen with. To our juvenile and immature minds this seems like a lot of strict control that we could just as well live without. At times we resent such control. But, parents are people ordained of God to guide us, and protect us. As we grow older we will discover that their "no" meant protection for us. We have no right to expect to have our own way while young. It just wouldn't be good for us. Many children do not have the love and care of parents; many parents don't care at all about their children. Be thankful for parents who want to protect and keep you.

2. OUR WONDERFUL PROVIDERS. We young people should realize that parents sacrifice so that we might have the things we need in life. True, they brought us into the world. But above that is their love and devotion toward us that makes them do without, that we might have. If we could right now look with eyes of adulthood into the lives of our parents, we would have a wonderful respect for their labors in our behalf. Sad to say, not all parents merit this adoration, and they will have that to answer for. But on the whole, our parents can be praised for what they are doing for us. Let us be certain that we appreciate their efforts by speaking well of them; by helping when we can, and by living creditable lives all the time.

3. THE PRESENT GENERATION. So many of us seem to think our parents are "out of date." In talking to any number of young people we have found that to be a ruling thought among them. If they are "out of date," we ask "Why?" Times do change, and we must remember that 20 to 30 or more years separates us from the age of our parents. We often think the reason we believe parents to be out of date, is because they try, for our interests, to protect us from the ravages of modern temptations. Another reason we may think they are "out of date" is because they have matured in thought and action, and we are still "childish" in our actions—even in our teen years. We are fast approaching the age mentioned by St. Paul, "When I became a man, I put away childish things." Before we call anybody "out of date" let's remember we are just a few short years from the same situation. We would have you to respect your parents, their judgments, and their opinions. You'll live a lot longer and happier.

4. O. K., PARENTS! (We hope every parent reads, or hears this.) Do you want a picture of what your child thinks of you? Here it is! (Our topic tonight is "As youth sees parents" and here's what we young people have to say to you.) Oftentimes you're worried about what we are doing when we are out. And you are justified, for there are many bad places and bad young people. But don't you have any confidence in your training you have given us? It would be nice if you would set a time for us to come home, and then be sitting up waiting for us. That would help keep us straight, to know we could have a parent at home waiting to talk over the evening's fun. And if you're worried, why not open up your big church and provide "directed" entertainment and fellowship for us? Sanctified worship on Sunday is very essential, but why let your church go to waste all week? We don't mean dances, floor shows, or cards, or any such rot. What we mean is good wholesome, parties and programs. We kids do like to read good books; so provide an up-to-date church library; get a record player, provide good music, (no jazz) and a place to visit. Some of you take time to supervise the hours when the church room is open for us. We'd love you for it, for where else can good Christian young people like you have as your very own, go for an evening's clean fun? Don't you think it would be worth it?

5. SOME MORE, PARENTS! We aren't pedestals that can be set in a corner. We are lively, energetic, human beings. You provide for us a place, or open up your homes, and we'll cooperate by doing those things which will please you. We know you're busy with your work, your worries, but we hope you won't be too busy to take time for us. If we had more room, parents, we could tell you more. We love you parents, with all our hearts, and we willingly won't do anything to hurt us. All we want is a little real understanding of our problems, even if they are juvenile.

DISCUSSION PROBLEMS

1. What is your explanation of Eph. 6:12? What does Paul mean when he promises well being, and a long life on earth by following the teachings of Godly parents? Explain in full.

2. What do you mean when you say parents "are out of date?"

3 Suggest ways in which we young people can make our parents happier.

Prayer Meeting Topic

Contributed by Rev. C. Y. Gilmer

(Helps for Christian Living)

COCK-CROW

Sometimes awake at night I hear a crowing
Distant and faint upon the quiet air,
And to my mind there flashes a dark picture
Of heartbreak and despair:
Of Peter, the importunate one, weeping
Over his denial of his Lord,
Reminded by a far-off cock's insistent,
Reiterating word.

I, too, would search my heart at that far crowing:
Have I through cowardice or fear denied
The One Who has been long a loving Comrade
Walking at my side?
If I have, O blessed Lord, forgive me.
I, too, would weep; I, too, would pay the price
In bitter sorrow if I have, like Peter, Denied Thee thrice.

—Grace Noll Crowell.

PETER'S BACKWARD STEPS

Scripture: Mark 14:66-72.

Hymns of Christian Watchfulness

Leader's Petition

Seed Thought Provokers:

THE DOWNWARD steps in Peter's life pre-suppose some upward steps. Only a Christian can become a backslider. Peter's upward steps include his having given up possessions of considerable value to follow Jesus (Mark 10:24); his being commissioned to catch men (Luke 5:10); his great confession of a great truth (Matt. 16:13-18).

Our Saviour is too good to deceive men. He has warned us of the realities of temptation. "To be forewarned is to be forearmed." On the very night before the crucifixion Christ told His disciples plainly that they would deny Him. Peter had become so self-confident and proud that the Lord could not use him until he had been humbled (Matt. 26:31-35; Luke 22:31-34).

We are warned of the danger of denying Christ by the example of Peter (1 Cor. 10:12). Satan still desires to sift souls. Peter's fall was not altogether sudden. Men fall as trees do by becoming gradually rotten at the heart. First there had been rivalry among the disciples as to who should be the greatest among them. Such a spirit leads to worse things. The church today is too often afflicted with the same spirit. Peter's self-confidence and boasting was a sign of weakness and sin in his soul (Prov. 16:18). In the Garden of Gethsemane Peter slept in the midst of great issues, while his Master wrestled with the powers of darkness. Peter was not of superior devotion nor stronger than the others (Matt. 27:40, 41). In verse 51 of Matt. 27 he acted in the energy of the flesh and Christ had to undo his work. Following afar off he fell into worldly companionship (vs. 69) and sought to identify himself with the enemies of Christ. Then his first uttered word was an open denial (vs. 70), his second word a bolder denial plus the sin of blasphemy (vs. 72), and finally the flesh has full sway (74) in a complete fall and base desertion at the time of Christ's extreme need. O the sorrows of backsliding (75)! It dawned upon him that he had drifted far from God in his heart (Prov. 14:14; Jer. 2:19). We venture to say that Peter never questioned the reality of sin after this.

On resurrection day our Lord appeared unto Peter as the first of the Twelve (Luke 24:34; 1 Cor. 15:5). There he had opportunity to fall in confession and supplication before his Master's feet and hear His gracious words of mercy and forgiveness. Later before the seven beside the sea Peter was publicly restored (John 21:15-21). Peter found it hard to give conclusive proof that we really love the Lord, when once we have denied Him! But the Lord was satisfied with Peter's confession, and so were his brother disciples. Peter is the rock-man again, and after his threefold confession our Lord prophecied that he should "glorify God" by a martyr's death (John 21:18, 19).

The drifter may fail to notice that he is slipping. May God help us all to search our hearts!

COMMENTS

On The Sunday School Lesson

by The Editor

Lesson for May 9, 1948

WHAT IS A REAL RELIGIOUS REVIVAL?

Lesson: Nehemiah 8:1-3, 5-6, 8; 10:28-32

THIS IS A VERY good lesson for any Sunday School, for it deals with the very central thought that should be the foundation of every class, department and school. For in the Sunday School there should be the constant work of, first laying the foundation of the knowledge of the Bible, and then the urge for the confession of Christ and the becoming a part of the church which is the body of Christ.

We are stopped by the very first verse of the lesson today, "And all the people gathered themselves together as one man . . . and they spake unto Ezra the scribe to bring the book of the law of Moses, which the Lord commanded to Israel." The first step toward a real revival of religion (and we should not be content with the term "religion" in our day, but rather should substitute "Christianity" for our thinking) is to have a desire for such a revival. These people got it because they wanted it.

Now note that it began to function when the people realized the need of it. Had they not so realized they would not have "gathered together as one man." Nor would they have stayed so long to hear the Word of God read. Just imagine any group of people today standing to listen from morning to midday. Enough is said when they have to "sit" for even one hour.

Next catch a glimpse of the reverence they had for the Word—"and when he (Ezra) opened it (the book) all the people stood up . . ." and (at the reading) "answered, Amen. Amen, with lifted hands and bowed head."

We also should note that "the book was read distinctly" and in such a way as to "cause them to understand the reading."

The Result? The people became a "separated" people, obeying the laws, as commanded by God and establishing themselves in the "service of the house of our God"—giving, as they should, to its support, not by coercion and constraint, but by "freely" giving of their possessions.

Revival of Christianity means more than mere giving assent to the words of the Scripture and the preacher—it means not only knowing, but doing; making our Christianity manifest before men, that they may "see our good works and glorify our Father which is in heaven."

Anniversary Congratulations

(Golden Wedding)

IT WAS OUR great pleasure to attend the Fiftieth Anniversary of the marriage of Dr. G. W. Rench and Grace Kline Rench. We had attended the Fiftieth Anniversary of his ministry, celebrated at the Milford church some years ago. The latest happy occasion was fully reported as to program and the elaborate setting provided by the New Paris church, which was very lovely, and we commend them for it. However, we are sending in this congratulatory report for the principals of that Golden Wedding.

For many years Dr. Rench has stood out as one of the greatest pastors of the Brethren Church. He was always a careful and diligent student in his field—strong in that fundamental faith essential to the Brethren Church; an eloquent preacher and a faithful and winsome pastor with an ideal home life, which is essential to a successful pastoral life.

I remember my first particular admiration of him and his work was found at sight of his cut and a picture of the South Bend Church, twenty-five years ago, when this church was built. My personal acquaintance with him enhanced that esteem as the years passed by, and our love seemed to be mutual. Then when coming to Goshen as pastor where he had really built a great church, taking charge of that church soon after its organization as a mission point and remaining for eleven years, I think, building one church and outgrowing it, and then building another; receiving more than five hundred members into the church and establishing, with wise counsel and fine pastoral labor, one of the strong churches of our denomination.

His personal charm, his strong gospel preaching and his wise administration has been one of the great contributions in the building of our churches. Later, when coming to the South Bend church, and knowing that he was pastor here during the years preceding the building of this church, the lovely words that are heard of his fine work here continues to show what a very fine gentleman and pastor he was.

His helpmeet for these fifty years is entitled to much credit for these years of fruitful ministry. They both looked lovely in their Golden Wedding apparel and their lovely smiles, and the wedding kiss seemed quite fervent and up to date.

We not only congratulate them on their Golden wedding Day and wish them many years of happy life together in their golden age of their life, but we congratulate them for their years of fruitful service to their Lord and to many thousands of people who rise up and call them blessed. The Lord richly bless you, Dr. and Mrs. Rench, and I speak for a great number of people both in our church and out of it.

Claud Studebaker, South Bend, Indiana.

YOUR BIBLE

Say, Christian friend, did you ever think
That your Bible was written in blood-red ink?
That men of courage in a bygone age
Paid with their lives for each precious page?

Your Bible, too, was stained by the hands
Of those who suppressed it in many lands—
Its use forbidden by kings who could see
That the truth would surely set men free.

We live in a time when ruthless men
May threaten to seize your Bible again;
New martyrs will rise in the coming strife
To give their all for the Word of Life.

Your Bible may need a brave defense,
But its greatest foe is our negligence—
Its mightiest threat, the so-called friend
Who will not read what God's heroes penned.

—H. Victor Kane.

MY MOTHER

I never heard my Mother tell a lie
To meet a social need, save family tie.
I marveled, even in my early youth,
How in the fact of test, she told the truth.
She was a woman fair of form and face;
She had the goodly gift of easy grace;
Her mind, well stored, gave out a steady glow:
How much she seemed to understand and know!
She gave as only mothers know to give
Who labor laughingly; who love and live.
But out of all example offered me,
I prize inviolate integrity!
No matter what I do, or where I dwell
Truth stands to guard my inner citadel.

Susan C. Chiles.

Luther Burbank was right when he said: "If we had paid no more attention to our plants than we have to our children we would now be living in a jungle of weeds."

» » » » Our Poet's Corner « « « «

TOO YOUNG TOO SOON

H. A. Gossard

When I began to measure thoughts in rhyme
I was too young to think of growing old;
And much too green to reckon life and time
As being of a value more than gold . . .
My forbears said that I was fancy free;
That I was charmed by birds and trees and brooks;
And that I longed to dwell beside the sea;
That I thought these could each me more than books.

Now I am growing old; my forbears gone;
Still I recall much they had said of me . . .
They've left the stage from which I'll carry on Until at last I hear the Roaring Sea,
And feel its billows lave my weary feet
And waft me gently to my last retreat.

"The trouble about whiskey," said the politician, "is that there isn't anything you can say in favor of it in a stump speech."

Wedding Announcement

WARNER-RONK. Miss Hortense Warner and George E. Ronk were united in marriage February 28, 1948, in the luxurious home of the bride's cousins, Dr. and Mrs. E. G. Oppen, Minneapolis, Minn. The bride and groom, as well as their families were friends of long standing, and almost forty of the members of both families were present for a graceful ceremony in the beautifully decorated home. Appropriate music was rendered by gifted members of the family, adding to the vivid symbolism of the occasion.

Rev. W. E. Ronk, pastor of the Goshen Brethren Church, assisted the undersigned in the ceremony, where two brothers married the third, all being active ministers.

A. T. Ronk, Cedar Rapids, Iowa.

WITH THE LAYMEN

SOUTHERN INDIANA DISTRICT LAYMEN MEET

THE SOUTHERN Indiana District Laymen met at the Flora Church on Monday evening, February 16, 1948. The ladies of the church served a very sumptuous meal in the basement of the church, after which we gathered in the main auditorium for our evening program.

Rev. J. Edgar Berkshire, pastor of the host church, presided. He first led us in group singing, "Only Trust Him," and "Stand Up, Stand Up for Jesus," after which he conducted the devotions, reading from Psalm 34. We were favored thereafter by a special number by the Flora Men's Chorus.

Brother Hunter, District Chairman, took charge of the business session. The Secretary's and Treasurer's reports were read and approved. This being a Father and Son meeting, the roll call of churches resulted in 118 being present—87 men and 31 boys.

The Loree Church reported a new Laymen's Organization.

Brother Hunter presented Rev. C. Y. Gilmer of Bryan, Ohio, as the speaker of the evening. Brother Gilmer spoke at length on the Brotherhood work. He said our oldest Brotherhood was at Berlin, Pennsylvania, it being sixteen years old. There needs to be stimulated among us, as laymen, an interest in our boys. Men and boys should know our church. The three "H's" are Head, Heart and Hands. "If ye know these things, happy are ye if ye do them." The symbol of the cross should be the tongue of flame. Our laymen should learn to love the Lord more and serve Him better. Andrew was a great layman of the Bible. The first day after Christ called him, he won a soul. He was also interested in boys, for he went and found a lad with a lunch and brought him to Jesus. As long as we have boys in the Brethren church, we have a future church. Our task as laymen is to bring our boys to Christ.

He said that our boys should be encouraged in Missionary work. We also need more preachers, there are not enough for the churches we already have, nor none to organize new churches. He said we never know what a boy is worth. He illustrated by comparing D. L. Moody, who became one of the greatest soul winners the world has ever known, and Hitler, who became one of the greatest menaces the world has ever known. He closed by saying that Brotherhoods could sponsor some project, first get the sanction of the church, and then the Laymen should back it up.

Brother Hunter then talked of the building of a chapel for the Kentucky work, as a District project. We, as laymen, could do volunteer work. We voted $100.00 out of our treasury toward this project.

The Flora Men's Chorus then favored us with a closing number and Dr. Charles A. Bame pronounced the benediction.

All members of the District, please note: The next meeting will be held on Monday evening, July 17, at the College Corner Church.

Guy V. Purdy, Secretary.

* * *

ATTENTION, INDIANA LAYMEN

Please note this change in the date for the next meeting at Nappanee. In order to avoid conflict with the District Conference at Shipshewana, the Northern Indiana Brotherhood Meeting will be held at the new church in Nappanee, Monday evening, May 31st. This will be the first opportunity for many of the men to see this fine church, and we trust you will all do your part in making this our largest meeting.

Now some information concerning our work project at Lost Creek, Kentucky. The week of May 24th to 29th is the date. Men from the various churches are going down and work for the Lord. Plans are practically completed for a small chapel to be built at Stacey. This is a mission point some distance from Lost Creek. There are also many other needs to be cared for. We have men, now, from North Manchester, South Bend, and Nappanee, planning to make the trip. This is open to anyone who is willing to give a week's time and can go along on this date. If you can go, please notify by May 15th—those in the southern district, Bud Hunter, North Manchester, Indiana—those in the northern district, Max Miller, Nappanee, Indiana. Think seriously, men—this is your opportunity to have an active part in mission work.

There will be a large truck going down from Nappanee, and will be glad to furnish transportation for any of the churches desiring to send clothing and canned foods.

Any kind of help will be greatly appreciated.

Yours very truly,

Max Miller, Sec.-Treas.

News From Our Churches

VANDERGRIFT, PENNSYLVANIA

Beginning March eighth, the good Vandergrift folks had the privilege of enjoying and receiving great blessings from a two weeks revival with Rev. Freeman Ankrum as evangelist. This, I understand, was Rev. Ankrum's first visit to Vandergrift. We hope it will not be his last.

As it is necessary for me to teach school and because of this, I was not able to take Brother Ankrum around on visitations, I was only too glad that the Moderator of the church, Brother B. F. Buzard, was free to take him around.

We closed the service on Sunday, March 21st, feeling that the revival had been a success in every way. There were only two evenings that it rained and those were the evenings of our largest attendance. Brother Ankrum brought us chalk talks each evening preceding the message. They were well received and greatly appreciated. The visible results were 20 reconsecrations and 7 first confessions. These seven were baptized and 5 of them have been confirmed and received into membership in the church.

Rev. Ankrum made his home here with the Charles Lowmaster family which is one of the most active families in the church.

In behalf of the congregation of the Vandergrift Brethren Church, I take this opportunity to thank the good folks of the Masontown Brethren Church for loaning us your splendid pastor, Rev. Ankrum. Again, many thanks. May God richly bless your work in Masontown.

Percy Miller, Vandergrift, Penna.

REVIVAL MEETING AT SOUTH BEND, INDIANA

This church was greatly blessed in a two weeks meeting under the leadership of Rev. Roland V. Hudson as the evangelist. Some of our people know of this fine young minister who has now held meetings in four Brethren churches in this part of Indiana. Our first acquaintance with him was at our District Conference last summer at Shishewana Lake. He captured our people with his fine messages so earnestly presented and his winsome personality.

He is located near us, being Dean of Men in the new Mennonite Brethren in Christ College, Bethel College in Mishawaka, Indiana. He is an ordained Methodist minister and has served a number of years as pastor in Columbus, Ohio, and more than four years as Chaplain and supervisor of Chaplains in India and Burmah for more than two years. His background of life and experience is rich and he preaches the gospel with power.

Our meeting began with him on February 10th and closed February 22nd. Our attendance was good and we had many visitors from other churches. He brought a great spiritual blessing to our church and we had probably 20 who came for definite reconsecration. At the close of the meeting we baptized 15 (four children and eleven adults) with four adults received by letter. Since the meeting 7 adults and one child have been baptized and 3 adults and 6 children are waiting baptism. We are glad to receive children into the church, but we have a special joy in receiving the heads of families which builds in strength and outreach to your church.

Our people were pleased with the labors of Rev. Hudson and gave him a generous offering and many good wishes for himself and family. It was a great joy to labor with him. Our solicitous prayers are for every church and preacher. The forces of evil are well organized and very subtle. It calls for wise and strong forces of righteousness in the church to combat the evil.

Claud Studebaker.

SPECIAL NOTICE TO ALL PASTORS

Envelops and materials for the Brethren Youth Offering, to be taken on Sunday, May 16, have been sent out to all the churches. This material should be in your hands by the time this issue of the Evangelist reaches you.

If, by any chance, you have not received your supply, or, should you need additional envelops, write the undersigned and they will be sent to you at once. Check up on it NOW.

L. E. Lindower,
Ashland College, Ashland, Ohio.

The BRETHREN EVANGELIST

HOLY BIBLE

Official Organ of The Brethren Church

Another Inner View of One of Our Churches

The Sanctuary At Elkhart, Indiana

THE BRETHREN EVANGELIST

Published weekly, except the last week in August and
the last week in December.

THE BRETHREN PUBLISHING COMPANY

Ashland, Ohio

PRUDENTIAL COMMITTEE

J. E. Stookey, President N. G. Kimmel, Vice-President
J. G. Dodds, Secretary-Treasurer

EDITOR OF PUBLICATIONS—F. C. Vanator

BUSINESS MANAGER—G. S. Baer

EDITOR MISSIONARY NUMBER—E. M. Riddle

CONTRIBUTING EDITORS

Dr. Charles A. Bame Rev. Dyoll Belote

DEPARTMENTAL EDITORS

Dr. C. F. Yoder, Brethren Doctrine
Rev. N. V. Leatherman, Practical Church Problems
Rev. J. G. Dodds, National Goals
Dr. R. F. Porte, Brethren Church History

PLEASE REMEMBER: All material for publication in the Evangelist must be in the hands of the editor at least three weeks before the desired date of publication, to assure same to appear in desired issue. This refers to announcements particularly.

TERMS OF SUBSCRIPTION: $1.50 per year in advance.
CHANGE OF ADDRESS: In ordering change of address always give both old and new addresses.

REMITTANCES: Send all money, business communications, and contributed articles to:

THE BRETHREN PUBLISHING COMPANY
ASHLAND, OHIO

Entered as second class matter at Ashland, Ohio. Accepted for mailing at special rate, section 1103, act of October 3, 1917. Authorized September 3, 1928.

Thirty children and workers of the Primary Department of the Elkhart Sunday School had a perfect record of attendance during the first quarter of 1948.

Waterloo, Iowa. We note from the Waterloo bulletin of April 25 that Brother V. E. Meyer, pastor of the Waterloo church, was moderator of a meeting sponsored by the Inter-racial Commission of Waterloo, on April 27. The subject under discussion was "Equal Opportunities for All in Waterloo."

We note also that the Waterloo Laymen had charge of the morning worship service on Sunday, April 18. The morning message was brought by Dr. Glenn Clayton, President-elect of Ashland College and President of the Brethren National Laymen's Organization. The offering which was received was to be applied to the National Laymen's project of furnishing the new Chapel at Ashland College.

Smithville, Ohio. We learn from Brother Vernon Grisso's bulletin that the Wayne County Christian Endeavor Convention was held in our church on Sunday afternoon and evening, April 25.

The Mother and Daughter Banquet of the Smithville W. M. S. and S. M. M. is scheduled for Wednesday evening, May 12.

Brother Grisso informs us that he has received and accepted a call for another year of service as pastor of the Smithville congregation.

Masontown, Pennsylvania. Brother Ankrum reports the reception of fifteen members by baptism and one by relation on Sunday, April 18.

The Masontown Vacation Bible School is scheduled tentatively as of June 7-18.

The Masontown church recently was the recipient of a beautiful illuminated cross. Brother Ankrum says, "Thanks for the cross is due in the main to Paul Metheny and Carl Swisher."

Milledgeville, Illinois. Brother D. C. White reports that the Kum Join Us Class took action to contribute individually to the redecoration fund and that quite a number of Brother Harry Bushman's class have volunteered a day's wages.

Nappanee, Indiana. Brother J. Milton Bowman says, "Our first communion in the new church was a splendid success. After we get used to some of the changes, the service will go very smoothly."

He also reports as follows concerning the meeting of our Northern Indiana Youth recently: "The total attendance at the Northern Indiana Brethren Youth meeting at Ardmore was 160. This is the largest attendance yet, and is approaching that of the laymen. Our local society had the largest number present of any society—30."

Udell, Iowa. A note from Brother W. R. Deeter reads as follows: "We just returned from Topeka, Kansas, last evening (April 20). I feel much better and rested up; but I don't know how my 'pep' will last when I get to work again. Think I'll be normal again. The church has all new shingles on now and the foundation repaired. There is talk of re-siding the building or painting it. New

(Continued on page 11)

INTERESTING ITEMS

Louisville, Ohio. Again we are in receipt of "The Pastor's Helper"—Vol. I, No. 3, which is a fine eight-page mimeographed paper, which is edited by Brother John Byler, pastor of the church. In this little paper Brother Byler and his contributors touch on practically every phase of the work in the Louisville church. Reports of past accomplishments and announcements of future events crowd its pages. It surely is "live wire" and we are always glad to see it come to our desk.

Elkhart, Indiana. Brother L. V. King, pastor of the Elkhart church, announces the dates of their Daily Vacation Bible School as June 14-25.

In the last two bulletins from Brother King we note there have been two additional members received into the church and that one sick-bed confession was made.

The Editor Thinks Aloud

Fred C. Vanator

COMING CONFERENCES

IT VERILY seems that you no more transcribe the minutes of one year's conferences in the books which make the activities of these conferences so much history, than we are again planning programs, making plans for entertaining the delegates and visitors, working on future projects, checking up on old ones, and in general just following the old routine of the yearly gatherings in the various districts of the denomination.

Already two programs have been printed in the Evan-gelist. Others are in the making. And we are getting ready for—What?

This set me to thinking!

Just how much of the actions and plans of the conferences of 1947 have been carried out through the year? Just what will the various committees have to report when the new conference opens? How many actions were taken, aimed at advancement through the churches, have been made more than mere statements on the books of the conference secretary? Far too often we are like the little boy who, when chided for forgetting to do what he was told, said, "Well you see, mother, my 'remembry' is very bad; but my 'forgettery' is a dandy."

Are you on a committee that was appointed or elected at last conference? Have you done anything about it? Was that committee an important one? The word committee comes directly from the word "commit," which means "to give in charge or trust; to consign to." A committee, therefore, is a body to which has been consigned some matter of importance. It is a "trust" that is expected to be taken seriously.

We have been told that if the business of the economic world should be conducted on the same loose plane that the business of the church is conducted, the world would be bankrupt in thirty days. (It might not be amiss to say that it almost looks like the world of business is being influenced today by the looseness of the ecclesiastical world as far as bookkeeping is concerned.) But be that as it may, conferences can have a very great bearing on the work of the church, if but for only one reason—that of getting together, planning together, and working together. Why not make these coming conferences count?

Think it over!

Strange what happens when we follow Jesus afar off and get our eyes on troubles, and the faults of others.

It was just a case of overgrown carnality that prompted the Sons of Thunder to make a pull for the first place.

We have nothing to fear if our principles are worthy of imitation.

Business Manager's Corner

George S. Baer

More Press Fund Reports

William R. Thomas, Center Chapel Ch., Ind.	$ 3.00
Austin Gable, Center Chapel Ch., Ind.	3.00
Odessa Smith, Canton, Ohio50
Carl E. Boone, College Corner Ch., Ind.	11.50
Mrs. John Leidy, Conemaugh, Pa.	5.00
Mr. and Mrs. Walter C. Wertz, Conemaugh, Pa. ..	15.00
W. M. S., Conemaugh, Pa.	5.00
G. H. Coleman, Columbus, Ohio	20.00
Elbert Miller, Elkhart, Ind.	10.00
Mrs. A. E. Manning, Elkhart, Ind.	5.00
Mary A. Felthouse, Elkhart, Ind.	10.00
Lowell S. Felthouse, Elkhart, Ind.	10.00
Mr. and Mrs. H. R. Henriksen, Elkhart, Ind.	20.00
Dorothy M. Perkins, Elkhart, Ind.	5.00
Carroll S. Myers, Elkhart, Ind.	5.00
Roscoe S. Lockwood, Elkhart, Ind.	5.00
Dorothy Perkins, Elkhart, Ind.	5.00
Lanark, Ill., Church Offering	146.00
Mr. and Mrs. Carson Derrer, Lanark, Ill.	100.00
Mrs. Agnes Elliott, Lathrop, Calif.	10.00
Mrs. Belle Miller, Milledgeville, Ill.	25.00
Mr. and Mrs. James Cheeseman, Milledgeville, Ill.	15.00
Welcome Class, Milledgeville, Ill.	10.00
Misc., Milledgeville, Ill.	10.00
Rev. Lester Myers, for Milledgeville, Ill.	5.00
Mrs. George E. Eisenbise, Morrill, Kansas	1.00
A Friend, Morrill, Kansas	6.50
Maggie Smith, Mt. Olive, Va.	15.00
W. M. S., Mt. Pleasant, Pa.	5.00
Mrs. Mildred McPherson, McLouth, Kansas	10.00
New Paris, Ind., Church Offering	92.60
Raymond Stoffer, North Georgetown, Ohio	1.00
John I. Oberly, Wyatt, Ind., (N. Liberty Ch.)	15.00
W. E. Ruse, North Manchester, Ind.	5.00
Mr. and Mrs. Guy C. Lichty, Falls City, Nebr. ..	423.40
Mary E. Rieger, Falls City, Nebr.	5.00
Prichard and Grush, Falls City, Nebr.	10.00
Russell Peck, Falls City, Nebr.	12.50
Georgetown, Delaware (Mt. Olivet)	29.00
Maude B. Lytle, Goshen, Ind.	10.00
Mr. and Mrs. John E. Baer, Jr.	10.00
Mr. and Mrs. H. C. Keplinger, Hagerstown, Md...	5.00
Mrs. J. Kieffer Funk, Hagerstown, Md.	10.00
C. H. Rohrer, Hagerstown, Md.	25.00
Mrs. Ira Downey, Hagerstown, Md.	50.00
A. Roy Sprecher, Hagerstown, Md.	50.00
A Hamlin Friend, Hamlin, Kansas	5.00
Mr. and Mrs. Earl Benshoff, Johnstown, Pa.
(1st Ch.)	10.00
Mr. and Mrs. John Fitt, Johnstown, Pa. (1st Ch.)	10.00
Jonathan and Elsie Kels, Johnstown, Pa. (3rd Ch.	10.00
Carrie Stoffer, Haddix, Ky.	5.00
Mr. and Mrs. Oris Collins, Oakville, Ind.	3.00

(Continued on Page 10)

The Voice of Our Leaders -- Past and Present

(From the Brethren Evangelist—May 28, 1902)

The Design of Baptism

R. R. Teeter

IN HIS FIRST General Epistle, St. Peter says, "Be ready always to give an answer to every man that asketh you a reason concerning the hope that is in you." We, as a church, believe in baptism; we believe there is a divine purpose fulfilled in submitting to the sacred rite. If there be no specific design in the act it may as well be abandoned.

What is the reason for this belief? What does the Word teach us in regard to the design? It is not my purpose to draw conclusions from what noted writers and scholars have said about the design of baptism, but rather to bring together the teachings of the New Testament itself. Shall we be baptized "because" our sins have been remitted? or "unto" the remission of sin? or "for" the remission of sin?

Upon the day of Pentecost, when the multitudes were convicted by the preaching of St. Peter, they said, "Men and brethren, what shall we do?" Then Peter, filled with the Holy Ghost, said, "Repent, and be baptized, every one of you in the name of Jesus Christ for the remission of your sins."

The Revised Version reads, "unto the remission of your sins," whereupon some contend that it is not for but unto that determines the design of baptism. I will not question that there is a difference in the meaning when the different words are used, but the difference is so obtuse that the average reader will not grasp it readily, and, to my mind, it has so little weight that in this article I will hold to the reading of the Authorized Version.

Now if there were nowhere else in the New Testament, any direct teaching on the design of baptism, and we were left with but this one passage upon which to base our claim that baptism is for the remission of sin, I would yet assert that this in connection with relative passages, gives us a clear case.

In the beginning of the Gospel age, "John did baptize in the wilderness, and preach the baptism of repentance for the remission of sins." Mark 1:4. The result of his preaching was a deep conviction of sin on the part of his hearers, and "they were baptized of him in the river of Jordan, confessing their sins." Mark 1:5.

In both John's baptism and that which Peter preached, the recognition of guilt and the seeking of forgiveness are so closely connected with the recognition of the rite of baptism and with submission to the same, that apart from it being a means to bring about the desired end—forgiveness, one cannot see its use. Salvation so depends upon our being cleansed from sin that one can scarcely think of it apart from repentance. And as Christ said,

"He that believeth and is baptized shall be saved," baptism is so closely connected with our salvation that we cannot imagine our cleansing and forgiveness apart from baptism.

Christ did not say, "He that believeth shall be baptized because he is saved." Neither did Peter say, "Repent and, because your sins are remitted, be baptized." But in each instance the remission or saved condition follows, evidently as a consequence of the belief, repentance and baptism.

When Nicodemus came to Jesus to enquire the way into the Kingdom of God, Jesus said, "Except a man be born of water and of the Spirit he cannot enter into the kingdom of God." One cannot hope to enter the kingdom of God until his sins have been forgiven, and he has no grounds upon which to hope for forgiveness except obedience to the teaching of the Word, and the Word says, "Be baptized for the forgiveness of sin."

Therefore, regardless of the opinion of some teachers of note, and though baptism itself is not the new birth, yet it is so closely identified with it that we are convinced that Christ's statement to Nicodemus that a man must be born (ek) out of water, refers to baptism. This same thought is expressed by St. Paul as he says, "According to His mercy He saved us by the washing of regeneration and renewing of the Holy Ghost." Titus 3:5. Bengel says this language of Paul's is a periphrasis for baptism into Christ. Paul had a good opportunity to learn of the necessity of baptism, when, after spending three days of darkness in fasting and prayer, Ananias, at the bidding of God, came to him and declared his mission, and added, "Now why tarriest thou? arise, and be baptized, and wash away thy sins."

This certainly was not because his sins had been washed away or forgiven, but rather that through his obedience to the Word and submission to its divinely sanctioned rites he might have his sins remitted.

Disregarding all relative purposes of baptism, we are compelled to believe that its primary design is for the remission of sin.

"The purity that God demands is impossible unless I can be remade within."

"The evidence of conversion is seen in character, not in profession."

"Are you fleeing from the Sodom of condemnation or abiding in the Zion of Safety?"

Our Untouched Resources

Rev. Floyd Sibert

YOU ARE your own greatest potentiality. You may not have much of this world's goods, but never forget that you are a free moral agent. You do have YOU. You can do with yourself what you will. You can make yourself count for good or for evil. But regardless of what you do, YOU must be your own first investment.

The world, and the church in particular, is full of people suffering from "timiditis." "If timid folks could only realize the potentiality that is implanted in each of them—singly! They all have aspirations, the urge to do. But invariably they are deprecatory, ever disparaging of self. They invariably fall back on the pliant: "I am just one man" or "One woman." "What can I do?"

What was Florence Nightingale but one woman? Yet her work led straight to the Red Cross. Where would the marvelous work done by radium be today if Madame Curie had folded her hands when her husband died, and minimized herself by saying, "I am just one woman?" Or take for instance the case of the six year old boy who came home from school one day with a note from his teacher suggesting that he be taken out of school because he was too stupid to learn. "My boy is not stupid," said the mother. "I will teach him myself," and the result was Thomas A. Edison. Now if this be true in the secular field it is also true in the realm of religion.

Within three short years after the bloodiest, most far reaching and horrible war of the ages, the churning black clouds of another more terrible is settling down upon us and men sit like pawns, and say, "What can I do?" History repeats itself only because men are too stupid or too stubborn to learn.

The pall of no darker curtain ever fell over the horizon of mankind than the black veil of hopelessness and despair that shut out from the vision of depraved humanity the light of heaven in the days of Joseph.

Mary's generation was victim of this same darkness. They say the sun "never sets" over the empire of Britain. But for Mary's generation the sun had never shone—selfishness, greed, fear, distrust, and violence churned the sea of humanity like an angry storm. Like some cold, grey specter of the night war, famine and death pursued their hopeless victims. That was a time of spiritual night. We, too, walk in spiritual night. If ever man needed light he needs it now.

But "Mary found favor with God" in the midst of this spiritual night. She was "only one woman," but God used her to bring the light of salvation to a lost race. She couldn't understand it all. God's Word seemed so impossible to her that she said, "How shall this be?" And God answered, "The Holy Ghost." Mary didn't argue or question further, but immediately prayed the prayer of faith and submission: "BE IT UNTO ME ACCORDING TO THY WORD." Without that prayer Mary would have been just another woman, and darkness and human misery would have increased. It is certain that Mary couldn't understand how the Son of God could be formed in her, but she believed. And she immediately yielded herself, spirit, soul, and body that the will of God might be done in, and through her.

"Be it unto me according to Thy Word." That's it, my friend—"ACCORDING TO HIS WORD." Let this one truth sink deeply into your heart and you will have the fountain of life-giving water flowing from within. My friend, you are your own possession, until in all sincerity you breathe this prayer of Mary's. "Be it unto me according to Thy Word," until you let go and let God! Is not this the greatest untouched resource? If we fail here we lose all our resources. Place your life unreservedly in the hands of God, and wait until Christ takes form within you, as "old things pass away" and "all things become new." Before Paul could do mighty works he had to first say, "Yet not I, but Christ liveth in me."

SPIRITUAL POWER is the second untouched resource. It is great. It is unlimited. It is provided. To His fearfully disheartened disciples Jesus said, "But ye shall receive power after the Holy Spirit is come upon you: and ye shall be witnesses unto Me both in Jerusalem, and in all Judea, and in Samaria and unto the uttermost part of the earth." Here is both a commission and a guarantee of power.

A commission in the U. S. Army means power. To commission an officer is to confer power. The power conferred is not to be used selfishly. It is to be used to obtain an objective. The U. S. Government doesn't send its men out half equipped as weaklings. It sends them forth commissioned with power. Do you think that the Captain of our salvation will do less?

When Jesus was called home by His Father the last thing He did was to commission the sons of God on earth with power. "Ye shall receive power." Now power was something they did not have. They had followed Him, and everywhere they went He was the dynamite of their little universe. But now He was leaving them and they were afraid. Jesus knew their hearts so He reassured them. "All power is given unto Me in Heaven and in earth." What did He mean by power? Money is power. Electricity is power. Steam is power. Personality is power. But Jesus said the Holy Spirit is power. Moody didn't have much money, but he had power. Wesley was not a rich man, but he was a man of power. The Holy Spirit is power. He was the "dunamis" of the early church. He would be the atomic power of the church today if she were not too dead to release His power. He will strike open the very Mountain from which this commission was given when Jesus comes. The Holy Spirit is power and we can have him and have power if we obey God's Word. To know the Word and to obey it is power. The servants at the wedding saw this power manifest after they began TO DO what the Lord said. Just do what He says and power will flood your soul like the flood-tide waters the dry river bed. He is operative wherever there is a willing and obedient heart. Faith and obedience will unlock the "sluice gates" of heaven and flood your soul with a holy power that will make you live anew.

trifle with sacred things. GOD'S WORD IS SACRED. It says there is but ONE Way, and it is narrow.

But why go on? The "new cart" has already broken down. The Word is not to be pushed around in a "new cart" of modern interpretation. It is as unchanging as God Himself. Men may ride to judgment in a "new cart," but they will be judged according to the old Book. Why was the church so impotent in the face of war and national catastrophe? Because she had left the Word of God so far behind in her new program. They bowed God and His Word out in time of peace, and when tragedy struck they didn't know how or where to find Him.

God said "in that day I will laugh at their calamity," and I wonder if He didn't. Failing to find Him somewhere without the binding authority of His Word they hit upon the new idea of federation, seeking the strength of numbers. Having bowed His Word out as final authority it was easy to forget His admonition to "Come ye apart and be ye separate." Separation and not amalgamation is the way of God. The only unity God ever taught was the unity of the spirit, AND THE SPIRIT NEVER DENIES THE LORD JESUS, NOR THE EFFICACY OF HIS REDEEMING BLOOD, NOR THE VIRGIN BIRTH. "Church Federation" is a "new cart" idea that trifles with, and denies, these sacrinal principals of true Christianity. It will as surely bring spiritual death as did the touching of the ark bring physical death in the days of David, or lying to the Holy Spirit in the days of Ananias.

The church is impotent today because she has neglected and forsaken her spiritual resources. She has left the Word behind and now thirsty and famished she feeds on husks when she might have bread, if she would only open her heart to receive God's Word without question or adulteration. The church is impotent today because there are so few truly consecrated men in her who will bare their shoulders to carry the work of the church as readily as they bare their shoulders to the burdens of industry—men who are willing to carry the testimony of the Holy Scriptures in their hearts. The church can never "bring up the Ark (Word)" in "a new cart." It is the mission of wholly consecrated men.

Let the church consider anew the WORD OF THE LORD, and "ask for the old paths, where is the good way, and walk therein." Jer. 6:16.

—Pleasant Hill, Ohio.

* * * * *

PENNSYLVANIA BRETHREN CAMP JUNIATA

FOR 1948

CAMP DATES

* * * * *

Young PeopleJune 23 to June 30

Juniors and Young AdultsJune 30 to July 7

Cost per week $13.00

PLAN NOW TO ATTEND

Always a good, profitable time at Camp Juniata

Walter C. Wertz.

* * * * *

Earliest Known Isaiahan Manuscript

THE EARLIEST known manuscript of the entire Biblical book of Isaiah from the Old Testament has been discovered in Palestine, it was announced today by Professor Millar Burrows of Yale University, the Director of the American School of Oriental Research at Jerusalem.

In addition, three other unpublished ancient Hebrew manuscripts have been brought to light by scholars in the Holy Land. Two of them have been identified and translated while the third still challenges recognition.

The book of the prophet Isaiah was found in a well preserved scroll of parchment. Dr. John C. Trevor, a Fellow of the School, examined it and recognized the similarity of the script to that of the Nash Papyrus—believed by many scholars to be the oldest known copy of any part of the Hebrew Bible.

This discovery is particularly significant since its origin is dated about the first century B. C. Other complete texts of Isaiah are known to exist only as recently as the 9th Century A. D.

All of these ancient scrolls, two in leather and the others in parchment, have been preserved for many centuries in the library of the Syrian Orthodox Monastery of St. Mark in Jerusalem. They were submitted to the American School of Oriental Research for study and identification by the Metropolitan Athanasius Yeshue Samuel and Father Butros Sowmy of the Monastery.

Aside from the Book of Isaiah, a second scroll is part of a commentary on the Book of Habakkuk (Habakkuk is a Minor Prophet and this is one of the books of prophecy of the Old Testament), and a third appears to be the manual of discipline of a comparatively unknown little sect or monastic order, possibly the Essenes. The fourth manuscript is still unidentified.

The commentary on the Book of Habakkuk was identified by Dr. William H. Brownlee, a Fellow of the American School of Oriental Research.

The manuscripts have been completely photographed in order to preserve their contents in case of damage to the originals and to make possible their publication.

Since the return of Professor Burrows to Jerusalem, many of the class sessions of the School have been devoted to study of these documents which will be published by the American School of Oriental Research.

The American Schools of Oriental Research have branches in Jerusalem and Baghdad and Professor Burrows is President of the organization, composed of the leading American Universities devoted to Near Eastern research.

Mother love and responsibility are inseparable. Well it is if a mother has learned to pray, for the most priceless heritage she can give her children is a Godly example.—The Burning Bush.

Bibles For All The World

THE AMERICAN Bible Society reports a distribution of 9,310,439 copies of the Scriptures in 167 different languages during 1947. Calls for Scriptures in this country reached a total of 4,020,683 copies while 5,289,756 volumes were used in its work abroad.

The year 1947 was the Society's largest in circulation of Scriptures to the blind. During the year the Society widened this service in foreign fields by aiding in the publication in Switzerland of the Gospels and other Portions in French and German Braille, so urgently needed by war victims using those languages.

The response from individuals to the Society's program of Worldwide Bible Reading, observed from Thanksgiving to Christmas, exceeded by more than sixty percent that of any previous year. The special material was used in this country and also in places as diverse as Istanbul, Saudi Arabia, Athens, Cairo, Bangkok, Shanghai, Manila and numerous locations in Europe, Africa and Latin America. The Society reports an increasing interest in the use of the Bible as shown by the volume of requests it received for over 900,000 of its complete list of daily Bible readings for 1948.

For the first time since the end of the war the Society functioned directly from the headquarters of its twelve foreign agencies. "The total distribution in China was spectacular," reported Secretary W. H. Hudspeth, "in spite of colossal hindrances resulting from transportation, inflation, civil war and the lack of books and colporteurs." The sales of Scriptures over the counter of the Bible House in Shanghai were so phenomenal the Society feels there is no single counter in the world over which so many Bibles and Testaments passed last year.

The Society's Bible House in Manila, destroyed during the war, was entirely restored and a volume of Scripture distribution twice as great could have been done, had the books been available. The Society sent from this country, during the year, enough Bibles in two of the Philippine dialects most widely used, Ilocano and Tagalog, to last for three years, according to the plans of Secretary Harry Fonger. They are already gone and the demand continues. Many new doors are opening so that Mr. Fonger has asked for unprecedented supplies of Scriptures from the United States and is preparing during 1948 to begin again the printing of Scriptures in Manila.

With the arrival of a new secretary in Siam, the Bible House in Bangkok, closed during the war, was reopened. There were no Scriptures on hand, Secretary Peter Voth found. A few Bibles were bound immediately and almost 200,000 Siamese Scripture portions were printed. The School of Colporteurs in eastern Siam was reopened, its students carrying the newly printed Portions out among the people.

The American Bible Society organized a campaign for 500,000 new members toward the end of the year, that these gifts might be used to meet the increasing calls for Scriptures from countries affected by the war, that are not usually served by the Society. The Bible Society plans to fill 7,856,000 of the requests on hand for Scriptures that have been received from fifteen countries. The cost, for the books, it is estimated will be $2,010,700.

Spiritual Meditations

Rev. Dyoll Belote

A COMMENDABLE DESIRE

"Giving thanks always for all things unto God and the Father in the name of our Lord Jesus Christ."—Ephesians 5:20.

IT IS TO BE regretted that so many people are miserable because of what they do not have instead of being happy because of what they do have. There is a sad lack of appreciation of the blessings which we already have. The poet has put it in the words of the song, "Count Your Blessings," where he admonishes the readers to "Count your many blessings,

Name them one by one;
And it will surprise you
What the Lord hath done."

The more we measure or count the blessings we do have the less we feel the lack of the things we do not have. Some years ago one of the leading magazines sent telegrams to famous folk all over the world asking them what they would really like to have at Christmas time. As any one knows there would be a variety of answers, suggesting all sorts of desires for all sorts of things. In the minds of those who sponsored the symposium, one of the most significant answers was that of a lady who wrote, "If Santa Claus deals in other than material things for Christmas, may I be given an even greater ability to appreciate all that I already have."

"At one place the Word declares that "Contentment, with godliness, is great gain." Selfishness can never live in the same house with contentment. And contentment is not lazy satisfaction with things as they may be, without ambition to make the best use of the things we have, which contributes to desire for the best things that God has for men. Contentment might be defined as gracious acceptance of God's dealings with us, and assurance that what He sends into our lives is for our best for us and for His glory. There is no finer way to show gratitude than to enjoy the blessings which are already ours. May the words of this stanza be the expression of our desire:

"Ten thousand precious gifts,
My daily thanks employ
Nor is the least a cheerful heart
That tastes these gifts with joy."

Why a Youth Offering May 16th

Miss Ruth Clapper

The future of the Brethren Church certainly lies in our young people. During the past winter months numerous young people of the Church have contacted us, telling of their willingness to serve the Lord in Christian service during the summer months, either as Crusaders or as Ambassadors. The work of training these young people can be helped immensely through the generous gifts of the Church as a whole. GIVE TODAY FOR YOUTH'S TOMORROW.

—Louisville, Ohio.

BRETHREN YOUTH GIFTS RECEIVED

1947 General Conference offering	$284.34
Dwight Martin, Fairhaven (Ohio)	25.00
Louisville, Ohio Youth rally	30.02
National Sunday School Association	100.00
National Christian Endeavor	10.00
Mr. and Mrs. Landis, Morrill, Kans.	2.00
Missionary Board of the Brethren Church	200.00
Total	$651.36

L. E. Lindower, Treasurer, Brethren Youth Board.

NOTICE

TO ALL INDIANA BRETHREN INTERESTED IN THEIR CHURCHES

WHAT: Indiana District Conference, Bible Conference, Evangelism, Missions and Youth.

WHEN: Beginning Monday evening, June 7 at 7:30 o'clock, and closing Friday evening, June 11.

WHERE: At Beautiful Lake Shipshewana, The Brethren Retreat.

SPEAKERS: Outstanding leaders in the denominations and several outstanding speakers from other denominations.

Be sure to hear Dr. W. D. Furry and Dr. Glenn Clayton.

You will enjoy Rev. Roland Hudson and Dr. Don Falkenberg.

Our own District leaders have had ample time to prepare some wonderful messages.

Let's have 100% attendance in delegates and in addition many others from your church.

L. V. King, Secretary.

MAY 8, 1948

The Indispensables

Dr. Eugene A. Nida

THE CLATTERING train jolted to a sudden stop on the edge of a tropical village in Yucatan. Beneath the open window stood an imploring, ragged boy, calling out the penny prices for the fly-covered sweet buns stacked precariously on a palm-leaf tray. "Twenty years ago I was just like this boy," said my companion, now a university student and translation helper. "As an orphan I wandered the dusty streets of a village much like this one, and sold bread to the hungry passengers who passed through on the wheezing, narrow-gauge railway."

It was then that I could understand how Moises Romero, who had been helping on the translation of the Gospels into Maya, could choose just the right words for the "weary and the heavy laden." With him, "donkeys," "threshing floors," "women grinding at the mill," "hungry multitudes," and "the five loaves" all represented the very life which he had lived. His interest in the Maya language was not an academic one concerned with deciphering the strange ancient glyphs inscribed on demolished temples and pyramids but a practical, intimate knowledge of the soul and life of a tribal nation numbering some 300,000. It was this downtrodden and neglected people for whom the Bible was destined; and it was this young university student whom God had prepared through the years of impoverishment to help translate most clearly the Word of Life to those who continued to "sit in darkness."

Moises and the many like him, the native translation helpers, are the "indispensables" in the great task of bringing to people the Word of God. As the missionary first sits down with natives to record the strange-sounding words; as the native pastors later cluster about the translation table to explain meanings and offer their suggestions; and as finally the educated native speaker begins the process of translating on his own with the counsel and advice of the missionary—at each and every stage the native speaker is the indispensable opener of language windows.

The translation helper may be a blind Navaho, as Geronimo Martin is; but he may have that same genius for shedding light on obscure idioms and revealing the truth to his fellow speakers of this difficult language. Or this translation assistant may be one who was formerly a drunken mayor of a squalid Aztec villa, as was Don Martin; but this onetime soldier of the Mexican Revolution, marijuana smoker and revengeful man, can translate so well—one wonders who could do better—the passages which describe the turbulent, riotous mobs who sought the Saviour's life. The "beaten servants" and the "unjust stewards" were reflected in the life of the enslaved peon and the cruel majordomos of Don Martin's own village.

Or the translator may be a former guitar singer in the village saloons, as was Angel Merceci; but this brilliant man has become a translator of hymns and renders difficult passages into his own Mixteco language with a profound insight into spiritual truths embodied in such words as "holy," "peace" and "righteousness."

Whether it is the Quechua native of the windswept highlands of Bolivia, who explains "God's grace" as "God looking upon us for good," or the Karre Negro of the Congo, who speaks of the "Comforter" as "the one who falls down beside us," thus identifying Himself with us in our distress; this native helper is truly indispensable in giving God's Word to the world.

• • • • Our Poet's Corner • • • •

"THAT I MAY KNOW HIM—MORE"

Lelia Elliott

I heard of one called Jesus as I walked along life's way,
The throngs around called out to me, and I could hear them say,
"Our Lord"—Our King—"Our Savior"—these souls called out to me,
While others called Him "Perfect Man" and merely let Him be.

I heeded not the call that came by God's convicting power,
Until I reached the point where I was helpless in each hour.
I called to Him to save me then from all my strife and sin,
And Jesus came, my load to bear, my heart to cleanse within.

I tried to grow in heavenly grace and live the Christlike way,
But weeds were quick to choke the seeds I tried to plant each day.
But then one day His words were brought—though I had heard before—
'Twas Paul's great prayer that he might come to know his Savior more.

To think of all my blindness put my very soul to shame;
I really didn't know my Lord, I only knew His name.
And how I longed to know Him more than just what I had heard,
And God's great Spirit answered, "Just by Me and by My Word."

Take time to get acquainted as you do with friends you
love,
And take the time to study from God's Word sent from above.
That you may really know Him and not just what you've heard,
Not by another's standard, but by God's own precious Word.

COMMON SENSE

There are more small things to be done than big ones, and it requires less effort to accomplish them; therefore, do not hesitate to do the little things, because, any little things will help to make a few big things larger.—John T. Sterling.

Business Manager's Corner

(Continued from Page 2)

Rev. and Mrs. A. R. Baer, Quiet Dell, Pa.	10.00
Mr. and Mrs. Willis Flora, Roann, Ind.	5.00
Mrs. Rager Manges, Roann, Ind.	50.00
Mrs. H. E. Berry, Smithville, Ohio	10.00
Noah Musser, Smithville, Ohio	5.00
Della Lehman, Smithville, Ohio	5.00
Church Offering, Smithville, Ohio	30.00
Mrs. Hazel Long Mast, Smithville, Ohio	15.00
Mr. and Mrs. Lloyd Koltz, Summit Mills, Pa.	1.50
Mrs. Elizabeth M. Rishel, Summit Mills, Pa.	3.50
Mr. and Mrs. Mohlon Wuner, Summit Mills, Pa.	5.00
Udell, Iowa, Church Offering	14.00
Vinco, Pa., Church Offering	35.00

Travel Flashes

Dr. Charles A. Bame

Slush

SLUSH! Slush! Slop! Slop! "What messy weather we are having this Spring" Yes, it is Spring; it has been here almost a month and all are watching, hoping, some even praying for less slush and slop and more sunshine. One confronts more hazards every time one takes a trip. Dark, cloudy days with poor vision; bad berms on the roadside; more drinking drivers all the time; more holes and ruts and bumps in every trip—all hazards to safety and happiness.

Farming again becoming late and rains filling our rivers beyond their "flood stage," covering the farm lands with pools and mud, ruining crops, making necessary the changing of plans for the rotation of crops, all this should mean something to our American people, upon whom the whole world waits with small hope for help from any but us—all this should compel the most serious "look within" and search the Word, and ways of God to see if there is any serious significance to us and our posterity. Does God have a message in all this, and is there any connection between the weather and our relationship to Him?

The Weather and Us

I fear that almost none of us have paid sufficient attention to the revealed fact that praying men do have a connection with the weather. An unforgettable experience in the long ago was that of my father who, one day, lamenting the continual downpour that had persisted for days groaned: "Oh, I wish it would rain!" And as if he had turned a spigot, it ceased immediately. Was it merely coincidence or was it a real answer to the intent of his heart expressed in reverse?

Have we forgotten that Elijah stopped the rain for three years and a half? And that his prayers again started it so that "the earth brought forth her fruit?" Better read James 5:18 or I Kings 18:41-46. Jesus sanctioned this historical event and the people tried to "cast him down headlong" the side of the hill on which their city was built. Luke 4:25-31. The issue with James was to encourage ordinary men to pray. The "sick," the "elders" and all! Maybe we'd better read James 5 again. There might be less sickness and affliction if we were less faithless and presumptive of the doctor's skills. Many an operation has been avoided by praying Christians. Much better weather might also come if "scientists" and their dupes forgot not God and His rights and warnings that might come if we had faith.

How Much Better?

How much better could the Lord Jesus talk to us if we brought up the subject of the weather. I often hear the quotation from Mark Twain: "Everybody talks about the weather but nobody does anything about it," as a jest. The tragedy is that if Jesus talked to most people today, He'd probably talk as He did to the Sadducees and Pharisees: "When it is evening, ye say, it will be fair weather; for the sky is red. And in the morning, it will be foul weather today for the sky is red and lowering. O ye hypocrites, ye can discern the face of the sky; but ye can not discern the signs of the times." Matt. 16:1-4.

Now, Jesus admitted certain forecasting conclusions; and he did not condemn that; but He protested that they were diverting His gracious promises to "all the world" as of supreme importance. In other words, they were "hypocrites" because they professed to want to know Him by a new sign, when He had given all the evidences He would give. "There shall be no sign given but the sign of the prophet Jonas." A whole sermon awaits a chance to get in this, but I must not divert, save to say that it was prayer that got Jonas out of the belly of the whale. Better read that second chapter of Jonah a thousand times than to shunt God out of the world and of the weather.

So, Maybe!

Maybe we have "weather" as is, because we do not pray enough. Maybe because we put too much confidence in "soil conservation" and fertilizer and what not, and bow God entirely out of the picture. "The earth is the Lord's and the fullness thereof, the earth and they that dwell therein" Psa. 24:1, 2. And it is only "they" who come to Him with "clean hands and a pure heart who hath not lifted up his soul unto vanity nor sworn deceitfully" that need apply. But they "shall receive a blessing from the Lord and righteousness from the God of his salvation." (Vs. 4, 5)

Forget not, my friends, that while the devil sends the storms and calamities (Job ch. 1, 2) there's only One who can beat him and they who look to Him for succor will find Him a very present help in time of trouble. Forget neither, that even in our beloved land "the home of the free" and the hope of millions, if we look not to the Lord for help, He may withhold His "fullness." It has happened here. It can happen again.

A Proof

My grandfather Bame came her from Germany, a poor, young man; for a number of years he was a shepherd for a Pennsylvanian after whom my father was named. Later, he migrated to Hancock County, Ohio, where he grew affluent, honored, and a full-fledged Dunker. On his way "up," my father told us often, of a year when, on the 11th of June, their entire wheat crop was frozen. The rest of the story is that as father often said: "We lived on corn bread and pumpkin butter that winter." Of course, they did have wild meats but no "shortenin' bread." What would eventuate if the American wheat crop would freeze this year?

Sin Hurts

"As it was in the days of Noah so shall it be again. Then, 'they were eating and drinking, marrying and given in marriage, until the day that Noah entered the ark. And knew not until the flood came.'" Matt. 25:37-39; Luke 17:22-31. Only the blind can not see the similarity between that day and ours. Therefore, "watch and pray," (Luke 21:36) and "be sober." 1 Pet. 5:8. Oh, hilarious America, take heed!

There can be no doubt that the world crisis is immorality. If these are the "last days" or not, the Christian leader who sanctions the present day dress of even many women of the church—women who in no sense live up to the admonitions of Paul (1 Tim. 2:8-10, or of Peter 3:3, 4), or of the Lord Jesus who said: "Ye are not of the world; but I have chosen you out of the world." It is tragic when a pastor calls on young women of the church, and sitting in the parlor, he does not know what to do with his eyes! Or that professed Christian women will follow the styles of nudism now so apparent on the beaches of oceans and lakes, even around home or on the streets.

What Price Victory?

Harold Row, whom I know well, high in Brethren Service, just returned from Europe, in the Gospel Messenger dated April 17, page 21 writes: "It is a shocking fact that a broken pack of American cigarettes has become more valuable than a woman's virtue, and a few cartons of cigarettes will buy an auto or a castle in some parts of Europe." Picture of the men in 1 Tim. 6:3-10. Slush and Slop: that's modern! God have Mercy!

—Wabash, Indiana.

Interesting Items

(Continued from page 3)

shingles have also been placed on the garage and shop building. We will have a big Sacred Program on Sunday evening."

South Bend, Indiana. Brother Claud Studebaker reports that he has received a call for another year of service with the South Bend people.

Dayton, Ohio. Brother S. M. Whetstone reports a service of dedication for Children being held on the morning of April 25.

The Father and Son Banquet of the Dayton Church was scheduled for Friday evening, April 30.

St. James, Maryland. Brother Henry Bates reports that 133 took part in the Communion service on April 11.

The Young Married People's Class of St. James is undertaking a project of sending new sheets to Lost Creek each month.

Baal had no message from the Lord burning in his heart. Like Absalom he was self-ordained and God-disposed.

Wedding Announcement

LAWSON-WELSH. Robert R. Lawson and Melba Welsh, both of our immediate part of the city and who have been scholars in our Bible School, were united in marriage at the parsonage on January 23. At home to their friends at 1143 South Michigan Street, South Bend, Indiana.

SMITH-MILLER. Richard A. Smith and Joyce Miller were united in a beautiful church wedding on January 24. She is a member of the First Brethren Church of South Bend and he lives at Niles, Michigan where they have built and furnished a lovely new home at 1444 Powers Street, and where they will be at home to their friends.

WELLS-HATFIELD. William Wells and Pauline E. Hatfield were united in marriage in a beautiful church wedding at the First Brethren Church on March 14. They both live in this city. She is a member of this church. They are at home to their friends at 1310 South Michigan Street.

WING-MILNER. Len L. Wing and Margaret Ellen Milner were united in marriage at the First Brethren Parsonage, South Bend, Indiana on March 28. Both are residents of rural South Bend and are at home to their friends at Route No. 3, South Bend.

CRONIN-OLIVER. Edward Cronin and Dorothy Mae Oliver were united in marriage at the First Brethren Parsonage on April 7. Both are residents of this city. Mrs. Cronin is a member of this church. At home to their friends at 416 E. South Street, South Bend.

MORRIS-WYNN. George C. Morris and Gay Wynn were united in marriage at the First Brethren Church in South Bend on April 9. Both are residents of our immediate community and have attended this church. At home to their friends at 111 E. Indiana Street.

PLACE-SHEEREN. Paul K. Place and Marie Sheeren were united in marriage at the home of the bride's sister in Mishawaka, Indiana, with a beautifully arranged home wedding on April 11. At home to their friends in South Bend for a while, but plan their future home at his country home near Niles, Michigan.

We congratulate these fine couples as they begin life together and wish for them every good blessing of life and sweet comfort of the Spirit.

Claud Studebaker, South Bend, Indiana.

PREPARATION PLUS

A preacher who had written his sermon carefully, found himself at church without his manuscript. "As I have forgotten my notes," he began his sermon, "I will rely on the Lord for guidance. Tonight I will come better prepared."—Religious Digest.

God's kind of love does not behave itself indecently.

CHRISTIAN ENDEAVOR TOPIC

W. St. Clair Benshoff, Topic Editor

"Topics copyrighted by the International Society of Christian Endeavor.
Used by permission."

Topic for May 16, 1948

AS PARENTS SEE YOUTH

Scripture: Proverbs 4:1-7; 10:1; 1 Timothy 5:4

For The Leader

THIS IS THE companion topic of last week's when we discussed a few things about young people's viewpoints of parents. Now tonight we take up the other side of the issue. How do your parents see us? Much could be said, but the best way for you to discover this, is to go to your parents and have them give you a heart to heart talk. Tell them to speak frankly, and lovingly. As a result, you will find a bond of love which you never knew existed. Tonight we want to tell of some of the highlites of the parent-youth relationship.

DISCUSSION

1. THOSE "BUNDLES FROM HEAVEN." Most married people look forward to having one or more children in their home. And after the first little one comes they spend hours cuddling, fixing, fretting, and laughing at the antics of their child. The child seems to be a novelty, to be placed on a "shelf" whenever parents want to go away, to be shoved aside when parents are too busy. But time passes, and the little heavenly bundle takes on aspects of actions from elsewhere. Soon parents find they have a real life problem on their hands. That child must have more food, new clothing, expenses, etc. It gets into trouble, and problems of life face the child. What was once a novelty now becomes a major duty. Parents must face the rearing problems of their youth.

2. GOOD PARENTS ARE CONCERNED. Few of us go out from home but what the prayers and hearts of our parents go with us. That is good, for when our parent's prayers go with us, we shall be kept from real harm. But yet, young people, parents cannot help but be concerned about us. They see us as young, immatured youth, unfitted to cope with the temptations of life. In that, they are right. We need their help badly. So let's never resent or smart under the admonitions they give us. If they didn't love us, they wouldn't bother with us.

3. "MY PARENTS JUST DON'T UNDERSTAND ME." We heard a person make that statement. She was a selfish, snippy sort of a teen age girl. Her words echo the sentiment of far too many of us today. We seem to think our parents have it in for us. Did you ever stop to think it might be your fault? So many times we are selfish, self-willed, or even deceitful about the things we are doing. That builds a wall between us and our parents that is hard to pass through. It doesn't need to be that way at all. Oftentimes parents are more concerned about the problem than what we are. It is very often true that what we interpret as "fussiness" on their part is just a loving heart trying to make sure that no harm is going to come to us. So, when they object to that "big night" you've set your heart on, just remember that they see a reason for not wanting their child to go. A reason that in later years will make you thankful you listened.

4. THEY SEE US AS AN INVESTMENT. Some one has figured that a child, reared to his high school graduation day costs around $10,000. We cannot say for sure, but at any rate, children do cost money. They cost something in time and effort. So why shouldn't parents want to see their children grow up into stalwart men and refined ladies. We should be willing to make a return unto them. First, to respect them and to live a commendable life. Second, to follow a good profession, making yourself stabilized in life, thus putting their minds to rest as to the future of your life.

5. A MOST IMPORTANT POINT FOR PARENTS. Parents, when you see your youth, what do you see? Just a child to be reared, educated and married? Just a child to be set right socially? Or do you see a child as a possessor of an eternal soul? That child will have to fight the battle of evil all through life. That child has a soul which must be taught to know God and to accept Christ as Savior from sin. As a parent, you have not performed your first duty if you have not spoken frankly to your child about this matter. Many parents seem to shun this problem like they do the emotional and sex problems of their youth. That's being very unfair to your child. All of these problems should be talked over frankly and fairly. Real happiness in your home will result.

DISCUSSION QUESTIONS

1. What would you say are the biggest problems confronting parents and youth today? How would you remedy them?
2. What advantage do you think a family altar would have in solving problems of the family?
3. In far too many cases the home has ceased to be the center of life. What has caused this? How would you go about remedying this?

HAVE YOU SEEN THE NEW "BRETHREN CHRISTIAN ENDEAVOR WORSHIP PROGRAMS" BOOKLET? This monthly circular can help you plan better and more helpful weekly C. E. meetings. Write to your Topic Editor today, for your copy.

AN ANCHOR

(Dedicated to My Mother)

Mrs. Dale Heater

Just to walk where she walked,
Toiling, unceasingly with steady steps;
Forgiving, loving, kind and calm.
Brings reverence deep—
For she was my Mom.

Just to bear burdens where she once bore
All of mine, and thousands more,
Makes me strong to move the mountains,
For faith still lives
And springs forth like fountains.

—North Manchester, Indiana.

Prayer Meeting Topic

Contributed by Rev. C. Y. Gilmer

(Helps for Christian Living)

STRANGER AT THE PEACE TABLE

There is a stranger in the council hall
Where nations meet to plan the peace again.
He sits unnoticed by the farther wall,
His eyes upon the leaders among men.
His ears attend their clearly laid designs
For living in tomorrow's homes and marts,
As though beneath their spoken words and lines
He hears the inner voices of their hearts.

But when the delegates of all the world
Have cried their million wants, and lists are long,
And after blueprints, charts and plans are hurled
In varied protest at the core of wrong,
He is our hope; He is the peace we seek.
O listen, world, and let the Stranger speak!

—Esther Baldwin York.

WHAT AILS OUR WORLD

Scripture: 2 Timothy 3

Hymns of Christian Loyalty

Leader's Petition

Seed Thought Provokers:

A GAIN THE nations are hopelessly engaged in an effort for peace by leagues and promises. Forgetting that figs do not grow on thistles (Matt. 7:16) unregenerate men are trying to do the works which are the fruit of regeneration. With deliberate intent they started their great plans by denying God a place in their councils. They chose as head of the department of culture and international education the most notorious atheist in Europe. He promptly announced the pattern of his program by saying that he had given up the idea of God twenty-five years ago. If these men do succeed in getting peace for our world God will get no glory for it from them. God will not tolerate this (Isa. 42:8; Daniel 5:23). The schemes of lost men will not succeed because they are in opposition to the Word of God. God said to Pharaoh who boasted, "My river is mine own, and I have made it," "Behold, I am against thee."

The Scripture teaches that there are four things wrong with this world. First, the Devil is not in Hell (1 Peter 5:8). He is the prince of the power of the air (Eph. 2:2; 6:12). He is controlling and devouring our governments and the UN. Parents and teachers following so-called progressive education are permitting the Devil to have his way with our youth (Prov. 22:6). The Devil is devouring our churches with strife, dissension, jealousy, envy, distrust and disunity (2 Cor. 11:14; 1 Cor. 3:3, 4; Phil. 2:14). Lukewarmness is too noticeable in the church.

(Rev. 3:15, 16). The Devil is going to and fro in the earth and walking up and down in it (Job 1:7). His destiny is recorded in Rev. 20:2 and 3.

Secondly, the Jews are out of their place (Mal. 3:7). The Jew belongs to Palestine. Since they wished the innocent blood of Christ upon themselves and their children (Matt. 27:24, 25) they have been vagabonds throughout the world to be brought to repentance. The UN should study Gen. 15:18 which reveals Palestine the rightful possession of the Jews, and also Gen. 12:2 and 3. God has punished every nation that has persecuted the Jews. Let us pray for the return of Christ Whose appearance will bring their repentance and peace to this world (Psa. 122:6; Zech. 12:10). The Devil and the Jew being out of place have caused world-wide upheavals and disturbances.

Thirdly, God's people are out of place (2 Chron. 6:14; 2 Cor. 6:17, 18; Rom. 12:1, 2; 1 Cor. 10:31; Heb. 10:26-29). Satan and wicked people can never prevent a revival. God's people being out of place is the only thing that can prevent a revival (Isa. 59:1, 2).

Finally the lost people are out of place (Isa. 55:7; Prov. 29:1). Jesus is the lovely Way that God has provided for our escape from a deserving Hell (Gal. 3:13; 1 Peter 3:18; 2 Peter 3:9; Rev. 3:20).

Pray according to Rev. 22:20.

COMMENTS

On The Sunday School Lesson

by The Editor

Lesson for May 16, 1948

GIVING OUR BEST IN WORSHIP

Lesson: Malachi 1:1, 6-9; 2:13-14; 3:7-12

THE SINCERITY of our worship is usually measured by the manner in which we give for the support of the work which has been ordained of God. Paul in writing to the Corinthians (II Cor. 8) after speaking of the attitude of the "churches of Macedonia" in their giving, which, he says, was "in a great trial of affliction the abundance of their joy and their deep poverty abounded unto the riches of their liberality," makes this significant statement (verse 7)—"Therefore, as ye abound in every good thing, in faith and utterance, and knowledge, and in all diligence, and in your love to us, see that ye (the Corinthians) abound in this grace (the grace of giving) also."

When Luke records the words of Jesus in Luke 6:38, he says, "Give and it shall be given unto you; good measure, pressed down, and shaken together, and running over, shall men give into your bosom." Then he puts the entire burden of the responsibility for the gift upon each and every individual by continuing, "For with the same measure that ye mete withal it shall be measured to you again." In other words, God's scale of weights and measures should become our measuring vessel or else He will use the measure that we use to hand back to us that which we will deserve for our own parsimony.

As we read our lesson text we find searching words to our day and age. Note the attitude of the Lord toward those who "offered polluted bread upon the altar," and who brought "blind, lame and sick," animals for sacrifice. Such were not acceptable to the Lord. We should always give of the best we have for the Master's use.

Here would be a good place to review the entire matter of "Tithing." Has God changed? No! Not in all ages. If He expected His chosen people to "bring all the tithes into the storehouse," in the time of Malachi, who are we to say that it only applied to Old Testament times and unto the Jewish people? Christ for all time has put His stamp of approval on this manner of giving when He says, "This ye ought to have done, and not left the other undone." If you do not know what we mean, get out your Bibles and read carefully and prayerfully Matthew 23:23 and Luke 11:42.

Have you ever tried to "prove the Lord" as He urges you to do? (Malachi 3:10). Have you ever had the joy of the "open windows of blessing" which He has promised? Do not follow this way by mere compulsion of scriptural fiat, but because of the love which you have in your heart for the Master and because of your great desire to propagate the "faith once delivered to the saints." You will then have double reward and will really be "Giving Your Best in Worship."

Remember that in life, as in a mirror, you never get more out than you put in.

If we let him that is without faults cast the first stone, there won't be many stones flying.

If after Kirk ye bide a wee
There's some wad like to speak to ye.

If after Kirk ye rise and flee,
We'll all feel cold and stiff to ye.

The one that's in the seat with ye
Is stranger here than you maybe.

All here hae got their fears and cares—
Add your soul unto our prayers.
Be you our angel unawares.

Submitted by C. W. Yoder who found it lettered on an old church some time ago.

Laid to Rest

BOWERS. Harley Allen Bowers, Lawrence, Michigan, a high school student, was suddenly called from this life by a tragic accident, while skating, breaking through thin ice and drowning. He was a fine Christian boy and a faithful member of the church, regularly attending until moving to Michigan.

LEWALLEN. Mr. Daniel Lewallen, of Goshen, Indiana, was called to his heavenly home on January 12. Service was conducted from the First Brethren Church of Goshen. Rev. Ronk was just getting started in his work there and as we had served when Mrs. Lewallen was called home, we were asked to take part in the service. A large family of children, grandchildren and great grandchildren are left to carry on the family heritage. He was a member of the Goshen church.

HOSTETLER. Mrs. Rebecca Hostetler was called to her heavenly home on February 6. She had passed her ninetyeth birthday. Her husband preceded her many years before. She was a faithful member of the First Brethren Church of South Bend for many years, coming here from the North Liberty Church. She was one of those gracious and kind Christian lives admired by all.

FORSYTHE. Mrs. Lula Forsythe, Detroit, Michigan, passed from this life to be with her Lord on January 26. She was a former faithful member of the First Brethren Church of South Bend and was brought to this church for her funeral service.

STICKLER. Mr. Edward Stickler passed from this life to his eternal home on January 27. He was a son-in-law of a former well known minister in Indiana, Rev. W. W. Summers. Burial was at North Manchester, Indiana.

JESTER. Miss Lillie Jester departed to be with the Lord on April 2. She had been a life-long member of the Brethren Church and for forty-five years a member of the South Bend Church. Her great interest in life was her church and though in failing health for some months, she only missed a very few Sundays at church. She was the last of her generation and made the Ralph Jordan home her home, where she was kindly cared for. Funeral services from the church.

MILLER. Rev. E. C. Miller departed to be with his Lord from Miami, Florida, and the service was held in South Bend at the Hay Funeral Home on February 11, conducted by the pastor of the First Brethren Church, the undersigned, where he still kept his membership, although he had not resided in this city for some time. He was laid to rest beside the wife and son who preceded him some years before. The large art window in this church is in memory of his son who departed this life when only twelve years of age. Rev. Miller was quite prominent as an evangelist and known to many of our people. Most of his preaching was in interdenominational meetings.

Our deepest sympathy goes out to the bereaved. May the Father of mercies and the God of all comfort bind up the broken hearts. Five members of a church in one quarter is indeed a very heavy death loss.

Claud Studebaker, South Bend, Indiana.

AMSTUTZ. Ulrich Amstutz, son of Fredrick and Barbara Steiner Amstutz was born August 6, 1869 near Sterling, Ohio. He was a member of a family of eleven children all of whom have preceded him to the spiritual world with the exception of one brother, Fred, of Barberton, Ohio, and one sister, Mrs. Ella Guittar of Canton, Ohio. He was united in marriage with Mary Hartzler, March 22, 1892. To this union were born five children: Mrs. Beulah Boss, Mrs. Vida Swainhart, Mrs. Estella McMillan, Harvey J. and Mrs. Ruth Karsten. Also surviving are seven grandchildren and two great-grandchildren.

He was a member of the Smithville Brethren Church for fifty years. He loved the fellowship and many friendships of his church. He lived simply and found his greatest pleasures in his family, his friends and in walking over his fields and watching the growth and development of his crops. He spent all the years of his life within a radius of a few miles from his birthplace.

He leaves a large circle of friends as he departs to his heavenly home. He was faithful throughout, reverencing God's Word in all things. He will be missed by his family and by God's people. His body was interred at the Smithville Cemetery. Services were conducted by his pastor, the undersigned, and assisted by his former pastor, Rev. J. G. Dodds.

Vernon D. Grisso, Smithville.

News From Our Churches

MASONTOWN, PA. MEETING

Our meeting with Rev. Clayton Berkshire, of New Lebanon, Ohio, in the pulpit is now a memory. Many hindrances appeared as the meeting began. The Evangelist, because of car trouble was not able to be on hand for the first service. The writer took over on short notice, and when the Ashland Choir was scheduled to be here it looked as though it would be necessary for some one to substitute for them. They managed to get in in time for a belated appearance to a large audience.

Some of the members of the church were kept from attending the meeting because of sickness, operations and funerals. The writer had three funerals, three Sundays straight which affected the attendance somewhat. On Wednesday night the Evangelist began his part of the meeting. The average attendance was very good throughout the meeting, though there were numerous individuals whose names adorn the membership roll who were absent from all services. Excuses are numerous, but reasons are few. The first week also turned out to be a week of rain which proved somewhat of the various obstacles, the average attendance for the meeting, not counting the Choir night (which was 334) was 136 plus. This being the home church of the Evangelist seemed to bring out numerous relatives and friends who came out to see the boy of other days, as well as to hear him.

The visible results of the meeting consisted of 32. Ten of these were reconsecrations. Seventeen have been baptized, two of which will go to another church. Fifteen were received in to membership the last night of the meeting following baptism and confirmation service, and one by relation from another church. The time seemed too short to complete as much as desired, therefore the field has not been completely gleaned or a place reached where there is nothing to do. Our good wishes go with Rev. Clayton Berkshire and his family as they returned to the Ohio Pastorate.

Freeman Ankrum.

OLDEST MEMBER OF THE BETHLEHEM, VIRGINIA, BRETHREN CHURCH HONORED

The following account of the honoring of Bethlehem's oldest member, was sent to us by Brother John F. Locke, pastor of the Bethlehem Brethren Church.

"Mrs. Worth M. Logan, Sr., mother of County Chairman Hugh A. Logan, was honored by her grandson, Mark A. Logan and his wife, at their home "Hillcrest" near Bridgewater, on April 9th. Immediately upon arrival the guest of honor was presented with a beautiful shoulder corsage of mixed flowers. During the evening Mrs. Logan was the recipient of many lovely gifts and the warmest of wishes for many more happy birthdays. The centerpiece of the dining table was a large and elaborately decorated birthday cake.

"Mrs. Logan will be remembered by many of the older residents of the County as Miss Elizabeth Beauregard Johnson, daughter of the late A. J. and Mary Ann Kyger Johnson. She was born and reared at the ancestral home near Inglewood on the Shenandoah River.

"Despite her age, Mrs. Logan is active and alert. She keeps fully abreast of the time through reading and public contact. A great lover of flowers, she has a special gift of artistic flower arrangement. She is still actively engaged in growing many flowers, and local florists are anxious to secure any surplus she produces. For many years the flowers she has brought regularly to the Bethlehem Brethren Church have proved a blessing to the atmosphere of divine worship.

"A bountiful turkey dinner with all the trimmings was served to a great number of relatives and friends."

A T T E N T I O N

PENNSYLVANIA PASTORS AND SUNDAY SCHOOL SUPERINTENDENTS

According to the action taken at the last District Conference (Berlin—1947) the Sunday Schools are to raise a special offering for General Sunday School work in the District. It was suggested that the offering on Children's Day be turned over to the Pennsylvania Sunday School Board. Envelops will be provided for this special offering.

Plan now for a large gift for our District Sunday School work.

Send all money to:

Rev. Percy Miller,
107 Beverly Court,
Rural No. 2,
Apollo, Pennsylvania.

HAVE YOU FORGOTTEN SOMETHING?

May 16th Is The Date
First National Brethren Youth Offering
$7,500.00 for First Year's Work

The New Look

Rev. J. Milton Bowman

SO MANY things are taking on a new look. Automobiles, clothes, railroad trains, washing machines and many other materials, too numerous to mention. The young people's work of the Brethren Church is taking on a decidedly new look. With conditions in the world in a state of turmoil, Gil Dodds felt a sense of urgency to get young people into full-time Christian service as rapidly as possible. Thus Brethren Youth, Inc. was born. In a very short time, and with some growing pains, it has blossomed into a decidedly new and far-reaching dynamic for the Brethren Church. Let us review again the four-point purpose:

1. A Personal Walk with Christ, Daily (a God-planned Life).
2. To Promote the Advantages of Being Brethren.
3. To Develop in Brethren Youth a Desire for Vital Bible Study.
4. To Train Witnesses for Christ at Home and Abroad.

In order to promote these new objectives among Brethren Youth, we shall frankly place before you some of our hopes and desires. Every Brethren young person should have the new life in order to have the new look. "If any man (young person) be in Christ, he is a new creature (creation): old things have passed away; behold, all things have become new." 2 Cor. 5:17. If our young people take on this new life and look, the Brethren Denomination will have a new birth of vitality. We need the prayers and the financial backing of the Brotherhood to accomplish our hopes. The national conference has permitted the setting up of a Brethren Youth Board with permission to lift an annual offering in May. A Youth Director, Charles Munson, has been chosen by the Board to have his headquarters at Ashland. He will be responsible directly to the Brethren Youth Board and to the President of Ashland College for the work of counselling students, setting up Christian Organizations on the Campus, and helping young people with their Spiritual problems. Brethren Youth, Inc. hopes to co-ordinate the activities of Summer Camps, Sisterhood, Christian Endeavor, and Boys' Brotherhood, helping them pull together in one great forward movement for Christ and His Kingdom.

We want Brethren Youth to be well-rounded in Christian character, with a definite Spiritual emphasis. The challenge is great. Our young people are vital to us. We want them; we need them; we must get them; we must teach them and win them. As Brethren Youth accept the new life in Christ, all things will become new. The denomination will take on a new look; the College, Seminary, the Benevolent Boards, the Churches, the Young People's Organizations themselves. Is there a greater project in the Brotherhood to challenge your loyalty and help? Remember the First Annual Brethren Youth Offering May 16. Pray vitally and give liberally for Brethren Youth.

—Nappanee, Indiana.

Power requires a channel and a contact; therefore we have no real power in prayer until we are in touch with God.

What Does The Future Hold For Brethren Youth?

CHRIST WILL POINT THE WAY
WE CAN HELP THEM WALK IN IT
A GENEROUS OFFERING IS A GOOD START

The Brethren Evangelist

Vol. LXX, No 20 May 15, 1948
Missionary Board Number

Manitowish Library
Manchester College
North Manchester, Ind.
comp

THE BRETHREN EVANGELIST

Published weekly, except the last week in August and
the last week in December.

THE BRETHREN PUBLISHING COMPANY

Ashland, Ohio

PRUDENTIAL COMMITTEE

J. E. Stookey, President N. G. Kimmel, Vice-President
J. G. Dodds, Secretary-Treasurer

EDITOR OF PUBLICATIONS—F. C. Vanator

BUSINESS MANAGER—G. S. Baer

EDITOR MISSIONARY NUMBER—E. M. Riddle

CONTRIBUTING EDITORS

Dr. Charles A. Bame Rev. Dyoll Belote

DEPARTMENTAL EDITORS

Dr. C. F. Yoder, Brethren Doctrine
Rev. N. V. Leatherman, Practical Church Problems
Rev. J. G. Dodds, National Goals
Dr. R. F. Porte, Brethren Church History

PLEASE REMEMBER: All material for publication in the Evangelist must be in the hands of the editor at least three weeks before the desired date of publication, to assure same to appear in desired issue. This refers to announcements particularly.

TERMS OF SUBSCRIPTION: $1.50 per year in advance.
CHANGE OF ADDRESS: In ordering change of address always
give both old and new addresses.

REMITTANCES: Send all money, business communications, and contributed articles to:

THE BRETHREN PUBLISHING COMPANY
ASHLAND, OHIO

Entered as second class matter at Ashland, Ohio. Accepted for mailing
at special rate, section 1103, act of October 3, 1917. Authorized
September 3, 1928.

The

Field Secretary

Travels

April has been the most unusual month in many ways. Our services were sought for every week end, one after another and not one conflict.

Bryan—The first Sunday was spent in Bryan, Ohio, where they are waiting for one month for the new pastor, Brother E. J. Black. This was a former pastorate and even though I have appeared there in conferences and on other occasions, this was an unusual day and the attendance both morning and evening was far beyond my expectations. This is the home of Brother Dale Roesch, who with his wife, is serving in Puerto Rico. Largely due to this fact the Bryan Church presented their largest Easter offering by a big margin. What a change if every church could support a missionary! For many years this church has been most generous in her support to our institutions and the church has prospered.

Waterloo—Brother Virgil Meyer, while conducting special services at Nappanee, Ind., had arranged that I appear in his church on the second Sunday of the month. This was another five-year pastorate of the undersigned. A very fine morning audience; a fellowship luncheon at noon honoring the former pastor; the opportunity to speak to the Young People's group in the evening and to share in their social hour; a number of calls on the sick and aged; besides the very great joy of being a guest with a dinner party of fourteen at Black's Tea Room, celebrating the 55th wedding anniversary of Mr. and Mrs. C. E. Klingaman, on Monday night; all surely afforded great opportunity for service and a very pleasant week end. Here, too, are people of prayer and fine support for the Church as a whole.

New Lebanon—Likewise the third week end while Brother Clayton Berkshire was serving in evangelistic meetings in his home church, the Field Secretary preached morning and evening in this splendid church. This is the home of Mrs. Dale Roesch, mentioned in the first paragraph of this report. This church is equally loyal in standing behind Mrs. Roesch. Also every appeal of the Church received a hearty response from New Lebanon. This church is also the home of the new president for Ashland College, Dr. Glenn Clayton.

While in this community, like all the others, the interests of the college and Mission Board were cared for.

Cumberland—The last major trip of the month took me to the Cumberland Church to a day of victory and rejoicing. The pastor, Brother Paul Naff and his people had planned this special all-day celebration, because of the indebtedness on their church being paid off. They labored with their debt and other problems for eleven years. It is no wonder that this was a day of great rejoicing. The writer spoke at the morning service, and for the young people in the C. E. hour. Brother C. A. Messler of Linwood, president of the Southeastern District Mission Board, was the afternoon speaker, and Brother I. D. Bowman, a former pastor for a year and a half, was the evening messenger.

The decorations, the unique arrangement planned by the pastor for the mortgage burning, and the fellowship at noon and evening meals with a fine spirit of cooperation, made it a day long to be remembered by all who attended. The congregation was commended by every speaker and exhorted to grasp the unlimited opportunity before them now to become a greater church than ever before. It was my first visit to this church but to the Brotherhood let me say that I am much pleased with our church in Cumberland.

Other shorter trips and addresses were made during the month.

Brethren, let us give a faithful and diligent testimony in these dark, uncertain days that some of the thousands of unbelieving and sinful people of our day might be won for Jesus Christ.

—E. M. Riddle.

Clear Alternatives --

The Christian Religion or No Religion

by R. F. Porte

Readers, take note: This is a most timely article. It is well written and gives to all a warning. It is deserving of your careful reading.—E. M. R.

A widely publicized minister makes this striking observation: "It has been estimated that 40 billion people have lived on this earth since the birth of Christ. Not more than three per cent of this number have enjoyed systems of government guaranteeing them human liberty and personal rights . . . And this small minority have resided in the United States since the year 1789 when the Constitution was adopted!" Senator James O. Eastman of Mississippi is quoted as making this statement, "For several years I have seen the storm clouds gathering. I have seen conditions become darker and more threatening. I have seen both political parties become more servile, until today they are merely errand boys of organized racial and religious minority groups. We see today the rights, the basic and fundamental liberties of a free people bartered away in order to secure votes for politicians to capture or retain public office."

It is possible to multiply references to other ministers and statesmen who deplore the growing spiritual apostasy. One of our own ministers of national renown and of sacred memory used to say repeatedly during the last war, "This war is a battle between Christianity and paganism." John Adams said, "Liberty is a moral right derived from the Legislator of the universe." Added to this quotation is this one from Abraham Lincoln who said, "Liberty is right because Christ said so and Christ is God."

With this present year, Representative George Bender of Ohio spoke on the floor of the House in these words, "We need today a religious re-awakening. We need a reassertion of the religious yearnings we have noted in history . . . Nothing less will fortify us for the world of the future." Mr. Bender quoted Gilbert K. Chesterton as having said, "Christianity has NOT been tried and found wanting, it has been found difficult and not tried." One of the recent slaps against evangelical Christianity is the United States Supreme Court decision in favor of the theistic mother in Champaign, Illinois against teaching the Bible in the public schools. Without going into the matter further one is made to feel that the wave of atheism and godlessness is getting too close to things dear and precious to all Christian people. The attorney for the Champaign school board made this hopeful remark, "I do not believe that this decision will live in our law." Rev. J. B. Cartledge, chairman of the committee which arranged the program for teaching Bible in the schools, said, "This seems to commit the United States to a definite irreligious attitude." Christian Americans will watch with much concern the future encroachments of organized atheism in this great nation which grew under the teaching of faith in the living God and the Holy Bible. At this point I want to inject this question, How much concern do the people who name the Name of Christ have toward the Christian faith in the light of the multitude of facts which indicate violent opposition to the faith they profess to believe and hold dear?

Standing on the deck of the U. S. Battleship Missouri in Japanese waters receiving the surrender of the Japanese forces, Gen. Douglas MacArthur made this statement, "We have had our last chance. If we do not now devise some greater and more equitable system, Armageddon will be at our door . . . The problem basically is theological and involves a spiritual recrudescence and improvement of human character that will synchronize with our almost matchless advance in science, art, literature and all material and cultural developments of the past two thousand years. It must be of the spirit if we are to save the flesh."

Another top general of our army, General Dwight Eisenhower has said, "Unless we have a spiritual awakening modern civilization is doomed to destruction in a cloud of atomic dust." None other than the famous statistician, Roger Babson warned the nation in these words, "There is a 50-50 chance of a spiritual awakening so that world war III will not occur."

The most outstanding leaders of the nation speaking not as people directly connected with Christian work, are pointing out spiritual dangers. This is a challenge to men and women of good will and vital faith in God and His Son our Savior to be positive in their belief in the Christian faith. Another writer believes that we will not fight Russia on the battlefield but need to fight what he calls "infiltration of anti-Christian doctrine." The trend is definitely anti-God, anti-Christ, and anti-Bible.

Now for some brief conclusions, first if Babson should be right then we Christians ought to place enough weight on the Christian side of the balance. This cannot be done with empty church pews, chiding and bickering like termites against pastors, and stingy giving to the spreading of the Gospel of the Grace of God.

The next observation I would make is that we need to combat the moral down draft of the recent war. Why shouldn't Christians be conscientious objectors not only against killing but against an institution which destroys the spiritual life among people. It isn't necessary to mention the most atrocious crimes recorded in our newspapers and magazines to awaken much more righteous indignation than seems apparent at the present moment. Few of us know anything about the heartaches in the bodies of millions today. If people on the earth now will neglect to hear the Word of God, do these heedless ears expect to hear the sweet music of the Heavenly choirs? It wasn't so in the days of Noah nor in the days of Jesus.

The people of our time, like some other times, are not concerned. This doesn't mean that our people have not been warned. It means that they just don't believe the spoken word. Belief always inspires action. Even if the preacher fails to blow the trumpet with certain sound the people do not escape judgment and people have preachers in every community whose witness is Christ-centered and Spirit-inspired. Moral conditions witness to the Spiritual need and the sad thing is that many people know enough but do not care. They hope to enter Heaven by pointing out to God certain people who failed to do their Christian duty, as if God did not already know about everybody. Writers and radio people are discovering that the popular taste is shoddy and not discriminating and spiritual.

Another condition among us is self-centeredness. We live and act as if the other person was all wrong and blocking the way of true progress, no one will confess to the error they exemplify. That is, there is little self-examination today. Too many people try to convince themselves that their woe is all from the outside. Just remember that when the disciples discovered they had the Lord of Heaven and earth with them in that storm tossed boat on Galilee, "there was a great calm." Perhaps we know all about the existence of Christ but do not know Him as Lord of all. We may not like our neighbor as a bosom companion but if his house is on fire we forget self in the interest of community need. We have some neighbors in other countries as well as in our own country, whose houses are on fire and whose souls are perishing. How can we save our souls and let the souls of millions perish? I think we are getting awake to the fact that our neighbor's misfortune has some direct effect on our well being.

America had Christians and churches before she had the constitution and the Federal government. Every dying civilization and government failed to have the Eternal Rock in the foundation. Great Americans today see the insidious destruction to the foundation of American greatness. Let each citizen attend to the truth which can make us free and preserve for us the integrity and sovereignty of America. America fosters the Church, the Sovereignty of God and the Saviorhood of Christ.

—South Bend, Indiana.

The entire church will be grieved to hear of the passing of Mrs. F. W. Garber, wife of the pastor of our new mission church at Cheyenne, Wyoming. Mrs. Garber was called away on Sunday, April 25. A more detailed report will follow.

Prayer is the stairway to heaven
And whoever will may climb;
The child in its morning beauty,
The sage bowed down with time,
The king in his royal raiment,
The outcast clothed in crime,
Prayer is the stairway to heaven
And whoever will may climb.

Prayer

Can Our Faith Stand the Test?

By Thoburn C. Lyon

We live in the days of atom bombs, aircraft capable of delivering them over long distances at incredible speed, ideological rivalries among the nations, and even duplicity and hypocrisy within the church. Any one of these things is enough to try the souls of men; in combination, they present so severe a trial that we are led to ask: Can our faith stand the test?

In our pressing concern, it is easy to become self-centered and to fall into the error of supposing that no preceding age ever faced our difficulties. We may even imagine that if some of the faith heroes of Old Testament days lived in OUR day their faith might not have stood the test—yet Paul wrote to the Corinthians, "There hath no temptation taken you but such as is common to man."

With a little more careful thought, we may see that these words of Paul still stand. Is the prospect of death by means of the atom bomb any more terrifying than the thought of fighting with wild beasts in the arena, or of being daubed with pitch and serving as a human torch for a garden party of the Roman emperor?

Job never knew the pleasures or the curse of modern civilization, but he saw the loss of all his property, and his loved ones were slain with the sword. He endured much physical suffering, and was taunted by false friends and a nagging wife—but his faith stood the test as he exclaimed, "Though he slay me, yet will I trust him!"

When we consider the persecutions of the early church (briefly referred to in Hebrews 11:36-38), most of our own "tests" shrink into triviality, yet the faith of those heroes also stood the test.

One of the hardest tests faith is called upon to stand is that of hypocrisy and faithlessness. Again, this is not new. Jesus condemned the religious leaders of his day as hypocrites. Paul wrote of "false brethren," and of others who had betrayed him. Both Paul and Jesus were put to death by those who should have been working with them.

When a minister, for example, is found living a life of open sin, shamelessly, many who had respected him and his office lose faith even in the God he had professed to serve—but there are numerous records even in the Bible of lewd priests who used their office only for their own selfish advancement: "There hath no temptation taken you but such as is common to man!"

The question is not whether our faith will stand the test, but rather whether or not we HAVE faith. Even a mustard-seed faith will stand the test today—just as it always has.

Our great need today is for a better knowledge of God, as a basis for faith. This may be achieved in numerous ways.

A faithful preaching of the plain scriptures, rather than discourses on world affairs or theological speculations, is of definite value.

Of even greater importance, perhaps, is a regular, personal reading and study of God's word—not just a hasty, casual reading, but one that pauses to weigh the meaning and consider the acts and purposes of God. Read it as though God were speaking expressly to you, and you were hearing it for the first time.

Finally, practice your knowledge. Try to impart your newfound faith to another; be ever ready with a reason for him that asks. Like the bread which our Lord broke, faith grows and increases with the sharing, instead of becoming less.

In such ways as this we may build up our faith (Jude 20). Once established and given the normal requirements for growth, our faith will stand the test—ANY test. We can then say, with Paul (Romans 8:35-39):

"Who shall separate us from the love of Christ! shall tribulation, or distress, or persecution, or famine, or nakedness, or peril, or sword?"

"As it is written, For thy sake we are killed all the day long; we are accounted as sheep for the slaughter.

"Nay, in all these things we are more than conquerors, through him that loved us.

For I am persuaded that neither death, nor life, nor angels, nor principalities, nor powers, nor things present, nor things to come,

"Nor height, nor depth, nor any other creature, shall be able to separate us from the love of God, which is in Christ Jesus our Lord."

—Washington, D. C.

It is good for us to keep some account of our prayers, that we may not unsay them in our practice.—Matthew Henry.

Missions are the Concern of Christians

By George S. Hagenbuch

As I sit in my study contemplating the subject of this article, my mind visualizes the many people of the world: the black race, the yellow race, the red race and the white race; the people of Europe, of Africa, of South America, of India, and the Asiatic Countries as well as those here on the North American Continent. I see the condition of these peoples and countries, their appalling need materially and physically; but greatest of all, I see the spiritual need of these people; these people who are without hope, dead in their trespasses and sins; these people who are greatly in need of spiritual enlightenment; these people who are begging for help who are seeking a way of escape yet finding none, for their sin sick weary souls. Their cries ascend to God for help, yet they seem to receive none. I also see the Church, the body of professing believers, here in this land of ours, they have more than the necessities of sustaining life, freedom of worship, freedom from fear, and they sit complacently by and feel that the welfare of the souls of the rest of the people of the world are of no concern of theirs. The reason for such an attitude is that too many of the church going people fail to realize that "Missions are the concern of Christians!"

The lack of missionary zeal is evident in many Christians today. It is very trying for the pastor who is vitally interested in the advancing progress of missions, to quicken his people in all out effort to advance the cause of this work in his field of labor. Many of us who are pastors have lived and had close association with those who have ventured out as foreign missionaries for the Lord. Some of them have even laid down their lives for the faith once and for all times delivered unto the saints. It was for the love of those outside of Christ, that enabled these servants of the living God to lay down their lives that these people may also know Him, whom to know aright is life eternal.

The reason the average Church member is indifferent toward missions is because they see no evident worthwhileness in their being interested in missions. They think and feel that since it does not benefit their church in any way, why take an interest in missions?

I wonder what would have happened had the Lord Jesus been thus minded? He could have gathered a people about Himself and been very successful within His own group. If that would have happened, where would we be today? In a heathen land, worshipping a false god, without any assurance of salvation? Certainly! But the missionary passion of the Lord was such that He earnestly sought the lost and dying, striving to lead them back to God. Oh, Christian! Awake, arise out of your sleep, be up and doing in all phases of the high calling to which you are called, because, Missions are the concern of all Christians.

The chief and foremost concern of the early Church was for those who were lost in the regions beyond Jerusalem. The chief and foremost concern of the Church today should be for those beyond our immediate fields of endeavor; whether in our home land or across the oceans in the lands of darkness and need. Until the Church today is willing to aid in the spreading of the gospel to those in need, it will lack greatly in carrying out the great commission of the Lord Jesus and in a spiritual growth. There are too many in churches today who feel that the heathen should look after himself, and find the way to God the best he knows how. But the Lord Jesus says to all who love Him, "Go ye into all the world, and preach the gospel to every creature." (Mark 16:15). It is an all-inclusive command of Jesus, it leaves out no one, but rather takes in the whole assembly of believers as those sent to carry the glad tidings of salvation. Jesus tells us that the field is the world, therefore, it is a worldwide mission of the Christian Church. Have you been sharing in this command of the Lord?

I realize that it is an impossibility for every one of us to go to the mission fields, but it is not an impractical thing for every one of us to be concerned about the advancement and growth of activity on the mission field and in missionary endeavor. The fact is that we as Christians should be vitally concerned about missions, to the extent that we will enter into a definite agreement between God and ourselves to support the work, by means of earnest prayer and financial support. There are many Christians who are willing to help in missionary work, until it affects the purse; but the minute it concerns that phase of the individual they are reluctant to help. Let me remind you that the individual Christian, or the church that is willing to give full support to missions is the individual or the church that grows in Grace and in the Love of God, receiving such blessings unable to be described for they are aiding in the winning of souls for the Lord Jesus. The blessings that Paul received as a missionary compensated for all the hardships and trials thrust upon him. (2 Timothy 4:7-8).

It was the concern of the early Church for the lost that finally reached out and brought us unto the Lord and it should definitely be the concern of every Christian today to be anxious in reaching others with the gospel of Jesus Christ, both here at home and abroad. For Missions are definitely the Concern of Christians. Are YOU concerned about Missions? God grant, that if you are not now Mission-minded, that by the Grace of God you will be so from now on.

The Lord Jesus depends on Christians to do His work of love. Can He depend on you to fulfill your obligation to Him?

—Fremont, Ohio.

Fishers or Failures

by Henry Bates

Throughout the Christian Church today a call is being heard—a call for the winning of souls. While our Lord was on the earth He told a group of early followers, "I will make you fishers of men," and the call that is being heard today is the echo of those words. From its inception on the day of Pentecost the Christian Church has had one great task to perform. Not the building of great cathedrals; not the raising of great sums of money by means of card parties, bingo, dances, suppers and bazaars; or the furnishing of a program of entertainment for the young people of the community; nor yet the work of social welfare. The one great task which the church has been commissioned to perform, its primary task, is the winning of souls to Jesus Christ. If we fail in this we fail to be a Christian Church.

In light of the above truths, just how do we stand as a church? Have we gone "all out" for this type of missionary program? In recent years there has been a tendency to substitute relief for religion—a tendency to emphasize the physical needs of mankind at the apparent expense of the spiritual needs. I read recently, with some degree of interest, the following letter, taken from the "Gospel Messenger."

"Prior to the war the Gains for the Kingdom section of the Gospel Messenger listed up to three hundred baptisms weekly. During the war the gains were few and we said it was caused by the war. What shall we say now? The war has been over for two years and the gains are still few.

"The service program of relief has become a project of major interest and certainly it must continue unabated until the world needs are met. It is a wonderful way to dramatize our teaching of brotherhood. However, we are a church; kingdom building is our business. I am glad for it. I would like to see an interest equal to our service interest manifested on the part of our local churches in evangelism. If our neighbor is starving physically we hasten to feed him, but when he is starving spiritually and does not have the Bread of Life we are inclined to neglect him.

"I am wondering if we cannot have both a great relief program and an equally great kingdom building program in our local churches. Thus the church would indeed be the church."

Could the same be said of our own church? Have we become so engrossed in the program of world relief that we have lost sight of the program of world evangelism which the Lord had in mind when He said, "Go ye into all the world and preach the Gospel . . ." To quote from Brother Lindower's Moderator's Address of our last General Conference, "Are we just responsible to write checks for Chinese or European relief?"

Imagine the results if every congregation in the Brotherhood decided today to enter wholeheartedly into a program of evangelism. Not just a two-week endeavor with the pastor and the evangelist doing the work; not merely a drive to add new names to the church rolls; but an all-out effort on the part of every born-again Christian to lead the unsaved to Jesus Christ. An all-out effort on the part of every born-again Christian to become a fisher of men and a winner of souls. If every member of each of our congregations took seriously Christ's exhortation that we become fishers of men, in every community now served by Brethren churches dozens of families living apart from Him would gladly receive the words of eternal life.

God is calling each one of us today to become leaders in this great missionary movement—He is calling each one of us to become fishers of men. How well will we respond to this call? Can we be satisfied to hear Christ say, "Go out into the highways and byways and compel them to come in," and do nothing about it? Can we be satisfied to look about us each day and see men and women, boys and girls, who have never accepted Christ as their Lord and Saviour—men and women, boys and girls whose ultimate destiny is Hell—and not lift a hand or a voice to save them? Brethren, the time has come for us to awaken to the responsibility that is ours. The time has come for us as a church, to enter into a real missionary program, a program of soul-winning or evangelism, and each one of us might well pray the words of the Chinese Christians—"Revise Thy church, beginning with me."

Is this an easy task? Of course it isn't! When was evangelism ever easy? But that is no excuse for failure to do the will of God. When the Lord calls people to become fishers of men He gives them the necessary strength to overcome difficulties and to surmount obstacles, and what is true of men and women as individual soul-winners is true also of the church as a whole. What the church needs most today is the courage to begin! As the days go by, the weak heart and the flabby muscles will become strong, and before too long we will be true fishers for the Lord. Let us begin today!

"Rescue the perishing, duty demands it;
Strength for thy labor the Lord will provide;
Back to the narrow way patiently win them;
Tell the poor wanderer a Saviour has died."

—St. James, Maryland.

Foreign Missions

Meet

Miss Veda Liskey, B.S., R.N.

Missionary under appointment to Africa

Biographical sketch by her pastor, J. F. Locke

It is my pleasant duty to perform an introduction. This sketch is to help you get better acquainted with a very fine Christian person, Miss Veda Liskey. As one who has always held missionaries in special esteem and respect, it now becomes my high privilege to write about one that I have watched attain to this estate. In the New Testament church the missionary occupied the top listing. (See I Cor. 12:28, for instance.) Today those who would honor Christ by obedience, and follow the New Testament, must still accord them first place, not only in respect, but in our interest, gifts and prayers.

Someone says that Phillips Brooks was once asked what would be the first thing he would do if he were called upon to become the pastor of a broken down church, its building lost by fire, unable to support a pastor, torn by internal dissension.

"I should get all the people together," he replied, "preach the greatest sermon I could on world-wide missions, and take the best offering I could for work in heathen lands."

The church that isn't missionary is scheduled to die. We all know that. But besides talking about missions, preaching, and praying about missions, or even giving for missionary work, there has to be something more: SOME-BODY HAS TO GO!

Consciously, or unconsciously, Veda Liskey has been getting ready to go to Africa for a long time. I first met her approximately twenty years ago when I became her pastor. She was a bright-eyed, smiling, friendly little girl in the Bethlehem Brethren Sunday School then. Her parents were members of the Mt. Olive Brethren Church at the time, but they soon changed their membership to the Bethlehem Church, for they had bought a home in the country near the church and less than two miles from Harrisonburg, Virginia. Her parents are both natives of Rockingham County, Virginia, where their family names are well and favorably known.

Veda, with her two sisters, grew up in a Christian home atmosphere. She united with the church in 1928. The Liskey family were always faithful attendants at church services. Into the making of this missionary there went the consistent influence of a home where Christ and His church have had their rightful place. There were other influences, to be sure, but home is strongest.

Veda went to school in the Rockingham County public schools and was graduated from the Dayton, Virginia High School about three miles from her home. After high school she entered Madison College at Harrisonburg, Virginia, one of Virginia's fine state colleges for women. After two years here she was given her elementary school teaching certificate. She then taught in the elementary schools of Rockingham county for six years. Her third year of college work was done in summer sessions at Madison. But Veda had a strong desire to go to her own denominational college, and this ambition was realized when she entered Ashland College, Ashland, Ohio. She was graduated from Ashland in 1943 with the degree of B.S. in Education.

She returned to teaching for another year but she had the desire to do missionary work that kept making itself felt. So in 1944 in the month of July she entered the Medical College of Virginia School of Nursing. Three years later, June, 1947, she was graduated a Registered Nurse, ready to make a comfortable income in a respected and most useful profession which is anything but overcrowded. She did some nursing that summer, but in the fall she was enrolled in Bethany Biblical Seminary, Chicago, where she has nursed what time she could spare to help with her expenses, but her real interest was in preparing for missionary service in Nigeria. Her roommate the first semester was a nurse who had just gotten back from where Veda hoped to go. By faithful study of the Africa handbook prepared for missionaries going out under the Church of the Brethren Board, and from much conversation with her roommate, Veda can already answer most of my many questions about her work. Her post graduate work at Bethany is in the field of Religious Education. By temperament, experience, and training Veda should bring to her chosen field of service "a vessel meet for the Master's use."

But I still haven't explained how Veda Liskey, school teacher and registered nurse, came to be a missionary under appointment to go to a leper colony in Nigeria. I have mentioned her Christian home and the faithfulness of the family to their church. Other religious training and experience, beside the Sunday School, was gained in the Christian Endeavor Society and in the Sisterhood of Mary and Martha, our girls' missionary organization. She held offices in both these organizations.

She attended and participated in numerous young people's meetings, conferences, camps and conventions, some of which were interdenominational and some were under the auspices of either the Brethren or the Church of the Brethren. One summer she attended Church of the Brethren camps in West Virginia and taught D.V.B.S. there one summer.

She recalls that her interest in missions began in childhood when she heard and read missionary stories. Her

Miss Kugler to visit in United States

Miss Luisa Kugler, one of our missionaries in Argentina who is now located in Villa Constitucion, is making plans to come to the United States this summer for a visit among the Brethren Churches here.

The invitation to Miss Kugler to visit in our country was first extended by the National Sisterhood of Mary and Martha, whose annual project is the support of Miss Kugler in her work in South America. Other invitations from organizations and from the Missionary Board followed, and plans are now under way to bring this enthusiastic missionary to visit with us. No definite date has been set for Miss Kugler's arrival, but it is expected that she will be with us for General Conference in August and for some time following. Groups or churches who are interested in scheduling Miss Kugler in their programs may keep this in mind.

Malam, the Chief. Note hands, effects of leprosy.

Baptism service at Garkida Leper Colony

special interest in the African field dates back to stories about James E. Gribble, pioneer missionary of the Brethren church to French Equatorial Africa. The book by his wife, Dr. Florence Gribble, entitled Undaunted Hope was studied by the girls and women of the church. Then she tells me that missionary speakers were well remembered by her, and deep were the impressions they made upon her life and thinking. With proper humility I quote from a set of biographical notes she prepared for me that I might have the record straight in this article. She says, "Interest in missions has throughout the years been nourished and kept in focus by my pastor who is deeply missionary in principle, practice, and preaching. His missionary emphases have been invaluable to me." But in all honesty I feel that Mrs. Mamie Bowman, her Sunday School teacher, should be singled out for such honorable mention. For about thirteen years the young people taught by Mrs. Bowman have supported the American Mission to the Lepers. This class has indirectly been giving to the very work to which Miss Liskey aspires.

But little thought was given to actually going herself, prior to 1943. She says, "I believed that if God so willed that I devote my life to that type of work He would in His own time and way reveal His will to me. For almost a year prior to the beginning of my nurse's training and following a public appeal for commitment I experienced a great unrest and dissatisfaction because I had not answered that call. On June 17, 1944 while attending the District Conference at Mathias, West Virginia another appeal was made for fulltime workers. After much prayer and deliberation, out of obedience, I finally surrendered my life with the idea that I would serve Him wherever I would be called to work."

She tells me that the answer to this call has brought a joy and fellowship with Christ never experienced heretofore. A special dedicatory service at the Conference was conducted by Rev. J. Ray Klingensmith, then missions secretary. It was a climax to that day of decision. Now she could say she was completely obedient. Isa. 52:7 kept running through her mind, "How beautiful upon the mountains are the feet of him that bringeth good tidings, that publisheth peace." These words had been upon her heart months before this experience, she says. Now they applied to her as never before!

When she heard of the cooperation between the Brethren Church and the Church of the Brethren in Nigeria she was thrilled again. For now she felt that the way was open, and, that if accepted, she would do medical missionary work there. Following the advice of Dr. Rufus D. Bowman, Dr. Leland Brubaker and her pastor, she has spent the year taking courses that will be most helpful for the missionary. At Bethany she has found a strong missionary spirit. Almost all the faculty have served on the foreign field. There are students from various foreign lands and a large group of missionaries and missionaries in preparation meet regularly to discuss their chief interest: Missions.

Miss Liskey will sail, God willing, in July. Her missionary outfit has been assembled and will soon be shipped. Some of the local congregations here have enjoyed participation in securing some of these needed things. But Nurse Liskey is a missionary of the whole church and as such will need the backing of us all in prayerful interest. The work in Nigeria is one of the fine things we are doing cooperatively with the Church of the Brethren who began here twenty-five years ago. Many of our Brethren people have met Dr. Bosler and admire his fine spirit. You will like Veda Liskey, too. May this introduction help until something better is afforded.

Patient being treated with injection of Diasone.

Consecrated, intelligent, cheerful, friendly, with teaching and nursing skills, may our Gracious Lord use her dedicated life to His Glory, in the ministry of healing souls and bodies in Africa, and for the edifying of the Body of Christ in Love, here in the homeland. All her life she has been a good girl. Now she has elected to do the best thing. May every blessing of the Triune God be upon her, and her loved ones, as she goes to the white harvest fields of the Dark Continent.

—Maurertown, Va.

• • •

Capital punishment for nonpolitical murder was abolished by Italy in 1944, but was retained for serious offenses against the state. Now a government decree has eliminated capital punishment even for these. The most severe punishment for political crimes is life imprisonment.

FISHERS OF MEN

Studies in Personal Work by C. F. Yoder

PART TWO—CHOOSING A FIELD

LESSON XIII—BEGINNING AT HOME

Text—"If any man provide not for his own, and especially for those of his own house, he hath denied the faith and is worse than an infidel." I Timothy 5:8.

Write answers to the following questions:

1. If it is our duty to provide for the temporal needs for those who are near to us, is it not even more so to provide for spiritual needs? Matt. 6:33.
2. What command for us may be found in Luke 8:38, 39?
3. What may we learn from the example of Andrew? John 1:40-42.
4. What may we learn from Philip? John 1:43-45.
5. Why did Jesus command evangelism to begin in Jerusalem? Luke 24:47.
6. Why did the first missionaries preach first to the Jews, then to the Samaritans, and then to the Gentiles? Rom. 1:16; Acts 1:8; 11:19, 20.

LESSON XIV—HUNTING THE BEST HOLES

Text—"Break up your fallow ground: sow not among thorns." Jer. 4:3.

1. Why should child-evangelism have first place on our program? Matt. 21:15, 16.
2. Why are most people converted in youth? Ecc. 12:1; Eph. 6:4.
3. Why is the Sunday School the "nursery of the church?" Deut. 31:12; II Tim. 3:16.
4. Are unconverted church attendants "fallow ground?" Rom. 10:10; Acts 13:42-46.
5. How about people with Christian training or ancestry? II Tim. 1:5.
6. How about those with Christian environment? Acts 16:13, 14.
7. Why do the needy and suffering offer good ground? James 2:5.

LESSON XV—PARABLE OF THE SOWER—FINDING GOOD SOIL OR MAKING IT.

Text—"I have become all things to all men that I might by all means save some."—I Cor. 9:22.

1. In the first parable of the sower (Matt. 13:1-23) who is the sower, the seed and the soil?
2. Who now, as representatives of Christ, are the sowers? Matt. 28:19, 20; Acts 5:32.
3. Who are gifted and called as helpers? Eph. 4:11-16.
4. Who are the seed by the wayside, and what can be done to save them? Matt. 24:43; II Cor. 3:6; II Tim. 2:24-26.
5. How can we help people among stones? Gal. 6:1; Rom. 14:1-4.
6. How can we rescue those among thorns? Luke 12:16-31; II Tim. 2:25, 26.
7. How can we apply Matt. 7:6? See again Acts 13:45, 46; I John 5:16.

LESSON XVI—FOLLOWING THE BEAM

Text—"I was not disobedient unto the heavenly vision." Acts 26:19

1. Do good inherited qualities form a part of our calling to Christian work? II Tim. 1:5; Gal. 1:15-17.
2. How should missionaries be chosen to be sure of the Spirit's leading? Acts 13:2.
3. How should a field of labor, or a person to be won, be chosen? Acts 13:4.
4. Among countries or groups of people, how can we know which to choose? Acts 13:14-17.
5. In a group of people how can we know to whom to speak? Acts 13:35-52.
6. How can we know if our own feelings are right or not? Acts 16:7-12.
7. What part has the Holy Spirit in guiding us in all these cases? Acts 16:6-10.

Home Missions News

A brief note from Brother C. Y. Gilmer speaks well of the Huntington, Ind. Brethren Church. He says, "We have resided in Huntington one week, and we are enjoying it very much. We know of no other place where we would rather be than here for the present. We have a nice five-room apartment where Brother Oberholtzer formerly lived. And I have a nice study in the church. So far the people here seem to be aggressive, which pleases us very much. They have some splendid ideas for improvement of the church plant."

We are sure that the whole Brotherhood wishes for the Gilmers and the Huntington Church the very best of success in this new pastorate.

Actual work has begun on the new Washington, D. C. Brethren Church. A notice received in the Missionary Office on April 12 stated that part of the foundation was laid.

Men and the Church

by Dr. G. W. Rensch

Part II

The Bible that was God's power in the hands of Wyclif, Huss, Luther, Latimer and John Knox, to save Germany, England and Scotland, was not a mutilated Bible, and the gospel by which John Wesley afterward raised the England of the eighteenth century from moral and spiritual death, was not a mutilated gospel. "Who can forgive sins but God?" And a man who is crushed by a guilty past, knows his "culture" can't do it.

Equally important it is to have men in the pews. Laymen, our laymen should be leaders. Men go to church when other men go. Laymen attract after their kind. Cheap, hidebound, stingy, bigoted, moss-backed laymen will queer any proposition. Strong churches have strong laymen, and strong laymen are the leaders of men in every community.

You men, who spend all of your time and energy in your club, isn't Jesus Christ worthy of some consideration? The one organization in which he is interested is His Church. He founded that. If you don't feel the need of Him now, is that His fault? In crossing that mysterious stream, whose help will you crave most? His help? Then, why are you not fair with him now? Why don't you set about to win that scoffing, ungodly lodge-man for Jesus Christ? Would not that be a big enough job? Instead of being a quiet spectator, why not get into the game? Do your best to win, and life's endeavors under such a tonic will soon make you feel the glow of returning strength.

A gentleman said to a dying soldier, "Son, is there anything I can do for you?" "Yes," was the faint reply, "write a letter to my mother." "Dear Mother: I am dying," said the soldier boy. "I was mortally wounded in the fearful charge we made today against the enemy. I am not ashamed of my part—I did the best I could. Tell my neighbor friends good-by, and kiss Lucile for me. I am sorry to leave you, but I must go. Lovingly, your son, George."

Written at the bottom of the letter were these words: "The above letter was dictated to me by your son.—Abraham Lincoln." The boy read the postscript. Tears were streaming down his face. "Are you the president?" Lincoln said, "I am. Is there anything else I can do for you?" "Yes, you might hold my hand like my mother used to do." The great president of the United States grasped the cold hand of the boy in blue, and in a few minutes his soul had left its mangled tenement of clay, and went to be with its Maker.

He was in the fight. He had fallen in the awful charge. But the presence of Lincoln was worth it all.

Why so many of our men, with the uniform on, choose to stand idly by while the battle is raging and comrades are falling, is more than I can tell. There is no glory in a do-nothing life like that. A real soldier looks with contempt upon the fellow who will parade, but will not fight. Why should he not?

I have but little sympathy with the cry raised by a few well-meaning folk that "our men are given nothing to do." If they mean by that, they are given nothing to do THAT THEY WANT TO DO, there may be some truth in the far-fetched cry. "Nothing to do?" That's the cry of the lazy and the coward! Nothing to do? That's the cry of the straggler while his comrades are fixing bayonets for the charge! The "Nothing to do" fellow is usually at the vaudeville while his plenty-to-do comrades are at the prayer meeting, trying to uphold the dignity of his church in the community.

A fire in a small town threatened to wipe out the entire village. The bucket-brigade was working heroically. A big brawny fellow was leaning against the fence looking on. Now and then some one shouted, "Bill, why don't you help?" The reply always was, "I have no bucket." Of course he hadn't. He didn't want one. That's a correct picture of the "fussy idealist" who is raising the cry, "Our laymen are given nothing to do." O, yes; when the call comes for dinner, if some of our bright men are given a little encouragement they will go to the table, and if they are encouraged a little more they will eat a little.

For years the government tried to locate a man that they might bestow upon him a medal. He could not be found. Who was he? Just a plain farmer, who during the bloody fight of the Union center for the possession of "Bloody Lane" then held by the Confederates, filled his wagon with pies and buns and cakes and coffee, drove upon the battlefield of Antietam, when the shot and shells were felling men all around him, handed these good things out to the men in the ranks, drove off the field, a hero, although to this day unknown.

His patriotism found him something to do. Can't your religion of the blessed Christ do as much for you?

—New Paris, Ind.

A Moravian missionary named George Smith went to Africa. He had been there only a short time and had only one convert, a poor woman, when he was driven from the country. He died shortly after, on his knees, praying for Africa. He was considered a failure.

But a company of men stumbled onto the place where he had prayed and found a copy of the Scriptures he had left. Presently they met the one poor woman who was his convert. A hundred years later his mission counted more than 13,000 converts who had sprung from the ministry of George Smith.

NEWS

From the Christian World

Universal military training was branded as "operations goosestep," another "Hitler youth movement," the sure road to a "police state," as more than 1,000 young adults gathered in Washington for two days of "invasions" of Capitol Hill legislative offices.

Convened as the National Youth Assembly Against Universal Military Training, under chairmanship of the Rev. John Darr, Jr., 29, Congregationalist minister of New York, the meetings attracted delegates from 19 states, and comprised an age average of 21 years.

An anonymous gift of $100,000 for foreign missions to the Presbyterian Church in the U. S. (Southern)—was the first large amount received in a drive for $4,000,000.

The money will be used to rehabilitate mission fields in China, Japan and Korea, to send missionaries back to their posts in pre-war numbers, and to expand efforts in Mexico, Brazil and Africa.

The Rev. W. Harold Row, of Elgin, Ill., director of Civilian Public Service for the Church of the Brethren, has been named director of the Brethren Service Committee, succeeding Dr. Zigler.

Sentiment for prohibition is increasing in the United States and one of the reasons for it is women drinkers, is the opinion of Virgil C. Finnell, chairman of the Prohibition National Committee. He said it is estimated that there are 25,000,000 women drinkers in the United States. "That alarms the American citizen. You strike at the foundations of home and national security when you debauch your women."

He said further, "I predict this nation will be dry within ten years." He said one-third of all the counties in the nation are dry and there are dry areas in wet counties.

In support of the movement to return prohibition to our land, the Prohibition party has commissioned Miss Mabel Hicks of Philadelphia to organize prayer groups throughout the nation to seek divine guidance for itself. Miss Hicks, who is doing the work at her own expense, believes "prayer is greatly needed for our leaders." She has set aside the hour of 6 A. M., to 7 A. M. on each Friday as the "National Hour of Prayer."

Exemption of divinity students from the draft during World War II did not cause "a great rush" to theological schools, according to the Selective Service System. It reported that theological schools were gaining in enrollment during the three years preceding the war at a rate of between three and four per cent per year. During the next four years this increase dropped to an average of just over one per cent. In the year following V-E and V-J Days, the increase rose to five per cent, and in 1946-47 to 15 per cent above 1940-41 enrollment.

The study was based on an analysis of reports received from 651 recognized theological schools.

Tabulation reveals that 541 schools have 10,431 veterans enrolled. Protestant schools have by far the largest number, with 8,973 veterans comprising 37 per cent of the total enrollment in 294 schools. Veterans in 231 Roman Catholic schools number 1,392, or 6.7 per cent of the enrollment, while 16 Jewish schools have 66 veterans, who represent 3.2 per cent of the students.

The missionary transport plane owned by the Swedish Lutheran Church has been in the air 2,618 hours since it began its operations nearly two and a half years ago. Used by all Protestant groups in Sweden it has made trips to India, China and several parts of Africa and has carried about 1,000 missionaries.

Eighty-five per cent of the 1,000 children now being supported in foster homes in Boston have been separated from their natural parents because of unbearable family situations which grew out of too much liquor. This estimate is given by Mrs. Anna M. Mackay, deputy commissioner of child welfare in Boston.

Indian Christians have formed economic development societies to promote the welfare of Christian groups in some areas of India, especially in Madras and the Malabar region.

A prayer-for-peace movement was launched in Valley Stream, N. Y., when a meeting of a thousand people was led in prayer by a nine-year-old girl. Three representatives from the UN staff, a rabbi and a Methodist minister addressed the group.

Spiritual aid for Europe is now the chief emphasis of the emergency planning council of the Missouri Lutheran Synod. The council plans to send personnel to Stuttgart, Germany, to hold seminars for 450 clergymen, to introduce the vacation Bible school into Germany and to send young men to aid in youth work.

One hundred, twenty prominent citizens of Indiana, including educators, business and professional men, religious leaders, spokesmen of labor and parent-teacher associations, representatives, students, farmers, veterans, and temperance workers, signed a statement expressing their disapproval of universal military conscription. They gave six reasons why they are thus opposed.

CHRISTIAN ENDEAVOR TOPIC

W. St. Clair Benshoff, Topic Editor

"Topics copyrighted by the International Society of Christian Endeavor.
Used by permission."

Topic for May 23, 1948

THE WHY OF MISSIONS

Scripture: Romans 10:13-15; Matthew 28:19, 20

For The Leader

IF IT HAD not been for missionary endeavor, we would not have the hope of eternal life. This is the greatest reason for the "Why of Missions." Many people have difficulty seeing any need of missions. They say, "Let the heathen perish." How do we know that? Because they never give to missions, nor do they ever pray for missions. Yet the whole story of gospel endeavor is one of missions. Christ was a foreign missionary, for He preached unto people who were not Jews. He preached in Samaria to the woman at the well. Peter and Paul were missionaries, Paul reaching over into Europe. Church history is rich in the stories of missionary endeavors. Let missions become a side line in our churches, and we will dry up like a desert overnight. Missions must receive our full support.

DISCUSSION

1. CHRIST'S COMMANDMENT. In addition to missions being essential to church growth, there is also the command of Christ. Jesus said, "Go ye therefore" and preach the news of salvation. If it were a man made command, it would be a different story. But Christ said it. Thus we have no alternative but to obey. Well, then, what is involved in obeying this command? First of all, note that it says, "Go!" Idleness never won souls to Christ. Churches and mission points are not built by sleeping Christians. "With the cross of Jesus," we must "Go" and conquer.

2. FURTHER EXPLANATION. This command of Christ is further explained in the word "Ye." Isn't it true that we love to see missions advance? We love to hear of the missionary stories. But the thought that we might be called to go, "Oh, perish the thought. I couldn't leave my father and mother. I have too many plans for myself. Me? Leave all I have to go clear to the end of nowhere? Yes, missions are all right, but I must stay right around here." A well used thought has commendably survived the last war, to the effect, "Had our young men and women been willing to go as missionaries of Christ to the 'uttermost parts,' it would not have been necessary to send them in uniform." Many parents whose "fond little teen-ager" was built for better things than the "horrible ministry or mission field" were torn asunder when "the boss" said, "Go into the army." Which do you want, young people, the army of the Lord, or the army of the nation? Take your choice, for it's going to be one or the other for you.

3. THE NECESSITY. Christ never would have instigated His command to "teach all nations" had there not been any need for it. He was never one to get people to do foolish things. The people of the world one time called the preaching of the Cross "foolishness." But the Word also tells us that "whosoever believeth on Him shall not perish but shall have everlasting life." So, in deciding to be missionaries we may be considered foolish by our friends, but think of the service to God, and souls won? Isn't that worth something? Too, let a Church get careless in its missionary giving, and that church will then go down hill. The more a church gives to missions, the better it survives locally. God blesses the missionary giver, because missions is God's work. Whosoever supports God's work is going to be blessed of Him.

4. MISSIONS MUST PRESENT CHRIST. It is a major tragedy that so much that is done today in the name of missions, is not missions as Christ intended it. Christ-like examples of "sharing clothing and feeding the nations of the earth" are all right as far as it goes. But that is nothing for the hungry and the destitute of the world if the soul is ignored. Entrance into heaven isn't gained by sharing your food, or by accepting that food in gratitude. Entrance into heaven is gained only as a soul is brought face to face with its need of accepting Christ as Savior. Leading a better life, loving our fellowmen, "accepting Christ's way of life," or the social gospel, will NEVER, NEVER, get a person through the pearly gates. Feed a person, clothe him, heal him, give him coal and a better home; plow his fields, stock his barns, and ignore his soul? Such foolishness. For in a few short years the body will perish, and along with it the food, the clothing, the house, the barns, etc., but the soul must go on and on forever. Feed them, yes, but preach unto them Christ, the crucified Son of God as the only remedy for their lost, sinful state.

5. LET'S BE MISSIONARIES. To preserve democracy, our nation, and our religious freedom, we must evangelize the world with missions. Every false, pagan religion in the world has its tentacles thrust into every hamlet and city of our land. They will gain power unless we yield ourselves to Christ as His servants, trust in Him and go as missionaries of His saving grace. To save souls for eternity is the first reason for missions; the second reason is that freedom under God might be preserved. Missions ARE important, aren't they? If all people were just like you, would missions succeed or perish?

GROUP DISCUSSION QUESTIONS

1. What constitutes a good missionary? List his or her qualifications.
2. How can we increase our supply of missionaries? That is, what incentive can we give new ones?
3. What are the weak points of our denominational mission program? Its strong points. Be fair and square in your statements, but give this question a lot of thought and discussion.

SPECIAL NOTE: Your response to the May "Program Booklets" has been gratifying. But some of you have not written. Thus, if you have not written, telling how many booklets you want, and to whom they should be sent, the same system for May will be used for mailing the June issue to your society. The June issue, containing program material, plans for a real Hike and Party, and a C. E. Playlet, will go into the mail about the time you read these words. If in a few days, you do not receive yours, please drop your Topic Editor a line.

Prayer Meeting Topic

Contributed by Rev. C. Y. Gilmer

AMERICA AND HER OPPORTUNITY

Scripture: Isaiah 1:2-18

Missionary Hymns

Prayer

Seed Thought Provokers:

OUR SCRIPTURE applied to Israel is applicable to America. Next to Israel, America has had opportunity to show the world what a Christian nation can be like. Termites from within rather than outside forces has been the primary cause of the fall of great nations.

Columbus dedicated America to God. It was settled largely by Christian people. Even Palestine under the kings, Saul, David and Solomon made no colossal stride such as the United States has made. The credit for this is not natural resources nor the breed of people. God had blueprinted it to show this world what Christianity can do under proper circumstances. But lately we have succumbed to pagan ideology and man-made schemes.

America is the only nation founded on Christian principles. We have been largely spared from devastation and pestilence. Our influence leads the world. We are not imperialistic, and twice our nation has been the deciding factor in stopping world-wide aggression. Our soldiers have represented us in 59 nations either as missionaries or menaces in conduct. Think of the impression foreign students and embassies get of us first hand. Judge what impression the world gets of us through American movies.

As a nation we are not grateful to God and to our heroic founders. We are failing the world in our intemperance of money-making and spending, sinful pleasure and corruption. A generation ago John R. Mott said, "If we do not send a thousand missionaries to Japan, we shall have to send a hundred thousand bayonets." We sent three million bayonets and one hundred thousand of our men died in the conflict. We are indifferent of the claims of God and a needy world upon us. Our religious activities are powerless as to results.

We need sobriety as to our relationship to God and nations. It is by hard work and not by governmental charity that we can make good. We need moral stamina (Prov. 13:34), and missionary vision and conviction (Prov. 29:18). There must be an overall spiritual revival of Christianity. It must start with us Christians (Hos. 6:1) in penitence and prayer (2 Chron. 7:14), personal witnessing and preaching (Matt. 28:19, 20), and giving (Mal. 3:9, 10). A revived America will revive a lost world.

Primarily, the thing that ails America is the condition of our churches. They have lost their soul winning power and are lacking in salt and light (Matt. 5:13, 14; Phil. 2:15, 16). The world is going down in darkness and we do not have the light. We have too much formal religion (Matt. 15:8; 2 Tim. 2:5). We are so accustomed to sin that it does not bother us (Ezek. 9:1-7). Having no burden and passion to save sinners our hands are full of blood (Isa. 1:15; Ezek. 33:8). A man horrified at people dying of starvation by the thousands in a certain city said that in two weeks time he could eat in a cafe without any concern about people dying outside on the streets. There is a spiritual famine in America. God allows us to get into world wars to bring us to repentance (Amos 4:10; Rom. 1:18). God is angry with the nations who ignore Him and His Word (Isa. 63:10; Psal. 9:17). In the end time He shall be justified in emptying out all of His wrath on a Christ rejecting world (Rev. 16:5) and in ushering in a new realm "wherein dwelleth righteousness" (2 Peter 3:10-13).

COMMENTS

On The Sunday School Lesson

by The Editor

Lesson for May 23, 1948

OUR NEED OF PUBLIC WORSHIP

Lesson: Ezra 3:10-13; Psalm 84:1-2; Ezekiel 11:16; 37:25-28

WORSHIP is vitally essential to the life of every man, for man, in his innermost thoughts, is bound to worship something. No tribe of men on earth has ever been found that does not have some form of worship. It has been thought that such tribes might exist, but on contact it was found that even those who seemed devoid of a worship program had the most complicated systems. Yes, man worships—but WHAT?

Our topic deals with "public worship" today. Our questions are: "Do we need public worship?" "Can we not get along without it?" "Is there a vital need filled by the public worship programs that are carried out in our churches?" "Are our worship services really the worship of God?" These and many others come crowding upon us as we think of this topic.

We could readily deal with the subject by continuing to ask questions, but rather we should look upon the definite references that are found in the scriptures. Take the first verse of our lesson, for example. The praising of the Lord by priests and people is central in the story. But note that in this particular case there was a note of sorrow as well as of joy. Something of the old time splendor of worship was done. There are many others—find them.

We wonder if we might do well to have some of the old-time fervor in our worship programs today?

In our limited space this week we can only point out the fact that God expects us (and has a right to) to publicly worship Him. Read the Golden Text (Psalm 95:6) and note the words "Come—worship—bow down—kneel." And we ought not be ashamed to do it in public.

God set His sanctuary in our midst that we might use it and that men might know that He has followers who are not ashamed to so worship. Besides we get a wonderful blessing from so doing. Read thoughtfully Ezekiel 37:26-28.

Brethren Leaders Training School

On Ashland College Campus, June 4, 5, 6

A COOPERATIVE EFFORT FOR BRETHREN YOUNG PEOPLE TO TRAIN TO SERVE

Brethren Youth, Inc. offers Church Service Training
Ashland Seminary offers Leadership Training
National Sunday School Association offers Teacher-Training
Ashland College offers fellowship and recreation

ESPECIALLY FOR BRETHREN AMBASSADORS, CRUSADERS AND CAMP LEADERS

TENTATIVE SCHEDULE

Friday evening, June 4, 8:00 P. M. Eastern Daylight Saving Time.

Gospel songs, inspirational address, general discussion—Chapel.

Get-acquainted, directed recreation

Saturday, June 5

7:30 A. M.—Morning Watch—Redwood Stadium

8:00 A. M.—Breakfast together

8:45 A. M.—Simultaneous groups

Vacation Bible School, Camp Leaders, Gospel Teams and Service

10:00 A. M.—Chapel

10:30 A. M.—Study and discussion

12:00 M. —Dinner together

1:00 P. M.—Rest.

1:30 P. M.—Demonstrations: Crafts, Objects

2:30 P. M.—Athletic recreation (directed)

6:00 P. M.—Supper together

7:00 P. M.—Vespers, Redwood Stadium

8:00 P. M.—Inspirational session: address, discussion

9:00 P. M.—Directed games

Sunday, June 6

8:00 A. M.—Morning Watch—Redwood Stadium

8:15 A. M.—Breakfast together

9:30 A. M.—Park Street Sunday School (special class)

10:30 A. M.—Park Street Worship Service

12:00 M. —Dinner together

1:00 P. M.—Closing address and exercises (dining room)

EXPENSES: $5.00 registration fee, except for those who will serve as Ambassadors, Crusaders, or Camp leaders this summer, plus meals. Brethren Ambassadors, Crusaders and new Camp leaders are expected to attend.

If you have not yet sent in reservations, please do so at once.

Write direct to Ashland College c/o L. E. Lindower.

DON'T FORGET TO SEND IN YOUR NATIONAL YOUTH OFFERING PROMPTLY to L. E. Lindower, treasurer, Brethren Youth Board, Ashland College, Ashland, Ohio.

Official Organ of The Brethren Church

The Ashland College 1948 May Queen and Her Attendants

The Queen -- Miss Garnet Miller

Reading from left to right around the queen, the ladies of her court are: Helen Mantz, Donna Bechtel, Clara Sauder, Dorothy Berger, Marjory Harpster, Doris Hart, Virginia White, Marjorie Henning, Edna Earl and Glorene Hale.

THE BRETHREN EVANGELIST

Published weekly, except the last week in August and
the last week in December.

THE BRETHREN PUBLISHING COMPANY

Ashland, Ohio

PRUDENTIAL COMMITTEE

J. E. Stookey, President N. G. Kimmel, Vice-President
J. G. Dodds, Secretary-Treasurer

EDITOR OF PUBLICATIONS—F. C. Vanator

BUSINESS MANAGER—G. S. Baer

EDITOR MISSIONARY NUMBER—E. M. Riddle

CONTRIBUTING EDITORS

Dr. Charles A. Bame Rev. Dyoll Belote

DEPARTMENTAL EDITORS

Dr. C. F. Yoder, Brethren Doctrine
Rev. N. V. Leatherman, Practical Church Problems
Rev. J. G. Dodds, National Goals
Dr. R. F. Porte, Brethren Church History

PLEASE REMEMBER: All material for publication in the Evangelist must be in the hands of the editor at least three weeks before the desired date of publication, to assure same to appear in desired issue. This refers to announcements particularly.

TERMS OF SUBSCRIPTION: $1.50 per year in advance.
CHANGE OF ADDRESS: In ordering change of address always
give both old and new addresses.

REMITTANCES: Send all money, business communications, and contributed articles to:

THE BRETHREN PUBLISHING COMPANY
ASHLAND, OHIO

Entered as second class matter at Ashland, Ohio. Accepted for mailing
at special rate, section 1103, act of October 3, 1917. Authorized
September 3, 1928.

INTERESTING ITEMS

The President of the Publication Board Suffers Painful Injury. On Saturday afternoon, May 8, Brother J. E. Stookey, President of the Brethren Publication Board, suffered a severe fall from a ladder while helping put up screens for a neighbor. He suffered a broken collar bone and the fracture of three ribs. He is at present confined to the Samaritan Hospital and will be in a cast for a number of weeks. At this writing he was getting along as well as could be expected.

St. James, Maryland. On Sunday evening, May 2, the Primary Department of the Sunday School sponsored a service in which the "King's Apostle Choir" furnished a program of special music. The offering of the evening was turned over to the Primary Department for the purchase of needed supplies.

The Daily Vacation Bible School of the St. James

Church has been scheduled for June 14 to 26. A number of people have volunteered their services in the school.

The St. James Laymen are making much of the "Tract" Goal of the National Laymen, having secured a supply of tracts from the Brethren Publishing Company for distribution. Brother Ike Litton is the recently appointed Tract Secretary.

Brother Bates lists the St. James averages as follows: Sunday School—125; Morning worship—103; Evening worship—50; Offering—$66.00.

Dayton, Ohio. Brother S. M. Whetstone, recently installed pastor of the Hillcrest Brethren Church of Dayton, says that a clothing drive was scheduled for May 9 to 16, as a final opportunity of using the facilities of the Dayton Church World Service Center, which is soon to be discontinued.

Masontown, Pennsylvania. Brother Freeman Ankrum tells us that the Laymen did some work around the parsonage on Monday evening, May 3, after which they retired to the Sunday School Annex and enjoyed a good program and some satisfying "eats."

The choir also had an "interesting and filling party" in the Sunday School Annex on Thursday evening, April 29, with forty members and guests in attendance.

The Pennsylvania District Conference. We learn that the Pennsylvania District Conference will be held at Vinco July 19 to 22.

Nappanee, Indiana. We note from Brother Bowman's bulletin that a Religious Census of the city is being sponsored by the Nappanee Ministerial Association.

Canton, Ohio. On Friday evening, May 7, the Family Circle Class of the Sunday School sponsored a "clean up and paint up" project of the basement of the church. Brother Beekley reports that paint has been applied to half of the basement and that the kitchen is cleaned and ready for use.

The Laymen's Organization of the Canton Church was host to the Stark County Men's Federation of Bible Classes at our church on Monday evening, May 10.

Gratis, Ohio. Brother W. S. Crick reports plans completed for a Union Daily Vacation Bible School in Gratis. The three churches are combining their efforts in this work. The sessions will be held in the Public School building with tentative dates set as of May 31 to June 11.

Vinco, Pennsylvania. Brother W. S. Benshoff, pastor of the Vinco Church, reports the April "Dollar-a-month" offering amounted to $101.50.

The Mother and Daughter banquet of the Vinco church is scheduled as of Thursday evening, May 27. The event takes the place of the three Woman's Missionary Societies and the two Sisterhoods meetings for the month of May.

The Holy Communion Service of the Vinco Church will be held on Sunday evening, June 6, at 7:00 o'clock. E. D. T.

Linwood, Maryland. The Reisterstown Male Chorus recently presented a Gospel Hymn program at the Linwood Church.

Warsaw, Indiana. We note from Brother W. B. Brant's
(Continued on page 8)

The Editor Thinks Aloud

Fred C. Vanator

CHRISTIAN DELINQUENCY

AT THE RECENT Northeastern Ohio District Laymen's meeting, which was held at Louisville, the Guest Speaker was Brother F. E. Clapper of Canton, Ohio, a member of the Brethren Church of Canton (which, by the way, Brother E. J. Beekley informs us, is the official name of the Canton Church), gave a very interesting address on the subject, "Today's Challenge to Laymen." In the course of this address one particular statement so impressed me that I jotted it down, and then to make sure it had been correctly worded, I consulted with Brother Clapper. Here it is; we want you to read it and reread it: "The present situation in which we find ourselves with regard to delinquents is not due to either juvenile delinquency or parental delinquency, but to Christian delinquency." This statement was taken, Brother Clapper informed me, from the pen of Luther W. Youngdahl and was quoted from "Christian Delinquency" by Robert H. Devine.

Quite naturally, this statement set me to thinking!

Just what is a delinquent? We find that a delinquent is "one who neglects, or fails to perform a duty," and that delinquency is "neglect of, or failure in duty." So we can say that Christian delinquency is simply the failure to perform the duties that fall to a Christian in his relation to his home, his children and his community.

Of course it would not be fair to all to make a sweeping statement and say that ALL Christians are derelict in their duty and that nothing is being done to remedy this matter of delinquency. We need remember that not all children and parents are "delinquents." We read so much of the terrible things that are being done by some youths that we draw a very hasty conclusion and say, "Look at the youth of today, how they are going to the dogs." But we forget the multitudes of fine young people who are working in our churches and living lives above reproach. We just hear more about the others.

When we talk about present delinquency we must not think just about what is being done now to curb it, for present delinquency reaches back into the years gone by for its impulses. A failure to curb the selfishness, self-will and impudence of children when they were very small could only lead to an enlargement of these traits in the years of adolescence and maturity. Failure of parents to themselves walk in the paths of Christian righteousness could not help but influence the child, who naturally follows in the footsteps of the parents.

But let us go a bit further and deeper. The church also has failed to impress upon its membership the necessity of living Christian lives in the presence of all those about them, both in the home and out of it. I heard a public school teacher say, just yesterday, that she can always tell the kind of a home the children come from when they begin to react to her commands for obedience. If they are disrespectful to her, she is convinced that they are disrespectful to their parents and that such disrespect is permitted to go unchallenged. Many parents say, "O I just couldn't think of breaking Johnny's will. It will spoil his initiative." We think that it is not his "initiative" that needs to be worked upon. It is some other part of his anatomy.

While the church permits and many times even condones many of the questionable acts of its members, how can it be expected that the matter of delinquency be other than it is? It is about time the Christian begins to think of his responsibility and take his obligations to youth a little more seriously. Then and then only, can the problem of "combined" parental and juvenile delinquency be solved.

Think it over!

Business Manager's Corner

George S. Baer

Johnstown 2nd Church Goes 100%

WE ARE HAPPY to announce that the Second church of Johnstown, of which Brother N. V. Leatherman is pastor, is a 100% church, having sent in a total of 56 names. These names came in several installments and we are pleased to know that the goal has been reached. We commend this church for its loyalty and we dare say that under the inspiration of the weekly visits of the Evangelist and the splendid leadership of their new pastor, they will go forward to still greater achievements.

Previous Announcement

told of South Bend First church having maintained their place as a 100% church, but we did not know at the time the exact number of subscribers. We are happy to say they have a grand total of 240 subscribers. Congratulations to Brother Studebaker and his splendid church.

Additional Press Fund Offerings

Wm. S. Musser, Bryan, Ohio	$10.00
Mr. and Mrs. F. J. Beachley, Cumberland Md.	5.00
Ward C. Metzgar, Smithville, Ohio	25.00
George T. Ronk, Cedar Rapids, Iowa	50.00
Mary Deeter, Udell, Iowa40
Friendly Bible Class, Uniontown, Pa.	5.00

More Publication Day Offerings

Mrs. Kate Miller, Johnstown, Pa. (1st Ch.)	$ 2.00
Mr. and Mrs. A. B. Furry, Johnstown, Pa. (1st Ch.)	10.00
Mrs. Otto Rose, Johnstown, Pa. (1st Ch.)	5.00
Linwood, Md., Church Offering	7.25
A Member, Mt. Olive Church, Va.	2.00
New Lebanon, Ohio, Additional Offering	5.00
Peru, Indiana, Church Offering	20.50
Waterloo, Iowa, Church Offering	85.52

Total cash to date 5-12-48$4,759.74

(Continued on page 8)

The Voice of Our Leaders -- Past and Present

(From the Brethren Evangelist—May 28, 1902)

Prayer

George C. Carpenter

"Prayer moves the hand which moves the world."

THE DOCTRINE of prayer is as vital to the Christian as life itself. The expression, a prayerless Christian carries with it a contradiction. Prayer is an essential means of grace. Without it the Christian growth is greatly hindered. To be effective it must be according to the mind and will of God. Therefore our prayers must be based upon the revelation of His will to us. Prayer and rightly studying God's Word are inseparable. If you study God's Word you will pray. A prayerless man is spiritually dead. Moody said that a man can as well live physically without breathing as spiritually without praying. Breathe, else die; likewise pray, else die.

Words without the concurrence of the heart wander wild as waves that wash no shore. The Father never hears words without thoughts. Pride may direct our thoughts. In general, pride is at the bottom of most mistakes. In the young life, it ruins character. A part surrender may hinder the prayer life. There may be a greater desire for gold than godliness. Our own poet has said that this life is a wild aeolian harp of many joyous strains; but under all there runs a loud perpetual wail as of souls in pain. The ear may be deaf to the wail and the burden of lost souls be unknown and unfelt, thus forming a barrier between the soul and its God.

Often we know not how to pray. Well may we look to the Father and say, "Teach us how to pray." Faith is the fulcrum, "In His Name" the lever by which the Christian may lift the burdens of life and roll away the stones of difficulty and sin. Faith is the victory that overcomes the world. The soul's sincere desire, by "heaven's carrier-pigeon," prayer, meets the loving hand of God, and the answer Love dictates. It may be an answer that bids the seeking one to wait, perhaps for long, long years. It may be answered while we are praying. It may come in a denial of the desired blessing, because we ask amiss. Ask in faith, nothing wavering, and God answers the prayer. Righteousness and sin have no affinity for each other. The smallest sin may be a rock of hindrance. "The prayer of the righteous man availeth much." Prayer and answer of prayer are simply the preferring of a request on the one side and compliance with that request on the other. Man applies, God complies. This is true only when there is perfect correspondence between God and man.

Man's extremity is God's opportunity. What we can do, God will not do. Do you ask for opportunities of service? Did you speak a kind word to your mother this morning when you were so prompted? Do you pray for a deepening of your spiritual life? Did you study your Bible this morning and do you commune often with God? Do you long for the power of prayer? Is your life pure and Christ-like? Or do you sometimes worry, which is distrusting God and doubting His promises, and do you ever let that temper lead you to say unkind words? Do you pray that you may be loved and may have many friends? Do you love others and are you living a life of love, developing a clean, noble character that will draw others to you? Perhaps we can answer some of our own prayers.

Every growing Christian has a regular time or times for prayer and Bible study each day. The early morning is the best time. "Let prayer be the key of the morning and bolt of the evening." Prayer may enter heaven before sunrise. Nothing better can waft the soul into peaceful slumber than prayer. Neither time nor place should be a hindrance. Neither should much work crowd out prayer. Indeed, more work, more prayer, should be the rule; then the reverse will be true—more prayer, more work. When Augustine and Gladstone and many other men of prayer were most hard pressed with work, they took most time for prayer.

For what shall we pray? For blessings spiritual, for blessing temporal; for a good conscience; for health of mind and body; for friends and loved ones, and all who need our prayers. Pray for something definite. Pray for somebody.

Who can pray? He that is child-like and humble and penitent and Christlike. The prayer of the penitent one may ascend from the darkest depths of sin to the Father's throne of mercy. He who lives best can pray best; and he who prays best can live best.

That one prevails who is persistent. A mother's unceasing prayer converted Hudson Taylor, the great missionary to China. Many a brother had been converted by the prayers of a devoted sister. Many a heart has been so burdened for another that there was no voice to utter its longings. Better a heart without words than words without a heart.

Fountain of mercy! Father of light and life! Show me what is good; save me from what is wrong. teach me virtue pure; and make my life a continued prayer, the voice of an unbounded faith. May there be in my life and in the life of the church, that virtue which prevails against all temptations and leads to life eternal.

You are not responsible for what people think about you, but for what you give them reason to think.

Nature gives fewest loaves to the one who loafs most.

Divorce Is a Home Destroyer

Rev. Harrie C. Funderburg

"Let not the wife depart from her husband, and if she depart, let her remain unmarried, or be reconciled to her husband, and let not the husband put away his wife." I Corinthians 7:10-11.

DIVORCE is a subject that is rarely written about or preached upon, because it is so universally favored, and is gaining such a foothold. If it is not curbed it is going to ruin the country. It has gone so far that we can hardly put anybody in office who is not tainted with it.

Marriage is the most blessed and sacred thing on earth, and Christ has forbidden to dissolve its holy bonds. Yet there is so much separating that I am led to believe that this is one of the greatest growing evils in existence. People of this age launch into the sea of matrimony with little or no thought of the future and consider marriage a game of chance. They are willing to take the chance as if there were little matter to it, because our courts will grant a divorce for almost any excuse. If the young people of our land would take marriage more seriously and really get acquainted with each other, and with God, before launching out upon the untried sea, I am quite sure there would be a decided decrease in the number of cases in our divorce courts.

I note with regret the gain that divorce is making on marriage. A few more decades, at the present rate, and divorce will have superseded marriages. This almost chills the blood, and to think so little value is placed upon the marriage vows! People come in a little frivolous spirit to the marriage altar where the preacher pledges them, with right hands joined, and before God, to forsake all else and cleave to each other; and to love, cherish and care for each other, in joy or sorrow; in prosperity and adversity; poverty or wealth, until death shall separate them, and then, after a short honeymoon, they ignore their marriage vows and find themselves in the divorce courts.

When is remarrying permissible?

Only on the death of a husband or wife. Someone is now surprised. "Can this be true?" they ask. I am quite sure Jesus would not have said it if it were not true. Look at the text. Paul says (quoting Jesus' language) "Let not the wife depart from her husband." And the husband is also to do likewise. Surely this cannot be disputed, and should not be doubted. In the thirty-ninth verse of the same chapter we have these words, "The wife (or husband) is bound by the law (Divine law) so long as her husband (or his wife) liveth." But if either be dead the other is at liberty to be married to whom he (or she) will, only in the Lord.

The Master, expecting some unpleasantness to manifest itself between man and wife, provides for a verbal or temporal separation—not a final separation—for that would make reconciliation impossible. For those having such difficulties Paul said, in verse 27, "Art thou bound to a wife? Seek not to be loosed. Art thou loosed from a wife? Seek not a wife (or husband)."

Divorce Causes Adultery

You will recall the statement in Luke 16:18 which says, "Whosoever putteth away his wife (or divorces her) and marries another, committeth adultery, and whosoever marries her that is put away committeth adultery." So in the light of this scripture divorce is the cause of a double sin when divorcees are remarried.

Again, we have the words of Paul to consider: "Know ye not, brethren, for I speak to them that know the law, how that the law hath dominion over a man as long as he liveth? for the woman which hath an husband is bound by the law to her husband as long as he liveth; but if the husband be dead, she is loosed from the law of her husband, so then if, while her husband liveth, she be married to another man, she shall be called an adulteress, though she be married to another man." And the husband is considered as being bound in the same manner as the woman—both are under the power of the law as long as they live; neither is released until one or the other dies. In the light of this scripture divorce cannot for a moment be considered as a legal separator according to Divine law—"just verbal."

Is Divorce Permissible?

Let us see what Matthew has to say about the matter. Divorce was a common thing under the Mosaic law. The Pharisees are raising the question and desiring to know whether separation is lawful for "every cause." Jesus had spoken once before on the subject, as recorded in Matthew 5:31, 32, but they did not seem to grasp the situation thoroughly. So at this particular time they bring the subject up again. In Matthew chapter 19 is to be found Jesus' answer to the Pharisees' question as to whether it is lawful for a husband and wife to put away each other "for every cause." He answered by asking them the question, "Have ye not read that he that made them in the beginning, made them male and female?" (Genesis 1:27). Then Jesus said, "For this cause shall a man leave his father and mother and shall cleave unto his wife, and the twain shall be one flesh. What, therefore, God hath joined together let not man put asunder." After this explanation by the Master and the upsetting of their long-established custom, the Pharisees raised the question as to why Moses commanded to give a writing of divorcement and to put each other away. Jesus' answer was this, just as it is today, "Because of the hardness of your hearts." Is not that plain? "Moses granted you this sinful privilege," Jesus states. "It was not so from the beginning. Whosoever shall put away his wife, except it be for fornication, and marry another, committeth adultery, and whose marrieth her that is put away committeth adultery." (Matthew 19:3, 9.)

In Matthew 5:31-32 we have the words of Jesus, "It hath been said, Whosoever shall put away his wife, let him give her a writing of divorcement." Now mark well the statement—"But I (Jesus) say unto you that whosoever putteth away his wife except for the cause of fornication causeth her to commit adultery." The point is this, Jesus does not say that you have any right to put her away—that is, give her a divorce. Jesus says that if you put her away you do not commit adultery, but for any other cause, aside from fornication, you become an adulterer. The point the Master is driving at is that He is wishing to show what an awful sin it is to separate and remarry. "Fornication" is the only legal cause for separating. The only thing! Not for "every cause" as is the trend today. Jesus does not say adultery is a legal cause. He says "fornication." And this is only a cause for separation.

Who is the Author of Divorce?

It may be that some of you have read this article hastily thus far and overlooked a certain statement. For fear you did, I will repeat it, because I am desirous that you get the point. Here it is: Moses says, "for the hardness of your hearts." The very same thing that caused divorce then is causing it today—"the hardness of people's hearts," or "self will." Is not that so? I want you to get that. God is not the author of divorce. Divorce belongs to the civil law, not the Divine law. Divorce belongs to the world, not to the church. A thousand divorces cannot change the text. Someone says that away back in Deuteronomy 24:1 divorce was instituted. So was "an eye for an eye," and "a tooth for a tooth." But Jesus said that retaliation must cease. "If thy brother smite thee on one cheek, turn to him the other also." But remember the old law is a school master to bring us to Christ. (Galatians 3:23-26.) When we get to Christ, let us obey His teachings.

Are There Any Grounds for Divorce?

I know quite well that "fornication" is held by civil law as a legal cause for divorce, and permits remarriage. Some churches are taking this view. I am a real "catholic" when it comes to divorce. God knows that this evil practice of divorce and remarrying is bad enough without the churches sanctioning it. If a man is a fornicator, the text says she need not live with him, or if the situation is reversed the man need not live with the wife. But Jesus never said, or even hinted, that fornication was a legal cause for divorce. It is the prevailing idea that divorce puts a man and wife back in their natural state as before marriage, and so the world does. But what about the Divine side? Did you ever hear God's definition of divorce? What is it? Let someone speak! Silence prevails! I am quite sure there is none. God, not being the author of divorce, has nothing to do with it.

Now if fornication is legal grounds for separation (not divorce) as is the custom (I have been using the word divorce instead of separation, as it will be clearer, and they stand for the same thing and separation is intended for a reconciliation period, so man and wife may be reunited) did Jesus ever say we have a right to remarry? Please reread the text. Is your husband or wife still living? "Adultery is sin," someone said, "I can repent and receive forgiveness." How can anyone hope to receive forgiveness for a sin that is perpetrated daily and is still against them at death? I am just "raising the question." Look at the thousands of homes and millions of orphan children that this ungodly practice has blighted by divorce.

Grain Conservation Still Big Issue In Washington

By Dr. J. Raymond Schmidt

GRAIN CONSERVATION continues to be a live topic in Washington. Midway in January Hon. Clinton P. Anderson, Secretary of Agriculture, declared that it would be necessary to save grain until June 30. Then on January 29 President Truman sent a special message to Congress asking for legislation to give him power to control the amount of grain to be used by distillers through October 21.

The signal for action on the part of President Truman came on January 27 when the House Banking Committee by a vote of 12 to 9 killed the bill sponsored by Secretary Anderson, which would have continued in effect until February 28 the section of the anti-inflation bill placing curbs on the use of grain in the making of whiskey. This action did away with any governmental curbs beginning January 31, when the law passed on December 19 died a natural death.

Thus the House Banking Committee denied the contention of Secretary Anderson that the world faces a grave food crisis. A spokesman for the Department of Agriculture had told the committee that passage of this bill would have saved about 5,000,000 bushels of grain during February. The Senate had previously approved the bill by a voice vote on January 23.

This action on the part of the House Banking Committee put an end to Secretary Anderson's talks with the brewers in which he urged them to cut down on their use of grain during February and succeeding months. Mr. Anderson had warned the brewers that if they did not continue in effect their 90-day voluntary grain saving program he would ask Congress for more authority in the matter of rationing grain to brewers.

Due to the failure of Congress to comply with President Truman's request, Secretary Anderson entered February stripped of power to allocate grains to either brewers or distillers. Therefore, one small committee in the House of Representatives has decided that the hunger of the world should not stand in the way of the distillers wasting five or six million bushels of grain monthly in the production of whisky. Once more the politicians in Congress have yielded to the distillers, who have more influence in nominating conventions and elections than the hungry people of Europe and Asia.

Distillers Lose in Court

The Schenley Distilleries Corporation, one of the "big four" whisky producers, went into court asking for an injunction to prevent the Secretary of Agriculture from carrying out the provisions of that section of the anti-inflation law which gave him power to limit until January 31 the amount of grain to be used in distilling whisky. On the same day that the House Banking Committee ruled for the distillers against the Secretary of Agriculture, a three-judge Federal Court handed down a decision upholding the constitutionality of the grain rationing authority as contained in said act.

In asking for the injunction, the Schenley Corporation contended that the law was discriminatory in that the distillers were the only processors of grain to which it applied. Doubtless the distillers forget that they and the brewers are in a class by themselves. Brewers and distillers have always been subject to special regulatory legislation because of the nature of their products. Surely there are none so bold as to call beer and whisky indispensable. If there isn't enough grain for use as food then it stands to reason that both brewers and distillers should be denied the right to destroy essential grains in the processes of manufacturing non-essential alcoholic beverages.

Since February 1 marked the end of governmental controls over the amount of grains used by brewers and distillers, both proceeded to make up for lost time in the manufacture of fermented and distilled beverages. Consequently the distillers probably used 6,500,000 bushels of grain, mostly corn, during February. The amount of grain thus used in March approximated 8,500,000 bushels. Had Secretary Anderson's request for controls been enacted into law, the distillers could have used only 5,000,000 bushels of grain during February and March. Thus a loss of 10,000,000 bushels of grain at a time of great hunger in the world can be charged against the House of Representatives for its refusal to back up the Senate in voting further curbs on the distillers.

The Senate on February 26 passed S. J. Res. 186 to grant the request of President Truman for power to allocate the use of grain until October 31, 1948. Under terms of this bill the Secretary of Agriculture would be granted power to divide a monthly quota of at least 2,500,000 bushels of grain among all distillers, however small, guaranteeing a minimum of at least 6,000 bushels to each distiller. The bill is now in custody of the House Banking and Currency Committee, where apparently it is gathering dust in a committee pigeonhole.

During Senate debate on the above bill several statements were made which are worthy of repetition here.

Would Stop All Distilling

Senator Francis J. Myers of Pennsylvania must have startled the distillers when he said:

"As for me, I think it would be better to stop all distilling now; not to the extent of 2,500,000 bushels of grain, but entirely. I do not think distilling is necessary. If the situation is so critical that we need to have grain, then I, for one, would immediately say that we should allocate no grain for any distilling purpose."

Senator Ralph E. Flanders of Vermont gave testimony as to the importance of corn conservation in these words:

"Corn is the distillers' preferred grain, and the industry used nearly 60,000,000 bushels in the year ending June 30, 1947. Whatever amount industry's use is curtailed means more corn to meet farmers' requirements in producing meat. Assistant Secretary Brannan of the Department of Agriculture testified to the relationship between corn and meat when he pointed out that 'farmers and distillers are competing for a short feed supply.'" Over in the House on April 2, Representative Edward H. Rees of Kansas sought to spur action by that body on S. J. Res. 186. He said in part: "Mr. Speaker, we are in a bad situation . . . We have no grain stockpile aside from 150,000,000 bushels set aside by Congress. In the face of all this our available supplies are going to distillers. . . . The most important strategic material in the world is food. We had better begin to protect its supply and do it now."

Senator Arthur Capper of Kansas on February 17 introduced a joint resolution (S. J. Res. 184) which would prohibit the use of grains in the production of alcoholic beverages for one year, or until October 31, 1948, if at that time the President and Secretary of Agriculture conclude that there is sufficient grain on hand to warrant releasing some of it to the brewers and distillers.

At the time of introducing his bill Senator Capper very aptly said: "Our corn crop is short 849,000,000 this year. The distillers are using chiefly corn. Kansas farmers need corn to fatten hogs and cattle. Inability to get it spells tragedy for them . . . It would not only be a failure of our Christian duty as a nation, but a default in world leadership if we permitted vitally needed food grains to be used for non-essential booze while the world lacks bread."

Never shift your mouth into high gear until you are sure all the faculties of your mind are under divine control.

"You have only one brain—take care of it!"

God give me sympathy and sense

And help me keep my courage high.

God give me calm and confidence

And—Please—a twinkle in my eye.—Anon.

THE BIBLE

READ it to be wise.

BELIEVE it to be saved.

OBEY it to be holy.

LOVE it to be happy.—Nnwton

We may look for more kindness when we show more gratitude.

True consecrated Christians are strictly sensible and sensibly strict.

Coming to Christ by faith ROOTS you in Him, but coming after Christ as a disciple makes your life FRUITFUL. You may be ROOTED without being FRUITED.

Interesting Items

(Continued from Page 2)

bulletin of May 2 that four were received into the membership of the church by baptism.

The men and boys of the Warsaw church recently planned an evening at the City Fair Grounds, with a soft ball game between the young men and the older men. Plenty of "hot dogs" and soft drinks were in evidence.

Milledgeville, Illinois. Another Family Night gathering was held at the Milledgeville Church on Monday evening, May 10. The Men's Bible Class was in charge and furnished the program. A fellowship supper was a part of the evening's entertainment.

Brother White informs us that, having been granted a two weeks leave of absence, he is to be away from his pulpit on May 23 and 30. Rev. Alvin Klotz will be the speaker on May 23, and the Sisterhood will hold their Public Service on May 30. We note that the "Whites" are the proud possessors of a new, blue, five-passenger Plymouth Coupe, which, no doubt, they will put to good use in this period of "absence" from the work.

Lanark, Illinois. The Victory Quartet from Moody Bible Institute with Rev. Robert Byler, will appear on the Father's Day program at Lanark on June 20.

Akron (Firestone Park), Ohio. Brother J. G. Dodds, pastor of the new Akron work, gives some very interesting items in his bulletin of May 2. He reports the following for the first four months of 1948:

1. Three added to the church—one by baptism; two by previous baptism and upon statement of faith and consecration.
2. Six others: first time confessions.
3. Signal lights organized.
4. Average attendance of Sunday School and Church services increased.
5. Church Corner Stone laid March 21.
6. Church house under roof, siding on, wiring done, ready for lathers.
7. One hundred and twenty-seven in attendance Sunday morning, March 28. The largest evening attendance was sixty-seven on February 22.

With the fine field this church occupies, we should see some wonderful forward strides in the near future.

Mexico, Indiana. Brother Robert Higgins, Mexico's pastor, reports that nearly 100% of the young people of the Mexico church attended the Youth Rally at Loree recently.

The Mother and Daughter Banquet was held the week of May 9, with Mrs. E. H. Gilbert as the guest speaker.

Loree, Indiana. The W. M. S. Public Service of the Loree group was held at the evening hour on April 25. Mrs. Neva Reece was guest speaker, with the pastor, Brother Higgins, also bringing a short message.

Brother Higgins was the speaker at the Clay Township Eccalaureate and also a speaker at the Mexico Commencement Program at Mexico.

Business Manager's Corner

(Continued from page 3)

Help Make It 100% and Over-the-Top

Our annual goal for Publication Day Offering has been not less than $5,000. We have not reached that mark yet this year, but there are some churches that have not reported and it may be that they will put us over the top. Let us hope so, for this is a year when a generous offering is needed as never before. Some offerings are still coming in; let's make it 100%.

Don't Forget These Special Items

Gift Bibles, Genuine leather, Divinity Circuit, size 4½ x 6½, King James version, No. B3R, $4.00 single copy, $3.75 in quantities.

White Bibles for weddings, No. N1X, White Imitation Leather, Padded sides, gold edges, 4 x 5⅞, $6.00; No. 305, White Leather, Limp Binding, 4 x 6¼, $5.00. Both have wedding certificates in front. Imitation leather can be cleaned with damp cloth.

A Cup of Cold Water—by Paul Hutchens ($1.50), one of Ohio W. M. S. Reading Course books.

Miracles of a Doctor's Life—Wilson (30c, paper), Ohio W. M. S. Reading Course book.

Janisa, by Newcomb, A Novel of Egypt and Palestine ($3.00), Ohio W. M. S. Reading Course book.

For Peace Within—Geiseman ($2.00). Dr. Geiseman was a lecturer of the Post-Easter Pastor's Institute recently held at Ashland.

Hurlbut's Story of the Bible, Revised and beautifully illustrated; bound in rich blue cloth, printed and decorated in gold. $2.95.

Egermeier's Bible Story Book, Popular edition, $2.95; Deluxe edition, $4.95.

HAVE YOU RESERVED A PLACE IN LEADERS' TRAINING SCHOOL

at Ashland College, June 4, 5, 6?

Sponsored by Brethren Youth, Inc., Ashland Seminary and the National Sunday School Association of the Brethren Church.

Room and board at prevailing prices will be provided at Ashland College. Young men and women will be housed in the College Dormitories, and are asked to bring their own bed linens. There will be two nights' lodgings.

Training School begins Friday evening at 8:00 o'clock Eastern D S T in the College Chapel and will continue until after the noon meal on Sunday. Those who come from a distance may return home Sunday afternoon.

If you have not sent in your reservation, send it at once to L. E. Lindower, Ashland College, Ashland, Ohio. Registration fee of $5.00 may be paid when you arrive and applies only to those who will not be in Brethren Crusaders or Ambassadors work or on Camp staffs this summer.

WE'RE EXPECTING YOU

WITH THE LAYMEN

MIAMI VALLEY SECTIONAL LAYMEN'S MEETING

SIXTY-TWO members and guests of the Brethren Laymen's Organization of Dayton, Gratis, New Lebanon and West Alexandria attended the Quarterly Rally of the Miami Valley Union, held in Gratis, Ohio, in the social rooms of the Gratis Brethren Church, on Monday evening, April 19.

Eighteen members of the Gratis Woman's Missionary Society and helpers served a sumptuous baked chicken dinner at 7:15 o'clock, and promptly at 8:15 had all the tables cleared, all with the skill of professional caterers. The home cooking was superb.

Myron Kem of Dayton presided. Rev. "Billy" A. Lewis, Friends minister of Dayton, led in group singing and sang "His Eye is on the Sparrow." Ivan Patterson, youth of the New Lebanon Church of the Brethren, who served in China with the Church of the Brethren Service Project, told of his experiences, illustrating his talk with color slides of scenes he had taken.

A check of attendance showed the following: Dayton—18; New Lebanon—9; West Alexandria—7; Gratis—12; Guests—16.

The place of the July 19th meeting has not yet been decided.—From the Gratis, Ohio, Church Bulletin.

NORTHEASTERN OHIO BRETHERN LAYMEN MEET AT LOUISVILLE

ON THE evening of April 30th, the Louisville Laymen's Organization was host to the Northeastern Ohio District Laymen's Group. Seventy-eight men, representing the Laymen's Organization of Ashland, Akron, Canton, Louisville and Smithville sat down at nicely decorated tables, and after the offering of thanks by Galan Sluss, were served a bounteous supper by the Louisville ladies. They sure know how to cook and to serve.

Following the banquet the program of the evening was in charge of Mr. James Ross of Louisville, who acted as Toastmaster. The following was the program of the evening:

Devotions Allen Sheets
Group singing, led by Paul Clapper
Business and election of officers
Remarks—Dr. Glenn Clayton, President National Laymen
Selections—Male trio from Akron Firestone Park Church
Talk—"Today's Challenge to the Laymen"
F. E. Clapper, Canton
Benediction by Dr. Clayton

During the business session the District President, A. E. Schwab, called for reports on the Goals from the different representatives of the various organizations. Gains were reported on several of the Goals.

The election of officers resulted in the old officers being retained for another year. They are:

President A. E. Schwab, Louisville
Vice-President A. E. Whitted, Ashland
Secretary-Treasurer Harvey Amstutz, Smithville

Definite plans for the next meeting have not been made, although several invitations were extended. The matter was left in the hands of the Executive Committee.

Brethren Youth

INDIANA SOUTHERN DISTRICT YOUNG PEOPLE MEET AT LOREE

THE Indiana Southern District Young People met at the Loree Brethren Church on April 26. Rosida Shoemaker, of the Denver Church, president of the organization, was in charge.

It was decided that meetings will be held every three months and that the one in October will be an all-day session with a banquet at night. It was also planned that the next meeting would be at Oakville on August 1st. The original date was for July, but due to conferences and youth camps, it was changed to August.

Rev. Thomas Wedsworth of the Peru Evangelical-United Brethren Church, was the speaker. He gave a very timely message on "Imagination."

The Oakville church won the banner for having the largest attendance according to the number of miles driven. There were approximately eighty-five present from the following churches: Akron, Corinth, Center Chapel, Burlington, Flora, Loree, Mexico, Denver, North Manchester, Peru, Roann, Oakville and Huntington.

"WHAT DOTTH THE LORD REQUIRE OF THEE?"

Micah 6:8

I planned an ultramodern home when priorities were lifted—

But a Belgian woman whispered, "I have no home at all!"
I dreamed of a country place for luxurious week ends—
But a Jewish lad kept saying, "I have no country!"

I decided on a new cupboard right now—

But a child of China cried out, "I have no cup!"

I started to purchase a new kind of washing machine—

But a Polish woman said softly, "I have nothing to wash!"

I wanted a quick-freezing unit for storing quantities of food—

But across the waters came the cry, "I have no food!"

I ordered a new car for the pleasure of my loved ones—

But a war orphan murmured, "I have no loved ones."

—Mayme Garner Miller, World Call Magazine.

Teacher's Bible, leather, overlapping covers, red under gold edges, thumb index, large combination concordance and other Bible helps, size 6 x 8, Special price, $6.50. All books postpaid.

CHRISTIAN ENDEAVOR TOPIC

W. St. Clair Benshoff, Topic Editor

"Topics copyrighted by the International Society of Christian Endeavor.
Used by permission."

Topic for May 30, 1948

THE HOW OF WORLD EVANGELISM

Scripture: Acts 8:4; Colossians 3:16

For The Leader

EVER AND EVER we hear the appeal for help for the world's needs. On every hand is the call to give that the hungry might be fed. Over the radio, through our papers, and in special campaigns, the call comes to help. Such calls for help presume a definite need in the lives of people. We do not doubt such need. It is ever present. The world's people are starving, hungry and cold. All that we can do, should be done out of hearts of love and in the name of Christ. There is yet another need which does not receive near the advertising, nor support, yet which is far more important. That need is the hunger of their souls. It is this need that world evangelism is to meet. It is to this task that Christians should dedicate their lives and substance. Is there any greater task for us? Is there any more noble task? There is not.

DISCUSSION

1. WHAT DOES IT MEAN TO EVANGELIZE? The Dictionary gives the meaning of evangelize as follows: "To instruct in the gospel; convert." The same Dictionary gives the meaning of "gospel" as follows: "Good news or tidings, especially the announcement of salvation through Jesus Christ." The word "convert" is described: "To turn from sin or error to truth and righteousness." Thus we have a pretty good round-up of what is involved in "evangelism." Evangelism means to instruct people in the matter of salvation through Jesus Christ, and seek to turn them from sin and error to a life of truth and righteousness." There you have it. It presumes men and women who are lost in sin, who need a Savior, and who can find that Savior in the Person of Jesus Christ.

2. WHY IT IS IMPORTANT. Christ pictures Himself as the Light of the world. He said that the Light shineth in the darkness, but those who dwell in the darkness cannot see the light, for they are blind. Tragic, isn't it? Yet it is a true picture of today's muddled world. So, in order to bring light to men's hearts we must present to them the Light of the world, even Christ. We note of the early disciples that they "went everywhere preaching the word." How important is evangelism? It is this important, that, if we do not, countless millions of humans will find themselves lost forever. Souls are dying eternally while we ignore the issue.

3. HOW CAN WE EVANGELIZE THE WORLD? There is nothing said about converting the world. We well know that not every person would accept Christ. But the general all around effect of such a program would be good. The percentage of Christians would be higher. Morals, living conditions, etc., would improve.

How can it be done? First of all, by volunteers! Evangelism needs workers. Young men and women who are not afraid of a lot of hard work. Those who are truly consecrated to God. Those who have a love for lost souls. Those who will seek to reach the sinful soul of the individual. Those who will willingly clean sin out of their own lives. (A real reason for so much lack of power in today's church programs is open sin in the lives of so called righteous workers.) Next, we can all pray for world evangelism. Mountains can be moved by prayer. Prayer can open the doors of heaven and shut the gates of hell. Further, we can evangelize the world by giving. There are also many other ways.

4. WORTHY OF HIS HIRE. It is not our policy to make missions a mercenary matter, yet sometimes it is necessary. Missionaries and mission pastors have really given their lives to the Lord. We still hear people say, even in this enlightened age, that "If he's working for the Lord, let the Lord take care of him." Our missions workers are worthy of every bit of financial help. The theory of putting a man and wife on a mission church, to build it up, on a pittance of salary, is mission suicide today. To keep a man poor just because he is a mission pastor, is a crime. If ever there should be well paid pastors in our churches, our mission pastors should be. It is wonderful what a feeling of financial security will do toward helping a mission pastor put forth his extra best effort on the field. But starve him, and he cannot lift his head, nor pay his bills, and your mission work suffers. If anything, our mission pastors should be paid at least 10% more than the average for established church pastors. Money we sometimes give with great gusto and fanfare to other causes could well be paid to our own mission pastors with perhaps better and more lasting results for the church as a whole.

5. STARTING FROM SCRATCH. How great is your faith? How great is your mission program? Many new mission points have been established by denominations. There are yet many new places. We can evangelize a brand new section of the world's population through faith, prayer, workers, and money. In time, there can be another pin point on the map of the world entitled Brethren Missions; then another and another, manned by Brethren missionaries, supported by the largest offerings ever given by Brethren people for Brethren Missions. This is entirely possible and within the realm of a people who profess to live by faith in God. Let's go! If God be for us who can be against us?

GROUPS DISCUSSION QUESTIONS

1. What, in your estimation, is involved in "world evangelism?"
2. Is such a program of worldwide evangelism possible? If so, how?
3. Where can we as individuals fit into the program of world evangelism?
4. Where can we as individuals fit into our own Brethren Mission program?
5. Do you have suggestions which could be used to advantage in furthering the cause of Brethren Missions both Home and Foreign? If so, what are they?

NOTE: Have you seen the June issue of the "Brethren C. E. Worship Programs?" It is crammed full of ideas and suggestions for programs, a playlet and a party. If no one in your society has yet seen a copy, drop a line today to your topic editor.

Prayer Meeting Topic

Contributed by Rev. C. Y. Gilmer

"WHY SEEK YE THE LIVING AMONG THE DEAD?"

Ah! why should bitter tears be shed
In sorrow o'er the mounded sod,
When verily there are no dead
Of all the children of our God?

They who are lost to outward sense
Have but flung off their robes of clay,
And, clothed in heavenly radiance,
Are dwelling in eternal Day.

While sorrow's tears our eyes have wet,
Shed o'er the consecrated dust,
Too much our darkened souls forget
The lessons of enduring Trust.

Let living Faith serenely pour
Her sunlight on our pathway dim,
And Death can have no terrors more,
Since we shall go to be with Him.

—G. S. Burleigh.

HEAVEN, THE HOME OF THE REDEEMED

Scripture: John 14:1-6; Rev. 7:9-17; 21:1

Hymns on Heaven

Prayer

Seed Thought Provokers:

GOD IS going to make a new Heaven and a new earth because everything touched by sin is going to be purged and renovated (Rev. 21:5). It was in Heaven that Satan and his angels rebelled against God (Isa. 14:12-14). The righteous will then inherit the earth (Rev. 21:2, 3). How can one afford to sell his soul for a little bit of this world (Matt. 7:19-21; 1 Peter 1:4)? If you do not believe it is great to be a Christian read Rev. 21:3-7; 22:1-5).

Heaven is located in the North beyond the stars (Isa. 14:12-14; Psa. 48:2). Job and astronomy tell us there are no stars beyond the north star (Job 26:7). The Old Testament sacrificial blood was to be poured out on the north side of the altar toward the Lord. Heaven is in the North which is up. The north pole is on top of the world and points toward the North.

Three heavens are spoken of in Scripture. The first heaven is atmospheric in which the birds fly (Gen. 1:20). The realm of the stars is the second heaven (Psa. 19:1, 2). The third Heaven is where God dwells (2 Cor. 12:2-4). Paradise is Heaven where God is (Luke 23:45; Rev. 2:7; 22:1-2).

The saved go to Heaven immediately at death (2 Cor. 5:1, 6-8). There is no purgatory nor soul sleeping (Phil. 1:23) Where is Christ (Rom. 8:34; Acts 7:56)? The hour of death has no sting for the child of God (1 Cor. 15:55-57). The Great White Throne Judgment is for sinners. The saved do not go through that Judgment to get into Heaven. Their sins were judged in Christ's body on the cross (Rom. 3:24, 25). We shall know our loved ones in Heaven (2 Sam. 12:22, 23; Matt. 8:11; Mk. 12:26, 27; 9:4; 1 Thess. 4:13-18). The greatest joy on earth is in serving the Lord. And so in Heaven we shall serve Him (Rev. 7:15). There will be no discord in our singing there (Rev. 19:6) as musicians claim that the only perfect musical note made on earth is the sound of running water. Only saved people could sing the songs of Heaven (Rev. 1:5; 14:3). Only those washed in the blood of Jesus can get there (Rev. 7:14; Matt. 22:11-13; Rev. 21:8; John 10:1; 14:6). As to the kind of place Heaven is you need only read Rev. 21, and remember that God said, "these words are true and faithful," and that Jesus said, "If it were not so, I would have told you."

COMMENTS

On The Sunday School Lesson

by The Editor

Lesson for May 30, 1948

STANDING BY ONE'S CONVICTIONS

(Temperance)

Lesson: Daniel 1:8-20

A CONVICTION is a "strong belief." Convictions may be of two classes—right convictions and wrong convictions. Convictions are not born in a moment: they are the result of either long drawn out teachings or past experiences. In such a one we find our lesson centering today, in the person of Daniel. Only convictions that came from early training would cause him to stand firm through youth and mature years. Only convictions born of a Godly parentage would cause him to refuse the "idolatrous king's meat"; defy a king's decree that he not pray to his God, and stand firm in the face of a penalty which led him to the den of ferocious lions.

Oftentimes the stamina of an individual is not evident until he is brought face to face with a problem that calls for a definite decision which must be made without waiting. In such cases the convictions of a life-time are brought into immediate play. Decisions made under such conditions cannot be termed "snap judgments."

Daniel is a fine example of one who had very definite convictions. Born, as he was, in the land of Palestine, and living in Jerusalem at the time of the captivity, he was one of the fine young men that was sent into the king's court. His first test came when he was to be "fatted up" to meet the king. With his three young friends, Hananiah, Mishael and Azariah (who also had convictions) he had the courage to demand a different fare than the king's "dainties" and the king's "wine."

His words, "Prove thy servants . . . ten days," told of his faith in God and the reliability of his personal experiences in Jerusalem with that God. He was in no way disappointed, nor was his word broken to Melzar, prince of the eunuchs who was in charge of these young men.

"No wine" or "high living" is the secret of Daniel's good life. What obtained in Daniel's life is just as true today in ours. Really it is very difficult to understand why people today seem to think that the most important feature of a party is to see how much more liquor (wine in Daniel's case) one individual can "hold" than the rest and still get away with it. How utterly helpless one becomes and how devoid of "right" convictions when under the influence of alcohol. To them, under such influence, anything they do is right, regardless of what it is. But their brain is fogged; the muscles will not coordinate; the tongue is thick; and the eyes see double. Of them cannot be said as of Daniel and his friends. "In all matters of wisdom and understanding, that the king enquired of them, he found them ten times better than all the magicians and astrologers that were in all his realm." (Daniel 1:20). And it might have been added that the reason was self-evident.

Young Men and Boys' Brotherhood

JUNE PROGRAM

1. Scripture Order
2. Praise and Prayer
3. Bible Study:

SELLING A BROTHER INTO SLAVERY Genesis 37:1-36

WHEN JOSEPH was seventeen years of age his father made him a coat of many colors. Sometimes he told his father of wicked things that his brothers did. The faces of these brothers changed because they had been doing wrong. Jacob was made sorry for showing that he was partial to Joseph in that the older brothers hated him and plotted to do him mischief. Will some one tell the strange dreams which Joseph had which caused his brothers to hate him still more? How can one's face talk?

In search of better pasture the older brothers led the flocks away from home. Jacob told Joseph to find them and bring him word again. Joseph went on his errand wearing his beautiful coat. He walked sixty-five miles before he found his brothers. As they saw him coming they said, "Here comes that dreamer. Let's kill him and see what becomes of his dreams." They stripped him of his coat and lowered him into a pit. It was Reuben who suggested the pit for he hoped to rescue him and deliver him safe home later.

Poor Joseph pled for his life, but their hearts were hardened against him. Their grudge had grown into a hatred that intended murder. A bad thought has no more right in one's mind than a snake in his bedroom. One must control his thoughts or they will master him.

What is a boy worth? What is he worth to those who love him? To those who hate him? While the brothers were eating dinner, some of the very things Joseph had brought them from home, they saw merchants coming on camels in their journey to Egypt. Judah suggested that rather than let Joseph die in the pit they should sell him. All agreed, except Reuben who was absent, and the bargain was made for $12.50. Reuben was very much grieved when he learned what had happened. For he knew that Joseph was a good boy and that his good old father would be heart-broken.

The only way to avoid the result of wrong-doing is to keep as far away from sin as possible. A man wished to engage a coachman to drive for his family. To those who applied he said, "How near could you drive a team to a precipice, and not run off?" One said within two feet; another said within six inches; and a third said that he would keep as far from precipices as possible for them he knew he would be safe. Which applicant was employed? Why?

It takes lies to cover lies. The guilty brothers agreed to pretend that they had not seen Joseph. They killed a kid and dipped Joseph's coat in its blood and brought it to Jacob and said, "We have found this coat; see if you know whose it is." Jacob burst into tears, saying, "It is my son's coat; a wild beast has eaten him." Who killed a kid one time to deceive his father? Now his sons do the same thing to deceive him. They are "chips off the old block." It is too bad that Jacob did not get converted when he was but a boy, for he would have had better sons.

As poor old Jacob mourned, his sons pretended to comfort him. Refusing to be comforted he said, "I will go down into the grave mourning." Benjamin, which means "son of the right hand," was his only true comfort. Ten brothers kept the dreadful secret to themselves. But there was One who knew. Who was He? Sins cannot be safely covered unless confessed and forgiven. The Bible says: "Be sure your sins will find you out." Unforgiven sins may not find you out in this life, but they will be certain to in the next. Tell how "the blood of Christ cleanseth us from all sin."

Read Matt. 21:36-41. Tell how Joseph was a type of Christ.

4. Business
5. Recreation

Suggestions: Plan for a Brotherhood picnic this summer. Have a good program and a good time. Can you beautify your church lawn?

News From Our Churches

FROM SERGEANTSVILLE, N. J. TO BRYAN, OHIO

After all the "farewells" had been said to our many New Jersey friends, we started for Bryan, Ohio, arriving here at our new home April 30th, about 6:30 P. M., to find our furniture in place as nearly as possible, a newly decorated parsonage and a garden ploughed and planted for us. While writing this letter a man from the church came in and handed us a gift envelope that stated that the City Gas Company would deliver a brand new Gas Range to us tomorrow (May 4th) as a personal gift from the members of the church.

We surely have a splendid Sunday School here under the very capable leadership of Ronald Scott, Superintendent. Our attendance yesterday was 202. At the morning worship service 220 people braved the pouring rain to attend the services. It was still raining at night, but there were 62 who came to the evening meeting.

We have been made to feel very much at home here in Bryan, being royally entertained to several very fine meals, and finding an almost unbelievable willingness to work in the many departments of our church, by young and old alike. Several are going out visiting and doing real pastoral work for us already. Pray for us, brethren.

Evert J. Black, Pastor.

FROM UNIONTOWN EASTWARD

On March 31st the writer closed seven years of pastoral service with the congregation of the Second Brethren church at Uniontown, Pennsylvania. This concluded sixteen and one half years of time spent with this group, in three separate pastorates. In 1909 I went first to Uniontown, spending four years in the first period of service. After an absence of six and one half years I was invited by the congregation to return, which I did in 1920. Five and one half years comprised the period of my second incumbency of the pastorate, and again I departed for other fields. In 1940, following the debacle that came perilously near wrecking our fraternity I was once more solicited to come to Uniontown and try to help them establish a Brethren congregation. In April, 1940 I took over the work at that place, and labored there through seven years. These were trying years—through the Second World War and the vicissitudes of the days which followed. Through all these years the faithful nucleus of believers who had invited me to serve them held faithfully to their vision of a self-supporting church at some future day. (I must hasten to say just here that during the entire seven years both the Pennsylvania Mission Board and the Missionary Board of the Brethren Church gave substantial assistance toward the maintenance of the work.) Being compelled to share time with the owners in the use of the meeting place, the exigencies of the war and its back-wash, and the presence of a large number of country members living at considerable distance from the church militated against the gathering of large crowds. But while the crowds were not large they were generous in support of both the local work and of the various National Auxiliaries of the denomination. The writer feels that the congregation is now at the place where they can accomplish a constructive work under competent leadership.

It must be recorded also that after two years at Uniontown it seemed wise that some effort should be made to give assistance to the Highland Brethren Church, located in Washington county, some thirty-five miles from Uniontown. Here is a country church located four miles from the nearest town, and perched high up on an eminence—which gives it the name it bears, Highland. This is one of the older congregations which has in years gone by been shepherded by some of the well-known preachers of yesteryears. In the five years of fellowship with them their church building was given many helpful and needed repairs and improvements, so that now it stands as a pleasant place to worship, although there are yet one or two needed improvements. And there are no more loyal and kindly folks to be found in the Brethren Church anywhere.

It should be an ingrate indeed if I did not acknowledge the gifts which both these congregations bestowed upon their pastor in those days when illness placed the minister's wife in the hospital, and bills piled up until the preacher almost despaired of ever being able to meet them. I may travel far but I shall never forget their Christian kindness and willingness to share their pastor's burdens. Friendships formed over a period of thirty-five years cannot be soon forgotten, and my prayers shall ever be made for the people of both these churches.

And as a last good-will gesture both congregations joined in a farewell reception for the pastor and wife, in the church at Uniontown. Words of well-wishing and love were spoken for the two congregations by Elder Freeman Ankrum, pastor of the Masontown congregation and with whom most cordial and fraternal relations were maintained throughout the years of the pastorate at Uniontown. And as a token of their regard the two congregations presented Mrs. Belote and me with a most generous purse, making it difficult for the recipients to say much but "God bless you all." We said "good bye", but we shall always keep a place in the halls of memory where these dear people will be cherished as well-beloved Christian friends.

Through an agreeable arrangement the writer was accepted by the good people of the Hagerstown, Maryland congregation as an interim pastor for the three months of April, May and June. After that I go on to assume the care of the Brethren pastorate at Linwood, Maryland. At Hagerstown we have found a group of loyal Brethren, engaged at our arrival in redecorating and improving their building. This awaits the arrival of their new carpet to complete the work and enable them to again enjoy the comforts of their beautiful auditorium. Since coming among them the good people here have shown the supply pastor and wife every kindness that they could expect. Evening services are maintained here, except in June, July and August, and goodly crowds come to worship at the Sunday evening worship service. This is commendable when many churches cannot maintain a Sunday evening gathering. Brother N. V. Leatherman served this group just prior to my coming, and left the work in excellent shape. We are not attempting to do anything but care for the work as we found it, leaving any changes to be made by the man whom they may choose as pastor. We shall report from here again before we close our sojourn among them.

Fraternally,

Dyoll Belote..

NEW LEBANON, OHIO

It is the happy privilege of the New Lebanon Brethren to report some fine news on the part of the Lord's work. We are happy to report a fine revival meeting which began on March 7 and continued through March 28.

Rev. and Mrs. Samuel Adams from Pleasant Hill, Ohio, were the evangelists, Rev. Adams doing the preaching and Mrs. Adams helping out in the song services. They both did it well. It was somewhat of an Old Time (might say Old Fashioned) Revival meeting, with good attendance, good interest, and weather conditions that could not have been more ideal. Everything works out for good to them that love God, and that is what happened during this meeting.

Rev. Adams' efforts were blessed. Up to date twenty-two have been baptized and received into the church. Rev. and Mrs. Adams won their way into the hearts of the people, both young and old. His sermons were most powerful. Mrs. Adams and Mrs. Berkshire conducted services for children in the afternoons of the first week.

Since the meetings have closed attendance at worship services has been keeping up. Sunday, April 18, Rev. E. M. Riddle came to New Lebanon, preaching both morning and evening in the absence of the pastor. A good crowd heard him in the morning. Evening attendance was down some, but when we consider this day and age of so many worldly attractions it is really surprising that people go to church as well as they do. God's work is sometimes neglected by putting first things last.

The first Sunday in May was Children's Day, when eighteen were dedicated to the Lord. Spring communion was held on Sunday evening, May 2, with one hundred and eleven surrounding the Lord's Table to enjoy the blessed sacrament of the Lord.

Rev. Berkshire was granted a two weeks leave when he went to Masontown, Pennsylvania, to do evangelistic work. At this writing Mrs. Berkshire is in the hospital where she underwent an operation. We are hoping for a speedy recovery. (Latest reports tell us that she is getting along fine.)

A Mother-Daughter Fellowship meeting was held May 6, with one hundred and sixty-two in attendance, and a very enjoyable time was had.

May the Lord continue to bless those who minister and worship together at New Lebanon, that they fulfill the command that was given to us by Christ, that will permit us to be more united and prosperous for the Lord. Pray for the work at New Lebanon.

Anna Cashour.

BERLIN, PENNSYLVANIA

A brief report from this field is in order at this time. It was a happy privilege to serve this congregation for nearly five years, and to be associated with them in so many ways. We went to this field as complete strangers, knowing no one there at the time, except one or two whom we had met at conference that fall. However, it did not take long to forget that strange feeling and to rather feel that you had known them for many years. Berlin is one of our very best congregations, and a more loyal group would be hard to find anywhere. We have never talked to a congregation which was more attentive, as well as more appreciative.

Here is to be found as fine a group of Brethren young people as we have ever worked with, as well as some of the very best leaders of youth as we know of any place. Berlin has a splendid youth choir, under the direction of Miss Thelma Saylor. They provide the music each Sunday evening. In Berlin we found something that we have never seen before, that is, more men in this congregation than women. It was always an inspiration to us at the Communion service to see such a large group of young people at the tables.

We enjoyed living in the mountains, and especially, we like the summers spent there. It was seldom too hot for comfort. For one who loves the beauty of nature, Berlin is located in the midst of the most beautiful scenery of all the eastern mountains.

We closed our work with this church on Easter Sunday with one of the largest congregations we had while there. At night we had next to the largest attendance at Communion in the history of the church. We also baptized and received into the membership eleven new members as our last service rendered there. May the good Lord direct them as they call a pastor, and may His blessings be upon the work there.

S. M. Whetstone.

IN MEMORIAM

"I have fought a good fight, I have finished my course, I have kept the faith. Henceforth there is laid up for me a crown of righteousness, which the Lord, the righteous judge shall give me at that day." II Timothy 4:7, 8.

In loving memory of Brother Clyde Sheneman, who passed away a year ago June 10. He was a faithful member of the North Liberty, Indiana, First Brethren Church and served as its Sunday School Superintendent for over thirty years. He was loved and respected by the entire community and his passing was a great blow to all who knew him.

This tribute is paid by the Home Builders' Class, which class he helped organize and taught until his death.

Mrs. Hazel Hay,
Secretary Home Builders' Class
First Brethren Church, North Liberty, Indiana.

Evangelistic Sketches

HAVING been invited to spend six weeks in an evangelistic effort with our three Northern California churches, accompanied by Mrs. Grisso, we started on our journey for those parts on February 29. The trip was uneventful save a delay of twenty-four hours in Oklahoma on account of snow and ice. This delay together with our being compelled to take a more southerly route brought us to our destination two days late. Our first meeting was with the Stockton Brethren. Here we found a very active, going, growing congregation under the pastoral care of Brother Virgil Ingraham. He is a young man of great zeal and devotion to His Lord and the work of the church, and is much loved by all the folks both within and without the church. He is employed as an accountant by a large local manufacturing company and finds enough time left to spend as much effort in the work of the church as the average pastor. We did not arrive until Tuesday and Brother Ingraham had the meeting well started with a number of confessions so that on the first Lord's day after our arrival ten were baptised with still others coming later. We made our home with the Ingrahams, and what a lovely home and a lovely family! If our Lord should tarry and Brother Virgil shall continue to shepherd this little flock here, our prophecy is that it will not remain a small flock long, but will soon be one of our larger congregations.

The entire west coast is in the midst of a great building boom. And there has been a great increase in population since the war. The San Joaquin Valley in particular is experiencing this growth and presents a challenge here in the District and to our entire brotherhood. Yes, the trend is still westward, and if the Brethren church as a whole and our Mission Boards in particular, are not lacking in vision and consecration we, too, can make rapid progress in these parts. To date we have just three churches here in this District. The field is wide open for new work to be started. Other denominations are doing it. They are entering fields that belong rightly to us, but we have failed to enter. California is a wicked state, with few curbs on liquor and vice, but withal is in great need of whole-Gospel preachers and whole-Gospel churches. Well could the whole church turn her attention to this field as never before. May a score of young preachers be raised up in the Brethren church who would set their faces in that direction.

While at Stockton we enjoyed the presence and helpfulness and fellowship of our good Brother Frank Gehman. While he is working at present with another group his whole heart is with the Brethren cause in Stockton. The Brethren from Lathrop and Manteca came in delegations from night to night and aided us very materially in the meetings. One evening a splendid group of Old Order Brethren came a distance of thirty mile from Modesta. Among the group were four ministers. Then again upon four other occasions these same Brethren came to our meeting in Manteca. They have a great church at Modesta with between six and seven hundred members.

Thus all in all we greatly enjoyed the days of labor and fellowship with the Stockton Brethren. We shall look forward in anticipation of hearing of great, continuous victories being won here. They have just about outgrown their present building and plans are being carried out for an immediate enlargement. We covet the prayers of all the faithful in their behalf.

Lathrop, California

We moved from Stockton to Lathrop, a distance of ten miles on Lord's Day afternoon of March 21st to be with the Brethren there in a one week effort and then to speak at the District conference each day for another week. This church is, at present, pastorless. Located in a town of six or seven hundred people with a very heavy surrounding population, with only one other very small group of people doing any kind of evangelizing, would seem that this would offer a ripe field for an ingathering of souls. But, not so. The spiritual life of the community is very low. So much so, that very few folks are attending any church. The church cannot maintain a full time pastor, and it appears that there is no other point convenient to maintain a circuit. Thus they are endeavoring to keep going with a supply pastor. Brother George Anderson of the Christian Business Men's Association is giving them good service at present. He is a good preacher and is loved by all, but his time is taken by other interests and cannot give the work the attention that it needs. If some one would be wanting to do some real-for-sure-home Mission work and would be willing to make some sacrifice, here is another real-for-sure opportunity. They have a very good church building, well equipped and some good workers, but no shepherd.

The District conference program was well arranged and well directed by our Brother Ingraham, the Moderator. The sessions were held each afternoon with conference business and inspirational addresses and then supper was served to all free of charge followed by an address by Brother Geo. Jones, who was vacationing in California, with the writer bringing the final address of the evening. Here we met, again, Brother Earl Flora, who addressed the conference once and also Brother Roger Darling who spoke twice. We rejoiced greatly to meet these Brethren and listen to their presentation of the Word. To say the least, they had a great conference and one that would be a credit to any district much larger than this one. Monday evening, April 5th found us again with the church at

Manteca, California

This is the largest of this group of churches and has been cared for through its entire history by our friend of many years, Elder J. Wesley Platt. This Brother started the work here when Manteca was a village of a mere one hundred souls, and has watched the town and church and community grow together, and has had no little part in this growth himself. We have known Brother Platt a long time and have worked and planned with him through many long hours on our National Missionary Board, but this was the first of our labors in an evangelistic hook-up. The days planned for this meeting were all too few. The attendance was good and the interest was about in keeping with the times. Brother Platt has kept his field well gleaned and thus we could not expect too great a harvest. But here as in other places the Lord honored His Word and gave us some souls for our labors. Previous to our coming to this field Brother George Jones of Johnstown had been serving the church here for two months while Brother Platt was recuperating at a camp some miles distant. He was home for the meeting however and gave us help in every way possible. Mrs. Grisso and myself were cared for in a very comfortable apartment in the home of Sister Elise Everson. Here again every kindness was shown us that our stay might be pleasant and comfortable. Pardon me, but we forgot to state that while at Lathrop our home was with the David Frey family. Here we too greatly enjoyed the kindness and fellowship of this fine loyal Brethren family.

Our church here at Manteca has had a large place in the life of the town and community. It has a high rating as a sound, Biblical, Spiritual church. Many sons and daughters have come into its fellowship and many have gone forth as preachers and teachers and missionaries, and at present has four students in Ashland College and if I am not mistaken all are preparing for the gospel ministry. These thirty-five years have taken quite a toll in the life of the pastor, but withal God has put His seal upon his labors and the faithfulness of those to whom he has ministered and eternity alone will reveal the magnitude of their efforts. May the Lord continue to use this church in the future as in the past.

I might add that we endeavored to represent the various interests of the church, although not officially appointed to do so. As is our custom we made an attempt to interest our people in the "Brethren Evangelist." Here our efforts in this direction brought ten subscriptions which were paid for and sent in to the Publishing Company. (Keep your change Brother Baer.)

As usual these churches kept up their established reputation for the support of the evangelist. Although we had no agreement as to our remuneration for the trip, yet the gifts went far beyond that which we had anticipated. Thanks, again, Brethren. It was all wonderful. And their expression of appreciation for our services we shall never forget. We feel very unworthy of it all. To our God be the praise for the more than thirty souls that He gave us as an evidence of His approval of it.

Our speedometer registered six-thousand-fifty miles, with no engine or tire trouble enroute. Thanks, too to Mr. Chevrolet. We are home safe, happy in the Service of the King. Our next meeting will be in the fall at Third Church, Johnstown, Pa. Yours Faithfully, Until His Appearing.

C. C. Grisso.

An American chaplain had been conducting a service for sailors. At the close of it, one of them said to him: "That was a great sermon, preacher."

"Tell me," said the preacher, "just why you think it was a great sermon?"

"It was a great sermon because it took something from your heart and put it in your mind."—The Broadcaster.

There is rampant in the world today, a Christ-hating, church burning, satan motivated program known as communism.

Laid to Rest

JACKSON. Mrs. Maude Jackson was born March 4, 1883 and lived nearly all of her life at West Alexandria, Ohio. She was married to Orlando Jackson in 1909 and to this union four children were born: Donald Hubert; Lawrence Eugene, who preceded his mother in death; Ethel May and Ferne Juanita.

Mrs. Jackson became a member of the Brethren Church of West Alexandria at the age of fourteen and has been ever since a loyal, faithful and active member of the church, the Ever Faithful Sunday School Class and the W. M. S.

Her journey in this life ended April 27, 1948. Besides her family and relatives, she leaves a host of friends in the church and in the town. May the Lord bless those who mourn her passing, but may they too keep the faith that she kept in her Lord and Saviour, even unto the end.

The pastor of the church, Rev. A. E. Whitted, was confined to a hospital in Columbus and the service was conducted in the church by the undersigned.

E. J. Beekley, Canton, Ohio.

BUCKLEW. Donald Lantz Bucklew, twenty years of age, of Terra Alta, West Virginia, died suddenly at his home on Friday, April 30, 1948.

He is survived by his parents Dayton and Edith Whitehair Bucklew; one brother, Clifford Bucklew, a student at West Virginia University; three sisters: Mrs. Jean Shaffer of State College, Pennsylvania; Mrs. Eva Welch of Fairmont; and Mrs. Virginia Buckley of Terra Alta; also his maternal grandmother, Mrs. Gillie Whitehair of Terra Alta.

Funeral services were held at 2:30 on Monday afternoon, May 3, from the White Dale Church, Terra Alta, with Rev. E. T. Fike in charge. Interment was in the Terra Alta Cemetery.

Mrs. Roy Whitehair.

ATTENTION, OHIO CHURCHES

The Credential Blanks for the District Conference, which is to be held at Canton, Ohio, June 14-17, have been sent out to the churches. If you do not receive yours in a reasonable time, notify the undersigned and duplicates will be sent. In most cases these blanks have been sent to the pastors.

PLEASE NOTE: According to the ruling of last Year's Conference delegates will be allowed according to the number of members reported to the District Statistician for the current year, not according to the membership listed in last year's Annual. Make your selection of delegates according to this year's report.

Fred C. Vanator, Acting Secretary,
Ohio District Conference,
Ashland, Ohio.

A Lost Traveler

E. Pitt Woodruff.

*A traveler on a lonely road
Was lost in utter dark;
No sun ashine, nor lamp aglow,
Then came a tiny spark.
Some Christian said a simple word,
“Lost soul, God’s way is right”*

*God magnified the traveler heard
And found the Heavenly light.
We thank Thee, God, Thy light to share
That we may candles be
To light a sinners darken way
And lead him unto Thee.*

THE BRETHREN EVANGELIST

Published weekly, except the last week in August and
the last week in December.

THE BRETHREN PUBLISHING COMPANY

Ashland, Ohio

PRUDENTIAL COMMITTEE

J. E. Stookey, President N. G. Kimmel, Vice-President
J. G. Dodds, Secretary-Treasurer

EDITOR OF PUBLICATIONS—F. C. Vanator

BUSINESS MANAGER—G. S. Baer

EDITOR MISSIONARY NUMBER—E. M. Riddle

CONTRIBUTING EDITORS

Dr. Charles A. Bame Rev. Dyoll Belote

DEPARTMENTAL EDITORS

Dr. C. F. Yoder, Brethren Doctrine
Rev. N. V. Leatherman, Practical Church Problems
Rev. J. G. Dodds, National Goals
Dr. R. F. Porte, Brethren Church History

PLEASE REMEMBER: All material for publication in the Evangelist must be in the hands of the editor at least three weeks before the desired date of publication, to assure same to appear in desired issue. This refers to announcements particularly.

TERMS OF SUBSCRIPTION: $1.50 per year in advance.
CHANGE OF ADDRESS: In ordering change of address always
give both old and new addresses.

REMITTANCES: Send all money, business communications, and contributed articles to:

THE BRETHREN PUBLISHING COMPANY
ASHLAND, OHIO

Entered as second class matter at Ashland, Ohio. Accepted for mailing
at special rate, section 1103, act of October 3, 1917. Authorized
September 3, 1928.

INTERESTING ITEMS

Gratis, Ohio. We note from Brother W. S. Crick's bulletin of May 9, that three were received into church membership on Sunday, May 2, two by baptism and one by letter. It is interesting to note that one of those received had made confession and was baptized at Camp Shipshewana last summer. Camp does more than amuse the young people—it brings spiritual results.

Brother Crick also reports that since 1941 the net return from Ohio tax stamps set in for redemption from the Gratis Church has amounted to $352.25. It took a lot of stamps to bring in such a return, since it takes an actual stamp face of $100.00 to bring in $3.00, and, if our arithmetic is still in order, this would cover purchases amounting to nearly $400,000.00.

The Gratis morning attendance on Mother's Day was: Sunday School—110; Morning worship—112. Evidently very few "went home" after Sunday School.

St. James, Maryland. We are pleased to note that Brother Henry Bates received his Master of Sacred Theology degree from Gettysburg Seminary on Friday, May 14. Congratulations, Brother Bates.

The St. James Mother and Daughter Banquet was held at the church on Wednesday evening, May 12, with Mrs. Roy Lowery as Toastmistress and Mrs. W. C. Huddle of Williamsport as the Guest Speaker. An offering was received to be applied to Camp work.

New Lebanon, Ohio. We learn that Mrs. Clayton Berkshire, wife of our New Lebanon Pastor, is back home from the hospital following a thyroid operation in Dayton and that she is making a good recovery.

Masontown, Pennsylvania. Brother Ankrum announces that the work on the new parsonage is nearing completion and that plans will soon be completed for the dedication.

Waterloo, Iowa. We note that the Waterloo Laymen entertained their wives at a dinner at the Log Cabin at Cedar Heights on Friday evening, May 21.

Brother V. E. Meyer, pastor of the Waterloo Church, tells us that he had the privilege of baptizing and receiving one into the church on Sunday, May 9.

Waterloo's Vacation Bible School is scheduled for June 7-18, with the closing program to be held on Sunday, June 20.

Valley Brethren, Jones Mills, Pennsylvania. A note from Brother H. R. Garland, pastor of the Valley Brethren Church reads as follows: "Just a word to tell you that the Valley Brethren Church was closed for two months from the middle of February to the middle of April, for inside repairs and redecorating work. While the work was being done we were privileged to use a nearby Methodist church, thus no services were missed while the work was in progress. We are now back in our church, even though there are a few things yet to be done—blocks to be laid under the church, etc., after which we will have a rededication, which we will report to you."

Nappanee, Indiana. We learn from Brother Bowman's bulletin that a group of laymen were scheduled to go to Kentucky, leaving on Sunday, May 23, to help with the building of the new chapel at Stacey. They were arranging to take a truck load of such things as would be donated for the general work in Kentucky.

Brother Bowman announces that ten of the Nappanee Sunday School attendants are in the Public School Graduating Class this year. More students for Ashland College, we judge, for Nappanee has not been without representation in the college for many years.

The Northern Indiana Laymen meet at Nappanee on Monday evening, May 31.

Louisville, Ohio. Brother John T. Byler, pastor of the Louisville Church, reports the election of Mr. and Mrs. Galan Sluss and Mr. and Mrs. A. E. Schwab to the offices of Deacon and Deaconess, at a recent business meeting of the church.

Brother Byler also lists the names of nine graduates from the Louisville Public Schools, who are identified with our church.

(Continued on Page 10)

The Editor Thinks Aloud

Fred C. Vanator

EVANGELISM VERSUS REVIVAL

MORE AND MORE we are confronted with the problem of soul winning. Greater and greater are the difficulties involved in getting people to attend church services. New prospects are slow in coming. The shift of community residents grows less and less as more and more families are purchasing their places of residence. There is a certain apathy among the church members that does not augur too well for progress in the church. The above is what many people believe, or at least, that is the way they talk. We hear it every day, and

It sets me to thinking!

In fact I have been thinking at it so hard that I have tried to make a line of distinction between the terms "evangelism" and "revival." We receive reports of meetings which are held throughout the Brotherhood and the terms in such reports seem to be used synonymously. We are told that a "Revival" is being held, or that an "Evangelistic Campaign" is being conducted.

Now to me, "Evangelism" is the constant work of the church—it is the continual act of making disciples, the task which Our Lord left in the hands of His church. There can be no pause in its endeavors. It is the "pause" in the endeavors of the church membership that necessitates the term "Revival."

In past "Special Meetings" (and to my mind, this should be the proper designation for all such efforts) the "evangelist" always took (and still does in many cases) the opening week to "bring the church members to the realization of their task." In other words, he sought to "revive" the church, taking it for granted that it was in a "fainting" condition and needed some spiritual "smelling salts" or a "shot in the arm" to bring it to. Well, in most cases this is necessary. Then, if the treatment took effect, a period of concentrated "evangelism" was the result.

But, brethren, it ought not be necessary to "revive" a congregation. The spirit of "evangelism—the publishing of the "good news," for that is exactly what that word means—should be such a part of the every-day work of the church that when these "special efforts" come, the congregation should be found upon its knees as one body, seeking to do the work of a "composite evangelist." Then when the special preacher begins his series of messages he will not lack "for hearers of the Word." Or, mayhap, there would be no particular need for these "special efforts" if a real effort be put forth throughout the year.

Think it over!

When surgery of forgiveness takes place it means peace after trouble.

The consecrated one-talent man or woman has promise of a larger influence for good than any intellectual genius who has not met the Master.—Samuel M. Zwemer.

Business Manager's Corner

George S. Baer

Ready to Take on Extra Work

SINCE INSTALLING our new press we have gotten our backlog of work out of the way and find ourselves able to take on some extra printing. We shall be pleased to hear from any one having personal, church or business printing needs.

New Speed-O-Print Duplicator

A newly developed Speed-O-Print duplicator, known as Model No. 200, is now on the market and we were able to get one of the first 50 machines released to dealers throughout the country. It has perfect hairline register, automatic feed, front paper stops, automatic roller release, automatic brush inking, open cylinder and reset counter. Sells for $135.00, including counter, plus excise tax and supplies. Ready for immediate delivery. Also we have the Model "L" on hand at $66.00, including counter, plus excise tax and supplies. This gives very good registration and has proven to be the most satisfactory inexpensive machine on the market. Many of our pastors are using it. We allow churches 10% discount on these machines and they pay the freight. We have Economy model Speed-O-Scopes on hand at the special net price of $19.50 plus carriage cost. The regular price is now $29.50. When our present supply is exhausted the price will go up.

Gift Bibles, leather overlapping covers, gold edges, King James version, scholars aids, presentation page, special prayers, colored maps, illustrated. Suitable for awards for Sunday school scholars. $4.00 single copy, $3.75 each for 5 copies and $3.50 each for 10 copies.

Stories of Hymns We Love by Cecelia Margaret Rudin, $1.25.

Hymn Programs, Based on "Stories of Hymns We Love," in three parts—Children, Young People and Adults. 25c each.

Zipper Bibles at $4.75 each, leather covers, suitable for awards. Size 4 x 5¾ inches.

High Grade Bibles, especially made for young people, genuine leather, leather lined, overlapping covers, red under gold edges, complete concordance, maps, center column references, Hour of Prayer. The kind you will be proud to give to your graduating friend. Former price $10.75, now $8.75 while they last.

The Publication Day Offering

now totals $4,821.54, including a recent gift of $61.80 from the 3rd Church of Johnstown, Pa., where Brother N. V. Leatherman is pastor. There are still other churches from whom we have received no offering—not yet. Help us complete our goal—an offering from every church and a total of not less than $5,000.00.

(Continued on Page 10)

The Voice of Our Leaders -- Past and Present

(From the Brethren Evangelist—May 28, 1902)

The Church and Higher Education

L. L. Garber

"Give me a few years the direction of education, and I will undertake to transform the world."—Leibniz.

* * *

LONG AND SLOW has been man's upward journey toward the higher life. For unnumbered centuries he has climbed gradually up out of the degradation and bondage of ignorance. Step by step he has risen into more worthy selfhood; little by little he has attained "the better sunlight"; round by round he has mounted the ladder of Truth, gained the larger view, the completer dominion, and secured a firmer hold on God and the eternal things. So gradual and imperceptible, indeed, is this upward movement, that at times it has seemed that progress had reversed herself, and that man was being engulfed in some rising tide of ignorance; but these apparent retrogressions are but eddies and by-currents in the great stream of divine purpose which flows certainly onward toward "That far off divine event, to which the whole creation moves."

The history of human progress is the history of education; for education is conscious evolution, conscious development. When man began to reflect upon some other self which he was not, but might become; when he began to set before himself an ideal to be attained; when he began to adjust means that he might transform himself into a nobler being, he began to educate and to be educated. In this comprehensive sense is true the saying of Wendell Phillips, that, "Education is the only interest worthy the deep controlling anxiety of the thoughtful man." In this larger sense, education is not merely to make men and women successful, not merely to make them happy, not merely to make them appreciative, not merely to make them wise, useful or powerful, but all of these and more—it is to work in them a continuously more perfect transformation into real sons and daughters of God, in Wisdom, Power, and Love, in the spirit of—"Build thee more stately mansions, O my soul,

As the swift seasons roll!

Leaving thy low vaulted past!

Let each new temple nobler than the last,

Shut thee from heaven with a dome more vast

Till thou at length art free,

Leaving thine outgrown shell by life's unresting sea!"

In this upward march toward the divine, in moulding of humanity into the ideal pattern of God, two agencies are all powerful. These are the church and organized education. The first of these, the church, which is the visible embodiment of the Christ-spirit, "summons men to a great work, inspires them with a great enthusiasm," and endeavors to keep constantly before them the one great purpose of making the world Christian; the second, organized education, which is the chief means in the hands of the church for the prosecution of its work, gives power, wise enthusiasm and effective direction to the efforts of men to reach the goal set before them. Thus it is seen that higher education and the church are vitally related. Each is a necessary complement of the other. Each must fail to accomplish its purpose without the other. Without religion, education becomes commercial, sordid, mercenary, and loses its highest and most worthy motive; without education, religion becomes superstitious, mystical, fanatical, creed-bound, and fails to helpfully adjust itself to changing conditions of civilization, and to harmonize its activities and methods with the "increasing purpose that runs through the ages."

Passing these general and fundamental truths, we may next consider some more specific phases of the relation of the church and higher education. It is granted that, in the promotion of human progress, the church and higher education are inseparable allies. If then Christianity is largely to influence or to control the course of civilization, the church must maintain colleges and take the colleges for Christ. This is the strategic fighting point at which the battle for a better civilization is to be lost or won. The church must win here or abandon its efforts to dominate the course of human progress. Why? Because it is here, and here only, that the leaders of society may be imbued with the Christ ideal and charged with a high moral purpose—because a man's religion is the chief fact about him, and mankind are still hero-worshippers.

The history of the world is the history of its leaders. The few great thinkers and men of preeminent ability, are the moulders and, in a large sense, the creators of whatever the mass of men do, think or attain. They are the ideals after which their fellows fashion their lives. They set the pace, guide the ship of state and lead the armies of civilization, while the masses are camp-followers and imitators. These great or fortunate ones who occupy high positions, are the beacon lights toward which aspiring ambition first turns its eager gaze. The examples of these stir his soul to activity. From these he gathers his notions of what achievements may be wrought; of what success is, of how it should be won, and of what life one may, and ought to live in this present world. If the light which these beacons of earth flash down upon their fellows is the pure white ray of high purpose and Christ-like endeavor, how great will be its influence upon those who look up to them for inspiration, and direction! Is there need of illustration here? Do you remember Charlemagne, Luther, Gladstone, and how each of these by his example and work turned the faces of millions Christ-ward and left an imperishable heritage to humanity?

The leaders and great ones of this century will be the product of the college, and they will, in a large way, make and control its civilization. They will transact its business, direct its industries, write its books, edit its periodicals, make its laws, set its fashions and mould its deals. Though few in number, they will be, as now, preeminent in power and influence. Hardly two percent of our present population are college trained (remember that this was written forty-six years ago, the percentage is much higher now), yet from this two percent are drawn sixty-five percent of those who hold positions of honor and influence. In other words, a college training increases the likelihood that one will hold an important position, ninety times. Manifestly and unquestionably, then, it is of first importance that the clear-brained, large visioned, fate compelling college student be won for Christianity. To win such is to win not one, but many. As a kingdom is sometimes won by taking the king, as an army is sometimes won by taking the commander, so industries, organizations, schools, wealth, states, legislatures, periodicals, and political parties may be won for Christianity by winning college students for Christ. Generally speaking it is from two to a thousand times as important to bring a young man of culture and strong personality under the sway of the gospel as it is so to win a mature man of little influence or a street gammin or social outcast, who is the inevitable fruit of a corrupt social system. The latter is likely to be a mere echo of his surroundings, with little influence; the former may become a mighty leader among men to move and uplift them.

If the church is to do its work of Christianizing the world it must Christianize the world's leaders, who are and will be its cultured men. Hence the church must maintain institutions of higher education, bring the educated and powerful under the sway of Christianity and thus give to civilization as its guiding and dominating forces, men and women clear in vision, wide in sympathy, sacrificial in purpose. This is the great and imperative present duty of the church. It includes and overshadows all other interests. Take care of education and the college students and these will take care of everything else. The future is in their hands. In this direction lies the gateway of a nobler civilization—the progressive realization of the poet's dream and the prophet's vision—the dawn-breaking of the new and better day.

Again, higher education must provide the church a broadly cultured and disciplined ministry. Without such, no religious organization can do the work committed to it. The increase of knowledge, the diffusion of culture, and the growing complexity of civilization with its difficult governmental and social programs, make upon the ministry larger and larger demands—demands which they must meet if they are to command the confidence and respect of the people and lead them in thought and all good works. Then, too, there should be provided so far as possible, well educated Sunday school teachers, trained in methods of education and church work.

Lastly, the college, through its educated and trained church workers and the students who drink from its Perian springs and catch its enthusiasm for knowledge, should stir the hearts of the masses to nobler longings, lift them out of the dead level of the commonplace, give them visions of the majesty of life, and of "the wonder of the world which is to be."

When religion and education are properly coordinated, they will give the world not the misguided enthusiast; not the jaundice-eyed, palsied-hearted pessimist; not the unfeeling Philistine, who is blind, deaf, unappreciative in a world throbbing with life, harmony and beauty; not the rich, refined loafer and parasite who lives only to waste and enjoy what the world lays at his feet—not these, but strong-hearted, large-visioned, high-souled men of saintly and Christ-like character, who do valiant service in the routine of duty, in the work of sacrifice and in the battle for the uplifting of our common humanity.

God's Superabundance

IN THE season of freshness and growth, and of exuberant life, we are impressed by the profusion and affluence of those provisions which the God of nature has made for the well-being of His creatures. "Bread enough and to spare" is inscribed all over our Father's house. What an infinity of blossoms, above all that are needed! What an infinity of fruits, above all that ever will be used!

Light is not meted out like an artificial illumination—so much consumption for so many who use it. It is poured all over the earth with illimitable profusion—over the rocks and woods, where no man liveth; over the sea, where no man roameth.

Who can measure the waters? There is no fear that man ever will exhaust their abundance. The springs are full and flowing among the rocks; the brooks running through the meadows; the large rivers rolling their magnificence to the sea; the great lakes lifting up their reservoirs of abundance; and the dew and the rain defying and baffling all powers of computation.

The concave of the skies, how vast! It is large enough for a canopy over all the earth. And the air which is treasured with it, for the sustenance of life, is not barely sufficient for so many, and for so long; it seems to laugh at the idea of stint or measurement. With wings laden with perfume, it flies away to kiss the hills; fan the tree tops and play with the ocean—encircling the globe, and coming back, as if it could not possibly exhaust its exuberant strength and life.

All the works of God are distinguished by this abundance, this immense profusion, this infinity.

William Adams.

Your College, Your Church and You

Material from The College Publicity Office

KNOW YOUR COLLEGE

ASHLAND COLLEGE was chartered in the year 1878 by the authority and under the direction of the German Baptist Brethren. It continued under the control of that body until purchased by the Progressive branch of the denomination, the Brethren Church, in 1882. It was reorganized under the Articles of Re-incorporation of 1888.

The institution was chartered as a university with authority to establish all the divisions of a university. Some years after its organization, the name was changed from Ashland University to Ashland College, a title more descriptive of its work.

During the sixty years of its existence, Ashland College has influenced the lives of thousands of young men and women. It has adequately served the church which supports it. For a period of years, a theological department was maintained which has more recently become a seminary for the training of the church leadership. The College has served well the community in which it is located by making available an accredited liberal arts college to the young people of the area.

The institution is governed by a board of trustees composed of representatives of the conferences of the Brethren Church, the city of Ashland, the Alumni Association, and the territory at large. The President is a member ex-officio of the Board. The College is controlled and owned by the Brethren Church but is non-sectarian in its admissions policy.

Ashland, the county seat of Ashland County, is a beautiful city of more than twelve thousand inhabitants. It is regarded as one of the most attractive, healthful, and progressive cities in Ohio and is noted for its beautiful homes. It has few of the distractions and temptations of the larger cities. The general healthfulness of the city, and the moral and religious character of the people, make it an ideal place for the college student. There are seventeen churches in Ashland and a strong organization of the Young Men's Christian Association in which the students of the College are always welcome.

The College occupies an unusually beautiful site in one of the best residential districts of Ashland. The main campus, consisting of approximately 18 acres in the southern part of the city, is on rising ground which affords a commanding view of many miles of surrounding country.

The various approaches to the campus are marked by beautiful gates, the gifts of individuals or groups. The approaches to the campus on the north are marked by the Detwiler gate, a memorial to Miss Vianna Detwiler, a missionary of the Brethren Church; the gate of 1912, the gift of the class of 1912; the gate of 1920, the gift of the class of 1920. The east approach is marked by the Samuel Wilcox gate, the gift of the Ira C. Wilcox family as a memorial to Samuel Wilcox, former Ashland College student.

The brick walks on the campus are the gifts of Miss Estella Myers, a graduate of the college of the class of 1932.

The landscaping and beautification of the campus is sponsored by the Faculty Women's Club.

In the fall of 1940, the beautiful and commodious Mr. and Mrs. F. E. Myers Memorial Home and grounds on Center Street were presented to the Board of Trustees for the use of the College.

Founders' Hall. This stately structure of brick and stone is the original college building, designed to house the entire indoor activities of a college community. It contains the College Chapel, classrooms, laboratories, offices studios, and recreational rooms. On the first floor are the chapel, the physical laboratories, offices, shop and dark-room, and classrooms. On the second floor are the chemical laboratories, offices, classrooms, and Publicity and Alumni Office. On the third floor are the studios for Speech and Dramatics; rooms for the Y. M. C. A. and Y. W. C. A. and the Gospel Teams; the Little Theatre; the Band Room; and the Social Room. The building also houses the Parker Lounge for men, the gift of Mr. and Mrs. Frederick Parker of Westfield, Massachusetts.

The Library. This building of red brick with white stone trimming is thoroughly modern in construction and appointments. The first floor is given over to biological and psychological laboratories, classrooms, offices, and the Women's Lounge. The second floor houses the administrative offices and classrooms. The third floor is devoted to the Library, with its attractive study room, its magazine reading room, its conference rooms, and the Seminary Library.

The Mr. and Mrs. F. E. Myers Memorial Home. This dignified building of brown stone veneer in its beautiful setting houses the Department of Music and is admirably adapted to this use.

Allen Hall. Similar in design and structure to Founders' Hall, this dormitory furnishes living quarters for women students. The dining room, open to both men and women, accommodates about 100 persons. The north entrance to this building is the gift of Mrs. H. S. Rutt of Smithville, Ohio, a memorial to Mr. H. S. Rutt, who for many years was a valuable member of the College Board of Trustees. The south entrance was the gift of Mrs. Frank Hartzler of Smithville, Ohio. The landscaping is the gift of the Pi Alpha Gamma Sorority of Ashland.

The Gymnasium. This modern brick and stone structure, of similar design to the other buildings, contains the usual offices, dressing rooms, lockers, showers, equipment room, and playing floor. The Health Service is also housed here. The building is well situated with respect to the playing fields.

The Athletic Fields. Redwood Stadium is located near the gymnasium on the west campus. Here are held athletic games, May Day festivities, and other events of the College and surrounding communities.

Grant Street School. One of the public school buildings is located opposite the college campus. It is used for observation and practice teaching in the elementary grades, and thus gives the college the facilities of another building.

Getting Ready for Camp

BRETHREN YOUNG PEOPLE will again be on the march this summer. Fourteen camps in our seven Districts will seek to provide their needs with Food, Fun, Fellowship and Faith.

The National Sunday School Association will be represented by Spencer Gentle in California, Indiana, Illinois and Maryland; and by L. E. Lindower in Pennsylvania, Ohio, Indiana and Kansas.

There are many of you who ought to serve on Camp Staffs. Do you realize the importance of giving your time and talents for the good of our young people?

The following is the Camp Schedule as far as announcements have been made known:

BRETHREN BEREAN BAND, Northern California—June 21-28.

JUNIATA YOUNG PEOPLE, Entriken, Pennsylvania—June 23-30.

JUNIATA JUNIORS AND YOUNG ADULTS, Entriken, Pennsylvania—June 30-July 7.

N. E. OHIO JUNIORS AND INTERMEDIATES, Odell's Lake—July 11-17.

MIAMI VALLEY OHIO JUNIORS (Not yet announced.)

INDIANA JUNIORS, Shipshewana Lake—BOYS: June 20-27;
GIRLS: June 27-July 3.

OHIO AND INDIANA INTERMEDIATES, Shipshewana Lake—July 4-11.

OHIO AND INDIANA FRESHMEN, Shipshewana Lake—July 11-18.

OHIO AND INDIANA SENIORS, Shipshewana Lake—July 18-25.

OHIO AND INDIANA YOUNG PEOPLE, Shipshewana Lake—July 25-31.

CENTRAL DISTRICT, Savannah, Illinois—July 11-18.

MID-WEST DISTRICT, Near Kansas City (new camp grounds)—not yet announced.

SOUTHEASTERN DISTRICT (Peniel)—Not yet announced.

Application blanks have been sent out for Ohio and Indiana Campers. More can be obtained for the asking. Don't delay getting yours in.

L. E. Lindower, Camp Director,

*Note the Dates of your
C a m p*

Guests of The King

Rev. Robert K. Higgins, Pastor Mexico-Loree Circuit

"And when the King came in to see the Guests, He saw there a man which had not on a wedding garment." Matthew 22:11.

IT SEEMS TO BE one of the oddities of our enlightened age that there are still great multitudes of people who feel that they will suffer no appreciable loss by refusing the invitation of the King of the Wedding Feast. Jesus tried repeatedly to explain the characteristics of the Kingdom of Heaven to the hard-crusteds, intellectual Scribes and Pharisees. And here we have another parabolic attempt.

We, who are engrossed heart and soul in the work of preparation for that great day, can hardly understand how anyone would refuse an invitation to be His guest. But the fact remains that the invitation was ignored, not once, but twice, even to the extent of mistreating the King's servants. But we must remember that the King was unwilling to believe that His invitation had been refused. So much so that He sent His servants out again saying, "Go tell them I have prepared—all things are ready. Come to the marriage." And His servants were made light of—"They went their ways."

What a description of humanity today. The utter lack of concern for God's business could have been no greater than than now. "And when the King heard, He sent forth His armies and destroyed them." May we gather that this lack of concern today may be due to the fact that the church (the King's servants) have soft-pedaled the idea of punishment upon those who ignore or refuse His invitation?

Then the King sent His servants out into the highways and byways to find guests for the feast, which had already been prepared and waiting. We read that they gathered together "as many as they found, both bad and good" and the wedding was furnished with guests.

We would not seek to ignore the symbolic implication here, which has been made so often. Jesus is, in all probability, likening the King to God; himself as the King's Son, and the House of Israel as the first-bidden people, who refused to come. The invitation had first been given to the House of Israel through countless Patriarchs and Prophets. The instances where they had abused and ignored God's servants, are legion in the Old Testament scriptures. Then the King sends His servants out into the highways and byways to gather all. How much like the Lord's command, "Go ye into all the world" this sounds! Then the wedding feast was furnished with guests. We see here the extent to which God will go to bring men to the marriage feast. It is a parable of the extreme to which He will go to bring men into the kingdom.

Now let us turn to our text verse. After the guests were assembled the King came in, and "saw there a man which had not on a wedding garment." Immediately the question is raised—what kind of a garment did the guest need? and was it necessary that he have a certain type of garment? To these two questions we seek an answer from the scriptures. I believe that first man must avail himself of a garment; then he must see that it is one acceptable to the King. So, to be an acceptable "Guest of the King" I believe that man needs these three materials woven into his wedding garment.—Faith, Repentance and Baptism.

First, let us consider the material of Faith. In Hebrews we read, "Faith is the substance of things hoped for, the evidence of things not seen." Faith is the foundation on which the things we hope for stands. The evidence of things not seen is the assurance that such things do exist. Now, how can a man place such material in his Wedding Garment (his life) so that he will be an acceptable guest? John wrote this—"Many other signs truly did Jesus, which are not written in this book; but these are written that ye might believe that Jesus is the Christ, the Son of God, and that believing, ye might have life through His name." Should we not gather from this:

1. That Faith comes by hearing the Gospel, or in reading;
2. That we are to believe in Christ, rather than merely in doctrines and traditions, and,
3. That the purpose of Faith is to give us Life Eternal?

So we see that WHAT we believe is vastly more important than HOW we believe. The King did not look to see HOW the guests wore their garments; but rather WHAT kind of garments they wore. Thus we need the material of Faith in our wedding garment before we are worthy guests.

Next I am sure we shall need some of the Material of Repentance in our garment before it will be acceptable unto the King. Many will ask, "What is repentance?" Shall we answer first by saying what it is not? It is not just being sorry for wrong doing. It is not just the expression of sorrow and confession for sins. It is not merely reformation of your life. But it is in reality sorrow for sin which results in a reformation of your entire life; it is a ceasing to do evil and learning to do good. Why must we repent before we are acceptable "Guests of the King?" Because God (the King) demands it. In Acts we read, "The times of this ignorance God winked at; but now commandeth all men everywhere to repent." And also it is because of God's goodness. God is not only a King to command, to judge and to punish; He is also a kind, loving Father. For in Romans we read, "Despise not thou the riches of His goodness and forbearance and long-suffering; not knowing that the goodness of God leadeth thee to repentance?" Jesus said, "Except ye repent, ye shall all likewise perish." So we find that repentance must be a part of our Wedding Garment, else "outer darkness" may be our lot, even as it was that of the guest in our text. With genuine repentance, our garments will become beautiful and acceptable, for repentance brings confession; confession brings forgiveness, and forgiveness will robe us with the garment of righteousness. All this will result in a newness and freshness of life that will bring the approval of the King.

Then lastly, our Wedding Garment must contain proof of baptism, else it will not be recognized as such. Over and over the New Testament scriptures tell us to confess Christ Jesus, be baptized, and we shall be saved. After numerous identifications had been made by Jesus, He turned to His disciples and asked, "Whom say ye that I am?" And Peter quickly answered, "Thou art the Christ, the Son of the Living God." He did not stand speechless before his Lord and Master. The great sin of so many individuals today is that they stand speechless before the King and humanity when they might do immeasurable good by confessing Him. The man of our text might have given many excuses for his lack of a wedding garment, but he was speechless. I suppose he is a symbol of the many who would be amazed at such a challenge today. In modern-day terms he might have said, "No one ever asked me to obtain one. No one ever told me that I would need special garments for this occasion." How sad it is today that the church (the King's servants) misses so many opportunities to help provide men with the raiment they will need for this day.

Then again, he might have said, "I saw many who professed to have this wedding garment, and I did not like the appearance of it, so I neglected to purchase one." And it is true that so many of us are careless about keep our wedding garment (our life) appealing to those who need a change of raiment.

These are some of the many excuses this guest might have voiced, and you and I are familiar with all of them. But the fact remains that just accepting the King's invitation is not enough; for we must go to the Wedding Feast clothed in a Wedding Garment, and if we fail to do this, we face certain destruction. In Second Corinthians we find Paul's words, "For we groan, earnestly desiring to be clothed upon with our house which is from heaven. If so be that we shall not be found naked." The only garment that will be acceptable unto our God (the King) when He calls us to that Wedding Feast which He is now preparing for His Son (Christ Jesus) and the Church, will be one made up of Faith, Repentance and Baptism. Paul wrote to the Ephesians that it was necessary "that ye put on the New Man, which after God is created in righteousness and true holiness."

Our earnest prayer goes out that all might be invited to the Marriage Feast, and that all might purchase a Wedding Garment. Let not one Guest ever be cast into outer darkness because through us they lost the opportunity of obtaining a garment, or from us they lost the desire to have it. A man's life is his "Wedding Garment." May He find us clothed in righteousness. Might He find you and me clothed in raiment befitting a "Guest of the King."

—Bunker Hill, Indiana.

As the time of sorrow merges into the tribulation period, the greatest world war—Armageddon—will have its beginning.

Bits of Brethren History Information of Interest

By H. C. Funderburg

(These articles are printed just as they come from the pen of Brother Funderburg.)

FLAT ROCK, VIRGINIA

ABOUT THE YEAR 1800 the first Brother moved to the Valley of Virginia and settled in the upper end of the Shenandoah County. He was a minister and his name was Jacob Garber. He was the father of seven sons, six of whom became ministers, and the other one a deacon. They were all faithful ministers, planting many churches in Virginia, Tennessee and Ohio. All lived to be aged.

Martin Garber, one of the seven sons, remained in the county near the home of his father, traveling much and laboring faithfully in the Redeemer's cause. He is connected with some of the writings of the Old Brethren in the encyclopedia. He was Elder of the District of Virginia, which then extended from Harrisonburg to the Maryland line.

When the membership became too large, the district was divided, and Jacob Wine, grandson of Martin Garber, became the Elder in Flat Rock District. The district took its name from the rock on which the church was built, it being one mile from where Martin Garber lived.

The rock has an area of about an acre. "Some rock, isn't it?" It was deeded to the church by Brother Michel Wine, Sr., who lived in a house in which, over eighty years ago, a yearly meeting was held. The house was not more than half full of people. An old man from South Branch being present exclaimed that the house was so large they ought to have two preachers.

COAL CREEK, ILLINOIS

In the autumn of 1844 Jacob Negley, with his family, came to Fulton County, Illinois, not known of any members there. In the spring of 1845 David Zuck and his family came. He was in the second degree of the ministry. They held social meetings at their house every two weeks. At first their congregation was small, but after their neighbors heard of it the congregation increased. John Markley and wife, from Ohio, had been there for several years.

In the autumn of 1847 Daniel Martin and family came. He was an ordained Elder. These, except Markley and his wife, all came from Welsh Run, Franklin County, Pennsylvania. They then began holding meetings regularly in a school house and finally had an organized body of nine members. They adopted for a name, "Coal Creek."

About a year later, one Sunday morning, a man by the name of Ensign called at Brother Nagley's house and asked for shelter from an impending storm. After some conversation he asked Nagley, "To what denomination do you belong?" The answer was that they belonged to the German Baptists, but were probably more commonly known by the name of Tunker. Ensign said, "Then you belong to the Soup People." The reply was, "Yes, we have soup at our communion meeting." Ensign then said, "I know of a man by the name of Wolfe, in Adams County, an able preacher, who belongs to your church." When asked for his full name and address, he could give neither, but said he, "I have a brother-in-law in the same county, by the name of Buchnel, belonging to the same church, whose address is Liberty."

Shortly Brother Wolfe was written to in care of Brother Buchnel. About two weeks later Brother Buchnel visited the brethren in Fulton County and, finding their faith the same, he gave them Brother Wolfe's full name and address, writing him an invitation to visit them.

In the autumn of 1849 the Brethren in Fulton County, Illinois, had their first Love Feast. By this time they had become more extensively known. Brother Samuel Garber of Ogle County, and Brother Wolfe attended. Being strangers, the church had a council to ascertain whether they could commune with each other, and wash feet in the single mode, which they did. At the next annual meeting Brother Garber introduced Brother Wolfe. Thereafter the latter visited the Brethren in Fulton County frequently.

In 1876, in this church there were four ministers—two were ordained Elders, one in first degree, and one in the second degree. There were three deacons and about sixty members.

Business Manager's Corner

(Continued from page 3)

How the Press Fund Stands

The total cash received to date (5-21-48) is $8,862.94. There are some pledges due and not paid, and some have made neither a gift nor a pledge. The second year of this 3-year campaign closes at General Conference time and we would like to close the year with at least $10,000.00 in cash. Our total goal was set at $15,000.00 and that means we have $6,137.06 yet to raise. It is the Lord's challenge. Let's meet His expectations and go forward with Him.

STEWARDSHIP FILM STRIP AVAILABLE

The National Stewardship Institute of The Golden Rule Foundation has prepared a series of slides with accompanying script on the overall picture of our dollar expenditures in America today. The program is entitled "Our Choice" and is designed to help your group increase the number of contributions and the level of giving for religious, educational and other benevolent purposes.

These slides may be had by writing to the Visual Department of The National Stewardship Institute in care of The Golden Rule Foundation, 60 East 42nd Street, New York 17, N. Y. There is no fixed charge for the use of these 2X2 transparencies in color. It is hoped however some gift be made to the Institute to help it extend this important program of Stewardship.

Interesting Items

(Continued from Page 2)

The Louisville Mother and Daughter Banquet was held on Friday evening, May 14, with Mrs. Paul Sorenson of Canton, Ohio, as the Guest Speaker.

Cerro Gordo, Illinois. It will be remembered that a few weeks ago we told you of the determination of the Cerro Gordo Young People to raise their Camp apportionment by Tithing. Well, here is Brother C. E. Johnson's word about it: "There are still two weeks (this was the bulletin of May 16) to go, but they are glad to announce that they have raised the amount in full and not a single penny was received from anyone but themselves. It pays to follow God's plan."

Plans are being made for the painting of both the Church building and the parsonage at Cerro Gordo.

Huntington, Indiana. A record attendance of seventy-one is reported for the Huntington Mother and Daughter banquet which was held on Monday evening, May 3. The oldest mother, Mrs. Ryan, eighty-five, and the youngest mother, Mrs. Jean Maxton Biggs, twenty-four, received corsages, as did the pastor's wife, Mrs. C. Y. Gilmer. Among the attendants was a four-generation representation—Mrs. Mary Swain, Mrs. Bernice Parker, Mrs. Eloise Carroll and her daughter Stephanie.

Brother and Sister Gilmer announce the wedding of their daughter, Mary Elizabeth, to Rev. Alvin H. Grumbeling, which will take place in the Huntington Brethren Church on Sunday afternoon, May 30, at 3:30 o'clock.

A new switch panel for the church lighting, an outdoor meter and a three-line power was installed recently in the Huntington church. Also on Tuesday, May 4, four of the city firemen came with ladders and cleaned the ceiling lights in the church. This was a fine gesture. Brother Gilmer also reports that a new railing was placed in the vestibule, new curtains in the basement windows, and much cleaning makes the church look very nice indeed.

The Huntington Laymen were surprised at the unannounced coming of Brother John C. Eck of New Lebanon, who is very active in the National Laymen's Organization, to a recent meeting of the local organization. His visit was much appreciated.

Change of address. Dr. W. I. Duker has moved. And after telling the editor that he had made his last move. His new address is Goshen, Indiana, Route 5. He says, "We are comfortably located in our own home again and happy about it."

Linwood, Maryland. Brother Elmer Keck reports that the Mother and Daughter banquet was largely attended. Rev. Harley and Mrs. Marsh were the guest speakers.

The Crusaders sponsored a Vesper service on the spacious church lawn of the Linwood church on Saturday, May 22, at 8:00 P. M.

We should take heed of pride because it is a sin that turned angels to devils.

CHRISTIAN ENDEAVOR TOPIC

W. St. Clair Benshoff, Topic Editor

"Topics copyrighted by the International Society of Christian Endeavor. Used by permission."

Topic for June 6, 1948

CHRISTIAN STANDARDS FOR DATERS

Scripture: Ecclesiastes 11:9; Colossians 3:17

For The Leader

SO YOU'RE going to have a "date?" Well, that is all right provided you have reached the proper age, and have abided by the wishes of your parents. It is perfectly normal for young people when they have reached the proper age, to want the company of friends in what we call "dates." But, in addition to being a perfectly normal process, "dating" is imposed upon by our modern society with many dangerous habits and customs. In view of the dangers which we face in this regard, it is very important that we learn the Christian Standards for daters, and abide by them. We can seek the aid of our parents; we must abide by their stipulations and refusals. We can seek the aid of our minister. We must pray God about it. Many sorry young people right now would be far happier had they followed these simple rules of the Christian Standard.

DISCUSSION

1. TWO STANDARDS FOR DATERS. The problem of the Christian young person is made doubly hard these days because of the paganish and low moraled attitudes of our high school students. Throughout the entire High School system there runs that low moral attitude of getting the most physical satisfaction out of a date as possible. The vulgar, immoral, brazen talk and suggestions our young people meet face to face in our High School would astonish the most open minded of parents today. Is it any wonder then that some of our "wildest" young people have come from otherwise "pious" Christian homes? Protected at home, they fall victim to the enticing wiles of evil classmates in our schools. It is a problem facing every concerned Christian parent today. The most we can do is declare two standards for daters. The unchristian, and the Christian. We young people of C. E., must honor virtue, respect each other, and satisfy ourselves with the fact that there are things we dare not do on dates.

2. A PARAPHRASE OF A DATE. (Maybe, young people, you can get some help from this story of a ride on a mountain road.) Going out on a date is like going down a steep mountain road in a car—it can be dangerous. Our normal activities of life are like a smooth rolling highway with its mild curves and grades. But a date is different—it can be handled O. K., or it can end up in disaster. There is a chance you will navigate O. K., and end up with pleasant thoughts of a well spent time, or you can have only tragedy or remorse—like going on an automobile ride—it can have a happy ending, or a tragic—depending on what you do. No doubt you are familiar with steep mountain roads. To go down them requires great care and sense. Picture on a date that you are going down a steep mountain road with lots of dangers and curves.

3. PARAPHRASE CONTINUED. If you let yourself coast, you will wreck; if you give it the gas, you will wreck. If your brakes are no good, you will meet disaster. If you disregard the rules, you will be wrecked. The same on a date. God has set the rules—you must obey. The dangers to your life increases many times when on a date, and that's why we liken it to going down a steep mountain grade. Three things you can do to insure safety. First, approach with caution—realizing the ever present dangers. Do not underestimate the dangers of passions getting out of control. Second, you can go into low gear. This will keep you safe on curves and steep places. Third, you can resolve to drive sanely. Of course, if you want thrills, go fast—try anything your date wants you to do—drive recklessly, throw caution and home teaching to the wind—but watch that next curve—you'll be going too fast to stop. That's when you'll come home sorry, Remember the rules and abide by them.

4. PARAPHRASE COUCLUDED. You should have brakes—good brakes you can use to slow down and to stop you if needs be. But brakes do fail sometimes. Yes you think you can stop before you smash up. Some wait too late to put on the brakes. If you go cautiously, you won't need to slam on the brakes. When your brake of good judgment fails, you're going to crack up. You fellows, the Christian standard of daters insists that you be a gentleman on a date. Don't try to see how far you can go. Respect your date. She is some father's and mother's precious daughter. She's to be some one's wife some day. Treat her as you would expect the one you'll want for your wife to be treated. Don't think you can have one standard for the girls you date, and another for the one you'll want to marry.

5. THOUGHTS FURTHER. Yes, and you girls, too. Popularity with the right sort of fellows isn't dependent on how many liberties you give them. You set the standard for the date. If you aren't the type of a girl for a low moraled fellow, be thankful. He wouldn't be treating you fair anyway. The right man will admire you some day because you were smart enough to value your virtue and your life. "What, know ye not that your body is the temple of the Holy Spirit?" Honor and respect and keep that body within you. That is the Christian standard for daters. It can be said in a different way, that in your dating, honor God in all that you do. Have fun, young people, and have loads of it, but keep your dating on the Christian standard.

QUESTIONS

1. Is it all right for Christian young people to date those who are not Christians? What are the dangers? Discuss thoroughly, bringing both sides into discussion.

2. Speaking frankly (according to the age and problems of your individual group) with your Pastor or Advisor as Counsellor, what things are permissible and not permissible on dates, according to the Christian standard. (If worked properly, this question can be of lasting value to all in your group.)

Prayer Meeting Topic

Contributed by Rev. C. Y. Gilmer

(Helps for Christian Living)

DIFFERENT FROM THE WORLD

God's standard for His people
Has always been the same,
A call to separation
Down through the ages came,
He wants us to be holy—
This challenge still is hurled,
That His precious people
Be different from the world.

Yes, different in our conduct
From others round about;
Our lives are speaking louder
Than sermons, songs or shout.
So let us then be careful
That all men in us find
A life that speaks for Jesus—
Forgiving, courteous, kind.

Companionships are different—
No fellowship have we
With those who walk in darkness;
What concord can there be
In business, marriage, social life?
Oh, these are Satan's snares;
"Come out, and be ye separate,"
The word of God declares.

The reason we are different—
To God we give the praise;
He changes our hearts completely,
And orders all our ways.
Lord, keep us always different—
In conduct, dress or talk;
Not walking as the Scriptures warn,
As other Gentiles walk.

—Log of the Good Ship Grace.

"BE YE NOT UNEQUALLY YOKED"

Scripture: 2 Cor. 6:14-18

Hymns of Consecration

Leader's Petition

Seed Thought Provokers:

OUR SCRIPTURE LESSON is little used and practiced. God's people ought to be separate from the devil's people. Twice-born people are different from once-born people. Christians should love lost people and be good neighbors to them and seek to win them to Christ. But they should not be bound in the same yoke with them. Eventually the separation between the saved and the lost will be the difference between Heaven and Hell.

The believer is not to yoke with one who has not trusted Christ as Saviour (verse 15). The unbeliever is lost and condemned (John 3:18, 36). A saved person's body is the temple of God (1 Cor. 3:16, 17) and the body of the unsaved is an idol, possessed of Satan (Rom. 6:16). God pressed the doctrine of separation continually upon the Jews (Genesis 12:1; Deut. 22:9-11). The Jew's meat diet was different purely as a mark of separation from the Gentiles (Lev. 11:7, 10). Later we are plainly commanded not to observe Jewish dietary laws (1 Tim. 4:4). The Flood was caused by the inter-marriage of the saved and the lost (Gen. 6:1-7). Solomon married unsaved women who turned his heart to idols (1 Kings 11:4, 5). Nehemiah rebuked his men for marrying unsaved women. (Neh. 13:23-27). All should be saved before marriage. A mixed marriage should not be broken (1 Cor. 7:10-16). After marriage it is too late to avoid trouble. Samson discovered it.

A justified criticism today is that the world cannot tell the difference between God's man and the devil's man. It is hard for a Christian to maintain his integrity of faith and have fellowship, concord and agreement with the enemies of Christ and the Bible. Those who are married to this world are spiritual adulterers (James 4:4). "Is this vile world a friend to grace to help me on to God (1 John 2:15-17)?" This world was no friend to our Lord (John 15:18). Why should I be yoked with the wicked world that crucified my Lord (2 Tim. 3:15; Luke 6:26)?

Jesus was the Friend of sinners but separate from them (Heb. 7:26). He did not partake of their sins. We are to weep over sinners and run after them to save them for Jesus' sake, but we are not to bind ourselves to their ways. We are to conform our lives after the teaching of the Master, rather than the ways of the unconverted (Col. 3:9, 10; Rom. 12:2).

Prayers by the group.

COMMENTS

On The Sunday School Lesson

by The Editor

Lesson for June 6, 1948

COURAGE TO PUT GOD FIRST

Lesson: Daniel 3:4-7, 13-18; 6:10

COURAGE is that attribute in the life of an individual that comes to the forefront in times of stress and which will carry him through, regardless of the consequences to himself both physically and spiritually. We have two fine examples of this in our lesson today.

In reality this might be considered a continuation of last Sunday's lesson, though the emphasis shifts from the four very young men, Daniel, Hananiah, Mishael and Azariah, to these four men, now grown, some time later. Having been chosen to important positions in the Babylonian kingdom (see Daniel 2:48-49) these four became the center of scenes which were to have great bearing on the attitude of Nebuchadnezzar and his successors.

It was no uncommon thing for the ruler of a nation to set himself up as a god to be worshipped, or to cause an image representing his thought to be made for the purpose of worship. It is such we meet now, and in this incident we find an example of "putting God first" by three "courageous" young men. (Do not confuse the change of names. These three young men are the same ones as those in last Sunday's lesson.)

It would be well for you to now pause to read the entire third chapter of Daniel. It is a gripping story. One cannot help being greatly moved at the "courage" of these men. Facing, as they knew, certain death for disobedience to the king's command, they stood steadfast in their faith and put "God first" in their worship. Note their words, "Be it known unto thee, O king, that we will not serve thy gods, nor worship the golden image which thou hast set up." At these words the anger of the king waxed great. The furnace was heated to seven times its ordinary heat. The men were cast in—but to no effect. It reminds us of the words found in Isaiah 26:3, where it says, "Thou wilt keep him in perfect peace, whose mind is stayed on thee, because he trusteth in thee." The effect on the king was something to be remembered. (Read Daniel 3:29-30.) God never forsakes His children when their testimony rings true and courageous.

And here we leave these three men of courage, for we hear no more of them, but we continue with the fourth of the party in the person of Daniel.

Years have passed; Nebuchadnezzar has passed on; his successor, Belshazzar has gone into oblivion, and Darius, the Median, has come into power—but Daniel still is a force for good in the kingdom. He had arisen to great power (read it in Daniel 6:1-3) and so great was his ability that the king "thought to set him over the whole realm." Jealousy followed. The plot resulted. They knew Daniel's daily habits of prayer—prayer that was made to God. (A good habit for anyone, that of daily prayer.) The decree was signed that no prayer was to be made to "any god or man" save the king, and if disobeyed, the lion's den was the punishment. That could mean only one thing—death.

But note Daniel's courage to put God first. He prayed, as was his custom, in open defiance to the king's orders. Only one result—he was cast into the den of lions. But again God vindicated his trust in Him. The real result—found in Daniel 6:26—the words of Darius, "I make a decree, That in every dominion of my kingdom men tremble and fear before the God of Daniel: for he is the living God and steadfast for ever, and his kingdom that which shall not be destroyed, and his dominion shall be even unto the end. He delivereth and rescueth, and he worketh signs and wonders in heaven and in earth, who hath delivered Daniel from the power of the lions."

It pays to courageously put God first in ALL THINGS.

It is not your brick bats and hot words, but your shining light that causes people to glorify your Father in heaven.

Whom the Lord loveth, He scourgeth not petteth, stuffeth or lulleth to sleep. Better have the Lord punish you than the devil pet you.

Ashland College News Letter

By Arthur Petit

THIS TIME of the year, news is not hard to find on the Ashland College campus. Big news, of course, is graduation on May 28. A number of Brethren young people and others from Brethren communities are graduating this year. Included are: Wanda Beal, Mansfield, Ohio; Paul Clapper, Louisville, Ohio; Janet Good, Waynesboro, Pennsylvania; Robert Holsinger, Springport, Indiana; Victor Humm, Ashland, Ohio; Philip Nolte, Stockton, New Jersey; Elizabeth Lee Boardman Richmond, Philadelphia, Pennsylvania; Samuel Richmond, Nappanee, Indiana; Glenn Shank, Hagerstown, Maryland; Ray Sluss, Louisville, Ohio; Beatrice Stuckey, Alliance, Ohio; Ann Gilbert, West Alexandria, Ohio; Pegge Shively, Nappanee, Indiana; Donna Bechtel, Canton, Ohio; Dorothy Berger, Canton, Ohio; Walter Bixler, Ashland, Ohio and Joan Elizabeth Riddle, Ashland, Ohio.

Donald Richard Wolfe will be awarded the degree of Master in Religious Education by the Seminary.

There are 47 graduates this spring and a number more in August. This is the largest graduating class in many years. They will continue to become larger for a number of years to come. Many young people are accelerating their college work and are graduating in three or three and a half years.

May Day has come and gone and was another of those memorable occasions. Several innovations this year were: the Coronation in the afternoon and the Alumni Dinner in the evening. Miss Garnet Miller, niece of the late Clifford Mast of Sterling, Ohio, was a beautiful queen and upheld the course of the oldest Ashland tradition. Miss Pegge Shively of Nappanee, Indiana, the retiring queen, presided at the coronation.

Big news on the campus this week is the dropping from the Ohio Athletic Conference of Ashland. The faculty voted to withdraw several weeks ago and it was announced last week. Indirectly, the purpose was to cut down on athletic injuries by allowing more boys, the freshmen, to come out for football and thus allow the coaches to rest injured boys rather than having to play them when they were not in condition. A new league of denominational church schools is being planned. Hiram, Defiance, Cedarville, Rio Grande, and Bluffton have been invited to join.

Ashland College is now broadcasting from its new studios, the gift of Miss Florence Cleaver, Falls City, Nebraska. Every week day, Ashland College is heard over a wide radius over station WATG in Ashland. This has greatly increased the possibility of Ashland influence in addition to giving students a chance to learn radio technique under actual conditions. One of the courses now offered at Ashland is Radio Preaching.

Summer school is scheduled to open June 7 for a nine week term, closing just before General Conference in August.

News From Our Churches

GEORGETOWN, DELAWARE

We had the pleasure of having Rev. H. R. Garland with us for a two weeks revival meeting. May I say that Brother Garland is a good gospel preacher and highly spiritual. Our members and strangers liked him and he is welcome to return among us. As an evangelist mingling among the people, our folks enjoyed meeting with him and conversing about the things concerning Christ and the church. Brother Garland drilled our people in chorus singing and several children had a good time singing for us.

Rev. Z. Bean, pastor of the Wesleyan Methodist Church here, came and brought most of his members with him and this made our church nearly full. Then another night, Rev. William McDaniel of the Farmington Church of the Brethren came out with his wife and helped us with the music. The following Sunday evening Brother McDaniel closed his church and came down to our services. This was the largest group we had during the services. We were grateful to the visiting ministers and their congregations.

Our own members were very faithful. They attended well and in our visitations they fed us well. May I state that as the pastor I am grateful to all of them for their help in looking after things for us so that we had the very best in attendance as well as in care for our bodies.

During the services we had one renewal and two were baptized on their confession of faith in Christ as their Saviour. The two were baptized at Denton, Maryland, in the Church of the Brethren baptistry.

We all can say that we are glad that Brother Garland was with us. We thank God for the help he was to our congregation, and to the community. May the Lord continue to bless Brother Garland as he continues to labor in His vineyard.

We were glad to have Rev. Garland in our home. He was a blessing to us all.

Yours in the Master's service,

S. E. Christiansen.

REVIVAL AT GEORGETOWN, DELAWARE

A few months ago the writer was called upon to conduct a two weeks revival for the Mt. Olivet Brethren near Georgetown, Delaware. This was an unexpected privilege, but was accepted very readily, due to the fact that a lot had been heard about the good Brethren of this place through Dr. I. D. Bowman, one of their former pastors, who is held in high esteem by these Brethren, as well as by their present pastor, Brother S. E. Christiansen, who, through his untiring efforts has indeed and in truth won his way into the hearts of these people. One has but to visit this field to know the sacrifice that the Christiansens have endured to appreciate them and the work they have done here.

They have one of the nicest little country church buildings and the most neatly kept of any I have ever seen anywhere.

A fine time was had with these good Brethren from April 19 through May 2, closing on Monday, May 3 with Communion. I certainly did enjoy the fellowship with Brother Christiansen and the fine families of the church as we visited among them and partook of the splendid meals which they had prepared for us. We thank these good people, along with the Christiansens, with whom the evangelist had his home while in Delaware, for the many kindnesses extended us and the many things done to make our stay a pleasant one. The evangelist also thanks the Mt. Olivet Brethren for the fine gift presented him upon leaving.

May the Lord bless both pastor and people as they continue on in the service of the Master and the upbuilding of His Kingdom.

H. R. Garland, Jones Mills, Pennsylvania.

FIRST BRETHERN CHURCH, JOHNSTOWN, PA.

This report from Johnstown covers a recent meeting of one of the Bible Classes and recalls some interesting history of the church.

On Thursday evening, April 29th, The Helping Hand Bible Class met in the basement of the church for a covered dish supper. This is our men's class, and our three eldest members were recognized and given special honor. Each of these men is past 80 years of age. Brother S. A. Snook is the only living charter member of the church. Brother David Reighard recently celebrated his 89th birthday anniversary. The other octogenarian is Brother A. C. Guyer.

W. S. Phenicie, class president, was master of ceremonies for the occasion. Rev. W. A. Ogden led in the invocation. The class teacher, Prof. A. G. Ober, reviewed the history of the class from the time of its organization more than fifty years ago. W. Z. Replogle was the first teacher. Two charter members, Wm. R. and Lewis Miller, are still active in the class.

Greetings were extended by Rev. Geo. Jones, a former member of the class, and Rev. Jos. L. Gingrich. Both of these men have been close to our work in Johnstown throughout the years and are held in high esteem among us.

The honored guest, and speaker of the evening, was Rev. E. E. Haskins, pastor of the church from 1893 to 1904. Rev. Haskins had not spoken in the church since leaving here more than forty years ago. To those of us who were but youngsters at that time it was a real treat to have him with us on this occasion. During his talk he recalled that when the Annual Conference was held here in 1896 some of the visiting ministers asked him how he got along with five ministers in his congregation. He

The winter session of Ashland College will open this year on September 14 and the freshmen will arrive September 7.

According to the number of applicants already accepted, it is expected that there will be about 200 freshmen next fall. The administration is greatly pleased with the number of Brethren Young people who have applied.

Spiritual Meditations

Rev. Dyoll Belote

LUMINOUS LIVES

"For with thee is the fountain of life; in thy light shall we see light."—Psalm 36:9.

IN OUR HOME we have an alarm clock with a luminous face. In the day time it is just an ordinary alarm clock, but at night we can place it on the dresser in our bedroom and if we waken in the night and want to know what time it is we need but look in the direction of the clock and there are the figures showing the time because of the luminous material painted on the figures and hands. A man who had made a trip to France, and returned, brought back with him a match box which was advertised as being luminous in the dark so that if the owner wished a match in the night he could find his box to get a match. But the first time he attempted to display his "magic" match box it wouldn't work. The next evening as his wife turned off the light in the home he noticed his match box, and it was glowing brightly. On examination, his wife who understood and read French, and by reading the legend on the box, revealed the secret. The legend read: "If you'll keep me in the sunlight all day long, then I'll glow for you in the darkness all night long."

If we will remember the secret of the luminous power of the match box we shall come close to the secret of the possibility of our lives being luminous for God. Dark, cloudy days will not help the box to shine—it must be kept in the sunlight. Doubts, sorrow, indifference, sin—anything that comes between us and God will make it impossible for our lives to glow with the reflected light that is in the face of Jesus Christ. But when men expose themselves to the light that shines upon them from the face of the blessed Master, in worship, meditation and prayer, then shall their spirits shine brightly through the darkest experiences of life, and they shall be classed with those of whom the Bible speaks, that "men took knowledge that they had been with Jesus." Are our lives luminous?

—Hagerstown, Maryland.

The Lord gets His best soldiers out of the highlands of affliction.

A self-pitying self is a pitiable self.

Carnal indifference is a curse with blighting effect.

DOES THE DEVIL GO TO CHURCH?

YES, THE DEVIL DOES GO TO CHURCH!

We can't see the Devil in Church, but we often can see the evidence of his presence.

1. He is always on time, for he tries to discourage the Leaders from beginning on time "because so few scholars are present."

2. He encourages us to sit silently instead of joining in the singing.

3. He tells us to keep our eyes open during prayer, so that we lose the spiritual atmosphere intended to accompany prayer.

4. He helps us to walk to the door and go home after Sunday School.

5. The Devil provides incentives for us to criticize the Choir, the Ushers, the Pianist, the Minister, or everything in general.

6. Too, he provides us with "pleasant thoughts" of week day activities so we can "day dream" instead of listening to the sermon. (We appear interested, though.)

7. He even helps us to put on our coats during the last hymn so we are ready to ZOOM out as soon as the Benediction is over.

8. Last, but not least, the Devil goes to Church even when we don't. And then he sits right in our seat and makes faces at the Minister.

There is considerable truth in all the statements above. In summary, they represent our personal attitude and reaction to the call of the services of God's House. A prayerful, wholesome attitude on our part can do much in the way of remedying these conditions IN ANY CHURCH.

—From the Vinco, Pa., Bulletin.

» » » » Our Poet's Corner « « « «

"IN THE STILL OF NIGHT"

Dot Custer

The night is so calm and very still,
As the air with reverence doth fill.
Each second's more sacred as it goes by,
For we are alone, just He and I.

If only these moments would never cease,
Of this sweet contentment of matchless peace.
Too fast do the hours seem to fly—
When we are alone, just He and I.

I must hurry with my Savior to speak,
Soon the town will awake from sleep.
Then no more, I say with a sigh—
Will we be alone, just He and I.

There'll be places to go and things to do,
That will make our moments together few.
So before the dawn draws quickly nigh—
We'll have our talk, just He and I.

—Pittsburgh, Pa.

said that his reply was that these men were the pillars of the church and his best helpers. He then spoke of some of these Elders and recalled the names of Daniel Crofford, Benjamin Goughnour, W. A. Adams, R. Z. Replogle and W. A. Crofford, father of the writer. Mention was also made of the following influential laymen, Albert Trent, W. H. Lake and Herman Statler.

During the program Mrs. Boyd Berger played two piano solos and Prof. J. Lloyd Jones sang "Face to Face." Mrs. Howard Schmucker showed some interesting "home" pictures. Our pastor, Rev. Ogden, gave appropriate closing remarks and closed with prayer. This service will long be remembered by all who were privileged to be present.

Lewis H. Crofford.

Laid to Rest

GARBER. Grace Helen Merrill Garber, youngest daughter of J. H. and Grace Merrill, was born near Decatur, Illinois, April 5, 1887 and departed this life April 25, 1948, being at the time of her departure 61 years and 20 days of age.

On March 4, 1906 she was united in holy matrimony to Frank W. Garber at Leon, Iowa. To this union were born five children: Osa Albert, Francis O., Walter D., Mrs. Florence White and Mrs. Viola Curtright, all of whom live in or near Cheyenne, Wyoming.

In early years she gave her heart to God and united with the M. E. Church, later transferring her membership to the Brethren Church at Leon, Iowa. She was a charter member of the Cheyenne, Brethren Church. She was always an active member and worker in the church, being the organizer of the Woman's Missionary Society in Cheyenne. She was also a member of the W. C. T. U.

In 1910 she, with her family, moved on a homestead fourteen miles northwest of Cheyenne, where she braved the hardships of frontier life for four and a half years, during which time she lost her health, returning to Iowa where they lived for twenty-four years. They returned again to Cheyenne in 1939 where she has continued to reside until her departure.

She leaves to mourn her departure, her husband, five children, twenty grandchildren, three sisters, and a host of other relatives and friends.

The funeral services were held on April 27 from the Shrader Funeral Home in Cheyenne, with Rev. White, pastor of the First Baptist Church in charge. The body was laid to rest in the beautiful Lake View Cemetery, there to await the resurrection morn.

(Sister Garber was the wife of Brother Frank W. Garber, pastor of our church in Cheyenne, Wyoming.)

COBER. Alvara B. Cober of Berlin, Pennsylvania departed this life to be with his Lord on April 30, 1948. Mr. Cober was a well known educator of Somerset county, having received his education in the schools of Somerset county, California State Teacher's College, Columbia University, Penn State and University of the Philippines.

He was a faithful member of the Berlin Brethren Church, and was moderator of this congregation at the time of his death. He was superintendent of the Sunday school for forty years, retiring from this position only two years ago. Mr. Cober is survived by his wife, Mrs. Nellie Konotz Cober, also his mother who is now past ninety-eight, both living in Berlin. May the Lord of all comfort sustain them in this time of sadness. Funeral services were conducted in the Berlin Church by the undersigned, assisted by Reverend Ira R. Harkins, pastor of the Reformed Church, and who is Mrs. Cober's pastor.

S. M. Whetstone, Dayton, Ohio.

DONAT. William J. Donat passed from this life on Thursday morning, April 29, 1948 in the eighty-second year of his earthly life. His life was spent in Elkhart and St. Joseph Counties in Indiana.

He was a member of the Ardmore Brethren Church and a loyal member he was. He leaves his companion, one son, three daughters, twelve grandchildren and ten greatgrandchildren.

This good man and his wife unselfishly gave the best they had for God and the church and to their children and grandchildren.

Funeral services were held at the First Brethren Church on Monday afternoon, May 3, with Rev. Claud Studebaker and the undersigned officiating. Burial was made in Rice Cemetery in Elkhart.

R. F. Porte.

Wedding Announcement

BOONE-MALLORY. Frank Boone of Star Junction, Pennsylvania, and Roselma Mallory of Masontown, Pennsylvania, were united in marriage on Saturday afternoon, May 1, 1948 at the Masontown Brethren Church. The single ring ceremony was used. The soloist was Gladys Chissel, a niece of the bride; pianist, Alice Ankrum; best man, Clarence Morris; Matron of honor, Goldie Mallory, a sister of the bride, and Bridesmaid, Ellen Hartley of Barnesville, Ohio. The bride is a member of the Masontown Brethren Church. They will make their home in Star Junction for the present.

Ceremony by the writer, her pastor,

Freeman Ankrum.

HARTLEY-GRIFFITH. On Sunday afternoon, May 6, 1948, at the Masontown, Pennsylvania, Brethren Church, occurred the wedding of Roy Hartley of Waynesburg, Pennsylvania and Doris Griffith of Masontown, Pennsylvania. The double ring ceremony was used by the writer, the pastor of the bride. They will be at home in Waynesburg at 279 North Porter Street.

Freeman Ankrum.

T
H
E

BRETHREN EVANGELIST

Official Organ of The Brethren Church

By the light of nature,

as a God above us.

Vol. LXX, No. 23 June 5, 1948

North Manchester, Ind.
Brethren Historical Library
Manchester College
comp

THE BRETHREN EVANGELIST

Published weekly, except the last week in August and the last week in December.

THE BRETHREN PUBLISHING COMPANY

Ashland, Ohio

PRUDENTIAL COMMITTEE

J. E. Stookey, President N. G. Kimmel, Vice-President
J. G. Dodds, Secretary-Treasurer

EDITOR OF PUBLICATIONS—F. C. Vanator

BUSINESS MANAGER—G. S. Baer

EDITOR MISSIONARY NUMBER—E. M. Riddle

CONTRIBUTING EDITORS

Dr. Charles A. Bame Rev. Dyoll Belote

DEPARTMENTAL EDITORS

Dr. C. F. Yoder, Brethren Doctrine
Rev. N. V. Leatherman, Practical Church Problems
Rev. J. G. Dodds, National Goals
Dr. R. F. Porte, Brethren Church History

PLEASE REMEMBER: All material for publication in the Evangelist must be in the hands of the editor at least three weeks before the desired date of publication, to assure same to appear in desired issue. This refers to announcements particularly.

TERMS OF SUBSCRIPTION: $1.50 per year in advance.
CHANGE OF ADDRESS: In ordering change of address always give both old and new addresses.

REMITTANCES: Send all money, business communications, and contributed articles to:

THE BRETHREN PUBLISHING COMPANY
ASHLAND, OHIO

Entered as second class matter at Ashland, Ohio. Accepted for mailing at special rate, section 1103, act of October 3, 1917. Authorized September 3, 1928.

Brother Whetstone is making good use of the "Guest Card" system, reporting the return of eighteen Guest Record Cards at the morning service on May 16. This is a fine way in which to get information for church prospects. These cards are always available in the pews.

Ashland, Ohio. A rather unique mid-week service was held in the Ashland Church on Wednesday evening, May 26. Brother Rowsey, pastor of the church, learned of the presence of Brother W. S. Benshoff, pastor at Vinco, Pa., who was visiting his father, Brother W. C. Benshoff, former Ashland pastor, who is still ill. Brother Benshoff had brought along with him a wire recording of a concert which he and his good wife had played at the dedication of the new electric organ in the Third Church of Johnstown in order that his family might enjoy it. He kindly reproduced a major portion of this for us, also giving a short message. It was much appreciated.

The Ashland Church is sponsoring a brand new work in Ashland. It will be known as "The Garber Memorial Brethren Church" and is located in East Ashland on Sherman Avenue. The work opens on June 6th. We will have more to say about it in our next report. The new church is named in honor of Elder A. L. Garber, for many years a member of the Ashland church, who built the chapel and who, at his death, passed on the ownership of the building to his two daughters, Mrs. L. L. Burns and Mrs. B. F. Zercher. It is located in a rapidly growing community in the city and we hope for great progress in the work.

Raystown, Pennsylvania. Brother Ralph Singer, pastor of the Raystown church, tells us that he is in the midst of a revival—May 30 to June 13—he being his own evangelist. Brother W. S. Benshoff and Brother Chester Zimmerman are scheduled to preach one night each during the meetings.

Milledgeville, Illinois. Brother D. C. White, pastor, reports that they have seven graduating from the grade school and also seven members of the High School graduating class. The Baccalaureate services were held in our church.

Elkhart, Indiana. Brother L. V. King reports the reception of another new member, stating that this is the 120th received during his pastorate thus far. He recently held a dedication service for babies at which time six parents presented their children before the Lord.

There were seventy-three in the Elkhart Sunday School who had a perfect attendance for the first quarter of the year.

Nappanee, Indiana. We quote the following from the Nappanee bulletin of May 23: "A large truckload of goods left Nappanee for Stacey, Kentucky, on Saturday afternoon at 2:00 o'clock. An extra carload of men went also. Mr. Clarence Meinke of Mishawaka, a contractor, came over here and went along with Max Miller, Ted Price, Ray Parcell and Jack Gran. They were to meet "Bud" Hunter and others on the way and were to stay for one week. John Stahly furnished the truck again. This is the second truckload of goods we have sent down to Lost Creek in a few months."

Johnstown, Second, Pennsylvania. We note that Brother
(Continued on page 10)

INTERESTING ITEMS

The Mexico-Loree, Indiana, Circuit. We note that Brother Robert Higgins, pastor of the circuit, is superintending the union Vacation Bible School in Mexico this year. They have a fine course of study and a splendid corps of teachers. The school is being held in the school building.

Twenty-one of the Loree men were in attendance at the Laymen's meeting which was held recently in the College Corner Church. Dr. Bame was the speaker at this Southern District meeting.

Dayton, Ohio. Brother Whetstone, pastor of the Dayton Church, lists the following as "dates for remembrance in the church": Children's Day—June 13; Sunday School Picnic—June 20; Miami Valley Laymen and their families picnic at Sinclair Park—July 18.

The Editor Thinks Aloud

Fred C. Vanator

"AFTER THIS MANNER PRAY YE"

BEING CONSTANTLY on the lookout for little things that will make the readers of The Evangelist think, the editor came across the following, which he thought was too good to keep to himself. It reads like this:

Pastor: "And do you say your prayers every night, Johnny?"

Johnny: "No, some nights I don't want anything."

Now as a matter of course, these words set me to thinking!

Isn't that pretty much the attitude of the average man? We, too many times, only turn to God when we "want something." When our "cup of desire" is full, somehow we just don't seem to need Him. We are too much like the old negro who was up on a roof patching it, when he began to slide down toward the ground. He immediately began to pray after this fashion, "O Lo'd sabe me; O Lo'd sabe me!" Suddenly his progress downward was arrested by a nail sticking up in the roof. At once he changed his plea and said, "Ne'mind Lo'd, I done cotch on a nail." Once safe, he thought he did not have further need for the Lord.

But there is more to prayer than merely asking for something. Turn with me to the account of the disciples approach to the Lord with regard to prayer. They say, "Lord, teach US to pray." Notice where the accent surely falls. Jesus already knew just the manner in which to approach the Father, and they knew it. Jesus answers with "Our Father" so familiar to us all.

We will note that only one short sentence in that prayer has to do with material things—"Give us, day by day, our daily bread." In other words, "sustain us physically, day by day." The remainder of the prayer teaches us that the spiritual is far more important than the physical. The realization that God is "Our Father" is of utmost importance. The ascribing of majesty and dominion and power to Him, not in words only, but also in deed and in truth, is quite necessary. To know that He stands ready at all times to help in trial and temptation, means everything to His children.

Is there ever a time when we should not "want something?" There should not be; but it should not tip the scales on the physical side. Our wants should be, in reality, needs. He never promised to give us everything we might happen to want; but He did promise to supply "all our needs through Christ Jesus, Our Lord."

If He had not wanted us to pray, He would never have "taught" us to pray. But He would have us to pray after the manner He prescribes, and to cover every phase of our being, both physical and spiritual. Do you pray "after this manner?"

Think it over!

Business Manager's Corner

George S. Baer

Informed Church Members

AN EXPERIENCE the other day made us think anew, though we have often given thought to the matter, of the importance of being informed regarding the work and teachings of the church. We met two different parties. One, a regular reader of The Evangelist, began to talk intelligently about the doctrines and program of the church. He knew about the various Church Boards and what they were doing. He was acquainted with the objectives of the college and the problems its leaders are facing. He knew about the projects of the Publishing House, the Brethren Home and the Missionary interests. There was nothing of public interest about the church he did not know about, because he read the Church Paper. The other man did not know anything about the church or what it was attempting to do, and he acknowledged he did not read the Evangelist, and in fact, did not know its price, nor whether it was published weekly or monthly. He was a member of the Brethren church, but it is needless to say that he was not a very important cog in its machinery. One must be informed to be helpful in any organization. It is abundantly worthwhile for any church to encourage its members to read their church paper. Let's spread its circulation and encourage its reading.

Churches are not only loyal, but wise, when they put the church paper in all the homes of their members and encourage them to read it. We suggest to every District Conference to make it a goal for the coming year to make their district a 100% district in Evangelist circulation. And this we do, not on an appeal for loyalty, but on the basis of wisdom and farsightedness. It is the smart thing to do.

Your Publishing House staff stands ready to give any aid possible to help any church achieve 100% rating. Be free to write us about it.

Churches Renewing 100% Status

Nappanee, Indiana, J. M. Bowman, Pastor

Vinco, Pa., W. S. Benshoff, Pastor

Loree, Indiana, Robert K. Higgins, Pastor

Mexico, Indiana, Robert K. Higgins, Pastor

North Manchester, Indiana, Bert Hodge, Pastor

Smithville, Ohio, Vernon D. Grisso, Pastor

Waterloo, Iowa, Virgil Meyer, Pastor

South Bend, Indiana, Claud Studebaker, Pastor

Akron, Ohio, J. G. Dodds, Pastor

Ashland, Ohio, H. H. Rowsey, Pastor

New Lebanon, Ohio, Clayton Berkshire, Pastor

Johnstown, Pa. 2nd Church, N. V. Leatherman, Pastor

Lanark, Illinois, L. O. McCartneysmith, Pastor

North Georgetown, Ohio, Spencer Gentle, Pastor

Milledgeville, Illinois, D. C. White, Pastor

There are several other churches that have been on the

(Continued on Page 10)

The Unchanging Christ

(A Sermon)

By Evangelist C. C. Grisso

THERE is possibly no better text that could be used for this brief message than the eighth verse of the thirteenth chapter of Hebrews which reads, "Jesus Christ, the same yesterday, and today, and for ever." How truly is our Christ the Lord of the yesterdays and the abiding One for the ages to come. For "He is from everlasting to everlasting!" He is "the Lamb slain from the foundation of the world." There was never a time in the past when He was not, nor a time to come when He will cease to be. It is thus upon these eternal facts that He is able to meet the needs of every day and every age. The words of the text were spoken two thousand years ago and if our Lord tarries in His coming another two thousand years it will be just as true then.

We are face to face with a great day and a great age. As the poet has said it, "We are living, we are dwelling, in a grand and awful time, In an age on ages telling, to be living is sublime." Indeed, a day of tremendous significance socially, economically, politically, morally and religiously. But the need of mankind has not changed. In the days of His flesh He cried out, "Come unto Me.—and I will give you rest." If men needed Him then, they need Him now. He walked the streets of Jerusalem and said, "O Jerusalem, Jerusalem, thou that killest the prophets, and stonest them which are sent unto thee, how often would I have gathered thy children together, even as a hen gathereth her chickens under her wings, and ye would not!" They would not hear Him, they would not follow Him. They "will not have this man to reign over them," and the pronounced doom came. He had said of Jerusalem walls, "that not one stone would be left upon another"; "that mothers would have their babes snatched from their arms and that the streets would flow with blood." Why? Because He was not there to help? No, but because they would not hear Him. A few years ago when the war cloud burst upon us the critics of our blessed Christianity said, "Where is your Christianity now? Where is your Christ now?" But it was neither Christ nor Christianity that brought it, but rather the rejection of both. Christ may be at our very doors, but if men will not practice His teachings it will avail but little.

In times like these through which we are passing today—when empires hoary with age, are cracking and crumbling to their doom, and thrones and dominions are being destroyed and their rulers retiring, it is comforting to know that there are some things that remain unchanged and unchangeable. As the figure of the Master stood unharmed among the ruins of ancient churches in France and Flanders, so Christ in all His beauty stands in the midst of a wicked and sin-cursed world. And thus He will, for once dead, He is now alive for evermore. Yes, and after two thousand years the newest and most up-to-date message in all the world is found in the words of Jesus.

I am surprised that so many are telling us that we have outgrown His teaching—that they are no longer practical—that we need a new gospel for our changing age. But listen, until sin and sorrow and death go out of fashion we will never get rid of our need of His message of salvation and His words of cheer to sorrowing hearts, and if any preacher or would-be teacher thinks that the great, heaving, throbbing heart of mankind is going to be stilled with anything but the message of the risen, living, glorified and Coming Christ, that person is mistaken. He is the Bread of life. He is the water of life; always satisfying, always refreshing, never failing.

Permit me to use a familiar and homely illustration. Many of us were reared on a farm where we enjoyed the blessings of a faithful spring of water. There is such a spring on the farm of my father-in-law near the place where I am now penning this message. Day and night, summer and winter, wet or dry, it flowed on. The grass and trees would dry up, but its volume was undiminished. How delightful and refreshing on a hot summer day! How comparably warm in the cold of winter. But thus it flowed on, but at its best was only a common spring! One day a brother-in-law of the writer conceived the plan of installing an hydraulic ram, (a small mechanical contraption) by which the water might be forced to all the buildings of the farm some five hundred feet distant. The instrument was installed, the pipes laid, the job completed, and today there is a perfect running water system throughout the house, barn and outbuildings, running in abundance day and night, doing a great service, that for many years had been wasted.

Oh, how much is this like our Christ! Few people there are who really and truly appropriate Him in all that He is able and wants to do for them. How things that are of real spiritual value are neglected! Here is the church, planted in our midst, but how little we appreciate it. Here is the Bible, the Word of God, placed on every center table, and how it too is neglected!

Our Lord wants to be more to us than we have ever permitted Him to be. My friend, "Are you tired of the load of your sin? Let Jesus come into your heart." Are you overlaid with the cares and sorrows of this life?

Listen, "My peace I give unto you, not as the world giveth, give I unto you." Whatever our need, we can be sure to find in our unchanging Christ the unlimited supply for them all.

Let me return for a moment to the figure of our childhood home, for it has long since been changed. It has passed into other hands. The buildings and the fences and the drives have all been changed. Some of the trees have grown larger and some have been cut down. The old orchard where we spent many a happy day with brother and sister, is gone. Those whose faces had been the greater part of the life and glory of that home, are gone. In the little sitting room where we gathered for prayer and conversation, strangers dwell. But, amidst all this change the little old spring at the foot of the hill, flows on, unchanged, uncontaminated, clear and sparkling.

But life holds greater disappointments than these. Trusted friends have proven untrue. Some who had given promise of stalwart Christians, prove false and lose interest in the things of God and slip back into the world. Then perhaps we have been disappointed in our own selves. Our besetting sin has overtaken us. Unkind words have escaped our lips. The years have slipped by, and age has overtaken us, and the ideals of our youth have not been realized, nor the ambitions of life attained. Yet, withal, how satisfying amid all this disappointment to know that our Friend and our Saviour has never disappointed us nor has He failed us. No truer lines were ever written than these, "Jesus never fails, heaven and earth may pass away, but Jesus never fails."

A party of travelers were crossing a desert. The last drop of water had been used, and they were soon to famish unless water could be found. They divided the men into groups and sent the stronger ones in advance of the weaker ones, thus forming a line across the desert, when suddenly a cheer was sent back the line by the group in the lead that water had been found, and thus they passed the word along the line to the last weak famishing heart.

Listen friends, across the burning sands of two-thousand years of history I see the millions marching and way yonder at the end of the line I see the leader and I hear Him saying, "I am the living water, if any man thirst let him come unto me and drink, and I will give unto him that is athirst of the fountain of the water of life freely."

"I heard the voice of Jesus say, Come unto me and rest Lay down, thou weary one, thy head upon my breast. I came to Jesus as I was, weary and worn and sad I found in Him a resting place and He has made me glad.

I heard the voice of Jesus say, Behold I freely give The living water thirsty one, stoop down and drink, and live. I came to Jesus and I drank, Of that life giving stream. My thirst was quenched, my soul revived, and now I live in Him.

I heard the voice of Jesus say, I am this dark world's light. Look unto Me, thy morn shall rise, and all thy day be bright. I looked to Jesus and I found, in Him my star, my sun,

And in that light of life I'll walk, till all my journey's done."

Yes, His word to all alike is the same today, "Who-soever cometh to me I will in no wise cast out," and to all who are willing to fashion their lives according to His Divine standard shall have forgiveness and peace and pardon and life everlasting. Will you accept Him in all that He is, and in all that He wants to be to you? Accept Him in the Glory of His Personality, the fulness of His saving power and the sufficiency of His Grace. Will you appropriate Him in all that He is able to do for you? If so, "He will do exceeding abundantly above all that we ask or think, according to His power that worketh in us."

—Mexico, Indiana.

LOVE

Raymond Stoffer

JESUS said, "And thou shalt love the Lord thy God with all thy heart and with all thy soul and with all thy mind and with all thy strength." Mark 12:30. This means to have no other gods before Him—to put Him first in all things and in everything we do. Nothing in our life should come between God and us. Him first, last and always in all things and in all that we do. We must love God more than our loved ones—father, mother, children or any of our earthly possessions. When we love God supremely we want to please Him always and give our very best in return for what He is doing for us. We can never repay what He has done for us through His great love. While we can never repay, we can be our best at all times through prayer and the reading of God's Word, and we will find that He will lead us always in the pathway of duty and thus we can show our love for Him.

A great act of love is shown for Jesus when Mary poured precious ointment on His head. Matthew 26:6, 13. The disciples loved Jesus. As Mary Magdalene told of His being resurrected from the dead, even as they mourned and wept, their weeping was turned to joy. Mark 16:9, 10. Joseph begged the body of Jesus of Pilate to bury Him after the crucifixion.

The great love that existed between Jesus and His mother never failed. It was manifested until the end of Jesus' life. What are you and I doing to show our love for a great loving Jesus, who first loved us and gave Himself for us? We have a great debt to pay—one we can never pay, as the price is too great for us and because life is too short. We may do our very best at all times, but our best is none too good. Visit the sick, help the poor, give to the needy. Jesus said, "As ye do these things unto them, ye do it unto me."

We may find all through our lives many little deeds of kindness, the opportunities for which are all around us—helping someone today with a kind word or helpful deed. A gift is showing our love for Him who should be everything to us. Time is drawing nigh for our labors to count for Jesus. Soon it will be too late for us to show our love for Him by our works of kindness to others along life's way.

We know how to love each other—parents to children; children to parents; husband to wife; wife to husband, and so on. We, with the proper love for each other, always give our best to show our love to our loved ones. We must love Jesus more than all of our earthly loved ones and so we must express the same to Him in our service for Him.

We often think we cannot do much for Jesus. If we only try and do things as we see them around us, we will always see something to do. We improve our doing by doing; we become of service by serving; we love by loving; we sing by singing; we preach by preaching. Trying and keeping at it is what succeeds, if we keep on pursuing. Not always as we anticipate do we succeed. If we fall, get up again for the sake of ourselves and all humanity, and most of all, for the God who loves us and the love we should manifest at all times for our God.

—North Georgetown, Ohio.

The Southeastern District Conference

TO BE HELD AT OAK HILL, WEST VIRGINIA
JUNE 15 to 17, 1948

(The Conference will be on Eastern Standard Time)

Conference Theme: "We will give ourselves to prayer and to the ministry of the Word."

THE PROGRAM

Tuesday afternoon, June 15

- 2:30 DevotionsThe Moderator
2:45 Address of WelcomeDr. H. A. Duncan
3:00 Response to Address of Welcome Rev. T. D. Swartz
3:10 Response by delegates—one from each church
Organization of Conference
Election of officers
Appointment of committees
4:15 Bible Lecture, "Moses and Jesus"
Dr. M. A. Stuckey

Tuesday evening

- 7:15 DevotionsRev. Dyoll Belote
Special Music
7:30 Address of Retiring Moderator
Rev. C. S. Fairbanks
Offering and Announcements

Wednesday morning, June 16

- 9:15 DevotionsRev. Dyoll Belote
9:30 Lecture, "Evangelism in the Sunday School"
Dr. M. A. Stuckey
10:00 Discussion on Camp WorkRev. Henry Bates
10:30 Mission SessionMr. C. U. Messler, presiding

- 10:45 Report of Secretary-Treasurer District Mission BoardRev. E. L. Miller
11:00 Departmental Sessions:

Ministers and Laymen

AddressRev. E. L. Miller

Woman's Missionary Society

- Prelude
Call to Worship
Song
DevotionsLinwood, Maryland
Special MusicSt. James, Maryland
President's Report
Secretary-Treasurer's Report
AddressRev. E. M. Riddle
Appointment of Committees
Song
Closing Prayer

Sisterhood of Mary and Martha

- Prelude
Call to Worship
Hymn
Scripture
Prayer
Address "Tidings of Great Joy"
Business Session
Offering and Benediction

Wednesday afternoon

- 1:45 Business Session:
Minutes
District Missions
Conference Location
Selection of Board Members
2:45 Departmental Sessions

Ministers and Laymen

AddressDr. H. A. Duncan

Woman's Missionary Society

- Prelude
Call to Worship
Song
DevotionsCumberland, Maryland
Special MusicWashington, D. C.
Business Session
AddressMrs. G. E. Drushal
Memorial Service
Song
Closing Prayer

Sisterhood of Mary and Martha

- Prelude
Call to Worship
Scripture
Prayer
Poem
Address "The Youth of Christ"
Hymn
Offering and Benediction

Wednesday evening

- 7:15 DevotionsRev. Dyoll Belote
7:25 AddressRev. G. E. Drushal

- Music and offering
- 8:15 SermonRev. John F. Locke
- Thursday morning, June 17
- 9:15 DevotionsRev. Dyoll Belote
- 9:30 Business Session:
Minutes, Reports, all unfinished business
- 10:00 Bible Lecture, "When Christ Visits Our Beds of Pain"Dr. M. A. Stuckey
- 11:00 Departmental Sessions:
- Ministers and Laymen
- AddressRev. Henry Bates
- Woman's Missionary Society
- Prelude
Song
DevotionsBethlehem, Virginia
Special MusicMt. Olive, Virginia
Business Session: Unfinished business
Reports of Committees
Election of officers
Installation of officers
- Sisterhood of Mary and Martha
- Prelude
Call to Worship
Hymn
Scripture
Prayer
Address*"The Master Teacher"*
Consecration Service
Benediction
- Thursday afternoon
- 1:30 Devotions in charge of the Moderator
- 1:40 AddressRev. Smith F. Rose
- 2:20 Three reports by E. L. Miller, John F. Locke and Clarence Rohrer, Southeastern District College Trustees
- 2:45 SermonRev. G. F. Ludwig
- Thursday evening
- 7:30 Song service and Devotional
Special Music
Closing Address, "When They Had Prayed"
..... Dr. M. A. Stuckey

Central District Conference

Tentative

MILLEDGEVILLE, ILLINOIS

JUNE 28, 29, 30th, 1948

THEME

Extending the Church

"And Jesus approaching, spoke unto them, saying, All authority has been given to me in heaven and on earth. Go, disciple all nations, dipping them into the name of the Father, and of the Son, and of the Holy Spirit; teaching them to observe all, whatever I have charged you. And lo, I am with you all the days, even until the end of the age." (Matthew 28:18-20).

PROGRAMME

Monday Afternoon, June 28

- 4:00 Registration and assignment.
- Monday Evening
- 7:30 Song ServiceProf. Lowell Barnes
DevotionsRev. Charles E. Johnson
- 7:45 Address of WelcomeRev. W. C. White
Response by Delegates.
Appointment of Committees.
- 8:00 Special MusicMilledgeville Choir
- 8:10 SermonRev. Albert Ronk
- 8:40 Missionary Lecture—Moving Pictures
..... Rev. E. M. Riddle

TUESDAY MORNING, JUNE 29

- 8:30 SIMULTANEOUS SESSIONS:
1. Ministerium.
 2. Women's Missionary Societies.
 3. Laymen.
 4. Brethren Youth.
- 9:15 BUSINESS SESSION:
- DevotionsRev. Albert Ronk
Report of Credentials Committee.
Report of Nominating Committee.
Election of Executive Committee.
1. Ministerial Examining Board.
 2. Ashland College Trustees.
 3. District Mission Board.
 4. Board of Evangelists.
 5. Trustees of Property.
 6. Sunday School Board.
 7. Member Executive Board Gen. Conference.
- 11:00 DevotionsRev. Virgil E. Meyer
Moderator's Address:..Dr. L. O. McCartneysmith

12:00 Luncheon Church Dining Rooms

Tuesday Afternoon

- 1:30 DevotionsRev. W. R. Deeter
Special MusicRev. and Mrs. W. R. Deeter
- 2:00 SermonRev. J. G. Dodds
- 2:30 DENOMINATIONAL INTERESTS:
1. District MissionsRev. D. C. White
 2. College Trustees ReportsDr. G. T. Ronk
 3. Youth CampRev. Virgil E. Myer
 4. District Sunday Schools....Mrs. F. A. Wisner
- 3:30 SermonRev. Charles E. Johnson
- 4:00 SIMULTANEOUS SESSIONS:
1. Women's Missionary Society Memorial Service.
 2. Sisterhood of M. & M.. Address
..... Mrs. E. M. Riddle.

5:30 Supper at the Church

Tuesday Evening

- 7:15 Congregational Singing ...Prof. Lowell Barnes
DevotionsMr. L. L. RuLon
Special MusicCerro Gordo Delegates
- 7:45 SermonDr. George T. Ronk
- 8:30 Missionary Pictures and Lecture.Rev. E. M. Riddle

(Continued on Page 10)

OUTDOOR WORSHIP

TEACHER

From my experience as a Pastor, let me testify that nothing does so much for Young People in such a short time as Camp experiences. They learn a new appreciation of their Church and a new willingness to serve in it. There is nothing that has given such a strong impetus to the call for Christian life-work recruits. What's more they have a wonderfully good time in the process, which helps to put the desired qualities of naturalness and happiness into Christian service.

L. E. Lindower, Camp Director.

CHOOSE

A PLACE TO SING AND STUDY

C A M
Provide Most Concent
Experience a
All Wraaped Up
In A Chris
TAKE THE ROAD TH

June 21-28, Brethren Be
June 23-30, Young Peop
June 27-July 3, Juniors,
June 27-July 3, Juniors,
June 30-July 7, Juniors,
(To be announced), Jun
July 4-11, Intermediate
July 11-18, Freshmen, S
July 11-17, Juniors, Inte
July 12-18, Central Dist
July 18-25, Seniors, Sh
July 25-31, Young Peop
August 1-8, Young Peop
(Date to be announced),

S

and Well-rounded

raining

Good Time

Way

ADS TO CAMP

MORNING WATCH

Pastors and Church workers, do you realize how important it is for you to urge and help your Young People to go to Camp? Do you understand the opportunities to give some of your time to help in these camps? Sometimes we refer to a summer slump, but there is no slump with the young people and camps. They are doing much to build a future for our church. Help your youth to plan for CAMP now.

NEW CONVERTS

CAMP

California
 Pennsylvania
 a, Indiana
 es, Southeastern District nnsylvania
 Valley, Ohio
 na, Indiana
 Indiana
 O'Dell's Lake, Ohio
 ah, Illinois diana ana, Indiana
 ern District
 Camp near Kansas City

GOD'S BEAUTIFUL WORLD

(Continued on Page 7)

8:30 SIMULTANEOUS SESSIONS:

- 9:30 BUSINESS SESSION:

- 10:30 GENERAL INTERESTS:

Dr. Glenn L. Clayton

Brethren BenevolencesRev. E. M. Riddle

12:00 Noon Luncheon at the Church

2:00 The Brethren Missionary Program

Rev. E. M. Riddle

2:30 The Brethren Youth Movement

Rev. Charles Munson

3:00 Brethren LaymenDr. Glenn L. Clayton

4.00 Youth HourRev. Virgil E. Meyer

5:30 Supper at the Church

7:30 Congregational SingingProf. Lowell Barnes
DevotionsMr. Oscar Tallman
Special MusicMr. Harry Tallman

8:00 Sermon—"The Dynamics of Faith"

Dr. Glenn L. Clayton

Benediction.

(Continued from Page 2)

(Continued from page 3)

The Old Testament Committee is composed of: the Rev. Prof. H. Danby, Christ's Church, Oxford; Prof. G. R.

Driver, Oxford; the Rev. Prof. A. R. Johnson, Cardiff; the Rev. Prof. F. S. Marsh, Cambridge; the Rev. Prof. C. R. North, North Wales; the Rev. Prof. N. W. Porteous, Edinburgh; the Rev. Prof. H. H. Rowley, Manchester; and Prof. D. Winton Thomas, Cambridge.

The New Testament Committee includes: the Very Rev. Principal G. S. Duncan, St. Mary's College, Fife; the Rev. Dr. W. F. Howard, Birmingham; the Rev. Prof. T. W. Mason, King's College, London; the Rev. Prof. R. V. G. Tasker, London; the Very Rev. S. C. Carpenter, Exeter; and the Rev. C. F. D. Moule, Cambridge.

Fleming James, formerly Professor of Old Testament History at the Berkeley Divinity School and one-time Dean of the School of Theology at the University of the South, is the most recent American appointee to the American Standard Bible Committee.

Mr. James, now in residence at Yale is Visiting Professor of Old Testament, was recently elected Executive Secretary of the Old Testament Committee. Although he still conducts classes at Yale, Mr. James devotes the major portion of his time to his committee post.

Dean Weigle stated that the Committee has now finished more than three-quarters of the work on the Revised Old Testament and he expects it to be completed by 1950. He added that the two Revised Testament Versions will be bound together and published in 1951.

The Revised New Testament was published in February, 1946, surpassed a million copies in the first year and sales are now approaching the two million mark.

Your College, Your Church and You

Material from The College Publicity Office

Know Your College (Continued)

Ashland College and Theological Seminary has always stood for an orthodox gospel. In order that our position may be made clear the following statement is printed:

We "believe in God the Father Almighty, Maker of heaven and earth; and in Jesus Christ His only Son our Lord; who was conceived by the Holy Ghost; born of the Virgin Mary; suffered under Pontius Pilate; was crucified, dead and buried; He descended into Hell; the third day He rose again from the dead; He ascended into Heaven; and sitteth on the right hand of God the Father Almighty; from thence He shall come to judge the quick and the dead.

We "believe in the Holy Ghost; the holy Universal Church; the Communion of Saints; the forgiveness of sins; the Resurrection of the body and the Life everlasting."

We also believe in the infallibility of the Scripture; the divine creation of Man; his fall; and salvation as the free gift of God by faith in our Lord Jesus Christ. We emphasize Christian living and believe that true fellowship with our Lord Jesus Christ is evidenced in all the relationships of life.

Ashland College is approved by and holds membership in the North Central Association of Colleges and Secondary Schools, the American Association of Colleges, the American Council on Education, the National Conference of Church-Related Colleges, the Ohio College Association, the American Association of Collegiate Registrars, the National Collegiate Athletic Association, and the Buyers' Association.

As a teacher training institution, it is approved by the Departments of Education of the State of Ohio and other states for teacher training in the elementary, secondary, and special fields, in physical education and in public school music.

Ashland College News Letter

By Arthur Petit

ASHLAND COLLEGE has completed another successful year and is now looking forward to a very large summer session. It is expected that the number of students enrolled this summer will be larger than the 269 enrolled last year. The offerings this summer are even wider than a year ago. Many of the college students here in the winter will be in school this summer in order to graduate sooner.

May Day saw more than a thousand people on the campus. Almost that many witnessed the coronation and pageant and a similar number attended the play in the evening. All of the events showed a great amount of work and thought.

The A Cappella Choir sang its home concert on May 23 at the First Brethren Church in Ashland. It is hoped that this will now be an annual event. The church was crowded to capacity. Several of the Ashland churches abandoned their evening services to give their congregations an opportunity to hear the choir. About a dozen seniors will be leaving the choir this year.

Forty-eight degrees were awarded on May 29. This was the largest graduating class in a number of years. The students from Brethren Churches or Brethren communities include:

Bachelor of Arts: Wanda Beal, Mansfield, Ohio; Paul Clapper, Louisville, Ohio; Janet Good, Waynesboro, Pennsylvania; Robert Holsinger, Springport, Indiana; Victor Humm, Ashland, Ohio; Philip Nolte, Stockton, New Jersey; Elizabeth Boardman Richmond, Philadelphia, Pennsylvania; Samuel Richmond, Nappanee, Indiana; Glenn Shank, Hagerstown, Maryland; Ray Sluss, Louisville, Ohio; Beatrice Stuckey, Alliance, Ohio.

Bachelor of Science in Education: Ann Gilbert, West Alexandria, Ohio; Pegge Shively, Nappanee, Indiana; Anne Miller Yeater, Goshen, Indiana; Donna Bechtel, Canton, Ohio; Dorothy Berger, Canton, Ohio; Walter Bixler, Ashland, Ohio; Joan Riddle, Ashland, Ohio.

Master of Religious Education: Richard Wolfe, South Bend, Indiana.

CHRISTIAN ENDEAVOR TOPIC

W. St. Clair Benshoff, Topic Editor

"Topics copyrighted by the International Society of Christian Endeavor.
Used by permission."

Topic for June 13, 1948

THE HARDEST WORDS IN ANY LANGUAGE

Scripture: Proverbs 1:8-16; Colossians 4:6

For The Leader

WHEN THE whole world says, "Yes," and God's Word says, "No," it is high time to obey. When our friends insist that we go along with them and "play the Devil," we must very firmly refuse. In other words, there is a line which we Christian young people dare not cross. We must learn what that danger line is, and heed its warnings. By crossing the line, only heartache and ruin will result. It is our desire tonight to learn some things which will help us to be stronger in resisting the evil of the present day. Scriptural history is full of incidents wherein people of God had to resist evil. But we also note that they were rewarded of God for their righteousness. So, God will remember us when we take a stand for the right, and will bless us accordingly.

DISCUSSION

1. IS "NO" A HARD WORD? From the scriptures chosen for tonight we learn that the word "no," is what is meant as the hardest word in any language. It does seem that we find it hard to say "no" today. Someone wants us to miss C. E., or go to unfit places or engage in sinful practices. It seems that everybody is doing it. So to us it seem hard to refuse. But we ask you, Are you "man or mouse?" Whenever I see a Christian young person giving himself or herself in to the way of the crowd, I can't help but feel I am seeing a moral coward. Any young person who has not more fortitude than that isn't really deserving of the name Christian. "No" is not a hard word, if we really love Christ.

2. THE ATTITUDE OF THE HEART. One of the most discouraging things we find today is not so much the sin which people do, but their attitude towards it. It is said of the late Calvin Coolidge that when he returned from church one Sunday his wife asked him about the service. She asked Mr. Coolidge what the preacher's sermon was about and he said, "sin." Mrs. Coolidge asked him what he had to say about it, and the President answered, "He's against it." Which is the exact attitude we covet for the hearts of our people today. If more of us were really AGAINST SIN, there would be far less home trouble, church trouble and national trouble. Our difficulty is we have not learned to say "No" to sin. We look with pleasure upon sin. We listen to it gleefully over the radio and read about it in our books and papers, getting quite a kick out of it. Instead of fighting it, abhorring it and avoiding it, we give it liberty and license.

3. REACHING MORAL MATURITY. A young person who can see the evil effects of sin, and say no to it, has reached moral maturity. Too many of our youth are caught in the ruling theory of the day of crowding as much physical fun into their high school days as they can get away with. They defy parents and ministers to accomplish their acts. Their sins are multiplied day and night. They fail to see beyond their sins to the fact that they will have many, many years to suffer for their sins. The really smart young people are the ones who through home training and common sense are seeing the path to ruin and are avoiding it by saying "no." The crowd may taunt them, but God's Word says that "The soul that sinneth, it shall surely die." It is almost gruesome to contemplate, but all of your sinful living school companions—those who gloat of their wild times, and who would seek to lead you into them—all of them will, unless they repent, spend forever and ever in Hell and Fire for their sins. Size up your group and see what their final outcome will be. It is even more gruesome to think that if we go along with them, being "popular," etc., that we will share their eternal fate. God cannot overlook sin.

4. ANOTHER POPULAR MISTAKE. There seems to be a general theory among young people today that nothing is wrong. Such a word as sin does not exist. The idea of God punishing for sin does not exist for them. Often we Christian young people are caught in the rapids of this thought. We think mother's and father's teaching, and our Pastor's teaching, are "all wet." Their ideas may have been O. K. when they were kids, but maybe we think we're just a little smarter. Well, if you ask the truth straight and blunt, here it is. If you cast aside such good teaching and join with the crowd you're one of the biggest fools that the world has seen. All sin must be punished. And the further into sin you go, the further away from the only Savior from sin you will be. So, think it over a little and then say "No."

QUESTIONS

1. If it is a sin to do the things a lot of young people are doing, then what can we do which will be all right?
2. We don't want to be isolated. It's no fun to be left out of the "party" because our moral code does not permit us to do certain things. Well, which would you rather be left out of, The crowd of sinful young people today, or the portals of heaven for all eternity?
3. Outline some wholesome activities for young people.
4. What in your opinion is right and what is wrong for young people?

IF YOU HAVE NOT YET RECEIVED A "BRETHREN CHRISTIAN ENDEAVOR WORSHIP PROGRAMS BOOKLET" write today to your Topic Editor. In sending out the first copies we endeavored to cover the list of societies reporting their groups last year in C. E. Statistical reports, and churches we knew to have C. E. Societies. If your group was unintentionally missed, write today for a copy.

Flattery is from the teeth out. Sincere appreciation is from the heart out.

Where there is no vision there is no "HERE AM I SEND ME."

Self-confidence is a denial of God and a forerunner of destruction.

Prayer Meeting Topic

Contributed by Rev. C. Y. Gilmer

(Helps for Christian Living)

WHAT IS THE LOVING THING TO DO?

By W. L. Stidger

Here is a word for the sages old
Written in silver on pages of gold;
Here is a lesson of life for you:
What is the loving thing to do?

Here is a law for the Friendly Life;
Here is a test for the stress and strife;
Here is a rule and it standeth true:
What is the loving thing to do?

Here is a sentinel guarding the gates;
Halting angers and passions and hates;
Barring the way where the spies come thru;
What is the loving thing to do?

Here is a slogan of happiness;
Here is a motto to bind and bless
The wounds of woe for the faithful few:
What is the loving thing to do?

Here is a contract for father and son,
Husband and wife—ere the deed is done;
A test for one and a test for two:
What is the loving thing to do?

Here is a covenant, friends, all hail!
A test of time, and it cannot fail;
Never an angry word to rue:
What is the loving thing to do?

Family and nation, friend and foe,
When out to the wars of the world you go;
Try the test and the test is true:
What is the loving thing to do?

"IN THE SEAT OF THE SCORNFUL"

Scripture: Psalm 1:1; Ezekiel 25:3, 4; Neh. 4:1; Psal. 35: 15, 16; Matt. 27:41; Acts 2:13; 18:32

THE AMMONITES said "Aha" against the land of Israel when it was desolate, against God's sanctuary when it was profaned, against the house of Judah when they went into captivity. The sneers and mockings of the scorner and the cynic are saturated with hurtful aversion and devilish derision. Only the wicked indulge! Thus even Christ was made to suffer (Matt. 27:28-30, 41; Luke 16:14; 23:11, 35, 36; 22:63, 64). The saints endured cruel mockings for being the children of God (Gen. 21:9; Gal. 4:29), for their uprightness (Job 12:4), their faith (Heb. 11:36), faithfulness in declaring God's Word (Jer. 20: 7, 8), and their zeal for God's house (Neh. 2:19). The wicked make light of the second coming of Christ (2 Peter 3:3, 4), the gifts of the Spirit (Acts 2:13), God's threatenings (Isa. 5:19; Jer. 17:15), God's ministers (2 Chron. 36:16), God's ordinances (Lam. 1:7), and the resurrection of the dead (Acts 17:32).

The mighty maybes of present-day thinking are undermining the faith once for all delivered unto the saints, marriage vows, and all authority. People are saboteurs against their own church in which they have their membership. Never was a great deed done, a great utterance given but somebody made fun of it. "Never was a book written, a child born, a kindness done, a pair of lovers married, a sermon preached, but somebody grinned, winked an eye, or whispered something nasty."

Those who are addicted to ridiculing delight in it (Prov. 1:22), are contentious (Prov. 22:10), walk after their own lusts (2 Peter 3:3), are proud and haughty (Prov. 21:34), hear not rebuke (Prov. 13:1), hate those who reprove (Prov. 15:12), and bring others into danger (Prov. 29:8).

"For envy" they delivered our Saviour for crucifixion (Matt. 27:18). The devil was the first to mock God's Word (Gen. 3:4, 5). He mocked the integrity of Job (Job 1:9-11). The sneerers of the devil mock the love of sweethearts, the holy love of motherhood, the conversion of sinners, and the miracles of the Bible.

For Christ and for His Church and for the sake of those who will put on the harness after we put it off, let us stand fast in the faith and persistence in good works, paying the price for our convictions when necessary. And may we never be guilty of sitting in the scorner's seat or hurling the cynic's ban or else a worse thing may befall us than what God said would happen to the sneering Ammonites. May God teach us to do only the kind and loving thing in life!

COMMENTS

On The Sunday School Lesson

by The Editor

Lesson for June 13, 1948

THE MESSAGE OF THE BOOK OF ESTHER

Lesson: Esther 4:10-17; 9:20-22, 26-27

THE STORY of Esther ranks along with that of Ruth in the familiarity with which it is known by Bible readers. Being, as we all must be, familiar with the story, we are prone to say, "What? Another lesson on the story of Esther? Why, we know that by heart? What can we get out of it?" With such an attitude, probably it would do such an one very little good to approach the lesson. But to come upon it again, in a prayerful manner, we will find new truths and a deeper appreciation of the position of the characters of the book.

Another title which is given for our lesson is, "Esther's Zeal for Her People." We find that she was so anxious about her people that she was willing to go to any extreme to save them from their prospective doom. We will recall that at her uncle's behest she faced the unknown reception which she might receive at the hands of her husband-king—a possible sentence of death. For if any one dared to enter into the presence of the ruler without having been summoned, he or she might meet with an immediate death sentence. While knowing this full well, it did not daunt Esther. She merely went, saying, "If I perish, I perish."

That she met with success does in no way take away from her the bravery with which she faced the problem, nor does it detract from her zealous spirit.

The story itself is so familiar that we need not go on with it. Rather let us apply the lesson to ourselves.

There is a need for zealous Christians today—Christians who will face even death to bring about a change of heart in those prisoned in evil. There seems to be a fear in the hearts of men today to speak out in the face of opposition. It seems so much easier to "soft pedal" our message and seek to make it coincide with the current thought of the masses. But that is not what Jesus meant for us to do.

Just suppose that Esther had been fearful to go in to the king! She could have said, "I do not want to bother him now. Sometime in the future I'll catch him in the right frame of mind, and then I'll seek to do something about it." In the meantime, while she delayed, Haman would have succeeded in his dastardly ends and it would have been too late.

Someone has said, "While we tarry with the gospel, unnumbered multitudes go over the abyss of sin into the whirling rapids of destruction."

We need a renewed "zeal" for our people—the people round about us—who are in danger from the unseen weapon in the hands of the Adversary. Let us be up and doing, for the time is all too short as it is.

Argentine Student Fund Report

THANKS to the following individuals, Ashland College has an exchange student, Mrs. Nellie Commisso, now in the National University at Cordoba, Argentina. Her correspondence reveals that she is not only learning in her University studies, but that she is also getting some valuable missionary information. Her husband, Joe, has been enjoying the company of Dr. C. F. Yoder, helping to build a summer camp. Both these young people write in very complimentary terms of the missionary efforts in Argentina. Perhaps your money has helped in this cause. We thank you and the Lord will reward you. Maybe you are one who still has my three-cent stamp on that return envelope. In that case, your reply will be very welcome. We need about $250.00 more to bring Nellie back to us. Of course Joe will come along back—"on his own"—the way he went down. Here are those who have generously contributed:

C. L. Anspach, Mt. Pleasant, Mich.	$ 10.00
Mrs. H. E. Andrews, Ashland College	10.00
Fred Brant, Berlin, Pa.	25.00
Arthur R. Baer, Cameron, W. Va.	5.00

Myron C. Bloom, St. James, Md.	20.00
Miriam M. Bird, Meyersdale, Pa.	10.00
Young People, Warsaw, Ind. (by W. B. Brant) ..	5.00
David Boss, Ashland College	2.00
Laymen, Louisville, O. (by J. T. Byler)	25.00
Mrs. Beachler, Ashland College	5.00
G. C. Carpenter, Hollywood, Fla.	10.00
Sunday School, Cerro Gordo (Geo. Snoke, treas.)	28.77
F. E. Clapper, Canton, Ohio	10.00
Ellen Campbell, Ashland College	2.00
Miss Marion Deininger, Ashland College	5.00
John C. Eck, New Lebanon, Ohio	1.00
W. M. S. Circle B, Louisville, O. (by Mrs. Lucille Edwards)	5.00
Mr. and Mrs. A. B. Furry, Johnstown, Pa.	5.00
Mildred Furry, Ashland College	10.00
Mr. and Mrs. George Guiley, Ashland College ..	20.00
Floyd Hibbs, Fairmont, W. Va.	5.00
Martha Holmes, Ashland College	5.00
Dorothy Heagy, Ashland College	10.00
Mr. and Mrs. Wright Hendrix, Flora, Ind.	50.00
Mr. and Mrs. R. A. Hazen, Ashland, Ohio	50.00
Mrs. Harwood, Ashland College	10.00
Junior S. M. M., Louisville, O. (by Mrs. V. S. Hoobler, patroness)	5.00
George Harshman, North Manchester, Ind.	5.00
Cecil Johnson, Falls City, Nebr.	1.00
Mr. and Mrs. R. F. Klingel, Warsaw, Ind.	10.00
Dorothy Kime, Ashland College	1.00
Eunice Kettering, Ashland College	2.00
Mr. and Mrs. Myron Kem, Dayton, Ohio	10.00
N. G. Kimmel, Gratis, Ohio	5.00
Mr. and Mrs. Myron Kimmel, Ashland, Ohio	1.00
Mrs. Belle Kilhefner, Ashland, Ohio	20.00
Mrs. John Lape, Elkhart, Ind.	5.00
Miss Vera E. Laughlin, Greencastle, Pa.	15.00
Miss Irene Lenhart, Meyersdale, Pa.	15.00
L. E. Lindower, Ashland College	50.00
Mr. and Mrs. Walter Lichtenberger, Elkhart, Ind.	1.00
N. V. Leatherman, Johnstown, Pa.	2.00
C. U. Messler, Union Bridge, Md.	10.00
Maurice Newkirk, Ashland College	5.00
L. E. Pete, Ashland College	5.00
A. P. Petit, Ashland College	50.00
Rosemary Roose, Elkhart, Ind.	5.00
C. H. Rohrer, Hagerstown, Md.	25.00
Mrs. Mary E. Rieger, Falls City, Nebr.	5.00
Mr. and Mrs. Russell Rodkey, Kokomo, Ind.	10.00
Evening W. M. S., Lanark, Ill. (by Mrs. Willard Rahn, treas.)	10.00
Rev. and Mrs. E. M. Riddle, Ashland College	10.00
Mrs. Rush Rosenberry, Ashland College	5.00
Sunday School, Milledgeville, Ill. (by Henry P. Rahn, treas.)	25.00
George T. Ronk, Cedar Rapids, Iowa	50.00
Helen Shively, Ashland College	5.00
Dr. and Mrs. Arthur N. Stunz, Ashland College ..	25.00
Dr. and Mrs. Martin Shively, Ashland College ..	2.00
Lester and Vera Urschel, N. Manchester, Ind.	5.00
Mr. and Mrs. Joe Watkins, Louisville, Ohio	5.00
H. E. Weidenhamer, Ashland College	5.00
Total	$753.77

L. E. Lindower, Self-appointed Treasurer.

TEN ARTICLES ON CHURCH ETIQUETTE

1. Come. Never miss Church unless it is absolutely necessary. George Washington's pastor said of him, "No company ever kept him away from Church."
2. Come early. Rushing into Church the last minute is not conducive to true worship.
3. Take a place towards the front of the Church. Leave rear seats for those who may come late.
4. Be devout. The sanctuary is not a theater or a place of amusement. You come to Church to worship God, not to whisper, lounge or sleep. God's house deserves our utmost reverence.
5. Be thoughtful of others. Never make a haystack of yourself at the end of the row, and expect others to crawl over you to reach a seat.
6. Always remember that strangers are the guests of the Church members. Treat them with the same courtesy as you would if they would visit you in your own home.
7. Give a good offering to God.
8. Never rush for the door after the benediction as though the Church were on fire. Speak, and be spoken to.
9. Never stay away from church because the Church is not perfect. How lonesome you would feel in a perfect church.
10. Remember at all times that you are in the house of God.—Selected.

Travel Flashes

Dr. Charles A. Bame

Lost—A House

IT FOLLOWED one of those freak thunder-storms that have flashed with unusual frequency and destruction this spring in more states than Indiana, that a brother's house was found to be afire from the roof, ending with the complete loss of the house and much of the "belongings" of the family, neither of whom could apparently afford such a loss.

Now, in the midst of pressing spring work and in downpours of rain, such a loss is not boding much good. Where would they live and what to do with the furniture left?

A Hen-House Home

Immediately, they were given a vacant house for their furniture and went to the lady's home for shelter. But how could they carry on in a busy season so distant from the center of things, the farm? Well, believe it or not, they did have a large hen-house for some 1,000 chickens; and would you believe that it is possible to move out hundreds of hens and put in their place a family? Well, it happened here, as they say, "It can happen."

Calamity? No, only to the defeatist. "All things work together for good to them that love the Lord; who are the called according to his purpose." Romans 8:28; Matthew 10:30; Psalm 91:3. Of course, that "good" is not always immediately apparent; but time and patience work wonders. One thing, the people will get a new house to live in soon, thanks to pre-fabrication, and the farm will be much more in demand in future days with a newer and more modern house.

Another House—Greater Loss

To lose a building in heaven, our "house not made with hands," would be a far greater loss. 2 Corinthians 5:1. It is that house we have of God that needs more attention than many give it, that to lose, would be calamitous. It is sure too, that too often, even Christian people forget the care that should be given to that building: the one we are building all the time; with every thought, deed and service rendered, even to the depth of the intention, it builds for beauty in heaven or torment in hell. Matthew 25:46. Even the way we take "affliction," defeat, distress and disappointment leaves its "block" in the eternal building that stands or falls according as we have or have not built on the "rock" of the ideals of the Sermon on the Mount. See Matthew 7:21-29.

Poor Houses—So Many

This temporary hen-house home is fine and large compared with many in the great cities of our wonderful America and what a tragedy that is! All sorts of crimes and sins are being committed resultant of the way people are crowded together; and while our Congress tampers with the way of life in foreign countries, wicked Americans are undermining the very morals without which our beloved country can not continue its gracious helpfulness; for we must never forget that nations crumble under the avenging hand of the Almighty, (Romans 13:1-2; Daniel 4:34-37; 5:18-22) just because of the sins that follow such failures as we face today, without great concern for the moralities without which we shall come to the same fate that came to Egypt, Assyria, Babylonia, and a near score of European states we are now trying to save, with greater transgressions of the moralities than we have here, where crimes cost us $13,000,000 a year and our movies go on teaching our children all the time that relief (not condemnation) from crises come from divorce, riches and drink; and all the time, churches draw farther and farther from God, sport around during Sunday evenings, and forsaking the revivals that have always saved our America from disasters, several such as now threaten us.

"Strokes"—"Nerves"

Did you ever hear of so many "strokes" and funny nerve-diseases as we are having today? No, you never did for there were never so many. No wonder! I have before me a list of the new Movies and what to see for certain moods: No. 1—a "heart-rending" story; No. 2—a "rough, tough comedy"; No. 3—"Full of action, suspense, thrills . . . Skip it if you're nervous or upset"; No. 4—"The double-crossers get double-crossed . . . it may help elevate an angry, vengeful mood." Any wonder we get nerves and strokes when we desert the worship of God for such stuff? Remember a part of the second commandment where God says: "visiting the iniquity of the fathers (that hate me) unto the third and fourth generations?" Exodus 20:5. A part of it may be just the results the movies advertise; but remember God is not asleep and, "My word shall not return unto me void."

Men! Brethren Men!

Just ninety-one of them at our hard-to-find (?) church last Monday night. Fine, clean-looking fellows they are, indeed. What can they not do if they'll plan and go forth to execute their plans? Banquets are fine, too, but they should never become the main thing. The BIG thing must be planning for spiritual advances. Note I said spiritual. "Projects" are necessary for the outflow of spiritual reserve; but projects will never make Brethren Men all they ought to be. We must re-evaluate and reproduce the sacrifices, service and sincerity of our forbears if we are to be worthy successors; and amid a neglecting leadership among many church groups, surrendering here and there for the sake of dollars and numbers, we still dare not follow them. Only One dare we follow if we are to remain a power for God, Good and Right; even Jesus Christ who bade us "follow me": "I will make you (not famous, historic, popular, but) fishers of men." How much fishing have you done, fisher? Unless it is for men, re-evaluate your aim and passion. I know some good fishers who should do just that. Is your "line" strong and your "bait" good? How many men have you caught? How many big 'uns?

Banquets? Ahem!

"Experiments with hens showed that a biddy full to her bill could be put in the company of one actively eating hen—and proceed to eat 25-50% more food! If she got mixed up with three actively eating hens, she gobbled down even more. Hens eating in groups of four one day, and alone next, ate nearly 100% more when they had company." Better a great inspiring challenging speech at a Brethren Laymen's Meeting than too many gulps and dilly-dallying around with things too small for serious consideration. "Fishers of men," remember? If we follow Him!

A Big Surprise

Readers of these "flashes" will remember that recently I recorded the anointing of a man of whom I said, "If it is the Lord's will to heal him, he'd have a number of years yet to serve Him." It did look pretty doubtful and I was assured that the doctors gave him small chance to recover. He had been so sick he believed the end was in sight. Well, he was at this banquet "crowing" that he had gained fifteen pounds in two weeks! I wish I could have seen him at that table; but I ate very lightly since I was to do the speaking. "Glory to God" for another evidence of His healing power. And at that, one of the officiating ministers was not of the angelic number of "limited brethren." God mocks the bigotry that would make us believe we are chosen among many others.

—Wabash, Indiana.

CAMP CORRECTIONS

After it was too late to change the copy for Camp schedules in last week's Evangelist, notices of two changes was received. They are as follows:—

Indiana Juniors, Shipshewana Lake, for both boys and girls—June 27 to July 3.

Southeastern District, Juniors and Intermediates, June 26 to July 3; Young People, 14 up, August 1 to 8. This has usually been at Camp Peniel, but the announcement did not say specifically.

Watch for more news and start to get ready to go.

L. E. Lindower, Camp Director.

News From Our Churches

REV. CECIL H. JOHNSON IN MEETING AT CHEYENNE, WYOMING

Rev. Cecil H. Johnson, pastor of our Falls City Brethren Church, arrived in Cheyenne on May 17 for a two weeks service of evangelism in the basement of our new church, which is located at 2600 East Twelfth Street. Much interest is being manifested and we are looking forward to great things in the days to come.

A loud speaker has been placed in the tower and for thirty minutes each evening the immediate community is flooded with sacred music, and old fashioned singing, which seems quite effective.

Brother Johnson is bringing to us a real feast of spiritual food, and we are confident that the Word will not come back void.

We ask that the people of the church will join with us in prayer for the saving of many in this community who are without hope and are lost in this world.

(Watch for the picture of the new Cheyenne Brethren Church in the coming Missionary Number of the Evangelist.)

Frank W. Garber, pastor.

REVIVAL AT NAPPANEE, INDIANA

A week after the Pastors' Institute at Ashland, Ohio, Rev. Virgil E. Meyer of Waterloo, Iowa, came to Nappanee as evangelist. We had a very fine time of fellowship. Brother Meyer worked very faithfully and preached the Gospel in a simple and straightforward manner, which could not help but have its effect upon the people. Many individuals expressed personally that they were helped through the meetings.

On Easter Sunday, just a week before the revival, the pastor baptized eight. During the revival there were nine first time confessions and a large number of reconsecrations. We had hoped to hold the services in the sanctuary of our new church but the pews did not arrive, so we held forth in the lower sanctuary. It is a very splendid place in which to worship.

Delegations came from a number of surrounding churches which were very much appreciated. "Bud" Hunter from North Manchester, Indiana, led our song services on two occasions in the absence of our regular song director, A. O. Lambert. Mrs. Meyer and the children were with us on the last day.

It was a real privilege to work with Virgil in a series of meetings. May God richly bless him in the service of the King.

J. Milton Bowman.

The BRETHREN & EVANGELIST

HOLY BIBLE

Official Organ of The Brethren Church

May the Sun of Righteousness arise, with healing in his wings!

THE BRETHREN EVANGELIST

Published weekly, except the last week in August and
the last week in December.

THE BRETHREN PUBLISHING COMPANY

Ashland, Ohio

PRUDENTIAL COMMITTEE

J. E. Stookey, President N. G. Kimmel, Vice-President
J. G. Dodds, Secretary-Treasurer

EDITOR OF PUBLICATIONS—F. C. Vanator

BUSINESS MANAGER—G. S. Baer

EDITOR MISSIONARY NUMBER—E. M. Riddle

CONTRIBUTING EDITORS

Dr. Charles A. Bame Rev. Dyoll Belote

DEPARTMENTAL EDITORS

Dr. C. F. Yoder, Brethren Doctrine
Rev. N. V. Leatherman, Practical Church Problems
Rev. J. G. Dodds, National Goals
Dr. R. F. Porte, Brethren Church History

PLEASE REMEMBER: All material for publication in the Evangelist must be in the hands of the editor at least three weeks before the desired date of publication, to assure same to appear in desired issue. This refers to announcements particularly.

TERMS OF SUBSCRIPTION: $1.50 per year in advance.
CHANGE OF ADDRESS: In ordering change of address always
give both old and new addresses.

REMITTANCES: Send all money, business communications, and contributed articles to:

THE BRETHREN PUBLISHING COMPANY
ASHLAND, OHIO

Entered as second class matter at Ashland, Ohio. Accepted for mailing
at special rate, section 1103, act of October 3, 1917. Authorized
September 3, 1928.

INTERESTING ITEMS

Bryan, Ohio. A reception was tendered Brother E. J. Black and family, by the Bryan Church on Friday night, May 21. Brother Black recently assumed the pastorate of the Bryan Church. A feature of the evening was a highly amusing play, "How The Story Grew," which was presented by the ladies of the church.

We note that a Junior Church was established in the Bryan Church, the first service being held on Sunday, June 6. Mrs. Black is in charge.

The Bryan Laymen enjoyed a "Hamburger Fry" at the home of Robert Kerr on Tuesday evening, June 1. Brother Black spoke on the subject, "One Question and Many Facts About the Liquor Business,"

Waterloo, Iowa. A special musical program is to be rendered at the Waterloo Church by the choir on Sunday, June 13.

The Sisterhood Girls entertained their "Dads" at a Byrnes Park Picnic on June 5th.

Dayton, Ohio. Brother S. M. Whetstone reports the baptism and reception of another member on Sunday, May 30th.

The Laymen of the Dayton Church are putting on their second paper drive on Saturday, June 19th.

Pittsburgh, Pennsylvania. Word comes to us that Brother Milton M. Robinson has accepted the pastorate of the Pittsburgh Church and preached his first sermon there on Sunday, June 6th.

Elkhart, Indiana. Brother L. V. King reports the reception of two more members at Elkhart, as of Sunday, May 23rd.

Linwood, Maryland. Brother E. M. Keck reports a fine attendance at the Communion service which was held on Sunday evening, May 23rd.

We note that Brother Keck had part in the Graduating exercises of the New Windsor High School. Brother Keck's son, John, was among the graduates.

Cerro Gordo, Illinois. The District Sunday School Convention is scheduled to meet on June 13, in our church.

We note that an order has been placed for the paint which is to be put upon both the parsonage and the church building in the near future.

Loree-Mexico, Indiana, Circuit. Brother Higgins reports improvements to the amount of about $7,500.00 are contemplated on the Loree church. In fact the improvements are in progress at the present time. Efforts were put forth to raise the entire amount covering the above improvements at the Sunday morning service, on June 6.

A service of dedication of Children is planned for the Mexico church on Sunday, June 13th.

Brother Higgins reports that the total enrollment for the ten days Daily Vacation Bible School at Mexico was 144, with an average daily attendance of 115, and the highest attendance of 128. Gold lapel crosses were awarded to all students with 90 to 100% attendance. The four Sunday Schools of Mexico were cooperating in the project. Brother Higgins was the Supervisor.

Goshen, Indiana. Brother W. E. Ronk reports that twelve of Goshen's young people made the trip to Ashland on May 15 to attend the May Day activities. They took dinner with Brother and Sister Rowsey, pastor of the Ashland Church, and former Goshen pastor.

We note that Brother and Sister Ira D. Cripe of Goshen celebrated their Golden Wedding anniversary on Sunday, May 16.

The Men's Brotherhood of the Goshen Church met on Tuesday evening, May 11. They are helping to beautify the park.

The Mother and Daughter Spring party was held recently at Goshen, with an attendance of 230. The group enjoyed the addresses of two Guest Speakers, Miss Gertrude Gassaman of Alsace, and Miss Frieda Siemans of Paraguay.

Lanark, Illinois. The Lanark Sunday School Picnic was

(Continued on Page 10)

The Editor Thinks Aloud

Fred C. Vanator

A READER THINKS OVER THE EDITOR'S THINKS

This morning we received a communication from one of our readers in which he "thinks over the Editors thinks." We are glad for this communication for two reasons: First, because we are glad that our "Thinks" are read; and Second, because of the content of the letter. For the latter reason we are glad to pass the letter on to you for your "thinking." It reads as follows:

May 31, 1948

The Reverend F. C. Vanator
524 College Ave.
Ashland, Ohio

Dear Editor:

Last evening when I returned from church, I picked up the Evangelist and began reading your editorial in the May 22nd issue entitled "Christian Delinquency." You quoted a statement attributed to The Honorable Luther W. Youngdahl, "The present situation in which we find ourselves with regard to delinquents is not due to either juvenile delinquency or parental delinquency, but to Christian delinquency." You quite correctly pointed out that "it would not be fair to all to make a sweeping statement and say that ALL Christians are derelict in their duty and that nothing is being done to remedy this matter of delinquency." The statement in some cases may be true, (we believe he refers to Youngdahl's statement) but as a general rule, I believe that it is false. Politicians, parents, and even preachers are often looking for something to which they can "pass the buck." This looks to me like an attempt to shift the responsibility to the shoulders of those who are already performing great deeds of heroism to keep our generation on solid ground.

Christianity is the worship of Almighty God as revealed through Jesus Christ and proclaimed by the apostles. The church is the "called out" of the earth to this worship. I believe that the church, when we consider the people with whom and for whom it is working has accomplished miracles. To observe the truth of that statement one has only to compare the conditions in Christian nations with those in non-Christian nations. The church is made up of individuals. Who are the members of the church? Mostly parents and young people. If the church has failed here, and I question that it has neglected its duty, it must be the failure of parents and young people so at best we come right back to where we started. The present situation is the result of juvenile and parental delinquency.

The Church has taken its message via radio into the homes of just about every American, but our message has either been tuned out or regarded as something that deals with another world and so far as we are concerned we are content to live "one world" at a time. We have preached the gospel through our newspapers, but it has not been read. We have advertised, we have pled, and we have coaxed; but our message has fallen on deaf ears. Many who have come to the services of the church have turned away because the Word fell on the hard, stony, or thorny ground of juvenile and parental indifference.

I am not contending that the church is perfect or that it has done everything that it possibly could, but I do not care to have it saddled with the contention that the present situation is not due to juvenile or parental delinquency, but is due to Christian delinquency. Courts all over our land recognize the fact that those who attend church services regularly do not often get into trouble. The late President William A. Neilson of Smith College put the responsibility for children where it belongs. When at mother tried to hold the college responsible for the shortcomings of her daughter, Dr. Neilson said, "Madam, you had your daughter for eighteen years. I have had her for eighteen months. Which of us is responsible?"

A lot of parents feel that they are doing well when they let the church have their children one or two hours a week and most of them will not let us have them that much. The church is held responsible for the present situation when it is permitted to have the children for two hours or less out of a week of 168 hours. Who is delinquent?

Think it over!

Sincerely yours,
Clarence Fairbanks.

THANKS, Brother Fairbanks. We surely are thinking it over and hope others of our readers will do the same.

Business Manager's Corner

George S. Baer

July Sacrifice Month for Press Fund

IN LAST WEEK'S paper you will find, on page 10, our notice about July being Sacrifice Month for the Press and Equipment Fund. We want to repeat that notice, for the matter is very urgent and we are anxious that the required amount shall be in hand by General Conference time. We have $1,100.00 to raise to make up this year's apportionment. Some individuals have already given very generously, but there are many who have not yet gotten in on this project, and some who have pledges that have not been paid this year.

We are asking for a sacrifice offering in July, and such an offering is always a voluntary matter. That is the kind of an offering we want. That is the way we have gotten all our funds for the advancement of the Publishing Interests. People have given willingly, gladly, because they believed it was the Lord's will. We continue on that free-will offering basis. We believe God will provide through loving gifts of many throughout the brotherhood. We ask our praying groups to join us in prayer that God will work through us all to do His will in this matter.

(Continued on Page 10)

Candles of the Lord

Rev. Dyoll Belote

"Ye are the light of the world. A city that is set upon an hill cannot be hid." Matthew 5:14.

TALLOW "dips," coal-oil lamps, gas lights, electric lights are all provided for one purpose—to dispel darkness. And each is honored according to the degree of power it possesses to accomplish the purpose of its existence. Many a time I have held the "mold" in which "tallow dips" were poured, and risked the possibility of burned fingers if I should get my fingers in the way of the melted tallow. Not for many years did we mold "candles" and then came "kerosene," "lamp oil," "coal-oil"—and later even "gasoline lamps," and each was an improvement over its predecessor, and therefore the more desirable. And of course when we moved to the city where electricity was to be had we had that still greater "aid to vision." And now we have "Neon" lights, and men are still working to improve on even that latest discovery of science.

It has occurred to me to marvel at the thought of the dignity which the Almighty has conferred upon us in making our faith the light that floods the dark old world with hope. And I think I need not spent time arguing with a group of Christian workers such as my readers, that we should all be lamps to shine into the darkness of the world. I would presume to suggest to all of us that there are four things that are necessary in a lamp if it is to give light properly, viz.:

1. Lighted. Lamps do not light themselves. They must be lighted by another. They cannot light themselves any more than they can make themselves. Only God can light us. Just as the moon does not shine by its own, but by reflected light, so we can shine only as God shines through us.

2. Set. Candles are not intended to be set under a bushel—to be concealed—but in a prominent place. Not "under the bushel" but on the bushel, that its light may be radiated the farther. Or in a candle-stick, and the candle-stick on the bushel, that it may be still a bit higher and this enabled to shine the farther. (Great grandfather asked me to hold the light for him to work. "Hold it so that you can see what is being done, and you may be sure I can see," he said. "The light held in front, so that your shadow falls behind you.") "Let your light SO SHINE before men that they may see your good works and glorify your father which is in heaven." There is a purpose in the shining, first, to illuminate this dark old world; and second, to glorify our Father which is in heaven. So our lives must be sheltered from evil and sin, or they may lose their usefulness and worth. They must be set so as to shine for a useful purpose.

3. Fed—"filled." This must be done regularly and continuously. Day by day. With proper oil. Only God has the oil of grace to keep our lamps burning. The parable of the Foolish Virgins teaches us the lesson of the necessity of maintaining a plentiful supply of oil, that we are not caught unprovided at a critical moment.

4. Trimmed. Lamps have to be trimmed occasionally. Candles must be "snuffed" occasionally—not extinguished, but trimmed so that they may give the better illumination. This is to remove the burned wick that will no longer give off illumination, but only smoke and dim the shining of the flame. That is suggestive of the necessity of occasional removal of the excrescences from our lives, that we may more perfectly show forth the glory of Him who has called us to shine for Him.

In the book of Proverbs we read, "The spirit of man is the candle of the Lord." What a picture! The Almighty walking in the darkness, holding in His hand a candle—and this candle is the spirit of man.

What a challenge our day and world-situation presents to us! The need is light. The greater the darkness the greater the need of light. "Isms" and "Ologies," false teachings, perversions of the truth, are "clouding" the real issues of life, and men are ever being left to "grope in darkness" amid the pitfalls of Satan. Does our faith shine like a lighted candle or lamp to illuminate the highway of life, along which our brother man may once more go to the tasks of building a new world—or rebuilding the old one?

Lamps are for service. I remember the old hanging lamp which hung from the center of the ceiling in the "front room" or "parlor" when I was a boy. That lamp was fearfully and wonderfully made. A coal-oil lamp to give illumination! This hung in a brass framework, which was surrounded by a china shade of quite ample proportions, and then from the edge of the frame were glass bangles, cut in facets and reflecting the light of the lamp and making sparkles. On the globe were some figures, the nature of which I do not recall. But that lamp was for ornamental purposes, mostly, and lighted on "state occasions" only. Pretty? Yes! But it was the other lamps which we used about the home at night which were the more practical.

"God's candles we

Some burning high, some low,

We see the flames as souls where'er we go.

God's candles we,

Lit from His radiant flame;

It matters not if set where dark or light,

If we burn clear and high, we glorify His name.
 God's candles we,
 O may we brighter glow
 To lighten other flames that flicker low."

For better illumination we learned to put the lamps in brackets on the wall, but we wanted good lamps for those places for they must shine farther. So those who are placed in responsible places must shine the brighter, for they are seen the farther. "Ye are the light of the world,"—SO SHINE!

How to Read The Gospels

Dr. Francis Stifler

PEOPLE often speak to me about the difficulty they have in reading the Bible. Sometimes they are frank enough to say that they just can't find it interesting. I do not wonder at this for most of us have never been taught how to read the Bible. Since the most important part of the Bible is the New Testament and the most important books in the New Testament are the four Gospels, let us start our Bible reading with the lives of Jesus. How shall one read the Gospels?

First, where shall we begin? No, not with Matthew which comes first in the New Testament. Begin with Mark, not because Mark is the shortest of the gospels and the oldest, but rather, because it is the basis of Matthew and Luke, and is more full of action, simpler, and more straightforward than the others.

How much shall we read at the first sitting? Right here is where most of the difficulty with Bible reading comes in. Our Bible reading consists too often of a chapter, or a verse or a few verses, which may be useful on many occasions, and none of which I am ruling out, but the way to really know Jesus Christ is to read the Gospels each at a sitting. It takes about one hour and a quarter to read the Gospel of Mark out loud—considerably less when read to oneself. We never hesitate to read that long or longer when we start in on a fast-moving short story in a magazine.

When you read Mark thoughtfully through at one sitting you will get a conception of Jesus you never got before. Never again will you doubt that He was wholly human and wholly and uniquely divine. Never again will you have any question about the trustworthiness of Mark's record. You catch the spirit of a humble conscientious writer determined to preserve the testimony of eyewitnesses to a great miracle, a great tragedy, a great new beginning of something that can never stop—a light shining in darkness.

If you read Mark through at one sitting, you will want to read more about Jesus. You have three more records. I suggest you read Matthew next, but read it at one sitting. Matthew repeats practically every line of Mark but adds much of what Jesus said in his sermons to the people. The greatest sermon ever preached is found in Matthew 5, 6 and 7, and another in Chapter 10 and there are at least four others. Sit down some evening and read the whole of the book of Matthew. It will take you possibly an hour and a half. Its teachings have been gradually remaking the world. Your very experience in the reading of the book cannot help but transform your spirit.

If you read Mark and Matthew as I have suggested, you will be profoundly grateful that there is another sketch of Jesus' life for you to read. Luke, also based on Mark, has been called the most beautiful book ever written. Because Luke wrote for Gentiles rather than for Jews, you will feel you are getting a little closer to Jesus than even Matthew led you. Furthermore Luke's practical humanitarianism will appeal to you. Luke is the American's Gospel. Read Luke through at one sitting. It is almost exactly the same length as Matthew.

You have one crowning experience awaiting you. John's Gospel was written much later than the others. All over the Roman world people persecuted for their faith had found Christ as Saviour, and John reads these experiences back into his story of Jesus' life. If you have read the other three Gospels, as I suggest, John will become almost a personal experience as you read it. Jesus will be to you the Bread of Life and The Light of the World. He will be the Way, the Truth and the Life. You will be born again.

A Strange Family

The father has never missed church or Sunday School in twenty years. The mother has had a perfect record for eleven years. A son has not missed for twelve years. A daughter has been at the evening service every Sunday for eight years.

What's the matter with this family anyway? Don't they ever have company on Sunday to keep them away from the church?

Don't they ever get tired on Sunday mornings?

Don't they belong to any lodges, where they get their religion instead of at the House of the Lord, or to any clubs, or to anything?

Don't they ever have headaches or colds, or nervous spells, or tired feelings, or sudden calls out of the city, or weekend parties, or business trips, or picnics?

Don't they ever have a radio, so that they can get some good sermons from out-of-town preachers?

Don't they ever get a lot more good out of reading a sermon out of a book?

Don't they ever get disgusted with what the minister preaches?

What's the matter with this family, anyway, and why are they so happy and cheerful? We leave the answer to you!—St. James, Maryland Bulletin.

The prayer chamber is never so warm as when the door is shut.

Life is not so short but that there is always room for courtesy.—Emerson.

No one is useless in the world who lightens the burden of it for any one else.—Dickens.

The Faith and Practice of The Brethren Church

By Elder J. W. Beer

Before the supper they did eat,
Christ washed and wiped His servants' feet;
And then, as Lord and Master, came
And said that they should do the same.
We hold it right, as this we know,
To do this act our love to show;
And we can only happy be
By yielding when His will we see.

—John 13:2-17; I Tim. 5:10.

Then, after He had washed their feet,
'Tis said a supper they did eat:
And, at its close, He took of bread,
And, blessing it, He brake and said,
"This is My body, take and eat";
And, as they took, He did repeat,
"For you 'tis given, see that ye
Do this in memory of Me."

—Mt. 26:26; Mk. 14:22; Luke 22:19.

The cup He took with thanks and gave,
And as His blood is shed to save,
He said to them, "Drink ye of it;
My blood is shed sins to remit;
This do in memory of me,
And do it till your Lord you see."
The supper, and the bread and cup,
With thanks we eat, with thanks we sup.

—Mt. 26:27-29; Mk. 14:23-25; Luke 22:17-20.

We wash and wipe each other's feet,
The sacred supper next we eat;
And then the bread and cup we take,
And thus our full submission make.
Then, ere we part, at close of this,
We greet each other with a kiss;
The brother doth the brother meet
And sister doth her sister greet.

—Rom. 16:16; I Cor. 16:20; I Cor. 13:12; I Thess.
5:26; I Peter 5:14.

When our hate is violent, it sinks us beneath those we hate.

God says that if any man draw back, it is to his perdition.

No Scripture will justify a soul in sin. Better be SURE than SORRY.

In prayer we are bringing into operation a higher law of the spiritual realm.

China to Have First Modern Agricultural Leper Colony Under Christian Auspices

LAND HAS BEEN purchased and plans are under way for the establishment of a model agricultural colony, the first of its kind throughout China, at Hangchow, Chekiang Province. Raymond P. Currier, executive secretary of the American Mission to Lepers, has announced that the project is to be sponsored jointly by the American Mission to Lepers and the Mission to Lepers of London, and will have the strong backing of Chinese Christians of Hangchow. Dr. Stephen D. Sturton, director of the Church Mission Society Hospital at Hangchow will have supervision of the project. Land for the new colony is being given by Mr. K. L. Dzen and other members of the Christian community.

A small institution-type leprosy unit of seventy-five patients exists at Hangchow at the present time, the oldest in China under Christian auspices (established fifty-eight years ago) and the only one in Chekiang Province. The new colony will have accommodations for two hundred patients and will follow the pattern of "Happy Villages" successfully established in India (at Chandkhuri) and Nigeria (at Garkhida). On a fertile tract of two hundred acres, twenty-five miles outside the city, the Hangchow "Happy Village" will offer normal community living conditions for the patients, and through the development of craft industries, animal husbandry, and scientific farming, will eventually become self-sufficient and self-supporting.

The plan also provides for the use of the Hangchow "Happy Village" as a demonstration and teaching center for a leprosy training program to be set up as a part of the Hangchow Provincial Medical College with the aid of a substantial subsidy from American Christians through the American Mission to Lepers. Like similar training centers in process of establishment at Lingnan, Cheeloo, and Chengtu Christian universities, the Hangchow leprosy training center will have as its aim the training of nurses, doctors, public health, church, and community workers in the prevention and treatment of leprosy, and the eventual establishment of clinical stations for the detection and arrest of early cases and the segregation of infectious cases.

China, with its estimated million leprosy victims, has long been in need of adequate control centers. Missionaries have maintained, in many parts of China, a number of asylums for the care of the more helpless advanced cases that have come to their attention; but the difficulty of obtaining land, and popular indifference to leprosy as a public health problem has hitherto delayed their establishment of the "Happy Village" type of leprosy community found highly effective to other parts of the mission world.

It is hoped that the Hangchow Colony can become a model for the establishment of similar colonies much needed in other provinces in China, particularly Kwantung, Fukien, Shantung, Yunnan and Kweichow.

Young Men and Boys' Brotherhood

JULY PROGRAM

1. Scripture Order
2. Praise and Prayer
3. Bible Study:

JOSEPH IN PRISON

Genesis 39:1 to 40:15

JOSEPH, a good boy, had been sold by his brothers into slavery, and brought to Egypt. However, he did not complain, pine nor fret. He could not afford to worry about the wickedness of his brethren. No doubt he often talked to God about them while on his knees. He kept an open and manly face. He did not allow his heart and his conscience to be sold to do evil. Only self can sell us to the devil. Manly and vigorous, he sowed no "wild oats."

Joseph was bought in Egypt by the chief police officer named Potiphar. Joseph's fine looks and manly way made him a very desirable slave. He soon arose to first place among the servants. This was because he was obedient, honest and faithful. Character pays.

After ten years he was falsely accused and cast into prison because he stoutly resisted a temptation to do wrong. He was bound hand and foot with chains and placed in a cell by himself. A minister once took a boy aside and gave him this advice: "When in trouble, my boy, kneel down and ask God's help; but never climb over the fence into the devil's ground, and then kneel down and ask help. Pray from God's side of the fence." Though wrongly imprisoned, Joseph was glad that he did not commit sin. Joseph was imprisoned for doing what was right. But he still had a good face because he had a good conscience. Though he was alone he had Someone with him. Explain.

In prison he was advanced and put in charge of other prisoners. The keeper soon discovered that Joseph was patient, submissive and trustworthy. He knew how to help the prisoners, not to escape, but to be better men. He, no doubt, taught them to fear the Lord. Among the prisoners were two former officers of the king—the chief butler and the chief baker. These men had strange dreams and Joseph interpreted them, for God gave him the meaning. Joseph asked the chief butler to remember him when restored to his former position as cup bearer to the king.

Joseph had been in prison one year. But the chief butler forgot Joseph and he had to stay in prison two more years. But no matter how severely Joseph was tried, he always proved true. Although the butler forgot his promise to tell Pharaoh about Joseph, Joseph kept on doing good as he had opportunity. If when in trouble one seeks to do good he will be spared the sin of worry. Every trial has the secret of strength in it when rightly endured.

A quiz: What young man in a strange land was cast into a lion's den for adhering to his religion?

What happened to three young men whose backbones would not bend to a golden image? Who came to their aid?

Tell the dreams that Joseph interpreted while in prison (Genesis 40).

Why was John the Baptist imprisoned?

Tell about Paul and Silas in jail.

What great book of the Bible was written by John while imprisoned on a lonely island?

4. Business

5. Recreation

Suggestions: Have a brotherhood delegate or delegates to General Conference to be held on Ashland College Campus, August 23-29. Have them come back prepared to give reports to the Brotherhood back home in which they include the sessions of The Brethren Youth and the Boys' Brotherhood. Have your national dues ready for Conference time. Make your final efforts on reaching ten out of twelve goals. Come to Brotherhood Sessions with suggestions for new goals. Let each Brotherhood send at least one suggestion.

» » » » Our Poet's Corner « « « «

"BECAUSE OF YOU"

(Dedicated to Mother and Dad)

Dot Custer

Because of you, I have a home,
From which my heart shall never roam;
A happy home to me you've giv'n,
One that makes me glad I'm livin'.

Because of you, true love I know,
Love which shelters from all woe;
Love unselfish, pure and kind—
That's the love in you I find.

Because of you, I know about God,
How He wants me on this earth to trod.
Knowing God has made me see
How to find joy through eternity.

I feel very humble, as this I pray,
"May I prove worthy of you, some day!"
For because of you all this is mine,
A home, true love, and God divine.

—Pittsburgh, Pennsylvania.

No characteristic of God and Christ is more impressive than patience.

"The more excellent way," is the narrowest path in the narrow way.

Little things have big futures—especially when they are committed to God.

The Voice of Our Leaders -- Past and Present

(From the Brethren Evangelist—May 28, 1902)

Deaconesses

Mrs. Clara W. Miller

"I commend unto you Phoebe our sister, who is a servant (R. V. Margin, deaconess) of the church that is at Cenchreae." Romans 16:1.

WHETHER OR NOT the word rendered servant or deaconess here is an official designation, critical scholars are not agreed. Though we cannot be certain that Phoebe was a deaconess in the latter sense of the word—"A woman set apart by the laying on of hands, appointed to enquire into and relieve temporal distress, and to be a teacher of female enquirers in the mission—there is at least evidence that something like this was her position; for she was not merely an active Christian, she was a ministrant of the Church."—Moule.

Dr. Sanday is even more positive in his opinion. He declares St. Paul designates an office in this passage.

Diakonos occurs thirty times in the New Testament. It is used either generally of all Christian ministrations (See Romans 2:13; 1 Cor. 12:5; Eph. 4:12; etc.), or specially of the administration of alms and attendance to bodily wants (See I Cor. 16:15; II Cor. 4:8; etc.), and in three or possibly four instances it refers to an official designation as in I Timothy 3:8.

It is held by many that the reference to women in I

Timothy 3:11 is to these ministering women of the early churches. The "widows" mentioned in I Timothy 5:5ff, were practically, so far as we may be justified in judging by their duties, deaconesses. Doubtless Prisca (Romans 16:3), Paul's fellow-worker in Christ Jesus; Mary who bestowed much labor (vs. 6); Tryphaena and Tryphosa, who labor in the Lord (vs. 12); and the beloved Persia, were each and all what the church of the second century would call deaconesses.

The existence of such an order of ministering women may reasonably be expected in the apostolic churches. From the very beginning of the growth of the church, there must have been felt the necessity for women to do for women what the deacons perform for men. The seclusion of the women of the East, and the almost Oriental seclusion of the Greek women, would render the institution of such an office quite natural in the early churches. Knowing the ability of the apostolic churches to meet emergencies, we may with more confidence than doubt, believe this pressing need to have been met and the office filled with godly, grave and faithful women.

Historically, as early as the beginning of the second century, Pliny in his famous letter to Trajan, refers to two maids whom he examined who were called "ministrae" (female ministers.)

This picture shows
The 1947-48
Ashland College
Band

In the "Apostolic Constitutions," 8:19, 20, the form of prayer to be used in the ordination of a deaconess is given.

In the same writings, 3:15, where instructions are given to the Bishops concerning the ordination of his fellow-workers, it is said, "Ordain also a deaconess who is faithful and holy, for the ministrations toward women, for sometimes he cannot send a deacon, who is a man, to the women on account of unbelievers. Thou shalt therefore send a woman, a deaconess. For we stand in need of a woman, a deaconess, for many necessities."

For want of space the historical references cannot be multiplied. There are many references to deaconesses, both in the Fathers and in the Canons from the time of Ignatius (A. D. 107) to the tenth century. In conclusion I quote from Dr. Schaff's "Apostolic Christianity":

"Deaconesses, or female helpers, had a similar, (to the deacons) charge of the poor and sick in the female portion of the church. This office was the more needful on account of the rigid separation of the sexes at the time, especially among the Greeks and Orientals. It opened to pious women and virgins, and chiefly to the widows, a most suitable field for regular official exercise of their peculiar gifts of self-denying charity and devotion to the welfare of the church. Through it they could carry the light and comfort of the gospel into the most private and delicate relations of domestic life, without at all overstepping their natural sphere.

"It is not for woman to lead armies, to guide fleets, or to stand in the laborious ranks of toil, but it is for her to share all the knowledge, all the wisdom, all the intellectual activities, and spiritual attainments of the world. The difference between man and woman is of order, not degree. Her queenly nature is better fitted for nobler knight-errantry, to visit as an angel of goodness the abodes of poverty, to give bread to the hungry, and good cheer to the sick, to make the widow's heart sing for joy, and to dispel the gloom of earth with the light of heaven. There is some sick sister to whom her visit would be sunshine; there is some little child to be brightened by her charity. Earth's records do not tell half the tale of the championship of the consecrated Christian women—women after God's own heart, who shall fulfill all His will. They are great hearts that feel deeply; they are heroines who dare valiantly. They are ministering angels who have learned Christ's matchless message to the world. John Ruskin beautifully illustrates this in these words, 'Goodness is more than gold, and character outweighs intellect. Doing is better than seeming, giving is better than getting, and stooping to serve better than climbing towards the throne to wear an outer crown and scepter.'"

The Brethren Church has her share of noble spirits and consecrated hearts, who look unto the supernal God for strength and guidance. And those who lift up their eyes to these heavenly heights will never be disappointed in their trust. In our midst are young women, pure, earnest, faithful, intellectual, whose lives can be made noble in service, who cherish profound and secret purposes of love which have become more luminous and precious the longer they have been carried close to the warmth of the beating heart. But only that longing is blessed which is so intense as to lead to doing. My dear sister, whenever there is a call to duty there is service to be rendered, somewhere, to someone.

Modern diaconates as instruments of great blessing could be established in our large cities, in the uncultured and uneducated districts of the South, and in the sparsely settled sections of the West. Into these dark places the deaconess can bring joy and sunshine with her cheerful heart and helping hand. There she can teach men and women to hold in loving remembrance the poor man and his work, the great man and his work, God and His work; for hardened hearts are touched by the kind and gentle word, as the sea rises under the cooling beams of the moon. With a touch more gentle than her brother and possessing a more sympathetic nature, she can better minister to the sick and needy. These radiant, affluent souls may enrich by their very presence, their smiles may be full of blessing, and their touch have the balm of heal-

This was one of the finest Organizations up to this time

ing. Understanding the child mind they can establish schools for children where they can instruct in the Bible, thus teaching the children their religious duties.

When we work upon immortal minds, if we imbue them with high principles and with the just fear of God, we engrave upon them something which time cannot efface and which will brighten in eternity.

"How sweet 'twill be at evening
If you and I can say
'Good Shepherd, we've been seeking
The lambs that went astray;
Heart-sore and faint with hunger,
We heard them making moan,
And lo! we came at night-fall
Bearing them safely home!'"

Deaconesses can teach the mother how to care for her home and children, and breathe into her the incense of holy thought that will perfume the soul. They can go into humble homes and give the women practical lessons in sewing, in hygienic cooking, and in the art of attractive home-making.

The deaconess, by her good work and word, may be an invaluable assistant to her pastor. She can visit homes, where the wounded ones of earth are found, under circumstances that he could not; she can minister to the poor and helpless; she can bring the "oil of joy" to the widow; she can redeem the lost and lift up the fallen. These do not seek her, they may not always welcome her, but they are there, and the duty of the church is to search them out.

Truly blessed are they who walk the way of life as did the Saviour, filling all the air about them with the aroma which is so subtly distilled from kindly deeds, helpful words and unselfish lives.

Business Manager's Corner

(Continued from page 3)

Much prayer and some sacrifice or self-denial on the part of many will bring victory and rejoicing.

We were pleased to receive from Brother Willis E. Ronk and family a check to the amount of $185.00 to cover the cost of painting the Publishing House building last fall. Brother Ronk saw the need and advised us to go ahead and get the painting done and he would pay the bill. This was done and the wood work protected for another few years, thanks to the generosity of this brother, who was the guiding spirit in saving the Publishing House to the denomination and in bringing the new building into being. We express the thanks of the Board and the Staff for this gift.

Brother G. A. Cassel, a member of the Church of the Brethren in Ashland, called at the Publishing House to renew his subscription to the Brethren Evangelist, and then gave us a check for $25.00 for the Press Fund. He is a great and loyal soul in his own church group, but his interest goes out to others as well. We thank you, Brother Cassel.

A check to the amount of $104.40 was received from the Warsaw, Indiana, church to be applied on the Publication Day Offering. Thank you, Brother Brant and our many friends in the church. And we are glad to remind ourselves that it is the Warsaw Layman's Organization that took the Press Fund as one of their projects. Warsaw, we are still proud to call you our home church.

Sunday School orders are coming in and by the time this reaches its readers, they should all be in. The quarterlies are about ready to mail, and we expect to have them out in good time,—that is, all orders that are in our hands in time. And just this suggestion. Buy lesson quarterlies for the whole school. You can't encourage lesson study by passing out lesson leaflets. Plan your program in your school and in your classes to encourage a study of the lessons. We must bring the people to a better knowledge of the Bible, so that their faith shall be established and their hearts motivated by its teaching.

When you want Bibles or books, write to the Brethren Publishing Company about them. We may not have in stock everything you want, but we can get it for you and it will cost you no more than if you ordered it direct. Orders will go to the supply house the same day they are received, in case we do not have the stock in hand.

Get your church on the Evangelist Honor Roll by putting the paper in every home of your church membership. It will pay big dividends.

Center Chapel church in Indiana has renewed its place among the 100% churches this year, having sent a list of 39 subscribers to the Evangelist. We commend this splendid rural church and its pastor, Brother Austin Gable, for their fine loyalty and their desire to have an informed membership.

Interesting Items

(Continued from Page 2)

held at Old Mill Park near Savanna, Illinois, on Thursday, June 3rd.

The Sisterhood presented a play, "Soup, Sand and Sagebrush," on Sunday evening, May 30th.

Dr. Glenn L. Clayton, President-elect of Ashland College, will be the guest speaker at the Lanark Church on Sunday, June 27, speaking both morning and evening.

Peru, Indiana. Brother Elmer Carrithers, pastor of the Peru Church, reports a fine attendance at the Communion services on Sunday evening, May 16th.

The Mothers and Daughters enjoyed a Tea in the church on Tuesday evening, May 17th.

Canton, Ohio. Brother Beekley tells us that more paint has been applied to the basement and that the redecorating program is just about finished.

The Canton Young People recently elected their officers for the coming year.

St. James, Maryland. Brother Henry Bates says that the redecorating and improvement program of the church is moving along very well. The new stained glass windows are installed and add much to the beauty of the sanctuary. Inlaid linoleum has been placed in the Sunday School room.

Brother Bates reports the reception of one new member on Sunday, May 16th.

The re-dedication of the church was held on Sunday, June 6, with Dr. W. D. Furry, former pastor, as the speaker. Following the service a Home coming Day dinner was served.

The Father and Son Banquet was held on June 11.

Brother Bates has been conducting a Bible Study Class for some time past and reports that the course has been completed and examinations passed, with credit being given by the Seminary at Ashland. Brother Bates was presented with a beautiful magazine rack as an appreciation of his teaching, by the members of the class.

Gratis, Ohio. Brother Crick reports that considerable work is being done about the Gratis Church lawn.

Brother Crick had a part in the Baccalaureate services of the Gratis High School on Sunday evening, May 23.

Smithville, Ohio. Brother Grisso announces that arrangements have been made for the conducting of their Fall Evangelistic Campaign which is to be held from November 7 to 14, with Brother John F. Locke as the evangelist.

The Sunday School rooms and stage in the basement of the Smithville church are nearing completion.

NOTICE TO CHURCH CHOIR DIRECTORS

Mrs. Victor Humm, who is to have charge of the General Conference Choir, has asked that members of the various choirs of the Brethren churches who will attend General Conference, and who are willing to sing in the large chorus choir, come prepared with the special numbers listed below, and that choirs that are willing to cooperate in this matter will provide, either sufficient copies for their entire choir, that they may serve the double purpose of special numbers in their own churches, or send copies with each of their members who will sing in the conference choir (marking their music carefully so that it may not be misplaced) and practice the four numbers that not so much time need be used in rehearsal here at the conference.

The numbers selected by Mrs. Humm are as follows:

"Listen to the Lambs"—Nathaniel Dett (SATB)

"Open Our Eyes"—(No. 7273)—Will Macfarlane (Full)

"I Will Feed My Flock"—Caleb Simper (Bass solo and SATB)

"Hallelujah"—From the Messiah—Arr by G. F. Handel (SATB)

Any one desiring additional information may address Mrs. Humm as follows:

Mrs. Victor Humm, 145 East Walnut Street,
Ashland, Ohio.

The victorious testimony is a glorious testimony. It is sometimes "unspeakable and full of glory."

Bitter words and hard usage, never did, nor ever will, convince, much less persuade anybody.

Ashland College News Letter

By Arthur Petit

AS YOU are reading this, Summer School is in full swing at Ashland College. As this is being written, it is not known what the number of students will be this summer. However, indications are that there will be more students than the 265 last summer. Many regular students are returning and many teachers on temporary certificates are to be enrolled again this summer.

The Admissions Committee is busy continuously sifting applications for next fall. The number accepted is almost the same as last year at this time, so it is expected that the freshman class next fall will be at least 200. The biggest disappointment on the campus is that the number of students from Brethren communities is not larger. While the number of Brethren students will be larger than last year if present trends hold, the church has not yet lived up to its potentialities. More and more Brethren young people must be encouraged to attend Ashland if she is to exert the maximum influence on the church. The Public Relations Office will welcome any names of young people on whom we should call. Mr. Riddle or the writer will make every effort to personally call on these people.

With the closing of the regular college year, more than $1,400.00 in endowed scholarships were presented to students. Of interest to Evangelist readers are: Betty June Meyers, Ashland, received one of the John Myers Scholarships; Glenn Shank, Hagerstown, Maryland, received the Elkhart Scholarship; Marjorie Long, Orrville, Ohio, received the Smithville Award; The Lydia Wertman scholarship was presented to Horace Huse, Ripon, Calif., while his brother, Donald won the Christian Endeavor award.

The Noah Bundy award went to Mary Elizabeth Gilmer, (Now Mrs. Alvin Grumbling) Huntington, Indiana; Margaret Neighbors, Oak Hill, West Virginia won the J. M. Tombaugh scholarship for the second successive year. Lois Coleman, Milledgeville, Illinois, was the recipient of the Helen Jordan award, while the Gertrude Lake scholarship went to Wanda Beal, Mansfield, Ohio. Scholarships at Ashland are awarded on the basis of character, ability, past record and promise of future worth.

In many cases class and organization officers have been elected for next year. Some of the presidents known to Brethren churches are: Girls' Gospel Teams, Lois Coleman, Milledgeville, Illinois; Men's Gospel Teams, Robert Hoffman, Berlin, Pennsylvania; Gooch Club, Lewis Smith, Elkhart, Indiana, and Pi Kappa Pi (art club) Betty June Meyers, Ashland, Ohio.

When a man refuses to stand for the right principle, he stands for the wrong principle.

Intelligence is like a river, the deeper it is the less noise it makes.

No one can conceive of Jesus using tobacco or commanding any one else to do so.

CHRISTIAN ENDEAVOR TOPIC

W. St. Clair Benshoff, Topic Editor

"Topics copyrighted by the International Society of Christian Endeavor.
Used by permission."

Topic for June 20, 1948

WHAT IS THE RADIO DOING TO YOU?

Scripture: Proverbs 4:20-27; Philippians 4:8; I John 2:15-17

For The Leader

THE WRITER of Proverbs tells us to "Keep thy heart with all diligence, for out of it are the issues of life." Truer words were never spoken. How does our heart receive its impressions? Simply through the senses; hearing, seeing, feeling, etc. Primarily tonight we are interested in hearing. Ever since we've been born, the radio has been pounding words and music into our minds and hearts. It is true that we are largely, today, what we have heard over the radio. It used to be that radio was a miracle or a mystery. On certain nights, or certain hours, you could pick up a station with earphones. From that humble beginning, the radio has increased its inroads into our lives until today it occupies a major place. In our cars, restaurants, living rooms, kitchens, we have the radio. Yes, and at our bedside for "late" music, and rising music. Anything that plays such an important part in life should be checked on to see what its influences are.

DISCUSSION

1. RADIO A PASSION. How many hours a day do you listen to your radio? There are people who use it just for news. From that minimum, the listening time increases until we meet that group that keeps the radio on every waking hour. It doesn't matter so much what's on, just so the radio is going. A recent statement didn't surprise us much, that program arrangers classify their programs for those who turn the radio on, and never touch it for hours. Most afternoons there are the "soap" box operas. Those idiotic creations, which if listened to continuously, will slowly drive you insane. Then the evenings contain many drama and moronic prize programs. Some of them cross the line into vulgarity. There is something lacking in our personality if we must have the radio continuously for our daily lives.

2. FOR COMPANY AND ENTERTAINMENT. As a pastor, in our visitation work, we often enter a home in which the radio is playing. Perhaps only the wife or one member of the family is present. The radio is turned off, often with the remark that it is on for company. That is a good thing, as long as the programs listened to are of a high calibre. However, do not overlook that fact that day after day, you are absorbing what you hear. Constant pounding will wear away the rock. Constant listening, for instance to divorce stories, broken morals, etc., will tend to destroy high ideals in your own life. Pick your radio programs as you would your friends. Radio offers much in the way of musical entertainment. Jazz never entertains, it degrades. Listen to nothing but jazz day after day, and your mind will rot out of your head.

3. YOUR LISTENING HOURS. In our observations we have discovered that most kids of six years of age can sing about every popular tune that comes along, but are lost when it comes to singing a good old hymn of the church. There's only one reason for this. Constant hearing of those tunes over the radio. We should be ashamed to admit that we know the popular tunes, but can't even sing a verse of a hymn without the book. There are good programs, but we must choose wisely. We are to think and hear the things that are pure, honest, just, true, etc. We are to love not the world, neither the things that are in the world. Often when the world has no other way of getting into our homes, it comes in over the air. Guard your listening hours carefully.

4. COMMON SENSE IN USE OF RADIO. We heard once of a "juke box" (you know what they are) that had a button, which, for five cents, would shut the thing off for five minutes. What a wonderful blessing that was for mankind. What a relief from the constant crash, screech and blasting of pagan syncopations that most of the younger set call "heavenly music." Here is a suggestion for your radio. Shut the thing off. Do a little quiet thinking. It is too true the devil accomplished a great thing when he made us radio minded from rising hour to slumber time. For once the radio is on in the morning we give little thought to quiet thinking and meditation about God. Valiant ministers have endeavored to push back the jangle for a morning devotion program. The general attitude of most commercial stations towards devotional programs is summed up in this one announcer's words, "we pause for a period of devotions." Still, while these programs help immensely, we still need a period of quiet for our personal devotions with God. Another thing, use common sense when people call to visit with you. If there is any program more important than visiting with your guest, so be it, but it's an insult to common decency to try to listen to a radio when you have company. (If the company is staying all day, or all night, that's different, but when callers come, turn off the radio.)

5. LEARN TO LISTEN. When you listen to a program, do you feel you have gained something definite which lifts you up spiritually and mentally, or was it just something to fill up the time? Keep a close check, pick the programs which will improve your mental outlook. After all, you are being influenced by what you hear. You will rise no higher than the type of programs to which you listen. As Christians, we must choose wisely, that our lives might be enriched by what we hear.

DISCUSSION QUESTIONS

1. Make a survey of your group. Find out which programs they like best, and why. Which program they like least, and why.
2. Find out also the approximate number of hours each one listens to the radio each day. Also the hours of the day, morning, afternoon, evening, or late at night.
3. How is the best way to judge the value of a radio program?
4. Name some definite advantages which the radio can bring to you, such as news, etc.

Prayer Meeting Topic

Contributed by Rev. C. Y. Gilmer

(Helps for Daily Living)

FAMILY WORSHIP

Rear you an altar that will last forever:
Longer than any shaft or marble dome;
Erect it there beside your own hearthfire,
The chaste, white family altar in the home.
Chisel the Word of God upon the waiting
Hearts and minds of the dear ones gathered there—
The blowing sands of time will not erase it;
No friction dim the imprint of your prayer.
For memory will hold those chiseled letters,
And prayer shall be imbedded in the heart.
O Father, Mother, rear that lasting altar,
And the children whom you love will not depart
From the way of life . . . The Word will last forever,
Though earth and heaven itself should pass away—
If you have not as yet begun the building
Of that eternal altar—start today!

—Grace Noll Crowell.

WHAT THE BIBLE WILL DO FOR THE CHRISTIAN

Scripture: Psalm 119:1-16

Hymns About the Bible

Leader's Petition

Seed Thought Provokers:

THE WORD of God to a Christian is the way to an overcoming and victorious life. One cannot be right with God unless his life is patterned after the Bible. Although one may confess his sins and pray, he will never have the power to live right until he learns and meditates upon the Word of God (Psalm 119:9). That Word will cleanse our lives and make them holy (Psalm 119:11). To have day by day victory over temptation one must have day by day meditation on the Word of God. It takes daily planting of the Word in the life to grow Christian victory. That Word is required to sanctify, i. e., set apart, your life unto God (John 17:17). A righteous life has to be based on the Word of God and wrought out by the Word. It is necessary to love the Word (Psalm 119:97, 113, 119, 127, 159, 163, 167). A formal Bible education will not suffice. The Word must become sweet and precious, get a grip on one, show him his failures, and cause him to seek only those things which are pleasing unto the Father.

Living in the Word is the only way to answered prayer. Faith is not independent of the Word of God (Rom. 10:17). God's promises are numerous, and are to be found only in the Bible. Read the Bible in order to know for what kind of things to pray (John 15:7). There is no abiding in Christ without the Bible. It alone is the revealed will of God. Without the Bible there is no basis for faith.

Prayer not based on the Word is useless. The secret of answered prayer is the meeting of God's conditions as stated in His Word so that He will give one faith to ask according to His Word.

The Bible gives assurance of salvation (John 6:37; 1 John 5:9; John 3:16; 5:24).

The Bible is the secret of guidance. We are not to pray for guidance on matters that are ALREADY answered in the Word of God. A Christian girl need not pray to God to know whether she may marry a lost boy (2 Cor. 6:14). The Wise Men followed Daniel 9:25 to Jerusalem. From there they followed Micah 5:2 to Bethlehem. The Holy Spirit used the star to vindicate their faith in the Word of God which they followed always to the best of their knowledge.

The Word of God is indispensable in soul winning (Psalm 126:6). It is the sword of the Spirit because it brings conviction (Heb. 4:12). It will bring conviction where there is none, interest where there is no interest in things eternal, and will correct perverted ideas of religion. It is used of the Holy Spirit to bring about the new birth and the assurance of salvation. Learn to use the miracle Book, the Bible. Make 2 Timothy 2:15 your Christian worker's motto.

Ask for prayer requests and encourage all present to offer audible petition.

COMMENTS

On The Sunday School Lesson

by The Editor

Lesson for June 20, 1948

JEWISH HOPES FOR THE MESSIAH

Lesson: Ezekiel 34:23-28; Daniel 7:13-14; Zechariah 9:9-10; 12:10; 13:1

THERE ARE no eyes so blind as those that will not see. When we study the question of the Jewish hopes for the coming of the Messiah—the Anointed One, the Christ of the New Testament—we are astonished that the Jews failed to recognize Jesus as that Messiah, when He came to earth. They had every opportunity to observe the definite fulfillment of prophecy, but it can all be summed up in the words of the scriptures—"They would not." John says, "He came to his own, but his own would not receive him." Jesus says, "How many times I would have gathered you . . . but you would not." Jesus also says, in the parable of the Wedding Guest, "They that were bidden would not come."

It might be well to call attention to the fact that the Jews were not looking for the "kind of Messiah" who was prophesied. They were looking for one who would come as an earthly king and who would set up an earthly kingdom, thus casting off the yoke of Roman oppression. They did not think, nor are the Jews now thinking, of a spiritual rule, but of a temporal set up—one in which they, themselves, shall be the outstanding personalities.

It is interesting to note in the opening passage of our lesson the definite things that God says about His relation to this particular thing. Here God definitely sets forth His part in the Kingdom. Note the emphasis on the personal pronoun "I." "I will set up . . . I will be their God . . . I will make them a covenant of peace . . . I will make them a blessing . . . I have broken the bonds of their yoke." Until the Jews recognize the entire Word of the Lord and come under its real meaning, they cannot expect to live in their true relationship with God and His world.

Whenever any one, whether he be Jew or Gentile, takes his eyes off of men and plants them upon God, those things which God has promised will be placed in his hands. It does no good to "look or hope" for the Messiah unless one does it in the way God has provided and in the manner provided. Rejecting the idea of the "suffering Messiah" as do the Jews, in no way changes the plan which God, in His wisdom and understanding, has set up. Hope can only remain hope when it is linked with belief and trust.

The sooner the truth found in the words of Zechariah 4:6 is established in the heart of man, the sooner will come the "Salvation of the Lord." These are the words: "Not by might, nor by power, but by my spirit, saith the Lord."

A New Church Is Started In Ashland

Located on Sherman Avenue in the Northeastern Part of the City

AFTER a great deal of preliminary work by a rather large committee, and later by a smaller committee, a brand new work was launched by the First Brethren Church (Park Street) of Ashland. It is to be known as "The Garber Memorial Brethren Church," being so named because the building in which the work is being inaugurated was built by Elder A. L. Garber, long time faithful member of the Park Street Church. It was built originally by Brother Garger as a Chapel that those in that part of town might have a place to worship.

At Brother Garber's death the title of the property was willed to his two daughters, Mrs. Ruth Burns and Mrs. Miriam Zercher, who are members of the Park Street Church. When the church was approached about taking over the building, preliminary work was begun to set up a program which would be in keeping with the Brethren Church at work. A rather large committee which was composed of all the various committees of the church met and outlined plans for the setting up of a committee which should have direct supervision of the work. The matter was taken to both the Official Board and the congregational meeting of the church, with the result that a considerable sum of money was raised by offering and subscription for the starting of the work. This gave opportunity for the purchasing of necessary equipment, which was done by the trustees of the church.

The committee which is to have supervision of the work is as follows: Rev. H. H. Rowsey, pastor of the Park Street Church, chairman; J. E. Stookey, Chairman of the Board of Trustees; Mrs. Ira D. Slotter, Chairman of the Missionary Committee; Dr. L. E. Lindower, Chairman of the Religious Education Committee; Rev. F. C. Vanator, Chairman of the Evangelistic Committee; Rev. Delbert B. Flora, representing the Boys' Gospel Teams; Mrs. M. A. Stuckey, representing the Girls' Gospel Teams; with Mrs. Ruth Burns and Mrs. Miriam Zercher as members ex-officio.

The work that is being done at the present time is without remuneration to anyone. The committee has secured the services of the following for the summer: Robert Holsinger, who graduated from the College this spring, and who will enter the Seminary this fall, will act as Class Leader; Robert Hoffman, a pre-seminary student will act as Sunday School Superintendent; Harry McArthur, also a pre-seminary student as First Assistant Superintendent; and Rex Martin, a graduate of Ashland College, as Second Assistant. The preaching is being done by the various elders of the Park Street Church.

The first service was held on Sunday Morning, June 6. There were seventeen for Sunday School and twenty for the preaching service. The church is situated in a rapidly growing community and we feel that much good can be done in this work. The community is largely unchurched.

Brother Delbert Flora preached the first sermon and also taught the combined Sunday School classes. Next Sunday the classes will be divided as to ages and the work will proceed from this point as a regular organized school. Dr. L. E. Lindower will preach on June 13; Rev. H. H. Rowsey on June 20; and Rev. F. C. Vanator on June 27.

It is hoped that before many months the church will be able to present to the Ohio Conference another brand new work.

Nappanee Church Dedication

AS THE Evangelist was about to go to press, a long distance phone call came to the editor from Mrs. U. J. Shively, who had just returned from a committee meeting which completed the arrangements for the dedication ceremonies for the new Nappanee Church. She requested that an announcement be made of the time and that an invitation be issued to all Brethren who can find it possible to attend.

The dedication will be held on Sunday, June 27. Dr. John G. Holland of Little Brown Church fame will be one of the speakers. A former pastor of the church is also invited to be present to speak.

The services will be as follows: Sunday School at 9:30; Morning Worship at 10:30; Afternoon Service, with the dedication proper, at 2:30; Evening Service at 7:30, at which time an organ recital is scheduled and a service of presentation of flags will be observed. At the evening service all the Nappanee churches have been particularly invited, together with their pastors.

It has been three and a half years since the old Nappanee church was destroyed by fire. Some work yet remains on the new church but will soon be completed.

NEWS

Send all C. E. News Items
To Rev. W. St. Clair Benshoff
Rt. 1, Box 152, Conemaugh, Pa.

WILLIAMSTOWN, OHIO

In order to reach all our goals we find it is time for another news letter from the Williamstown Brethren Christian Endeavor.

As this is our first full year as an organization, we are trying extra hard to reach all our goals and become a banner society.

We held our Public Service one Sunday evening during the time of the Sixty-seventh Birthday Celebration of Christian Endeavor. All our young people took part in the program which was outlined by the National Christian Endeavor.

The Saturday evening before the public service we had a social in the home of one of our members. The group was small, but they really consumed a lot of chili.

After each devotional program we have a short business meeting and in this way we keep right up-to-date in checking our goals. Once a month during our business meeting we have a review of the interesting news items in the "Christian Endeavor World" and if we think they are worth while we use them. One suggestion we are following in keeping a supply of paper, ink, cards, and stamps in the back of the church for the members to send to the sick and shut-ins of our church.

We would like to see more "News" letters in the Evangelist so that we would know what kind of parties and programs other societies enjoy.

Williamstown Brethren C. E.,
Mrs. Charles Munson, Reporter.

Bits of Brethren History

Information of Interest

By H. C. Funderburg

(These articles are printed just as they come from the pen of Brother Funderburg.)

AN EARLY SETTLER

PROMINENT AMONG the early settlers of the southern part of Cambria County, Pennsylvania, was Elder Levi Roberts. His grandfather was a native of Wales. He first settled in Virginia, where his children were born and where, probably, he died. We are not sure of this. He had several children, but little is known of them except of his son Joseph, the father of the subject of this writing.

Joseph Roberts married Agnes Seabrooks, daughter of William Seabrooks of Maryland, and resided for a while in Virginia and Maryland, but subsequently settled in what was known as Woodcock Valley, Huntingdon County, Pennsylvania. He had also a number of children, only five of whom lived to years of maturity, namely, Richard, Nancy, Jemima, Mary and Levi. Richard, the oldest son, joined the American Army during the Revolutionary War and never returned. Nancy married Jacob Sheets, but never lived west of the Alleghany mountains. Jemima married John Shaffer.

Levi was born in Huntingdon County, Pennsylvania. That part of the county was, at that time, overrun by Indians and the lives and property of the settlers were in perpetual danger. When about two years of age his father, Joseph Roberts, was killed by the Indians. Levi's mother and family remained together at the same place after their sad bereavement until the end of the war, but were continually driven from place to place by the Indians.

On the nineteenth day of November, 1799, Levi married Elizabeth Gochnour, daughter of David Gochnour of Bedford County, and in the spring of 1803, he, together with his mother and his two brothers-in-law, Diamond and Shaffer, moved to what is now Cambria County, and settled on a tract of land called the "Vineyard" which he had purchased from Martin Reiley. His mother resided with him till the time of her departure, which occurred August 24, 1833, she being ninety years of age at the time of her passing.

Elder Roberts possessed a remarkably strong physical constitution, and surmounted difficulties and endured hardships which men of our day would not dare to encounter.

As soon as he had a shelter erected for his family he commenced a war of extermination upon the wild animals around him. A number of panthers, bears, wolves, deer and smaller animals yearly fell victims of his keen sagacity as a hunter. Often when engaged in hunting he would camp out in the most inclement seasons, building large fires and sleeping on bed of hemlock boughs, with his unerring rifle at his side, and surrounded by his faithful dogs. He had little fear from savage denizens of the forest.

In 1839 he sold his farm, but remained in the neighborhood till 1844, when he moved to Iowa, then a territory, and settled in Jefferson County, where his wife died December 6, 1846. In 1848 he returned to Cambria County and resided there until his death.

In about 1820 he joined the Tunkers. A few years afterwards he was chosen and ordained a minister of the Gospel. In that capacity he labored with commendable zeal and energy, traveling much through Cambria, Somerset, Bedford, Huntingdon, Indiana, and Armstrong Counties, frequently passing over rugged and almost impassable roads, sometimes on horseback; sometimes on foot, yet he seldom failed to fill his appointments.

He died on December 16, 1860, just fourteen years after the death of his beloved wife, and is buried in Angus graveyard. His age was 81 years, 9 months and 27 days.

He was much esteemed by his neighbors and acquaintances as an honest, upright man, and a Christian, and may safely say that he died without an enemy. It was said of Elder Roberts that he would hold his audience almost spell-bound with his thrilling tales of adventure and pioneer life.

Few men there are but would have better wives if their wives' husbands would but live better.

Laid to Rest

HOFF. Miss Amanda Hoff was born in Milton Township, Ohio, March 15, 1857, the daughter of Mary Ann Shaffer and Samuel Hoff. She departed this life on May 20, 1948, at the age of ninety-two years.

Amanda and her sister, Alice, had dwelt together in Smithville, Ohio, for many years and before that time had lived on a farm in Milton Township. She was a faithful member of the Smithville Brethren Church for many years.

Surviving are one sister, Alice of Smithville; two nieces, Mrs. Ellis Reed of Cleveland, and Mrs. Harry Helmick of Barberton, Ohio, and two nephews, Harley Hoff of Doylestown, Ohio and Glenn Hoff of Kilbuck, Ohio.

Services were conducted from the Smithville Brethren Church on Sunday afternoon, May 23, by her pastor, the undersigned. Interment was made in the Mt. Zion Cemetery, the location of the old, original Brethren Church of this community.

Vernon D. Grisso.

HOLSINGER. Minnie Holsinger, wife of H. C. Holsinger, went home to be with her Lord at 12:30 the afternoon of May 20, 1948. She was born August 9, 1878, at Gilstown, Pennsylvania, and was 69 years, 9 months and 11 days of age at the time of her passing. The date of her marriage was September 13, 1896. Besides her husband, she is survived by four daughters: Mrs. Mildred Steeg, Miss Theda Holsinger, Mrs. Erma Benshoff, and Mrs. Myron Spuhler; two sons: Harold C. Holsinger and Venard Holsinger; ten grandchildren; and one brother, Harry Beaner of Johnstown, Pennsylvania.

Sister Holsinger was a member, true and faithful, of the Firestone Park Brethren Church of Akron, Ohio, having originally been a member of the Brethren Church at Windber, Pennsylvania, uniting with that church in 1904.

The funeral services were held on Monday, May 24, 1948 from the Billow Chapel, with burial at Rose Hill Burial Park. Services by the pastor.

J. G. Dodds.

"Drunkenness is the ruin of reason. It is premature old age. It is temporary death."—St. Basil.

"God has no larger field for the man who is not faithfully doing his work where he is."

Wine has drowned more men than the sea.—Ephraem Syrus.

Faith and common sense make reasonable service, which ends by giving us the Light of Life.

Guard Your Spending

for things you just want and don't need during July and make a

Sacrifice Offering

for the

Press & Equipment Fund

It will take $1,100.00 to complete this year's apportionment

That will leave $5,000.00 to be raised next year to reach the goal of $15,000.00 for the three-year campaign.

Both Churches and Individuals may join in this Sacrifice Offering for this work of the Lord.

The Brethren Evangelist

Vol. LXX, No 25 June 19, 1948
Missionary Board Number

Brethren Historical Library
Manchester College
comp
North Manchester, Ind.

THE BRETHREN EVANGELIST

Published weekly, except the last week in August and
the last week in December.

THE BRETHREN PUBLISHING COMPANY

Ashland, Ohio

PRUDENTIAL COMMITTEE

J. E. Stookey, President N. G. Kimmel, Vice-President
J. G. Dodds, Secretary-Treasurer

EDITOR OF PUBLICATIONS—F. C. Vanator

BUSINESS MANAGER—G. S. Baer

EDITOR MISSIONARY NUMBER—E. M. Riddle

CONTRIBUTING EDITORS

Dr. Charles A. Bame Rev. Dyoll Belote

DEPARTMENTAL EDITORS

Dr. C. F. Yoder, Brethren Doctrine
Rev. N. V. Leatherman, Practical Church Problems
Rev. J. G. Dodds, National Goals
Dr. R. F. Porte, Brethren Church History

PLEASE REMEMBER: All material for publication in the Evangelist must be in the hands of the editor at least three weeks before the desired date of publication, to assure same to appear in desired issue. This refers to announcements particularly.

TERMS OF SUBSCRIPTION: $1.50 per year in advance.
CHANGE OF ADDRESS: In ordering change of address always
give both old and new addresses.

REMITTANCES: Send all money, business communications, and contributed articles to:

THE BRETHREN PUBLISHING COMPANY
ASHLAND, OHIO

Entered as second class matter at Ashland, Ohio. Accepted for mailing
at special rate, section 1103, act of October 3, 1917. Authorized
September 3, 1928.

The

Field Secretary

Travels

Miami Valley—Early in the month several days were spent in the Dayton area in the interests of our institutions. It was my joy to share in a very good prayer service under the direction of the Rev. S. M. Whetstone, new pastor at the Dayton Brethren Church. The Whetstones have been well received and a splendid response from the church is manifested. It is most encouraging to enter a church where a good prayer meeting is maintained. We need more real prayer and Bible study meetings.

New Lebanon and West Alexandria pastors were visited, also a short service was conducted at the bedside of Mrs.

Clayton Berkshire who had the day before experienced an operation.

Now as to Gratis—that new preacher there, Rev. W. S. Crick, is hard to find, for I have missed him the second time already. These Miami Valley churches are prospering and a fine response continually comes in many ways.

Illinois—Most of a week was spent in Illinois. People and schools in Lanark, Milledgeville, and Cerro Gordo were contacted. Splendidly good activity prevails in all these places. It was my first stop in Cerro Gordo since many years ago. Brother Chas. Johnson is pastor here and good things have been done the past few years, since this church has had regular pastoral care. We have people from all these churches in college and some in pre-seminary courses. Others are coming. We drove off our scheduled route several miles one night to visit our good friends, Mr. and Mrs. Nelson Preston, formerly from Louisville, Ohio. They were very loyal attendants at our church in Louisville during the two pastorates which we served there. Such renewals of fellowship are always happy experiences.

Indiana—The last of the month a sudden engagement was decided upon for Muncie. I spoke to a very good audience on Sunday morning, attended a music recital in the afternoon in the church given by the class of a young woman in the church. Following this I met with the building committee and a number of other members of the church. These people are finishing their church which has only been a one unit for years. Here is some of the finest cooperation, enthusiasm, and loyalty that one could expect to find. Long time planning on the part of the pastor and his people and wisdom in buying with men of experience in their own church has all been a great aid. It will be an eventful day for Muncie Brethren and friends when they can be in their new church.

There were just two hours left to get to Peru for the evening. They were not informed that I might even be there. I found a very good Sunday night attendance for a church of that membership. In fact, many pastors these days in even larger churches rejoice when they have 40 to 50 on Sunday evening. After preaching for them I had a long conference with the pastor and family, the Carithers, who are doing a commendable service here. Contacts were made at Loree, Burlington, Logansport and Rochester also.

After one day of conference in Lima with nine other church leaders of our denomination I started for Terra Alta, W. Va. for a week of special services from which place these notes are being written.

Keep looking up, everybody.

Faithfully,

E. M. Riddle, Field Secretary.

The Need for Courage, Vision, and Sacrificial Spirit In the Church Today

by Dean M. A. Stuckey

(The Secretary of the Missionary Board of the Brethren Church has assigned the above topic to me for discussion in a terse manner. It is a joy to respond favorably to the request from his office.)

The Christian Church has never lacked heroic souls to champion the cause of world-wide missions. Undoubtedly St. Paul of Tarsus heads the notable list of the intrepid leaders of Christian faith. Assisted as he was by the scholarly historian and physician, Dr. Luke, and others, the first century churches were organized in country and in city all over the Roman Empire. These churches did not fail to grow and abound. They were God-inspired, God-planned, God-founded, God-nurtured, and God-superintended. The worthy missionaries were the humble human leaders whom the Spirit of God used remarkably to accomplish His heavenly work in the earth.

The leaders of the apostolic, holy, universal church possessed in abundant measure courage, vision, and the sacrificial spirit. Modern Christians can learn how to make missions succeed around the earth today by sitting at their feet. Then, as now, the secrets of success are the same. They simply preached the Word of God everywhere. They believed the divine Message and presented it in love. They taught men the doctrines of God. They healed men by the power of God.

I.

COURAGE

Paul was always sure of himself. His excellent rabbinical education and additional secular education equipped him to meet leaders and commoners anywhere in the Roman Empire. Whether he encountered the Stoics, Epicureans, and philosophers in Athens, or even the Jews of the market place, he could argue his Christian cause with consummated ease and skill. His courage knew no bounds because he knew he was the intellectual and spiritual superior of all his fellowmen. No wonder he faced his sinful and dejected generation without pessimism or despondency. He, although afflicted in body, had no blue Mondays. Paul's courage enabled him to rise above the common weaknesses of his fellow men. How much we need his fortitude today!

II.

VISION

Barnabas, an early missionary of the cross, was a man of real vision. He kept things on even keel on the church and missionary front. He was sane, safe, and sound in his judgments and could see the good in weak men and in erring men. To begin with he introduced the once murderous Paul, after learning of his remarkable conversion, to a waiting, puzzled, and fearful Christian Church. Suppose he had not done this? What then? Would we have had fourteen epistles at St. Paul's versatile command?

Or, what is more, if Barnabas had not been willing to draw the mantle of charity over the vacillating and discouraged young John Mark, would we be the possessors today of the rich second Gospel of the New Testament?

Barnabas had the vision of the best saints of all these Christian centuries when he sold land "and brought the money and laid it at the apostles feet." Dr. Luke put these words in the apostolic annals. Will some modern Dr. Luke be able to write similar words about some modern Brethren?

III.

SACRIFICIAL SPIRIT

Dr. Luke, the beloved lay physician of the first century church, was a leader of real worth and influence. Like the cosmopolitan-minded Paul, he, too, was highly educated, but in historical and medical fields. He practiced medicine far and wide among all classes of the Roman society. Though a Gentile and a Greek, he ministered to the poor, the weak, the sinners, the saints and all others who were privileged to know him. While Dr. Luke traveled widely with Paul on land and on sea, he found time to compile the book of the Acts of the Apostles. His Gospel researches resulted in his penning what Renau has called, perhaps rightly, "the most beautiful book in the world."

Now, my readers, do you think he did this work, marvelous and great as it was, without real sacrifices to himself as a practicing medical doctor? The need for Christian Brethren physicians today on foreign fields is simply overwhelming. Shall we not help to meet the world's need by training at Ashland College and Seminary pre-medics and divinity students?

ONE QUESTION REMAINS

Do the Brethren leaders possess courage, vision, and a willingness to sacrifice sufficiently to meet at least in part our share of the world's need?

The General Conference of Brethren Churches in 1947 urged that "The Seminary and Mission Boards cooperate to provide full training for missionary service in cooperative fields." This the Seminary stands ready to do, has offered to do, and will continue to offer to do. To date small progress has been made. Tomorrow let the doors be thrown open wide! Then shall the heathen come to know of the everlasting Gospel of Christ; then shall the isles break into singing at the sight of the Lamb and the throne.

—Ashland, Ohio.

The Message of the Book

Titus, A Missionary

by S. E. Christiansen

Whatever we learn about Titus we have to glean from the Epistles of St. Paul. There is nothing said about Titus in the Acts of the Apostles. We may ask ourselves or others, Who is and where did Titus come from? As we read we find that Titus was a Gentile born in Greece, Gal. 2, verse 3. Also that Titus was brought unto Christ by St. Paul, Titus 1:4. He was also one with Paul and Barnabas as they went up to Jerusalem, Gal. 2:1, and later became a traveling companion with and was sent by St. Paul as a representative missionary on several important missions to the different churches. See II Cor. 7, verses 5, 13-15, and Chap. 8:16, and Chap. 12:17, 18. These scriptures present to us several good missionary qualities coveted by the many mission boards for their representatives in the various fields of labour.

Dr. Farrar gives this introduction concerning Titus, "Of all the companions who surrounded Paul, Titus seems to have been the most respected for his practical vigour and efficiency. Since Titus was made of sterner stuff than Timothy, St. Paul had on one occasion countermanded a mission of the latter to Corinth and had sent Titus in his place. Indeed, on three separate occasions Titus had been sent to introduce order and submission into that turbulent church. Towards the close of St. Paul's life he was dispatched to Delmantis, after this he disappears from history."

Titus as a missionary was concerned with his work. He was also alert to inform Paul who sent him as to the spiritual condition of said field of labour. St. Paul was also an adviser for the missionary who was sent to build a church in a hard place. Titus was told that the church he was to organize needed moral and spiritual qualification, and that he as the pastor was responsible to instruct as to the qualification of such officers. Titus was to set in order the things that are wanting and ordain Elders in every city, as Paul had appointed him. Read Titus 1, verses 5-11. These same qualifications among elders and deacons are still wonderful helps to our church organizations even today.

As Titus joins Paul he was really enthusiastic, showing his affection for the people, as shown in II Cor. 8:16-24. This missionary report gladdened Paul's heart and he knew that the right man was in his place. Some one must have asked Titus who he was and what authority was his. When this was related to Paul he gives the answer as follows: "If any one wants to know, Titus is my partner and fellowhelper concerning you—a messenger of the churches and the glory of Christ." This is a high and noble recommendation for a man in any field. It is a great joy to be spoken of as trustworthy and as being capable to perform a work in a difficult place and in a hard church. These qualifications were subscribed to Titus by St. Paul. As stated by Dr. Farrar, Titus was sent to introduce order and submission into that turbulent church.

Paul requested in Tim. 3:12 that Titus should come unto him at Neopolis where he intended to winter. This request seems to have been fulfilled and he remained with Paul and later followed St. Paul on his last trip to Rome, and stayed with him there until St. Paul sent him to Delmantis. What a relief this was to St. Paul to know that he had sent a very dependable fellow-helper to this very needy work. Titus was sent, not because Paul would not go, but because he could not go.

—Georgetown, Del.

The girl or woman who goes about with a cigarette in her mouth thinks she is a smoker, but she is mistaken. It is not she that smokes; it is the thing in her mouth that smokes. She is only a sucker. The question may be added, Is it any different with boys and men?—Krypton, Ky. Bulletin.

Laymen of the Church, Arise!

Dr. Glenn L. Clayton

The world is old and tired and confused. It has been that way for a long time, struggling, suffering, fighting, — stumbling now and then upon an idea which it thought would cure its ills and trying its best to orient itself to that idea. But always, the end has been the same. No matter how wonderful the idea, how great the discovery, the end has always been bitter defeat, and often it has been war with bloodshed, disease, and starvation.

In more recent generations those defeats have been more frequent, those ideas less promising, until we have come to lose much of our confidence and to develop a skepticism which may well lead to total disaster. Already, before the clouds of a mighty war have had time to drift away, we are uneasy and doubtful of the wisdom of the whole project. Already, while the young men who gave their lives in the last war are still being sorrowfully buried in our midst, we cast fearful, despairing eyes about us as we hear serious talk of a new conflict more mighty in scope, more terrible in aspect than anything ever seen before. High-sounding ideas and breath-taking discoveries pale into insignificance as the prospect of world devastation looms once again on the horizon.

Perhaps as never before, the philosophers and sages of the world are almost unanimous in their forebodings of ill and in their hopelessness of solution. Something, they say, must be done to restore the morale of the people. From some source there must come a new awakening of hope, a new confidence in the future, a new morality which will pervade the people and cause them to search out the true values and the undying realities which defy the whims and fancies of world ideologies. Most of them can diagnose the disease, but are unable to suggest a cure. A growing few are beginning to suspect what it is.

There has never been a time in the history of the world they have never completely accepted it. From the time when God led the Israelites out of the land of Egypt, the remedy has been held out like a beacon to the people, but they have never completely accepted it. From the time when Christ said "I am the Light of the World," the cure has been known but men have insisted upon ignoring that glorious statement while they pursued the flickering candles of their own invention in a vain hope that they would arrive at the same end by their own means. Always they have met with dismal failure and a blank wall of darkness.

Now, it seems, most of those ideas and discoveries, have been tried and found wanting. Now, at long last, the way seems to be opening for the true Light, for the one solution which can effect a cure for the ills born of confusion. The greatest opportunity for the success of the Christian message is at hand, if only that message can be presented to a hungry, disillusioned world.

Jesus called his followers "witnesses." He explained his mighty program for the salvation of mankind, then made it clear that the responsibility for spreading the "good news" would rest squarely upon the shoulders of those witnesses. Through the years, a faithful few have toiled and struggled against the tide of humanity moving in the opposite direction, and their efforts have been amazingly rewarded. The number of men and women willing to serve their Master "unto death" is large today. But too often they are not bold enough or they allow themselves to be overwhelmed by the immensity of their task. They lack the signal to move ahead in unison and to make their plea for Christian standards with one accord.

That, Brethren, is precisely what must be done. The Christian laymen of the world must take their stand firmly and insist upon the standards of Jesus. There can be no compromise, there must be no hesitation. The Name of Jesus is still the power and still the only Light which can illumine the world. Through it, all things can and will be done. Brethren laymen can join with others in this great crusade which alone can save the world. In many ways Brethren can lead the way. Now is the time to sound a new kind of battle cry, a cry which will resound through the ages to come as it has through the ages of the past: "Arise, in the Name of the Lord, through Jesus Christ, in Whom is ALL POWER."

Why Home Missions?

by E. M. Riddle

The Why of Home Missions. This important thought is in the hands of Christians. The great aim and end of our Christian activity is to evangelize. But what does that mean? It is not so easy to say just what it means. Who can tell when a nation or the world has been evangelized? As much as we might stress this point, there is something that we do know and that is our own primary part in evangelization. We know that our part is to take the living Christ, God's message and messenger to the world. What the living Christ said and did, who He was and who He is, with His mission to the world, is a message of "Good News" for the sin-sick souls of our land. There should be in the bosom of every child of God, the solemn obligation to share the love of Christ, which we have appropriated that He might be the Precious One to the millions who have never known.

Another thought is: the work needs to be done. One of the greatest mission fields of the world is our own country. In a land of churches, tabernacles, radios, fine roads, and convenient means of travel, the situation or the problems of unevangelized millions seems even more acute. Our yearly crime bill, the flooded condition of all penal institutions and such as care for the unfortunates, the moral breakdown that seems to have swept country regions, villages, and cities is in every sense an argument that the gospel message is needed. The reason for much of the above picture is that people of our country have become materialistic and have forgotten to love, with a love that sacrifices. When we learn to love people we know what to do for them.

The late Wm. Jennings Bryan once related this story to a band of young students. "When I was in college a man came to me who was never in love. He asked how one is to get up courage to tell a girl that he loves her. I had just passed through that experience, he said, so I advised him. I said, 'Don't worry about that,' when you are in love the trouble will not be to tell, but to keep from telling it." As Christians, we ought to be so in love with our message and our Lord, that we can't keep from telling it. When we learn to appreciate the people of our land and love them as so many souls "not reconciled to God," then we will not try merely to perform music or something else for them when they are hungry, but rather there will be an intelligent understanding of the need and a genuine delight in doing it.

Again, another reason for Missions is the fact that we believe there is a distinct place and need for the Brethren Church in the world. We believe that the content of the Gospel message is the same for every age and people. The whole Gospel has been our plea. For all who want to be faithful to the entire, inspired Word of God, the message of the church, her doctrines, apostolic in character we believe, all such will find the Brethren Church satis-

We are grieved to report the passing of our Brother W. C. Benshoff on June 10, 1948. His death occurred shortly after a heart attack on the previous night. Brother Benshoff was a beloved and active pastor in the Brethren Church until December of the past year, and has faithfully served the Missionary Board in the capacity of treasurer for several years.

fying. "There is not a command taught in the New Testament that a member of the Brethren Church has not the high privilege of obeying." (Quotation from a tract by the late J. Allen Miller).

Therefore fellow brethren and friends, in the light of the above statements, in lieu of the great dearth of real Gospel preaching at a time like this, when the world even is in great distress, ought we not bring the greatest testimony to this country of ours that we have ever made, in the form of larger missionary offerings? "Inasmuch as ye have done it unto the least of these my brethren, ye have done it unto me" (Matt. 25:40).

If Christ is our all in all, then we should have one supreme passion—to preach Christ, the Savior of men. Perhaps He speaks to you just now:

I hear the voice
Of one who calleth,
Calleth sweet and clear,
For men to reap for Him
A harvest white.
Oh, soul of mine, rise up and answer Him
Before the night,
The long night falleth,
And the day be gone, thy day be gone.
—Ashland, Ohio.

NEWS

From the Christian World

Ruth and Charles Webb Honored

President Vincent Auriol decorated with the Medal of French Gratitude sixteen Americans instrumental in reception and distribution of Friendship Train gifts to France at a ceremony at the Elysee Palace, Paris Presidential residence.

Among those honored were Mr. and Mrs. Charles Webb, of the American Aid to France.

A copy of the letter to the Webbs from the Ministry of the Interior follows:

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Webb, representatives of the Central Committee of the Friendship Train to the North Region: You have served, in all circumstances, the French cause with devotion and unselfishness.

I am happy to thank you for your testimony of affection toward our country.

In the name of the Government, I present you with these bronze medals which are an expression of French gratitude.

With the assurance of my very distinguished considerations,

JULES MOCH.

The Jewish population in Hungary was decimated by the Nazis, but a Gospel worker says that there is a spiritual movement among the Jews of that land which looks like a continuation of the Acts of the Apostles. A converted rabbi and his wife are among Christ's witnesses there.—Prophecy Magazine.

The conflict between Arabs and Jews in Palestine is causing both physical and spiritual damage to the work built up by missionary societies during the past 100 years.

Two missionary secretaries have referred to a recent letter from the chairman of the United Missionary Council in Palestine and Syria which described the destruction of mission property by both parties to the dispute and the taking over of the Syrian orphanage in Jerusalem by Hagamah. It deplored the closing of schools and "Y's" which formerly provided a meeting ground where Christians, Moslems and Jews learned to work and play together.

Churches and other religious groups in Sweden have asked the chiefs of state in the United States, Great Britain and Russia to convene a conference for peace and understanding. The appeal is made in "the spirit of Christianity and the name of humanity."

Turkey has asked for fewer guns and more butter. Complaining that American aid was ninety-five per cent military, the Turkish government says that this places too great a strain on the country's economy. They would like some help in building new roads and railroads and in developing the country's natural resources.

After fifteen high school students of Greensboro, N. C., wrote reports defending Bible teaching in the public schools, the committee on Bible in public schools announced that it will offer such instruction in the city schools again next year. The committee believes that the Supreme Court ruling does not affect the type of course which is offered in Greensboro.

Twelve hundred baby chicks have been flown to Austria by the Brethren Service Commission. They were placed aboard a plane a few hours after they were hatched. Ralph E. Smeltzer is seeing to their distribution.

Prime Minister Nehru of India has offered to act as a negotiator between the United States and Russia in the interest of bringing about peaceful understanding between these two nations which grow farther and farther apart. This is an offer which should not be overlooked by the rest of the world.

Three religious groups in Louisville, Ky., have inaugurated a resolution to Congress, which would seek for a constitutional amendment to permit religious instruction in our schools. This is an outgrowth of the recent Supreme Court finding, which pronounced such religious education unconstitutional.

Harold Evans, a Philadelphia Quaker, has been named municipal commissioner of Jerusalem. Both Arabs and Jews have agreed to his appointment. Mr. Evans served as chairman of the Quaker child-feeding work in Germany after World War I.

The heifer project commission with headquarters at New Windsor, Md., recently shipped 245 goats and 25 kids from San Francisco bound for Japan.

Sheikh Maimon Shenawi, rector of the el-Azhar University of Cairo, Egypt, which is a center of Moslem learning, has recently announced that a women's theological department has been formed. Mohammedan circles describe the innovation as "revolutionary."

One of the paradoxes of our modern world, according to Dr. Andrew C. Ivy of the University of Illinois, is that an intelligent society should spend only three billion dollars a year to awaken the brain and nine billion dollars on liquor which impairs that brain and puts it to sleep.

Home

Missions

—Claud Studebaker, South Bend, Ind.

We present to our people an urgent need for funds to properly carry on our Home Mission work.

For a few years the Missionary Board has been criticised by some preachers and laymen for their large balance in the treasury of the Mission funds. Under ordinary conditions the criticism would be justified. People do give money to be used in mission work and not to be hoarded. This we are quite aware of. However, during the war years money was plenty and offerings quite large, but at the same time it was almost impossible to build or to secure pastors. This condition, of course, gave some accumulation in funds. We tried to make plain to our people that this was as it should be and when the war was over and we could resume building churches and secure more pastors, this surplus would soon be reduced and we would probably need much more than we have. Such is now the case.

We made the announcement at Conference last year and also in the Brethren Evangelist and also in the financial reports submitted, that we had spent last year, $20,000 more than we had received during the year. The greater part of this was in helping churches to build.

Everyone is aware of the tremendous cost in building in these days and commitments, while quite large, were not large enough to meet the need in some cases and it seemed all that could be done was to go even beyond our limitation and hope that our people would make up the deficit. This we are asking you to do.

Churches are in the process of building, and if our people will respond in some material help, it will be the means of increasing spiritual strength. There is no better investment for mission funds than building churches.

Through the future years these churches not only increase the spiritual power of the whole denomination, but they become one of the most profitable sources of income. A church established by sacrificial giving becomes a source of rich return into the treasury to build other churches. We have given substantial sums of money to the Canton, Ohio church; Akron, Ohio church and parsonage; Washington, D. C. church; Peru, Ind. parsonage; Cheyenne, Wyo. church; Mulvane, Kansas church; Stacey, Ky. church; Cameron, W. Va. church; and Muncie, Ind. church.

We believe you want to assist these churches in a substantial way. You can best do it through your Missionary Board. Nappanee, Ind. is completing a fine new church which will soon be ready for dedication. This has cost a large sum, even double their expected cost, but there was no place to quit. Of course it must be finished. We helped all we could.

Now if you will respond as the Lord has blessed you, we believe it will not only help those who receive it, but will also be a blessing to you. "See that ye abound in this grace also."

Please send your emergency gift for Home Missions as soon as possible to the Missionary Board of the Brethren Church, 524 College Ave., Ashland, Ohio.

CHEYENNE BRETHERN CHURCH

As the church looks today. Work has ceased for a time, but we are able to use the basement which we are thankful for. The outside will be covered with white stucco when complete. Picture from S. E. corner.

The Cheyenne Brethren Church, pictured above, is one which Home Mission funds has helped to build. It is nearly completed.

A new chapel at Stacey, Ky. is now in the process of construction. Several good brothers from Nappanee, Ind. volunteered a week of work on this project. Brother Geo. Drushal writes, "It looks very good so far, and we hope to complete it so we can use it in about another week's work. We have a wonderful location for it, too, in a growing community."

Brother J. G. Dodds reports that the Firestone Brethren Church in Akron, Ohio is now ready to be plastered. It will be ready for regular use in another month or so.

Work on the Cameron, W. Va. church has been resumed. Stone masons are still working on the outside walls, and are progressing nicely.

These are only a few of the new church buildings which your gifts to Home Missions have helped to provide. The time to establish new churches is NOW. But building costs are expensive. Extra funds are needed to relieve a serious deficit. We urge your cooperation in this emergency. Will you help with an extra gift for Home Missions now?

General Douglas MacArthur has pointed out to this nation that "men since the beginning of time have sought peace . . . We have had our last chance. If we do not now devise some greater and more equitable system Armageddon will be at our door. The problem basically is theological and involves a spiritual recrudescence and improvement of human character that will synchronize with our almost matchless advance in science, art, literature, and all material and cultural developments of the past two thousand years. It must be of the spirit if we are to save the flesh."

What Do You Think? -- Or Do You?

The many bright new homes hugging the boundaries of our American cities and large towns have impressed me greatly. From Iowa to Washington, D. C. I have observed innumerable "new home communities" in the last couple of years. This is obviously true of the rest of the country. It is especially characteristic of the great aviation center here in the Miami Valley.

These new homes are provided for expanding America. People occupy them. Such communities are teeming with people. Human beings like you and me. Little human beings like your little tots and mine. Sometimes hundreds of them. All, for whom Christ Jesus suffered and died.

Quite frequently one would have no difficulty in finding a place to satisfy his unnatural thirst in these communities. The "dives" are there. If he leaned heavily toward the need of amusement and entertainment, he might easily find an air-conditioned cinema. The public school is rightly located here, and the library on wheels may be at his doorstep. But if a man desires to take his wife and children to Sunday School and Church, he might search endlessly to find the "Lord's House." The Church is not there. I think this is a tragedy. What do you think? Or do you?

These communities need churches. They need a gospel center. In many cases, a Brethren Gospel center would seem imperative. Only your prayers, your consecrated service and your gifts can bring such spiritual cases into these American communities.

—W. Clayton Berkshire,
New Lebanon, Ohio.

Krypton, Kentucky Mission

In a brief summary of a work of this type it is difficult to know what particular features the readers would most desire. This, however, might best be summed up in (1) What we are doing, (2) How we are doing it, and (3) Why.

Krypton, as many of you know, is scarcely more than a "crooked place in the road" (the railroad), so that the village itself is not of great consequence so far as population is concerned. Thus we endeavor to reach out into the surrounding community as well as into other communities as far as possible. Our local services consist of Sunday School and preaching service on Sunday morning and a young people's service of diversified nature on Sunday night. Prayer meeting on Wednesday night, and on Saturday afternoons a special meet for the younger boys and girls. Monday and Thursday nights a room, especially fitted for simple games and stocked with good books, is open for the young people and in charge of one of our workers. This room is in another section of the village, and made possible by one of our local men.

On Sunday afternoons outlying Sunday Schools are conducted in schoolhouses at distant points. Then during the regular school term, which incidentally begins here in July, we follow a program of school visitation, usually weekly, in which we methodically take up a course of Bible instruction, using means by which the children can grasp the truths presented. Last winter fourteen such schools were contacted. Memorization of choice portions of the Word is one of the leading features in this work. Added to the above we endeavor to visit in the homes and otherwise gain the confidence of the people, all of which is important.

As to the how—there are no secret methods. Our approach must often be made very simple. Our work is necessarily largely with the children, and so great is the lack of parental concern or cooperation, there are many disappointments. Besides Mrs. Kinzie and the writer, we have as co-workers a Miss June Andrews and Mr. and Mrs. Basil Bickel. Thus the five of us divide the various phases of the work as seems best.

Why are we here and why our particular endeavors? Of course, to present the Gospel that lost souls may be saved, as elsewhere. But, here the crying need is to reach children whose spiritual welfare is neglected or treated as of no consequence far beyond the normal imagination. The opportunity to work in the county schools has been splendid, but with the late Supreme Court decision, this may be snatched away any moment. We covet your prayers that the seed may be faithfully sown and a great harvest gathered while it is day, for indeed the "night cometh!"

—Fred V. Kinzie.

Foreign Missions

Argentine Items

by Dr. C. F. Yoder

Since returning to Argentina I have noticed a dearth of reports from this field. All the workers have been doing good work and I am sure it would be a blessing to all to report it. Personally, I have not traveled among the missions since my last report, and so will limit this letter to news from Cordoba and our campamento, or summer camp. The latter is in its fifth year and is growing stronger right along. This year there were campers from all our missions except Colon, which work has only been going for a few months. We would be glad to have the camp in a more central location, but have been unable to find a suitable place that is central. Here, within a few miles of the city of Cordoba, which now has more than 400,000 inhabitants, we have a beautiful place among the mountains and on the margin of the river above a dam which makes it wide and beautiful. Quite a number of workers from other denominations visited us during the meetings and helped some in them.

The attendance was as large as we were prepared to care for, but next year we will be better prepared for we have built a house 15 by 22 ft., which, for the present, serves to guard the equipment until next year, and then can be used for a girls' dormitory, and later perhaps, as a rest home for workers who may need it. It is made of stones piled right on the site. Sand also was found near by, and, as the work was donated, the cost was limited to the portland for cement and the lumber for the roof and doors and windows. The house was dedicated May 1st with an attendance of more than fifty. One of the most important things about it is that, as a permanent improvement, it secures for us the protection of the government authorities in the use of the site. We plan to keep it in use by different Christian groups throughout a large part of the summer.

A nice group of our folk at Colon, Buenos Aires.

The young people who attend are getting a blessing from devoting a part of their time there to helping in the work and improving the site, but the spiritual part is not neglected and the studies of Bible topics and life problems have been much appreciated.

Brother Andenmatten, the pastor in Cordoba, is also training the people to help in the work in many ways. The congregation is making a strong effort to be self-supporting and has almost reached the goal. Our monthly love feast or Lord's Supper was attended this last Sunday by fully four-fifths of the members. This week a program is being prepared for Mother's Day. The Sunday School is raising money to build a small class room.

Sunday School, Villa Constitucion, Argentina. March, 1948.

Girls' Boarding School In Nigeria

Miss Helen Peters of the Girls' Boarding School, (Sudan Interior Mission) at Kwoi, Nigeria, writes of the work being carried on there:

"How I wish you could have been with us in the Girls' School a few days ago. Your hearts would have rejoiced as did ours! Our girls all have to do gratis work after morning devotions and until school begins, and then again in the evening after school, that is from 7-9 A. M. and from 5-7 P. M. We have classes from 9-11, and again from 3-5 with handwork from 12-3. The particular evening that I am going to tell you about you could have heard the steady "thump, thump, thump" of the pounding poles in the large wooden mortars as about 20 middle sized girls were pounding the grain (guinea corn in this instance) for their next morning's gruel.

While these girls were pounding, about 20 big girls were down at the stream watering the dry season garden. We try to keep a garden all year round in order to keep down the school food expenses. Between the swishes and the splashes of the water as it was dipped by pails and pans (which are imported from England and we buy them in Jos—100 miles from here) you could hear happy laughter, hearty singing, and hilarious talking.

Over in another corner of the compound you could have seen five shiny faces all dripping with perspiration as the matron and four girls labored over these large earthen pots on the open fires, preparing enough "tuwo" to satisfy 64 hungry people. We have an enrollment of 90 girls, but because of crowded quarters about 30 come only for classes and live in town. You really should see how crowded we are as it is! But the girls don't seem to mind. The more the merrier.

But I'm not getting to my story very fast. It's like some sermons, mostly introduction with no message! But anyway while everyone was thus engaged eight little girls came to tell me that their work was finished. They had been carrying sundried, mud bricks (on their heads) for the store-room that we are building, and all the bricks were finished. They came wanting to know what they should do now! I told them they could go and sing on the rocks in our front yard. They scampered away as happy as larks. They sang and sang and then suddenly everything was dead quiet. I stole around the house to see what they were doing and here they were all kneeling in prayer. Though they were only between the ages of 5 to 8 they were leading in prayer one after another. I looked on for awhile and felt, "The place whereon thou treadest is holy ground." Then I quietly slipped away with tears in my eyes. A little child shall lead them. Prayer still has its old-time power. Will you join these little girls in praying the Gospel light into their country?

FISHERS OF MEN

LESSON XXI—CHRISTIAN CONFLICT

Text—"I came not to send peace but a sword." Matt. 10:34.

If Christianity were in harmony with the world order it would have no work to do. It offers something better, and this better way must conquer the worse. To win converts we must convince the unconverted that we really have something for them far better than what they have. This means conflict and division.

- 1. How does the Gospel cause division on the basis of masters? Lk. 16:13.
- 2. What conflict arises because of carnal and spiritual natures? Gal. 5:16; 6:8; I Jn. 3:9, 10.
- 3. What powerful enemies must be conquered? Eph. 6:10-16.
- 4. Is Christianity in conflict with many prevailing ideals? II Cor. 6:14-16.
- 5. Why does conversion sometimes cause conflict in the home? Matt. 10:34-40.
- 6. How does Christ purge our list of friends? James 4:6-10.
- 7. What must be done about these conflicts? II Cor. 6:18; 7:1.

LESSON XXII—THE UNIFYING INFLUENCE OF THE GOSPEL

Text—"And, having made peace by the blood of his cross, by him to reconcile all things unto himself, whether they be things on earth or things in heaven." Col. 1:20.

There can be no true peace until truth has conquered error and right has conquered wrong. Faith in Christ is the victory that overcomes the world.

- 1. How does unity come from the fact of there being one God and one moral law? Deut. 6:4-7; I Jn. 3:2.
- 2. Why is "Jesus" the unifying name? I Tim. 2:5; Acts 4:12.
- 3. How does the one Gospel unify the world? Eph. 4:3-6; Gal. 1:11, 12.
- 4. Why is it important to practice the one true baptism? Rom. 6:1-13.
- 5. How is the one great work of the church a unifying force? Matt. 28:19, 20; Gal. 3:26-29.

- 6. What is the one goal that the Gospel offers to all who believe? Phil. 3:13, 14; Eph. 1:10.

- 7. What, therefore should we do? II Cor. 5:16-20.

LESSON XXIII—WARNINGS AGAINST THE HARVEST OF SIN

Text—"Be not deceived: God is not mocked, for whatsoever a man soweth that shall he also reap." Gal. 6:7.

Here is the law of judgment, as deep-seated and sure as any law of nature. Soul-winners should show to the lost the working of this law to help them to see their lost condition and seek their Savior.

- 1. What must a sinner do to be lost? Answer, "Nothing." Heb. 2:2, 3.
- 2. May a sinner be condemned for something he does not do? James 4:17.
- 3. Why is wilful sin so terrible? Heb. 6:4-6.
- 4. May a sinner escape because of ignorance? Rom. 2:13-16.
- 5. What is the result of backsliding? Heb. 10:39.
- 6. What is the fate of unfruitful branches and why? Jn. 15:5, 6.
- 7. Since doing nothing brings destruction, what should we do? Jn. 9:4; II Tim. 2:25, 26.

LESSON XXIV—THE GOOD HARVESTS—FACTORS THAT PRODUCE IT

Text—"He that reapeth receiveth wages and gathereth fruit unto life eternal." Jn. 4:36.

Fishers of men should be encouraged in their work by the knowledge that they are offering something of priceless and eternal value, the rejection of which will mean unspeakable loss.

- 1. What relation has good seed to a good harvest? Matt. 13:38.
- 2. Why is good soil important? Matt. 13:8.
- 3. How should older Christians help beginners? Gal. 6:1.
- 4. How should new converts be nourished? I Pet. 2:1, 2.
- 5. How can new converts avoid failure? II Pet. 1:5-10.
- 6. Why is perseverance an essential factor? Rev. 3:21; Gal. 6:9.
- 7. What encouraging verse should we teach to sinners? Rev. 22:17.

Lord's Supper at Rosario Brethren Church, at Easter time.

Prayer Meeting Topic

Contributed by Rev. C. Y. Gilmer

(Helps for Daily Living)

HIS GIFT AND MINE

Out of each dollar that I make, I lay
Aside a tenth today.
It is not mine, for it belongs to One
Who gave His only Son
For me that far-off time that I might live
Worthily and gladly, so I give
His own back to Him—often I give more
“To the least of these” who daily pass my door.
And even so, I know mine is too small
Beside His gift to offer it at all.

Out of each passing hour I must share
The moments that are there
With God, for they belong to Him Whose might Gives me the day and night;
Whose mercy, and Whose strange miraculous power
Gives me this shining hour,
Pregnant with infinite possibilities,
To serve as He served . . . God, upon my knees.
I pray Thee help me that I may be true
In using Thy gifts as Thou would have me do.

—Grace Noll Crowell.

YOU CANNOT OUTGIVE GOD

Scripture: Luke 6:38; Prov. 11:25; Matt. 6:33; Mal. 3:10

Hymns on Christian Giving

Prayer

Seed Thought Provokers:

THE SCRIPTURES encourage us to give aright, and to expect a blessing for it (Matt. 5:23, 24; Luke 19:8). We must get right with men before we give to God. Otherwise we cannot have the power and blessing that God wants us to have. Our gifts cannot be acceptable unto God unless our persons are acceptable before Him (Psa. 24:3-5). In the same way God rejects gifts of personal service to Him because we have failed to make restitution and reconciliation (Prov. 15:8). We are taught to go the extra mile to be reconciled (Matt. 5:38-42). God's grace makes one want to do right and live up to the requirements of moral law (Rom. 8:4). Genuine repentance takes enmity from the heart. The Philippian jailor washed the stripes he had inflicted on Paul and Silas after he was converted (Acts 16:33-34).

If we are right with God our gifts are accepted of Him and we can trust Him to bless us when we give to His cause. If we can get our prayers answered we can also get the blessings awarded to liberal givers. It is an act of faith to invest in God's cause knowing that God will abundantly repay. God can certainly be trusted about financial matters and daily needs. Those who trust God with tithes and gifts will not only do better financially but also be happier and grow in faith and soul-winning power. We want God to be pleased with our gifts, and we want His blessing added to them for the furtherance of the Gospel. After all, as co-workers and heirs of God, we prosper as God's business prospers. The principle of Christian giving is I Cor. 16:2.

We cannot outgive God the Giver. When we contemplate the “unspeakable gift of His love for us, what can we give as an equal in return? We are His by His mercy, His love has ransomed us from sin, His grace has taught us to believe and thus receive the peace He has made for us through the atonement. His power cleanses us from all sin, and His presence keeps our conscience clean. Now what can we ever give to God to repay for all of this?

To withhold from God is to rob ourselves. For robbing God Israel went to the bone yard in a spiritual way and suffered a long drought. They were bankrupt materially when they might have enjoyed Prov. 3:10. Under the old dispensation the Jew before ever he thought to give free-will offerings, first paid one-tenth for the support of church services (Num. 18:21, 24); one-tenth for the maintenance of the temple feasts (Deut. 14:22, 23); and one-tenth every year for the poor fund (Deut. 14:28, 29). The parable of the pounds teaches that if we obey God in the matter of stewardship, we shall receive abundant reward. But failing in it we shall receive a just condemnation (Luke 19:12-26).

COMMENTS

On The Sunday School Lesson

by The Editor

Lesson for June 27, 1948

JEWISH HISTORY BETWEEN THE TESTAMENTS

Lesson: Malachi 3:1-5; 4:1-2, 5-6; Luke 1:76-79

GOD'S SILENCES speak as loudly as do His words. Let us not think that the four hundred years that lie between the Testaments were years when God deserted His people. We are told that “God was not left without witness.”

Search out the things that were going on in the world previous to the birth of Jesus. We note that the world was really being prepared for this birth. There was peace on the earth; there was an almost universal language, that caused the people to understand each other better; Palestine had become the “cross-road” of the world. The time was ripe for the new era that was to enter.

Space prevents further comment this week, but just remember that God ordained the events; prophecy foretold them, and men failed to observe them.

Do you want Christ to represent you above as you represent Him below?

CHRISTIAN ENDEAVOR TOPIC

W. St. Clair Benshoff, Topic Editor

"Topics copyrighted by the International Society of Christian Endeavor.
Used by permission."

Topic for June 27, 1948

WHAT IS YOUR READING DOING TO YOU?

Scripture: Proverbs 3:13-23

For The Leader

A BIG CHANGE has come over our country in the last generation. We have forgotten how to read. It may seem strange in this day of "learning" to make such a statement. But it is too true. Somehow in our schools today, our youth is not learning to read. This reflects itself in the reading habits of the nation. Comic books and cheap story magazines constitute the entire reading of too many young people. This is alarming when you consider that our way of life is insured only as we have a people that can read and understand what is going on in the nation. We young people have been "sold down the river" by educators with new fangled ideas on "learning words," and parents who have neglected to teach us to read. There is still time for us to right the condition by forming good habits of reading ourselves. Choose good books, study the words, look them up. Read the Bible a lot. Seek its message, and you will find your reading will do you a lot of good.

DISCUSSION

1. IT'S TRUE. Yes, it's painfully true that only one in three young people can successfully read the words of these topics. The message of these topics is lost to two-thirds of our young people, simply because they cannot read and understand the words used. And we are trying to use the simplest and easiest words in writing them. It is a little like the evangelist Philip in meeting the Ethiopian when he said, "Understandest what thou readeth?" A word mispronounced, "slid over," or mumbled, is a word that has no meaning to the reader, much less to the hearer. In placing the blame for such illiteracy we could go into the argument of "teaching words" versus the old fashioned A B C method of reading, but we'll let that up to your own groups. Enough to say that where our schools have been concentrating on arts, trades, home economics, manual trainings, etc, they should have been teaching the three R's, Reading, 'Riting, 'Rithmetic. And "Riting" includes spelling!

2. WE'RE INVOLVED. O. K., young people. The last topic had some pretty serious charges in it, if they are not true. What do you think? Let's make a test or two. Take an average newspaper article. Count the words of which you do not know the meaning. Are there quite a few? Then you don't have any idea what it's all about until you know the meaning of every last word. Read the article aloud, have some adult tell you of each word you mispronounce. How did you rate? Take a poem of Shakespeare, and do the same. Take any chapter of the Bible and treat it the same way. We hope you do all right, but we're afraid that two out of three of you will have trouble. What you don't understand or know how to pronounce is the same as a foreign language to you. Thus you don't get the meaning, and your reading is lost to you.

3. IT'S PARTLY OUR FAULT. Part of the blame goes to the modern school system in not insisting that you learn to read well. More of the blame is on young people for not applying themselves to learning to read. We must make an effort to learn to read. Often our lack of interest or concern has kept us from learning new words. A good reader always has a good Dictionary at his side. When he comes to a word that is new to him, he stops and looks it up. Next to the Bible, the Dictionary should be the best used book in America. Make it a rule of your life to never pass a new word until you have looked up its meaning and pronouncement.

4. WHAT YOU READ MAKES A DIFFERENCE. By the millions, comic books are printed. By the millions, our young people live on them. By the millions, our youth is living on a diet of literacy of the first grade level. There's nothing elevating in a comic book. You will never rise to the heights of great thinking, intelligence and expression by reading comic books or pulp magazines. You have a brain that is meant to be used and developed. But if you read nothing but trash, you are letting it rot. We urge you to read your Bibles. There is no finer reading. "Search the scriptures." Learn how to live from them. Strive to master your words and their meanings. You may know how to sew, cook, drive an automobile; dance or play cards, (shame on you!); farm, work in a factory, etc., but if you do not know how to read well, and understand what you read, you are a miserable creature. The great world of literature is forever closed to you.

5. WHAT CAN BE DONE ABOUT IT NOW? It is getting rather late in life for you to start. Your good reading habits should have begun back in the first grade with your A B C's. Now, though, you can first of all, choose good reading. Ignore the trash and filth. Pick good books, the Bible first of all. Read good stories, fiction and non-fiction. Use your local libraries. This summer, with the help of your Pastor, read a good book or so, make notes on it, and then arrange to tell the story of it at a meeting in the fall. Above all, don't get caught in the whirl of cheap reading today. Rise above it for your own good, and the good of the nation.

DISCUSSION QUESTIONS

1. Is it really necessary to know how to read the books, poems, and literature of the past centuries? Why, or why not?

2. Discuss the relative merits of the new system of learning to read and the old system in which the "letters" were the first things taught.

3. Suggest plans whereby our C. E. Society can help us in our reading.

A Weed at a Time

A Gardener's Parable

by Ira M. Dinkle

A gardener came back from his vacation one day and inspected his garden. He came to a place which had grown up in big weeds while he was away, and he said, "How can I pull all those weeds without destroying the vegetables?" Then he said, "Here is a big one beside the path, I will pull it anyway." And, behold, when it was pulled there was revealed the stocks of two other weeds which could be safely moved. When they were pulled they in turn revealed other stocks which did not endanger the vegetables. The work went on until the whole patch was clean of weeds. Then the gardener said, "How like life this is. There is so much good to be done, so much evil to be undone. When it is looked upon as a whole we say 'how can we ever get it done!' If we begin and do the first task that comes, it will reveal others to be done. Then in a short while we will find that we have accomplished a task which seemed impossible by merely doing the little things, one at a time."

—The Methodist Protestant-Recorder.

The Brethren Evangelist

Vol. LXX, No 29 July 17, 1948
Missionary Board Number

Brethren Historical Library
Manchester College
comp
North Manchester, Ind.

THE BRETHREN EVANGELIST

Published weekly, except the last week in August and
the last week in December.

THE BRETHREN PUBLISHING COMPANY

Ashland, Ohio

PRUDENTIAL COMMITTEE

J. E. Stookey, President N. G. Kimmel, Vice-President
J. G. Dodds, Secretary-Treasurer

EDITOR OF PUBLICATIONS—F. C. Vanator

BUSINESS MANAGER—G. S. Baer

EDITOR MISSIONARY NUMBER—E. M. Riddle

CONTRIBUTING EDITORS

Dr. Charles A. Bame Rev. Dyoll Belote

DEPARTMENTAL EDITORS

Dr. C. F. Yoder, Brethren Doctrine
Rev. N. V. Leatherman, Practical Church Problems
Rev. J. G. Dodds, National Goals
Dr. R. F. Porte, Brethren Church History

PLEASE REMEMBER: All material for publication in the Evangelist must be in the hands of the editor at least three weeks before the desired date of publication, to assure same to appear in desired issue. This refers to announcements particularly.

TERMS OF SUBSCRIPTION: $1.50 per year in advance.
CHANGE OF ADDRESS: In ordering change of address always
give both old and new addresses.

REMITTANCES: Send all money, business communications, and contributed articles to:

THE BRETHREN PUBLISHING COMPANY
ASHLAND, OHIO

Entered as second class matter at Ashland, Ohio. Accepted for mailing at special rate, section 1103, act of October 3, 1917. Authorized September 3, 1928.

a cooperative church and is served by Elder Emra Fike who is very energetic at his age and reveals a great, lovely spirit. These people are a small group, worshipping in a neat, modest building about one mile out of town. They are an exceptionally loyal church. The same audience could be expected night after night. They were very appreciative and just when we were becoming nicely acquainted the week came to an end. Their offering was the largest I have ever received for one week for the institutions which I represent. Many homes were visited every day. Two college friends of former years were visited. Applicants were ready for baptism. It was a wonderful week of worship, fellowship and entertainment.

Indiana Conference. After part of a day at home Dr. W. D. Furry and the writer started for Shipshewana Conference. It was my first time in an Indiana Conference for a number of years. Suffice it to say our two days there were greatly enjoyed. It seemed more like a Bible conference than the usual state conference. I approve the plan heartily.

Ohio Conference. The following Monday we went to Canton for the opening sessions of the Ohio Conference. Brother E. J. Beekley, pastor, and his people were in readiness for the assembly. Not often does a conference open with such enthusiasm and stress being laid upon the salvation of the lost. Why should it not be so, for the Christ himself came to seek and to save the lost. It should be our first goal. I was having such a good time that it was really hard to leave my own conference and start for Oak Hill, W. Va. A night train via C. & O. railroad carried me to the Southeastern Conference, where Brother Smith Rose and his people also were ready for everyone who came to share in another conference. This is another place of high altitude, giving as nearly perfect conference weather as any one could ever wish. This was my third consecutive conference in this district and, if I may say it, I believe it was the best one in the past three years. This church with the small group at Gatewood, which is also cared for by Brother Rose, stand far to themselves from any of the others of this district. Bible lectures by Dean Stuckey and the interests of the church were featured.

This conference and the little city were saddened by the passing of our dear friend and sister, Mrs. Flora Drach of Linwood, Maryland. It was my joy to eat with her and the other Linwood folks on Wednesday noon at the same table, but soon after her retiring that night she was seized with a heart attack and soon was translated. She loved her Lord and her church. Her testimony was rich and beautiful. She was doing what she could until the very last. Professor Stuckey and I returned together, motoring through the mountains, hills and dales of West Virginia and southeastern Ohio in all their beauty.

After a three day trip into Indiana mainly to contact students for the college, and a Sunday morning at North Georgetown, Ohio, I started for Milledgeville, Ill.

(Continued on Page 4)

The

Field Secretary

Travels

Let no one think that this column appears monthly for my personal parade or praise. It is written to give information to so many who have expressed appreciation and desire for its continuance.

Terra Alta, W. Va. On Memorial Day I motored to Terra Alta, W. Va. for a full week of special meetings. This was my first trip to this high land (the meaning of the name), almost 2900 feet above sea level. It was a beautiful time of year to be in the mountains and hills, the atmosphere at such altitude was embracing. This is

Spiritual Destination Today

"I know thy works and . . . poverty, but thou art rich." Rev. 2:9; "I know thy works that thou hast a name that thou livest, and art dead." Rev. 3:1.

by Clarence Fairbanks

(Rev. Fairbanks says that one short article is not enough for the treatment of this boundless subject. He offers to make a further study and give such additional articles as are necessary for the completion of this assignment.

E. M. R.)

PART I

I do not propose in this article to take a nostalgic look down the path of our fathers. I would rather evaluate the real situation in Christendom today with a desire to make some suggestions that will help us to improve our lot. When we talk about the spiritual poverty of our day, we must be careful not to become too pessimistic. We have a tendency to forget the failures of our fathers and to remember only the struggles in which they succeeded. We are much like the little girl who attended a Hebrew school for the children of movie stars, producers, and directors. One day the teacher discussed the religious significance of charity among the Jewish people. She then asked her pupils to write a composition on the subject. This little girl started her literary piece as follows: "Once there was a poor little girl. Her father was poor, her mother was poor, her governess was poor, her chauffeur was poor, her butler was poor. In fact everybody in the house was very, very poor."

Even though we are not as poor as some people would have us believe, there are great areas in our spiritual lives where we are desperately destitute. When a nation can spend more money for chewing gum than it does for religion, it is spiritually poor. It would seem that, to the American people, the chewing gum god is a greater god than is the God of Christ. We spend more money on the god of drink than we spend for education, local government—including the police force, street construction and repair, lights, parks—and religion all combined. So long as we put more trust in armies and navies than we do in God, we are spiritually destitute.

There is no question about the spiritual destitution of our day and yet through the darkness there are a few rays of light beginning to shine through. Perhaps, one of the most hopeful signs is the fact that we are beginning to recognize our poverty. Louis Bromfield has written, "In the modern industrial-mechanical world, a good many of us come to forget the things of the spirit—mysticism, religious instincts, the aspirations which have led man out of the steaming ooze, and have substituted for them a worship of industry and mechanics all the way from plumbing and carburetors to the atomic bomb . . .

"We are slowly and painfully beginning to learn the hard way that none of these things contributes anything to the richness of life or toward man's capacity to survive disaster and misfortune . . .

"More and more millions of people are coming to look for something better than our modern industrial-mechanical world has been able to offer them. There is such a thing—and is as tangible as a carburetor or a blast furnace—as one's relation to the universe, to nature and to God. Without it, man leads a miserable and barren existence or is destroyed altogether."

James Ramsey Ullman writes in his best seller "The White Tower," "We must rediscover a purpose, a direction, in our living. We must allow our—forgive the word—souls to catch up with the things our hand and brains have accomplished." We are spiritual paupers, but one of the requirements that is necessary to remove our pauperism is that we recognize that we are paupers.

We are poor, not when we lack money, but when we lack the ability to accomplish the work for which we have been sent into the world. In the Revelation, Christ says of the church at Smyrna, "I know . . . your poverty, but you are rich." They were rich in the spirit of love and fellowship. They were rich in faith so that they could remove the mountains of uncertainty. They were rich in a good conscience for it was bearing them a good report. Of another church Christ said, "Thou hast a name is a new, 12 inch, non-breakable record which has been prepared to promote the practice of tithing among Christian people. It is the interesting conversation of several church members and reveals the reasons for carrying out this kind of stewardship.

"It's Just A Beginning"

You may borrow this record without charge from the Missionary Board for a reasonable length of time for use in the program of the church. It is especially suitable for Women's Missionary Societies, Sisterhood groups, Christian Endeavor Societies, Laymen's groups, or Sunday School class gatherings.

Contact the Missionary Board of the Brethren Church, 524 College Ave., Ashland, Ohio, and state the date when you wish to use the record.

"It's Just A Beginning" has been prepared by the Lutheran Laymen's Movement for Stewardship, and was recorded at WOR, New York.

that thou livest, but art dead." They gave the appearance of prosperity, but they were worse than poor, they were dead.

We can be spiritually rich.

1. We need to feed upon the Word of God. Much of our spiritual leanness is due to the fact that we have not given God's Word a large enough place in our daily lives. A traveler recently noticed some very lean cattle grazing on what appeared to be rich lush grass. In questioning his friend in regard to the matter, he discovered that those cattle would probably remain lean because the grass was not providing the nutritive qualities necessary for fattening. There was no food value in the soil out of which the grass grew. How clearly that pictures many of us today. We have fed our souls on the vain philosophies and pleasures of the world when we really needed the Word of God.

2. We need to enrich our lives with the power of prayer. No one will ever be able to tell the effects of prayer on the life of Christ. He encouraged his disciples to pray by telling them that if they would ask anything in His name, He would give it unto them. The reason that many of us are spiritually poor is because we have not asked for what is needed and many times when we have prayed, we have prayed in unbelief.

3. We are spiritually poor because we do not exercise the spirit of love. Of all the gifts that God has given to man, the greatest is love. "Love never fails" writes the Apostle Paul. No man will ever be rich toward God until he demonstrates his love to his fellowmen, for if he cannot love his fellowmen whom he has seen, how can he love God whom he has not seen?

—Washington, D. C.

The Secretary Travels

(Continued from page 2)

Central Conference. The last three days of the month were spent here. Brother and Sister D. C. White are in charge of this good church. It is the home also of Dr. and Mrs. Bell. Certainly nothing was left undone by this congregation to make a successful and enjoyable conference. An unusual number of church leaders from Ohio and Indiana gave assistance to this conference. Every auxiliary of the church was presented to this assembly. A further study of the Decatur, Illinois situation as possible center for a new Brethren church will be made before General Conference, if at all possible.

After an overnight in Lanark with relatives the trip home was made via Burlington Zephyr and Trail Blaze in record time.

Keep looking up.

E. M. Riddle, Field Secretary.

The Consciousness Of God

In One's Life

by Smith F. Rose

From the teaching of the scriptures we know that the presence of God enters our lives at the time of our conversion through the indwelling of the Holy Spirit, the third member of the Holy Trinity. We also know that the words of Jesus before His ascension definitely assure us of His presence. Then we study the omnipresence of God, the Father, and are made aware that the entire God-head manifests itself in our lives. The crux of the entire situation seems to be that we have the "presence" but not the "consciousness" which we should have. We are literally insensitive to the indwelling Spirit. He is there but we will not recognize His presence. Paul warns us to "quench not the Holy Spirit," which warning we are too slow to heed.

There has been so much emphasis on emotion in religion, over and above faith, to the extent that more consideration is given to how our religion makes us feel than to what we actually believe. After all, the very foundation of our religion is faith without which it is impossible to please God. James in his epistle points out, as does the writer of the Hebrew Epistle, the superiority of faith. In all honesty we must constantly realize that we come up against situations and ideas revealed to us in the scriptures which we cannot adequately grasp, yet, though unable to understand them fully, we may still appropriate them for ourselves by faith.

The very keystone of the Christian religion, which is the salvation provided through the sacrifice of Jesus on the cross of Calvary for all who will accept Him as a personal Saviour, must certainly be accepted on faith, for we cannot understand fully why God would make this sacrifice for a sinning creation. The virgin-birth of Christ, His resurrection, the miracles of scripture and many other recorded biblical facts must be accepted by faith. How we feel about any of these things doesn't change their truth or validity in any sense, because they stand in the eternal testimony of God—His word.

So many have decided in their own minds that God is only with them when they are on the mountain-top of Christian experience. And these testify at such times to this realization. When Jesus said, "Lo, I am with you alway," it is evident He did not mean just when things were going well, but at all times, which is the only reasonable interpretation we may put on alway. So we are confronted by the error on the part of many that the spirit comes and goes as we feel good or bad. Feelings are certainly no indication of the inward spirit of the true believer. Paul exhorts us to "be careful for nothing; but in everything by prayer and supplication with thanksgiving let your requests be made known unto God and the peace, which passeth all understanding, shall keep your hearts and minds through Christ Jesus." Phil. 4:6, 7. And then in verses 8 and 9 he indicates how we may have the presence of the God of peace in our hearts and lives. Paul would have us be thankful at all times as he, himself, was able to do this. Actually the times we need most to realize the presence of God are not times of our greatest temptation and sorrow and distress. It is then that the presence of God can be of real meaning to us. It can show to us that we are not left alone, but that God does know and understand.

To be aware daily through faith of the inward presence of God, certainly should make us more careful how we live. To most people the idea of God being near us only at times is considered a convenience, for it gives them the feeling that when they are not conscious of His presence He is not there. Nothing is further from the truth. He is with the believer always. That is His promise!

Some think that the presence of God will give them a continual condition of spiritual exhilaration which will lift them "out of this world" and they are disillusioned when they find that they are still subject to many of the moods and reactions that are distinctly human. The Spirit of God becomes an integral part of us and controls and permeates all of our being which we turn over to Him. Thus, when we hear the voice of conscience, it is the Spirit directing us.

The presence of God is with us and what we need to do is to recognize this presence and live accordingly. Then we will not run "hither and yon" for a new religious experience, for we will be aware of the enlightening and purging work of the Spirit in our own lives. In matters of religion no real change comes from the outside—it must have its origin in the human heart through the activation of the Spirit and thus can change the entire man. All too many people excuse themselves for their careless and ungodly living by saying that the conditions of their lives are such that they cannot help themselves. Give us better conditions, they say, and we will surprise you with what we can do, but here where we are known we cannot do anything. As someone has aptly said in this regard, "No matter where you go or what conditions of life you seek, remember that you cannot get away from yourself." Therein lies the current difficulty. We are waiting for ideal conditions, so that we may visualize the presence of God. We say that things

(Continued on Page 9)

The Message of the Book

Philippians

by W. S. Crick

Philippians—a love letter written by a prisoner, possibly in death row, to Christian friends in a city, seven hundred miles away, whom he had met first more than ten years before, when they were pagans!

The Writer

The writer was the Apostle Paul. The salutation includes his companion, Timothy, won to the Lord on the previous missionary journey. St. Paul was in prison in Rome at least for two years. His final trial before Caesar Nero was expected momentarily, and the verdict most likely would be death.

The Philippians

Paul's loyal friends and supporters in Philippi had learned of his imprisonment and consequent privations. They had gotten together a gift, and dispatched it to the prisoner in Rome by one of their faithful brothers, Epaphroditus. While in Rome the zeal of the good will messenger had brought on a near-fatal illness. The Philippi brethren had learned of this, and had made anxious inquiry as to his condition. In the meantime Epaphroditus had recovered and prepared to return to Philippi. The Apostle, moved by the Holy Spirit, took occasion to write his beloved supporters a letter, which he sent to them by the hands of the returning brother.

The Church's Beginning

That the Gospel should be preached in Europe, before Asia, beginning at Philippi, was definitely the will of God. Paul and Silas, reaching Troas (Troy) on Paul's second missionary journey, A. D. 54, had planned to turn eastward, and evangelize Asia Minor. But, "A vision appeared to Paul in the night; there stood a man of Macedonia, and prayed him saying, 'Come over into Macedonia and help us!'" (Acts 16:9)

Sailing westward, they landed at Philippi. Although it was a flourishing Roman colony, the missionaries could not find a single Jewish synagogue. They found a place of prayer outside the city, at the river's side. Their witnessing was honored by the Lord opening the heart and home of a business woman, Lydia, of Thyatira, who was one of the worshippers.

With comfortable lodging thus provided, Paul and Silas began an even more aggressive program of evangelization. Exorcising a demon from an unfortunate maid, who was being exploited by charlatans for her soothsaying (ventriloquism?) the missionaries found themselves under arrest. Next, instead of the hospitable home of Lydia, they found themselves in stocks in the prison's dungeon.

But their songs were heard by the prisoners, and their prayers were heard by God on high. A physical miracle loosed the shackles of the prisoners and opened the doors of the prison. A miracle of grace opened the jailor's heart, and he and his household believed the Gospel. But the missionaries had to leave the city at once.

Intervening Years.

More than ten years had elapsed since the initial visit to Philippi and the Apostle's imprisonment in Rome, during which he had visited Philippi twice, possibly three times. On one visit, it appears, the Apostle had suffered a very severe illness and had been nursed back to health by loving care and the skilled ministry of his personal friend, Dr. Luke.

On at least two occasions the Philippian believers had sent financial aid to Paul and his co-laborers. This third beneficence, received while in prison from them, elicited the many expressions of goodwill and gratitude in his epistle. He calls the gifts "a fragrant odour." (4:18).

The Letter.

Study discloses that the letter to the Philippians does not yield to logical analysis. Rather, it is "rambling" in its topics like any personal letter. It shows feeling and memory, rather than a forensic presentation.

The Apostle's letter furnishes little evidence of a "left wing" doctrinal faction among the Philippi brethren. Nor is there suggestion of bitter partisan controversy, nor of scandal as evident in the Corinthian Epistles. Even though he is in prison he is oblivious of his own peril as he greets "the saints in Christ Jesus" with a challenge to rejoice. "Rejoice in the Lord always; and, again I say, rejoice!" (4:4). The word "joy" and cognates are used twenty times in the epistle.

While in no sense a theological treatise, Philippians contains one of the most scholarly definitions of the Incarnation found in any epistle, Chapter 2, verses 5 to 11, the Apostle's mature and reasoned conclusions. While not a Christological polemic, the letter contains the name of Christ twenty times, and pronouns relating to Him are used even more numerously.

Instead of depressing his spirits, the pacing of the guard outside his cell reminded him of his soul's security: "So will the peace of God . . . be a garrison to guard your hearts and minds in Christ Jesus" (4:7, Weymouth). "For, to me, to live is Christ, and to die is gain. My desire is to depart and be with Christ, for that is far better." (1:21, 23)

Missionary Emphases

The Philippian Church seems to have maintained an active extension program: "I thank my God for your co-operation in spreading the Gospel from the time it first came to you, until now! (1:5, Weymouth) He was eager that their lives should be "worthy of the Gospel that I may know you are fighting shoulder to shoulder for the faith of the Gospel." (1:27, Weymouth)

The Apostle, ever optimistic, could discern that even his imprisonment was being used by the Holy Spirit to

(Continued on Page 9)

NEWS

From the Christian World

The people of Canada sent through the mails 24,000,000 pounds in gifts to the people of Europe. These gifts have been sent individually and are valued at about a million dollars a month. The Canadians have done better than the people of the United States.

Five thousand young people from many nations will be present at the Christian Youth Conference of North America at Grand Rapids, Mich., Aug. 31 to Sept. 5. Many of them will come dressed in their native costume. International religious leaders will be present at this meeting.

There are enough facts which can be verified and substantiated to show beyond all doubt the wrongness of the whole business of beverage alcohol. Here are a few to use: Fifty million Americans drink alcohol (this is half of all Americans above 15 years of age). In 1945 these consumed 110,000,000 gallons of wine for which they paid $390,000,000. Also 2,527,709,588 gallons of beer at $3,-15,029,908. Also 190,000,000 gallons of distilled spirits at $4,385,000,000. Liquor industries spend annually more than $10,000,000 advertising their products.—Christian Endeavor Quarterly.

Deficit: For once we're glad to record that Uncle Sam is going broke—in one department of his affairs. The Virgin Islands Company which runs the Bluebeard Castle Hotel in those islands, grows sugar cane and makes and sells rum, just isn't making money. An appeal is before the proper authorities in Washington for a loan of $7,-700,000 to balance the books. Government House Rum, which is Uncle Sam's official contribution to the liquor business, isn't paying off; drinking Americans evidently aren't loyal enough to buy Uncle's product.

One Interior Department executive says Uncle Sam should go on making rum, inasmuch as he collects some $25,000,000 in taxes from the trade. To which Representative Coudert cried out that Uncle Sam would collect it anyway from a private concern, and that there was no excuse for Sam's remaining a bartender.

If we can't find a better way of making the Virgin Islands solvent, we'd better turn them over to some nation that can. We congratulate those Americans who refuse to buy the product and perpetuate the shame; we request Uncle Sam to limit himself to respectable business.—Christian Herald.

Dr. Howard Ferrin, President of Providence Bible Institute, said: "The crisis through which Western Civilization is passing is no ordinary crisis. Keen students know that the whole body of the Western world is sick and that we may witness a total collapse of civilization unless there is a tremendous spiritual awakening. Only a tremendous response on the part of the Church will avail.

A small French girl, who had tasted the depths of wartime starvation and deprivation, recently sent a bill of 300 francs to the United Nations Appeal for Children. Pinned to this bill was the following note in her childish handwriting, "Please God, please God, don't let others ever be as hungry as I was."

The Methodist Church has adopted a four-year program of evangelism to promote world Christianity and to acquaint U. S. Methodists with their own theology and the relation of their faith to social issues. The yearly emphases are: Our Faith, Our Church, Our Ministry and Our Mission. This program also calls for sending at least 400 young men and women as missionaries each year. These young people will be thoroughly trained in a knowledge of Communism and Christianity's answer to it.

The food situation in India has improved this year, according to India's minister of food. Three things have helped toward making more food available: substantial quantities of wheat at a low rate under the international wheat agreement, a steady flow of rice from Burma, and speeded up deliveries from those areas in India with surplus food to those in need. (WP)

Emperor Hirohito and Empress Nagako Kuni said recently that they welcomed the increasing number of Christian missionaries to Japan. They praised the contribution of the missionaries toward the moral uplift, culture and peace of the world. The emperor and empress likewise expressed appreciation for the wide distribution of Bibles in Japan. They said the Bibles helped to curb the demoralization of that country. The royal couple were eager that Japanese students be allowed to come to America in order that they might learn something of the American way of life.

Eighteen Evangelical German pastors have entered voluntary captivity to serve the men in eighteen prisoner-of-war camps in France. This voluntary service will permit the pastors in those camps to return home.

Verse

HIDDEN TREASURE

"'Twas long ago I read a story sweet—
Of how the German mothers, o'er the sea,
Wind in, throughout the yarn their girlyies knit,
Some trinkets small, and tiny shining coins,
That when the little fingers weary grow,
And fain would lay aside the tiresome task,
From out the ball will drop the hidden gift,
To please and urge them on in search for more.
And so, I think, the Father kind above
Winds in and out the skein of life we weave,
Through all the years, bright tokens of his love,
That when we weary grow and long for rest
They help to cheer and urge us on for more;
And far adown within the ball we find,
When all the threads of life at last are spun,
The grandest gift of all—eternal life."

—Anonymous.

"Lift up your eyes to the hills"

"THE KNEELING CAMEL"

The camel, at the close of day
Kneels down upon the sandy plain
To have his burden lifted off
And rest to gain.

My soul, thou too shouldst to thy knees
When the daylight draweth to a close,
And let thy Master lift thy load
And grant repose:

Else how canst thou tomorrow meet,
With all tomorrow's work to do,
If thou thy burden all the night
Dost carry through?

The camel kneels at break of day
To have his guide replace his load,
Then rises up again to take
The desert road.

So thou shouldst kneel at morning's dawn
That God may give thee daily care,
Assured that He no load too great
Will make thee bear.

—Anna Temple.

Emergency Appeal

The Home Missionary Account has been depleted. The program for the past two years—helping to build new churches (named in Brother Studebaker's article of last month)—with the monthly salaries, office expenses and apportionments, has exhausted this account.

Our Home Missionary expenses for each month include half of the office expense, rent, salaries, traveling, and printing of the Missionary Number of the Brethren Evangelist. For the month of May the total of these items which was paid from the Home Mission account was $284.35. In addition to this, salaries for Home Mission pastors amount to $727.50 for each month.

So our readers can readily see that our Home Missionary program must spend approximately $1,000.00 every month for current expenses alone. All aid to new churches and projects is over and above this amount.

We cannot stop where we are. We must continue to help support our smaller churches, and we want to help to establish new ones. We solicit your help in this emergency. Any gift you may be able to make at this time will boost our budget, and will let us know that the Brethren Church at large is behind the Home Missionary program.

We gratefully acknowledge the response to our appeal in the June Missionary Number. More is needed. Will you help?

Address The Missionary Board of the Brethren Church, 524 College Ave., Ashland, Ohio.

The Consciousness of God in One's Life

(Continued from page 5)

aren't right in our homes, our churches or places of labor. When these are righted, we say, then we will manifest the presence of God in our lives. Even while all this indecision is being shown, the spirit of God is striving to take over the heart and life and is being resisted at every turn. The trouble is not with the external conditions of our lives, but rather with the internal rebellion of our own hearts. Even given ideal conditions, we would be no different than we are unless and until we are willing to take note of the presence of God in our life and seek by His direction and His help to live a godly life, which is in keeping with our place as children of God.

Friends, a great opportunity of blessing awaits us and a richer life of service is before us, if we will but yield our all to the will of God and live daily with the realization that He dwells within us who believe. If we allow Him, He will make our lives what He wants them to be.

—Oak Hill, W. Va.

The Message of the Book

(Continued from Page 6)

strengthen the propagation of the Gospel. "I want you to know, brethren, that what has happened to me has really served for the advance of the Gospel, so that it has become known throughout the praetorian guard and to all, that my imprisonment is for Christ; and most of the brethren have been made more confident in the Lord because of my imprisonment, and are much more bold to speak the word of God without fear." (1:12-14)

For practical and personal reassurance let us treasure the memory verses of this Epistle of Christian Maturity: "I can do all things through Christ which strengtheneth me! My God shall supply all your need according to His riches in grace by Christ Jesus." (4:13, 19)

—Gratis, Ohio.

Foreign Missions

Argentine Items

Group of young people at the Evangelical Camp.

We have just entered our winter season in Argentina. That is the season of most sunshine, and the weather is cool enough to work with pleasure. Many flowers and vegetables flourish all winter.

The schools have their winter vacation the fore part of July, and we improve the time by having our daily vacation Bible school in July in order to leave January free for our summer camp work. In both the Bible schools and summer camp we stress the work of the Lord as life work and try to develop workers for our vast field.

While we have only a few paid workers giving full time to the work, we have many who are self supporting and give as much time as they can, and much credit for the progress of the work is due to them. We believe it to be the apostolic way.

Our church paper, just out, reports five more converts baptized in the Rosario congregation and one in Villa Constitucion. Other candidates are preparing. Our missions and branch missions seem to be without exception, working in harmony and prospering.

One of our problems is our literature. We need both a church paper and doctrinal booklets and tracts, but the cost of printing has become so great that it cannot be met without subventions. This is only a sample of the many problems that have arisen with rising prices. The president decreed a raise in wages and business replied with a two-step rise in prices. Now the president has prohibited any further raising of prices, but they are already out of reach for those who have no raise in wages, among whom are, as a rule, the pastors and missionaries. A suit of clothes now costs about 400 pesos or $100 U. S., but the ordinary poor workman only gets from 150 to 200 dollars a month, while sewing women work for less than half that amount. Fortunately vegetables and bread and milk have only risen about 100%. Building costs and rents have more than doubled.

Mr. and Mrs. Adolfo Zeche and family in front of the church in Rosario.

Dr. C. F. Yoder beside the new building at the summer camp in Cordoba Hills which he built recently.

These are problems that our mission board will consider at the coming conference, but they are dependent upon the giving of the church in general, and that passes the responsibility on to each individual member.

Our young people in Cordoba undertook the building of an extra room for our primary Sunday School children, and by means of a sale of donated articles they purchased the materials needed, and then did the work themselves, and the children have a nice comfortable room.

If Sister Kugler succeeds in getting her passport in time she will be able to tell you more at the General Conference.

—C. F. Yoder.

ATTENTION . . .

A letter from Brother Frank W. Garber, pastor of our church in Cheyenne, Wyo., writes that some folks have sent checks for the new church in the name of the First Brethren Church. Note that the church is incorporated under the name Cheyenne Brethren Church, and checks should be drawn that way. Gifts for any of our new churches can be sent through the Mission Office. They will be sent directly to the places designated.

E. M. R.

Bible Study Essential In Missionary Preparation

By Vernon D. Grisso

There is only one GREATEST missionary text and it seems to challenge our entrance to missionary zeal regardless from which road we approach. Whether we come from the north, south, east or west, here on a signboard, before we can enter, is the bold text, "Go ye therefore, and teach all nations . . . teaching them to observe..."

So you want to be a missionary?

Who of the Lord's redeemed wouldn't?

The richest wages paid in the world are paid for those who will win souls. Money is not always the only medium of wages, in fact, for a practical, sensible mind, money very seldom satisfies anyone for payment in full of his wages. He wants the satisfaction of a job well done—praise for workmanship, thanks for wise counsel, and all the tender compliments of life. Why? Because the silver and gold of this world are nought against the souls and friendships of men and women for eternity.

You can be a missionary and receive these great wages, or you can just be a church member and live on starvation wages.

The wages of Christians are "souls." What deacon has not prayed for a new pastor on the field, "Lord, give him souls for his hire?"

Of Christ it was said, "He shall see of the travail of his soul and be satisfied." In the travail of HIS soul is the streaming millions of lost souls finding God.

What is the average wage in souls? America averages one soul per year for every forty church members. One fortieth of a soul per year for each Christian's wages. One soul every forty years for your hire. This is not counting the labors of evangelists, pastors, and missionary contributions.

No wonder you want to be a missionary. Their wages are tremendous in comparison to this.

So you want to be a missionary! You can be! You can be a missionary to Africa, South America, India, China, Russia; you can be a missionary to churches in the United States, Indiana, Ohio, Pennsylvania; you can be a missionary to the Sunday School class you teach. You can be a missionary to your neighbors, or to your family.

What is necessary to become one? Plenty! Yet it is simple—the formula is exact and to the point.

Go ye and teach!

Teach them to observe!

Not teaching them to live loosely a so-called example, not teaching them to belong to a church solely and pay and hope for souls, but "teaching them to observe ALL things . . ."

Teach!

Bible study is the essential for winning souls, "Teaching them to observe ALL THINGS whatsoever I have commanded you." Teaching them ALL! Not just how to plow corn or fry an egg. Not just how to make a dress or wash their wounds. "Teaching them to observe ALL things . . . I have commanded."

Bible study will prepare missionaries. Other, many other, things are essential for missionaries on the field to know. Many other things are essential for missionaries in the Sunday School room around the corner to know. But unless you have studied your Bible sufficiently to teach them to observe all things He has commanded, you cannot expect souls for your hire.

You want to be a missionary.

Study many things, be well rounded, evenly tempered, faithful in soul, but above all "Study to show THYSELF approved unto God, a workman that needeth not to be ashamed, rightly dividing the word of truth." Bible study is essential to "Go and Teach . . . teaching them to observe all things . . ." whatsoever he has commanded.

Read your Bible.

Study your Bible.

Know your Bible.

Know the Christ that sends you, and you will be a missionary, you will have souls for your hire.

—Smithville, Ohio.

FISHERS OF MEN

Studies in Personal Work by C. F. Yoder

LESSON XVII—TWO SOWERS WENT FORTH TO SOW

Text—"Let us not grow weary in well doing, for in due season we shall reap if we faint not." Gal. 6:9.

A good sower is known by his sowing. The good seed is the good Word of God.

1. Who is represented by the good sower? Matt. 13:37; 28:19.
2. Does "good seed" mean good conduct or good doctrine or both? I Pet. 2:22.
3. Which is of first importance—conduct or doctrine? Acts 1:1.
4. What is the secret of good conduct? John 8:29.
5. Is the good seed for all people? Rev. 22:17.
6. Is the work of sowing very urgent? Rom. 10:14.
7. What motive should thrust us into this work? Matt. 9:36-38.

LESSON XVIII—THE ENEMY THAT SOWED TARES

Text—"He that soweth to the flesh shall of the flesh reap corruption." Gal. 5:8.

The truth is plain, but the sin-filled heart is blind. We must educate.

1. Who is the sower of tares? Matt. 13:39.
2. Why is he called evil? John 8:44.
3. Who is represented by the tares? Matt. 13:38-41.
4. How do these people come to be bad? II Thes. 2:10-12; Rom. 1:28.

5. Why do they sow by night? Matt. 13:25.
6. What can we do for sowers of tares? II Tim. 2:24-26.
7. What is the judgment for evil sowers? Matt. 13:41-42; Rev. 20:13, 14.

LESSON XIX—THE GOOD SEED

Text—"Behold I send you forth as lambs among wolves." Matt. 10:3.

"Lambs among wolves," but the Shepherd goes with the lambs. Fear not.

1. Who are represented by the good seed? Matt. 13:38.
2. Are missionaries or soul-winners both good seed and good sowers? I Cor. 3:6.
3. Where and how should they be sown? Matt. 28:19; Acts 13:1-3.
4. Who goes with them? Matt. 28:20; Acts 5:32.
5. How may they fail in their work? I Cor. 13:1-3.
6. What is their principal pay? John 4:36.
7. How long does this income continue? I John 2:16, 17.

LESSON XX—THE EVIL SEED

Text—"The wages of sin is death." Rom. 6:23.

1. Who are the bad seed? Matt. 13:38.
2. What course do they follow? Jas. 1:13-15.
3. What is their principal mark? I John 2:22, 23.
4. How should we treat false teachers? II John 9-11.
5. How may we correct ourselves? II Tim. 3:16.
6. How should we treat deceivers? Titus 3:10.
7. How should we treat weak brethren? Rom. 14:1-4.

Outfitting the Bylers

Churches and societies have made inquiry and expressed the desire to help outfit the Bylers with necessities for their work and convenience in Argentina. Since we are advised that they take with them equipment that is used, yet good (not strictly new, due to difficulty with custom officials), we suggest that churches, individuals, and societies send money for equipment to the Missionary Board stating for what you wish it used.

They will need typewriter, washing machine, electric iron, films for new pictures and a number of household articles, which they can purchase in Chicago, but may be almost impossible to purchase in South America.

Your help should come soon, as they will sail October 8.

Missionary Board of the Brethren Church.

*The General Conference of Brethren Churches will be held at Ashland, Ohio
August 23 to 29 1948*

CHRISTIAN ENDEAVOR TOPIC

W. St. Clair Benshoff, Topic Editor

"Topics copyrighted by the International Society of Christian Endeavor.
Used by permission."

Topic for August 1, 1948

GOD SPEAKS THROUGH PRAYER

Scripture: Matt. 6:6; Acts 10:9-16

For The Leader

TONIGHT we are beginning a series of five topics on "God Speaks." This one is on Prayer. Others will follow through this month of August, and will merit our fullest attention and interest. First of all, we must give a definition of prayer. This is given without thought of time, circumstances, or methods of prayer. Prayer is communion of the human soul with God, its Creator. In an instant, we can enter the holy of holies of God's presence and call forth the full power of heaven in behalf of our request. There is no need so great, nor so small but what can receive the undivided attention of God. Perhaps His Divine judgment wills that the prayer not be answered as we have prayed, but nevertheless, He hears and answers prayer. So, tonight, we want to learn how God speaks through prayer. We want to discover how prayer can be beneficial to us each passing day.

DISCUSSION

1. THAT STILL, SMALL VOICE. Often the voice of God is blanked out by the noise we make. In the rush of "getting everything done" in daily living, we miss that period of communion in which God speaks to us. How dangerous is this? To the Christian it is fatal. Cut the life-line of prayer, and you have cut yourself off from God. You will not know if you are in His will or out of it; you will not know if you are pleasing Him, (without doubt, you are not). Again, you will have lost the best Friend you have ever had for consultation and comfort. Yes, it is fatal for the Christian to blank out the voice of God as it seeks to speak to us of love, comfort, direction and power.

2. HOW DOES GOD SPEAK TO US THROUGH PRAYER? It seems natural to think that in prayer, we should do all the action. Not so. As we speak to Him, let us remain in the attitude of prayer, that He might speak to us. Well, you say, He can hardly speak in direct words. No, perhaps, but He can lead us to see His will through meditation. That's where the still small voice comes in. A gentle urging in one direction, an inhibition in another, and we are led by Him through prayer. Peter was led to preach to the Gentiles by a vision upon the roof top. God spoke to Him in the vision. We may not have visions, but God can speak through open doors and closed ones.

3. HOW BENEFICIAL IS HIS SPEAKING TO US? We are traveling a path we have never trod before. Each new day, though its pattern is that of yesterday, is a brand new journey. We have never trod this path before this day. So, not having traveled on this road, surely we need One who knows the way. We would avoid 90% of our daily troubles if we were to seek His help in prayer. We go astray, and we get into trouble largely because we are off the path of God's will. He desires that we walk in His way, for that is the way of life's richest blessings. When we rush ahead, we find ourselves in trouble. As the Israelites were to follow the cloud and the fire, so we are to follow His leading.

4. IT'S HELP IN TIME OF NEED. We must not be like the fellow who got into a jam, and in desperation prayed, "Oh, God, I haven't bothered you for 20 years, and if you get me out of this, I'll not bother you for 20 more." Yet that pictures the average Christian. Their acquaintance of God through prayer is so foreign, that they hardly know how to pray when trouble comes. God will hear and answer prayers of those in trouble. Yet how much better to be on praying ground all of the time. There is nothing to indicate that we must constantly be "pious" as if in prayer. Constant prayer, and "praying without ceasing" denote a praying fellowship with God. That is, to have prayed enough to Him that calling on Him in time of trouble is as natural as speaking to another member of our family. And the more we pray the better we will understand its power when we need it in a hurry.

5. PRAYER IS REAL. Some people have tried to make prayer a kind of a mystic thing. They have put a lot of color, sensationalism, set forms, etc., to praying which has destroyed its value. Prayer is not mystic, prayer is not an intangible thing. Prayer is a real talk with God. We would not say that in talking with our loved ones in the next room as being a mystic process. We don't see them, yet we know they are there and so we speak to them, they hear, and answer. It is precisely the same way in prayer. We speak to God, though we cannot see Him, yet we know He is right there with us. Then He speaks back to us in answer to our prayers.

6. WORKS AND PRAYER. We hear people say at times that they have prayed for such and such to be done, but that it never happens. Well, as well try to pray that your garden will grow good vegetables without plowing, planting and cultivating, as to pray without working to bring about your desires. We definitely believe in prayer. But we believe that when God speaks to us through prayer He reminds us that "The Lord helps those that help themselves." Make prayer with God a vital living experience in your daily life.

QUESTIONS DISCUSSION

1. What do we mean by "secret prayer?"
2. Will prayer in books, or "read" prayers answer the spiritual needs of our soul? Discuss merits or drawbacks of such prayers.
3. Study some of the prayers of Christ, noting His sincerity, His necessity, and His reliance on prayer. Mark 1:35; Mark 6:46, 47; Luke 5:15, 16; Luke 6:12; Luke 9:18; Luke 22:41, 42; Matt. 11:25-27; Luke 3:21-22; John 11:41, 42; John 17:1ff.
4. Is it sufficient to pray once about a thing, and then consider you have told God about it, thus expecting an answer?
5. What is "prevailing" prayer?

Prayer Meeting Topic

Contributed by Rev. C. Y. Gilmer

(Helps for Daily Living)

STEWARDSHIP

Steward I—and not possessor—of wealth intrusted me. What, were God Himself the holder, would His disposition be?

This I ask myself each morning, every noon, and every night

As I view His gentle goodness with an ever new delight.

Steward only—never owner—of the time that He has lent. How, were He my life's custodian, would my years on earth be spent?

Thus I ask myself each hour, as I plod my pilgrim way Steeped in gratefulest amazement at His mercy day by day.

Steward only—not possessor—of the part of Him that's I. Clearer grows this truth and dearer, as the years go slipping by.

May I softly go, and humbly, head and heart in reverence bent.

That I may not fear to show Him how my stewardship was spent.—Strickland Gillilan.

HOW AND WHY TO GIVE LIBERALLY

Scripture Reading: 2 Cor. 8:1-5, 7, 9, 12; 9:6-8, 10, 11, 15

Hymns of Stewardship

Leader's Petition

Seed Thought Provokers:

WE MUST first give ourselves to the Lord (2 Cor. 8:5) and then to His Cause. A man gives according to his interest and devotion. He should give himself and his all without reservation.

We should give, thinking of the blessings to follow: the blessing to the Cause of Christ (2 Cor. 9:13); the blessing to those who received (2 Cor. 9:12); the blessing to the givers (2 Cor. 9:6, 9, 11).

We should give, thinking of the liberality of others: The Macedonian Churches (2 Cor. 8:1-5); the missionaries and mission givers; our Brethren Youth volunteers and what they are giving; liberal giving of Brethren individuals and churches, past and present.

We should give, thinking of how Jesus gave (2 Cor. 8:9). Some give their 25 cent pieces for the cause for which Jesus gave His life!

We should give, thinking of how God continuously gives to us, and of how He has prospered us (1 Cor. 16:2). Remember "it is He that giveth thee power to get wealth."

We should give, thinking of the blessing it will bring to others: To the workers who receive our offering; and to those to whom our workers minister.

We should give, thinking of the blessings that we ourselves will receive through giving (2 Cor. 9:6, 8, 10, 11, 14; Prov. 11:25; 3:10; Mal. 3:10). God knew that we need to give for the sake of our own good. "It is more blessed to give than to receive."

We should give, thinking of the glory it will bring to God (2 Cor. 9:11, 12, 13).

We should give with an overflowing heart: not grudgingly, but cheerfully (2 Cor. 9:7); not sparingly, but liberally, bountifully (2 Cor. 9:11; 8:23); not of necessity, but spontaneously (2 Cor. 8:3—"of their own accord"); "each man as he purposeth in his own heart" (2 Cor. 8:7).

We should give, thanking God for His unspeakable gift (2 Cor. 9:15).

We should give, remembering that "it is required of stewards that a man be found faithful" (1 Cor. 4:2). What lesson may we learn from the faithful and wise steward (Luke 12:42-48)? the unjust steward (Luke 16:1-13)? the ten talents (Matt. 15:14-30)?

What should be our requests for prayer?

COMMENTS

On The Sunday School Lesson

by The Editor

Lesson for July 25, 1948

SACRIFICIAL FRIENDSHIP

Lesson: I Samuel 18:1-4; 19:1-6

THE LESSON TODAY takes us straight to the heart of the meaning of genuine friendship and if stated in one brief big word it would be "self-sacrifice."

That which is involved in the friendship of Jonathan and David reminds us of the story of John the Baptist and Jesus. Jonathan might have said as did John, "He must increase, but I must decrease," which he did in deed, if not in word.

Now Jonathan was the heir to his father Saul's throne. There was nothing that seemingly should have stood in his way to this succession. Why, then, did he step aside in David's favor?

There seems to be only one answer to this question—and that answer is "God!" Did Jonathan know that God had chosen David to ascend to the throne? Surely he must have. Why, then, did he not permit Saul's plan to kill David take its natural course? Again the answer must be "God." So the key to the whole matter is simply "God working in Jonathan a sacrificial friendship."

The price of wheat and corn go up and down, but the price of wild oats will always remain the same.—Copies.

The Stewardship of Suffering

John Wesley had just come into a room in which a saintly man had gone out of life into eternity. Profoundly impressed by the experience Mr. Wesley said: "Thank God, our people die well."

It has happened in thousands of instances that Christian people have borne their most effective testimony to the reality of their faith by holding up through suffering. Without saying a word about what they "believed" they have given evidence that their belief has produced within them a sturdiness and stalwartness of rare quality.

"The thing that finally convinced me that my wife had something I didn't have, was the way she went through her last illness. I saw her suffer as I never supposed any human being could ever suffer, and yet in spite of it she maintained an amazing serenity and calm. It must have been something from outside of this world that enabled her to do it, and I determined to find that something for myself." This was the testimony of a man who had come into a vital faith after the death of his life's companion. It was her stewardship of suffering, and not her arguments, that convinced him.

A clergyman who had been injured in an automobile accident was carried to a small town hospital and admitted for care. It was a tedious experience and week after week dragged by. Then one day at least several weeks in advance of the time he had been promised release, the doctor came in with the word: "You have been such a good patient, and you have assisted your own recovery so much by your patience and calm, that we are going to let you leave the hospital tomorrow. Then, after a moment or two, the doctor added: "I have been practising medicine a good many years, and I have made the discovery that the people who bring their religion into the hospital with them usually get to go home a little earlier than the other folk."

It is inevitable that some pain will come to all of us. No man can hope to avoid all suffering. Even if we are good we can still be sure that we will have some trouble. But the reality of our Christian life is made evident by the way we accept our opposition, by the serenity with which we endure our pain, with the patience with which we meet our critics, and with the determination with which we keep going when the climb is steep and tortuous.

At the end some of us make the discovery that suffering properly faced and mastered makes a contribution to our lives that comfort cannot.—Roy L. Smith.

MANCHESTER COLLEGE LIBRARY
NORTH MANCHESTER, INDIANA

Led To Calvary

*WHEN CHRIST was led to Calvary
(To die for such as you and me)
He climbed the hill with painful steps
So much alone. And yet He knew
That there was one who closely drew
As He went down into the depths.*

*IF I AM LED to Calvary
(To suffer pain and death as He)
I'll try to climb, e'en though alone,
On steps of faith. For Christ is there
Willing my cross to lift and share
As I draw near the Heavenly Throne.*

JEAN MANDER HUNT.

THE BRETHREN EVANGELIST

Published weekly, except the last week in August and
the last week in December.

THE BRETHREN PUBLISHING COMPANY

Ashland, Ohio

PRUDENTIAL COMMITTEE

J. E. Stookey, President N. G. Kimmel, Vice-President
J. G. Dodds, Secretary-Treasurer

EDITOR OF PUBLICATIONS—F. C. Vanator

BUSINESS MANAGER—G. S. Baer

EDITOR MISSIONARY NUMBER—E. M. Riddle

CONTRIBUTING EDITORS

Dr. Charles A. Bame Rev. Dyoll Belote

DEPARTMENTAL EDITORS

Dr. C. F. Yoder, Brethren Doctrine
Rev. N. V. Leatherman, Practical Church Problems
Rev. J. G. Dodds, National Goals
Dr. R. F. Porte, Brethren Church History

PLEASE REMEMBER: All material for publication in the Evangelist must be in the hands of the editor at least three weeks before the desired date of publication, to assure same to appear in desired issue. This refers to announcements particularly.

TERMS OF SUBSCRIPTION: $1.50 per year in advance.
CHANGE OF ADDRESS: In ordering change of address always
give both old and new addresses.

REMITTANCES: Send all money, business communications, and contributed articles to:

THE BRETHREN PUBLISHING COMPANY
ASHLAND, OHIO

Entered as second class matter at Ashland, Ohio. Accepted for mailing
at special rate, section 1103, act of October 3, 1917. Authorized
September 3, 1928.

INTERESTING ITEMS

The Business Manager. We are sorry to report that our good friend and co-worker, Brother Baer, has been laid up for a week and is compelled to conduct his work from his bed. We trust that by the time this reaches you he will be able to be back at his desk. Remember him in your prayers.

Change of Address. The new address of Brother Dyoll Belote is Union Bridge, Maryland. Brother Belote recently assumed the pastorate of the Linwood, Maryland, Brethren Church, but his mail will go to Union Bridge.

We get numerous inquiries for addresses of our ministers. If you have moved, or changed pastorates and have a new address, we would appreciate a post card telling us, so we can keep the list up-to-date, and then we can make note of it in this column.

Peru, Indiana. Brother Elmer Carrithers informs us that Brother C. A. Stewart, pastor of our New Paris Church, is to serve the Peru Brethren as evangelist this fall, the dates of the meeting scheduled as of October 4 to 17.

Brother E. M. Riddle was the guest speaker at the Peru Church on the morning of July 18th.

Elkhart, Indiana. We note that the enrollment of the Elkhart D. V. B. S. was 132, with an average attendance of 115.

Brother L. V. King reports in his June 27th bulletin the reception of thirteen more into church membership; two by letter; two by rebaptism and nine by confession and baptism.

Milledgeville, Illinois. Brother White reports the picnic of the Junior Sisterhood girls (an all-day affair) at Lawrence Park on Tuesday, July 6th. A picnic dinner was served and a program was given.

We note that the pageant which will be given on August 8 for the lifting of the $2,500.00 redecoration fund of the Milledgeville church, will be scened around the story of King Joash and his "Joash Chest."

Cheyenne, Wyoming. Brother Frank W. Garber, pastor of the Cheyenne church, writes us that the attendance at the meetings is steadily growing and "the outlook is indeed promising." The Sunday School attendance is averaging about 50, and this in the face of the fact that it is the summer "slack season."

Nappanee, Indiana. Brother J. Milton Bowman, pastor of the Nappanee church, reports the reception of eight into the church, on Sunday, June 20, by baptism and confirmation.

The Nappanee Laymen held a meeting at the Community Park on Monday evening, June 21. The wives were their guests.

Masontown, Pennsylvania. Brother Freeman Ankrum, who is leaving for his extended Vacation trip to the west coast on Monday, July 26, reports in his July 4th bulletin that Brother A. B. Cover who is to supply for Brother Ankrum until his return about September 17, has "moved from New Windsor, Maryland to his old home at Somerset, Pennsylvania."

Huntington, Indiana. Brother C. Y. Gilmer reports that at a special service on Sunday evening, July 4, Brother Alvin Grumbling, son-in-law of Brother Gilmer, brought the message. Brother Alvin is a pre-seminary student at Ashland. The Gilmer Male Quartet rendered special music.

A Junior Sisterhood of Mary and Martha was recently organized in the Huntington church.

We note that the list of the Cradle Roll babies of the Huntington church shows that there are thirty babies enrolled. Here is a fine "contact" point for any Sunday School.

A nursery is conducted during the services by the teachers of the Primary department of the Sunday school.

A Birthday. Brother H. M. Oberholtzer writes that Mrs. Oberholtzer is a patient at the Nebraska State Hospital,

(Continued on page 10)

The Editor Thinks Aloud

Fred C. Vanator

WHAT IS GREATNESS?

THE FOLLOWING paragraph from the pen of Charles Reade found its way to my desk: "Not a day passes over the earth but men and women of no note do great deeds, speak great words, and suffer great sorrows. Of these obscure heroes, philosophers and martyrs, the greater part will never be known till that hour when many that are great shall be small, and the small great."

This set me to thinking!

What, in reality, is greatness? The dictionary defines it as "Moral dignity, intellectual breadth, magnanimity, nobleness." Great men and women are born, not made. Alice Cary says, "'Tis the greatness born with him and in him that makes a man great."

True greatness is found in attitudes, not in mere words. We are in the midst of a great political campaign. Men and women will make long speeches; utter flowing phrases; set forth promises of things which in the main they do not expect to supply and pledge themselves to plans and purposes which they, far too many times, know they have no intention of furthering. They are called great in the language of politicians. In it all we find the spirit of self-exaltation and a desire to say, "There now, see what I have done or will do."

But what is real greatness? It is that spirit in man that will raise him above the sphere of envious, cowardly, vindictive or selfish motives. It is the attitude shown in the generous treatment or judging of others. It is the scorning to do those things which are mean and base. It is the doing unto others as you would that others do to you—but doing it first. (The way of the world seems to be to do others before they do you.) It is not self-abasement nor is it self-withdrawal, but rather the asserting of self in the proper place with no thought of reward or of praise. It is the doing of the right and just act with no thought of compensation.

Jesus said, in Matthew 23:11 and 12, "But he that is greatest among you shall be your servant, and whosoever shall exalt himself shall be abased; and he that shall humble himself shall be exalted." He also said, in Matthew 18:4, "Whosoever therefore shall humble himself as this little child, the same is greatest in the kingdom of heaven."

Therefore, greatness is measured, not in material terms, but in attitudes related to the spiritual values of God's world and His people. Greatness is to be found in doing God's will and fulfilling His purposes, being thoughtful of God and thoughtless of self.

Think it over!

We often learn in sorrow what we could never learn in joy.

Business Manager's Corner

George S. Baer

Success or Failure

THE DIFFERENCE between success and failure at this time of year depends largely on whether one is to lick, or be licked, by the heat wave. We all feel pretty much the same indifference toward activity when hot summer weather prevails. Some, for physical reasons, find it necessary to "take it easy." But most of us are inclined to lay down on the job, not because of some physical disability, but because of downright listlessness and indifference. We are disinclined to steam up the energy and get things done, preferring rather to give way to inertia and unconcern. That is why church work generally experiences a summer slump, and maybe that is why some people are not taking the July Sacrifice Offering seriously. It is hard to keep up our spiritual zeal when the weather is all against us.

But we all have some duties that ought to be taken care of, regardless of season or weather. Faithfulness to our Lord stands at the top of such duties. And among the things we owe Him is the practice of the spirit of sacrifice. Shall we not shout it far and wide by a generous offering at the close of this month?

This Sacrifice Offering is for the Press and Equipment Fund to enable us to close this conference year with its apportionate raising of funds. Let us not close this year in arrears.

A number of people have been quick to respond to this appeal, and in some cases we know that this offering is a real sacrifice. We thank them very sincerely in Him, whose work this is and of whom we are all fellow-servants.

Cash Gifts to the Press Fund

Sadie Snyder, New Lebanon, Ohio	$ 6.00
Dyoll Belote, Union Bridge, Maryland	5.00
Mrs. Phil Rocefeller, Sergeantsville, N. J.	1.00
Mrs. Nina M. Bishop, Fairview	5.00
Mrs. Agnes Lemon, Portis, Kansas	1.00
Mrs. Ira Downey, Hagerstown, Maryland	50.00
A Friend, Sergeantsville, N. J.	10.00
Vern L. Stoffer, Huntington, Indiana	5.00
Mr. and Mrs. C. C. Long, Clay City, Indiana	10.00
Carrie Stoffer and Myrtle Kessinger, Haddix, Ky...	10.00
Fred E. Humbarger, Delphi, Indiana	5.00
Mrs. C. Frank Myers, Hagerstown, Maryland	5.00
Mrs. Eva Conrad, North Manchester, Indiana	5.00
Lloyd Kloepping, Lanark, Illinois	1.00
Annibelle Merrifield, Winnetka, Illinois	2.00
Mary E. Rieger, Falls City, Nebraska	1.00
Mrs. Leota Damm, Logansport, Indiana	10.00
Mr. and Mrs. Fred Voorhees, Bringham, Indiana ..	10.00
Mrs. Mary E. Smith, Uniontown, Ohio	5.00
Friendship Bible Class, Huntington, Indiana	5.00

(Continued on page 11)

Friendliness

The way to cultivate it

THERE IS AN INSTINCT in humanity, which may almost be called universal, toward friendliness. We have a tendency from our earliest recollection to make friends with something or somebody—oftentimes with things. It may be a doll, a toy, a post by the wayside, or a chicken coop. We find in that thing a certain kind of homeliness. There is a tendency all the time in us toward becoming friendly with our surroundings that answers to a yearning in our hearts, and which makes us feel that the world in which we live is lovable, and for us a home; and it is one of the evidences which God has meant us to attain here. He has meant us to feel that friendly feeling toward our surroundings; to have it as a part of our education and part of our preparation for whatever life there may be stored up for us when we have passed into the more glorious radiance of knowledge of God.

As this is true of things, it is even more true of faces and people. For the faces we see, although we know but little of the personality behind them, we get to have a certain friendliness; and when we have gone by—say the same street cleaner—often, and have seen the face and spoken to the individual, we have acquired a sort of affectionate interest in the welfare of this and that person; and it is only when some change comes that we realize how strong has been the influence of the personalities of whom we know so little.

Again, as this is true of things and persons whom we do not know, it is all the more true of God, of whom, though we think we know a great deal, we know so little, and with whom we may have had sweet intercourse, but yet have not attained to anything like intimacy. As this is so of things and of people and of God, it is surely to be part of that life which we are to live forever, and the eternal God is showing us a path by which we may attain immeasurable love.

The problem before us is whether we can carry this friendliness all through life. We know what it is, but to many the past is only a memory, and today we are not being as friendly as we would like to be. The universe now is such a big place. Our childhood world, when this feeling of friendliness became strong, was a large world, but by and by we out-grow the toy and the chicken coop and there comes the difficult problem of how to become friendly with things afterwards. It is not so easy to become friendly with the office desk, and, moreover, the population of the country is constantly bringing to us a greater difficulty in understanding what it is to love mankind. When we are young among our friends, we come to understand what God means by "love all men"; but when we see all classes of men coming here and jostling us and pushing us, it is harder for us to realize that we are to keep upon a friendly relationship with all, and we have not fathomed the meaning of real brotherhood. But when we do realize the greatness of the demand for human sympathy, we see that the universe is much vaster than our fathers thought it to be. We find that the sun and moon and the light were not appointed for our sole benefit. We have discovered that we are an infinitesimal speck in the universe amidst vast constellations, and that our sun is only one in the immensity of space.

We have learned that the way to discover the distance of distant stars is to measure the time which it takes for the light to travel. We move one hundred and eighty million miles between January and June, but the stars do not change their positions to us by a hair's breadth, and so we see how small we are in the whole heavens.

The microscope has brought us a great realization of the life about us, of the vast interests conveying afill around us. When we discover these things we see that this universe is far greater than men of a generation or two ago ever dreamed.

Are we, then, less friendly? Have we moved God afar off, and cannot think of Him as sitting intent upon us and our prayers, but as all the time doing something to carry out and maintain these magnificent powers and forces all around us? Are we less friendly when we think of the vastness of our surroundings? I think if we go along certain lines of thought we shall not lose our friendliness. Let us try to maintain the open heart of childhood and keep in ourselves that friendliness that may be in danger of escaping.

The first thing is this: that friendly relationship does not consist of anything intrinsic. It consists in the first place in the human heart. We are friendly because God made us friendly, and if that is so, what do things matter? If things pass away, as long as we have the spring in ourselves, the water will bubble forth. The thing is to look to the thing inside ourselves and not the thing outside. While we have the capacity that God gives, the whole world is to be friendly and the human heart is the source of friendliness which it finds all around it. As that is so it is true also that this friendliness can never disappear really as long as man lives, and if we have lost any of it, it is because, to some extent, we have ceased to live.

It is possible to have some part of us die—the things behind us—and yet have them revive. It is quite possible for us to feel that there is beyond us something which we can bring back to ourselves if we are persistent enough in our search. The relation between us and the thing we have learned to be friendly to, is based, not upon knowledge, but upon feeling; and when knowledge comes it does not take it really away, but it puts on us a demand to make our feelings grow to our knowledge. As a rule our knowledge of people and our love for people go hand in hand together. If the time comes when our knowledge outstrips our feeling, it is better, perhaps, to stop knowing and cultivate our emotional development; to keep our heart up to our head. The thing is to keep the affection in sympathetic touch between ourselves and our surroundings. We cannot increase knowledge too much if only we keep growing with our knowledge.

There is another thing: we have still direct and vital connection with things, though our life does change and the things change. Though some things be destroyed, we have still direct access to the things that do not change. Does it matter that there have been a dozen years before this one? This year is to us a source of joy and glory because this year God has unfolded again the marvelous reactions which brings the spring to life. Does it matter that it is the same star that shone on Moses that now shines down on us? It is the same star. The thing for us to do is to establish the connection between ourselves and the thing outside ourselves. Having done this, we are convinced of this one great fact: that there is still direct access before us to the thing that God made. If we can establish that now, we have the same trend of thought which made the men of the old time so certain of the eternities of God.

When we think about the vast eternities, we realize that the men that talked in old times used words which are as good today as in the old times. There can be no language suggestive to any human mind which is greater than the word "eternity." "The eternal God is thy refuge." Can man, by measuring distances, by mapping the heavens, by weighing the stars, change the weight of the world eternal? The man who first used that word used a word for all time. There is this permanent relationship based upon friendliness. It is always the same which cannot change, though men change, and which ought to make us eternal youth as we think of our contact with the eternal God.

We are not really changed so much. The universe may be larger, the demands may be greater, but the thing which is essential is the same; and throughout all generations there will be found in the human heart, swelling, up generation after generation, this great feeling of friendliness which unites us to God and which causes us to come into contact with the eternities which God shows us.

Brethren Youth

SOUTHERN INDIANA YOUNG PEOPLE TO MEET

THE SOUTHERN District Young People of Indiana will have a Youth Rally at the Oakville Brethren Church on Sunday, August 1st, at 4:00 P. M.

This Rally will consist of business, the awarding of Banners, get-acquainted activities in charge of Mr. and Mrs. George Dietrich of Ball State College (Muncie), a Picnic Supper, and an evening worship program, at which time Rev. Charles Munson, of Ashland, Ohio, National Youth Director, will speak. All this will take place on the church lawn.

We would welcome visitors to this meeting from other districts.

Rev. James E. Ault, pastor.

He never grows old who retains his love for children, flowers, birds and music.

Remember that humility is such a delicate grace that when one mentions having it, it is gone.

MORE CONCERNING THE NAPPANEE DEDICATION

THE NEW NAPPANEE CHURCH

REV. J. MILTON BOWMAN, PASTOR

THE DEDICATION services of the New Nappanee, Indiana, Brethren Church are now history. These services brought many, not only from the Nappanee vicinity, but also from all over Northern Indiana, from Michigan, Ohio, Illinois, Kansas and Pennsylvania. It is estimated that about Fifteen Hundred people attended the services at some time during the day.

The expressions of pleasure at the beauty of the church edifice, and the congratulations to the Nappanee people on a task well accomplished, were expressed, not only by word of mouth, but also in many pledges of money as well as cash contributions. While we do not have the exact amount of cash and pledges that were given, we learn from the Nappanee newspaper that they ran to about $58,000.00. This, it is said, will cover present bills, but does not cover payment for the pews, the inside doors, the lawns, driveways, etc.

Brother Claud Studebaker was in charge of the period when these gifts and pledges were laid upon the altar. The thanks of the officary of the Nappanee Church goes out to everyone who had any part in the helping financially or otherwise in this building project.

Rev. J. Milton Bowman, pastor of the church for the past nine years, together with his faithful congregation, deserves a great deal of commendation for the fine work that has been accomplished. No one who has not had a part in the erecting of a new church or the remodeling of an old building, knows the hours of toil, the midnight "oil" that is burned, or the joys and disappointments which accompany the planning and completion of the task. Building codes, restrictions and (in the case of Nappanee) the obtaining of permits from government agencies to build, makes the erection of a House of Worship a task that can only be realized by those who have been identified with such a work.

Nappanee will have, when it is entirely completed, a church building that will do great honor both to the community and to the denomination which it represents. The growth which always accompanies the building of a new church edifice is sure to come to the Nappanee Brethren.

Thousands of people really admire the sinless character of Jesus but still say, "This man shall not rule over me."

Embody in yourself what you wish to express and you will express it well. It should be impressed before it can be expressed.

WITH THE LAYMEN

INDIANA SOUTHERN DISTRICT LAYMEN MEET

THE SOUTHERN INDIANA Laymen met at the College Corner Church on Monday evening, May 17, 1948. After a very delicious meal served by the ladies of the church, in the newly remodeled basement, we gathered in the main auditorium for our evening program.

Arthur Collins acted as program chairman. Dr. Charles A. Bame, pastor of the church, led us in the songs, "A Shelter in the Time of Storm," "Fairest Lord Jesus," and "Great is Thy Faithfulness." Herman Hood led us in our evening devotions, using Romans 12 for the basis of his remarks, after which Walter Fiant led us in prayer. We were then favored with a special number in song by the Draper children.

Brother H. D. "Bud" Hunter then took charge of the business session. The reports of the Secretary and Treasurer were read and approved. There was then some discussion on the work of building the Chapel at Stacey, Kentucky, urging all who could to go and help with this work. The roll call of churches resulted in the showing that there were ninety-one present. North Manchester reported a newly organized Boys' Brotherhood. Both Mexico and Center Chapel extended an invitation for the next meeting. The vote carried in favor of Mexico.

We were then favored with a "French Horn" solo by Miss Alice Trent, accompanied at the piano by Mrs. Kenneth Stout.

Dr. Charles Bame brought the message of the evening, using as his subject, "Man for a Time Like This." He said that there never was a time like this and that the hands of God's clock never turn back. "This strange time did not come upon us suddenly. Men knew it was coming." He mentioned a number of heroes of the Bible, also of historical times. He said that "Woodrow Wilson said we have come upon a new day and men like us, as laymen, should have a part in this new day. Calvin Coolidge said that the government of the country never gets ahead of the religion of the country. If we expect the heroism of this present day to be ahead of any previous generation, the powers that be must be ordained of God. Right is stronger than might. Good must not sell out to evil. We, as laymen, should be proud to say that we have had a part in the affairs of a time like this."

Rev. Arthur J. Tinkel pronounced the benediction.

All laymen of the District please note: Our next meeting will be held at the Mexico Brethren Church on Monday evening, August 16, 1948.

Guy V. Purdy, Secretary.

WITH THE BRYAN, OHIO, LAYMEN

PERHAPS the Brethren of The Laymen's Organization are not acquainted with the very constructive work the Laymen are doing over here in Bryan, Ohio, so we are sending you a report on the progress of the work here of which we are justly proud.

The Bryan Laymen's Organization was formed during the pastorate of Rev. C. A. Steward, November 14, 1944, with 14 charter members. Mr. Walter Brubaker was elected President in which office he served faithfully for two years.

There has been a steady growth in membership and spiritual development since the beginning of the organization. Mr. Oscar Robarge has served as President since October, 1946, and is doing a splendid job of it. Under his leadership the Laymen have met all Goals for the past two years including 25% increase of membership, having added 14 in the last year. Our total membership now stands at 56.

The Project Committee, Mr. Wayne Partee, Mr. Solon Lockhart, Mr. Howard Davis, Robert Kerr and Wm. Musser, Jr., reports the following projects completed since June 1, 1947:

- July, 1947—$50.00 for Shipshewana Camp Grounds.
- Aug., 1947—$50.00 College Debt.
- $25.00 Chapel Equipment Fund.
- Jan., 1948—$20.00 Laymen's Bulletin.
- Feb., 1948—$ 5.00 For Tracts to be placed in R.R. Station.
- Mar., 1948—$150.00 For lighted Bulletin Board.
- $88.00 Collected at one meeting with 21 members present.
- April, 1948—$24.15 for Missionary Offering.
- June, 1948—$13.75 for Post Card Mimeograph for Church use.
- July, 1948—$33.46 for National Publication.

We have two Life Members, one paid for by the local Organization. The average attendance stands at 32 for the past year. Our Laymen have conducted two public services in recent months in the local church, and are planning to conduct services in some of the smaller churches nearby (within 80 miles) in hopes of getting other Organizations started, and encouraging the pastors of these churches. The whole offering (average $27.00) can be used for worthy projects.

We are quite fortunate in having a number of men who are talented in music and voice, which adds much interest to our meetings. Our Male Quartette has been very faithful in all departments of the Church.

Present Officers are:

- PresidentOscar Robarge
- Vice PresidentRussel Snyder
- Sec.-TreasurerWm. Musser, Jr.
- Asst. Sec.-Treas.Jack Oxenrider
- Tract Sec.Clark Farlow
- Asst. Tract Sec.Herbert Benner
- ChoristerChas. Hineman

We submit this report, humbly requesting your prayers in our behalf that we may be used of God to the blessing of many souls in the days that are ahead of us.

God would greatly use your abilities if you would not greatly abuse them.

If we are to pray for and expect a great revival movement we must pray for and encourage gifted leadership.

Ashland Seminary and Pre-seminary Students Enjoy Banquet

On May 21st of the year 1948, in the city of Ashland, in the state of Ohio, the group in the picture you have just looked at had a banquet. Approximately sixty Seminary and Pre-Seminary students and their friends were in attendance. The place of meeting was in the First Church of Christ. They certainly fed us well on ham—everyone had plenty.

The purpose of the occasion was to bring our school year to a fitting close. It has been felt for some time that such a function would be worthwhile; hence the banquet. Of course throughout the year, in fact every month, a social gathering is held for the Seminary students, and for all students interested in an evening of Christian entertainment. This naturally served to unite the Christians on campus, but still some students felt as though we should sponsor a banquet; so we did. Undoubtedly it will become a yearly function.

The program was unique in that there was no speaker, in fact we didn't even have an M. C., but we got along just fine. The evening was given over to skits about the year's happenings in school, with emphasis upon the mistakes made by students during their participation in Seminar chapel. Then, too, the faculty came in for their share of ribbing, which they took in good spirit—we hope. The evening was closed by the newly elected officers for the year 1948-49. They gave a review of what they plan and expect to do. It was a very fitting close to an evening of wholesome entertainment.

A good time was had by all.

Fools make a treaty with the devil when they shun God and the church.

We often learn in sorrow what we never could learn in joy.

Example is contagious and a beautiful life is the best invitation to Christ.

The seven "overcomeths" point to blessings on both sides of eternity's veil.

Plan Two Hundreth Year of Father of Hymnody

PROTESTANT churches, choirs, and musical and worship groups and classes throughout the English-speaking world are being urged by the Hymn Society of America, Dr. Deane Edwards, president, to observe the year 1948 as a "Watts Year," marking the two hundredth anniversary of the death (November 25, 1748) of Dr. Isaac Watts, "the father of modern hymnody."

The observance will take the form of hymn festivals by local churches or groups of churches, programs of Watts hymns in regular church services, special programs of Watts hymns in schools or by community choruses, special local radio programs of music and comment, exhibits of old hymnals and related materials in libraries, and study groups especially within women's societies and church schools.

Dr. Lindsay B. Longacre, formerly of the Iliff School of Theology, is chairman of the Hymn Society's celebration committee; and the program of worship prepared for church observances was written by Dr. Phillip S. Watters of Drew Seminary. Materials and further information regarding celebrations may be secured from the executive secretary of the Society, Dr. Reginald L. McAll at 2268 Sedgwick Avenue, New York, N. Y.

While Dr. Watts was also a noted preacher, theologian and educator, it is through his hymns and "Christianizing of the Psalms" that he is known today, and will live wherever the English language is spoken. A dissenting minister, he broke away from the traditional metrical psalms of earlier Protestantism, made new and free translations that were in most cases truly poetic, introducing the name of Christ and Jesus into hymns basically Old Testament concepts, and later producing many original "spiritual songs." In some of these he seems to have foreseen certain scientific truths and points of view common today.

The following are the first lines of hymns by Dr. Watts still found in the principal Protestant hymnals of America: "Am I a soldier of the Cross?" "Before Jehovah's awful throne," "Come, Holy Spirit, heavenly Dove," "Come, let us join our cheerful songs," "Come, sound his praise abroad," "Come, we that love the Lord," "From all that dwell below the skies," "Give me the wings of faith to rise," "God is the refuge of his saints," "Jesus shall reign where'er the sun," "Joy to the world! the Lord is come," "My God, how endless is thy love," "Our God, our help in ages past," "Sweet is the work, my God and King," "There is a land of pure delight," "When I survey the wondrous cross." Eight of Dr. Watts' hymns have been woven into the worship service prepared by Dr. Watters.

Weights that keep the spirit from mounting upward: Anger, pride, unseemly conduct, evil thinking, and impatience.

Have We Abolished Hell?

Chaplain John T. Donnel

I was discussing a child's Bible storybook with a lady, and in the course of the conversation she said, "When I was young all one heard at church and Sunday school was sin and hell, but folks don't believe in that sort of thing any more." Whether we like to admit it or not we are forced to confess that much that the lady said is true. We hear little of the subject of sin and hell, and there are many people and many churches that no longer believe these doctrines.

Until comparatively recent times the topic of hell was the central theme of evangelistic preaching. "Flee from the wrath to come," was the fervently repeated exhortation. Literary men like Milton and Dante, and preachers like Knox, Edwards, and Finney depleted the stores of human speech to describe hell.

Dean W. R. Inge, of St. Paul's in London could not be accepted as anything but very liberal in his theology, yet he distinctly expressed the doctrine of the doom of the lost. "The Gloomy Dean" as he was called said, "It is hardly too much to say that heaven and hell stand and fall together. When we have taught ourselves to think that heaven is the atmosphere in which the children of God live, how impossible, how almost ridiculous it is to believe this without also believing in the terrible opposite. And this hell which is where God is not and where the devil is, is nothing like the modernist purgatory, where one trains for the next examination—a place with fine tropical climate, really bracing to the constitution. Such thoughts are cheap and frivolous. The reality is something much more tragic and terrible. And so at last we begin to understand the horrible nightmare of hell has one of its sources in something far less ignoble than we first supposed, 'hell is the shadow from a soul on fire'; and it is not the greatest sinners who shudder at the thought, but the greatest saints who know what the loss must be when God turns His face away."—Revival.

God will crush our external foes in measure as we crush our internal ones.

Honest work is honorable, but some workmen are not.

ASHLAND COLLEGE NEEDS

One or two good handy men for campus work—men who can do ordinary cleaning and repairing, using hammer, saw, pipe wrench or broom. Perhaps a son or daughter is here in school and the father would like to work on the campus. Fair wages paid.

Communicate with

A. Glenn Carpenter, Business Manager,
Ashland College, Ashland, Ohio.

Report of The Sixty-first Indiana District Conference

THE SIXTY-FIRST CONFERENCE of Brethren Churches of Indiana held its sessions from June 7th to 11th at Shipshewana Lake, in conjunction with the First Bible Conference. The attendance and number of delegates was somewhat larger than last year. The program was entirely different than in former years. The simultaneous sessions were held in the morning at 8:00 o'clock. The rest of the forenoons were given over to the Bible Lectures, Panel Discussions and Question Periods.

Dr. W. D. Furry gave two very splendid lectures on the Theme, "Keeping the Faith." Rev. Ronald Hudson, who is not new to the Northern Indiana Churches, gave four lectures. In each he presented a bird's eye view of different Epistles. He made the Book live anew in our memory. The panel Discussions were led by Rev. W. E. Ronk and Rev. E. M. Riddle. The Question Periods were in charge of Dr. W. I. Duker and Rev. C. A. Stewart. These were lively and very helpful.

The afternoon sessions were given over to the Business of the Conference and reports from the Conference Boards. In addition to the routine work several steps of a forward movement were taken. The Sunday School Board was given authority to assess the Sunday Schools 10 cents per enrollment member to carry on their State work. The Shipshewana Board was given permission to dredge a canal across the low ground to the South of the Conference grounds which will make it possible to sell quite a number of new lots, and improve the grounds to a great extent. They were also given permission to set a date for a special offering from each of the Indiana Churches and from as many of the Ohio Churches as care to cooperate. The date set is August 1st.

The Evening programs were given over to Evangelism, Missions and Youth Activities. There were three splendid sermons on Evangelism. Dr. Chas. A. Bame spoke on the Theme: "Mass Evangelism—Preaching." Dr. Claud Studebaker used as his Theme: "Personal Evangelism—Testifying." Rev. Wayne Swihart spoke on the Theme: "Sunday School Evangelism—Teaching." All were splendidly received.

Rev. Roland Hudson who had been a Chaplain in India showed slides on India and gave a challenging message. Dr. Glenn Clayton spoke to the youth Friday evening using as his Theme: "Fitting Ourselves for Tomorrow's World." This was a challenging message. Dr. Don Falkenberg of the Bible Meditation League spoke on Thursday evening. He gave a history of the splendid progress made by that organization in saving souls and giving out the Word and distributing helpful literature, both in the home land as well as in foreign lands. An offering was lifted for the work which amounted to $74.00.

The Moderator's address by Rev. C. A. Stewart was delivered Tuesday morning. He dwelt with many of the problems facing the Church and gave some splendid suggestions on how to meet them. Rev. Fred Vanator represented the Publishing Interests and Dr. Glenn Clayton, the College.

The finances of the Bible Conference were met by special offerings sent in by the different Churches of the State. It was sufficient to cover all the expenses in connection with the Bible Conference. Next year each Church is asked to bring in a check covering $1.00 per 25 members as delegate fees. This will take care of the regular Conference expense as well as assure another Bible Conference.

The following were elected as conference officials for the new year:

Moderator C. A. Stewart
Vice Moderator H. D. "Bud" Hunter
Secretary-Treasurer L. V. King
Statistician Galen Roose

Conference Board of Trustees (Five Year Term): Mrs. Hazel Rohrer, Everett Miller.

District Mission Board: Dr. Robert F. Porte—three years; Walter Lichtenberger—two years.

Ministerial Examining Board and District Evangelists: Rev. W. E. Ronk, Dr. Claud Studebaker, Rev. J. Milton Bowman.

General Conference Executive Committee: Dr. W. I. Duker, Rev. Wayne Swihart.

Nominees for College Trustees: Rev. Bert Hodge, Everett Miller.

Resolutions Committee: Mrs. Rilla Mauzey, Mrs. C. Y. Gilmer, Mrs. U. J. Shively.

Auditing Committee: Mrs. Russell Rodkey, Rev. H. E. Eppley.

Pastoral Relations Committee: Rev. C. A. Stewart, Rev. G. L. Maus, Dr. C. A. Bame.

District Sunday School Board: Rev. Wayne Swihart, Woodrow Immel, Rev. Robert Higgins.

Boys' Work Committee: Rev. C. Y. Gilmer, Rev. Bert Hodge, Rev. Wayne Swihart.

Committee on Naming Delegates-at-Large: Walter Lichtenberger, Rev. J. Edgar Berkshire.

L. V. King, Secretary.

Interesting Items

(Continued from Page 2)

Ward 25, Ingleside, Nebraska, and that July 25th is her birthday. We are sorry that we did not have this information sooner, but she will be glad to receive cards at any time.

Another change of address. Brother Ralph M. Singer who recently took over the Raystown, Pennsylvania church on a full time basis, writes that his address is now Saxton, R. D., Pennsylvania.

Pleasant Hill, Ohio. Brother Floyd Sibert writes that there were one hundred and seventy-four in attendance on July 4, in spite of the scorching heat and a holiday. Very fine!

Miami Valley Junior Brethren Camp. Brother Sibert sends us the following concerning the Camp: "This camp was a decided success. Thirty-eight Junior and nine helpers began camp at Chautauqua near Franklin, Ohio, June 27. Only about nine of the Juniors had ever been in camp before. The camp was located in a lovely wooded spot on a bend of the Miami River. A great deal of our success was due to the fact that all of our staff had experience in camp work. The high light of the camp came at the last Vesper service when twenty-three Juniors gave first time confessions and nine came out for reconsecration. W. C. Berkshire brought the message and without undue persuasion these young people made their decision and came to the altar."

Canton, Ohio. Brother E. J. Beekley reports the baptism of four young people recently.

Loree, Indiana. Brother Higgins reports that the special offering which was taken at their Children's Day entertainment amounted to $62.00. The children have already bought a new outdoor bulletin board, which is awaiting shipment.

Business Manager's Corner

(Continued from page 3)

Mrs. Joseph Norton, Bringhurst, Indiana	10.00
Mrs. J. J. Wolfe, North Manchester, Indiana	50.00
Abe Bowman, Long Beach, California	5.00
H. M. Oberholtzer, Carleton, Nebraska	5.00
W. P. Spriggle, Middletown, Virginia	25.00
Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Zwoyer, Bryan, Ohio	10.00
Mr. and Mrs. Charles Munson, Ashland, Ohio	2.00
Mr. and Mrs. Charles Weygand, Nappanee, Indiana	5.00
Hettie Rose, Uniontown, Pennsylvania	5.00
Mrs. Mary B. Turner, Bethlehem, Pennsylvania ..	5.00
Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Maust, Nappanee, Indiana,
(by a friend)	5.00
Mrs. Katie A. Culp, Goshen, Indiana	2.00
Mrs Effie Roan, Bryan, Ohio	5.00

(For cash to date, see block on page 16)

100% Districts

The challenge has gone out and some District Officials have taken up the gauntlet to work on a 100% circulation of the Evangelist in their district. At least one district—the Ohio—embodied it in their goals for the coming year. There may have been others. It is not an impossible task; it was actually achieved by one district two years ago. It is encouraging to see one of our larger districts taking up this matter seriously. May there be many districts that will work toward achieving this goal.

Hagerstown Continues 100%

Our splendid church at Hagerstown, Maryland, which stands among the leaders in loyalty to our publishing list, sends in a renewal list of Evangelist subscriptions of 244, and that continues their place on the 100% Honor Roll for another year. Brother M. B. Ridenour, one of our Publishing Board members, belongs to this church. Brother N. V. Leatherman was, until recently the pastor over a period of years; then Brother Dyoll Belote served them for a brief interim before taking over his charge at Linwood, Maryland, and now Brother James Ault, pastor-elect, will be installed in the pastorate in the near future. They are all made over the same pattern of Brethren loyalty that has enabled churches and pastors throughout the Brotherhood to weather many a storm. we appreciate such churches and pastors. There are many of them and they give hope for future Brethrenism.

Cheyenne; Wyoming, too is 100%

We previously mentioned receiving a list of Evangelist subscriptions from our Mission Church at Cheyenne, Wyoming, but did not know whether it was a 100% church or not. Brother Frank W. Garber, pastor of the church, writes that it was 100%, so we are happy to include Cheyenne on the Honor Roll.

General Conference Room and Board Announcement

Ashland College will again be host to National Conference delegates and friends August 23rd to August 29th. Those desiring rooms at the Dormitory or Residence Halls will communicate with the College Business Office. Please send $1.00 room deposit with your reservation.

The following charges for room and board will prevail:

Dormitory, third floor, reserved for Sisterhood girls.

Room rent for six nights, one in a room ...$4.00
two in a roomeach 2.75

Girls will furnish own bed linen and blankets.

Dormitory, second floor—one in a room...$6.00
two in a roomeach 4.50

Delegates will please bring extra blanket in case of cool weather.

Boys desiring to attend conference and room by themselves may have army bunk accommodations, furnishing their own bed-linens, blankets, and towels. Rate 50c per night.

All meals will be served cafeteria style with a choice of foods, but will be priced in total as follows:

Six day ticket$10.00
Individual meals
Breakfast, choice 25c, 35c or 50c
Dinners85
Lunches60

For choice of breakfasts, those buying the week ticket and desiring the extra menu will pay the additional 10 or 25c to the waiter. Tickets provide for the 25c breakfast only.

The first meal will be served Monday evening the 23rd; last meal Sunday noon, the 29th.

Delegates desiring rooms off campus will communicate with Dr. George C. Carpenter, 1122 Grant St., Ashland, Ohio, who will serve as chairman of the Off-Campus Housing Committee. Rates in private homes will be as follows:

2 in one room, one to three nights per night$2.00
2 in room, four to seven nights 7.00
1 in room, one to three nights—per night .. 1.50
1 in room, four to seven nights 6.00

Those desiring the same accommodations as last year should communicate with the committee immediately.

CHRISTIAN ENDEAVOR TOPIC

W. St. Clair Benshoff, Topic Editor

"Topics copyrighted by the International Society of Christian Endeavor.
Used by permission."

Topic for August 8, 1948

"GOD SPEAKS THROUGH PEOPLE"

Scripture: Ex. 35:1; Acts 17:22-30

For The Leader

THIS IS THE SECOND in the series of studies on "God Speaks." Last week we found how God spoke to us through prayer. Tonight we will learn of ways in which God speaks to us through people. As children of God through Christ, we should be interested in what He would have us know. We stand in need of spiritual food. We need consolation in difficult times, we need guidance, and help in deciding which course to take in life. Who better is fitted to help us than our Father in Heaven? This Father who has infinite wisdom, judgment and understanding! Jesus the Son of God said, on one occasion, "I am the Way." Surely we will want Him to guide us through life. As children of God in Him we should desire that our lives be pleasing unto Him. How can we be sure? By letting Him speak to us. In this case, through people of Bible days, and people today.

DISCUSSION

1. THE WRITINGS OF PEOPLE. First of all, God speaks to us through people by means of the scriptures. While the scriptures are divinely inspired (II Tim. 3:16), they came to us from men who were inspired of God to write (II Peter 1:21). So, when we read the Bible, God is speaking to us through people. This is by far the best source of help. We should learn to crave and desire its daily help. Reading the scriptures can become a passion and a habit for us. It will be a good habit. In the Bible we read the words of godly men and women. We see how they reacted to the events of their lives. We see their failures, their successes. We can pattern our habits after theirs. A godly person on this earth today is one who has learned the secret of Christian living by reading the Word of God each day. There is a wealth of information, help and testimony in the words which are spoken to us through the Bible.

2. FRIENDS CAN HELP US. Blessed is that young person who has a trusted friend. It is good to be a trusted friend of some one. If you are a trusted friend, guard that trust carefully with your life. If you have one to whom you can go in time of grief or indecision, you are fortunate. Often, even when we have prayed, and read the Bible, we are undecided about things. We still don't know for sure what to do. Here is where a trusted friend can help. Often, years older, maturity and good judgment will help them give to you the right answer. God often can speak through them to help you choose the right things. Let us never underestimate the ability of a trusted friend to help us avoid the pitfalls of life. Often a bit of well-given advice on the part of a friend is God's voice speaking to us through them. We may resent it at the time, but it's good medicine, so let's take it. Most people can testify that the least appreciated advice from one interested in us, has, in the long run, been the best help to us.

3. GOD CALLS THROUGH FRIENDS. Most ministers can recall a day in their youth when another minister spoke to them about entering the ministry. Perhaps some visiting minister, who thought he had done no good, has been instrumental in leading us into the sacred calling. Certainly, if God has a message for us, the best way to get it across to us is to have someone we trust say it to us. On the inside of a minister's life there are times when messages are spoken by them to people for which they themselves cannot account, except that it was God's message for the people. Let us give heed to God's still small voice as it comes to us through our friends. Be alert, and we will hear the voice of God in a statement, testimony, or what ever, from the lips of a friend.

4. WHEN OUR MINISTER SPEAKS. Perhaps the one who is best qualified from an official position to speak God's message to us is the Minister. He is ordained to "preach the Word, reprove, rebuke, exhort, with all long suffering." That's his business. We are to listen to him and put his divinely found teachings into practice. And even if he tramps our toes once in a while, remember that he is ordained to explain the Bible's message. If you read the same thing in the Bible, it would also tramp your toes. He has prayed much over his message. He has prayed that he might be led of the Spirit to say the right thing for the people. Under such direction, the things he says can be safely called God's message for us. (Of course if your minister just "preaches" without thought of his calling as an interpreter of God's message, that is a different story.) Thank God daily if your minister is a true preacher of the whole Word of God. You'll be a better Christian all through life if you give heed to his message.

5. THE LORD SPEAKS. In this summer time, God is dealing with your heart. You may be even yet undecided as to what to do with life. Are you listening for a possible word from God? Watch and listen closely. Perhaps in some spoken word, you will find the answer to your problem. Watch and heed. Moses turned aside to hear the message of the burning bush. After having been a failure for 80 years, but giving heed to the message of God, he became a great leader of God's people. David on the hill side tending his father's sheep, heard the word of the messenger, followed, and became the anointed King of Israel. What will you be for God tomorrow? Listen to His message today, and you will find your rightful place in His service.

DISCUSSION QUESTIONS

1. Should we take all of the advice that comes our way?
2. How can we determine the truthfulness of things which people tell us about faith, Christianity, salvation, and service?
3. In what other ways does God speak to us through people?

P. S. BETTER GET THOSE STATISTICAL BLANKS MAILED TO THE C. E. SECRETARY IF YOU WANT YOUR SOCIETY INCLUDED IN THE REPORT AT GENERAL CONFERENCE!

Prayer Meeting Topic

Contributed by Rev. C. Y. Gilmer

(Helps for Daily Living)

SILENCE

To sin by silence, when we should protest,
Makes cowards out of men. The human race
Has climbed on protest. Had no voice been raised Against injustice, ignorance, and lust,
The inquisition yet would serve the law,
And guillotines decide our least disputes.
The few who dare must speak, and speak again
To right the wrongs of many.

—Author Unknown.

UNCONDITIONAL SURRENDER

Scripture: Judges 7:1-7

Hymn: "Is Your All On the Altar?"

Prayer

Seed Thought Provokers:

UNCONDITIONAL surrender goes against the human grain. It is quite embarrassing to fence straddlers. Its test reduced Gideon's man power from 32,000 to 300. God does not require an expensive vessel, but He does demand a clean vessel. Unconditional surrender cleans the vessel (2 Tim. 2:21). It was unconditional surrender that gave us John Wycliff, John Huss, Martin Luther, John Calvin, John Knox, John Wesley, George Whitefield, Jonathan Edwards, Hudson Taylor, and others during and since the Reformation. It was unconditional surrender which drove these men.

In the Old Testament it was unconditional surrender that moved Noah to find grace in God's sight (Gen. 6:9). It required much faith for Noah to go counter to the wickedness of his day (Gen. 6:5). Since the world was not accustomed to rain at that time Noah's undertaking must have appeared quite fanatical (Gen. 2:5, 6). It was unconditional surrender of the life to God that made Daniel a man of purpose (Dan. 1:8). Unconditional surrender made Amos a God-called preacher (Amos 7:14, 15). He was a judgment preacher (Amos 1:2; 2:6; 3:10; 5:12). He struck at every present day evil, including the liquor traffic, the idle rich, neglected home life (Amos 2:11, 12), etc. He was called on the carpet for his plain preaching (Amos 7:14, 15). It is the God-called, God-fearing preachers that give the people trouble (1 Kings 21:20).

In the New Testament Jesus preached unconditional surrender (Matt. 8:21, 22; 10:37, 38; 16:24; Luke 9:62). He was not afraid to preach about sin and Hell. Stephen, the first Christian martyr, did not believe in compromising in order to enlarge his ministry (Acts 7:51). The oil of compromise never mollified John the Baptist (Matt. 3:7-9, 10; 14:4). Paul was unconditionally surrendered to God (Gal. 2:20). He went everywhere preaching without fear, favor or compromise (Acts 20:26, 27). He did not make preaching easy for his spiritual son, Timothy (2 Tim. 4:2). Paul was very conscientious (1 Cor. 9:16). Like his master he was given to speaking hard sayings when occasion justified it (Gal. 2:11; John 6:60, 66). It cost him dearly, but he was more than compensated (2 Tim. 4:6-8). The whole Bible takes such an issue against sin from Genesis to Revelation that only a full surrendered person can be faithful to it. Here is a matter for prayer.

COMMENTS

On The Sunday School Lesson

by The Editor

Lesson for August 1, 1948

BARUCH, A COURAGEOUS SCRIBE

Lesson: Jeremiah 36:4-8, 17-24, 32

THESE ALMOST unknown characters that we study this quarter are becoming more and more familiar to us as we see them standing out as "signal lights" among the more prominent men and women of Bible times.

We meet one in today's lesson that stands out with prominence because of his courage. For it took courage to do the things which he did in the face of danger of incurring the wrath of the king.

Evidently Baruch, the man we are thinking about, was Jeremiah's scribe. That is, he took dictation from Jeremiah and "wrote from the mouth of Jeremiah" the message that was made up of "the words of the Lord." Having transcribed the message, he might have felt that he had done his duty and that Jeremiah had no further claim upon his time. But, when Jeremiah, being himself shut up in prison, needed a messenger to carry the written word to people, Baruch readily answered the call and, taking the scroll upon which he had written, went to "the Lord's house" and upon the "fasting day" he "read them in the ears of all Judah," with the hope that "they would present their supplications before the Lord and return every one from his evil way."

That he did his task well will be seen by the reaction that came from the side of the king. The messengers of the king, being also friendly to both Baruch and Jeremiah, advised them to "hide" and "let no man know where they were."

These "princes" must have surmised the king's reactions for they "laid up the roll in the chamber of Elishama the scribe" (evidently a fellow-scribe with Baruch) and went to tell the king the roll's content, thinking, no doubt, that the king would pass it all up, and that the roll itself would be preserved.

But not so! Jehudi was dispatched to bring the roll to the king. Perhaps the king thought they had not told him aright—that no man would dare to utter such words against the king. But as Jehudi read, the king's anger waxed stronger and stronger. He showed his contempt for the writer and God by cutting the roll to shreds and casting it on the fire till it was consumed.

Now read verse 24. How well it shows the attitude of so many toward the "Word of God" in this day in which we live. For that is what it was, as shown in the first verse of our lesson.

Here it is necessary to read the verses omitted between verse 24 and verse 32, to get the full force of the lesson. But verse 32 is most important to us in our lesson, since it shows the courage of both Jeremiah and Baruch. Read it and note that the Lord, through these men, "added besides unto them many like words."

Considering that Baruch may have only been a "hired" scribe or "secretary" to Jeremiah, it makes his acts in staying by the prophet even more courageous. It can be noted that it always takes courage to stand for the right, but that it always pays to line up on God's side.

To those who study this lesson Baruch is no longer an unknown character, but one that stands out with prominence and one to be remembered.

News From Our Churches

PITTSBURGH, PENNSYLVANIA

Our very busy and much enjoyed pastorate of four years and eight months with the First Brethren Church of Pittsburgh, Pa., came to a close with Easter Sunday, just three months ago.

So manifold and varied are the attractions—and distractions—in so great a city, it would be impossible to give a detailed summary of the period, even if such were of interest to the reader.

Ours is the only Brethren Church in Greater Pittsburgh and in the whole of Allegheny County. With so vast a field, we had hoped to witness an appreciable net increase in the membership of the Church, in East End Pittsburgh, fifty blocks out Penn Avenue, east from the Golden Triangle. The number of additions were about on a par with the preceding years of the Church's progress. However, a revision of the Church's active Membership Roll, resulted in more than forty members being dropped from the Active List, leaving a membership of less than two hundred.

However, the identity and exact whereabouts of each individual reported member were known to the Pastor, thanks to the efficient work of the Recording Secretary, G. M. Garland. The Membership Roll was corrected and recopied yearly, and kept up-to-date.

Pittsburgh Brethren approved the Pastor's insistence upon interchurch cooperation. This included fellowship with the Pittsburgh Church of the Brethren group, also working in East End Pittsburgh; with five Churches of the immediate area; with East Liberty, Lawrenceville and Greater Pittsburgh Ministerial Associations; and with the over all Council Churches of Christ of Allegheny County with its twelve active Commissions. This afforded the Pastor and interested laymen opportunity to hear outstanding Church leaders of national and international reputation, and to learn of improved methods and of progress in the many phases of the Church's work.

We endeavored to make an inventory of the opportunities for culture, information, inspiration and recreation of which we made use. This included attendance upon services and functions in more than thirty different Churches and places of public assembly. We also visited patients in twenty different hospitals of the area.

When the last weeks of our sojourn came, Pittsburgh Brethren were gracious and generous in their expressions of goodwill and appreciation. The members of the Woman's Missionary Society honored Mrs. Crick with a "Farewell Party." Then followed enjoyable evenings of fellowship, sponsored, in turn, by the Friendship Bible Class of which the Pastor was teacher, by the Young People's Group, and by the Sunday School and by the Church. Separation will not sever the ties we have with Pittsburgh.

We recall, too, with a great deal of pleasure, our twelve years, 1936 to 1948, of connection with the Pennsylvania District Conference of the Brethren Church. This included our seven years in Johnstown Second and Third Brethren Churches as well as the five in Pittsburgh.

The very day our household and office effects were loaded into a van, the painters moved their fabricated scaffolding into the church building. Both the Church edifice and the Parsonage received a thorough cleaning and redecorating.

Our many friends have kept us informed as to the successful projects which have been carried out since our departure. And, not a morning Worship Service was missed during the interim of our going and the coming of our successor, June 1st.

Heaven will make possible the resumption of the inspiring association and praise which are suspended till He Comes!

William S. Crick, Gratis, Ohio.

BRUSH VALLEY, PENNSYLVANIA, REVIVAL

On Sunday, June 20th, a two-weeks revival came to a close at the Brush Valley Brethren Church which is located about twelve miles north of Kittanning, Pennsylvania. As has been the custom at Brush Valley, during a revival, a Daily Vacation Bible School was operated with an average attendance of 77. Not only was a great interest shown among the students, but also among the workers. Eleven workers were present during the Bible School.

The average attendance during the revival was 142 with the record attendance during the two-weeks being 250 on Friday Evening of the second week. Twelve were baptized in the afternoon of June 20th in the Allegheny River at Reesdale. The twelve were received into membership the evening of the same day. Three await the rites of baptism. A sprag was placed in the wheel the first week, it being necessary for the evangelist, Rev. W. S. Benshoff, to be away during the death of his father. The writer conducted the services during the five days that Rev. Benshoff was away. The evangelist returned on Tuesday of the second week accompanied by his good wife and boys. The MILLERS and the BENSHOFFS enjoyed living in a summer home made available for the two weeks by Pittsburgh owners. The home soon took on the name "Mansion."

All in all the revival was among the most successful held at Brush Valley. The greatest of enthusiasm prevailed during the two weeks. A splendid offering was given to both the evangelist and the writer. I take this occasion, in behalf of the Brush Valley Brethren Church, to thank you good folks of the Vinco Brethren Church for loaning us your splendid pastor.

The writer will terminate his pastorate at both the Brush Valley church and the North Vandergrift on August 9th to assume the pastorate of the First Brethren Church of Berlin, Pennsylvania.

Percy C. Miller.

RAYSTOWN, PENNSYLVANIA

Some time has passed since there has been any report from this church and the work here. Although we have not been reporting, we have been busy in the work of the Master. This is the third year that we have been with the Brethren on this field. Two of them we drove from Vinco, but now we are located on the field. Our labors have not been in vain, and much has been done by the Brethren here. Our numbers are not large, but the people have a mind to work, and harmony prevails throughout the entire congregation. They had gone many years without a pastor, and when we see the loyalty of these people, though few in number, we marvel at their zeal and work.

On May 30th we started a two week Revival, which closed on June 13th. The attendance was very good throughout the entire two weeks. Many of the Brethren never missed a night of the services. It was beyond our expectations, as this is a farming district and the farmers were late with their work, due to rain and cold weather. But they put the Lord's work first and came, and their work was taken care of. The pastor acted as the evangelist, as it was requested of him to do so. But we were very fortunate in having Brother W. S. Benshoff, pastor of the Vinco Brethren Church, come and bring us a message one night. Brother Chester F. Zimmerman of the Third Brethren Church of Johnstown, also came and preached for us one night. Their messages were evangelistic and inspiring, and were enjoyed by all. The male quartet from Vinco was with us for a night. They were Brethren James I. Mackall, Jacob Mackall, Lester Leidy and Charles Byers. They brought us a wonderful message in song. To all that came we say, "Come again, and God bless you."

It is no different here than in other districts. It is very difficult to get the unsaved into the House of the Lord. Souls were saved, however, and there will be more to come later. All members of the church came and reconsecrated their lives to the work of the Master. It made the pastor's heart rejoice to see the young people step out and consecrate their lives to Christ and the work of the church. This church has a fine group of young people and they are always in their places on the Lord's Day and any time there is work to be done. When we came here there were not many young people, but now we have a very nice young people's class, and they are growing in numbers and in Spirit.

We will hold baptismal services this coming Lord's Day if the water is not too high. We use the river for our services, and the rains have prevented baptizing up to this date. Then, too, we have some to be taken into the church that have been baptized before we came on the field. Two weeks ago we held our communion services, when a goodly number gathered around the Lord's table. Brother J. L. Bowman was with us, and assisted in that service. We are always pleased to have Brother Bowman with us.

We are planning on our Homecoming in the near future, and we are looking forward to greater things in the work of the Lord, as we see new faces in the services often, and we know that others will come. Pray for the work at this place. We will give God all the Honor and Glory.

In the Master's service,

Ralph M. Singer, pastor,
Saxton, R. D., Pennsylvania.

Many a man who intended to catch whales spends his life fishing in a frog pond.

Man in his depraved and sinful state is a misfit.

Laid to Rest

WILCOX—Elsie C. Wilcox, Pittsburgh, Pennsylvania, departed this life April 22, 1948, at their home, 5548 Wellesley Avenue, in his seventy-third year. He had been a brick contractor in East End Pittsburgh for many years, where he was widely and favorably known. Failing health compelled him to retire a couple of years ago. He was an active member of the Pittsburgh Brethren Church for many years, and at the time of his death, was a member of the Church Board of Trustees. He is survived by his wife, who had worked at his side in the contracting business, and by one brother and two sisters. Funeral services were in charge of this writer, who had been Brother Wilcox's pastor up to within a month of his death. Rev. H. Lawrence Rice of the Pittsburgh Church of the Brethren, and Rev. H. E. Eppley, of Mansfield, Ohio, assisted in the last rites.

William S. Crick.

WILCOX—Sylvester N. Wilcox, Pittsburgh, departed this life November 9, 1947 in his seventy-seventh year. He had been active in the sheet metal and furnace contracting business. During his active years, he was a useful member of the Pittsburgh First Brethren Church and Sunday School. He is survived by his widow, one daughter, two grandchildren, two brothers and two sisters. Funeral services were held by the undersigned, then his pastor.

William S. Crick.

DRACH. Mrs. Flora May Drach, widow of the late John E. Drach, and a resident of New Windsor, Maryland, died unexpectedly while attending the Southeastern District Conference of the Brethren Church at Oak Hill, West Virginia. She had been in her usual state of health and was stricken with a heart attack after retiring. Death occurred Thursday, June 17, 1948 at about 3:00 A. M.

Sister Drach was born in Gettysburg, Pennsylvania, daughter of John D. and Jennie Myers Pfoutz, and was 79 years of age. Her husband preceded her in death 14 years ago. She was the last charter member of the Linwood Brethren Church. She will be greatly missed, but we do praise the Lord that our loss is her gain.

The surviving members of her family are her daughter, Miss Bertha I., at home, and a son, C. Raymond, East Lansdowne, Pa.; also a granddaughter, two sisters, Mrs. Martha Bankard, New Windsor, and Mrs. Daisy Garber, Washington, D. C., and a brother, Harvey E. Pfoutz, Franklin Grove, Illinois.

Funeral services were held at the Linwood Brethren Church. This was the first funeral held in the church since the installation of the Hammond Electric organ. Burial was in the Pipe Creek cemetery. Her pastor officiated at the services.

Elmer M. Keck.

STITELY. Joseph Emory Stitely, a retired farmer, died, June 25, 1948, at his home at McKinstry's Mill, near Linwood, Maryland. He was a son of the late George and Margaret Fillinger Stitely and was 88 years of age. His late wife was the former Florence Lambert.

Two daughters survive, Mrs. Louis Crushon, New Oxford, Pa., and Mrs. Percy Wolf, Union Bridge, Md.; ten grandchildren, also three half-sisters, Mrs. Ida Crabbe, Westminster; Mrs. Anna Dayhoff, Union Bridge, Mrs. Effie Leckrine, York, Pa.

Services were held at the H. Bankard & Son's Funeral Home in Westminster. Interment was made in the Pipe Creek Cemetery. Brother Stitely was a member of the Linwood Brethren church. The services were in charge of the undersigned.

Elmer M. Keck.

GROVE. Charles W. Grove, for many years a faithful member of the First Brethren Church of Cumberland, Maryland, and, prior to that, of the Brethren Church of Salisbury, Pennsylvania, was called home to be with Jesus on the afternoon of June 30, 1948. He was sixty-four years of age.

He was a Trustee of the Cumberland Church and founder and president of its Laymen's Organization. Several times in the last few years he was a delegate from his church to the conferences.

Funeral services were conducted in the First Brethren Church at Cumberland, by the undersigned, assisted by the Rev. Robert L. Bridgers, pastor of the Potomac Park Evangelical-United Brethren Church. The body was laid in the cemetery at Salisbury, Pennsylvania, there to await the coming of the Lord Jesus Christ, who is the Resurrection and the Life.

He is survived by his wife, who was Miss Cora Bowman of Salisbury; two sons and seven daughters; four brothers and four sisters, and seventeen grandchildren.

He had lived most of his life in his home community in Pennsylvania, and in Cumberland, Maryland. He will be greatly missed in his home, his church and his community.

Rev. Paul M. Naff, pastor.

Wedding Announcement

SWORD-CLAPPER. Candlelight enhanced the altar setting of huge vases of all white flowers including gladioli, carnations and delphinium, amid palms and ferns and candelabra, in the Louisville, Ohio, First Brethren Church, on Sunday afternoon, June 20, 1948, when, at four o'clock, Miss Shirley Joan Sword, daughter of Mrs. H. R. Sword and the late Dr. Sword of Milledgeville, Illinois, became the bride of Mr. Paul M. Clapper, son of Mr. and Mrs. L. P. Clapper of Louisville. Rev. John T. Byler, pastor of the church, officiated with the double ring ceremony.

Nuptial music preceded the exchange of vows and was presented by Miss Ruth LaVonne Clapper, soprano, sister of the bridegroom, and Miss Jean Rowsey, violinist, and Miss Marilyn Plank, organist, both of Ashland.

The bride was given in marriage by her mother. Miss Addie Ilene Oyster was Maid of Honor and Miss Marjorie Long of Orrville, Ohio, and Miss Ruth Clapper were bridesmaids. Mr. Kenneth Lyon of Washington, D. C., cousin of the groom was best man and Mr. Jack Clapper, another cousin, and Mr. Delbert Mellinger, both of Ashland, were ushers.

Following the ceremony a reception and buffet supper was served at the Clapper residence, the guests including the bridal party, relatives, the immediate neighbors, and a few close friends of the couple.

After a short honeymoon the newly weds are occupying their new apartment at 1223 East Main Street, Louisville. Mr. Clapper will be associated in business with his father, who is editor and publisher of The Louisville Herald.

The New Press Fund

GOAL—Not less than$15,000.00

Cash to date$9,296.34

*Are You Getting Ready
To Attend
The General Conference
Of
The Brethren Church
At
Ashland, Ohio
August 23-29, 1948
?*

THE BRETHREN EVANGELIST

Published weekly, except the last week in August and
the last week in December.

THE BRETHREN PUBLISHING COMPANY

Ashland, Ohio

PRUDENTIAL COMMITTEE

J. E. Stookey, President N. G. Kimmel, Vice-President
J. G. Dodds, Secretary-Treasurer

EDITOR OF PUBLICATIONS—F. C. Vanator

BUSINESS MANAGER—G. S. Baer

EDITOR MISSIONARY NUMBER—E. M. Riddle

CONTRIBUTING EDITORS

Dr. Charles A. Bame Rev. Dyoll Belote

DEPARTMENTAL EDITORS

Dr. C. F. Yoder, Brethren Doctrine
Rev. N. V. Leatherman, Practical Church Problems
Rev. J. G. Dodds, National Goals
Dr. R. F. Porte, Brethren Church History

PLEASE REMEMBER: All material for publication in the Evangelist must be in the hands of the editor at least three weeks before the desired date of publication, to assure same to appear in desired issue. This refers to announcements particularly.

TERMS OF SUBSCRIPTION: $1.50 per year in advance.
CHANGE OF ADDRESS: In ordering change of address always
give both old and new addresses.

REMITTANCES: Send all money, business communications, and contributed articles to:

THE BRETHREN PUBLISHING COMPANY
ASHLAND, OHIO

Entered as second class matter at Ashland, Ohio. Accepted for mailing
at special rate, section 1103, act of October 3, 1917. Authorized
September 3, 1928.

INTERESTING ITEMS

Miami Valley Laymen Enjoy Picnic. The Miami Valley Laymen enjoyed a picnic at the Dayton (Ohio) Y. M. C. A.'s Sinclair Park in north Dayton on Sunday afternoon and evening, July 18th. The weather was reported as "ideal," the eats as "bountiful," and the program "fine." The total attendance was reported as ninety.

Gratis, Ohio. Brother W. S. Crick, pastor of the Gratis church, reports the baptism of three more, and the confirmation and reception of eight into full membership of the church.

The Gratis garage roof recently received a coat of much needed paint. Brother Crick also reports that the redecorating fund for the church is gradually coming in.

Vinco, Pennsylvania. Brother W. S. Benshoff, pastor of the Vinco church, reports a concert by "The Deborah Singers" of the Walnut Grove Church of the Brethren, who gave a special program at the Vinco church on Sunday evening, July 11th. The service was sponsored by the W. M. S., Group II, of the church.

Our readers will remember the report of the activities of the Vinco Boys' Brotherhood with reference to soap collections for our Kentucky Mission stations. We understand that a trip is to be made by some of the boys to deliver their collection in person. The trip is to be made about the middle of September. To select those who may go, a merit system has been set up, which will include attendance at Sunday School, Christian Endeavor and Morning and Evening services. Three will finally qualify.

Change of Address. We note that Rev. H. E. Eppley's address is changed from Mansfield, Ohio, to Winona Lake, Indiana.

Louisville, Ohio. The editor had the privilege of speaking twice at the Louisville, Ohio, Church on Sunday, July 18th. The occasion in the morning was the ordaining of Mr. and Mrs. Albert Schwab and Mr. and Mrs. Galen Sluss as deacons and deaconesses. At the evening hour he also supplied for Brother John Byler, pastor of the church, who left after the morning service for Shippshewana for duty in the Camp there. We were royally entertained in the home of L. P. Clapper and family.

Ashland, Ohio. On Sunday, August 1, nine members were received into the church—five by baptism and four by letter. More are to be received at an early date.

Arrangements have been completed for the holding of the fall evangelistic campaign at the Ashland Church from November 1 to 14th. Rev. V. E. Meyer of the Waterloo, Iowa, Church, will be the evangelist.

At a recent business meeting of the Ashland Church, Brother H. H. Rowsey was given a call for another year of service. The call has been accepted.

Huntington, Indiana. A brand new Sisterhood of Mary and Martha was organized at Huntington on July 17th, with eight charter members. We are sure that this organization will grow rapidly with Mrs. Gilmer and Wanda Lou Kreiger as patronesses.

The Shippshewana campers gave their reports to the Huntington church on July 18th, at the morning service. There were eighty present to hear this program. Five intermediate girls made the good confession at this service and were baptized and received into the church on the following Wednesday. Camps really pay, don't you think?

Brother Gilmer reports that 122 enjoyed a program rendered by The Pleasant View Gospel Four on Sunday evening, July 18th. The offering was $31.00, out of which the Laymen received $19.00 toward their projects. One of the quartet was Herbert R. Gilmer, Brother C. Y. Gilmer's youngest brother.

Waterloo, Iowa. The Waterloo Laymen recently elected Glenn Brown, president; Oran Gnagy, Vice-President; and John Reininga, Secretary-Treasurer. The laymen are doing a mighty fine job of keeping their Boys' Brotherhood interested by "Big-brothering" them.

August 8th has been set apart as the time for the hold-

(Continued on page 14)

The Editor Thinks Aloud

Fred C. Vanator

RELIGIOUS "SNAPS"

THIS LITTLE STORY is quite short and to the point. A very lazy man was under conviction at a revival service, and stayed after the benediction to talk to the pastor. Seemingly he saw the "light" and made a confession of sin. When the minister, who was a wise pastor, knowing how necessary it was for a new convert to be instructed in his duties to the Lord, explained that, as a follower of the Master, he must now work and pray. The man began to pray at once, but this was the manner of his prayer, "O Lord, I want to come into your service. Please find me a place in an advisory capacity."

Now we will not vouch for the truthfulness of this story, but it is one that carried thought that Set me to thinking!

How like men to want something for nothing. So many want to receive the blessings of God, but do not want to do anything that will show their appreciation.

We are reminded of the man who applied at the railroad employment office for a "job." He was asked what his preference was as to the type of work he would like. He answered after this fashion, "Well, you know that man that goes along the side of the train when it stops at the station. He carries a little hammer and pounds on the wheels and the boxing of the shafts." The employment agent looked a little puzzled, but he explained that these men had to have a great deal of experience to do that sort of work. "O, I don't want to do that part of it; I just want to help him listen."

How illustrative of so many "church members." (Note that I did not say "Christians.") A Christian does not want to just "listen"—he wants to work. He does not want to be a mere "adviser"—he wants to "tap" the working parts of the machinery to see that they are all in safe running order.

It is interesting to search the Bible for terms that signify work—"Work, labor, help" and many others. Each term carries with it the idea of "really doing something worth while." There is no place in the whole economy of Christianity for a "religious loafer." There are no "snaps" in Christian living—it is a constant battle against the "powers of evil, and the rulers of darkness" even in high places.

Jesus said, "I must work the works of Him that sent me while it is day; the night cometh when no man can work." He also said, "As the Father hath sent me, so send I you." Jesus was "sent to work"; and it is expected that ALL Christians do the same—and it is no "snap."

Think it over!

The thorn of pain often grows on the rose of pleasure.

Business Manager's Corner

George S. Baer

Sacrifice Will Win

WHEN CHRIST'S PEOPLE undertake in a sacrificial spirit, any work for Him, He will see it through. When they do that they are in dead earnest; they have faith that Christ can honor; they place His work first; they do not stop with their share, but go on to their privilege; they are ready to follow where their Lord leads, even to the point of sacrifice. Such qualities put them in the center of His will. That is the place where Christ can use them and accomplish His works. That is why sacrifice will win.

But how many of the Lord's people live on that high plane? How many will receive a call to sacrifice without feeling that they are being overburdened, or taken advantage of? Some of you may say "not many." But we would reply, "Many more than you think." We have so often been surprised by generous responses to appeals for the Lord's work in many different fields that we have come to have great faith in the Lord's people.

The response that has been made, and is still being made, to the call for a July "Sacrifice Offering" for the Press and Equipment Fund, is an example that gives ground to such faith. Many of these good people had already given to this fund during the year, but when the additional need was presented, they made additional gifts. And they were sacrificial gifts—great numbers of them, for in many cases we knew the givers.

And they have their reward—a great, deep, abiding joy. Jesus said, "I came that your joy might be full, and that my joy might be in you." His supreme delight was to do His Father's will; it was His "meat and drink." We may follow Him in seeking to know and to do in ever-increasing measure the will of God for each one of our lives and thus build into our hearts something of His yearning for sacrifice and service. So may we enter into a fellowship of His joy.

Recent Sacrifice Gifts for the Press

Mrs. Eula Jean Smith, Ashland, Ohio	$ 1.00
Mr. and Mrs. Harry E. Johnson, New Lebanon, O.	5.00
Two Friends, Muncie, Indiana	50.00
Mrs. G. E. Bell, Johnstown, Pa., Second	2.00
Mrs. Grace B. Bikle, Hagerstown, Md.	5.00
Rev. S. E. Christiansen and family, Georgetown, Del.	10.00
Mr. and Mrs. G. C. Manning, Bryan, Ohio	40.00
F. S. Beeghly, Ventura, Calif.	25.00
Robert A. Bailey, Elkhart, Indiana	2.50
Mary Carpenter, Peru, Indiana	25.00
Rev. Robert K. Higgins, Bunker Hill, Indiana.	2.00
Warsaw, Indiana, Laymen	40.00
Scott A. Shannon, Hamlin, Kansas	10.00
Roy J. Jones, Washington, D. C.	5.00

(Continued on page 14)

The Laity and Evangelism

WE WANT TO TALK a little bit about the laymen and his relation to evangelism. How often is the entire matter of evangelism laid at the door of the pastor, with the thought that he is about the only one that is able to do the work of setting up the meeting, and the advancement of all the plans that go with it. This, too often, has been the characteristic of revivals. But now, when many churches are planning their meetings for the fall and winter, it is good for us to stop and think about revivals in general.

Take the first great revival which began on the day of Pentecost, for example. The book of the New Testament which gives us the history of this meeting is called The Acts of the Apostles, or more rightly just "Acts of Apostles." Someone has said, "Acts of the Apostles! This is a complete misnomer. Acts of the Holy Spirit, if you will, but Acts of Apostles—certainly not! The history of that book is the history of the whole church, apostles and members alike. The lion's share of the successes of this period must be put to the credit of the membership."

There is surely a modicum of truth in the above statement. Let us take one text, Acts 8:1, "And at that time there was a great persecution against the church which was at Jerusalem, and they were all scattered abroad throughout the regions of Judea and Samaria, except the apostles." Except the Apostles! Then the propagation of the gospel must have ceased? Not a bit of it. Look at the fourth verse, "Therefore they that were scattered abroad went everywhere preaching the Word." The work of the early church then, was not wholly dependent on the apostles, but was shared by the whole church, even as it should be today.

The revival of 1859 was unique in relation to laymen. Four young laymen—Wallace, McQuilkin, Carlisle and Meneely—were the chief pioneers of the movement throughout the territory where this revival took place. They gave themselves wholly to it. And it prospered. We read, "In the revival of the eighteenth century, God gave great prominence to two clergymen—Wesley and Whitefield—and in the great evangelistic upheaval of Scotland Dr. Chalmers was prominent; but in Ulster the weavers of Kells and Connor were God's chosen instruments in shaking the province from its slumber."

For many years the employment of laymen in the work of evangelism was strongly opposed. The propagation of the gospel was looked upon as a monopoly of a special caste, while the zeal of Christian laymen was denounced as a dangerous innovation. Even John Wesley, at first a High Churchman, looked upon the preaching of laymen with horror. When Thomas Maxfield, one of his converts, began to preach, all the tendency to emphasize the sacred office of the clergy took fire, and he bitterly resented the attempt. But he had a very wise mother and she took the "priestly" young man to task, saying, "John, take care what you do with respect to that young man, for he is surely called by God to preach the gospel as you are." And Wesley yielded and it was the real beginning of lay preachers.

In a pamphlet which was written during the 1850's has the following which was aimed to stem the flowing tide of lay activity. Among the chief points in this pamphlet are the following:

"1. Teaching and preaching are strictly official acts in the Church of Christ.

"2. The prevalence of lay preaching has always been connected with the spread of error, irregularity and extravagance. I grant you there is need of caution and supervision in the employment of converts. Paul apprehended this when he said, 'Not a novice lest being lifted up with pride, he fall into condemnation of the devil'."

But more and more the layman is coming into the place that is really meant that he should occupy. The divine program is aptly expressed in the words of the writer of the Hebrew letter where he says in chapter eight, verse eleven, "And they shall not teach every man his neighbor, and every man his brother, saying, Know the Lord, for all shall know me, from the least to the greatest." The task of the Christian, whether he be of the ministry or of the laity, is to bring the message of the blessed Word to his fellowman, both by the words which he speaks and also by the life which he lives.

There is a great responsibility which lies in the very laps of the laymen of the church—a task which says that there is both opportunity and obligation in the church as it goes forward in the task of saving men and women, boys and girls, for the continued advance of the work of Christ who gave Himself over entirely to the work of evangelization by every means that came to His command.

The Brethren Church

Moderator, L. O. McCartneysmith

- - What Does It Need Most?

JUST HOW may we discover what our greatest need is? To discover what we as Brethren need most, we must examine ourselves by taking an introspective view of ourselves. The apostle urged the Corinthian Church to "Examine yourselves, whether ye be in the Faith: prove your own selves" (2 Cor. 13:5). If it were necessary for these early Christians to prove themselves, is it not also essential that we examine ourselves? This I believe we can do by correctly formulating answers to the following questions:

1. Who are we, and what are we?
2. What is our Commission?
3. What confronts us?
4. Where do we stand?
5. What do we need most to meet the challenge of our task?

I. Who and What Are We?

1. We are not a Denomination. To denominate means to give a name. We were not given a name by man; neither were we given man made doctrines and ordinances. The Lord Jesus and the Holy Spirit gave both our name, our doctrines and our ordinances to us! I am sorry to say that no other church can truthfully make such a claim as this. "Denomination" refers to "sects," and we are not a sect. As evidence of our Christ-given name I refer you to the gospels and epistles dictated by the Holy Spirit called the members of the Churches "Brethren," and "Saints."

2. The Brethren are a body of baptized (or dipped) believers who accept the Christian Doctrines set forth in the New Testament as their only rule of Faith, and who believe in and practise the observance of all the holy ordinances established by Jesus Christ and his apostles. Our motto is "The Bible, the whole Bible, and nothing but the Bible." In other words, we are the New Testament Church. As such we should rejoice that we find no occasion to offer apologies for either a single doctrine we believe, or ordinance we practise. We know that all of our doctrines and ordinances are Christ-given and are therefore eternal; therefore there is no need for any apology.

II. What Is Our Commission As Brethren?

Again we must go to the New Testament for an answer. God did not commission us to set up a great social order, as some would have us believe. Objective IV of the International Council of Religious Education, which sets up our International Sunday School Lessons, tells us that this is the commission of Christian Education: "Christian education seeks to develop in growing persons the ability and disposition to participate in and contribute constructively to the building of a social order throughout the whole world embodying the ideal of the Fatherhood of God and the brotherhood of man." The Jesus Christ that I know had nothing whatever to do with the above declaration, because we find in His own words in Matthew 28:18-20 His Great Commission to His people: "Go, disciple all nations, dipping them into the name of the Father, and of the Son, and of the Holy Ghost; teaching them to observe all, whatsoever I have charged you." That is what we have been commissioned to do, and not a word was said about building a "social order" throughout the whole world embodying the Fatherhood of God and the brotherhood of man."

1. Christ has entrusted to us the task of evangelization of mankind throughout the world, that through the Good News of eternal Salvation that they might believe that Jesus is the Christ, and that believing they might have eternal life. It is not a social order, but a great Spiritual Empire that he seeks through us to establish in this sinful world.

2. But this is not all. He has commissioned us to "teach them to observe all, whatsoever I have charged you." This is the presentation of the Christ-given doctrines and ordinances to baptised believers. We are to "earnestly contend for the Faith once for all delivered unto the Saints." That does not mean making a compromise about our Faith. It does not mean that we shall "soft-pedal" our doctrines and ordinances. Unless we fulfill these orders we have no right to claim the promise of Christ connected with this Great Commission: "And lo, I am with you all the days, even until the end of the ages."

3. Lack of numbers should not discourage us. We are small, and we know it; but let us remember that with 11 men Jesus Christ broke the great Roman Empire. We cannot boast of a great "front," but we can and do boast of a Great Saviour! We have been called "narrow" and "old-fashioned" because we believe in and undertake to do what the Lord Jesus has commissioned us to do; but we can afford to be called "small" and "old-fashioned" if in so being we please our Lord and Master!

4. How small are we? As to numbers we are divided into 7 areas or Districts as follows:

(a) The Southeastern District, comprised of 15 churches, 11 active pastors, and 2764 members, no vacancies.

(b) The Pennsylvania District, with 20 churches, 13 pastors, 7 vacancies, and 2561 members.

(c) The Ohio District, which has 21 churches, 16 active pastors, 5 vacancies, and 3595 members.

(d) The Indiana District, with 31 churches, 28 active pastors, 2 vacancies, and 6951 members.

(e) The Central District, with 5 congregations, 5 active pastors, no vacancies, and 999 members.

(f) The Mid-west District, with 8 churches, 7 active pastors, 1 vacancy, and 684 members.

(g) The Northern California District, with 4 congregations, 2 active pastors, 2 vacancies, and 462 members, making a total of: 104 Congregations; 17,586 Members; 82 Active Pastors; 15 Vacancies.

A gain of 1269 members was made in 1946-47, and we are hoping for a greater gain 1947-48. This gain averages 12 members per church, with a gain of 33 members in this district.

Our Properties Consist Of:

Ashland College and Seminary.

The Brethren Publishing Company and Buildings.

The Brethren Home.

Ashland College and Seminary are known throughout the North Central Association of Colleges and Universities, of which it is a member, as an outstanding Christian College and Seminary, of which every Brethren should feel proud. We have just recently completed a new building in which we have housed the Brethren Publishing Company and our Missionary Board Offices. Here we have just installed a new $16,000.00 press, which is more than half paid for to date. Last, but not least, is our Brethren Home for the aged Brethren members and ministers at Flora, Indiana, situated on a large farm just outside the limits of the town of Flora; all of which is free of indebtedness excepting the balance due on the printing press and the Publishing House Building.

Four new Church Buildings are now in process of construction, one of which was dedicated at Nappanee, Indiana, last Lord's Day.

We have much to be thankful for in the Argentine Mission field where under direction of Dr. Charles Yoder, several native workers aided by our own missionaries are planning to establish several new points this year to add to those already gained. I listened to the address of one of our young missionaries who is to go to the Argentine next October 14th, in which he made this statement, which I consider a great challenge to Brethren people everywhere: "In the country where I am going there is only one missionary for each 38,000 people, and elsewhere in Argentina there is only 1 missionary to each 50,000 people."

III. As The New Testament Church, What Confronts Us Today?

The Early Christian Church was confronted with sin on every side, greatly encouraged by a Legalistic Jewish attitude and a hostile pagan Roman government, zealously jealous of their own numerous pagan deities. Yet believing with Paul that: "I can do all things through Christ which strengtheneth me," (Phil. 4:13, the Church triumphed! This should be encouraging to us.

1. Today we are confronted with a careless, sinful unsaved and condemned world. Relative to this condemned world Christ gives us the challenge to "Go, disciple all nations, dipping them, (not sprinkling) into the name of the Father, and of the Son, and of the Holy Ghost, teaching them to observe all, whatsoever I have charged you." To give you some idea of the task before us I quote from

J. Edgar Hoover, head of the Federal Bureau of Investigation, Washington, D. C.: "Last year a major crime was committed every 23 seconds. More persons were murdered within the United States than there were casualties at Tarawa. A robbery occurred every 12 minutes, a burglary every 2 minutes, a larceny every 39 seconds, and an automobile stolen every 3 minutes. Remember that 13 per cent of all murderers arrested were under 21 years of age, as were 39 per cent of all robbers, 55 per cent of all burglars, 37 per cent of all thieves. In fact, nearly 23 per cent of all persons arrested last year were under voting age. More boys, 17 years of age, and more girls 18 years of age, were arrested than in any other age group. The country is in deadly peril. We have won the war, but may still lose freedom for all in America. For a creeping rot of moral and spiritual disintegration is eating into our nation." The burden of lifting this great pall from the world rests upon the Church. No others have anything to offer. The hope rests with real Christians.

2. As Brethren, We Face a Powerful Apostate Church Organization. The leadership of this organization is, according to its own statements, socialistic and communistic in its plans, and infidelistic in its doctrines. Through its various outlets of propaganda it sets forth the doctrine that "All men and women and children of all races and nationalities are sons and daughters of God, and all men belong to a great universal brotherhood." It is, according to the United States Department of Naval Intelligence: "A large pacifist organization. It probably represents 20 million Protestants in the U. S. A. However its leadership consists of a small radical group which dictates its policies. It is always extremely active in any matter against national defense." Dr. W. B. Riley, Pres. Northwestern Bible Institute has this to say: "As I have shown you, the Federal Council is not, as the words 'Churches of Christ,' would indicate, a body of born-again followers of the Son of God, but the friend and co-worker of Communists and atheists, both sworn enemies of the Church."

Among its leaders are those who deny the Virgin Birth, the Atonement, Miracles, the Divinity of Jesus, and the Inspiration of the Scriptures. Mr. Taft present president of this organization says that they are not convinced that "the old-time religion" is a solution to our modern problems. Bishop Oxnam a former president speaks of God as a "dirty bully." Dr. George Buttrick a former president is said to have gone out of his way to explain that he does not believe in the resurrection of Jesus Christ. Bishop Francis McConnell, past president says that the tendency to "deify" Jesus Christ is more heathen than Christian. Dr. Ivan Lee Holt, past president says that the doctrine of the Virgin Birth, Atonement and Resurrection cannot satisfy, and offers instead the doctrine that every human being is a child of God and that God values and helps us all as we value and help one another. Harry Emerson Fosdick, radio mouthpiece for the organization says: "Of course I do not believe in the Virgin Birth, or the old-fashioned substitutionary doctrine of the Atonement."

Membership of this organization must undoubtedly believe as these leaders do, or else they would not select and elect them to these positions.

IV. Where Do We As The New Testament Church Stand?

Facing such conditions we must take a stand. Shall we heed the counsel of Paul? "Be on the watch. Stand firm in the Faith. Act like men. Show yourselves strong." (American Trans. 1 Cor. 16:13), or Shall we take the stand with many, that one church is just as good as another, and it makes no difference what church one belongs to, just so one belongs to some church; that we are all going to the same place, and the only difference is that we are going by different routes? That the modernist is on one road and the Fundamentalist on another, yet they will go to the same place. But will they?

Where Do We Stand? Are we Modernists? Are we Liberals? Are we conservatives? Are we Fundamentalists? Are we Radicals? Are we Middle-of-the-rovers? (Mug-wumps).

Some of you may say: "Why bring all this up?" Simply because you should know the truth about what we face as the New Testament Church. Jesus Christ said: "And ye shall know the truth, and the truth will make you free." But some people will get mad if you tell them the truth!

In response to the above questions may I ask several more?

1. Is the teaching of Jesus in the New Testament Modernistic? Is it Liberal? 3. Is it Middle-of-the-road-er? 4. Is it Conservative? 5. Is it Fundamental? 6. Is it Radical?

To the first three I shall reply with an emphatic "NO!" The New Testament is neither Modernistic, Liberal, nor Middle-of-the-road in either doctrine or ordinances.

To the last three questions I shall offer an irrefutable "YES!" The teaching of Jesus Christ and the apostles are not only Conservative but also Fundamental and Radical! The correct definitions to these several words testify to the truthfulness of this asserion. Let us see.

"Conservative: Having power to save in a safe or entire state from loss, waste or injury." Thank God, the New Testament alone contains the message of such Salvation! Therefore it's conservative!

"Fundamental: Pertaining to the foundation or basis; serving for the foundation; serving as the groundwork for a system; essential, original." "How firm a foundation, ye Saints of the Lord, is laid for your Faith in His excellent Word!"

"Radical: Pertaining to the root or origin; reaching to the center; to the foundation; to the ultimate sources; fundamental, original.

For purposes of contrast let us look at the definition of Modernism, and Modernist. "Modernism: opposed to the ancient; modern practice; of recent date." There's nothing new nor of recent date about God's word. It's ancient and not modern in the least! "Modernist: One who admires the moderns or their ways and fashions."

Where Do We Stand? I am happy to say that if we have a single modernistic minister I know nothing about his existence among the Brethren! I know of no other church that can truthfully make such claim. Therefore we should be proud of our Brethren ministry!

We cannot take the "Middle-of-the road stand, because we all know that when the pendulum stays in that position between the two extremes, the clock always stops, and becomes useless!

Facing these great crises we must take a stand. In the words of Joshua: "Choose you this day whom ye will serve," rings out clearly. As the New Testament Church, we must hold fast its doctrines and ordinances. We must "Earnestly contend for the Faith once for all delivered to the Saints." We must hold high the Banner of the Cross. "It must not, it must not suffer loss!"

1. Do you know of anything possessed by denominationalism that we need? Have they any doctrines or ordinances that we need? Have they anything in common with us? Can we endorse their doctrines and ordinances and remain New Testament Christians? If they reject the New Testament doctrines and ordinances can we have fellowship with them? The prophet Amos asks the question: "Can two walk together, except they be agreed?" (Amos 3:3). Paul counseled the Corinthians: "Be ye not unequally yoked together with unbelievers; for what fellowship hath righteous with unrighteousness?" (2 Cor. 6:14).

What Do We Need Most?

1. We need a revival of teaching and preaching the distinctive doctrines of the New Testament. Far too many of our people have no reason to offer for being Brethren, and too often become victims of the idea that one church is just as good as another. Peter tells us: "But sanctify the Lord God in your hearts; and be ready always to give an answer to every man that asketh you a reason of the hope that is within you, with meekness and fear" (1 Peter 3:15). To be able to do this we must know the New Testament Doctrines of Christianity.

2. We Need to rebuild the Altars of Prayer that have been broken down, and use them daily. Prayer not only "changes things," but it changes men and women. If each of the 17,586 Brethren in our church were praying daily and earnestly we could sweep this world with a great revival! Let us pray without ceasing. Look what 120 Brethren accomplished in just a 10 day prayer meeting at Pentecost!

3. We Need an Increase in Our Faith. "Without faith it is impossible to please God."

4. We Need to Greatly Increase our Home Mission Field. We must have more new congregations in order to support a broader foreign work. Where do we plan to use our seminary graduates unless we have more churches? I believe we now have some 40 or more in this course.

5. To accomplish these things we must have more of the Apostolic zeal for lost souls. We are not satisfied to sit idly and watch the great procession of lost souls going down into eternity without Christ and His Salvation.

6. We Need A Greater Vision for Service for God. "Where there is no vision the people perish." We must not only see the green fields far away, but let us look at the fields at our feet "White for the harvest, and the laborers so few." Let us not only see the black man in Africa and pray for the redemption of his soul; but let

(Continued on bottom of next page)

Ancient Writing and the Pentateuch

Edward L. Yanchus

THERE IS archaeological evidence of writing before the middle of the fourth millenium B. C. in both Mesopotamia and Egypt. In the former country, the earliest writing was pictographic and cuneiform; in the latter, hieroglyphic and hieratic.

In Mesopotamia, excavations at Tell El-Ohemir (Kish) and Tell El-Muqaiyir (Ur) uncovered pictographic clay tablets that go back to about 3700 B. C. Tablets from the library of a temple built by Aannipadda (c. 3600 B. C.) were dug up at Tell El-Obeid (near Ur). At Jemdet Nasr, tablets going back to about 3500 B. C. were brought to light. More than 50,000 tablets, dating from the fourth millenium to the fifth century B. C., were discovered at Niffer (Nippur). Over 30,000 (from houses) contain business records, while more than 20,000 (from a temple library) preserve numerous school exercises as well as technical, literary, and religious texts. At the same site were found a number of articles bearing inscriptions, such as the stone vases of Utug (c. 3400 B. C.), Urzaged (c. 3400 B. C.), Enshagkushanna (c. 3300 B. C.), Lugal-Zaggisi (c. 2900 B. C.), and Rimush (c. 2800 B. C.), the plaque of Ur-Enlil (c. 3400 B. C.), the stone blocks of Lugal-Kigub-Nidudu (c. 3300 B. C.), and the door-sockets of Sargon (c. 2850 B. C.). An archive of over 30,000 tablets (business documents), dating from about 3100 to 2300 B. C., was excavated at Telloh (Lagash). Other inscribed objects from Telloh include a mace-head of Mesilim (c. 3400 B. C.), steles of Lugal-Kisalsi (c. 3300 B. C.) and Eannatum (c. 3050 B. C.), four plaques of Ur-Nina (c. 3100 B. C.), door-sockets of Enannatum I (c. 3000 B. C.) and II (c. 2950 B. C.), a silver vase of Entemena (c. 3000 B. C.), a statue of Ur-Bau (c. 2700 B. C.), and eighteen statues of Gudea (c. 2600 B. C.). Several thousand tablets that go back to the fourth millenium B. C. were discovered at Bismya (Adab). At the same site were found an inscribed statue of Lugal-Dalu (c. 3200 B. C.) and a vase with the inscription of Mebasi (c. 3200 B. C.). Tablets going back to about 3200 B. C. were brought to light at Warka (Erech), while those uncovered at Fara (Shuruppak) date from about 3000 to 2300 B. C. Three inscribed pillars, the Obelisk of Manishtusu (c. 2800 B. C.) the Stele of Naram-Sin (c. 2800 B. C.), and the Code of Hammurabi (c. 2100 B. C.), were found at Susa (Shushan).

us see also the American variety and lead him to the feet of Jesus.

Conclusion: How shall we meet these needs?

Let us not forget the text: "But my God shall supply all your need according to His riches in Glory by Christ Jesus." Let us have no doubt about where the means are coming from, or how the work will be done. Let us trust Him, because He is able, and has made this promise. Therefore let us renew our vows to Him, and then go forward!

In Egypt, excavations in the royal tombs at Abydos revealed a number of articles bearing early hieroglyphs. Among these are the pottery jars of Ro (c. 3550 B. C.) and Ka (c. 3500 B. C.), the ebony labels of Aha (c. 3450 B. C.), the steles of Zer (c. 3450 B. C.), Za (c. 3400 B. C.), Qa-Sen (c. 3550 B. C.), and Perabsen (c. 3300 B. C.), the ivory plaques of Senti (c. 3400 B. C.), and the stone vases of Azab (c. 3400 B. C.), Raneb (c. 3350 B. C.), and Neteren (c. 3300 B. C.) Various inscribed objects, such as a mace-head of the "Scorpion" (c. 3500 B. C.), the Palette of Narmer (c. 3500 B. C.), two statutes of Khasekhem (c. 3200 B. C.), and a door-jamb of Khasekhemui (c. 3200 B. C.), were discovered at Hieraconpolis. Reliefs found at Wadi Maghara, Sinai, bear the inscriptions of Semerkhet (c. 3350 B. C.), Zoser (c. 3200 B. C.), Sanekht (c. 3150 B. C.), Nebka (c. 3150 B. C.), Huni (c. 3100 B. C.), Snefru (c. 3100 B. C.), Khufu (c. 3100 B. C.), Sahure (c. 2950 B. C.), and Assa (c. 2850 B. C.) Inscribed statues of Hetepsekhemui (c. 3350 B. C.), Raenuser (c. 2900 B. C.), and Menkauhor (c. 2900 B. C.) were excavated at Saqqara. Other statutes dug up at the same site include figures of six scribes of the Vth Dynasty (c. 2950-2800 B. C.). Inscriptions dating from about 2850 to 2700 B. C. have been found on the interior walls of the royal pyramids at Saqqara. Sealings from Bet Khallaf bear the names of four scribes of the court of Zoser (c. 3200 B. C.). About twenty inscribed statues of Khafre (c. 3050 B. C.) and Menkaure (c. 3000 B. C.) were discovered at Giza. Papyrus Prisse (at Paris), of the XIIIth Dynasty (c. 2200-2000 B. C.), contains two moral treatises which were written in the reigns of Huni (c. 3100 B. C.) and Assa (c. 2850 B. C.). A king list completed about 2900 B. C. is inscribed on the Palermo Stone.

Archaeological evidence of ancient writing is not confined to Mesopotamia and Egypt. In India, excavations at Harappa and Mohenjo-Daro disclosed over a thousand inscribed seals and amulets of the period from about 3000 to 2000 B. C. Hundreds of seals and sealings as well as labels and tablets, dating from about 3000 to 1200 B. C., were dug up on the Island of Crete. In Cappadocia, several hundred tablets that date from 2400 to 1900 B. C. were brought to light.

The evidence of archeology also reveals the existence of Semitic, or proto-Hebraic, writing as early as the third millenium B. C. and of archaic Hebrew writing as early as the fourteenth century B. C. At Byblus (Gabal), Syria, Dunand uncovered (1930) pieces of stone and copper with unusual hieroglyphs. According to Dunand, the writing is Semitic and its date no later than 2200 B. C. Inscriptions generally assigned to the XII Dynasty (c. 2200-2000 B. C.) were found by Petrie at the turquoise mines of Serabit El-Khadim, Sinai. They represent a hieroglyphic alphabetical script that may be termed photo-Hebraic. A potsherd discovered at Gezer, Palestine, is inscribed with similar characters. Several hundred tablets, bearing cuneiform alphabetical inscriptions, were excavated (1929-1939) by Schaeffer at Ras Shamra (Ugarit), Syria. The script, though differing from that at Sinai, may also be termed proto-Hebraic. Similar characters appear on a tablet dug up at Beth Shemash, Palestine. Ostraka from Beth Shemesh and Gezer, with writing somewhat like that at Sinai but closer to Hebrew, have been assigned to the fourteenth century B. C. A few bearing an archaic Hebrew inscription was found (1934) by Starkey at Tell Duweir (Lachish), Palestine. The script is related to that of the Beth Shemesh and Gezer ostraka but is of a later date (c. 1300 B. C.) in its development. Similar characters are inscribed on three other fragments from Tell Duweir. At Byblus, Montet discovered (1924) a sarcophagus with an inscription in an early form of Hebrew. The sarcophagus is that of Ahiram, King of Gebal, and has been generally assigned to the early thirteenth century B. C. The script is about four centuries earlier than the ancient Hebrew writing of the Samaritan ostraka and the Moabite Stone. Still later (near the end of the eighth century B. C.) is the inscription in Old Hebrew at the Pool of Siloam.

In the new light of archaeological testimony, the old argument that Moses (c. 1520-1400 B. C.*) could not have written the Pentateuch, because writing was unknown in his day, is altogether invalid. Since evidence of writing goes back to at least 2,000 years before his day, Moses not only could have written the Pentateuch but could have drawn on historical records written during the two preceding milleniums. Furthermore, since evidence of archaic Hebrew writing goes back to his day, Moses could well have written his five books in an early form of Hebrew. "And Moses wrote this Law; and delivered it unto the priests, the sons of Levi, which bare the Ark of the Covenant of the Lord, and unto all the elders of Israel," (Deut. 31:9). To the "higher critics," whose theories of an oral transmission of parts of the Pentateuch to the time of Ezra were originally based on the false premise that writing was unknown in the time of Moses, we add the testimony of Christ: "For had ye believed Moses, ye would have believed Me: for he wrote of Me." (John 5:46).

*The date given for Moses is based on the results of excavations (1930-1933) by Garstang (for Marston) at the site of ancient Jericho. In a cemetery near the city, 165 Egyptian scarabs were dug up. None are later than the reign of Amenhetep III (c. 1413-1377 B. C.). This and other evidence would place the fall of Jericho (and the death of Moses) at about 1400 B. C. See Marston's "New Bible Evidence from the 1925-1933 Excavations," published by Fleming H. Revell Co. (New York and London, 1935).

(1607 South California Avenue, Chicago 8, Illinois)

"The teaching of Jesus hits us where we live. We cannot stand as humbugs before Him for one second."

The surest way to miss the wrong road is to travel diligently the right road.

A man may have much, know much, and say much, without being much himself.

Brethren Youth

ATTENTION

NORTHEASTERN OHIO BRETHREN YOUTH

ANNOUNCING

A Brethren Youth Rally at Williamstown

Saturday, August 21st

Time: 11:00 A. M. throughout the day.

Free Lunch at the noon hour

Banquet in the evening

The meeting will carry a General Missionary emphasis, having as its main speakers

Rev. and Mrs. R. O. Byler

Missionaries-elect to South America

There will be games and recreation, too

Hold this date open

IMPORTANT NOTICE

ANNUAL SHAREHOLDERS' MEETING

of The

BRETHREN PUBLISHING COMPANY

The annual meeting of the shareholders of The Brethren Publishing Company will be held Wednesday morning, August 25, 1948, at 10:15 o'clock, at Ashland, Ohio, in the Conference Auditorium, in connection with the General Conference of The Brethren Church, as provided in the Code of Regulations, Article II, Section 1.

Article II of the Code of Regulations states that "All members of the National Conference of The Brethren Churches, in good standing, are known and hereinafter designated as The Shareholders." This notice constitutes the official notice to all shareholders.

The purpose of the meeting is to receive reports of the officers of the Corporation, to elect Directors, and to care for such unfinished or new holders." This notice constitutes the official notice in accordance with the Code of Regulations.

J. E. Stookey, President

J. G. Dodds, Secretary.

Date of meeting—August 25, 1948.

Report of White Gift Offering

1947 - 1948

CHURCHES

North Georgetown, Ohio	$ 36.72
Morrill, Kansas	53.81
Burlington, Indiana	127.96
Oakville, Indiana	100.00
County Line, Indiana	12.00
Tiosa, Indiana	26.50
Gretna, Ohio	100.00
Terra Alta, West Virginia	19.95
Flora, Indiana	174.00
Louisville, Ohio	106.25
Mexico, Indiana	130.00
Milford, Indiana	110.00
Milledgeville, Illinois	263.19
Mansfield, Ohio	29.76
Carleton, Nebraska	50.00
Firestone Brethren, Akron, Ohio	13.95
Nappanee, Indiana	164.98
Oak Hill, West Virginia	35.00
Mulvane, Kansas	42.25
Denver, Indiana	50.00
Cerro Gordo, Illinois	44.82
Manteca, California	27.45
Bryan, Ohio	300.00
Udell, Iowa	19.28
Teegarden, Indiana	21.25
Akron, Indiana	12.50
St. James, Maryland	49.53
New Paris, Indiana	188.84
Hagerstown, Maryland	367.85
Fair Haven, Ohio	52.60
West Alexandria, Ohio	47.10
Williamstown, Ohio	74.05
Falls City, Nebraska	147.97
Valley Brethren, Jones Mills, Pa.	27.00
Cameron, West Virginia	12.10
Maurertown, Virginia	38.00
Cambria, Indiana	6.50
College Corner, Indiana	59.24
Johnstown Second, Pa.	30.00
Mt. Olivet, Del.	27.00
Smithville, Ohio	293.33
Ashland, Ohio	287.95
Ardmore, Indiana	76.67
Pleasant Hill, Ohio	66.65
Calvary, New Jersey	5.00
Meyersdale, Pa.	98.00
Dutchtown, Indiana	15.00
Bethlehem, Virginia	41.98
Mt. Olive, Virginia	53.18
Glenford, Ohio	45.00
Canton, Ohio	17.65
Highland, Pa.	32.00
Center Chapel W. M. S., Indiana	19.53
Roanoke, Indiana	27.00
Mt. Pleasant, Pa.	11.50

Conemaugh, Pa.	53.00
Roann, Indiana	133.69
Summit Mills, Pa.	19.00
Sergeantsville, New Jersey	10.00
Johnstown Third, Pa.	78.34
Masontown, Pa.	69.10
Brush Valley, Pa.	43.00
Corinth, Indiana	40.49
North Liberty, Indiana	27.82
South Bend, Indiana	103.63
Gratis, Ohio	59.43
Waynesboro, Pa.	25.00
Muncie, Indiana	19.50
New Lebanon, Ohio	356.75
Uniontown, Pa.	111.50
Quiet Dell, West Va.	11.50
Berlin, Pa.	220.00
Johnstown First, Pa.	66.00
North Vandergrift, Pa.	30.75
Dayton, Ohio	117.20
Fort Scott, Kansas	8.68
Cumberland, Maryland	37.25
Vinco, Pa.	112.93
Peru, Indiana	29.50
Elkhart, Indiana	250.00
Lathrop, California	9.00
Pittsburgh, Pa.	141.70
Loree, Indiana	42.10
Huntington, Indiana	8.00
North Manchester, Indiana	150.00
Goshen, Indiana	249.52
Waterloo, Iowa	225.00
Lanark, Illinois	200.00
Linwood, Maryland	26.00

TOTAL FROM CHURCHES$7,435.25

INDIVIDUAL GIFTS

Ida Himiller	$ 2.00
Agnes Lemon	3.00
Miss Estella Blackstone	5.00
Rev. Lester Myers	1.00
W. S. Bell	10.00
Mr. and Mrs. A. M. Erbaugh	10.00
Ora E. Jones	2.00
Mr. and Mrs. H. B. Imboden	25.00
Mrs. F. D. Rodabaugh	3.00
H. J. Riner	10.00
Mrs. Ida Beard	1.50
Mrs. Stella Campbell	5.00
Mr. and Mrs. C. R. Swihart	5.00
Annabelle Merrifield	2.00
Mr. and Mrs. H. H. Merritt	5.00
Mrs. Levi Stuckey	5.00

TOTAL INDIVIDUAL GIFTS$ 94.50

Church Gifts$7,435.25

TOTAL$7,529.75

M. A. Stuckey, Treasurer
The National Sunday School
Association of the Brethren Church.

Our Poet's Corner

RECOMPENSE

H. A. Gossardf

If instead of a frown
 We contribute a smile,
 Or banish a grouch
 By a kindness worthwhile,
 Or live with our kind
 O'er our own backyard fence
 That they shall conclude
 We have nearly horse sense,
 If instead of one mile
 Out of two we go twain,
 Our soul's recompense should
 Be wealth without stain.

If we bend to our task
 With a will not to fret,
 And give rather more
 Through our toil than we get,
 We'll go home mighty strong
 At the close of the day,
 And not feel rebuked
 In our heart when we pray . . .
 Tho our table be scanty,
 Our family short-fed,
 He'll not give a stone
 When we ask Him for bread.

If the "wild oats" we've sown
 In our life's early morn
 Have choked the "true grain"
 And there sprang up the thorn,
 We should with regret
 Think on much of that past,
 Then turn with a smile
 To the future so vast,
 And say this to ourself
 Of the years in advance:
 "They deal with us kindly;
 They give us a chance."

If we can but direct
 Every boy, every girl,
 Into the right course
 In the rush of "this whirl,"
 And show that the goal
 In the race for success
 Is not won by wealth,
 But by service—I guess
 We should feel less remorse
 As we bid them "farewell";
 And in the Great Future
 Not meet them in hell.

If thru weakness we fail
 To contribute our share
 Of lift 'neath the load
 We've been given to bear,
 Should scourging be ours

At the end of a goad
 By them who got under
 Both their and our load?—
 Tho we should be chided
 And cast out as leaven,
 They who lugged our load
 Should be honored in heaven.

Spiritual Meditations

Rev. Dyoll Belote

SERVANT OR MASTER?

"Ye call me Master and Lord: and ye say well; for so I am."

ON ONE OCCASION the apostles debated among themselves as to which of them should be greatest in the kingdom of heaven—the Kingdom as they conceived of it. It may be suggested that the reason there is so much diversity in the definition of the Kingdom is because each man insists on having his conception accepted by all others as complete and final. Jesus rebuked the selfishness of His followers and declared that "He that would be greatest among you, let him be servant of all."

The word "servant" is not overly popular. "Hired man," "maid," "servant," these are the appellations applied to those who perform the menial tasks in the homes and business premises of their fellows. And because the "Hired girl" or "Hired man" is compelled to serve in this capacity, they are often rated as being inferior in intellect and ability to accomplish worthwhile things in the world.

Our text has the Lord declaring Himself as Lord and Master, and yet it was He who warned His followers that those who would be great in His eternal Kingdom must learn the royalty of service, must become servants. Self-delegated greatness generally fails to impress men. It is by service rendered that men prove their worth to the world, and the right to respect from their fellows.

The most highly endowed life that this world ever saw was that of the Lord Christ. And He demanded no recognition of place or power; claimed no rank above His fellows—not even when He admitted that He was their Lord and Master. And to prove it He stooped and washed the feet of His followers, with hands that angels would have loved to kiss. He took the place of a servant and gave His very life to save lost humanity. The greatest among men He became servant to all. And the example of the Good Samaritan today still needs exemplification a thousand times. It is still true that "He that would be great among you, let him become servant of all."

—Linwood, Maryland.

Prosperity often shuts its eyes, opens the throttle, and rushes off to ruin.

Either heaven or hell will leave its mark on us; it is up to us to decide which it will be.

CHRISTIAN ENDEAVOR TOPIC

W. St. Clair Benshoff, Topic Editor

"Topics copyrighted by the International Society of Christian Endeavor.
Used by permission"

Topic for August 22, 1948

GOD SPEAKS THROUGH ART AND MUSIC

Scripture: John 19:5; Rev. 14:1-3; 19:5-9

For The Leader

WHILE THE DIRECT spoken word of God comes to us through His written Word, the Bible, yet His message comes through other mediums. Tonight we consider Art and Music as expressions of God's message to us. We have all thrilled at masterpieces of painting and sculpture. We have all welled up with tears when a beautiful hymn has been played or sung. It is God's message to us as surely as if we had read it from His Word. These two ways tonight bring to us God's message through the eye gate and the ear gate. How fine it is if we shall cultivate the desire of seeing and hearing the things which will enrich our lives with God's message to us.

DISCUSSION

1. THROUGH THE EYE GATE. It is one thing to hear the story of the flight of Jesus into Egypt as a child. It is another thing to behold the painting of the mother of Jesus, holding the baby Jesus, sitting on the weary donkey, with Joseph walking along side. That picture never leaves us. It speaks of God's providential care over His loved ones in time of trouble. Or, to see the picture of Jesus in the Garden of Gethsemane, pouring out His soul in prayer. Or, the glorious resurrection morning scene at the tomb, the angels, Mary, and Jesus in the background. Or, the picture of the ascension, with Jesus ascending into the heavens, and the promise of His coming again in like manner. These are but a very few scenes from the life of Christ which show the value of the eye gate. It is one thing to read a story, it is another thing to see it pictured.

2. THE EYE GATE AIDS THE IMAGINATION. As we read a story, we imagine the scenes and the people. Perhaps our imaginative ability, though, is very poor. Then it is that beautiful pictures and sculpture come to our aid. And it may be also, that an inspired artist can bring out viewpoints that had escaped our untalented minds. Their work calls these to mind. We will do well to make a study of the works of great artists, that our spiritual faith might be increased.

3. WHAT MAKES A WORK ART? There is a lot of painting, sculpture and music which is not art. Why? Simply because it does nothing for the individual. Real art, whether it be in picture, sculpture or music, does something for the soul. It lifts us out of the ordinary and places us on the divine. It lifts our soul from the concourse of life and sends us in thrills across the mountain tops of spiritual experiences. In real art, we can see and hear God's voice speaking to us. Real art makes us ashamed of our own failures and creates within us the desire to do better. It brings a resolve to be more faithful and useful in the work of God. None can look upon a beautiful painting of a master, or listen to a beautiful hymn played by an equally talented musician without partaking of the Divine spirit.

4. LEARNING TO APPRECIATE ART. It is too sad, but often too true, that today we do not know how to really appreciate fine art. A fine picture, or a beautiful musical number must be studied to be really appreciated. As a passage of scripture must be studied to get its many shades and tones of spiritual truth, so must the works of art which represent those scriptures. A young man once said that he had read the Bible through in a year, and knew all about it. Well, he was smarter than any other person who has ever read the Bible. No man can get everything in one reading. No, nor in a thousand readings. The more we read the Word, the more we find the precious truths to help us day by day. So, it is in art and music. A beautiful musical number can be played a thousand times, with the last time bringing to us a note or harmony we hadn't heard before. That is appreciation. It takes time and brains to appreciate art and music. Which probably explains why so few today really know how to do it.

5. MUSIC IN THE CHURCH. Perhaps the most familiar type of Music to us young people, is that which we hear in our churches. That is, the music in which God speaks to us. From the prelude, through the hymns and special music to the postlude, there is a message for us from God. It will increase our spiritual values if we will but give close heed to their messages. A well planned service has the music chosen to fit the theme of the service. The hymns, and their message, are chosen with the idea of worship, praise, petition, or assurance kept in mind. Each verse of a hymn has a message. How much do we get out of them? It depends on how closely we study the verses as we sing. More than just singing a hymn, we should think of the words as we sing. (It might be we are singing something we wouldn't be in favor of, if we were called to say it in so many words.) For instance, "Take my life and let it be, consecrated Lord to Thee." We sing it, but would we mean it if we spoke it? Or, "Have Thine own Way, Lord." We sing it, but would we really want Him to have His way in our lives? There are many "ins" and "outs" in this matter of singing hymns. To sum it up, we will do well to think of the spiritual message, and be certain we ourselves mean what we are singing. Let us listen to the voice of God as it comes to us in art and music. It will transform our lives.

DISCUSSION QUESTIONS

1. Would singing hymns containing verses to which we would not subscribe, if spoken, be a form of hypocrisy?
2. How can we develop a greater appreciation for the spiritual values in art and music?
3. Suggest spiritual blessings which you have received from a study of a particular picture, sculpture work, or music.
4. What can our society do to increase our interest in the great masterpieces of art and music?

Prayer Meeting Topic

Contributed by Rev. C. Y. Gilmer

A HEART-SEARCHING PRAYER

(Can you say it and mean it?)

Lord, when I am weary with toiling,
And burdensome seem Thy commands,
If my load should lead to complaining,
LORD, SHOW ME THY HANDS,
Thy nail-pierced hands,
Thy cross-torn hands,
My Saviour, show me Thy hands.

Christ, if ever my footsteps should falter,
And I be prepared for retreat;
If desert and thorn cause lamenting,
LORD, SHOW ME THY FEET,
Thy bleeding feet,
Thy nail-scarred feet,
My Jesus, show me Thy feet.

Lord, when I am sorely wounded,
With the battle and toil of the day,
And I complain of my suffering,
LORD, LET ME HEAR THEE SAY,
"Behold My side,
My spear-pierced side,
My side that was wounded for thee."
MY GOD, DARE I SHOW THEE
MY HANDS AND MY FEET?

—Log of the Good Ship Grace.

"BEARING HIS REPROACH"

Scripture: Heb. 13:10-14; 2 Cor. 6:3-10

Hymn: "Am I a Soldier of the Cross?"

Prayer

Seed Thought Provokers:

JESUS CAME to His own city, Jerusalem, the city of the great King, and to His own temple, every whit of which uttered His own glory, and yet they led Him outside the gate of the city, the rejected One, away to the place of crucifixion (John 1:11; Matt. 27:31; John 19:14-19). We are admonished, "Let us go forth therefore unto Him without the camp, bearing His reproach" (Heb. 13:13). We are not to keep up with the world, but go where Jesus is. We are not to seek a place in the world which had no place for Him and still holds Him in rejection. To share His rejection is our right (1 Peter 2:21; Luke 9:23; Phil. 2:5; John 20:21; 15:18-20).

From the Ceremonial Law as recorded in Lev. 4:3-21 we learn of the sacrifice that the bullock represents the Lord Jesus Christ, Who as our sin offering, takes away our guilt. The blood is for the life and the atonement for the soul. The fat represents the goodness and richness of Christ. Jesus died, not only that we might have salvation, but also the fullness of the Spirit (John 19:10). The rest of the bullock is taken outside the gate and burned in the fire. Here we as Christians can share the reproach of Christ and His cross (Col. 1:24; 2 Tim. 1:8; 4:5). True Christian living and giving are costly. The most popular men in the Christian ministry are not necessarily the greatest in prayer, who stand the truest and win the most souls. Bible Christians should be crucified with Christ (Gal. 2:20; 5:24; 6:14; Rom. 12:2; Luke 9:22-23). The cross is not an ornament or a poetic burden. It is something you are nailed to for Christ's sake because the world despises you!

If we would follow Jesus other ties must not hold us (Luke 14:26, 27). Obadiah, servant of wicked King Ahab in the palace, is a type of a popular Christian. But it took the despised prophet Elijah to pray down fire from Heaven. The power of Pentecost is not free. Elijah suffered many privations. True, Spirit-filled, bold Bible teaching makes enemies. Many do not care for the reproach for preaching against sin and specifying it by name. They do not want to lose friends for Christ's sake. Are we going to please our Lord or the world (Jas. 4:4)? Outside the camp is the place of our responsibility.

COMMENTS

On The Sunday School Lesson

by The Editor

Lesson for August 15, 1948

ANDREW BRINGS MEN TO JESUS

Lesson: John 1:37-42; Mark 1:16-18; John 18:20-22

ONE OF THE most wonderful sentences concerning a man is found in our lesson today, "He brought him to Jesus." This can be made a very fine "personal workers" lesson by dwelling on the attitude of Andrew in submerging himself and bringing forth his brother as a real worker, who did much to propagate the early gospel.

There are at least five traits we can find in Andrew that make his oft forgotten disciple come to the forefront.

1. He was a good listener. He was seeking to find out the truth. He was one of the two men that spent a profitable day with Jesus. That which he heard and saw convinced him that Jesus was the Messiah. This is shown by his willingness to testify to his brother Simon after this fashion: "We have found the Messiah, which is, being interpreted, the Christ." It takes a willing listener to absorb the teachings of the Word and so take them into his heart and life that he is able to impart them to others with conviction. A personal worker must, first of all, have real convictions of his own.

2. Andrew was an active worker. When he saw the opportunity he grasped it. Remember it was Andrew who contacted the boy with the five loaves and two small fishes with which Jesus fed the five thousand that day by the shores of Galilee.

3. Andrew was an unselfish individual. It did not hurt him one bit when he brought his brother Simon to Christ, that the eyes of the Master turned from him to his brother and that the words of prophecy were turned Peter's way and not Andrew's. He cared little for personal praise; he never sought, like John and James, to climb to the place of greatest prominence at the side of the Lord.

4. Andrew was a willing bearer of good news. How quickly, after he had found Jesus as the Christ, for his own satisfaction, did he hurry away to tell it. And note, it was to the ones of his own immediate family—first Peter, and, is it too much to think that he stopped there? then to the remainder of his family. Far too often those nearest and dearest to the Christian are the last to hear the "Good News" from his lips. Why is it so difficult to "find" one's own brother?

5. Andrew was a man who was close to the Master. In those few hours he had spent with Jesus when he followed Him to the place where He was "dwelling" brought him close to the Master. How wonderful, indeed, it is to be brought so near to our Lord that we can feel the vital communion and can communicate to Him our innermost desires and thoughts!

Known, yes! But yet Andrew in his place of one of the so-called "lesser" disciples, is so kept in the background that his activities are overshadowed by the more aggressive followers. But blessed, thrice blessed, are those who do not need to be in the lime-light, but are willing to follow where He leads with no thought of personal praise.

Business Manager's Corner

(Continued from page 3)

Emma M. Aboud, Dayton, Ohio	1.00
Kenneth Benshoff, Johnstown, Pa., Third	10.00
Loyal Women's Class, Johnstown, Pa., Third	10.00
Dr. and Mrs. G. C. Carpenter, Ashland, Ohio	11.00
Mrs. Ellen Lichty, Pasadena, Calif.	10.00
Hazel Keiser, Bryan, Ohio	5.00
Mrs. Sarah Workman, Mt. Olive, Virginia	5.00
Mrs. Clara J. Beim, Kansas City	1.00
Mrs. Emma Young, Smithville, Ohio	5.00
J. P. Spedden, Hagerstown, Md.	2.00
Minnie Sloan, Cambria, Indiana	5.00
Wooster, Ohio, W. M. S.	15.00
Mrs. Clara Ebert, Wooster, Ohio	5.00
Mrs. J. E. Himes, Bryan, Ohio	10.00
Verda Hade Hess, Waynesboro, Pa.	5.00
Mrs. S. J. Blackburn, Anson, Texas	1.00
A. R. Umbel, Uniontown, Pa.	25.00
Mr. and Mrs. Clyde Garland, Pittsburgh, Pa.	25.00
Helen Simmons, Vinco, Pa.	20.00
Mrs. Inez F. Wray, Peru, Indiana	5.00
Mrs. Henry Sanders, Bryan, Ohio	10.00
Mrs. H. H. Smitley, Masontown, Pa.	10.00

(For total cash see block on page 16)

Subscriptions from Carleton, Nebraska

We received a nice list of subscribers from Carleton, Nebraska, where Brother H. M. Oberholtzer is the faithful pastor. We were not told that it was a 100% list, but we feel sure that if it can be done at this time, Brother Oberholtzer will persist until it is accomplished. The number of homes into which the Evangelist now is going will be a great help to the Lord's work in that field.

Religious Books and Novelties at Conference

As usual your Publishing House will have a well-stocked Book Store at General Conference time. We will also have a display of Books, Bibles and religious novelties in the rear of the Gymnasium. Come prepared to take home a supply of what you have been looking for.

Plan Your Next Sunday School Order

It is not too early to make plans for your next Sunday School order, especially if there is to be any change in your order. We suggest that you consider using the Brethren Youth Quarterly, if you are not already doing so. It is well edited and is the best you can find for Brethren teen-agers. Its use has been increasing, but there is still large room for expansion. Maybe you could use more adult quarterlies, also. Let's all cooperate in the largest way. Some day you'll see the good results in your local church and will thank God for it.

Interesting Items

(Continued from Page 2)

ing of the Boys' Brotherhood program. The boys will be in charge of the service and will unveil the large picture which they have purchased for the church.

Carleton, Nebraska. At a recent business meeting at the Carleton church appointed a committee to investigate the cost of new carpet for the church. Brother H. M. Oberholtzer was given a unanimous call for another year of service as pastor, which was accepted. Brother Oberholtzer was granted a three weeks vacation, winding up at the General Conference.

St. James, Maryland. The Boys' Brotherhood of the St. James church recently presented the church with a new outside bulletin board with the full equipment of letters.

A new deacon was elected on Sunday morning, July 18th, when Brother James Norris was chosen for this important office of the church. His ordination will take place in the near future.

Nappanee, Indiana. The Nappanee Laymen recently elected the following officers:

President	Raymond Parcell
Vice-President	Everett Pippen, Jr.
Secretary-Treasurer	Don Swihart
Corresponding Secretary	Dick Sechrist

At the meeting forty-three laymen and wives were present; $64.40 came in the Gift Boxes, and $27.50 additional to the building fund.

Milledgeville, Illinois. The date of the Sunday School picnic, which is to be held at Lowell Park, has been set as of August 17th.

Central District Camp. We learn from Brother D. C. White's Milledgeville Bulletin that there were fifty-two campers enrolled. This together with the twenty-one of the faculty and helpers, brought the total of the camp to seventy-three. The student campers were divided as follows: Milledgeville—18; Waterloo—17; Lanark—9; Cerro Gordo—6; and Udell—2. The camp was held at Savanah, Illinois. Brother and Sister White were in charge.

Bryan, Ohio. Brother E. J. Black, pastor of the Bryan Church, reports the baptism of several on Sunday, July 5th. Brother Black reports that there were twelve conversions of Christ made during the time of the Daily Vacation Bible School. The total enrollment of this school was 127, with a daily average attendance of 82. One hundred and eighty attended the closing exercises.

Dr. Glenn Clayton, President-elect of Ashland College was the morning speaker at Bryan on Sunday, August 1st, in the absence of Brother Black who is on vacation. The editor will be the speaker on August 8th.

Cameron, West Virginia. Brother Arthur R. Baer, pastor of the Cameron Church, reports that the stone work on the new Cameron Church is now completed to the square and will soon be ready for the roof timbers.

Johnstown, Pennsylvania (Third). We learn that Brother Chester F. Zimmerman, is closing his work at the Johnstown Third church and is soon to take up the work at Muncie, Indiana.

Cumberland, Maryland. We learn from Brother Freeman Ankrum's bulletin that Brother Paul Naff is closing his pastorate at Cumberland. He has been in this field for some time.

Mexico, Indiana. Brother Robert Higgins, pastor of the Mexico Church reports the baptism of four on Sunday, July 25th.

He also reports that the four Mexico churches are cooperating in their Sunday evening services.

Loree, Indiana. Brother Higgins, who also is pastor of the Loree Church, announces the Loree Homecoming and Re-dedication Day as of October 24th, with Brother C. A. Stewart, pastor of the New Paris Church, and a former pastor of the Loree church, as tentative speaker.

Brother Higgins reports the organization of a Bible Training Class in the early fall. The class will meet each Thursday evening.

Condition of Brother A. E. Whitted. Word comes to us this Sunday, August 1, from Brother Elton Whitted, son of Brother A. E. Whitted, that he is quite seriously ill, with a complete nervous breakdown. He is at the home of his daughter, Mrs. J. Garber Drushal, at Wooster, Ohio, at the present time. A card or letter may be addressed to him or his good wife at the following address: Care of J. Garber Drushal, Kenarden Lodge, Wooster College, Wooster, Ohio.

Business Manager Baer Still Confined to His Bed. As we go to press this week we are sorry to report that Brother Baer is still confined to his bed. He is better but the doctor has not released him from a "reclining position." A phone by his bedside is his medium of expression to us here at the Publishing House. Continue your prayers for his speedy recovery.

He who walks with God may suffer, but he is safe.

Laid to Rest

SEBRING. In the absence of the pastor, funeral services were held Thursday, July 22 for Mrs. Myrtle Sebring by the undersigned.

Mrs. Sebring was born January 25, 1880 in Lexington, Ohio to Nathaniel B. and Mary Shaffer Loy. On July 30, 1902, she was united in marriage to Frank R. Sebring, who preceded her in death five years ago. To this union was born one daughter, Mrs. Lester (Marjorie) Ashworth.

A life-long resident of the community of West Alexandria, she was also a life-time member of the First Brethren Church there, being active in the Women's Missionary Society and the Everfaithful Sunday School Class.

In addition to her daughter, there remains to mourn her passing one granddaughter; a sister, Mrs. Stella Bishop of West Alexandria, and a brother, David Loy of Springfield, Ohio.

She departed to be with her God and Creator, July 19, 1948.

Rev. E. J. Beekley, Canton, Ohio.

HAHN. On July 7, 1948, Carl J. Hahn, a charter member of the Stockton, California, Brethren Church, departed this life to be with the Lord, after an illness of several months. He was eighty-nine years old.

He is survived by his widow, Emma; three sons: Allen, Stanley and Clark; five grandchildren and a host of friends.

Funeral services were conducted by the undersigned at Stockton, with interment at Park View Cemetery, near Manteca.

Virgil Ingraham.

BARNHART—Lorinda Barnhart, daughter of William and Lisa Jane (Roberts) Lantis, was born November 10, 1856, and departed this life April 3, 1948, having reached the advanced age of ninety-one years, four months and twenty-three days. She was born on a farm near Gratis, Ohio, and spent her entire life in the Gratis Community where she was beloved of all who knew her. She was possibly the last of the small group who organized as the Brethren Church of Gratis, in 1883. Surviving are a sister, two sons, seventeen grandchildren and twenty-one great grandchildren. This Pastor was assisted in the funeral services by Rev. A. E. Whitted, a former pastor at Gratis, who knew "Aunt 'Rin" when health permitted her to attend worship services.

William S. Crick.

FULTON—Mrs. H. W. Fulton, of Eaton, Ohio, passed away May 22, 1948 in her seventy-eighth year. During the long period the family lived in the Gratis community, they were members of and attended the Gratis Brethren Church. Surviving are her husband, two sons and one daughter. Funeral services were held in Eaton, where they attended worship services, by an Eaton minister; burial was in Gratis cemetery.

William S. Crick.

PENCE—Jacob Francis Pence was born September 21, 1865 and departed this life June 1, 1948, at the age of eighty-two years, eight months and ten days. He was a lifelong resident of Gratis, Ohio, and a member of the Brethren Church. He is survived by one daughter, with whom he made his home since his wife's death in 1947, one granddaughter, two great grandchildren and three sisters. Funeral services by this pastor.

William S. Crick.

CLINGAMAN. On Monday morning, July 12, 1948, just as the sun was announcing the beginning of a new day, the spirit of our brother, Jacob Elsworth Clingaman took its flight from the scenes of this life to the "home of the soul," the land "where the sun never goes down." At the time of his departure from us he was seventy-five years of age and had lived in the Roann community his entire life. Brother Clingaman had been a member of the Brethren Church for many years, first at New Enterprise and then later transferring to Roann. In his relation to his church he was always faithful and loyal to all its interests. It was our privilege to have known him and his family through a period of forty-five years and in those year to spend many happy hours together. Thus we share with a great throng of people of the church and the community the loss of a true friend and brother.

In his going he leaves his companion with whom he had walked hand in hand through many years; three brothers: Charles of Peru, Samuel of Denver and Sherman of Macy, and a son Lamoine of Muncie. All these have lost one that meant much to them, but heaven has gained and they have a hope and a memory that compensates for the loss. Peace to them until, on the morning of the first resurrection, by the Grace of God we shall meet again.

The last rites were conducted from the Grandstaff funeral home in Roann, July 14th, by the writer and assisted by Rev. C. C. Miller of the Church of the Brethren.

C. C. Grisso.

LEEDY. Mrs. Charles Leedy passed away in California on July 5, 1948. Her body arrived by plane on July 9th, in Plymouth, Indiana, where services were conducted by the undersigned.

She leaves the husband, Brother Charles Leedy, a daughter, Mrs. Ora Lemert of Walkerton, and a son in California.

G. L. Maus.

CONDON. Vera Reed Condon, wife of Irvin Condon, passed away very suddenly on Monday morning, May 17, 1948, at her home in Twelve Mile, Indiana. She had been a life-long resident of this vicinity.

She was the youngest daughter of Henry and Addie

Reed, who were charter members of the Corinth Brethren Church. She united with the church when but a small child and was a firm believer in the Brethren faith.

Her husband, two sisters, a nephew and niece survive, besides a host of relatives and friends.

Services were conducted in the Corinth Brethren Church by her pastor.

G. L. Maus.

Wedding Announcement

WRAY-SMITH. Marilou Wray, daughter of William C. and Martha Krider Wray, became the bride of Richard H. Smith of Lafayette, Indiana, in a double ring ceremony on Sunday, July 4, 1948, in the Corinth Brethren Church, of which the bride is a member.

The undersigned, who is pastor of the bride, read the nuptial vows before an altar banked with palms and white gladioli, and a seven branch candelabra. Mrs. Merrill Staller, sister of the bride, was matron of honor and Miss Faith Ludwig of Detroit, Michigan, was bridesmaid. Robert Smith, brother of the groom, was best man.

The bride was given in marriage by her father. She is a graduate of Purdue University and at present is employed in scientific research at the Agricultural Experiment station of Purdue University. Mr. Smith is a graduate of the school of Mechanical Engineering, Purdue University. They will make their home in Lafayette.

A reception was given to one hundred and fifty invited guests on the beautiful church lawn immediately following the ceremony.

May God's richest blessings rest on these two Christian young people as they establish their new home.

G. L. Maus.

SMITH-DIVELY. Neil Smith, son of Mr. and Mrs. James A. Smith of Cumberland, Maryland, and Phyllis Dively, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George Dively of Berlin, Pennsylvania, were united in the Holy Bonds of Matrimony on Saturday afternoon, July 17, 1948, in the Berlin Brethren Church by the writer. The double ring ceremony was used. The church was beautifully decorated. The attendants were Miss Mary Ann Musser, and Robert Smith, a brother of the groom. The bride was given in marriage by her father. Miss Thelma Saylor was at the console. The couple will make their home in Cumberland.

Percy C. Miller.

The New Press Fund

GOAL—Not less than$15,000.00

Cash to date$9,714.84

The Brethren Evangelist

Vol LXX, No 36 September 11, 1948

Missionary Board Number

Brethren Historical Library
Manchester College
North Manchester, Ind.

THE BRETHREN EVANGELIST

Published weekly, except the last week in August and
the last week in December.

THE BRETHREN PUBLISHING COMPANY

Ashland, Ohio

PRUDENTIAL COMMITTEE

J. E. Stookey, President N. G. Kimmel, Vice-President
J. G. Dodds, Secretary-Treasurer

EDITOR OF PUBLICATIONS—F. C. Vanator

BUSINESS MANAGER—G. S. Baer

EDITOR MISSIONARY NUMBER—E. M. Riddle

CONTRIBUTING EDITORS

Dr. Charles A. Bame Rev. Dyoll Belote

DEPARTMENTAL EDITORS

Dr. C. F. Yoder, Brethren Doctrine
Rev. N. V. Leatherman, Practical Church Problems
Rev. J. G. Dodds, National Goals
Dr. R. F. Porte, Brethren Church History

PLEASE REMEMBER: All material for publication in the Evangelist must be in the hands of the editor at least three weeks before the desired date of publication, to assure same to appear in desired issue. This refers to announcements particularly.

TERMS OF SUBSCRIPTION: $1.50 per year in advance.
CHANGE OF ADDRESS: In ordering change of address always
give both old and new addresses.

REMITTANCES: Send all money, business communications, and contributed articles to:

THE BRETHREN PUBLISHING COMPANY
ASHLAND, OHIO

Entered as second class matter at Ashland, Ohio. Accepted for mailing
at special rate, section 1103, act of October 3, 1917. Authorized
September 3, 1928.

On the return trip a few hours were spent in Peru, Ind. The day following I spent in my own home church—Tiosa, Indiana. The Reverend G. L. Maus is pastor here. Due to the fact that the pastor had a funeral service immediately after noon, I accepted the invitation to speak. Another happy experience in this day was the privilege to attend the Maus reunion which was held on the former Joseph Maus farm, near the church. For more than thirty years I have been repeatedly invited to this gathering, but never had the time to attend. It is too bad that family gatherings, like so many other good things are slowly fading out.

After three days in the office, the schedule called for a trip to Hagerstown, Md.—Camp Peniel, and Washington, D. C. A number of calls were made in Hagerstown before going to the Blue Ridge mountains for the camp. This was a rather small group of young people but an excellent camp. I had been asked to speak and close with a consecration service. There were three fine young people who presented themselves for the reconsecration service.

August fifteenth in Washington, D. C. Church was a happy day. There was a fine attendance both morning and evening. The Clappers from Louisville, my former pastorate, also relatives of the Lyons, were present, besides two other college students from Ashland. Entertainment in the Lyons' home with the other guests, and a delightful picnic with the Portes and their people on Sunday afternoon made a most enjoyable week-end.

The Clappers assisted with the music in the services on Sunday in a very acceptable manner. The first unit of the new church was inspected by all the visitors. This will be an attractive and commodious church, wonderfully well located. It is my observation that this church is showing very good taste and judgment in their effort. Surely many brethren and friends will want a share in this National Brethren Church. Any gifts designated for Washington or any of our other building projects will be sent at once, if designated.

The Sunday before Conference was the dedication of the new Chapel at Akron. The report of the activities of this day appear in another column of this issue.

As before, keep looking up!

E. M. Riddle, Field Secretary.

The

Field Secretary

Travels

Early in the month the decision was made to visit Decatur, Illinois for a few days with some of the Brethren of that district to reach a decision, whether to proceed with a new church in Decatur or not. The report will be made to the General Mission Board first. Rev. C. E. Johnson, pastor at Cerro Gordo very cheerfully went over the field with the secretary and provided entertainment and car.

The Power of Sacrifice

by F. E. Clapper

To every thoughtful Christian there must come a tinge of disappointment as we contemplate the lack of spiritual power in the organized church of today. Surely we do not want it to be that way. Rather we crave it to be a dynamic force, a living testimony to the power of God.

Would to God that the lost, the suffering, the bereaved, the downtrodden could look upon the church as their Ark of Safety—the source of their help in time of need.

Would to God that we could witness week after week, month after month, year after year, many scores of men and women coming to the church with the cry—"What must we do to be saved?" On the contrary, we are witnessing revival after revival where none are saved, where it is almost impossible to induce sinners to come to the house of God to hear the gospel. Mervin Rosell in "The Way" says, "today in our churches, 5% of the reported members do not exist, 10% cannot be found, 20% never pray, 25% never read the Bible, 30% never attend church services, 40% never give to any cause, 50% never go to Sunday School, 60% never go to church on Sunday night, 70% never give to missions, 75% never engage in any church activity, 80% never attend prayer meeting, 90% never have family worship, 95% never win a soul to Jesus Christ."

Perhaps your church and mine have a better record than this, but we must confess that, to a large degree, this does represent a picture of our loss of spiritual power.

Could it be possible that one of the contributing factors to the condition of a powerless church may be that we have forgotten the importance of sacrifice? Upon deep meditation does there not appear a very close relationship between power and sacrifice? Jesus said, "And I, if I be lifted up from the earth, will draw all men unto me." John 12:32. The apostle says, "For ye know the grace of our Lord Jesus Christ that, though he was rich, yet for your sakes he became poor, that ye through his poverty might be rich." II Cor. 8:9. And in John 3:16 we read, "For God so loved the world that He gave His only begotten Son that whosoever believeth on Him should not perish, but have everlasting life." Again, "If we suffer, we shall also reign with him." II Tim. 2:12.

Our crosses are hewn from different trees,
But we all must climb our Calvary's;
We may ascend the height from different sides,
But we each go up to be crucified.

"As we scale the heights, another may share
The heavy burdens our shoulders bare;
But the costliest sorrow is still our own,
For on that summit we bleed alone."

It may well be that the path back to a church of spiritual power may be the path of sacrifice. The path along which many who were willing to accept Christ as saviour may now take the next step and accept Christ as Lord of their lives. As the apostle puts it, "I beseech you therefore, brethren, by the mercies of God, that ye present your bodies a living sacrifice, holy, acceptable unto God, which is your reasonable service." Rom. 12:1. A growing group of Christian men and women who will put the work of the Lord ahead of every other consideration can lead the way back to a church with real spiritual power.

The life of a disciple is a life of sacrifice, but it can also be a life of power. The test of discipleship as recorded in Luke 9:32 is this: "If any man will come after me, let him deny himself, and take up his cross daily, and follow me." And in Luke 14:27 it continues. "And whosoever doth not bear his cross and come after me, cannot be my disciple."

May I suggest some steps toward the restoration of the spiritual power of the church?

FIRST, a call to the membership in our worship services, to make a public reconsecration to the Lord and His work.

SECOND, a willingness to divorce ourselves from all activities that are in conflict with the program of the church.

THIRD, a willingness to be used of the Lord in any way He chooses and to bear daily our testimony for Him.

FOURTH, to give sacrificially of our time, our talents,

(Continued on page 7)

Laying By In Store For ? ?

by L. V. King

Among many of the sermons delivered in the New Testament, two are outstanding and very important. The first was given by our Lord and is called the "Sermon on the Mount" as recorded by the Gospel writer, Matthew. The second was delivered by the Apostle Peter on the day of Pentecost. The first was delivered to the multitude and in particular to the disciples of Jesus. The second was given to a large multitude, mostly Jews, from many nationalities but was intended primarily for the Church, which sprung into existence at that time. We count both sermons as very timely and important. In such sermons we expect to hear the most important things of life.

I want you to think with me on three of the verses of the first sermon, namely those recorded in Matt. 6:19-21. In verses 19 to 34 of this 6th chapter, Jesus is speaking about excessive care for earthly things. In verses 19 to 24 he speaks about wealth and in verses 25 to 34 about food and raiment. But we shall confine our study to verses 19 to 21 where Christ deals with earthly treasure and heavenly.

He approaches the subject first from the negative side by telling us where not to lay up treasure, then from the positive side by telling us where to lay up treasure. Or we might say that He, in describing the ideal life, gives us two warnings relative to the attitude His followers should assume in regard to the subject of worldly possessions. The first has to do with Avarice, and is a temptation the rich have to face. The second beginning at verse 24 has to do with anxiety and is the temptation the poor face. However, the first does not only affect the worldly rich, but every person who has possessions.

FIRST, He tells us not to lay up treasures on this earth. And He gives us two reasons why we are not to do this.

First, moth and rust corrupt such treasures IF laid up on this earth. Wealth in the Eastern lands was largely stored and hoarded. Much of it consisted of costly clothing. We know something of the garments of many colors for the Oriental still wears clothing somewhat like that which was worn in Jesus' time. And we know that clothing is liable to the attacks of moth. Thus in a short time valuable garments could be destroyed.

Wealth, too, was in the form of jewelry and hoarded away in their homes. If the homes were damp these trinkets would be liable to rust, hence lose much of their value.

Second, thieves might break through and steal treasures laid away on this earth. Much of the wealth had to be stored in houses. Many walls of the houses were made of clay, so it would be easy to break into the homes and steal the wealth or possessions of the occupant.

May I bring the first negative statement of Jesus down to our modern life? It is foolish to lay up treasures on this earth:

First, earthly possessions are so uncertain. Young people especially should be taught to realize this truth. Youth does not think of a day when these earthly possessions will end. But older folks realize, or ought to realize, the force of this statement. For year by year, even day by day the moth and rust are at work. And time steps by and steals our treasures. And no matter how wealthy we may be, we cannot take these with us when we leave this earth. No matter how much we may accumulate, no matter to what good purposes we use it, we do not take it with us. We think we have them secure only to discover some time, when perhaps it is too late, that they have slipped from us. I am sure each of our readers could give examples of this truth. This was especially true during the last depression.

Second, earthly treasure tends to turn the mind away from God and spiritual things. We depend on them too much and forget our dependence on God. We worry so much about these treasures that we forget our relation to the things of heaven. In other words, the desire for wealth may become so great that we dull the desire for spiritual things. Avarice is one of the great sins of our modern world. And it too often affects the Christian who is making money.

Third, it is foolish also because we cannot take these earthly possessions with us. We do take treasure with us, but they are not material things. We can lay up treasures in heaven. But all we accumulate here we leave behind. Sometimes to grateful children and sometimes not.

Then where are we to lay up treasures? Jesus gives the positive answer by saying, "Lay up treasures in heaven." His positive statement at once implies that it is possible to lay up treasures in heaven. But why in heaven? you ask. And Jesus gives again a twofold answer:

First, in heaven they do not become moth eaten nor

(Continued on page 12)

In God Have I Put My Trust

by C. Y. Gilmer

"Blessed is the man that maketh the Lord his trust . . . " Psa. 40:4.

All men put their trust in Providence for temporal blessings. For God "maketh His sun to rise on the evil and on the good, and sendeth rain on the just and the unjust" (Mt. 5:45b).

But not all men trust God for salvation. The goodness of God should bring them to repentance. But "men loved darkness rather than light because their deeds were evil" (John 3:19). They prefer their sins to the mercy of God, and thus withhold themselves from God.

However, the gracious invitation to trust in God for salvation is frequently given in both Testaments. "O taste and see that the Lord is good: blessed is the man that trusteth in Him" (Psa. 34:8). "Whosoever believeth on Him," that is, puts his whole weight and dependence upon Him, "shall not perish, but have everlasting life." The one great thing—a thing without which we cannot please God—is TRUST (Heb. 11:6). Trust will lead us to expect great things from God, and to attempt great things for God. When God sees such trust, He will bless. He cannot bless unbelief! Trust means taking God at His promises, knowing that He answers prayer, and that He rewards all who seek Him aright.

The way of trust is to tithe and give liberally of our means for the furtherance of the Gospel. God wants you to give an evidence of trust, and when you do, He is able to give you more and to do more for you. "It is more blessed to give than to receive" because it enables the Lord to do something for the giver or the truster. To trust the Lord is to prove Him, to give Him a chance to prosper us. "The liberal soul shall be made fat: and he that watereth shall be watered also himself" (Prov. 11:25).

Some will not trust their lives to the Lord in full-time service, thinking such to be hard and bitter business. Know this: Nobody ever lost anything by serving the Lord! One never loses by risking God. Do you pray for workers as our Lord commanded? (Matthew 9:38) If you belong to Jesus, you have no right to your own way. One is a rebel until he can say, The Lord can have me to live or die, to be poor or rich, to be loved or hated. And every Christian has the same obligation to do Christ's work. There can be no love, devotion, and surrender without trust. It is by faith that anyone offers himself unto God for full-time service. With God soul-winning is the primary thing. God does not stop those who get souls saved. God wants VOLUNTEERS because they put their trust in Him. If you are willing to be used of God, PREPARE! If you are not willing to pay the price of separation there is no use in thinking of full-time service.

Trust the Lord to have His way about your whole life. Trust Him to choose your wedded companion. If you really mean business for God, He will show you where to go and what to do. Regardless of what God wants you to be for Him, let Him have you.

Missionaries who are worthy of such calling always show that Christian joys are better than what the world can give. With them mission work is a happy business. Some people think that the Devil gives a good time, but they ought to try the good times the Lord gives. No worldly fun equals the joys of salvation and Christian service. The Devil cannot bless anybody for serving him. All he can do is to deceive them. Only the Lord can bless those who put their trust in Him. "Jesus never fails" (John 6:37). "For He hath said, I will never leave thee, nor forsake thee" (Heb. 13:5b). Abiding trust brings the continual presence of God. Trust says, "The Lord is my Helper, and I will not fear what man shall do unto me" (Heb. 13:6).

Trust means that "The Lord is at hand. Be careful for nothing; but in everything by prayer and supplication with thanksgiving let your requests be made known unto God. And the peace of God which passeth all understanding, shall keep your hearts and minds through Christ Jesus" (Phil. 4:5-7). We are to be unworried, unfretted, unvexed Christians because Jesus is coming. His coming is at hand. His coming is a test of trust. "When the Son of man cometh, shall He find faith on the earth?" Faith in what? His second coming! Dull care and despair destroys trust in the heart, and drives Heaven out of the soul. But "Jesus is near to comfort and cheer just when I need Him most" (Psa. 23:4; 139:7-12). Christ meets every need of a child of God (1 Cor. 15:58). The God Who has given the saints salvation can be trusted by them to give everything else (Rom. 8:32). Jesus is greater than all our troubles and will help us bear our burdens (Psa. 52:22; 1 Pet. 5:7). He is the answer to our every need (John 16:33; Psa. 34:19). He can be trusted to make every weakness and thorn in the flesh an occasion of joy (2 Cor. 12:9, 10). He can be trusted to succor one in temptation (Heb. 4:15; 1 Cor. 10:13).

We are to trust God's abounding grace to cover confessed sin (Rom. 5:20; 1 John 1:9). We limit God by the size of our trust. His tender heart is now ready to give us all that we need BUT WE OURSELVES ARE NOT READY. Maybe God has to deal with our sin while we wait and pray. But pray and trust and supplicate we must for there is none other to whom we can go. "Thou hast the words of eternal life." The cure for care is prayer, supplication, and thanksgiving. We ask, beg, and gratefully receive by faith. Thanksgiving is a part of trust. The peace of God's spirit changes one from a cumbered Martha to a trusting Mary (Mt. 7:25-34).

—Huntington, Indiana.

More About Conference

The Gymnasium where the main Conference sessions were held.

One of the most interesting features of this year's Conference occurred on Wednesday night when Miss Louisa Kugler, from Villa Constitución in Argentina, addressed the assembly. Miss Kugler spoke in Spanish and was interpreted by Rita Guzman Nolte, exchange student to Ashland College from Argentina.

Miss Kugler brought greetings from all the Brethren in Argentina and expressed her joy at being present with the Brethren in the United States at the Conference. She also related some of the activities of the churches in Argentina, and some of the difficulties they encounter.

Miss Kugler arrived in New York City via the Pan American Airlines on Saturday, August 21, and came immediately to Ashland to be here in time for Conference. She has proven to be a very consecrated Christian person, and is very well loved by all who have met her. We are confident that her presence here is already a blessing to us. She has spoken at other auxiliary sessions of the Conference, including the Sisterhood group, at whose invitation Miss Kugler came to this country.

Rev. and Mrs. Robert Byler, missionaries under appointment to Argentina were also presented to the conference assembly at the Wednesday night session. These young people are very enthusiastic about their prospective work in South America and urged the daily prayers of their Christian friends here in behalf of their efforts abroad. Both Rev. and Mrs. Byler are consecrated Christians, and are very zealous to bring the Way of Abundant Life to many who are living in darkness.

On Thursday night, the conference audience heard a very challenging message delivered by Rev. Richard Burger, who had just recently returned from the Garkida Leper Colony in Nigeria, Africa, where our sister church, the Church of the Brethren, maintains a mission. Rev. Burger urged an awakening of all Christendom to the immediate need of obeying our Lord's command to "Go and preach," and emphasized the intrinsic development to be derived only by so doing. He related quite vividly some very interesting and heart-rending experiences of his on the African mission field.

At the Friday meeting of the Missionary Board Miss June Byler, sister of Rev. Robert Byler, presented herself, having previously submitted her application and recommendations, and was unanimously accepted for foreign missionary service in the Brethren Church. The Board is highly pleased to announce this addition to our foreign missionary roll. Miss Byler will serve in our South American field, if permission can be secured for her to enter the country.

CLIMACTIC ENDING

After a very hot week throughout, the General Conference reached a climactic point Sunday morning when five missionaries were set apart in a beautiful consecration service, directed by Dr. Studebaker, retiring president of the Mission Board. Rev. and Mrs. Robert Byler and Miss June Byler were set apart for South America, while Rev. and Mrs. Elmer Keck are entering special service to Lost Creek, Ky. At the close of this impressive service the call was given and nine young people responded for full time service wherever the Lord may lead. It was the most significant moment in our Conference for many years.

The audience shared in this great missionary service by presenting an offering of $625.17 at the Sunday morning services, which will be used for Home Mission work.

OFFICIARY OF THE MISSIONARY BOARD OF THE BRETHREN CHURCH

PresidentJ. Garber Drushal
First Vice-PresidentClaud Studebaker
Second Vice-PresidentW. E. Ronk
Third Vice-PresidentEverett Miller
TreasurerS. M. Whetstone
Field SecretaryE. M. Riddle

The members of the Mission Board and many others who know him wish to express their appreciation to Dr. Claud Studebaker who has faithfully served as president of the board for ten consecutive years. He has manifested a keen interest in the duties of the board and has directed its activities wisely during his long term as president. He is deserving of an "honorable discharge" from office, and retires with the thanks and good wishes of the entire board.

The Power of Sacrifice

(Continued from Page 3)

and our means to the church and her missionary program.

FIFTH, to pledge ourselves to a life of prayer and daily witnessing for Him.

"I said, 'Let me walk in the field.'
He said, 'No, walk in the town.'
I said, 'There are no flowers there.'
He said, 'No flowers, but a crown.'

"I said, 'But the sky is black,
There is nothing but noise and din.'
But He wept as He sent me back,
'There is more,' He said, 'there is sin.'

"I said, 'But the air is thick,
And fogs are veiling the sun.'
He answered, 'Yet souls are sick,
And souls in the dark undone.'

"I said, 'I shall miss the light,
And friends will miss me, they say.'
He answered, 'Choose tonight,
If I am to miss you or they.'

"I pleaded for time to be given.
He said, 'Is it hard to decide?
It will not seem hard in heaven,
To have followed the steps of your Guide.'

"I cast one look at the fields,
Then set my face to the town,
He said, 'My child, do you yield?
Will you leave the flowers for the crown?'

"Then into His hand went mine,
And into my heart came He;
And I walk in a light divine,
The path I had feared to see."

—George MacDonald.

—Canton, Ohio.

The Thanksgiving Offering at Work

The Firestone Park Brethren Church at Akron, one of several which your Thanksgiving Offering helped to build.

NEW CHAPEL AT AKRON, OHIO

A small consecrated band of Brethren in Akron, Ohio organized themselves into a church August 1, 1946, with Elder J. G. Dodds as their pastor. The charter member statement had already been signed July 19th, 1946, by eighteen loyal Brethren.

In order to begin work at all, it was necessary to purchase a parsonage so that the pastor could be located in the city. These few people at once came forth with $2,500.00 for the house which was selected, while the Mission Board loaned the remainder to consummate the deal.

Only a year ago, ground was broken for the erection of the new chapel on the rear of the lot located at Archwood and Virginia Avenues. The corner stone, given by Mr. and Mrs. C. C. Washburn, was set in position on Palm Sunday, March 21, 1948.

THE DEDICATION SERVICE

Sunday, August 22nd the new chapel at Akron, Ohio, was dedicated to the service of our Lord. This report will not attempt a complete description of the building. It is plain, neat, and attractive, and well arranged, with basement.

Their average Sunday School attendance for this month so far is 99. They hope to attain the average of 100 very soon, and knowing them as I do, they will.

Field Secretary E. M. Riddle with Pastor J. G. Dodds, and some members of the official board.

The program of the day was well planned. The Missionary Secretary was the speaker for both morning and afternoon, and Rev. Beekley of Canton and Rev. Rowsey of Ashland assisted in the formal dedicatory services. A fellowship luncheon was served by the ladies of the church at noon and evening.

This church has a real program and, best of all, a passion for souls. Three were added to the church on Dedication Day, also four children were consecrated. They will begin an Evangelistic campaign October the 17th. The pastor will conduct these services. Pray for the Firestone Brethren Church.
E. M. R.

Goal

for 1948

Thanksgiving

Offering

$36,000.00

The members of the Washington Brethren Church wish to take this opportunity of thanking the Mission Board and the delegates of General Conference for the very fine offering that was given to our church on Sunday morning of Conference. It has been through the continued good will and sacrifice on the part of our denomination that we have undertaken such a large building program. The first unit of our church will be completed in two or three months. This church building is possible only because you have given so liberally to our building program. Thank you.

Clarence Fairbanks, Pastor.

Stockton Church

The Stockton Brethren Church was born through the missionary vision and enterprise of several pioneer Brethren leaders of this District: J. Wesley Platt, J. Milo Wolfe, Roger Darling, Jacob and Lois Shank, Charles F. Yoder and others. Preliminary work was done by Brother Platt through cottage prayer meetings in the homes of interested Brethren. In early 1940 Brother and Sister L. O. McCartneysmith came to Stockton for evangelistic services, which resulted in the organization of our present church. The first meetings were held in a tent one block from the present church site, and later met in a vacant store building. The present location was purchased in September, 1940.

During its first few months the church had no regular pastor but looked to the District Mission Board for pulpit supply. The writer assisted under this arrangement during those early days of the church. Brother Frank Gehman, of Vaniergrift, Pennsylvania, was called to be its first pastor, and he began his duties in November, 1940. Construction of a one-room building 24 ft. x 32 ft. was begun in December of the same year.

In September, 1946 the church called Dr. Yoder and the writer jointly; the former to do visitation and missionary work, and the latter to assume the other pastoral responsibilities. The church began to experience considerable growth, and it became necessary to build an addition on the one-room structure to provide some classrooms and a larger auditorium to accommodate the increased attendance. Brother Yoder's great faith and vision were sources of considerable encouragement to all, and though there were many obstacles, the new addition was ready for use and dedication in June, 1947. Four months later the church bade Dr. Yoder farewell, and he returned to Argentina to devote the remaining years of his life to writing books and assisting in the missionary work down there.

In March of this year Brother C. C. Grisso, of Mexico, Indiana, conducted evangelistic services in the church, with exceptionally fine results achieved. The revival has continued, and our number has been increased month by month, both by conversion and by letter of transfer. It has again become necessary to enlarge our borders, and the second addition is now nearing completion. This new annex will provide four much-needed Sunday School rooms.

On April 1, 1947, the church membership was 31. Since that time 9 have been received by letter, 31 received by baptism, 1 lost by death, 1 lost by transfer; giving a total of 69 members as of this date. This is an increase of 223% for the period.

The city of Stockton is a thriving manufacturing and agricultural center located in the heart of the great San Joaquin-Sacramento Valley, which stretches from Bakersfield to Sacramento. The River San Joaquin connects the city with San Francisco and the Golden Gate some 80 miles away; and through her deep-water port, the city engages in commerce with shipping centers of the entire world. A recent census shows the population to be 65,924 within the city proper, and estimates the population to be 125,000 for the entire metropolitan area.

The church is experiencing a wonderful spiritual revival and considerable growth. It can be seen that the field is a great one; and that the full measure of success can be achieved only with the church's full consecration to Christ, and with the united action of the church, district, and brotherhood.

M. Virgil Ingraham.

The United States Army has offered free transportation for two thousand milk goats for Japan. Toyohiko Kagawa issued a plea for thousands of these goats, which he said would not only save the lives of many Japanese babies, but would demonstrate the Christian spirit. Heifers for Relief, an organization which originated in the Church of the Brethren and is now interdenominational and inter-faith, has undertaken to supply them.—Christian World Facts.

Foreign Missions

A Letter From Africa

Following is a very interesting letter from Miss Veda Liskey, missionary to the Garkida Leper Colony who just recently sailed to Africa. Although the letter is addressed to her former pastor and his wife, we believe the contents are enlightening to every person who is interested in the cause of foreign missionary service.

S. S. Talisman
Cape Palmos, Liberia
August 8, 1948

Dear Bro. and Mrs. Locke,

At this time we are at Accra, Gold Coast instead of the above place—our last stop before we land at Lagos. You can imagine our excitement. Tomorrow several of us plan to go ashore. Accra is a city of some 75,000 people, of course they are mostly Negro. And the most savage we have seen in that they wear absolutely nothing—a surprising fact until I read just today something to the same effect in Undaunted Hope. It seems almost unbelievable.

But I must hasten on to more pleasant thoughts. Speaking of Accra again you will be interested to know that there is located seven miles interior Achimota College, a very nice boarding school, which gives a complete education for boys and girls from kindergarten to university. They also offer training in technical and professional fields.

We have had next to a perfect voyage—no storms and only a day or so of rain. More beautiful days would be hard to imagine. The sky and clouds were gorgeous but nothing to compare to the many beauties of the ocean. Words are most inadequate for fair description. One can watch the waves for hours and not grow tired. An amazing sight are the many little rainbows one sees when the thin clouds of water spray are thrown into the sunlight. They afford the same divine significance as when seen on land, and even more on a tossing sea. Flying fish and an occasional whale made for a bit of variety.

A nicer ship would be hard to imagine. It is Norwegian which means that one can expect nothing but the best. Of course, the food is Norwegian, too. There is plenty of cheese and all kinds of seafood—from sardines to what may be whale for all I know. Ha! But there were all other kinds of meat. There must have been an excellent refrigeration system for we had ice cream real often. And of course tea every afternoon. As you can see we fared most scrumptuously.

There are eleven passengers aboard—six missionaries and the rest going on business, the type that exploit the natives. What a shame it is!

August 12, Lagos, Nigeria.

We arrived here the morning of the 10th. We were met by a Sudan Interior Mission missionary much to our surprise. She went to Customs with us, which we appreciated greatly. They were remarkably easy on us and we were so happy. However, the next day I went through the mill trying to find two boxes. They had me going from one office to another until I was almost dizzy. It seemed the devil was certainly against me. You can never know my surprise this morning when I found everything all assembled in fine shape. I had expected part of my things to come on another boat, but behold you, it all came at one time. The devil had been outwitted. The Lord has indeed been near for everything has worked out even better than I had prayed for.

Today we met the American Consul—a most pleasant person and what a welcome he gave us. There was with me the girl from Georgia. We were registered both by him and the Immigration Officer. We are now officially at home.

I was most fortunate to have two missionary girls as next door neighbors. They were about my age and going out for the first time, too. Louise from Georgia is a nurse and we had fun trying to outwit each other with tales of training days. Borghild Jacobson is a Norwegian from Canada. She spoke some Norwegian and so let us in on a lot of conversation which otherwise would have been Greek to us. She played the accordion quite well so we had some good song fests. The Captain called us the three mermaids all the time. He was a very interesting person and had hosts of tales to tell us—experiences of the war, etc.

August 14, on the way to Jos by train.

We three have been together until Louise got off last night at midnight. We certainly hated to part but she must be about the work that she has been called to do.

Borghild left just awhile ago. Both were thrilled to reach their destinations. All the way we have been accompanied by a most interesting Greek Christian. He has been a wonderful spiritual blessing to us all. We have sung, prayed and shared experiences, and the fellowship was most rich. The Lord has done abundantly more than what we ever thought or asked.

Last night we had a wonderful song service in which several workers on the train joined in much to our surprise and pleasure. It certainly warms one's heart to be able to witness and to bring to memory for those that have once heard. Several places along the way the Greek Christian sang some hymns in the native language and was joined by many children. Words are inadequate to describe the joy that we felt. The more people I see along the way the more anxious I become to reach the much longed-for place of work. My love for them is increasing day by day, as well as the burden for souls. Every day I am more and more grateful for my appointment and call. And day by day I am humbled and made to feel my complete dependence upon God for all needs.

There must be much more that I can tell you but I must close for this time. I wish to thank you for continuing prayers on my behalf. God has answered them already in a marvelous way. Do pray for others to be called of God, to come forth to the fields so ripe unto harvest.

My prayers and best wishes are with you,
With love in Christ Jesus,
Veda Liskey.

This additional excerpt is taken from a more recent letter to the Missionary Office:

At this time, I am at Jos, about 400 miles from my much longed-for destination. I arrived here Sunday, August 15 after traveling some 700 miles by train from Lagos. It was a delightful trip as well as interesting. I was met by Brother Claude Rupel, Lena Wirth, and Rosemary Holdereed. I am staying here awaiting the arrival of Brother Clarence Heckman who will take me to Garkida. I need not tell you that I am anxious to get there, get settled and start the language study.

No doubt when you receive this our Conference will be in session. How I would like to be present, but assure you I will be in much prayer and will think of all of you very much. I hope to send greetings to the Board as well as my sincere appreciation for its support and prayers.

Already, or I should say from the very beginning, I love Africa and even more the people. It is surprisingly more than I had dreamed. If more really knew how wonderful it is they could not help coming out. Some, no doubt, think that it is such a great sacrifice and that life is one great task, but except for being separated from loved ones at home, it is a great privilege to serve the Lord. The joys of being of some help to these needy souls will certainly outweigh any hardships, so it seems to me.

This brings my best wishes to you and I assure you that my prayers are ever with you in your service of our Savior.

In His service,
Veda Liskey.

Laying By In Store

do they rust. For in heaven there are no destructive insects. With the increase of these on this earth every year, the true child of God ought to look forward with a great deal of pleasure to a time where these will not destroy his possessions. And even though there are rivers of water running parallel with each street in heaven possessions will not rust. The streets of gold will always be pure gold.

Second, thieves cannot break through and steal possessions laid up in heaven. The rich man of the parable could not enter Abraham's bosom because he had not laid up treasure there. The beggar had laid up treasures and is now enjoying them. A great gulf was fixed and is fixed today by the eternal purpose of God. Thieves will never break through and steal away our heavenly possessions.

If the earthly possessions are exhausted and the heavenly last forever, then it is time that we seek the things that are from above. Heavenly treasures do exist. They are real, more real than the earthly. No moth can corrupt the garment of a pure life. No rust can corrode the armour of God. The shield of faith, the sandals of the Gospel of peace, the helmet of salvation, the sword of the Spirit, the breastplate of truth—these abide time and eternity. No thief can ever rob us of the Love of God. No human power can take away our Faith. Only sin in our lives can rob us.

Then why do we not seek the heavenly the more? Is it because we do not love it? Is it because it does not seem real? Ah, the true child of God does love it. It is real to him. For he is preparing a home up yonder with treasures to make it beautiful. For "where your treasure is, there will your heart be also." Use the spiritual gifts God has given you and you will lay up treasures that will endure.

—Elkhart, Ind.

The only unharmed part of the ruined Bible depot in Warsaw is a pane of glass bearing the text, "Heaven and earth shall pass away, but my words shall not pass away." The Warsaw window is a graphic reminder of the indestructibility of the Word of God.—The Friend of Russians.

FISHERS OF MEN

LESSON XXIX—THE LAWS OF TEACHING

Text—"They could not resist the wisdom and power with which he spoke." Acts 6:10.

Stephen was one of the seven men chosen to "serve tables" (Acts 6), but he continued to witness for Christ with such power that his enemies resorted to the argument of stoning. His sermon on that occasion is a fine example of the laws of teaching.

1. A friendly greeting. Compare it with the greetings of Peter and Paul. Acts 2:14, 15; 13:16, 17; 17:22, 23.
2. Appeal to confidence. Listeners know it if the Speaker knows. Matt. 7:29.
3. Appeal to interest. Illustrations clothe the skeleton of truth. Matt. 13:11.
4. Logical conclusions. Knowing logic saves one from many errors. I Cor. 15:10; Acts 22:3; 24:25.
5. Sincerity. Lacking this, one should kneel rather than stand. Phil 1:15-17.
6. Love. Love is the oxygen to a burning message. I Cor. 13:1-3.
7. Inspiration. Lk. 1:12-14.

SAMMY MORRIS

It was my privilege to be a student in Taylor University the year that Sammy Morris was there. He was an African boy of the Kroo tribe, son of a chief, captured in war, mutilated and abused until he escaped, converted in a coast mission, worked his way to New York and was sent on to Ft. Wayne where his enduement of the Holy Spirit was so manifest to all that he was invited to speak in the largest churches and always had converts. The cold winter caused pneumonia which cost his life, but many others have gone to Africa to take his place. The story of his life was read all over the country and hundreds go to visit his simple grave in Ft. Wayne. If God can do that for an African boy, why not also for all of us?

LESSON XXX—THE PURPOSE OF PREPARATION

Text—"That the man of God may be perfect, thoroughly furnished unto every good work." II Tim. 3:16, 17.

This is the work of Sunday Schools and seminaries. Let us use them.

1. Bible schools should first of all seek good material for workers. Mk. 3:14.
2. They should next develop their gifts and confirm their calling. II Tim. 1:6-8.
3. They should furnish students with necessary knowledge for their work. I Tim. 6:20, 21; 4:16.
4. They should prepare them for proper use of the Bible. II Tim. 3:15, 16.
5. They should train them in soul-winning and evangelism. II Tim. 2:2; 4:5.

PURPOSE OF PREPARATION

A young man said to me: "I would like to preach but I do not know what to say." That is the case with many others. And it is the purpose of the seminaries and training schools first to so fill the heads and the hearts of the students that when they go out they will have a burning message to give.

LESSON XXXI—USING THE WRITTEN WORD.

The Written Word can enter many places closed to the speaker. Use it.

1. The example of Paul. II Thess. 2:15.
2. Living epistles. II Cor. 3:3.
3. Exchange of letters. Col. 4:16.
4. Example of the church in Rome. Rom. 1:8.
5. Beware of false messages. II Thes. 2:2.
6. Blessed are they that read. Rev. 1:3.
7. What is the "Book of Life"? Rev. 3:5; 22:19.

BROTHER SMITH

All missionaries in South America of 1930 or before will know something of "Brother Smith" of the Los Angeles Bible House. He not only supplied the missionaries with the attractive Testaments with important passages underscored in red, but he supplied also tracts and wall mottoes and, best of all, wrote long, inspiring letters for their encouragement. We wondered how a busy man could find time for such wonderful letters. They were a part of his calling, and an inspiration to the missionaries also to use the printed page and personal letters in the winning of souls.

LESSON XXXII—NEW MEANS AND METHODS

Text—"I am made all things to all men that I might by all means save some." I Cor. 9:22.

Why should new inventions be left to evil workers? Let soul-winners use them.

1. What modern means of transporting workers may be used?
2. What inventions are useful for the transmission of sermons or pictures?
3. What modern aids are there for the sight and hearing in learning?
4. What are some aids to learning through the sense of touch?
5. How use the muscular memory by motion choruses, pageants, etc.
6. What symbols, as baptism, can be used?
7. Why are illustrations, oral or acted, so important?

A LIVELY CORPSE

When working in Montreal, Canada, we had among the members a Jew who was converted in England, and, as is characteristic of his race, became a very active worker. His specialty was to take a hand bell and go up and down the streets in London and elsewhere, ringing the bell and crying "Fire! fire! fire!" People would come running and on inquiring "Where? Where?" and when he had a sufficient crowd he would explain "In hell, and it will get, not your house but you, if you do not repent and accept your Savior." The poor man was disinherited by his family and a funeral was held to mourn his loss as dead. But he was a firebrand for the Lord both in London and Montreal.

CHRISTIAN ENDEAVOR TOPIC

W. St. Clair Benshoff, Topic Editor

"Topics copyrighted by the International Society of Christian Endeavor.
Used by permission."

Topic for September 26, 1948

FINDING A REAL PURPOSE IN LIFE

Scripture Lesson: Matt. 22:34-40; Phil. 3:13, 14

For The Leader

FOR A PERSON who has found their real purpose in life, there is peace and joy and success. An inward peace results for a person who finds an objective for which to reach, and a work to perform while he is reaching that objective. Such a happy state is possible in the Christian calling. It is true only in the Christian faith. We do have a real objective for which to live. It is the hope of life eternal in Christ Jesus. The service which we are to perform while attaining that objective is that of service for Him. A fuller trust in Christ results from the application of ourselves more fully to His service. The Lord guides us often in mysterious ways, but He does guide, provided we place ourselves completely in His care. Which all sums up to say that to find our real purpose in life, we must yield ourselves completely to His will.

DISCUSSION

1. IS OUR WILL HIS WILL? Sometimes some of the hardest things in life for us to recognize are that some ambition, intention or desire is not in the will of God. However right to us it may seem, it is not according to God's plan. What then? Should we go ahead and force it through, or abide by His will? It depends on whether or not we are truly His. If we are His we shall say, "thy will be done." Often it is hard for us to do this. Yet if we are to find our real purpose in life, we must put ourselves in His will. The Lord has great blessings in store willing to serve year by year, trusting in Him for strength. Yes, far more than if we go ahead on our own plans.

2. PAUL WAS TRUE TO HIS WORD. Note his real purpose in life. "I press toward the mark." That mark was reward and eternal service for Christ. He believed that only through personal faith in Christ as the Saviour of His soul from sin, could he hope for eternal life (Rom. 10:9, 10). He believed that he must walk the Christian profession, shunning the things of the world, if he was to keep hold on his right to eternal life. This is a point too often missed today.) (I Peter 2:11). He looked for the rapture, or the second coming of Christ for His Church (Titus 2:13). He believed in an eternal reward for those who faithfully served Christ in this life (II Tim. 4:6-8). Paul was true to the word of God. Blessed are those young people today who are faithful and true to the vital teachings of the Word. They shall receive their blest reward.

3. WHAT IS GOD'S PURPOSE IN LIFE FOR US? It is often true that God doesn't shed light upon the pathway very far in advance. But when it is time to take the step, there is light. Sometimes we must proceed entirely on faith. We can know God's purpose clearly if we follow one path. That path is daily prayer. If we could get one point across to young people everywhere about the value of daily prayer, we would not have lived in vain. Yes, young people, PRAY! Not mechanical prayers, but real prayer, coming from the heart. Enlist others to pray for you. Pray for others, and let them know that you are praying for them. It is truly a shame how little praying we really do for each other.

4. CAST YOUR BREAD UPON THE WATERS. Speak a helpful word, pray much for those who are upon your heart. As the bread shall return, so your encouraging words and prayers will return. We have lived just long enough to see that returns are coming in on prayers and words spoken. Perhaps you can find your purpose in life from a spoken word from another, or through the help of someone who is definitely praying for you. From this, then, glean the fact of your importance to some one else. The Lord is able to perform marvelous miracles, if we are patient. The trouble often is that we want to rush God. As the rose comes into its full beauty only as nature, in time, opens the bud, so can our lives blossom into full service and beauty as we patiently wait His direction. Your prayers and our prayers will work for all of us a full measure of Christian service.

5 BE READY! Be alert, be diligent, be careful, be true to your Christian vows, so that when your hour of duty arrives, you will be prepared. If you follow fleshly lusts, false doctrines, evil companions to rule your life, you won't be much good to Christ when the time comes that He could use you. Others have faith in you. Don't destroy their faith in you. Each of us have a responsibility to those who are praying, and sacrificing, for us. They want us to do the very best for Christ, they want us to be true to the Word, that the world might hear the gospel message. When God speaks, it will be wonderful if we can say, "Here am I, Lord(send me." Then those who are interested in you will rejoice. Don't you think that kind of a purpose in life will be rewarded through the years, and then throughout the life to come? Think about it seriously. Paul did.

6. MEETING THE NEEDS OF THE SOUL. Without question, the greatest purpose in life is getting souls into the right relationship with Christ. That relationship is specifically a saving one. We must first be concerned about our own soul. Is it right with God? It had better be, for it will be in the presence of God before long. If it is not in the right relationship, if tonight you would be afraid to meet God at death, you'd better do something right now. It doesn't pay to take chances. Sin, careless living, etc., put you in the danger column. Then, secondly, the greatest purpose in life is earnestly seeking the souls of others. Personal work, gospel preaching, missions. It is God's real purpose for us. Are you ready to forsake all else that you might win Christ and eternity in His presence? Yours can be a beautiful life with a beautiful future if you will follow in His way. May the Lord richly bless you always, keeping you by His power, using you to His Glory!

DISCUSSION QUESTIONS

1. Can a person be engaged in his own business or be in a factory or farm and still be able to meet God's purpose in His life?
2. Can others help us to find our real purpose in life? How?
3. How can we really know that we are really in the will of God for our lives?

Prayer Meeting Topic

Contributed by Rev. C. Y. Gilmer

NEGLECT

Did you ever win a soul to Christ?

If so, how long ago?

Has it been a week, a month, a year

Since God used you to show

The way of the Cross to a weary soul,

Weighted down with his sin,

Since you felt the joyous thrill that comes

As you see one enter in?

Perhaps you recall it was your word

That led some soul to Him

Months or years ago, but now

The memory's growing dim;

But what of the days or weeks since then,

What of this very day?

Have you held forth the Word of Life

To a lost soul today?

Has your love for Him grown colder

With every passing week?

Has your ardor cooled till you seldom dare

Of your Saviour dear to speak?

Do you often have a heavy burdened heart

Lift to the Lord in prayer

For those without the Heavenly fold,

Plead their salvation there?

O Lord, convict each child of Thine

Who does not heed Thy Word

To spread the Gospel everywhere

To those who have not heard.

Convict of sin—for such it is—

And give new love for Thee

And for lost souls, that we may heed

Thy words to us, "Go ye!"

—Fern Wallace.

"HOLDING FORTH THE WORD OF LIFE"

Scripture: Mark 1:14-17; Phil. 2:13-16

Hymns on Soul Winning

Prayer

Seed Thought Provokers:

CHRIST MAKES us to become fishers of men. "The nearest way to a man's heart is by God's throne of grace." The Holy Spirit using the Word will convict and convert sinners. Let us give Christ His opportunity (Mark 1:18-21; 29-32; 40, 42; 2:1, 2). "It was noised that He was in the house." The Lord had earned His crowds. He started by calling the one's and two's. But when He had displayed the power and authority of the Holy Spirit the crowds flocked to hear Him. Thus we cannot blame unsaved people for not attending our churches. There is no display of God's power. We are to let the Holy Spirit do exploits for God.

The church today should advertise—not her bakesale, but her Christ. The world advertises its possessions, pressing its wares upon the public. We should spend some money to win the lot, giving them something better than the world has to think about. Tell them the truth about Jesus and let them have a good look at Him. Who is more heroic or sacrificial than He? The blood-stained cross of Calvary sweeps every alibi of the sinner away (John 13:32). He can forgive and destroy every sin. He is the Helper of the helpless. Let us advertise by consistent Christian living. People cannot argue against the fact of a consistent Christian life, a surrendered Christian soul. They will follow satisfied customers of the life-giving Christ. Sincerity wins. It is our calling to love the Church. Were it not for somebody's church you and I would not be Christians. Let us be loyal to the Church for whom Christ died. Let us be constant witness-bearers. There can be no evangelism without personal soul winning. The more of Christ we give to others, the more of Him we have for ourselves. The more we give out of Him to others the more the Holy Spirit puts in us. Even if we try to win souls and fail, we have the satisfaction of having tried to do the right thing. Advertise Jesus aright and He will save.

COMMENTS

On The Sunday School Lesson

by The Editor

Lesson for September 10, 1948

FAITHFULNESS IN PUBLIC SERVICE

(Temperance)

Lesson: Acts 19:209-41

WHEN ONE ASSUMES a public office (or any office, for that matter) there goes with it the obligation of enforcing whatever laws that are in effect that have to do with that office, or the making of legislation which will be for the betterment of the people with which that office has to deal. But in far too many cases the officeholder is prone to think only of his own personal gains to the exclusion of the good of his fellowmen.

If the text of the day is adhered to, one will have a difficulty in finding much about temperance, unless it be assumed that drunkenness precipitated the riot as told in verse 34, and we have little or no grounds for that. Therefore we must turn our attention to the town clerk to whom was delegated the power to enforce laws. He illustrates that which can be done by one in authority, if he cares to do it.

That we have laws in our country that would definitely curb the liquor traffic if they were enforced, goes without saying. But when no one takes the trouble to find out if certain laws are enforced or not, then it may assuredly be said that they will not be enforced. It is far easier to just let the whole matter take the course of least resistance. The making of laws is one thing—the enforcement of laws is another.

This lesson can bring the Christian face to face with the entire problem of law enforcement.

Prayer

I thank thee, Lord, for mine unanswered prayers—
Unanswered save thy quiet, kindly “Nay”
Yet it seemed hard among my heavy cares
That bitter day.

I wanted joy; but thou didst know for me
That sorrow was the gift I needed most,
And in its mystic depths I learned to see
The Holy Ghost.

I wanted health; but thou didst bid me sound
The secret treasures of pain,
And in the moans and groans my heart oft found
The Christ again.

I wanted wealth; 'twas not the better part;
There is wealth with poverty oft given,
And thou didst teach me of the gold of heart,
Best gift of heaven.

I thank thee, Lord, for those unanswered prayers,
And for thy words, the quiet, kindly “Nay”;
'Twas thy withholding lightened all my cares
That blessed day.

—Selected.

The BRETHREN & EVANGELIST

HOLY BIBLE

Official Organ of The Brethren Church

The New Ashland College President and Family

Dr. and Mrs. Glenn L. Clayton and Son John

THE BRETHREN EVANGELIST

Published weekly, except the last week in August and
the last week in December.

THE BRETHREN PUBLISHING COMPANY

Ashland, Ohio

PRUDENTIAL COMMITTEE

J. E. Stookey, President N. G. Kimmel, Vice-President
J. G. Dodds, Secretary-Treasurer

EDITOR OF PUBLICATIONS—F. C. Vanator

BUSINESS MANAGER—G. S. Baer

EDITOR MISSIONARY NUMBER—E. M. Riddle

CONTRIBUTING EDITORS

Dr. Charles A. Bame Rev. Dyoll Belote

DEPARTMENTAL EDITORS

Rev. Delbert B. Flora, Doctrine
Rev. Cecil H. Johnson, Church Extension
Rev. Henry Bates, Methods
Rev. J. G. Dodds, National Goals

PLEASE REMEMBER: All material for publication in the Evangelist must be in the hands of the editor at least three weeks before the desired date of publication, to assure same to appear in desired issue. This refers to announcements particularly.

TERMS OF SUBSCRIPTION: $1.50 per year in advance.
CHANGE OF ADDRESS: In ordering change of address always
give both old and new addresses.

REMITTANCES: Send all money, business communications, and contributed articles to:

THE BRETHREN PUBLISHING COMPANY
ASHLAND, OHIO

Entered as second class matter at Ashland, Ohio. Accepted for mailing
at special rate, section 1103, act of October 3, 1917. Authorized
September 3, 1928.

INTERESTING ITEMS

Smithville, Ohio. We note that the Bylers, who are soon to be on their way to our South American Mission Field, were in charge of the morning service at Smithville on Sunday, September 19th.

We see also by Brother Grisso's September 12th bulletin that two auto loads of women are going from Smithville to Lost Creek, Kentucky to help in the "fall cleaning" at the Mission. The trip is scheduled for about the first week in October. They will remain for the entire week.

Lanark, Illinois. We are in receipt of an envelope from Brother L. O. McCartneysmith, pastor of the Lanark Church, which contained materials to be sent out to the congregation: A pastoral letter, which will be sent out under the date of September 27; a Rally Day card which announces Rally Day and Homecoming for October 3, which date also marks the time of the opening of the fall revival campaign with Brother and Sister Samuel Adams of Pleasant Hill, Ohio, as the evangelistic party; a card marked "Loyalty Pledge" indicating October as Loyalty Month; a card for "Youth Sunday"—October 10; a card marked "Family Sunday"—October 17; one marked "Guest Sunday"—October 24; and one marked "Communion Sunday"—October 31. These cards are to be signed and returned on their respective Sundays. A certificate 8½ x 11, titled "Certificate of Loyalty," suitable for framing, will be given to each one returning all the cards in person each Sunday in October. A Basket Dinner will be served on Rally and Homecoming Day.

Louisville, Ohio. We are in receipt of another copy of Brother John Byler's monthly paper, "The Pastor's Helper," which he distributes to his congregation. Each month this little mimeographed paper contains the important announcements for the current month, news of the local church organizations, and many bits of interesting information. Keep us on your mailing list, Brother Byler. We appreciate it.

Akron, Ohio (Firestone Park). A card from Brother J. G. Dodds tells us that five have been received into the church since the dedication of their new church. Brother Dodds says, "Our attendance since entering the new church is on the increase."

Brother C. C. Grisso Holding Evangelistic Meetings. A card from Brother C. C. Grisso says, "I will begin a meeting at Mathias, West Virginia, on September 19th, and another at the Third Church of Johnstown, Pennsylvania, on October 3rd.

Brother Grisso also tells us that we were at least three short in our estimate of the confessions at Stockton, California, which we reported recently. It should have been 25 instead of 22.

Loree, Indiana. Brother Robert K. Higgins gives us the following special services as scheduled at the Loree Church: October 3—Prof. Donald Bame of Ashland College will speak at the morning service in behalf of the College. Prof. Bame is the son of Dr. and Mrs. C. A. Bame. October 8—The Dixie Four will present a concert in the evening. October 24—Homecoming, with Rev. C. A. Stewart as the guest speaker for the afternoon.

Brother Higgins reports that four were baptized and received into the church on August 15th.

Elkhart, Indiana. Brother L. V. King announces the Elkhart Rally Day for October 3. The Bylers will be the speakers at the morning service. Mrs. Byler is the daughter of Brother and Sister King. Homecoming and Cash Day is scheduled for October 10th.

Dr. Glenn L. Clayton, President of Ashland College, was the guest speaker in Elkhart on September 19th.

Milledgeville, Illinois. Brother D. C. White announces Rally Day in the Milledgeville Church as September 26. A fine program has been prepared.

Rev. E. M. Riddle, Field Secretary for Ashland College, will be the guest speaker at Milledgeville on October 3rd, in behalf of Educational Day.

Vinco, Pennsylvania. Prof. W. H. Miley of the Speech

(Continued on Page 10)

The Editor Thinks Aloud

Fred C. Vanator

OUR YOUTH PROGRAM

THE SPECIAL SPEAKER for the Brethren Youth programs during the late General Conference was Dr. W. R. Smith of Dubuque Seminary, of Iowa. He was the much appreciated speaker this year, even as he was last year. In his Saturday evening message before the general session of conference, he said, among other things, "Our Youth problems will never be solved by 'young preachers,' 'youth programs,' etc., but in Godly homes."

As I listened, of course it set me to thinking!

We are all, as a church, united in backing our new Youth Movement and its new National Director, Rev. Charles Munson. We realize that it is now not a question of what has not been done in the past, but what may be done in the future. Paraphrasing the words of Jesus, "We must work the works of Him that has sent us while it is day, for the night cometh when no man can work." To this end a program is being set up, which, while it is largely in the experimental stage, is aimed to put all of our young people to work for the Master. It is, as Director Munson says, no attempt to disrupt or disorganize any of the present organizations of our youth, but rather to seek to correlate the work of these organizations and help them to move forward in a uniform manner.

But really that was not what I started out to "think" about. It was the last phrase of Dr. Smith's sentence that drew my particular attention. Remember he said that the youth problem must be solved "in godly Homes." Just how young should a person be to begin having his youth problems solved? There is a proverb which says, "Train up a child in the way he should go, and when he is old he will not depart from it." Is it possible that fathers and mothers in Christian homes are too busy to meet the necessary requirements of teaching their children the steps by which they grow into Christian life? I can think of two kinds of homes—one that has such family ties and such training that the children never cause the parents one moment of worry or anguish; the other where parents are constantly kept wondering what their offspring will do next.

Who is to blame for the latter condition? Surely not the public school nor the Sunday School. It certainly falls back upon the home. But is our youth problem too surprising? Just how much home life do we have in our average communities? Nevertheless, that is where the first failure can be laid—in homes.

Isn't it about time that newly established homes be based on a desire to train the children that will grace the home, in the fundamentals of religion (or I should say, Christianity) and morality? If this is done, then there will be no youth problem.

But let us not forget that we have many, many young people who are no problems to either home or community. So often we forget this. On these young people much depends for the future. Let's get behind these and help them all we can!

Think it over!

Office Gleanings

THE FAIRVIEW BRETHREN CHURCH (WASHINGTON C. H., Ohio) Goes ON THE 100% EVANGELIST HONOR ROLL

A CHECK for $30.00 of which $16.50 was to be applied for eleven subscriptions, (which list will make the Brethren Evangelist go into the homes of the eleven families that remain faithful members of this pastorless Brethren Church), came to our office today (September 17). The remainder of the $30.00 was to be applied to the Publication Day Offering. We are glad to welcome this group to our 100% Honor Roll and thank them for the gift to the Publication Day Fund.

But that is not all. Another check in the amount of $50.00 was enclosed to be applied on the Press and Equipment Fund. And again we say, "Thank You" to these fine folks.

Brother D. R. Murray, pastor of the Columbus Cooperative Brethren Church has been working closely with these brethren, and seeking to help them. We appreciate his part in the above gifts.

Additional Press and Equipment Gifts

J. O. Y. Class, Uniontown, Pennsylvania	$ 5.00
First Brethren Church, Waterloo, Iowa	124.00
Fairview Brethren Church (Washington C. H., Ohio)	50.00

(See block on page 16)

Are Your Sunday School Orders In?

The Adult Quarterlies for which we have the orders have been mailed, and the Youth Quarterlies are in the process of mailing at this writing. Did you forget to order yours? Then, too, since we have to order your selections from other publishing houses, we are wondering if you have included all your wants? Be sure in ordering to state plainly just what you want in number, grade (if graded lessons) full title and anything else that might help us to understand exactly what you desire. We want to serve you promptly.

It Won't Be Long Till Christmas

Are you thinking about books or novelties for gifts at Christmas? Order early and you won't be disappointed in the final rush of things. In ordering books, if you know both author and publisher, please note them with your order. It will save us a lot of hunting in our catalogs. Remember that with most publishers we are on their commission list. It won't cost you any more to order through your Publishing Company and we make something, which always helps our sales.

Christian Education

President Glenn L. Clayton

I HAVE ON MY DESK a copy of a letter from a famous scholar. He tells the story of a young man who was born into a respectable family, reared in the best social manner, educated in the most popular schools, and who then shocked his family and friends by rejecting the society which had produced him. Imprisoned on a charge of criminal assault, the young man arrogantly told authorities that he expected nothing from them or from those who had reared him. He would admit no wrong, bitterly denounced those who vainly tried to impress him with his actual position of degradation, and cynically rejected all efforts to approach him on the moral issue.

The scholar who relates this story is not a great churchman. Yet, he does make the interesting observation that if the young man had been reared by godly parents, taught the habit of regular church attendance, and educated in a sound religious school, he would have had a moral sense of right and wrong in addition to a spiritual beacon to direct his life and to light his way. Confronted by the intricate temptations of a complex society the young man was unable to feel any obligation to choose one course of action over another.

The Brethren Church has a commendable history of support to higher learning. Ashland College stands high on the list of institutions dedicated to the training of young men and women in such a way that they shall understand more clearly the spiritual and moral obligation which is a part of every man's relationship to society. America will be a better nation in the future because of the efforts of the people who support schools like Ashland.

Even more important to the church is the training of her leaders. The pastors, the Church and Bible School leaders, and the general laity will be alert and aware of the challenges of the hour if the church of today so wishes it. A progressive building program of spiritual as well as physical elements in the church is possible only to the extent of the education of its leaders.

It is, therefore, with confidence that we come to the churches this year, asking for a generous Education Day Offering. A very tangible way in which to help in the effort to promote church welfare is to aid in the education of her young people. When the time comes give prayerfully, give willingly, give generously, so that when the storms of adversity shall blow in the future, you may be able to say, "I have builded well, O Lord; I have accomplished my task."

"Unto the Land that I Will Shew Thee"

Dean M. A. Stuckey

SOMEBODY, some group or groups of individuals, or some Board within the Brethren Church, should act soon to give the missionary recruits now coming to Ashland College and Seminary a finer and more extensive training for service in lands far away.

The Seminary now offers a few courses which help missionary-minded students to choose "a land that I will shew thee." But the offerings are too scanty, and an additional Seminary teacher, or part-time instructor, is a paramount need today.

We cannot establish Brethren mission stations without Brethren leaders. Such leaders should be trained under Brethren auspices and in our Brethren educational institution. Brethren history, Brethren doctrine, and Brethren polity, are subjects not considered in non-denominational educational institutions.

The Seminary faculty stands ready to assist in enlarging greatly the present missionary activities in the Brethren Church. We shall offer every aid possible to extend our church building and to establish new mission stations with Brethren trained men and women to supervise and control the work.

It appears that the future will call for leaders who have wide and extensive training in many fields. Doctors, preachers, teachers, evangelists, supervisors, nurses, helpers etc. will be needed in many areas. Let the Brethren awake and arise to answer the world's call and the Lord's command to send forth harvesters "into a land that I will shew thee."

Pray therefore, that the Lord will guide the right people in the right way to set up the right kind of Christian educational and missionary program in our beloved denomination. A safe, sane, sound program based on solid educational foundations is an imperative necessity in the future.

Our Educational Day offering will help in part only to accomplish such ends as are mentioned

